OVALTINE

The tonic, nutritive and digestive properties of "Ovaltine" render it the ideal combination for use in all cases where a building and reconstructive nutrient is required.

Physiological tests and clinical experience of a most exhaustive character have proved "Ovaltine" to supply every element necessary for the normal and healthy growth or repair of bodily tissue.

This delicious food beverage provides the following important factors. Proteins sufficient in quantity and of appropriate amino acid constitution. Mineral constituents of the right kind and in correct proportion. Adequate energy value and correct content of the accessory growth factors or vitamins.

The requirements enumerated above are fulfilled to entirety in "Ovaltine", and the physician will find this ideal nutrient of the greatest value in all those conditions in which the reconstructive and building elements of diet are of paramount importance.
