The Mean of the numbers in Col. 7 will give the average velocity of the wind, or its horizontal movement in miles, in the 18 hours ending at 9 a.m. .... = Miles.

The Mean of the numbers in Col. 16 will give the horizontal movement in the 6 hours ending at 3 p.m. .... = Miles.

These sums will be the average daily velocity for the Month = Miles.

GENERAL PRECAUTIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

- 1st.—To preserve unimpaired the continuity of observations is of great importance; and all changes in the adjustment of instruments, in their position, mode of reading, or registering, should be carefully avoided, as much as possible.
- 2d.—It is desirable that the observations be made by one person; and where this is not practicable, that the deputy to whom they are confided previously assure himself that his method of reading is identical with that of the principal observer; and both should satisfy themselves, by frequent examination of their accuracy, that they read alike.
- 3d.—As far as possible, registers to be perfect, but if, from any cause, observations be lost, no attempt should be made to fill the blank so caused.
- 4th.—Observations to be made at stated and regular times.
- 5th.—Before taking the means of the numbers in each month, the observer is recommended to look down each column, to see that no evident error of entry has been made (an inch in the reading of the barometer is a common error); of thermometric readings, to see that the maximum and minimum readings have not been interchanged; and, before dividing the sums of the numbers, to count, in each column, the days on which observations have been entered, so as to exclude error in the division, and to use throughout decimal arithmetic.
- 6th.—With the exception of the "attached thermometer" all thermometers must be read to the tenths of a degree.
