How your membership helps the Animal Rescue Teams

For over 20 years the National Animal Rescue Association has been saving lives.

And today, as when founded in 1972 we still rely entirely on voluntary contributions.

Which is why your membership is so vital to us.

Without your help, and that of many people like you, there wouldn't be a National Animal Rescue Service.

The volunteers that never count the cost to themselves

Selfless devotion and courage are the principle qualities of our Animal Rescue workers.

Their skills and expertise, given voluntarily, have resulted in thousands of animals and birds, and sometimes even human beings, being saved nationally and internationally in 20 years.

They are prepared to respond to the call for help and are available 24 hours a day.

Almost a third of rescues take place in the dark, on water, or in other hazardous areas such as mountains. International response includes areas hit by disasters such as earthquakes and floods, and sometimes even war-zones.

Volunteers are also involved in environmental issues which help to protect the many wild creatures of our earth.

Counting the cost.

It costs a minimum of £45,000 each year to operate and maintain our service, and remember a team is called out on average every eight hours 365 days of the year.

As a member or friend of the Association

Importantly, you will know that your membership or gift has actively helped to support this vital service.

By joining us you will receive our quarterly newsletter "Lifeline". In it you will find facts about the Association, stories of recent rescues and information on environmental campaigns.

If you really want to help to save life and prevent suffering to animals join us today.
