HENRICUS DAVID (=? DANIEL). Liber qui vocatur Dosis Medicinarum.—THEODERICUS DE ROMAGNOLA. De Aqua Vitae.—PHAR-

Fol. 1-6: Pharmacopoea, written in the early XVth century on vellum in 2

Hic incipiunt Medicine digestive frigidorum humorum ut hic: Oximel simplex . . .

Having gone through the various categories of simples of composites grouped according to their action on the tempers and humours, there is a rubric (on fol. 5 verso): Nunc de la fir fir mit at it bu s tibi tractemus et primo de febre cotidiana et medicinis sibi composits. This second part of this Pharmacopaea, which was to be arranged according to the diseases and under each disease to enumerate the drugs apt for its cure, was however not completed and breaks off suddenly on the next page.

Fol. 7-8 blank.

Fol. 9-24: Henricus David (=? Daniel?), ca. 1379. Liber qui vocatur Dosis Medicinarum.

Heading in red: Incipit liber qui vocatur Dosis Medicinarum quem tractauit Henricus David secundum practicam (propriam ?).

(Text in black:) Multi medicorum copiam librorum non habentes, sed tantummodo Antidotario Nicholai utentes . . . (Ends:) Explicit liber urinarum.

six operations of Nature and the twenty colours of urines. We could neither find the incipit in Lynn Thorndike's repertory nor could we find a record of the author here plainly given as Henry David. This seems to be an entirely unknown treatise on the "Seeing of Urines," or on the conertions of Nature and the twenty colours of urines. We could neither find the

We found, however, that a XIVth cent. English Dominican whom Tanner (Bibliotheca Britannico-Hibernica, 1748) calls Henricus Daniel is recorded to have written a " De Iddicis Urinarum," of which no Ms. seems to be known, and we suggest the possibility that this may be the treatise alluded to by Tanner and that either he or the scribe of this MS. made a mistake about the author's second name.

Begins: Hec sunt verba que retulit quidam senex . . . de libris Hermetis et sunt De Aqua Vitae. Fol. 25-33: THEODERICUS DE ROMAGNOLA, O.P.

Ends: Ista sunt rescripta de simplici aqua vite et de composita et de perfectissima ad exempla originalis extracta ex dictis dominorum philosophorum artis medicine, quae primo scripsit frater $\,$ T h e z e r i c u s ordinis predicatorum a post (?) serviens in Romaniola iuxta Bononiam. Explicit. verba Aque Vitae.

The incipit of this treatise on distillation and the Elixir is given by Lynn Thorndike, col. 288, from a MS. at Nantes and from D. W. Singer's list of alchemical MSS., but the text is considered as anonymous. In this MS. the colophon is very explicit and gives particulars of the author. The only difficulty is that it is not absolutely certain that the colophon refers to the entire text from the beginning "Hec sunt verba." to the end. There is a change of handwriting on the ninth page, but as far as I can judge the text is one continuous whole.
