* Hart says, 6 (nov 16) —

Sir Thomas Galbraith Logan, K C B, is to be given a special rate of pension on retirement from the director-generalship of the Army Medical Department. He was in the Army Medical Department as Assistant on the 8th of May, 1828. Sir Galbraith served in the Suttlej campaign of 1845-46 with the 53rd Regiment, and was present at the affair of Buddiwall, and in the actions of Alowal and Sobroon (medal with clasp). Served also at the siege of Sebastopol during 1855, and was present at the taking of the quarries on June 7th, and at the assault of the 18th of June, and as Principal Medical Officer of the Highland Division at the final assault on September 8th (medal with clasp, 5th Class of the Medjidie, and Turkish Medal).

Assistant Controller Irvine, C M G, is to do duty at the War Office, on return from the Gold Coast, and Assistant Controller Healy at Aldershot.

Deputy Surgeon-General Rutherford, M D, C B, will probably succeed Sir William Muir, at the head of Sanitary Branch of the Army Medical Department.

The following appeared in a Royal Marine Order a few days since:—"Surgeon Burke's period of service having expired at Forton, the Colonel commands that he takes this opportunity of publicly thanking him for his great zeal, attention, and courteous, gentlemanly conduct during the time he has belonged to the Portsmouth Division, Royal Marine Light Infantry, and the commandant assures him that he carries the respect and esteem of every officer, non-commissioned officer, man, and woman, and in losing such a friend all join in saying 'God speed him in his future path through life.' Dr Burke is succeeded by Surgeon V Duke, M.B.

ARMY MEDICAL SERVICE.
MR. HARDY, replying to Dr. PLAYFAIR, said it was true only eleven candidates competed for the vacancies in the medical service of the British army. Vacancies were generally put forward by the army, and there were now none to fill. It was also stated that eight successful candidates in the late competition had only 84 marks beyond the last of the twenty successful candidates in the competition for the Indian Medical Service, but the persons selected were requalified.

Mr. HARDY, replying to Dr. PLAYFAIR, said it was true only eleven candidates competed for the vacancies in the medical service of the British army. Vacancies were generally put forward prospectively, and there were now none to fill. News has arrived from the Cape of the death of Dr Ramsay, from the effects of a fall from his horse. The deceased, who was eldest son of William Ramsay, Esq., Bowling-green, Strabane, was a Graduate of King's and Queen's Colleges of Physicians, and F.R.C.S.I. He served in the Crimea, and was present at the siege of Sebastopol. During the Indian Mutiny, he was actively employed with the 35th Regiment, of the right wing of which he had sole medical charge. On his return to England he joined the Royal Artillery, and shortly afterwards was appointed to the Medical Staff of the Garrison of Dublin. He then exchanged into the Royal Canadian Rifles, with which corps he remained till his promotion to the sarpageony of the 75th. With this regiment he proceeded to Hong Kong, and thence to the Cape, where, by the sad accident referred to, his prospects of still higher distinction and promotion were suddenly cut short.

Surgeon-Major Kelly joined the Service July 17, 1855, and proceeded at once to the West Indies; on his appointment being confirmed in the following year he was gazetted to the 1st West India Regiment, with which he remained until February 21, 1860, when he obtained transfer to the Staff. He was stationed in Ireland from 1860 to 1862, when he embarked for India. On December 30, 1864, he was posted to the Royal Artillery, and did duty with the 20th and 8th

Shortly after his promotion, in January, 1869, as Surgeon-Major, he embarked again for India, this time for the Bombay Presidency, and on October 22 was given medical charge of the 106th Light Infantry. Being in England on leave last year when the Ashantee Expedition was being organised, he volunteered for special service, and, arriving on the Gold Coast, was unceasing in his exertions. fellow-workers with him. Surgeon McCarthy received his commission April 20, 1859, and was stationed for the first two years of his service in the United Kingdom. On being posted to the 90th Light Infantry, February 15, 1861, he embarked for India, and on July 16, 1861, was transferred to the 1st Battalion 23rd Fusiliers. He came home with his battalion at the close of 1869, and acted as Assistant-Surgeon to it till his exchange to the Staff in February, 1871. He left Manchester at the end of last year for the Gold Coast, and was on passage home in the hospital ship Victor Emanuel, when, suffering from fever, he escaped his attendants and leaped overboard.

ATTEMPTED MURDER AT NETLEY.

A LAMENTABLE occurrence recently took place at Netley, by which an army surgeon ran a very narrow risk of losing his life. It appears that Surgeon Ray was engaged writing in one of the wards of the hospital, when an invalid private soldier of the 21st Regiment, under the influence, it is believed, of insanity, came behind him, and, seizing the unfortunate medical officer's head by the hair, attempted to cut his throat with a razor. Dr. Ray's life was probably saved by the top button of his patrol jacket, with which the edge of the razor first came in contact. The button was nearly severed; but it probably gave an upward direction to the razor's edge, so that the wound, more than four inches long, was inflicted upon the parts beneath the chin and above the hyoid bone. The cut penetrated deeply enough to open the floor of the mouth. The fingers of the officer's left hand are much injured. We are extremely glad to learn, however, that Dr. Ray is progressing very favourably; and we heartily congratulate him on his escape. He is under the care of Professor Longmore and Dr. Mackinnon; and the occurrence has naturally occasioned the expression of much sympathy and commiseration. The man who inflicted the injuries has been removed by the civil authorities.

J. VAVASOUR.

We are sorry to announce the death of Surgeon J. Vavasour, 4th "The King's Own Royal" Regiment. The deceased officer, of age, was to have been buried at the express desire of the wish of the regiment, the command by the South Western Railway, for interment with him the following afternoon the railway terminus, preceded by two subaltern officers of the 104th Regiment and 3rd Battalion, placed on a gun-carriage covered with a velvet cloth by the four senior captains. On the top of the coffin was a camellia, the deceased's emblem; it was followed by the family as chief mourners, and those of the garrison, and men of the deceased. At the cemetery the head of Military Chaplain, the Rev. Canon, read the burial service, and gave a grave and feelingly complete account of the deceased officer's services, and of his death from dysentery, which occurred during the Abyssinian campaign in 1871. He was present at the action of Magdala (medal). He was all ranks in the corps, and remember him when quartermaster following battalion order was read news of his death by the battalion order. By Colonel's mouth, 5th April, 1873.—I regret the commanding officer, non-commissioned, the death from dysentery of the deceased as Surgeon Lane took place in London last period of service of four months—nearly all in this more devotedly attached or warm sympathy and regard subordinates, his steady friend must long endear his memory of serving with him and
