Dear Sir,

In reply to your postcard we are quite aware that you did not ask us to make an offer for the book-plates, but we do not think that you need be above considering the same, especially at this time. We think the prices of the book-plates were high, and the condition in all cases was not good. As we have retained them so long we will in this case keep them, and we are enclosing you the amount of 10/9 for the six plates less the Great returned.

In reply to your query as to whether you should send us more, we regret we cannot do with any at this price.
