R. Dorsetshire Beer, Twelve Bushels of Malt & seven pounds of Hops to the Hogshead, or for brewing a pipe twenty Bushels of ~~malt~~ & ~~hops~~ in proportion.

Let your vessels be cleansed, & scalded the day before, & your furnace fill'd over night;

As soon as it boyls in the morning, empty it into the meashing vat; there let it stand till the steam be so far gone off that you may clearly see your face in it; now put in your malt stirring it well that it may not clot together; you are to keep back about a peck of the malt dry, which is gently to be strawed on the top to keep in the ^{steam} thus let it stand four hours, & then let run

run into a receiver, & mix your hops with it. here it must remain till you have emptied your furnace, which by this time sh^d boyl a second time to throw on the malt for small beer, or second run; the best way of doing which is by gently laving it into the meashing tub.
 Your furnace now empty is to be filled with the Wort, & hops mix'd, & suffer'd to boyl only a quarter of Hour: then strain it of into Coolers, & let it stand till quite cold, at which time put in your barm, & let it stand till next morning. As soon as the strong beer is in the coolers, let run the small, & whilst it is running, continue to ~~have~~^{let} boyling water into the grains, till you have the quantity you want. When run all out you are to mix it with part of hops you used before, & boyl it near an hour, strain it into other

other coolers, let it stand, & then put in barm as before, the next morning turn your ^{strong} small beer, as well as small, & let it work out of barrel.
 The strong is not to be stopp'd up till a month, & then leave a vent hole open for two or three months more. It must stand one year in vessel & another in Bottle.

NB: As the first drawing will be strongest mix it altogether before you bottle it.

For cleaning Printed Books or Prints. W Bristow.

Aqua fortis applied with the feather of a common quill will take off all sorts of Ink made with water, but care must be taken to deaden the part (where the aqua fortis has been) with common water within a few minutes ^{after} application, otherwise the aqua Fortis will eat the paper.

To clean Books or prints, Boyl the leaves in common water, taking them out leaf by leaf, & hanging them to dry on Packthreads strung in a place under Cover, after which take more boyling water, and

and throw therein an ounce or two of Alum. according to your quantity of water, & pass your leaves over again in this alum. water, Hang them to dry as before, & your leaves will be white & bear ink.

Whereas it is usual to print on paper that has no consistency, a bad Colour, & likewise that will not bear ink, pass these Books thro' new, thro' the boyling water of alum, & your paper will be totally improved & carry any sorts of Ink, this is necessary to be done to most of the German Editions & many of our own. Our Booksellers paid very dear for this Operation which is very easy.

Mons^r Geoffroy in the Memoirs of the Royal academy for the year 1730. has given a method for determining the proportion of Nourishment Contained in any sort of food.

He took a pound of meat free from fat, bones & Cartilages & putting it into a close ^{vessel} With three pints of water, Let it boil for several hours; Then pouring off the liquor, & adding the same quantity of water he repeated the same operation till the Meat was drained off all its substance, & 4th last liquor appeared by smell & taste to be nothing different from Common water.
He then put all the liquor together & evaporated it over a slow fire till it was brought to an Extract of a pretty thick Consistency.

The

The severall sorts of food on which this experiment was made with the Quantity of Extract obtained from each of them are represented in the following table.

fulls of ale Yeast, put it in a Vessel, & when it has stood 2 months bottle it if you make it all of Raisins, put 5^{lb} to a gallon & you may leave out the Syrop of Lemon.

To Preserve peaches or any other Fruit in Brandy.

First weigh your fruit, & to every 5^{lb}, there must be 3^{lb} of sugar beat small, of which you'll make a syrrop, but there must be only water enough to melt the sugar, for too much water spoils it, & the syrrop must be well boyl'd before you put in the peaches, then put in a quart of the best brandy & the peaches together, & let them boyle a quarter of an hour, Then take 'em off & stop y^m down close that no air comes to them & put in another quart of brandy & so proportionally for for whatever quantity you preserve.

To make orange Tart.

$\frac{1}{2}$ ^{lb} of Butter worked up as for a pound Cake, the yolks of 12 Eggs, the peel of three oranges boyl'd tender, $\frac{1}{2}$ a pound of Sugar beat & sifted. Change the water till the bitterness is off beat it in a mortar as fine as you can with the juice, one Bisket grated work it very well together bake it in puff paste & bar it over the top.

To make Leach. M^{rs} Guidot.

Take 2 ounce^s of Ising glass, pull it in peices & soak it 2 hours in water, then boyl it in $\frac{1}{2}$ a pint of Milk, & as much Cream untill it be dissolved, Then add the remainder of the quart of Cream, a Nutmeg in quarters, Cinnamon a moderate quantity, a little mace, Boyl it a little

42 32
a little; then put some orange flowerwater sweetning it with Loaf sugar to your taste.
Strain it into a pan, stirring it, then run it into a dish, to remain untill cold. Put & slice it as you want it some add almonds finely beaten.

A Diet Drink. Lady Bulkely.
Eight ounces of Senna,
Four ounces of sweet fennel seed, Four ounces of Daen seed, Two handfulls of Horse radish,

Take the tops of Century, & Samonile, of each half a handfull, Cardus seeds a dram, Gentian root half a dram, boyl it in half a pint of spring water, & a quarter of a pint of White Wine, boyl it till half be wasted away, strain it, & drink it fasting, and at four o'clock in the afternoon, if it be a Child, three spoonfulls at a time, if a man, or Woman, all the quantity.

A Bitter Draught Mrs. Luke Imber 1 oz of Rubarb, 1 oz of Cardimums.
1 Dram of Saffron, 1 quart of Rum or Brandy

To Pickle Cucumbers. ^{mas} Eyers.

Take 12 Cucumbers before they ^{be} full grown, pare y^m & slice y^m pretty thin into a pewter Dish. 3 or 4 Large onions sliced, a handfull of salt cover y^m with an other pewter dish & let y^m stand 24 hours, then take out the onions, & drain the Liquor from them in a cullender, y^m put them in a well glaz'd Earthen pot, & put y^r pickle to them, which must be scalding hot, After 4 or 5 days take y^r pickle from y^r Cucumbers. & boyl it, & put it to y^m again hot, cover y^r pot very close with a Bladder & Leather —————

To make y^r pickle, take the best white wine vinegar, & still it in a cold still with cloves, mace, whole pepper & Ginger.

A Sister.

~~5 Eggs. 3 Whites, a little salt, 2 Spoonfulls of Yeast, melt half a lb of Butter in a
