Annals & charms

27th September 1912.

Dear Sir,

A few weeks ago a friend of mine purchased an old Highland stone neck charm from you, with a hole in it for wearing round a child's neck. He tells me you have another one priced four shillings. I should be glad if you would send it to me. Enclosed please find a postal order for the four shillings, and I should be glad if you will kindly acknowledge receipt of same on enclosed form.

I am,

Faithfully yours,

Dear Sir

I am in receipt of your favor, but regret that I have not another such charm as your friend purchased. I only had the one small one which he purchased, and the larger one which I enclose herewith. The small one worn by a child your friend got. The one I send is that hung round the neck of an animal, or some hung in a byre to ward off "the evil eye" - all those things used by the Saporstion have disappeared & today I do not know where I could pick up another.

Yrs faithfully
F. Maciver
