THE GROWING CYCLE CHILD MOTHER CHILD

This one-day conference is designed to help health professionals, including health visitors, community nurses, dietitians and general practitioners when counselling patients and clients on the nutritional needs of women prior to and during pregnancy, and of children during infancy and early childhood.

The conference forms part of the National Dairy Council's 'Making Sence of Food' campaign, launched in 1992 in direct response to the government's Health of the Nation initiative. The speakers at the conference, all experts in their fields, will present new and existing research of particular relevance to the dietary needs of mothers and young children, and will discuss practical ways for health professionals to put this research to use.

It is hoped that the meeting will assist delegates in recognising potential nutritional problems and in giving appropriate dietary advice in a form that can be acted upon.
