

Details of the driving licence of 'Don Halstead' with details 'expires on birthday 1994' and a warning about the risks of dying on the same date from the AIDS virus; a poster from the America responds to Aids advertising campaign. Lithograph, 1994.

Contributors

United States. Department of Health and Human Services.

Publication/Creation

[Washington (D.C.)] : [Department of Health and Human Services], [1994]

Persistent URL

<https://wellcomecollection.org/works/z64atdvq>

License and attribution

You have permission to make copies of this work under a Creative Commons, Attribution, Non-commercial license.

Non-commercial use includes private study, academic research, teaching, and other activities that are not primarily intended for, or directed towards, commercial advantage or private monetary compensation. See the Legal Code for further information.

Image source should be attributed as specified in the full catalogue record. If no source is given the image should be attributed to Wellcome Collection.

Wellcome Collection
183 Euston Road
London NW1 2BE UK
T +44 (0)20 7611 8722
E library@wellcomecollection.org
<https://wellcomecollection.org>

If you get the AIDS virus now, you and your license could expire at the same time.

Someone can have HIV for years without knowing it. This means that many people in their twenties who have AIDS may have been infected with the virus while they were in their teens. Don't wait for proof that AIDS exists. It does. 1-800-342-AIDS. For the hearing impaired, 1-800-AIDS-TTY.

AMERICA
RESPONDS
TO AIDS