Very honoured Mr Wellcome,

asseel

You were kind enough to send me your treatise on Cymric Medicine for which I thank you heartily. It greatly interested me to learn something about the old Eritish Druids; your nicely got up book which is such good reading should be of interest to everybody; my friends will be given this pamphlet to peruse.

These antient inhabitants of Wales must really have been quite intelligent people. The shield "A Druidical Jewel" would today still cause a sensation if one had it made in gold, garnets and turquoises. The sketch of the wild goat is very good, and the drawings of the sun, moon and stars could be used today. Even bacteriology was known in those days but they certainly did not possess the microscope of Ross and Zeiss. On page 13 the old gentleman, who is also probably a professor, holds a book in his hand which could serve as a pattern to the bookbinders of today; is not the book of a more modern age?

The historical exhibition which you think to arrange will no doubt be very instructive. Last autumn I studied the Germanic Museum in Nurnberg of which I am a member; the pharmaceutical department is extremely interesting. One should only learn modern pharmacy by giving consideration to its history and development, this sort of thing is mostly regarded as a curiosity; it is not the case however; the matter demands very serious treatment.

I wish you, dear Mr Wellcome, the best success in your really seasonable and thankworthy undertaking and am pleased that you are working on so actively in your sphere.

> Yours very respectfully, (signed) T. Martenson.

Dear Sir,

Many thanks for your kind letter of the 20th inst., respecting the little book on Antien Cymric Medicine.

With respect to my forthcoming historical medical exhibition, in which you kindly take such an interest, if you can help me in any way by getting the promise of suitable exhibits, I shall be very grateful. The matter of the early art of healing among the Norse and Scandinavians is practically untouched, and I should gladly welcome the loan of any relics of medicine of these peoples.

Trusting you will give me what assistance you can in the matter,

I am,

Yours very truly,

Dr J. von Martenson, Ligovskaja 3, St. Petersburg,

Russia.

Yes, fishing is a very nice sport it refreshes body and mind, and the eye which has strained too much has time to recover. I told my friends at Carl Zeiss in Jene to include in their price lists for microscopes, also fishing tackle (English), so that people could rest their eyes after microscopic researches. Probatum est.

On the Wuoxen in Finland, all the anglers and peasants knew me the latter of whom used to row me about on the wild river when I was angling, for over there one always angles from the boat. I was called there "Kala Kunningas" which means the fisher king, this is recognition indeed! On the Saima lake, however, perch, pike, and other fish were our sport, and we used to stay away for several days in well equipped boats, leading a regular tramp life. It was splendid!

Now I am retiring from everything, and am giving up my work, I also withdraw from all pharmaceutical matters. For several years I have been occupying myself, as a pastime, with optical problems, and have commenced again to take some interest in astronomy. Only when I am travelling or am away on excursions I am accompanied by my sketch book and painting case.

I am handing over my laboratory to my successor. I have had enough of analysing preparations. Only at the Evangelical Hospital here I deliver from time to time a lecture out of old friendship for the sisters, who receive these gratefully. Of course, dear Mr. Wellcome, there is a time for everything.

With the most cordial greetings, I remain,

Yours very sincerely, (Sgd.) J. Martenson.

TRANSLATION.

St. Petersburg, 9/22 March,1908.

Dear Mr. Wellcome,

The present which you so kindly offered me of I. Walton's Complete Angler, came as a real surprise, and this all the more so as I could not suppose that you had any knowledge of my passion for angling. I suppose you yourself are a real angler? Yes, the English always excelse, and are masters in angling, and painting in water colours.

Some little time ago I wrote to Mr. Winsor-Newton in London to inform him, that his colours were not equalled by other makers on the continent, and I and my friends who paint in water colours can testify to this.

When I was in London I bought a Quantity of different fishing tackle at Farlow's, and I there met a few sportsmen from Scotland who were astonished at my wanting such large Quantities of various articles. When they heard that I was a Russian salmon fisher they invited me in the kindest manner to look them up in Scotland in order to go fishing with them. True gentlemen!

As an educated angler I was of course familiar with Isaac Walton's excellent book, of which I had a copy of another edition. Is not"the milk maid's song" very pretty ? On the whole the book makes you feel quite at home. The angler's song for instance "Yes, yes, I marry Sir, this is musickindeed, this has cheered my heart". The splendidly bound book will always be a dear souvenir of you, and of my fishing time.

Since the death of my dear wife, and since the death of a few dear friends who were also devotees of the angling sport I have Quite abandoned the latter. I have given away most of my good fishing tackle and therefore do not feel tempted to visit the lakes of Finland and Esthonia. Only the remembrances remain, and I was fond of this sport and had rented for me and my friends a nice lake in Finland where salmon abounded on the wild Wuoxen. We were fishing salmon, trout and other fish.

For many years I have been lecturing on chemistry at an important college, and there I used to say to my pupils who complained about the chemical formulae, that they ought not to grumble because fishing for trout and salmon was much more difficult.

Discoveries of Modern Physicians Known to Those of Ancient Tibet.

The Russian Academy of Medicine, after examining a Tibetan "Handbook of Medicine," first published twelve hundred years ago, acknowledges that it contains many truths discovered, or rediscovered, by modern physicians.

The Czar's Buddhist subjects in Siberia petitioned the Government to establish in their districts medical schools where the Tibetan school be taught to natives. Hence the action of the Academy of Medicine. Here are some extracts from the ancient volume:

"Number of bones in the human body, 360; number of nerves, 99; number of pores, 11,000,000.

"The heart is the king of the organs and the staff of life; the lungs embrace it as a mother does her child. Sicknesses are due to man's malice, ignorance, and inability to curb the passions, for these things interfere with the proper nourishment of the human organs. All unkind thoughts react upon the heart and liver."

The methods for ascertaining the state of a person's health were the same as those methods employed to-day—looking at the tongue, feeling the pulse, etc., etc. Vegetable medicines are advocated, also baths, compresses, massage, blood-letting, etc. Fines were imposed upon physicians who did not keep their instruments clean.

People in good health were admonished to keep so by reasonable living, by avoiding excesses, and by cleanliness of both mind and body.

Dear Mr. Martenson,

I noticed in a recent issue of a London newspaper that the Russian Academy of Medicine has published an account of a Tibetan "Randbook of Medicine," of great antiquity, which they have had translated. From some extracts published, it seems of great interest, and I should esteem it a favour if you were able to abtain a copy and forward it to me. I should be glad to bear expense of same, and postage, if you will kindly let me know.

Trusting you are well,

I am,

Yours very truly,

C.T. Speak to mer, W- 4 follows up

Highly esteemed colleague and friend, finf of monlawion of Immediately after my return from my holidays when I found your letter, I took some steps with a view to obtain information with regard to the manuscript on Tibetan medicaments. I remember a notice which some time ago had been published on the matter, but unfortunately I forgot to keep a note of it.

My assumption was quite correct, for none of the gentlemen in question at the Medical Academy were present. Everybody is on leave and the gentlemen whom I met here could tell me nothing about it, for they only attend to the formalities in registering new students. Also the librarian of the Academy of Sciences whom I know very well is out of town. I should, therefore, be much obliged if you would wait until everybody is back again and things have resumed their normal course.

It is said that in the archives of the Medicinal Council there is an ancient manuscript on Tibetan medicaments, but this is not accessible at the present time. In September the officials will be back again.

There was here a Dr. Batmajeff, who was very much sought after, and who cured his patients with pure Tibetan medicaments. In my opinion this Aesculapius is simply a swindler. He obtained his Tibetan herbs at the drug stores here which was simpler and cheaper and at any rate, q ite as efficient. If I am not mistaken this gentleman has already come into conflict with the medicinal authorities.

Our director Prof. Dr. Rauchfuss left us a short time ago. I too intended to leave in May of this year after nearly 40 years service, but I was very much asked to stay a little longer, however, whether I shall stop in St. Petersburg or whether I shall pitch my wigwam in the Baltic provinces I do not yet know. I was in Esthonia Reval, Baltic Port, etc., also in Livonia in the so-called Livonian Switzerland, and everywhere met with a kind reception. me to buy a house in Reval, but a house means a burden. They wanted

I also visited Finland again after some long time. dren of a Finish friend of mine, who died some time ago, invited me The chilto go fishing "with the old uncle" once more. They own, quite hidden away in the Sima lake which counts nearly a thousand isles a pretty little island with a lake and some pretty fishermen's cottages, and they also have a little steam-boat which takes one there. Formerly I went there in a sailing boat. The weather was splendid, we fished on the large Sima and caught a number of perch, but I also caught two Charjusses. I have not been fishing for many years but I should again like to go fishing for salmon and trout.

In one of the series of the Graphic I found many pretty pictures illustrating "Walton's, the complete angler", the artist of which is Charles A. Mills. These pictures I pasted into the beautiful book by Isaac Walton for which I am indebted to your kindness, for they belong there.

As regards the state of affairs in pharmaceutical matters, things still look black, and nobody can say what the course of events will be. Last year a deputation of the Pharmaceutical Society came to me in order to offer me the Presidency again, but I have borne this burden for for 10 years and would now like to work for myself.

Not long ago we accompanied Professor Emer. Jul. Trapp, 93 years of age father of most of our pharmacopoeias and my old friend, to his last resting place. During the latter time I had to grieve over many a loss of dear old friends, such as for instance the Acadamician Beilstein, Prof. Chem. von Beck, Prof. Czapsvi, Jena, and others, also Prof. Nencki who died some time ago.

And now, my dear colleague, I wish you further joy in your work and remain,

Yours very sincerely,

(Signed) T. Martenson.

Translation of letter received from J. Martenson, St. Petersburg, Russia; dated October 21st, received October 26th, 1908.

Dear Mr. Wellcome and Colleague,

AM C

After having made many enquiries I am now in a position to mention to you the following publications dealing with Tibetan medicine:

- 1. Badmajeff: System of medical science in Tibet 1898 (Russian)
- 2. Manual of medical science in Tibet, Schud-Schi, from a new translation by Badmajeff with an introduction and explanation of the elements of this medicine (Russian) 1903.
- 3. Ptizin, Waldemar, ethnographical news on Tibetan medicine in Transbaikalia 1890 (Russian.)
- 4. P. Kaplunoff, a contribution to the knowledge of Tibetan medicine, dissertation, 1897, Munich (German)

Besides I am told by Prof. Monteverde (who made this communication to me at a sitting of the Institute for Experimental Medicine) that an extensive publication will shortly be issued by an official of the Ministry of popular instruction, translation by A. Posdnejeff. I applied for the same but I have not received any reply up to now.

I also looked up an assistant Prof. of pharmacy, Prschebjtek, whose short publication, however, is only a review of Chinese medicinal herbs which is of no importance to you. I do not know any of these publications personally and cannot, therefore, tell you anything of their contents. They might possibly be obtainable at the various booksellers. After that there would be the difficulty of translation, for there is very little English understood here for such matters.

A number of interesting publications dealing with the countries. of the Asiatico Far East have appeared here, and I have now and then bought something dealing with Finland, but in the majority of cases these maters soon disappear from the surface and wander to the old . book shops where they perish in the dust. To fumble through these old books is certainly very interesting, but means a great loss of time. I am entirely at your service, as regards any further wishes you may have, and remain with kind regards, make very how yours very sincerely,

Mr Wellcome's paper.

29th October, 1908.

Dear Professor Martenson,

I desire to thank you very cordially for your kindness, and for the trouble you have taken respecting my enquiry for publications . dealing with Thibetan medicine. Several of those you mention will be of interest to me, and I shall endeavour to obtain them.

Should you meet with a copy of Professor Prechebjtek's review of Chinese medicinal herbs, which you mantion, I shall be pleased to have one. Any old works dealing with medicine in the Far mast are of interest to me, should they ever come your way.

Again thanking you very heartily for your kindness, and trusting that you are enjoying good health,

I an,

Yours very truly. (Signed) Henry S. Wellcome per C.J.S.T.
