Dear Sir,

I should be very greatly obliged if you could give me permission to have photographed several exhibits in your fascinating museum for the purposes of two magazine articles I am now writing. Of course I will make every suitable acknowledgment, and reserve copyright.

I am a member of the staff of the "Ladies' Field" (as well as being the secretary of the above institution) and the objects I wish to illustrate my articles are several forms of plague respirators and some of the unrivalled pharmacy jars you have. If you can accord me the courtesy of reproduction I will call upon you and arrange for the attendance of the photographer who usually does the museum work for the "Ladies' Field."

Believe me to remain,

Faithfully yours,

Dear Sir,

I am in receipt of your letter of the 13th July, saying that you are unable to extend the permission to reproduce the pharmacy vases to another firm. I understand, however, that you this morning telephoned a member of my staff that the permission might be granted, and I shall be much obliged if you will let me have this in writing, as otherwise I should not care to act in opposition to the contents of your letter of July 13th.

I am very much obliged to you in any case for the courtesy extended to ourselves, the article has created great interest, and has given much pleasure to our readers.

Yours faithfully,

14 July 1915.

Dear Sir,

In reply to yours of the 13th inst. the editor of "The Ladies' Field" wrote to me yesterday asking for permission to pass on the blocks to another journal, but I was sorry to have to refuse her as I had obtained special permission for Mr. Stokes to use them in "The Ladies' Field" only. I did not know at that time that Mr. Umney was the editor of the journal in question, and this being the case I shall be most pleased to give him the necessary permission to reproduce the blocks from "The Ladies' Field" in connection with the article on the understanding that the same acknowledgements should appear beneath each, namely, "Copyright to and reproduced by kind permission of the Wellcome Historical Medical Museum.

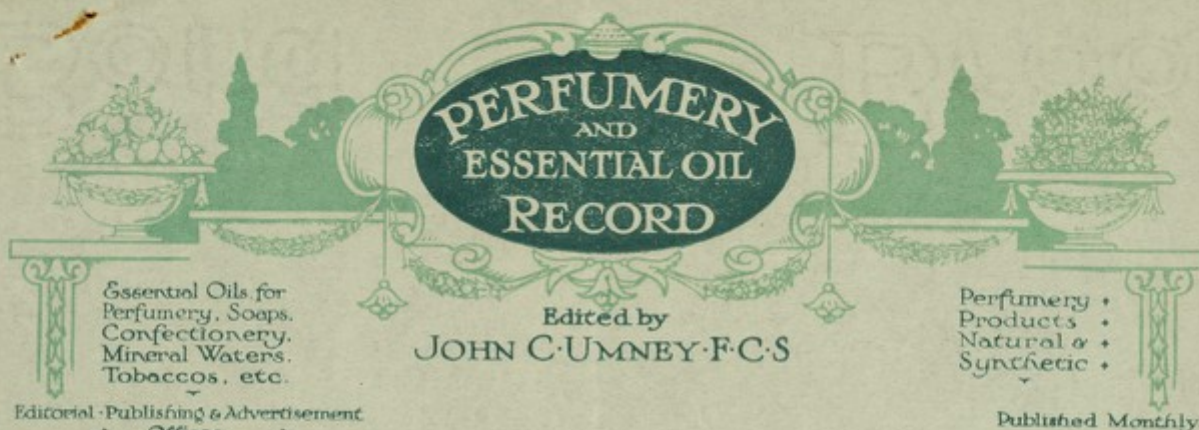

I am 'phoning to the editor of "The Ladies' Field" the purport of this letter.
