H.M.M.

22 February 1916.

Dear Sir,

I have today received the egg-cup from Mr. Sarson, King's College Hospital, and am placing it among our collection with an account of its recovery.

Thanking you very cordially for your kindness, and the trouble you have taken in the matter,

I am,

Faithfully yours,

C.J.S.T.

Mr. C.P.G. Wakeley, R.N.,
Royal Naval Hospital,
Haslar, Gosport.

Dear Sir,

With reference to your note in the issue of 'The British Medical Journal' of this week on 'Foreign body in the rectum', we are making a collection in this Museum of the objects employed in such cases, to which will be attached the story of their use. If the egg-cup has been kept we should very glad to have it to place with our collection, and would much appreciate your kindness if you could put us into the way of getting it.

Thanking you in anticipation,

Faithfully yours,

C.J.S.T.
