A "revelation" by Cartaphilus, the Jew, to Mr. Hoffman. The scene opens at Jerusalem, and the writer describes the condemnation and death of Christ as they appeared to an eye-witness. Thence the Jew passes on to Athens, Jerusalem, Pompeii, descr. the various forms of religion ; and proceeds to treat of the origin of the Kelts, the nature of fire, the Manichaeans, Gnostics, the Rabbinical Philosophy, Cabalists, Rosicrucians, Stonehenge and the Druids, etc.

Introduction.

STUCKENBERG, Dr. J. H. W. [Am.] Introduction to the Study of Philosophy — $2 — 8° New York — 88

Encyclopædia of the Philosophical Sciences, and Dictionary.

FLEMING, Prf. William — A Vocabulary of Philosophy — 10/6 c — 8° Griffin — [58] 87

This edn. has been largely reconstructed by Prf. H. CALDERWOOD, w. assist. of J. SETH and others ; previous editions of the smallest use.

KRAUTH, Prf. C. P. [Am.] — A Vocabulary of the Philosophical Sciences — $3.50 — 8° New York — [78] 81

Includes a reprint of FLEMING, ut supra, fr. second edn. of 1860 and also fr. third (ed. CALDERWOOD) of 1876, with a useful but not very well selected list of books at the end.

Neither of the two above books are at all satisfactory. The three best German works on philosophical "encyclopædia," are that by A. H. RITTER : Encyc. d. philosoph. Wissenschaften, 3 vols. 8° Göttingen '62-'64 ; that by Jos. BECK : Philosoph. Propädeutik, 2 pts. 5/6 8° Stuttgart ['41-'44] '80 ; and that by K. ROSENKRANZ : System der Wissenschaften, 8/- 8° Königsberg '50. None of these, however, contain bibliographies.

II. History of Philosophy (European).

2. HISTORY OF PHILOSOPHY : GENERALLY.

Entire Period.

BAX, E. Belfort — A Short History of Philosophy — 5/– c — 8° Bohn's Lib. — [86] 89

Easier reading than SCHWEGLER and more up to date than TENNEMANN, but the student must supplement it.

*ERDMANN, Prf. J. E. — Hist. of Philos., tr. under direc. of Dr. W. S. Hough, v. i. 15/–; ii. 15/–; iii. 12/– — 8° Sonnenschein — 89

By far the best and fullest general history, with copious extracts from the philosophers.

LEWES, G. H. [Pos.] — Biographical History of Philosophy — 16/– — 8° Parker — [46] 57

" " — History of Philosophy from Thales to Comte — 2 vols. 32/– — 8° Longman — [67] 80

Practically a new edition of the former work : the biograph. portion is the only part of much value.

MAURICE, Rev. F. D. — Moral and Metaphysical Philosophy — 2 vols. 16/– — 8° Macmillan — [50–53] 73

i. : to xiii. century ; ii. : to 1800. Not suited to students owing to its lack of definiteness.

*SCHWEGLER, A. — History of Philosophy, tr. and annotated J. H. Stirling — 6/– c — 8° Edinburgh — [63] 79

A clear and concise presentation of the history of philosophy : Hegelian point of view.

SETH, Prf. Andrew — —article Philosophy in Encyclo. Brit., vol. xviii. [brief view of its scope] — 30/– — 4° Black — 85

TENNEMANN, W. G. — Manual of History of Philosophy, tr. A. Johnson — 5/– c — 8° Bohn's Lib. — [36] 52

His Geschichte der Philosophie (11 vols., 1798-1819) has not been translated. This book is too brief to be of much value, but is useful as a repository of notices and references concerning philosophers.

UEBERWEG, Dr. F. — History of Philosophy ; from Thales to the present time [Am. tr.] — 2 vols. 39/– — 1 8° Hodder — [74,74] 85,80

1 Ancient and Mediæval Philosophy, 18/– ; 2. Modern Philosophy, 21/–. Contains admirable condensed exposition of methods ; and good bibliogs., ending, however, c. 1865.

4. HISTORY OF CIVILIZATION.

Generally.

ANDREWS, Prf. E. B. [Am.] Brief Institutes of General History [institutions and progress] $2 12° Boston [87] 88
BALMES, J. European Civilization [tr. fr. Spanish] 10/- 8° Burns & Oates [49] 55

Written by a learned Spanish Catholic ecclesiastic to counteract the influence of GUIZOT'S bk., ut inf. Compares the effect of Protestantism and Romanism upon Europ. civilization, much to the credit of the latter. Chaps. 34-38 [Tolerance, Right of Coercion, Inquisition] contr. the gist of the whole argument.

*BUCKLE, H. T. History of Civilization in England & France, Spain & Scotland, 3 vols. 24/- c 8° Longman [57-61] 67

Evolves and explains all possible occurrences and phenomena according to an a priori Necessity. On its first appearance in 1857, the bk. was everywhere hailed as a phenomenal work of a new genius, but since the author's death in 1861 the reading public has estimated it at its more real value. It is prodigiously learned, very dogmatic, fragmentary and exceedingly suggestive. BUCKLE is said to have spent 17 years' work of ten hours a day each in preparing himself for writing this book; and had he lived to complete the undertaking, of which this is only a gigantic fragmentary introduction, there is little doubt that it would have been one of the most important contributions to history of the latter half of the 19th cent.

An admirable and very compact summary, well edited by the English translator.

*DRAPER, Dr. J. W. [Am.] History of the Intellectual Development of Europe, 2 vols. 10/- c 8° Bohn's Lib. [63] 76

Makes physiology the basis of his philosophy of history, resolving all historical into physiological phenomena, whether material, vital, or spiritual. Pretty much the same Necessitarian point of view as BUCKLE, maintaining that Xty. in Europe has been a misfortune, civilization having progressed only as faith has declined.

FROUDE, J. A. —in his Short Studies, ser. i. 6/- c 8° Longman [67] 86

Takes the very opposite view to that of BUCKLE, maintaining that the peculiarities of history are chiefly due to the wayward forces of human nature.

GEIGER, Lazarus Contrib. to Hist. of Develop. of Human Race [tr.] [Eng. & For. Phil. Lib.] 6/- 8° Trübner 80
GUIZOT, F. P. G. History of Civilization in Europe [A.D. 475-1789] 3/6 c 8° Bohn's Lib. 56

*LECKY, W. E. H. History of European Morals, 2 vols. [Augustus to Charlemagne] 16/- 8° Longman [69] 77

MACAULAY is said to have read this work more often than any other history, and to have said that, though he might hope to rival any other piece of historical writing he knew, he could never hope to rival the 7th bk. of Thucydides. Ends with the Peloponnesian War. Written in a popular, attractive style, and the best book for the general reader.
,, ,, General History of Greece; maps and tables [to d. of Alexander] 7/6 c 8° ,, [76] 83
One of the best of the smaller histories of Greece. Attaches much importance to mythology as a key to the characteristics of early civilization.
*CURTIUS, Prf. Ernst History of Greece, tr. Prf. A. W. Ward, 5 vols. [to B.C. 337] ea. 18/- 8° Bentley 68-73
Scholarly and for scholars; but omits naming his authorities, tho' the value of his archæolog. and histor. researches is undoubted. Monarchical in sympathy, differing also in other respects from GROTE. Devotes much attention to geography, though his theory as to origin and movements of early Hellenic races is accepted by very few scholars.

*GROTE, George History of Greece, 10 vols. [to Alexander the Great] ea. 5/- p 8° Murray [46-50] 88
Cf. review in J. S. MILL'S Dissertations. The 10 vol. 8vo edn., pub. £6, 1872, is out of print. Probably no histor. wk. of this cent. has received more general or more hearty recognition than has this. It is history of the highest order of merit: learned, full of research, familiar with the byways as well as the highways of Gk. literature—its one fault being its awkward & occasionally involved style. Written fr. pt. of view of a practical politician, of Liberal views.
MITFORD, Wm. Hist. of Greece, ed. Ld. Redesdale [his bro.]; 8 v. [to d. of Philip of Maced.] [w. 15/-] 8° Caddell [1784] 38 [1818]
No longer of any great value. Occupies position on the Tory side held by GROTE on the Liberal. The edns. before the 7th (the above) are almost worthless, as not contg. the considerable revisions and corrections which were incorporated in it.

Originally there were 31 books, covering the period A.D. 96-378; and as the history began where TACITUS and SUETONIUS ended, it was regarded as a contin. of them; but the first 13 bks. are now lost, and we have left only the bks. embracing the period A.D. 353-378. The First Book contains the best discussion on the Institutions of the period of the Kings. Almost faultless in style, but a "popular" history, written to gratify the national vanity of the Romans. Of the 142 bks. written by LIVY, only 35 have been preserved. Bks. i.-x. we have entire [to B.C. 294]: the third decade [219-201] has also come down to us; the fourth decade and first half of fifth, bks. xxxi.-xlv., are entire; of the rest only summaries.

Mainly a constitutional history; prepared for general readers rather than scholars, though it has become a favourite student's book. MOMMSEN does not give his authorities, which, as he relies on the results of philological research and on monumental inscriptions, is an omission particularly serious. Methods very much those of NIEBUHR.

*HALLAM, Henry The Constitutional Hist' of Engl., 3 vols. [Hy. vii.–Geo. ii.; 1485–1760] 12/- p 8° Murray [27] 72

,, ,, The Same, abridged and ed. Dr. W. Smith 7/6 p 8° ,, 72
Learned, impartial, and by no means yet antiquated, but in awkward and laborious style. Cf. MACULAY'S critique of this work in his Essays, 2/6 c 8° Longman [25–44] '83. The edns. in 1 vol.
