Handwritten text in a decorative script, likely Burmese, on a long, narrow strip of paper. The text is arranged in several lines and is flanked by ornate, gold-leaf borders. The script is highly stylized and appears to be a form of Pagan or early Burmese script. The text is written in black ink on a light-colored background, with gold leaf used for decorative elements and some characters.

Handwritten Khmer text on a palm leaf manuscript, featuring decorative floral patterns and a central hole.
