THE

PREFACE,

(FIRST)

NECESSARY to be READ,

HE Sin of ONAN, and GOD's fudden Vengeance upon it, are foremarkable, that Every-body will eafily perceive that, from his Name I have derived the Running Title of this little Book: And though I treat of this Crime in relation to Women as well as Men, whilft the Offence is SELF-POLLUTION in both, I could not think of any other Word which would fo well put the Reader in Mind both of the Sin and its Punishment at once, as this.

THIS Practice is so frequent, and so crying an Offence, especially among the Male Youth of this Nation, that I have Reason to imagine, a great many Offenders would never be guilty of it, if they had been thoroughly acquainted with the Heinousness of the Crime, and the sad Consequences to the Body as well as the Soul, which may, and often do, ensue upon it. This was the chief Motive that induced me to write on this Subject.

THOSE who are of Opinion, that, notwithstanding the Frequency of this Sin, it never ought to be spoke of, or hinted at, because the bare mentioning of it may be dangerous to some, who without it would, probably, never have thought of it, will, I hope, find themselves answered in Page 10, 11, 70, and 72.

AND as I am fully perfuaded, that there are very few Sentences throughout the Book which do not more or less tend to the Mortification of Lust, and not one that can give Offence to the chastest Ear, so I dare recommend the serious Perusal of it to both Sexes. And that it has been looked upon as instructive, without being burtful, by others as well as myself, the following Letter, which was sent by a very learned and pious Divine, will sufficiently make appear.

"SIR,

" RECEIVED the Favour of your little Book against

SELF-POLLUTION, and have given it, as it well deferved, a fecond Reading. I am much pleafed with your Arguments and Admonitions, which are both cogent and fuafive, and, I hope in God, will answer your Defign, by doing a great deal of Good in the World, both to the Soul and Body, by awakening the guilty (who are daily, and oftentimes dangeroufly, wounded by this foul Practice) and deterring the innocent and unwary from falling into it. Would all Masters of Schools have but a strict Eye over their Scholars (amongft whom nothing is more common than the Commission of this vile Sin, the elder Boys teaching it the younger as foon as (or even before) they arrive to the Years of Puberty) telling them the Heinoufnels of the Sin, and give fuitable Correction to the Offenders therein, and fhame them before their School-fellows for it (or rather privately reprove and admonish them of the Sin and Danger) I am perfuaded it would deter them from the Practice, and by that Means fave them from Ruin, Thoufands of the Youth of this Kingdom learning it there, who likely might never have known of it elfewhere.

SIR, Yours, &c.

AND I may add, would all Mistreffes of Schools alfo (those of Boarding-schools especially) have a watchful Eye upon the Conduct of their pretty Scholars, and pry more narrowly into their Behaviour in their secret Retirements, the many fad Gonsequences spoke of in Page 12, 13, 14, 15, 20, 21, 22, and 23, following, might be prevented, which, to my own Knowlege, Several of them, through such Wantonness, have brought upon themseives. I having been several Times confulted with about retrieving fuch Abuses by their Jorrowfully astonished Parents . And, though the Seeming Modefly of those fair Pupils, before their Superiors, may give no Room for their being thought guilty of fuch Practices, I am credibly informed, it is now become as frequent among ft Girls as Manufriction is among A Boys; and a Gentleman of great Distinction (my good Friend) whose Veracity I can depend

iv

depend upon, has told me, fome Years fince, that the Governefs of one of the most eminent Boarding-schools we then had, did, with Tears in her Eyes, inform his Lady, that she had surprized and detected some of her Scholars (to her great Astonishment and Concern) in the very Fact, and who, upon Examination, confessed, that they very frequently practised it, cum Digitis & aliis Instrumentis, and that chiefly those of them from the Age of about sifteen or upwards.

NOR is this abominable Sin practifed only by the Youth, but alfo by the Adult of both Sexes, married Men as well as fingle ones, Widows, and even married Women that are lascivious, as well as those whose Husbands are with them, as those that are absent, which the many Confessions and Complaints that have been made, and Letters sent me of Injuries brought upon themselves thereby for Advice, make manifest; some of which Letters are herein inserted.

I am not ignorant, that after the Third Edition of O-NANIA, a virulent Pamphlet has been published against it, under the Title of ONANISM. And, as I have inferted the preceding Letter in the fourth Impression, and never yet taken Notice of the Libel hinted at, it might be looked upon as unfair Dealing, should I always produce the Encomiums of those who have liked the Book, without ever making mention of the Accusations of such as have exclaimed against it. For this Reason therefore, I here address myself to the Author of that Rhapfody, protesting, that I heartily forgive him the Injury that he intended me, tho' I was forry to see any one heap so many Calumnies, and undeserved. Aspersions, on a Person utterly unknown to him. If the whole had been less filly and impertinent, I would, before now, have vouchsafed an Answer; but as it is, and the Author cannot be imagined to be a Person either of the least Goodness or Erudition, I shall not endeavour to refute him, or make any Apology for the Weakness and Insipidity of the Performance he complains of, otherwise than by publishing (now) the Eighteenth Edition.

IT was reasonable to think, that, in the Beginning of the second Chapter, I had taken all imaginable Precaution against every Danger of raising impure Thoughts, even in the most lascivious. But as I found, to my Sorrow, that some People not only are deas to all wholsome Advice, but likewise will misconstrue and pervert the most candid Meaning, I would in all the Editions, from the Fourth, and likewise in in this Eighteenth, to shew the Integrity of my Intention, have omitted several Words and Passages, against which I know that Exceptions have been made.

THIS, I fay, I would have done, had not fome Gentlemen, of great Piety as well as Penetration, diffuaded me from it by this Argument: When the Intention of a Cafuift is, without Controverfy, found to be virtuous, he ought never to be blamed for relating Facts as they are ftated: From your Anfwers in Page 75 and 85, to the two Letters requefting them, your Intention is fuch without Controverfy, therefore no wife People can blame you for what you have done.

AND yet further to shew its Inoffensiveness to the most Chaste, a certaingrave and very learned Divine and Physician, whose Judgment, Veracity, and Piety, was never to be questioned, having had the Perusal of the Sixth Edition before it went to the Press, returned it, with his Opinion of it, in these Words: This little Book ought to be read by all Sorts of People, of both Sexes, of what Age, Degree, Profession, or Condition soever, guilty, or not guilty, of the Sin declaimed against in it.

NOR is what is wrote useful in the Opinion of one Clergyman only, but others, as the following Letter, among st the many left at the Booksfeller's for me, will shew.

Mr. CORBETT,

April 10, 1742.

" TBOUGHT your Author's Book called ONANIA, I which I take to be the beft ever wrote on that Subject. I have read the learned Ofterwald upon Uncleannefs, and other pious Authors, but they all fall fhort of what this explains in being the fatal Confequences of that vile Practice, which is really a Service to the World, and what I shall improve to Advantage in the Capacity I stand, not only as a Clergyman but as a Schoolmafter; and I hope others of my Function will do the fame, as now they have the Opportunity of this most useful Book put into their Hands. To me it feems to be wrote by one of my own Cloth; but be it by whom it will, it is a neceffary and much-wanted Discourse, to deter all, Youth more especially, from that wicked Practice; concerning which I will, at my Leifure, trouble you with a remarkable Occurrence or two, which your Author will thank me for, and think worthy a Place in his next Edition, they being what

SIR,

"I LATELY, by Accident, met with your Author's Book, intituled ONANIA, and read it with Plea-Book, intituled ONANIA, and read it with Pleafure. It needs no Recommendation of mine; all the fober and virtuous Part of Mankind must approve of it, as defigned and tending to promote the Interest of Virtue, but efpecially the Good of Youth.

SIR,

"I HEAR there is another Edition of that good Book ONANIA, and beg that you would, in the Front thereof, infert the proper Texts at large, viz. Gen. xxxviii. 9, 10. I am an elderly Magistrate, and have concerned myself in the Reformation of Manners some Years.

SIR,

Nov. 3, 1736.

Your humble Servant,

W. C.

THE Author of the ONANIA conceives, that the Texts, which the above Gentleman defires may be inferted at large, are only the two Verfes quoted in the Title-Page; but those that defire to know more of the Explication of ONAN'S Transgression than they will find done here, may have Recourse to the Expositors and Annotators of the BIBLE, of which there are several very unexceptionable ones to be met with, wherein what concerns that Sin will be found amply and intelligibly treated of.

CHAP. I.

Concerning the Heinous Sin of SELF-POLLUTION.

ELF-POLLUTION is that unnatural Practice by which Perfons, of either Sex, may defile their own Bodies without the Affiftance of others, whilft yielding to filthy Imaginations they endeavour to imitate, and procure to themfelves, that Senfation which God has ordered to attend the carnal Commerce of the two Sexes, for the Continuance of our Species.

IT is almost impossible to treat of this Subject fo as to be understood by the meanest Capacities, without trefpassing, at the fame Time, against the Rules of Decency, and making Use of Words and Expressions which Modesty forbids us to utter. But, as my great Aim is to promote Virtue and Christian Virtue, and to discourage Vice and Uncleanness, without giving Offence to any, I shall chuse rather to be less intelligible to some, and leave several Things to the Consideration of my Readers, than by being too plain run the Hazard of raising, in some corrupt Minds, what I would moft endeavour to fliffe and deftroy : And that Every-body, who would write profitably against any Sort of Uncleanness whatsoever, and not do more Harm than Good by his Endeavours, ought to be very careful and circumspect as to this Particular, we may learn from Bishop Taylor, in his Rules and Exercises of Holy Living, &c. It is too plain, fays that learned Prelate, that there are some Spirits so atheistical, and some so wholly posses with the Spirit of Uncleanness, that they turn the most prudent and chaste Discourses into Dirt and filthy Apprehensions; like choleric Stomachs, changing their very Cordials and Medicines into Bitterness, and, in a literal

Senfe, turning the Grace of God into Wantonnefs. They fludy Cafes of Conscience (as he proceeds) in the Case of carnal Sin, not to avoid, but to learn Ways how to offend God, and to pollute their own Spirits, and search their House with a Sun-beam, that they may be instructed in all the Corners of Nastines.

I AM perfuaded, that thofe who have defiled themfelves by this Practice already, or elfe by wicked Thoughts are tempted fo to do, muft underftand what I mean by SELF-POLLUTION, as I have defined it, without any farther Interpretation. To them it is that I chiefly recommend these Pages, with my hearty Defire of their most ferious Confideration on what is contained in them: And as to fuch who never contracted this Guilt, and being, perhaps, of small Experience, may be wholly ignorant of the Sin I would warn them against, I think them happy in their Innocence; affuring them withal, that they shall meet here with nothing but what shall more and more incite them to Chastity, and deter them from all Manner of Uncleannes.

SELF-POLLUTION we fee remarkably punifhed in ONAN, by a particular Stroke from Almighty God; for it is not to be thought that his Guilt lay totally in not raifing up Seed to his deceased Brother Er, though we will own that this was an Aggravation of it, but the Way he took to prevent it would have been highly culpable at any other Time; and from the Words of the Text, which informs us of this Part of facred Hiftory, it is reasonable to imagine, imagine that the greatest Part of the Offence lay in the Act of defiling himfelf, rather than the Neglect of his Duty : The Thing which he did difplea fed the Lord, wherefore he flew him alfo, Gen. xxxviii. 10. It was therefore the Thing he did, rather than the Thing he omitted, which most displeased the Lord, as may be further seen in Deuteronomy, ch. xxv. from ver. 5 to 10. Be that as it will, this is certain, that as it was it proved fo intolerable a Provocation, that Almighty God could not bear with it, and therefore immediately cut him off by Reafon of it.

SOME eafy Cafuifts, notwithstanding the exemplary Punishment that has attended this Sin, have made flight of it; and fhamefully deceived those who confulted them, feveral of them perhaps to their Ruin. Others, by being too open, though fevere enough, have treated this Matter fo grofly in the learned Languages, that it is impoffible to translate any Part of them without offending Chaftity.

THE learned Ofterwald, in his useful Treatise on Uncleannefs in all its Branches, has, through an Excefs of Modefty, paffed over this abominable Sort of Impurity in Silence, or at leaft spoke of it in such general Terms, blending it with leffer Trespaffes of Uncleannels, that he has failed of reprefenting the Heinousness that is in it. Having hinted at the Sins of Sodom, and fpoke at large of Adultery and Fornication, he adds, That, befides those, there are many Actions contrary to Modely and Chastity, Some whereof, fays he, by the Violence of the Passions, and full Confent of the Will, or by Reason of the Malignity and Infamy of the Action, almost equal the Crime to which they tend; for some unchaste Persons are hurried by their Lust to try in every Thing to gratify their brutal Passion, as far as they can conceive to do it without committing the Fact. But here, continues he, I must be very wary, and leave to my Readers the Trouble of confidering with themfelves what I may not fay, and apply to all the Actions of Impurity what I may but just touch upon very briefly, and only in general Terms. And lower he fays, Now for a fmuch as I cannot well repeat all those Actions which are burtful to Purity, and yet my Readers may be doubtful of some of them, and may question whether this or that be unlawful, I shall lay down this one general Rule in this Place, whereby these Doubts may may be eafily refolved. Let natural Chaftity and Modesty be first confuted, because, provided a Habit of Wickedness has not quite extinguished in us the Sense of Modesty, which is natural to us as Men, we shall readily discern whether an Action be unchaste or no. Next, this Principle is to be attended to that a Christian is bound to shun whatever senfualizes the Soul, whatever tends only to satisfy the Passions, and whatever is wont to excite them in us, or others.

And again : Inquiry should be made, what is necessary, or at least, what is expressly allowed. I fay then, that whensever we are ash med of what we do, and dare not venture upon it in the Sight of others, when it is only the Effect of a disorderly Passion, and aims only at indulging Sensuality, and kindling impure Desires, either in our own or others Hearts; and when moreover it is neither necessary, nor expressly allowed, we should be sure to abstain from it.

THIS is admirable Advice, and excludes not the leaft A&t of Impurity; but there is wanting that Horror with which the Reader ought to be filled againft SELF-POL-LUTION above other A&ts of Uncleannefs lefs criminal. But, that this Author only forbore to pronounce his juft Cenfure againft this Sort of Impurity in particular, for no other Reafon than his being too forupuloufly modeft, is manifeft from his own Confeffion, that he was forced to be defective in many Particulars. Same Points, fays he in his Preface, fhould have been more enlarged upon, and fome Objections more particularly confidered; but this would have neceffitated me to touch upon fome Things which Decency forbids: There are alfo divers Things which I am obliged to exprefs only in general Terms, others which I dare but juft bint, and others again that I am forced totally to fupprefs.

THERE have been other Cafuifts again, who, treating of this Subject, have been neither too plain, nor too remifs, but by too much Subtilty, ftrained their Arguments beyond their natural Force, and done an Injury to Truth and good Senfe, by being too fophiftical. One of thefe having premifed, that Lufts of Uncleannefs are committed first with one's felf, fecondly, with others, exprefies prefies himfelf in the Manner following : Firft, fays he, we will begin with those committed by one's felf, which are greater in themselves (abstract them from all other Circumfances) than with any other, as Self-murder is worfe than the Murder of any other, fo in and of itfelf, this is worfe than polluting of another; for the Rule is, that the Sin that doth break the Order of Love most is the worst, Love being the keeping of the Commandments. I must not defile my Neighbour, because I am to love my Neighbour's Chastity, but I am to love myself, and my own Chastity, before the Chaftity of any elfe; and this is a foul Sin, much against Nature, and therefore the worfe; for the more unnatural the Sin is, the greater the Guilt is still in that Respect: And whereas it is thought, that there is not that Wrong in it as in taking away the Chastity of another, I urge it, that there is most Wrong when a Man doth Wrong to himself ; and as the Thief doth in the Candle, fo these Self-defilements do rot and weaken the Body by the Curfe of God exceedingly. Befides (as in all fuch inordinate Practices) there is a fecret Kind of Murder, what if not in the Intention of the Doer, yet in the Condition of the Thing done ; wherefore God is much difpleafed with those Kind of Sins.

TO all the latter Part of these Affertions I could readily agree; but in the Beginning of them this Cafuist has been grossly overseen in his Way of Reasoning: The Difference he states between the Murder of another and that of one's self is very just; but then he has forgot to confider, that that Difference ceases when the Murder of another necessary includes the Murder of one's self: Thus by endeavouring to prove too much, his Argument has not proved what it might have done; at this Rate, SELF-POLLUTION would be more criminal than the most unnatural Abominations with others, which is false, because it is impossible to defile others, without defiling one's felf at the same Time in as high a Degree.

TO condemn and expose a Sin so displeasing to God, fo detrimental to the Public, and so injurious to ourselves, requires no Flights of Wit, nor any other Way of arguing, than what is agreeable to the plainest Truth, and can stand the Test of the severest Reason. To prove the many Injuries juries it may do to ourfelves, as it is the whole Bufinefs of the next Chapter, fo I refer the Reader to it; and that it is very detrimental to the Public will foon appear, if we confider what is undeniable, that it hinders Marriage, and puts a full Stop to Procreation: What remains is to demonstrate, that it is highly difpleafing to God; and that it is fo in a very high Degree, is evident both from the Holy Scripture, and our own Reafon.

THERE is not a Place, either in the Old or New Teftament, where Uncleannefs, the Luft of the Flefh, or the Abominations of Sodom, are condemned, but this Sin is hinted at among others; and there is no doubt but those who are guilty of it are comprehended among the abominable, who shall have their Part in the Lake which burneth with Fire and Brimstone, Rev. xxi. 8. What, know ye not, fays St. Paul, that your Body is the Temple of the Holy Ghoft which is in you, which you have of God? And this is a very powerful Confideration to diffuade from Uncleannefs, being taken from the Glory whereto God has raifed us, even in regard as to our Bodies. They are the Temples of the Holy Spirit, becaufe the Holy Spirit dwells in us, and pours forth his Benefits upon us, fanctifies us, and confectates us to the Service of God; wherefore our Bodies partaking of this Honour, we are bound to preferve them in Purity, and to employ them to holy Purpofes: For if the Temples dedicated to the Worfhip of God may not be profaned by any Pollution, but must be kept pure and undefiled, how great ought the Honour of our Bodies to be, feeing God has condeicended to make them the Temples of his Holy Spirit? This Reflection of St. Paul lets us fee plainly, that whenever any give themfelves over to Uncleannefs, they ceafe to be the Temples of the Holy Spirit, just as the Apostle had faid before, that they ceafe to be Members of Jefus Chrift, which fhews this Sin to be the Occafion that the Holy Spirit of God withdraws from the Hearts of fuch as are guilty of it, becaufe his Spirit cannot dwell with Pollution. He tells us afterwards in the fame Chapter, Ye are not your own, for ye are bought with a Price; therefore glorify God in your Bedies, and in your Spirits, which are God's.

THE fame Apostle affirms of the Heathens, that being given up to Uncleanness they disconcurred their own Bodies between themselves; and, in another Place, that it is the Will of God that we abstain from Uncleanness. But it would be endless to quote all the Texts which tend to the fame Purpose: Let any Man examine all the Places of the New Testament, where mention is made of Vices and Sins, and he will find, there is not any one other Crime fo many Times named as Uncleanness; and how can a Perfon be more superlatively unclean, than when he is guilty of SELF-POLLUTION.

BUT if it was not revealed to us, that God is highly offended at all Manner of Uncleannefs; when we reflect on the End of Marriage in all Countries, and in all Societies, and the Manner after which God has ordained that our Species should be continued, Natural Religion, and our own Reason, would of themselves instruct us, that to deftroy that End must be very offensive to God: For whether we commit Abomination with those of our own Sex, as the Scripture fays, Men with Men, or with Beafts, or that we defile our own Bodies ourfelves with this shameful Action, the Confequences are the fame to the Society and our Species; and what a learned Divine has faid of the first is equally applicable to all three, That the Crime in itself is monstrous and unnatural, in its Practice filthy, and odious to Extremity; its Guilt is crying, and its Confequences ruinous: It destroys conjugal Affection, perverts natural Inclination, and tends to extinguish the Hopes of Posterity.

FOR Fornication, and even Adultery itfelf, though heinous Sins, we have Frailty and Nature to plead; but SELF-POLLUTION is a Sin not only against Nature, but a Sin that perverts and extinguishes Nature; and he who is guilty of it is labouring at the Destruction of his Kind, and in a Manner, strikes at the Creation itself. That this Sin, and all the Mischiefs that may attend it, are equally ruinous in either Sex, in regard to the civil Society as well as themselves, shall be demonstrated in the following Chapter. In the Remainder of this I shall examine into the Causes of SELF-POLLUTION, and offer offer some Thoughts to prevent at least the Frequency of it.

I SHALL not here meddle with the Caufes of Uncleannefs in general, fuch as ill Books, bad Companions, Love Stories, lafcivious Difcourfes, and other Provocatives to Luft and Wantonnefs; as thefe are fufficiently treated of in moft Books of Devotion and Practical Divinity, fo I refer the Reader to them, and defign only to fpeak of those peculiar Caufes which belong to this Sin, and hardly any other.

THE first Cause is Ignorance: There are Thousands among the Youth of both Sexes, ingenious, docile, diligent, and tractable, who, either by the Example of their Intimates, through their own Wantonness, or by being idle and alone, and fome by mere Accident, have learned to pollute themselves after this Manner, that would have abhorred the Thoughts, had they understood the Nature of the Sin, and been acquainted with the Heinouss of the Crime. There are likewise many adult Persons, both Men and Women, who are guilty of this Sin, and perhaps Reprobates enough to commit any as to religious Fears, that yet would never have ventured upon this, if they had known what bodily Sufferings and Infirmities it may be, and often is the Occasion of.

THE fecond, is the Secrefy with which SELF-POL-LUTION may be committed: All other! Actions of Uncleannels must have a Witnefs, this needs none. Some luftful Women of Sense have made all the outward Shew of Virtue and Morality that can be required: They have had Prudence enough in the Midft of ftrong Defires, to refule advantageous Matches, and yet have abandoned themfelves to this Vice, when, at the fame Time, they would rather have died than betrayed a Weakness to any Man living, as afterwards becoming Penitents they have confessed themselves. And again, some young Men, of vicious Inclinations, having either naturally, or for Want of a liberal Education, been shamefaced to Excess, have not dared to look upon a Woman; and their Bashfulness has fecured them from every Act of Impurity but this. From all which it is evident, that the Secrefy of this Sin has has betrayed many to it, whom hardly any Thing elfe would have tempted.

THE third and laft Caufe I shall allege is Impunity. Though the Laws against Fornication and Adultery, are in many Places, either very remifs, or ill executed, yet the Dread of them keeps the Fearful in Awe. The Punishment for unnatural Impurities committed with others is But the Laws are not the only Thing which Capital. vicious Perfonsare afraid of: Some are with-held from Proftitutes by their Covetoufnefs only; others again abstain from Fornication for nothing elfe but the Fear of Difeafes, or the having of Children. Lascivious Widows, who understand the World, have Reason to scruple second Marriages, on many Accounts; fome love their Liberty, others their Money, and, if they value their Reputation, they will not dare to venture on unlawful Embraces; whereas in SELF-POLLUTION neither the Cautious, nor the Covetous, imagine that they have any Thing to fear.

IT is not eafy to determine, whether it be more monftrous or unaccountable, that rather than commit a Sin before others, who would be their Accomplices, and uphold them in it, Men should chuse to be guilty of a greater before God, who has avowed to revenge it. To fay that this proceeds from Atheism, and Want of Faith, is contrary to Experience; for let us take a thoufand People to task, that fhall have all been guilty of this, or any other the most heinous Crime, and we shall hardly find one, but what will not only acknowledge a Deity, but likewife tell us, that he is convinced of his Ubiquity and Omniscience, his Wildom, Justice, and Omnipotence, and that he is ready to fubscribe to every general Article of Christianity. What can be faid of this is, that Man contradicts himfelf, and acts directly against his own Principle. What could be more absurd in human Affairs, than that a Thief, defigning to steal a Horse, should endeavour to shun the Eyes of all the World but the Owner's, especially if he was fully perfuaded, that this Owner could catch him whenever he would, and inflict what Punishment upon him he pleased ? What spiritual Darkness must furround Man, that should be ftark-blind in his greateft Concerns, and clear-fighted only in Trifles? When a Man shews Bashfulness, and the utmoft utmost Cowardice to the most impotent Wretch of his Fellow-creatures, is it not inconceivable he should behave himself with gigantic Boldness and Impudence to affront the Almighty Creator of Heaven and Earth? Yet there is one Thing more contradictory still, which is, that, at the same Time, he will affect to be thought brave as to Principle, and a Christian as to Religion.

IT is the general Opinion, that the Shamelefs are the worft of People; yet Shame, when ill placed, has often wrought worfe Effects than the Reverfe alone has ever been able to produce. When a Baftard Infant is found dead, and the Mother, lately delivered without Witnefs, is not able to prove, either that fhe had made Provision for it, or, during her Pregnancy, imparted the Secret to another befides the Father, our English Law, without any other Evidence, prefumes the Woman to have murdered the Child: From whence it is evident the Legiflators muft have fupposed, that some Women may have Cruelty enough to commit the utmost unnatural Murder of all, and, at the fame Time, want Courage to bear Shame. But, is there no Remedy against this preposterous Shame? Isit imposfible to imbue Youth with better Notions of it than are commonly received, either by Example or Instruction?

WOMEN, for the Generality, are more bashful and referved than Men; and there are Things that a Man of the strictest Morals shall not scruple to do in Public, which yet would fhock most Women, even after Prostitution : From hence to imagine, that Women are naturally more modeft than Men is a Miftake; all the Difference between them depends upon Cuftom and Education; and I am much miftaken, if this great Power of Fashions and Instruction does not point at a Remedy that would be very ferviceable against SELF-POLLUTION. It is a Rule, I know, among the most prudent People, never to mention any Thing concerning this Vice, to the Youth of either Sex, for fear that either the Defire after Things forbidden, or else Curiofity itself, might prompt the Pupils to what perhaps they never might have thought on, had it not been for the two inftructive Caution of their Teachers. But there are other Methods: The Instruction of Youth I hint at fhould commence from their Infancy. If Children were were ftrictly forbid never to touch their Eyes or Nofe but with their Handkerchief, and that only upon very urgent Neceffities; if likewife they faw Every-body comply with this Cuftom, and it was counted abominable to touch them with their naked Hands, I cannot fee why this might not be fo fhocking to them when grown up, as now the moft guilty Denudations are to well-bred People.

I WOULD have the Reader reflect on the Matter I treat of, which differs much from other Points of Morality; for in handling other Topics a Man may fafely fay whatever he thinks any way advantageous to his Defign, and has nothing to hinder him from rallying together whatever heapprehends neceffary, and proposing his Arguments in their utmost Extent and Force, making them as plain as poffible, and answering all Difficulties imaginable : But in arguing against Uncleanness, especially this Sort of it, which, of all, as it is the most loathfome, the fame Liberty is not to be taken, but a Man is extremely confined, and is obliged to express himself with the utmost Circumspection and Caution, for fear of intrenching upon Modefty; which as I promifed I would not be guilty of doing, I shall all along with the greatest Strictness observe, as knowing I should be obliged to name some Things that might betray my Readers into the Remembrance of what it is much better that they fhould for ever forget, as they would not then be able to fet fuch a watchful Guard upon their Thoughts and Fancies, but that fome foul and filthy Defires would in Spight creep in, the least Imagination only of which would render them odious in God's Sight, who feeth the Heart, and delights in none but those who are pure and upright there; with which Apology, hoping it will be thought fufficient for what Omiffions and Obfcurity I have been guilty of, I conclude this Chapter.

CHAP.

Of the FRIGHTFUL CONSEQUENCES of SELF-POLLUTION.

TAVING fet forth the Heinousnels of this Sin in I the preceding Chapter, one might juftly imagine, that the Impression which the Ugliness of Incontinence and Uncleannefs in general there reprefented muft make, would not fo immediately wear out, as not to fecure, for fome fmall Time, the Imagination even of vicious Perfons against any flight Attacks of Unchastity; but there are lascivious People of such corrupt Minds, that at no Time excepted, they may be raifed to impure Thoughts by bare Words, without Coherence, and the Names of Parts, even when made Use of in the Description of calamitous Cafes, and naufeous Difeafes: Therefore, as I shall be forced to make use of some Expressions in this Chapter, which though fpoke with a Defign the most remote from Obscenity, may, working by the Reverse, perhaps furnifh the Fancies of filly People with Matter of Impurity; therefore, I fay, I beg of the Reader to ftop here, and not to proceed any further, unless he has a Defire to be chaste, or, at least, be apt to confider whether he ought to have it or no.

THE Afflictions which may, and often do, fall upon those who are, or have been, guilty of the finful Practice of SELF-POLLUTION, belong either to the Soul or the Body: I shall begin with those of the least Concern. In the first Place, it manifestly hinders the Growth, both in Girls and Boys, and few of either Sex, that in their Youth commit this Sin to Excess for any confiderable Time, Time, come ever to that Robuftnefs or Strength which they would have arrived to without it. In Men, as well as Boys, the first Attempt of it has often occasioned a Phymosis in fome, and a Paraphymosis in others: I shall not explain these Terms any further; let it suffice, that they are Accidents which are very painful and troublefome, and may continue to be tormenting for some Time, if not bring on Ulcers, and other worse Symptoms; especially if managed by raw unskilful People, whom to employ it is most commonly the Fate of young Men, who, being confcious of their Guilt, have not the Affurance to address themselves to Men of Worth and Experience. Whoever wants to know the Signification of these Words, any Surgeon will inform him.

THE frequent Use of this Pollution likewise causes Stranguries, Priapisms, and other Disorders of the Penis and Testes, but especially Gonorrhæas, more difficult to be cured, than those contracted from Women actually labouring under foul Diseases. When the Seminal Vessels are first strained, and asterwards relaxed, the Ferment in the Testes is destroyed, and the Seed, grown thin and waterisch, comes away unelaborated, without any Provocation: This Distemper often proves statal, even under the Hands of the most skilful. These Gonorrhæas are chiefly occasioned, says Etmuller (a famous Physician) a damnata Mastupratione, from that damnable SELF-POLLUTION; and, as Dr. Baynard also confirms (speaking of this Practice) by that cursed School-wickedness of Masturbation, Res fæda distu.

IN fome it has been the Caufe of fainting Fits and Epilepfies, in others of Confumptions; and many young Men, who were ftrong and lufty before they gave themfelves over to this Vice, have been wore out by it, and by its robbing the Body of its balmy and vital Moifture, without Cough or Spitting, dry and emaciated, fent to their Graves. In others again, whom it has not killed, it has produced nightly and exceffive Seminal Emiffions, a Weaknefs in the Penis, and a Lofs of Erection, as if they had been caftrated. Many a young Gentleman (fays the fame Dr. Baynard) has been for ever utterly undone by it: The Reafon he gives for it is, That ufed when young, it fo forces and and weakens the tender Veffels, that when they come to Manbood, it renders them ridiculous to Women; becaufe impotent, a Curfe half (tanti) to Castration, many of them not being able to touch a Woman, but, ad primum labiorum contactum femen emittunt, &c. In fome Men of very ftrong Conftitutions the Mischiefs may not be fo visible, and themfelves perhaps capable of marrying ; and yet the Blood and Spirits impaired, and the Seed rendered infertile, fo as to make them unfit for Procreation, by its changing the Crafis of the Spermatic Parts, making them become barren, as Land becomes poor by being over-tilled; and few of those that have been much accustomed to this Vice in their Youth have ever much Reason to boast of the Fruits of their Marriage-Bed; for if, by Nature's extraordinary Helps, they fhould get any Children, which happens not often, they are commonly little ones, that either die foon, of become tender, fickly People, always ailing and complaining; a Mifery to themfelves, a Difhonour to human Race, and a Scandal to their Parents.

WITH what Encouragement to Virtue therefore, fays a certain Author, may young People behold a Man at the Age of Forescore, with a Wife of the like Antiquity, both bleft with healthy hail Constitutions, and fresh wholesome Countenances, with found Minds, and prefect Senses, with active Limbs, and of chearful Tempers, presiding over a healthful Progeny, perhaps to the third or forth Generation, and all those Blesses owing, under Providence, to their Temperance and Continence; when, if we turn our Eyes upon licentious Masturbators, we shall find them with meagre Jaws, and pale Looks, with feeble Hams, and Legs without Calves, their Generative Faculties weakened, if not destroyed in the Prime of their Years: A Jest to others, and a Torment to themselves.

IN Women, SELF-POLLUTION, if frequently practifed, relaxes and spoils the retentive Faculty, occasions the Fluor Albus, an obnoxious as well as perplexing Illness attending that Sex, which, upon Account of the Womb, may draw on a whole Legion of Diseases; among other Disorders, it makes them look pale, and those who are not of a good Complexion, swarthy and hagged. It frequently is the Caufe of hyfteric Fits, and fometimes, by draining away all the radical Moifture, of Confumptions: But what it more often produces than either is Barrennefs, by a Venereal Indifferency, and at length a total Ineptitude to the Act of Generation itfelf, Misfortunes very afflicting to them, becaufe feldom to be redreffed.

THE Reason why I am not more particular in describing the many Calamities, and bodily Sufferings, which this Practice may be the Occasion of in Women, I hope will be obvious to every Reader that is capable of making Reflections. It would be impoffible to rake into fo much Filthinefs, as I fhould be obliged to do, without offending Chaftity. One Thing I shall add, addreffing myself to young Women, who have an Efteem for their Honour, and would keep their Reputation unfpotted, which is, that many of them who thus defile their Bodies, by being heedlefs, or perhaps more filled with impure Defires than ordinary, do actually deflower themfelves, and foolifhly part with that valuable Badge of their Chaftity and Innocence, which, when once loft, is never to be retrieved. This may be the fatal Caufe, whenever they marry, of endles Jealoufies, and Family Quarrels, and make their Hufbands fufpect more than they have deferved, wrongfully imagining, what many, who have already entered into that State, believe, that there is but one Way by which Maids may forfeit their Virginity.

THE next evil Confequences to be apprehended from SELF-POLLUTION, are all those other Vices which it may lead the Way to, and in Time be the Occasion of: Let us once suppose, what some raw, ignorant People imagine, that this is only a filly Practice; that there is no such great Harm in it; and if it be a Sin, it is at least less criminal than Fornication. Let us, I fay, suppose this, though not grant it, and, after that, feriously confider what Effects this foolish Trick of Youth (as some favourably term it) is like to have on either Sex, and what Impression it must necessarily make on the Minds of those that have given themselves over to it.

AS we are conceived in Sin, it is impoffible but luftful Defires will now and then arife, especially in young People ple that are in Health. By the Reluctancy which all innocent Perfons feel against complying with them, it is eafily to be discovered that they are evil, and that the more violently they attack us, the more vigoroufly we ought to refift them. While this Conflict betwixt Luft and Chaflity lasts, we are Proof against many Temptations, and our Virtue remains triumphant: But when once we abandon our Guard, and allow those wanton Thoughts the Liberty of roving and wandering wherever they pleafe, and loofe Fancy can lead them, we make the first Step to our undoing; and our Chaftity is always in Danger, as foon as our Dread and great Apprehenfion of lofing it is gone. We ought not to truft to frail Reafon, becaufe it is no Match for our Inclinations, which are infinitely ftronger. All carnal Temptations ought to be carefully fhunned, if it be poffible; but if met with, boldly defied; for whoever admits of a Parley with Luft, will be vanquifhed at laft, and is already capitulating with the Enemy. Therefore for our Lives ought we to forbear all Parley with the Flesh, observing the different Rules the Scriptures give, between mortifying those Sins the Devil would put us upon, and mortifying those Lufts the Flesh would tempt us to; the former is done by refifting: Refist the Devil, and he will flee from you. There, when a Man grows flout and couragious, Satan grows cowardly; but it is not fo with the Bufiness of the Flesh; there our greatest Safety is in flying; when we have to do with Satan, the Enemy is without us, but when we have to do with Luft, the Enemy is within us.

THE Devil may fuggeft to the Haughty and the Bafhful, that in SELF-POLLUTION they will run no Hazard of their Reputation, and that Nobody in the World fhall know it but themfelves; and to the Covetous, that they fhall lofe nothing by it; or elfe reprefent the Impunity of it to the Cautious and Fearful; but he will not tell them that the All-feeing God muft be a Witnefs to an Act which his Holinefs fo much abominates, that the greateft Lofs that can be fuffained is that of the Divine Favour, which, to balance, the Gain of the whole World is not equivalent; and, that eternal Damnation infinitely exceeds all temporal Punifhments that can be invented. When the firft plaufible Suggeftions are once admitted, the the latter Confequences, which are at leaft as certain, are not fuffered to intrude, or are prefently flowed out as troublefome Companions. But whatever Refervednefs before others they may flatter themfelves with, whenever the Fact is once committed, if it was but a trifling Sin, they can have no Innocence to boaft of afterwards: The Barrier that fenced their Chaftity is broke, and the Enemy to Purity and Holinefs makes daily Inroads, and ravages through every Paffage of the conquered Soul.

THE Senfuality of fuch, by being the Occasion of Abundance of inordinate Inclinations in them, hurries them on to many Inftances of Lewdness for fatisfying this brutish Passion. But the State of the Soul is chiefly to be confidered, whilft it is ordinarily poffeffed by luftful Thoughts and Defires, the unchafte Perfon has his Mind rarely free from lafcivious and fhameful Imaginations and Fancies : His Heart is a continual Spring of evil Thoughts, bubbling up in it every Moment, fo that there needs only the Préfence of an Object to inflame his Defire : Let him but fee or hear any thing belonging to his beloved Sin, and his Luft is prefently kindled by it; and not only fo, but at other Times, when none of these Objects present themfelves, his Memory ferves to furnish him with such former Paffages as had gratified his Senfuality; thefe he recals to his Mind, and pleafes himfelf with the Thoughts of them, inftead of reflecting upon them as he ought, with Sorrow of Heart, and Confusion of Face.

WHERE this Sin is become habitual, there must be a Distaste to Godlinessand Virtue in general; and whatever Wantonnefs, obscene Discourses, shameful Actions, and filthy Reprefentations are to be met with (how cautioufly foever they may to the World feem to be avoided) are treasured up with Care, constantly to feed this Flame of Impurity : For no fooner has Uncleannefs got the Maftery over the Heart, but forthwith it purfues the Man every-where, and keepsits Poffeffion of him at all Times, and in all Places. Upon the most ferious Occasions, and in the very Acts of Religion, he ever-and-anon finds himfelf transported with luftful Conceptions and Defires, which inceffantly follow him, and take up his Thoughts. I shall not need to fay, how great a Part of Mankind find D their their Minds flag and languish, and wander from their Bufiness, and are full even of wicked Thoughts when they should be praying to God, or hearkening to his Word. But it is certain, that in many, Impurity is the Caufe of this Diforder; a Soul that is not chafte will not know how to be devout: To such an one the holy Exercises of Prayer, Meditation, Reading, &c. are insipid and unpleasant. A Dove of Voluptuous fields is inconfistent with spiritual Delights, and those pious Affections, and Joys, and Raptures, which accompany a fincere Holiness of Conversation.

I HAVE, in the foregoing Chapter, fpoke of fome, who gave themfelves over to this, and yet were Proof againft any other groß Sin of Uncleannefs; but it is not fo with all: Thoufands have been guilty of Adultery, as well as Fornication, who would never have yielded to those Temtations, which overcame them, if they had never been initiated in Lascivious first, and acquired to themselves a Habit of Impurity by SELF-POLLUTION first. In such, not only the großer Crimes of Uncleanness I just now named, but likewise all others that may be occasioned by them, as Lying, Forswearing, perhaps Murder, and what not, must be laid to the Charge, and brought in as the Effects and Consequence of their first darling Sin, by which they were infected with astronger Habit of Impurity than they could ever have contracted from any other Frailty.

AMONG the Confequences of the Sin I treat of, ought not to be forgot the Troubles and Agonies of a wounded Confeience, whenever it is roufed, and makes the Polluted ftartle, affrighted at the Enormity of their Crime. To let the Reader fee how this Guilt of unnatural Impurity can alarm the Offenders, when they awaken from their Lethargy of Sin, I fhall infert the Preface to a little Book, intituled, Letters of Advice from Reverend Divines to a young Gentleman, about a weighty Cafe of Confeience. This Preface, wrote likewife by way of Letter, is addreffed to all young Men who have been, or may be, tempted to this great Sin, in the following Manner.

INTO fuch a deplorable Condition had the frequent polluting my felf brought me, that I was confidering, whether I had not deferved the Judgment that God fent to ONAN; and so apprehensive I was of it, that it brought me into a Kind of Despair, till I had Recourse to two most excellent and pious Divines (whofe Works praise them in the Gates) and when I received their Advice, I was refolved to break off this Sin by Repentance and Mortification, as the only Remedy to prevent my fudden Destruction: For whatever you may at prefent think, that it is only a Relief of Nature, yet I must fay, that it has been of borrid Confequence to me. God having attended me with Judgments ever fince, in most of my Affairs in the World; and I cannot be fatisfied till I have let you know it, it order both to prevent your Danger and Ruin: For though the Sins of Adultery and Fornication be now the open Practices of most Men, to the Shame and Reproach of Christianity, yet I am fure this Sin of SELF POLLUTION bespeaks you equally notorious Sinners, and puts you into a State of Enmity with God, unfits you for those great Duties you owe to him, renders you mean-Spirited, destroys the very End of your Creation, and will leave a Sting upon your Conscience, which will cost you dear. In all Humility, therefore, let me befeech your Care to peruse these excellent Letters, which I have published on purpose, as a Warning to all such who thus defile themselves : And as you tender your own Welfare in this World, as well as your Soul's Good in the World to come, you will as much bate and abominate this horrid Wickedness, as it will certainly lead you to Ruin; and then I shall have my Design in the Publication of these excellent Councils.

Your Friend, B. P.

THE Substance of the Letters mentioned in this Preface shall be communicated to the Reader in the following Chapter; whom I entreat to lend his serious Confideration, on what shall be further faid in this.

THERE are many heinous Offenders, who are hardened in Sin, and continue in it, and all worldly Enjoyments, without relenting; but few go foto their Graves; D 2 moft most great Sinners before they die feel a deep Remorfe. and are tormented with the bitter Stings of Confcience. upbraiding them with their Guilt, and reprefenting it to them in its true Colours, and moft frightful Forms. What Comfort must a Man have, in reflecting on the past Actions of his Life, who, hardly coming to Half the Age he might reasonably have expected to arrive at, finds himself enervated by the Practice of SELF-POLLUTION, his Spirits funk, his Body wafted, and his Strength decayed; in continual Danger of being forced to refign his impure Breath upon the least Rigour of the Season, or any other fmall Accident ? What Comfort, I fay, must a Man have, when his Crime, reprefenting itself before him in its most ghastly Shape, shall upbraid his Confcience, that, by fo many repeated Acts of Murder, he has at laft deftroyed himfelf before he is thirty Years of Age, as by my own Experience I have known it the Cafe of feveral? If fuch great Misfortunes happen but feldom, there are other Infirmities that may occafion very difagreeable Reflections. When Perfons of good Effates, in the Flower of their Age, find themfelves bereft of their Manhood, and confcious of their Impotence, and the curfed Caufe of it, are forced to decline the most advantageous Matches, and, without the least Hopes of Posterity, remain the Contempt of others, and a Burden to themfelves; to which, perhaps, the Mortification shall be added, that the Name and Honour of an antient Family, extinct with themfelves, must be for ever buried in Oblivion, whilst the magnificent Seats, and venerable Structures, of their more virtuous Anceftors, are inherited, or pulled down, by Strangers.

OTHERS again, who cannot be faid to die without Offspring, have puny lingering Children, more brought up by Phyfic than Kitchen Diet, which they are forced to leave at fourteen or fifteen Years of Age, perhaps younger, without any Probability that they fhall ever come to Maturity: When Perfons of large Poffeffions have no better Views to turn to than thefe, and withal fo much Reafon to lay all the Blame upon themfelves, as the frequent Practice of SELF-POLLUTION, in their Youth, can furnish them with, the Prospect can be but melancholy. Some Women likewife, though married to kind and and fertile Husbands, who, through the Vilenefs of their Affections, have changed, as St. Paul expresses it, the natural Use into that which is against Nature, by abufing their Parts, as was the Cuftom of the Jewish Women, one with another, to their own mutual Luft, are all their Life-time wishing for Children in vain; every Year perhaps they change the Air, try all the Baths in Chriftendom, and follow the Advice of most Physicians, and yet are either subject to frequent Miscarriages before the fifth Month, or elfe are never impregnated at all. If ever fuch Women are guilty of SELF-POLLUTION to Excefs, and are wife enough to know the Confequences of it, with what Sorrows and Anxieties muft the Remembrance of it fill them, even when their Troubles are not extended beyond temporal Affairs? But when once they are touched with the quick Senfe of their heinous Offences to God, how must the Restection on the Things I have named confound the Guilty of either Sex? What Aggravations will they not heap on their Crimes, even to their own Imaginations ?

LET No body imagine, that the Confequences of this Sin, and all other Acts of Uncleannels, will be lefs calamitous to those, whom either the bodily Sufferings and Infirmities I have spoken of never reach, or no temporal Affliction make any Impression upon, in order to Repentance. Those who never feel any Trouble for their Sin. are oftentimes as infenfible of the Punishment of it, fuch Punishments I mean as befal them by Reason of it in this Life. Sometimes one may perceive the Judgment of God hanging over the Heads of the Unchafte, and threatening to fall upon them, fometimes actually and vifibly purfuing them in their own Perfons, or in their Relations, or their Affairs in the World, making them groan under the Miferies, Sorrows, and divers Evils they have brought upon themfelves; and yet we may fee how little Senfe they have of the Reason, why these fad Afflictions are laid upon them, and how ready they are to attribute their Misfortune to any other Caufe-rather than to themfelves, fome of them continuing in their Security till the Judgment of God feizes them, and they die in their Impenitence, which is the most deplorable and most dangerous State a Man can All into: For folong as the Sinner has a Senfe of his Guilt, and and the Vengeance justly due to him for it, there is fome Hope of him; but, when he is come to this Degree of Obduracy, there is very little to be expected from him; for then he is upon the very Brink of Mifery, and but one Step from everlasting Destruction.

FROM what has been faid laft then it is manifeft, that neither our efcaping the bodily Sufferings, which fo often enfue upon this Crime, nor our Infenfibility of the Sin, or the temporal Punifhments of it, make any Amendment in our Condition; and, on the other Side, as evident, from what has been faid before, that the Confequence of this Crime may, on feveral Accounts, render the Reflection on the Caufe of it most terrible to the Offenders, and excite in them fuch an inconceiveable Indignation against themfelves, as, without God's Mercy, cannot poffibly end but in Defpair.

LET us now confider once, that these Pangs of Conscience, terrible as they are, are most necessary to Repentance, which yet Nobody can be perfectly fure will be accepted. But if those Anxieties to be fuffered on Earthare most frightful toall that will reflect on them, how much more ought the Guilty to stand in Awe of those other more inevitable, and more intolerable, Punifhments which are referved for the other Life ? The Unclean are not always punished in this World, but they will be most certainly in the next, unlefs they take Care to prevent it by a timely and hearty Reformation. This the Holy Scripture teaches as expressly as may be : Neither Fornicators, fays St. Paul, nor Adulterers, nor the Abominable, shall inherit the Kingdom of God; cautioning alfo, at the fame Time, that we do not abuse ourselves, nor flatter ourselves, in this Respect. And the same Doctrine he repeats, Gal. v. 19, 20, 21. I have told you before, as I have told you in Times past, that they who commit such Things shall not inherit the Kingdom of God. So Ephef. v. 6. Let no Man deceive you with vain Words : For because of these Things cometh the Wrath of God upon the Children of Dijobedience. St. Peter likewise, in his Second Epistle, chap. ii. ver. q. declares and proves, by many Examples, that God re-Serves the wicked, and chiefly the carnal and impure, unto the Day of Judgment, to be punished.

THEE

THESE are the Confequences of SELF-POLLUTION 3 this is the dreadful State to which it brings Men, and thefe the Sins into which it drives them, and the Punishment to which it renders them obnoxious ; and one would think them enough to inspire all Perfons with a Detestation against this Vice. I am fure every one has Reason to dread the Thoughts of falling into that Brutishness, and Hardness of Heart, of which all are in great Danger, who at any Time pass the Bounds of Modesty, and part with their Chastity, and should therefore feriously study to prevent that Remose, which some or later will be the Portion of the Lascivious; and to keep at a Distance from a Sin that draws so many others after it, and, in a Word, casts its Slaves and Votaries into an Abys of Evils.

BUT though these, I say, are the Confequences of SELF-POLLUTION; and that the avoiding the Practice, and repenting for the Sins thereof paffed, fhould be the utmoft Care of every-one; there are yet some People, fearless of any Danger, and deaf to all Manner of Inftruction, that will run the Rifque of Health and Safety, how terrible foever it may prove, rather than deny themselves the Gratification of that deteftable Pleafure: But as oftentimes Example, and the actual Sufferings of others, have worked upon and influenced fuch, when the best Admonitions that could be given them have been ineffectual, I shall close this Chapter with inferting a few of the many Letters which have been left at the Bookfeller's for the Author of ONANIA, by Perfons who have read the former Editions of it, wherein (befides what they will find in the next Chapter) they will see what miserable Effects that abominable Practice hath had, both upon the Bodies and Minds of the Writers of them : And as fome of the Letters mentioned were fent by Men of Years, it is very evident that · natural Corruption is not idle in any Age: But of all Ages Youth is most inceffantly and violently bent hereunto; fo that it is to be accounted a fingular Mercy and Grace for a young Perfon to pass that Seafon of Life fochastely, as not to contract fome fuch notable Blot to cleave to him, as shall be Matter of just Shame and Humility as long as he Sure Iam, the Success Satan hath had, in poifon-Lives, ing ing the Youth of this City with the fordid and beaftly Sin of SELF-POLLUTION, deferves to be lamented (were it poffible) with Tears of Blood.

SIR,

Sept. 13, 1727

HOUGH I have not the Honour to be acquainted with you, I hope you will be moved to Compassion by the fad Condition wherein I am, and not refuse to give me those excellent Advices you alone are able to give.

My frequent Use of that abominable Practice you speak against, in your judicious Book, has brought upon me'a Complication of Distempers. First, I am afflicted with a constant Gonorrhœa since the Beginning of January last; then I have been seized with violent Vapours, which distract me quite during the Fit; and after it is over, I find myself so very weak, that I cannot stir out of my Bed for two or three Days together. I am now in my right Senses, and pray you instantly to relieve me. If it be in the Power of Art, you may do it, I am convinced, and you will oblige for ever,

SIR, Yours, &c.

GNONEGLOUPERONEGLOUPERONEGLOUPERONEGLOUPE

Dublin, Dec. 31, 1727.

I HAVE read a Book published by you, called ONA-NIA, and would rather than Five hundred Pounds I had met with so good a Discourse on that Subject seven Years ago; for until I read your Book I was not enough convinced of the Sin, which I am sure is the Case of very many unfortunate young Men, as well as me. As I hope, by my fincere Repentance and Amendment, to obtain Forgivenes Forgivenefs from God, fo I shall alfo defire to repair what I can the Damages I have done to my Body by this detestable Vice. Your Book is fo honestly worded, that I am confident your physical Prescriptions are not those of a Quack; but as it is hard to get them at this Distance, to have them without exposing my Sin to Somebody, I entreat you for my own, as well as the Good of Thousands in this City, who I am sure would use your Medicines, that you will, as foon as possible, fend some over into the Hands of some known honest Citizen here, that People might not be imposed on, and let it be advertised in some of our News-Papers as foon as they are arrived. If you think it too great a Hazard to run, send the fewer Parcels, till you have made a Trial: If other People are as grateful as myself, you cannot fail of many other Letters on this Occasion. I am,

SIR,

Your most humble Servant,

The afflicted ONAN:

To the Author of ONANIA.

"Worthy SIR, April the 25th, 1730. "I HUMBLY hope you will be pleafed to let this approach your Prefence, that the Almighty God will be pleafed to infpire your tender Heart to have Compafion on a poor deluded and finful Fellow, in a difmal Condition. Dear Sir, I am a Perfon very much dejected, under that most heinous Sin of SELF-POLLUTION; it was the Buying and Reading of your most excellent Book against SELF-POLLUTION, and the Christian-like Spirit where with it was penned, which gave me fome fecret Hopes of your tender Compassion in this difmal Cafe. Sir, I believe it may be about five Years fince I first took to this evil Courfe, and did, for a confideral Time, follow this Practice two or three Times a Day, then once

a Day, and then two or three Times a Week, and if I tarried a Month it was the Outfide, then to this evil Practice again, two or three Times in a Fortnight, which made me fo weak, that fometimes I was fo faint I could hardly go, which caufed violent Pains in my Head and Back, but Head especially, and great Heat in my Tefficles, I prayed to Almighty God that he would be pleafed to forgive me my Sins, and especially that heinous Sin for which I am fo dejected. I have not left off this wicked Practice above three Months: I used to have Noc-TURNAL POLLUTIONS almost every Night before I left it off, and now fince I have them two or three Times a Week. I have, at this Time, violent Pains in my Head, and my Nofe is full of red Spots, and fometimes it is very fore: I have likewife a Knob of Flefh rifen in my Forehead, and now, at this prefent Writing, I have felt Pains in my Breaft and Arms, which fo dejects and cafts me down, that I am almost unfit for any Business. When I am told about the Breaking-out of my Face, which fometimes I am, it forces me to fay it is the Heat of the Fire, though fome will feign a Laughter, and fay I have the Foul Diftemper, as if they faid it out of Game; but God knows whether they did or no, for I do folemnly declare, I never had carnally to do with any Woman, and am Twenty-two Years old this Month. Sir, it is impoffible for me to express or write the Sorrow and Trouble I am in. I humbly hope your great Goodnefs will take Compassion on my fad Misfortune, and that you will have an Eye of Pity on me, and not let me perish under this violent Disease, which, furely, will be my Fate, if not speedily redreffed by some charitable Chriftian. Sir, Pray be not deaf to what I now write. Pray, dear Sir, take into Confideration my Difeafe, and let me not perish for Want of Help. Sir, If you please, I will call at the Bookfeller's a Tuefday, and, if you will condefcend to leave an Anfwer, I shall with Joy and Thankfulnefs receive it, and ever, as in Duty bound, pray for your eternal Happinefs.

To that worthy GENTLEMAN the ingenious AUTHOR of a learned BOOK, intituled, ONANIA.

Oxon, May 2, 1731.

The Humble Petition of an Afflicted ONAN,

Most humbly sheweth,

THAT your Petitioner is a poor miserable unfortunate Youth, of about nineteen Years of Age, that hath been fo wicked greatly, though ignorantly, to abuse his Body by that heinous Sin SELF-POLLUTION, which hath fo enervated his Strength, and weakened him in all his Parts, that he is afraid it will, in a short Time, reduce him to his original Dust, if not prevented by Physic. Now by Chance meeting with your excellent Book, intituled, ONANIA, and therein finding Advertisements of Medicines prepared for this Difease, he, though a Stranger, being as in a weak, fo at prefent in a mean Condition, most humbly befeeches you, for the Sake of our dear Lord and Saviour Jefus Christ, to trust him with such Medicines as you think proper, and as many as you think available for the Gure, if cureable, of his Difease; and he most solemnly promises, that in some Time, if he lives, he will pay you the utmost for them, but at present he is not in Circumstances to do it.

> And your Petitioner, as in Duty bound, will really ever pray, &c.

IF you should be pleased to grant me my Request, you may direct for _____, to be left _____.

PRAY, Sir, let me have an Answer.

[28]

SIR,

H AVING feen your much-to-be-admired ONANIA, gives me fome Hopes of Relief out of this my most miferable Condition, who, through my own impetuous Inclinations to indulge myself therein, have rendered myself of all Men the unhappiest. Now, Sir, with Sorrow and Shame I acknowledge, that heretofore I have often been guilty of that unnatural Sin, though not once during these two Years by past.

ABOUT a Year ago I kept a Woman Company, who, receiving me whilft in her Menstrua, I believe, did me fome Prejudice, feeing the next Day I perceived I had a fmall Gleet, which, whether it was occasioned by my two frequent Use of her before, or my untimely Uses of her then, I know not, but ever fince my Gleet has continued, that is to say, in the Morning before I void my Urine, there is always a little Mucus, or Seminal Matter, comes; there is but little of it, and that thick and clear.

NOW, Sir, whether there be any Contagion or no, I know not; but at present, and for these two Months by past, I am insupportably afflicted with Pains over my whole Body, but chiefly my Head, not like those in Veneral Cases, seeing the Parts of Generation are free from Pain. What I am hereby to request of you Sir, is, you will please candidly to advise me, if your Prescriptions in your excellent ONANIA can do any Service in this my wretched Condition, and if not, whether you will please to undertake my Cure. Please to direct your Answer for ______, to be left at ______ till called for. If it suits your Conveniency, would gladly wait on you when and where you please. [29]

« SIR,

" I READ over your Treatife of SELF-POLLUTION, much to my Satisfaction, and cannot but thank you for it (though I am unknown to you) becaufe I am verily perfuaded it will, in a great Meafure, fupprefs that odious and abominable Sin, which has hitherto been frequently practifed, becaufe, out of a bafe Sort of Modefty, it has not been fufficiently difcovered and exposed by the Writers upon that Subject. To my Knowledge, I can affure you, it has had a very good Effect upon a young Gentleman (that defired me to write this to you) who, for feveral Years, followed this foul Practice, though, in other Respects, he was very sober and regular. He was always observed to be a confcientious Youth, constant and devout in his Prayers, abhorred Drunkenness and Debauchery, and was fo extremely modeft, that he could fcarce look upon a Woman, but yet (as he himfelf confeffed to me) having but light Apprehenfions of the Guilt of this vile Sin, he fell into it, and oftentimes committed it without any Regret. By the frequent Practice of this deteftable Sin, it is incredible to tell you how much his intellectual Abilities, which were once very bright and vigorous, are weakened and decayed, and the Conflitution of his Body damaged and impaired. He has made a Refolution, upon reading your Book, to leave it off intirely, and to pray for the Affiftance of the Divine Grace, that he may repent fincerely, and abftain from that execrable Practice for the Time to come; and I hope by a total Abstinence from it, by using some Kind of Severities which I have advised, and by mortifying his Flesh by an abstemious Course of Life, he may keep his Body under, and make it obedient to the Motions of God's holy Spirit. I wish the sober Youth of the Nation, at least, would ferioufly confider the heinous Guilt of this unnatural Vice (as you have well opened it in your Book) and be afraid of doing that in the Sight of God, which they would be ashamed of before a Child; or, if the Love of Virtue and Chaftity will not excite, let the Horrors of this Sin deter them; them; let them reflect upon the dreadful Confequences of it, the weakening and deftroying of the Faculties both of Body and Mind; the Pangs, Tortures, and Rackings, that attend it here, and those everlasting Burnings, and unquenchable Fire, that will be its Punishment hereafter, when God shall cast both Body and Soul into Hell. Sir, I beg of you to excuse this Liberty, and shall ever continue

66 With all Affection,

" Your obliged (though unknown)

" Friend and Servant.

" SIR, If you think proper, you may publish this in your next Edition."

« S 1 R,

"TO whom should the Afflicted address themselves, in Time of Affliction, but to those that are capable to give them Relief? It is on this Account that I have taken the Encouragement to give you this Trouble.

" I VERY lately perused your Treatise of ONANIA, when as the former Part occasioned the greatest Degree of Melancholy, so did the Expectation of meeting with Relief give me some Respite at the Conclusion thereof.

"SIR, I am one of those unhappy Persons that have contracted the abominable Custom of SELF-POLLU-TION, in which I have been a very great Offender; and, though I have perused your Treatise, cannot form a right Notion of my Case, which is as follows.

" I CAME of very honeft Parents, and had a very chafte and fober Education, and am now a Stranger to the carnal Knowlege of a Woman: The Beginning of my Misfortune, I do affure you, was purely accidental, and, for fome Time, continued that abominable Practice, without confidering the offending God Almighty, or injuring any any one Perfon : I was old enough to have known better, being very chafte till the Age of twenty-two Years, fince. which the Heat of Luft has been fo great, that I have at Times continued fo foul a Repetition of the Crime, being now upwards of twenty-fix Years of Age. I am naturally of a hot, dry Conftitution, though not very ftrong, and am always beft in Health when I go to Stool but once in two Days, or fometimes longer. The Alterations I have observed in myself are as follow: I found none for about a Year, when I observed a Declension of that Life and Vigour I was before poffeffed of, which I then attributed to fome other Caufe. For two Years following, at Times (efpecially in Summer) I have been very weak in my Hams, yet but a small Weakness in my Back, which I then attributed to my extraordinary Application in my Bufinefs, it being a continual Action; I had then at some Times a Pimple on my Privy Parts, but went away as on any other Part of my Body. About a Year ago I first felt a great Remorfe for my Crime, and did then meet with a great Difappointment, a Friend of mine offering me an agreeable Wife with a confiderable Fortune, which, for the above Reasons, I was forced to decline. About nine Months fince I was full of Pimples in my Face and Thighs, and at Times have had fome little Weaknefs in my Privy Parts. About three Months fince I had a Swelling under my Right Arm, among the Glands, on which Occasion I applied to a Surgeon of Reputation, who laid a Cauftic on me, and in fourteen Days I was well, fo that I knew not if it proceeded from the above Caufe, or not, and I had not Affurance enough to ask him; but in a Week after I found an inward Trembling in my Nerves, fometimes a stupid Dulness in all Parts of my Body. When this was abated, I have observed my Privy Parts very weak, and the End of my Foreskin a little tight, fore, and red, which is feldom fo above two Days at a Time; at other Times I have a great Weaknefs, and fome Pain in my Back, which is very often fhifting and varying from one Part to another. About a Month ago I applied myfelf to a certain College Phyfician, but concealed the fhameful Part of my Grief, and he prefcribed me fome Pills, which I believe might be of Service to the Nerves, but has not reached my Cafe: I took them repeated for a Month, and have nevertheless been afflicted with the above Disorders, and also a deaf Noise in my Head, which is usual when I have a Trembling on me: When the Trembling first seized me, I had for a Week avery great Faintnefs, and finking of my Spirits, for which taking fome Bitters twice a Day they were removed. Thus, Sir, I have truly related my Cafe, and wifh I had fooner perufed your Book, but hope it will not be now unprofitable to me, therefore I humbly beg and intreat you will do your Endeavour to afford me Relief. Before I began this most abominable Practice I was always heathful, though not of the ftrongeft Conftitution. I beg you will form a right Judgment of my Cafe, which of these Diforders proceeds from my Crime, and beg, if you receive this Time enough, to give me Leave to wait on you on Sunday Morning, for fear the Time you appoint I fhould be obliged to omit. I humbly ask Pardon for being thus tirefome; but, fearing I fhould not have Confidence enough to explain my Cafe to you, has made me thus tedious. Please to leave a Direction for me at the Bookfeller's, which I will call or fend for on Sunday in the Evening. 1 am,

SIR,

HAVING met accidentally with your little Book, 1 found you had mentioned some Cases which bore a near Resemblance to mine, which I shall, without any more Geremony, communicate to you. I have followed that abominable Practice for near two Years (which I beartily repent) and have experienced the ill Effects of it on my Spirits, in not having my natural Rest fowell as I used to have. Indeed, the first Time I apprehended myself injured, was about this Time Twelvemonth, when, after a short Indispofion, which mast People termed an intermitting Fever, I found myself want Sleep very much, but imputed it (as did a learned Physician I advised with) to the Remains of the Fever, for which he prescribed accordingly, but without Success, which I do not wonder at: The particular Complaints Ilabour under at present are Want of Sleep, great Flushing in my Face, Palpitation of Heart, Lowness of Spirits, pale Urine, trouble fome Dreams, and now and then (though

(though feldom) involuntary nocturnal Emissions. I have a very good Stomach, no Manner of Pain about me, neither do I fall away the least in my Flesh. About two Months ago I went into the Cold Bath, though without any Preparation, and found but little Benefit by it. Ever fince my last Illness I have had an odd sweating in my Nose, though without any Pain or Swelling. Being very well pleased with what you have said on this Subject, I have now applied myself to you in Hopes of a Cure, and of being directed to the proper Medicines for it, without having my Case ever known to any other Person besides.

I HAVE ordered a Person to come for your Answer on Saturday Evening, which you may direct for _____, to be left at the same Place where I send this. I have no Manner of Gleet upon me. My Mouth is apt to be very dry when I awake in the Morning. I am,

" T A M one of those unhappy young Men who have abused themselves by SELF-POLLUTION. To be brief with you, my Cafe is thus: About my fixteenth Year it was I first defiled myself, without any Person fhewing me, and have followed it fucceffively till about three Weeks ago, being now fomething above twenty : I should not have left it off, had it not been by Accident. About the Time mentioned I happened to be at a Publick House, and the London Journal being on the Table, I chanced to read the Advertisement of your ONANIA, Twelfth Edition, and being ignorant of the right Meaning, I asked a Friend what it meant, who explained it to me; which fo terrified me, that I vowed I never would do the like any more; and could not be fatisfied till I had bought your excellent Book, and in the reading it over I found feveral Paffages which touches my Condition, which is, I often have a Pain acrofs the Small of my Back; my Brain is as tho' flupified, and I have not a clear Thought; my Memory is extraordinary bad, which it was not used to be; and it often hath produced fuch Seminal Emiffions in the Night, but not exceffive; a Weaknefs in the Penis, and Lofs of Erection, and the Squirt which drives out the Water is not near fo ftrong as used to be : 1 am troubled both in Body and Mind, and do defire a little of your Advice. To the AUTHOR of the BOOK called ONANIA.

Wednesday, June 20, 1732. SIR, HAPPENING to read your little Book of ONANIA, which I heartily with I had perused seven Years ago, would have prevented that shameful Prastice, and detestable Sin, I have for fo long been guilty of, being ignorant of the Heinousness of the Crime, and the ill Consequence that now attends it, but hope, through God's Mercy, and your Affistance, to find Relief in this my unhappy Circumstance. Sir, My Cafe is as follows : When I make Water, as foon as I have done there comes a white, thin, flimy Matter, which used to come sometimes once in a Month, sometimes longer, Sometimes once in a Fortnight, and now Sometimes twice or thrice a Week, and more of it than ufual, which new Iimagine came by that curfed Practice of SELF-POL-LUTION. I am now more than twenty five Years of Age, and never, as I shall answer to Almighty God, carnally knew any Woman, so that I am satisfied it could not come that Way; and believe, if I had not read your Book, I should sooner have perished than made my Case known to any Man living. I have now wandering Pains, fometimes in the Small of my Back, then in my Breaft at Times, but generally in my Legs and Thighs, which feems hot, and makes me very uneasy, and unfit for Business, and dull to that Degree, that I am ready to fleep as I fland: This Alteration hath been within this Month, except the Running, which comes sometimes immediately after making Water upon Stool; lo if you can affift me with any Medicines that may be proper for my Cafe without Confinement, being in a Houfe where none but Men are, and no Women to do any Thing, and for the World I would not tell my Cafe to Any body. If you please to leave any Thing for me at the Bookfeller's, I shall fend on Saturday Night for your Anfwer, and the Perfon shall bring Money that comes for it, if you please to leave Word with the Bookseller how much you must have. I should not omit to inform you, that I have very [37]

CHAP. III.

Spiritual and Phyfical Advice to those who have injured themselves by the filthy and abominable Practice of SELF-POLLUTION.

N the foregoing Chapter it has been proved, that the Hurt which either Sex may receive from SELF-POLLUTION is corporal as well as fpiritual: But becaufe Every-body, who but once has committed this Fact, has, in a grievous Manner, offended God, and wronged his Soul, and many of ftrong Conftitutions may, for fome Time, have been guilty of this Sin, without any confiderable, or at leaft perceptible, Harm to their Bodies, yet how to redrefs the fpiritual Injury received fhall be our firft and chiefeft Care. There is no Chriftian who can be ignorant, that no Pardon can be obtained for this, as well as other Sins, without Repentance in general: But many are apt to deceive themfelves concerning the Nature of Repentance, as not well knowing in what it confifts; wherefore it is requifite I fhould fay fomething of the Matter after which this Duty ought to be performed, as well as the Neceffity of it.

T H E first Branch of Repentance, and the first Duty of the Polluted, is a Sorrow for what they have done; after this, it is very necessary that the Sinner should examine himself, himfelf, to know what Principle it arifes from; for, if his Sorrow only proceeds from any corporal Affliction, which this Sin already has brought upon him, or the Fear that it may do fo in Time to come, it is not faving, unlefs the Sioner makes a further Progress, and improves the Almighty's Chaffilements, to beget in him an unfeigned Abhorrence of his paft Transgressions: Wherefore, the principal Cause of his Grief must be the Greatness of the Sin itself, and the woful Estate whereunto it brings Men, in relation to God and their own Salvation; for it is certain, that no Repentance is acceptable in the Sight of God, that does not arise from such Meditations as these.

NEITHER is it fufficient to be fomewhat grieved and alhamed ; but this Grief must be affecting, fuch as enters deep, and pierces the very Heart, filling it with Sadnefs and Remorfe, Deteftation and Fear; or if it be not fuch at the beginning, it must be fuch at length : This is, above all others, the one infallible Mark of a hearty Sorrow, and fincere Repentance; that the Sinner finds no longer any Pleafure or Satisfaction in the Things he had formerly delighted in, but feeks to withdraw, and get out of the Way of them, and finds more Comfort in his Sadnefs and Tears for them : Sometimes those that have renounced this and other Sins of Uncleannefs, have turned afide another Way, and betaken themfelves to Pleafures of another Nature: But fo long as they retain an Affection for worldly Pleafures and Joys, of whatfoever Kind, this is a certain Sign of their not being touched with a true Repentance.

BUT, above all, Care must be taken that this Grief be lasting; for Mens Sorrow is oftentimes but light at the Beginning of their Conversion, as will easily be apprehended, if we but call to Mind that there are two Sorts of Sins. Some there are for which a Man is apt to have an extreme Concern as foon as ever he has committed them, and they are fuch as he is not betrayed into by his own Inclination, nor can take Delight in. Thus, when one has committed Murder, or spoke Blasphemy, he will, perhaps, be immediately struck with the Horror of his Crime, and a stinging Remorfe by Reason of it. But it is quite otherwise with those Sins into which Men are drawn by Pleasure, Pleafure, and which gratify their Inclinations, and efpecially when they are become habitual. Though they take up a Refolution of quitting thefe, they do not at firft look upon them with the Averfion due to them; they could yet pleafe themfelves with them, and it is not without doing Violence to themfelves, and refifting their own Inclinations, they gid rid of them: So that their Diflike of thefe Sorts of Sins is but fmall at firft, the Fire of Luft not being yet wholly extinct. But the chief Commendation of it is, that it is lafting: And this is what they ought to have an efpecial Regard to, the Caufe of moft Men's Failings, in thefe Attempts, being, that in Time the Senfe of their Crime abates, and at laft wears quite away.

THE Repentance of those who are polluted by this Sin, or any other Sort of Uncleannefs, fhould remain with them to their Life's End. Thefe are not Sins which a Man can forget, and the Memory of them ought to be always fresh, that the Penitent may truly fay with David, My Sins are ever before me: Not only the Time that has past fince the Commission of it, but even the Amendment of Life does not take away the Senfe of fo great a Fault, but, on the contrary, he becomes more and more fenfible of it. Even this Thought, that the Sinner has had the Happinels to obtain the Pardon of his Guilt, will render the Remembrance of it the more bitter, and the greater Progrefs he makes in Holinefs, the more abominable will his Wickednefs appear. The greater Experience he has had of God's Goodnefs, the more he will accufe and loath himfelf; and the more Hope he has of Salvation through God's Goodnefs, the more will he be affected with the Danger of being excluded from it to which he had exposed himself.

ANOTHER great Duty that belongs to Repentance is Conversion and Amendment: The Guilty must forfake their Sin, and continue no longer in it. When our Bleffed Saviour pardoned the Woman taken in Adultery, he faid to her, Go, and fin no more. The Crime must therefore be totally renounced; and they which do not this, but relapse into it, have not repented of it. Every Act, and every Repetition of their Sin, is an Aggravation of both their Guilt and Punishment.

BUT this is but the Beginning of Conversion; and this first Step will be to no Purpose, if the Offenders stop here: It is not enough to renounce their Crime, without renouncing likewife all the Approaches to it : All the feveral Species of Impurity, and all the Defilements of Body or Mind; all lewd Actions, wanton Glances, impure Thoughts and Defires, together with fuch Familiarities as expose to Temptations; all obscene Discourfe, or Expressions, and the like, which are contrary to Chastity, muft be intirely laid afide. It is true, this Renunciation may appear difficult at first, and will occasion no small Trouble to those that have contracted a vicious Habit of giving themfelves up to all Sorts of Paffions. But People muit couragioufly refolve to overcome themfelves, it being far better to deny themfelves in those Things, and to cross their own Inclination for a Time, than by purfuing them to perifheternally. It is profitable that one of their Members should perish, and not that their whole Body should be cast into Hell. St. Matthew, Chap. xvi. ver. 29.

THERE are two Reafons why it is neceffary to renounce all these Species of Impurity First, because they will be apt to make Men fall again into the Crime; and then, because a true Repentance is inconfissent with Defilement. The Soul is not changed whilst it is not pure, but preferves a Kindness for those filthy and shameful Passions. In a Word, wheresoever there is any Love of Sin, there is no true Reformation.

IT fuffices not barely to fly Impurity, but they likewife must shew forth their Repentance by a Life of Mortification; and if it be a general Doctrine among Christification; and if it be a general Doctrine among Chriftians, not to take Care of the Flefh, but to mortify the Body, and to keep it under, and bring it into Subjection, none have more Reason for the Observance of these Injunctions, than those whom the Passions of the Flesh have drawn into Sin. A Love of Pleasures, and compliance with the Flesh, are no-where more highly blameable than in fuch as are guilty of Impurity: And it must also be granted, that when any one is touched with a lively Sense of this Crime, he goes on no longer in quest of his vain Delights, he is not then in a Condition to rejoice and please himfelf. felf, but places his Confolation rather in the Exercises of Repentance: Diversions, and frivilous Entertainments, reading vain Authors, Dreffing, and the Care of the Body; all these make but vain Impressions upon him. And, on the contrary, when those that have been impure and dissolute, and who have left off to fin as they have grown into Years, do not mortify themselves, when they love their Ease, and make it their Study to obtain the Pleasures and Advantages of Life, passing their Time in Idlenes, or at Play, and fetting their Minds upon Dainties, and suptuous Entertainments; most certainly these are yet in a State of Impenitence, and have never been truly fensible of their Fault, nor duly fet themselves to make Amends for it.

THE Sincerity of Conversation must not only appear in the Things which have Relation to Impurity, but in the whole Courfe of their Conversation. So great a Fall should render a Man wife, pious and circumspect, in all Things; all that is in him is to become new: He would take Occafion from every Thing to fhew his Repentance, to discharge his Duty towards God, to edify his Neighbour, and to purify himfelf more and more. He ought with the greateft Exactness and Sincerity to practife the Duties of Religion, to give himfelf to Meditation and Prayer, and to be conftant in holy Exercifes, caffing himfelf, as St. Auftin advises, upon God, who will not withdraw himfelf from him, or leave him to fall, but will help him if he relies upon, and puts Confidence in, him: There are only two Things required of him; one that he would firmly refolve to make the Glory of God, and his own Salvation, his chief End, regarding nothing in Comparison with it; and the other, not to truft in his own Strength or Prudence, but in the Omnipotence and infinite Love of God. He ought likewife to do all the Works he shall be able, and especially to employ his Goods to the Uses of Piety and Charity, following the Counfel of the Prophet Daniel, Redeeming their Sins by Alms, and their Iniquities by shewing Mercy to the Poor.

HAPPY are the Guilty who difcharge these Duties aright, who, with the finful Woman in St. Luke's Gospel, weep bitterly for their Faults, who have renounced and G 2 forsaken forfaken them, and altogether converted themfelves: Their Sins though great shall be forgiven them. These are by no Means to be despised; for there is a great deal of Love due to all Sinners, but more especially to such as forfake their Wickedness, and cause for in Heaven by their Return.

BUT he that allows himfelf in any known Sin is a wicked Man, and he that teaches, or any otherways encourages another to commit a Sin, as is too cuftomarily done in the Practice of SELF-POLLUTION, is likewife a wicked Man; for he is Partner with him in that Sin which he tempts him to, and confequently, without fincere Repentance, must expect to fhare with him in the Punifhment; and no wicked Man hath any Portion in the Kingdom of Heaven.

As the greateft Part of the Advice I have hitherto given may be applied to all who are guilty of any Sort of Impurity, as well as SELF-POLLUTION, I fhall now impart to the Reader what others have advifed concerning this Sin itfelf, as it relates to young Men in particular : For, though there are many of both Sexes, and different Ages, who defile themfelves this Way, the Practice of it is not among others fo general as it is among young Lads and School-boys, where it was the Opinion of a witty Libertine, that it would (which God forbid) continue as long as the World endures. What I shall here transcribe is the most material Substance of Three Letters, among others, mentioned in a phyfical and chirurgical Treatife, fent to the Author for Advice by three feveral young Men, who had each injured themfelves by this POLLUTION, to which I shall add the chief Part of three more, recommended by the Preface inferted in the foregoing Chapter. It will be easy to judge from them the Horror the Writers of them were in, and that the three latter especially were addreffed to a great Offender this Way, who became penitent, made Confession of his Sin, and defired the Opinion and Counfel of the feveral Divines that wrote them. The first is one from the aforefaid physical Author, as follows.

Observing particularly what you say in your Book concerning Gleets, I thought fit to write to you the ensuing Lines.

"IT may not avail much to tell you, that I was born of pious Parents, and religiously educated, and yet when between fifteen and fixteen Years of Age, by evil Companions, I learned the vicious Practice of SELF-POLLU-TION, and that at last I used it very frequently, in less than an Hour's Time, in one Day, more than eight Times (O abominable Sin against God, and Abuse of my poor Body!) and at length I became one of those whose Eyes were full of Adultery, and could not ceafe from Sin. I burnt in Luft for a long Time, Day and Night, after a Woman I knew not how to enjoy, which truly was flirred up by a new-married Couple, that lived in the Houfe, and were often wanton and foolifh in my Prefence. I have not grown either in Strength or Stature fince I was about feventeen. I suppose, by my Cruelty to myself, I crushed my before flourishing Nature. I became fensible of my Error and humbled my Soul before God between feventeen and eighteen; but I had hard Work to conquer my ftrong Lufts; and as a Means in order thereto, I drank nothing but Water, or Milk and Water, for about half a Year. About twenty I was a Woer, and verily a chafte Lover; but our Parents not agreeing, it broke off, which I have now Reafon to repent; for, after this, I lived in an Houfe with feveral young Gentlewomen, where we were daily very familiar, and thereby my whole Defire was ftirred up, which frequently occasioned a thin Seminal Matter to flow from me, and also many hurtful Dreams; and, by Means of my House-mates, I got an intimate Acquaintance with a young married Gentlewoman; and now I am come to the Time which brought the Diforders upon me, which I will recount as brief as I can. A few Days after we had been dancing at the faid Gentlewoman's Houfe, fhe came where I dwelt, and addreffed herfelf to me (the reft of the Company being engaged below) to fnew her the upper Rooms, and, in fine, went into my Lodging-chamber before me, having having first, at the Stairs-head, turned herself, and inquired of me whofe Room it was? She behaved herfelf at a Rate fomewhat furprizing to me; but I affure you, I had, at that Time, fuch an Awe upon me, that I did not fo much as falute her, tho' not long after I found ftrange Workings in my Mind concerning her; and, in fhort, my Luft was inflamed to that Degree, that I could not tell what to do with myfelf. I prayed and ftrove against it, and had Horror upon my Confcience becaufe of it; and yet, fuch was the Heat within, that I was overcome to use SELF-POLLUTION; and it was the more heinous, in that it was just after I came from my Closet in the Morning. True, I was allured to it, by imagining it might quench the Fire; but, alas! inftead of that it blew it into a Flame, for I went to the fame Work twice afterwards in the fame Day, and this brought a Gleet upon me; yet my Fire burnt many Times; and what with that, and the Grief of Soul that I should be fo vile, and sometimes the Fear of Hell fire, 1 often trembled all over, and felt a burning Heat in my Breaft, and the Side I lay upon was as it were benumbed, as though the Blood was ftagnated. I went to an eminent Phyfician, and made known to him the Substance of what I here acquaint you with, who told me, he had many in the like Cafe, and did not queftion but the Medicines he ordered me, with cold bathing twice a Week, would cure me; withal adding, that it was his Opinion, I should get a Wife as soon as possible. I have now taken what the Doctor prescribed, and bathed eight or nine Times, and fince then, by courting a young Gentlewoman, my Gleet returned upon me, that I have not been able of late to be in her Company long, infomuch, that I have fully refolved to leave her, and am ready to blame the Doctor that he had not advised me first to have endeavoured to reftore my Health, before I thought of Matrimony: and, in fhort, I fear (as I told him) unlefs I can have my Reins, &c. strengthened, I shall never be fit for the Marriage Bed, and how to live in the Fire I cannot tell: Ah! how often have I thought of the Apoftle's Words, It is better to marry than to burn? And yet I have not been able to do it; therefore I write to you my Cafe, obferving that I have bathed three Times fince, and after I plunged I tarried about a Minute in the Water, above my Genitals. My Gleet is now but fmall, the Parts feeble, as alfo alfo the Small of my Back, and am weaker and weaker in those Parts, and have been growing fo more than these two Years; and fuch hath been my Wickednefs, that the very looking on an amorous Object, yea, only playing with a Child, hath encreafed my Gleet, and affected me with an almost continual Making of Water; and my Spirits are languid to a great Degree, my Loins are weak, and as my Bufinefs is fludying, at Seafons my Brain feems weak, and as it were numbed, fo that I cannot have a clear Thought. I am fure I may be justly ranked, for my vicious Practice, with those mentioned in many Pages of your Book." Thus he goes on, reflecting on himfelf, and enumerating his Complaints, and telling the Author, that having confeffed to him his Wickednefs, and acquainted him with his Constitution, &c. he defired his Advice, telling him at the Conclusion, that he never carnally knew any Woman, or defiled himfelf otherwife, than by SELF-POLLUTION, as he expected to answer the Truth of it at the great Day; and that none knows the Horror he had been in from Time to Time, for that his vile Practice; and that till then, according to his fober Education aforementioned, he had been chafte in Thought and Look, and had experienced Comfort in Religion.

The Substance of another Letter from another Patient to the fame Author, is this.

SÍR,

I BOUGHT your Book, and, in reading it over, I find feveral in the Cafe as myfelf am now in, which gives me fome Encouragement to write to you, for had I not feen your Book, I should have rather died under my Illnefs, than have spoke to any one about it; but hoping you will not be worse to me than to others you have had in Cure, especially when you hear me relate my Misfortunes, I shall tell you: That

That about five Years ago, when I went to School, I and three or four more, on a Holiday, went a Bird catching; when we were fat down, one of our Companions, who was about iwenty Years of Age, the rest of us not being above lifteen, asked us, Whether we ever faw the Seed of Man? We replied, We never did. He told us, if we would reach him a Leaf of a Cabbage he would show us, which he did by SELF-POLLUTION; and which, though it fired my Inclination, yet I attempted it not till a Year after, and then I followed it for about iwo Years and an Half; but, before I had followed it for about two Years, fad Thoughts came into my Mind, which brought me under a Senfe of this my heinous Sin, which I had committed before God, who might justly have punished me to all Eternity; and though I strived to get the Mastery of it, yet the Flesh prevailed, and I finned; but at last I made a solemn Vow never to commit the like Sin more, which, thank God, I have bitherto kept, and, with the Help of God, I will never commit the like again. About two Months after I had left it off, I had NOCTUR-NAL POLLUTIONS almost every Night in my Sleep, &c. Here he alfo goes on with his Complaints, bewailing his deplorable Condition, and cautioning other young Men of falling into the fame Dilemma; but hoped that the Author would rather pity him, than give him up to the Punishment he deserved, fince he did it ignorantly.

The Third Letter from another Patient to the fame Author is as follows.

SIR,

A POOR distreffed Youth, among the many unhappy, ah! too deservedly unhappy Votaries of Venus, or rather of Hell and Ruin, humbly makes bold to visit you with a Line of his Case. It is my sad, and I fear irretrievable Misfortune, though sprung of honess and religious Parents, Parents, to fall into the Company of a fifthy decoying Mifcreant, my School-fellow, who did not shame to perpetrate before me that detestable and pernicious, unnatural and abominable Crime of SELF-POLLUTION; which fatal Example firring up my youthful Flame and innate Corruption, by which, together undoubtedly with the impetuous Sollicitations of a wily Devil, I desperately adventured upon that woful Curiofity, and at once forfeited my Innocency, wounded my Conscience, and enervated my Strength. But that which puts a greater Accent upon my Mifery and Guilt is, that upon the Review and ruminating on my past fulsome Sweets and Delights conceived in that Sin, a Sin, alas! of which I did not confider the fad Event, being burried on by a headstrong Passion, committed it over and over; and though Conscience, upon each Relapse, fell upon me with the Fury of a Lion, yet Vice got the Rein, and down I went; and now I have laboured two Years under a Gonorrhea, which I was ashamed to discover to any one; but lighting upon your Book I was encouraged to communicate my Cafe to you, hoping you will lend a poor desponding Wretch some kind Relief, &c.

The following Three Letters are those recommended by the Preface, as mentioned in Page 18, aforegoing.

The first is an Answer, as defired, concerning the Sin of ONAN.

SIR,

A^S to the Business of ONAN, my Opinion is the same with theirs, that think the Lewdness of the Fact was composed of Lust and Murder; the first appears in that he went rashly upon it. It seems he staid not till Night for the Time of Privacy for such a Purpose, else the Bed might have been named as well as the Ground: The second is the Honour of his dead Brother, and therefore would not be Father of H any Child that should be reported his, and not his own: The third is, that there is a Seminal vital Virtue, which perisheth if the Seed be spilt; and to do this, to hinder the begetting of a living Child (as he did at the very Time when she was in full Expectation of being embraced by him) in diresting it another Way, and not in its proper Place, is the first Degree of Murder that can be committed; and the next unto it is, the marring Conception when it is made, and causing of Abortion. Now such Acts are noted in the Scripture as horrible Grimes, because otherwise many might commit them, and not know the Evil of them. It is conceived that his Brother Er, before, was his Brother in Evil thus far; that both of them fatisfied their Senfuality against the Order of Nature, and therefore the Lord cut them off both alike, with fudden Vengeance; which may be for the Terror of those who, in the Neglect of Marriage, live in secret Impurity with themselves; and to those who in Marriage will fatisfy their Luft, but hinder the Product of Children, which is the U/e of the conjugal Estate, but not for the mers gratifying the Concupiscence.

The next is a Letter of Advice from another of the Divines.

« SIR,

"THOUGH I am a Stranger to your Perfon, yet you have made me not to be a Stranger to your Soul, which indeed I find to be deplorable enough; and there is no Sorrow great enough for it, except fuch Sorrow as drives you from God: Exigit autem ille dolor plufquam lex ulla dolori conce/fit. Let your Anger be infinite againft your Sin; watch againft it with all the Caution that is imaginable; and now that your State is fuch, that you can fcarce fin any more in that Inftance where your Evil lies, fhew Zeal and Indignation againft yourfelf, and judge yourfelf feverely for what is paft, and while you live never to be reconciled to yourfelf, but pray for Pardon per-

perpetually; but then be fure to hope for it humbly, or elfe you can never pray for it acceptably.

" DO not think a few Tears, or fome fhort Penances, are enough in your Cafe; take no Measures but even all you can, and give yourfelf up to a very holy Life, and remember that your Sin is too great for any Thing but God's Mercy; this indeed is infinite, and muft needs infinitely exceed your Burden and Calamity. Sir, your Sins have been carnal, take heed you do not add Despair; for it is a spiritual Evil, ten thousand Times worse than the others: They difhonoured your own Body, but this difhonours God, and speaks reproachfully of him. Once more, begin a true Repentance, and finish it, and be afraid to provoke God any more, for there is a Time in which God will be no more intreated; the oftner any Man breaks his Vows of Repentance, the nearer he is to that State. If God gives you Life and Grace of Amendment and Repentance, it is certain you are not yet fallen into that State; but I pray tempt God no more, your Soul is too precious a Concern to be put fo often to the Venture. Sir, you have only fpoke to me in general, and I have given you a proportionable Anfwer; if in any particular Queftion you defire to be refolved, I will decline no Trouble you shall require of me, nor think it any if I may do Comfort, and give Instruction, to your Soul. Pray God blefs and fanctify your penitential Sorrow to you; make it fincere, and increase it to an excellent and perfect Repentance. Remember, that all the Pains and Care which Repentance can put you to in this World, are not half fo bad as one Minute of the eternal Pains of Hell.

The other Letter from the same Divine has this.

"NO doubt but you have committed a grievous Sin, and the more becaufe you did it knowingly, frequently, with Deliberation, with Delight, and against many Refolutions (as I perceive) to the contrary; and therefore it is but neceffary you fhould lay it to Heart, and look upon yourfelf as an inordinate Lover of carnal Pleafure, as one-that hath defiled your own Body, and, in fome Sort, ftained your Baptism, offended the Spirit, unhallowed and defecrated its Temple, and that deferves to be deftroyed. Miftake me not, 1 do not equal your Sin with that of Fornication, concerning which the Apoftle speaks these dreadful Things; but I fay, in fome Sort, in a leffer Degree, you have incurred that Guilt by fornicating with yourfelf, and that after you were better inftructed, and had purpofed Amendment; and yet all this doth not make your Crime unpardonable, but only more difficult to cure. Sins of Deliberation, often repeated against Vows, and with Delight, are very dangerous; but the Danger confifts in this, that they are hard to be forfaken, becaufe of an habitual Pleasure in them. You will agree, I suppose, to the Doctrine following, which I take to be infallible:

•• 1. THAT there is no Pardon to be hoped for without Repentance.

55 2.. THAT Repentance is for faking the Sin totally.

" 3. THAT it is abandoning of all Sin whatfoever.

"4. THAT though this forfaking of Sin does not make us clean as to what is paft, yet it has a Promife of Mercy and and Forgiveness annexed to it, which we cannot fail of. I John i. 7. If we walk in the Light as he is in the Light, we have Fellowship one with another, and the Blood of Jefus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all Sin. Observe, that it is from all Sin; and likewise take Notice that in the ninth Verse he faith, God is faithful and just to forgive us our Sins, and to cleanse us from all Unrighteousness: From whence we may draw another certain Conclusion, that Pardon may be claimed as a Matter of Right and Justice by him that forfakes his Sin.

"GOD should not be just, if he should deny it to such a Person suing for it; it consists not with his Faithfulness to with-hold it: Then add this surther, that if Sin be forgiven, God must needs treat us as his Friends, and use us as kindly as if we were in Innocence, for it is Sin only that makes a Separation between God and us: From whence it follows, that his Spirit, which he has promised to those whom he loves, must also return again, and forget the former Affronts that were offered to it,

" YOUR first Question then is refolved, and you may be at Peace if you but forfake this Sin, and all others; for you fee, the Blood of Christ cleanses us from all Unrighteousness, when we turn from the Works of Darkness and walk in the Light; and, together with our cleanfing, the Holy Ghoft comes again, and refumes his former Dwelling, which is no more offenfive to him. Now I doubt not but there is a Poffibility (tho' perhaps fome Difficulty) of forfaking this Sin, and fo becoming the Habitation of God through his Spirit, becaufe you have the Spirit of God in fome of its Operations, viz. as the Spirit of Illumination and Understanding, though not in all other that belong to it: You difcern and acknowledge the Sin, the Heinoufnels of it, its evil Confequences, the Injury it doth to God, to his Son and Holy Spirit; I doubt not therefore but the Spirit will further communicate itfelf to you, if you will but follow my Advice.

"LABOUR to understand the Gospel, and to have as comprehensive a Sense of the Duty contained therein as you can; and hereby (these being the Words of the Spirit) the Holy Ghost will fanctify that Part of you which the Apostle Apostle, I Thef. v. 23. calls the Spirit, i. e. the Mind and Understanding, which is cleanfed by these new Principles affented unto: Then bring your Heart to confent to be governed and led by the holy Rules of Life, press them with all the Reason you can upon the Heart and Soul; receive them and love them, in the Life of it, as the very Words of the Holy Ghost, the Spirit of Life; hereby that Part of you which the Apostle calls the Soul, i. e. the Will and Affections, will be fanctified also; next to this, that which he calls the Body, i. e. all the outward Actions of Life, will inevitably be fanctified, and prove conform to that Determination of your Soul or Will, if you do but constantly follow the Counsel of another Apostle, Building up yourself in your most holy Faith, praying in the Holy

" IBELIEVE, in fome Conffitutions the Stimulations to this Sin may be very vehement, and hard to be refifted, and therefore it will not be amifs to tell you, that you must call in the Affistance of all other natural Remedies, to which a Christian must not think it below him to be beholden.

Ghoft, keeping your Soul in the Love of God, and the Mercy of our fefus Christ, to eternal Life.

"AS First, meditate upon fad and doleful Objects; get your Fancy painted with fuch Kind of Images as have little of Light and Gaity in them; for fuch Things do quicken and infpire the natural Spirits of all Sorts, and in all Parts, making them more brisk and nimble; whereas more dark thoughts are apt to blunt and flupify them, making them long for nothing of Pleafure.

"IN the Cafe of Adultery, Boccalini, as an Antidote againft it, advifes those that Way inclined to carry about with them a well drawn Picture of the most perfect and faultless Beauty that ever appeared in Flesh and Blood, penciled over again with rotten Teeth, blear Eyes, no Nose at all, in fine, rendered as loathfome as Venom and Corruption can make it, and that whenever Defires of the Flesh ftir, they would take a fober view of it, and feriously confider what they are about to do, and the Confequents, and no doubt but it would effectually damp their Inclinations. Soin SELF-PoTLUTION, would Transgreffors that way, of either Sex, but fet before their Eyes (at the Time their InInclinations to pollute themfelves flir) what woful Miferies and Calamities, both to Soul and Body, others have drawn upon themfelves thereby, and they, by the like Practice, will, in all Likelihood, upon themfelves; and ferioufly confider, that whilft they vainly flrive to pleafe themfelves, they difpleafeGod, exhauft their own Strength, and are haftening themfelves to the Grave, it muft furely, one would think, deter them from the Evil; more efpecially if they further confider, how that being thereby enervated, fhould they, in that State, marry, they would, inftead of that Love and Delight expected between Man and Wife, find nothing but Quarrels, Jealoufies, bitter Hatred and Difcontents.

"SECONDLY, You must use a spare Diet, but not totally abstain. Fasting, I believe, some use as a Remedy against the Provocations of Uncleanness; but I think in some Tempers it rather sharpens the Humour, and makes it more itching, and apt to irritate.

" THIRDLY, Have a Care of the Kind and Quality of your Meat. As, first, Salt Meat you must forbear, which you may know, by the Nature of the Word, makes Men falacious. A learned Phyfician of our own observes, that in Ships which are laden with Salt from Rochelle, the Mice breed thrice as fast as in those Ships laden with other Merchandize. Pigeons, you know, have Salt laid for them to pick upon; and the Egyptian Priefts, being Votaries to a fingle Life, abstained from all Salt whatfoever; but that is an Error on the other hand, and may have dangerous Effects. Secondly, All windy Foods, for the Flatulency of them, do puff up the Humours, and make those Parts turgid; fuch as Beans and Peaces, Artichoaks, &c. You know Pythogoras forbid his Sholars to eat a Bean; and this was one Reafon, I do not queftion, of his Prohibition. Thirdly, According to the Defeription you make of yourfelf, I must add, that Butter is naught for you, all Phyficians agreeing that it is to be avoided by those who labour under a Flux of any Humour whatfoever. There is too great an Unchuousness in it; and in fome Bodies, by the Refolution of those oily Parts, it creates Fumes alfo, which hinder the Command of the Mind over those lower Parts.

" FOURTHLY,

FOURTHLY, I would advife you to live moft abflemious about the Full and Change of the Moon, for then the whole Body is fuller of Moisture than at other Seafons.

" FIFTHLY, It will be good only to eat dry Suppers, unlefs it be Water-gruel, and fuch-like cooling Diet.

" SIXTHLY, Take proper Medicines as well as Food, and use pretty much Exercise, though not too violent, for that fpends much of the fuperfluous Moifture in the Body; and likewife if it be to a fmall Wearinefs (which is neceffary) fpends fome of those Spirits that will elfe evacuate themfelves at other Places. The Bed is too great a Friend to this Sin, therefore let me advife you to make no further Use of it than for fleeping; for whilst you lie awake, at your Eafe, your Flesh will be egging you on to this finful Pleafure, therefore employ yourfelf with fome good Book, till you find Sleep a coming, and in the Morning quit your Bed as foon as you awake. I know it is more healthful to the Body to continue in Bed fome Time after Sleep, that the Vapours may have Time to fcatter, and the natural Spirits recover their Strength and Activity; but for you, who are prone to this Luft, it is better to deny your Body that Conveniency, than fuffer your Soul to be punished through Senfuality. Sleep alfo upon one Side, and not on your Back, for that heats the Reins, and caufes Irritations to Luft. 1 know it will coft fome Violence at first to Nature to be flung fuddenly out of a warm Bed upon a cold Floor; but the Difficulty will foon vanish after five or fix Times Practice of it, and the Comfort you will have in your own Breaft by it will much more than make Amends. The Church Hiftory tells us of a young Man in Danger of being overcome by a beautiful Harlot that was with him, to betray him into her Embraces, who bit off a Piece of his Tongue, that fo the Anguish and Pain possessing his Thoughts, Luft might have no Room there. Do not handle those Parts at any Time, but when Necessity of Nature requires, for handling them puffs up, irritates and raifes fleihly Inclinations; and I should think likewise that it will be good for you, after you have humbled yourfelf fo far for this Sin as to forfake it, not to think of it any more, or as little as ever you can; for even the thinking upon that Sin doth but renew the Defire of it. Any Thoughts Thoughts concerning Things belonging to those Parts do both excite and provoke Lust; for then the Thoughts fend the Spirit to those Parts, and make them swell, even as upon other Occasions they fend them to the Muscles in the Legs or Arms when we would use them. Forget, therefore, as much as you can, that there has been any such Thing done by you, and employ your Thoughts otherwise, till you may think of it with more Safety, that is, when you are married.

"BUT if, after all your moft exact Compliance with the Injunctions here enforced, INVOLUNTARY POLLU-TIONS, in your Sleep, fhould ftill infeft you, I would advife you, whenever you are apprehensive, or in fear of them, to do what Foreftus, a noted Physician in his Time, laysdown as certain when every Thingelse has failed, which is, to tie a String about your Neck when you go to Bed, and the other End of it about the Neck of your Penis, which, when an Erection happens, will timely awake you, and put an effectual Stop to the Seminal Emisfion."

THESE are excellent Advices, and Marriage the chief Preventative, it being an Inftitution appointed by the Almighty as a Remedy against Incontinence, and to preferve us from the Guilt of Impurity, as well as for the Propagation of our Species, whereby the united Pair may with Honour use that Freedom one with another, as was by no Means lawful for them to do while they were fingle; yet there are Reftrants in that State alfo; Bounds fet that they are not to exceed: And though the married State is the most happy and comfortable State in the World, where there is (as there ought to be) an Union of Souls as well as Bodies, and notwithftanding Holy Writ advises it to those who have not the Gift of Continence, yet we too often find them rather inclined to purfue their Lufts than enter into it; fome by vowing Celibacy think themfelves excufed; others through Libertinism, and to be less confined in their Paffions; others to avoid fome Inconveniencies or Restraints they apprehend to accompany the Marriage State; and others again, because they cannot meet with Fortunes to their Minds, their Circumstances in the World, as they plead, not allowing them otherwife to alter their Conditions; and, in the mean Time, all of them (not being chafte) chafte) do expose themselves to the continual Danger of Temptations that Way, and cannot avoid being overcome by them, and more efpecially if they indulge Idlenefs and high Living, which more immediately exposes them to luftful Thoughts, when Bufinefs chafes them away, by employing the Mind to better Purpofes. It was an idle and luxurious Life that gave Occasion to a certain young Gentleman, of Birth and Fortune as well as Parts, to lament himfelf upon an advantageous Offer of Marriage made him by his Friend, That he was now, through his Follies, altogether uncapable of the married State, having been, from his Youth up, most inordinately addicted to the Shameful Practice of SELF-POLLUTION, So hateful to God, and injurious to himfelf, and which neither his Rea-Son, Conscience, Education, or Prayers, were of Force enough to master that unruly Passion, which had plunged him not only into the reproachful Infirmity of an irreparable Weekness of the Genitals, so ridiculed by Men, and so detestable to Womankind, but allo into most dreadful Horrors of Conscience, and well nigh Despair. And no doubt but from the fame Caufe it is that fo many very likely Gentlemen of Fortune, that we fee or hear of Abroad, do refuse the Offer of advantageous Matches, being confcious to themfelves of their Infirmities, which, as they are afhamed to own, they as industriously take Care to conceal, excufing themselves with the Answer, of being too young, or not yet disposed to marry; and as they have a little advanced in Years, that they are then too old. I must con fels, whenever I hear or know of fuch refufing to enter into that State, whom nothing, to human Appearance, can hinder, they having Penty of all Things this World canafford them, I cannot help thinking, that either Incapacity as to Manhood, or the Charge of Children, or Fear of communicating fome ill Difease which they are apprehenfive of in themfelves, by their former Follies, or a Mistres, must be the Cause; and I may dare venture to fay, without being thought cenforious, that where it is otherwife than fo in one, ten (if they dared) could fubscribe to my Belief; and this may ceafe the Wonder of the Relations and Friends of fuch Gentlemen, Why they do not marry? Several within the Verge of my own Knowlege having declined it, and but juffly, for the two first Reafons I have named, and many, many more (to their Shame be it fpoken) by Reafon of the laft.

EARLY Marriages would be a Means of preventing many of those Mischiefs, and the Disgrace which oftentimes the Guilty this Way bring upon themfelves and Families. A noted Phyfician of our own, in his Book of the Parts of Generation, advifes to it; and fays, That for Want of it, as the Stream is dammed up with untempered Mortar, it doth and will rage the more, and a vent, one Way or other, it will and must have; for that all of both Sexes, from a natural Instinct, when arrived to the Years of Puberty, and enjoy their full Health and Strength, have amorous Motions, especially those of sanguine Complections, and hot Temperament, who, for Want of Marriage, or a due Awe upon themselves, are prompted to commit unlawful Actions, or elfe are subject to INVOLUNTARY POLLU-TIONS, which, if frequent and profuse, do as certainly breed diseases in Men, as those that are done with the con-Sent; and if they are kept from Marriage by a Kind of Force, as many are, when their Inclinations are frong towards it, they are the more eager for it (it being our corrupt Humour to be Aronger in our Passions when we are denied) and so oftentimes for Want of a natural Stream, are over-run into unnatural Practices : And not only the Male Youth in particular, but the Female, when arrived to the Years of Puberty, and give them felves up to Plays, Balls, Mens Company, wanton Discourse, Dalliance, high Living, and the like, whereby the Humours are heated, and the Defire augmented, have Inclinations to Venery, and sometimes so insuperable, that if Marriage be denied them, it puts them upon easing themselves Propria Pollutione, or brings them into Cachexies, Hysteric Fits, the Green Sickness, or other Maladies not presently to be remedied; and this great Inconvenience, fays he, would be more frequent than it is, did not pious Education, regard to Reputation and Health, and inbred Modefly, temper and affuage those inordinate Commotions of the Mind: Wherefore he advises Parents to instil wholesome Principles in their Children, and not to neglect marrying them in Time, as the best Way to fecure to them a good Con-Science, perfect Health and Strength, and the Honour of their Families.

St.

St. PAUL counfels Parents not to fuffer their Virgins [both Sexes] to pass the Flower of their Youth; but not meaning, as I suppose, to encourage too early or unfeafonable Marriages; for when fo young, that either of them have neither Mine nor Need, it exhaufts their vital Moifture, nips them in the Bud, ftunts their Growth, and renders them for ever after weak and enfeebled, and the Children they get (if they get any) to be puny and ailing; but when a Man is in the twenty-fifth, and a Woman in her twentieth Year, and both have retained their Virginity till then, and were born of healthy, found Parents, not tainted with any ill Stamen, and each in perfect Sanity, of good Conftitutions, full of ardent Love and Vigour, those I would advise to marry, and from their Loins there will refult the beft, most vegete, lovely, ftrong, and healthy Pofterity.

TO fecure Youth from wafting their Strength by SELF-POLLUTION, or Venery, till that Age, they are fo careful in fome Countries, that they ring the Males when they are young; and for the Female Sex, Paracelfus advifes to a famous emplastic Liniment; both of which being ufed as I have feen deferibed, the Health, Strength, Beauty, and Credit, to fay no more, of Hundreds, I may fay Thoufands, of young People, of both Sexes, in this Kingdom, would be preferved, and, confequently, our puny half-gotten Breed, in a great Meafure, amended.

MARRIAGE, as it is honourable in all Countries, fo it has been held in great Efteem, from the Beginning of the World, among all Sorts and Sects of People : The Romans, and efpecially the wife Emperor Augustus, did what they could to encourage it; the fame did the Jews : The Lacedemonians, at their Festivals, would not admit of any fingle Men; and if those that were unmarried ventured to come amongst them, they were, as foon as discovered, ordered to be whipped by the Women as unprofitable Members of the Republic; nor were any but married Men san Encouragement to Matrimony, the married Men were highly preferred, excused from going to the W ars for for the first Year after Marriage, and in every Thing had the Advantage of those that lived fingle.

THE Church of Rome, indeed, injoins Celebacy, and will much rather wink at any Uncleanne's of the Flefh than preach up Marriage, nay fo far from it, that it defendeth even Fornication, and will not allow it to be a Sin; nay, they fay it is better than Marriage, and do confequently allow of public Stews. But fad is fuch a Doctrine, and vile fuch Practices; they are both devilifh and damnable; wherefore, the more to enforce Marriage, and fhew the Evil of Celibacy, I fhall, for the better Inftruction of my Readers, transcribe what has been, not long fince, handed out to us upon this Head in a certain public News-Paper, after which I fhall speak a little more of the evil Effects of Uncleanne's, both before Marriage and in Marriage, the better to imprint wholfome Notions in their Minds.

THE Virtues of Celibacy, fays that Paper, have been frequently cried up, as if there were fomething very extraordinary contained therein; and many Perfons have doubtless believed they have acted purfuant to the Principles of Religion, and the Dictates of Confcience (though it will be found to be a very erroneous one) when they have anywife promoted or injoined the fame : But if we proceed to examine their Reasons and Arguments, we shall find them to be altogether fallacious, and contrary to Nature, Reason, Law, and Religion; and I venture to lay it down as an infallible Polition, that whoever compels or injoins the fame in others is not only guilty of a Breach of the Sixth Commandment, which fays, Thou shalt do no Murder, but is likewife guilty, as an Acceffory, to the Breach of divers other Commandments, and a Promoter of innumerable Sins befides.

THIS Position may, doubtless, ftartle many Perfons, who, probably, have been long mistaken, and fancied much greater Virtue, in Celibacy, or a fingle Life, than there really are, and I doubt not but to prove the same (at least every Enjoyment thereof) finful in a notorious Degree, a manifest Violation of the express Law of God, and contrary to the Dictates of Nature and sound Reason. TO
TO give this Argument its full Scope, it is neceffary we thould begin our Observations from the first Period of Time, and therefore to observe, that when the Almighty had first created Adam, he overthrew the Position of Celibacy's being a Virtue by his express Word as well as Actions; and if the infinite and all-wife Creator of the Universe, having first formed Man in an indisputable State of Celibacy, in which the fame Almighty Power could have fupported him to this Moment, if he had thought proper, faw the fame to be contrary to those wife Ends he intended, and publickly declared, It was not Good that Man should be alone, but that he would make a Help-meet for him; and accordingly did fo: This fufficiently flews the imperfect Enjoyment that is to be found in that State; and this one Argument being of divine Authority, is a greater Condemnation of this pretended Virtue, than Ten thousand others which the Sophiftry of Man can invent to the contrary.

THE express Declaration of Adam upon the Almighty's presenting Eve to him, viz. That Manshould for fake Father and Mother, and cleave unto his Wife, &c. in purfuance of that Command, To increase and multiply, and replenish the Earth, expressly condemns Celibacy, and overthrows all Arguments in its Favour; whereby the nuptial State appears not to be an indifferent Permission of eternal Wisdom only, but an actual and express Command, and a Duty incumbent upon ever Person to comply with, as far as their Circumstances will permit.

WHOEVER therefore, by any fhallow or fallacious Reafons obstructs, or by finister and indirect Practices or Methods hinders, this Union in others, or lays them under any Restraint to avoid the same, is guilty of an actual disobeying the Law of God, and sets up their own erroneous Tenets, in direct Contradiction and Opposition to his declared Will.

AND that the nuptial State was a neceffary Method for Man's Propagation of his Specie is undeniable, fince it is obvious there was no other Means for attaining that End, and without which the human Race muft long fince have funk funk into its primitive Nothing, been annihilated, and the Memory of Mankind buried in Oblivion: This Argument is of itfelf fufficient to fhew that Celibacy is inconfiftent with Reafon, and contrary to the ftated Laws of Nature, which renders Procreation neceffary for the Support of our own Species, and implants in us a Defire to preferve the fame at all Times.

THE Sacred Writ pronounces Barrennels as a Curle to be entailed on feveral of the offending I/raelites upon divers Occafions, by Reafon of their manifold Offences; but we do not find that Heaven ever approved or injoined Celibacy to any of its Votaries, as a Happinels, but, on the contrary, promifes, as a Bleffing to the Righteous, that their Women should prove like the fruitful Olive-branches, and their Children should multiply like the Sand upon the Sea-shore; yea, faith the Pfalmist (whom we are taught to believe was a Man after God's own Heart) happy is the Man that hath bis Quiver full of them.

IF then the Increase of our Species in the nuptial State, conform to the Will of Heaven, was the express Command of God himself; if, as the Scripture evinces, the contrary was inflicted as a Punishment, in what Light should we look upon every Attempt to defeat the primary Law of the Almighty? And how can we believe we act pursuant to the Dictates of Reason, Religion, or Nature, when we see ourselves wilfully to oppose the first and express Principles and Commands thereof, either by acting ourselves contrary thereunto, or leading others into the Paths of Error and Confusion, and laying them under some Restraint or Injunction to forsake the Law of Heaven, and comply with our erroneous and mistaken Notion? to call them no worfe.

SCHOOLMEN have made it a Queffion, whether Cain, when he flew his Brother Abel, did not, in that one Action, deftroy one (and it may be the better) half of the World, becaufe they who might have been the Pofferity of Abel were cut off in him; but if that will bear arguing, as probably it may, the Objection will be much the ftronger if we turn it to the other Sex, becaufe in the Infancy of the World, when Providence permitted Polygamy, and feveral feveral Women were allowed to each Man, the Lofs of one of the Women must have more affected the Number of Mankind in Procreation, than that of a Man could do; and, confequently, the Destruction of Posterity must be much greater in Proportion. The Murder of Abel, no doubt, was a notorious Sin, and the Punishment inflicted on Cain for his Fratricide was visibly shewn in the Wrath the Almighty expressed against him for it, and the Mark he fet upon him (not for his Protection only, but) to stigmatize him for the Murder, sufficiently denoted his Anger and Abhorrence of the Fact.

AND as it is beyond Difpute, that the Increase of Poflerity was, in some Measure, destroyed by the Death of Abel, and so the Fact something more than the bare Murder of one identical Person only, because in him one whole Branch of the human Species was absolutely destroyed, and the Increase of Millions of Souls intirely loss thereby, whoever therefore shall endeavour to prevent that natural Increase of Posterity, according to the Means injoined by the express Command of Heaven, by hindering or obstructing Mankind from entering into the nuptial State, does, as far as in him lies, endeavour to destroy his own Species, in Contradiction and Destance to the absolute Command of the Almighty; and either believes himself wifer, or more worthy to be obeyed, than that omnipotent Power who gave him his Being.

THE Cafuifts tell us, that Sin confifts not only in a direct Transgreffion of the literal Command of God, but in the Intentions of him who commits the fame; and that he who defigns an evil Action (though it may in the Effect prove contrary to his Inclinations) is yet guilty, and worthy of Punishment, and must answer for the same, and all its Confequences, as if he had actually executed his wicked Intentions, becaufe Sin confifts chiefly in the Will and Imagination, and not in the bare Action only; as is evident from the Mofaical Institution, whereby the Almighty himfelf diftinguishes betwixt the Homicide or Manslayer, who inadvertently caufes the Death of any Perfon, and him who wilfully murders another; by appointing the first, fince the Consequence of Murder attended his ungarded or careless Actions, to fly to the City of Refuge, thereby thereby fhewing, that even Inadvertency or Negligence is no fufficient Plea to excuse the Perpetrators of any Offence, although ever fo unwittingly committed, but appoints the other, who acts in pursuance of his evil Inclinations to certain Deftruction.

THE frequent, repeated, and express Commands of the Almighty, of going in to, or accepting, the Widow of a deceased Brother, absolutely, directed and injoined for the raifing up of Posterity, shews that Celibacy was repugnant to the Laws of Nature, Reafon, and Religion; and the contrary directed and injoined by God himfelf, who (if we may judge of his Intentions by his Commands) has not given us one Instance of his Approbation of a fingle Life, neither in a perfect State of Celibacy, or in that of Widowhood, he having as expressly commanded the Re-marriages of the latter, during a Poffibility of Procreation, as he injoined the nuptial State for the Support of Mankind.

SOME of our Commentators have doubted wherein the Sins of Er and Onan chiefly confifted; but if we look back to the aforegoing Command, we may readily account for the fame, and find their Endeavours or Defigns of preventing Procreation were the Crimes for which they were fo feverely punished, and that they loft their Lives for their Prefumption in not complying with the Command of God, their Offences being, in Effect Murder, by preventing that Increase, which was an absolute Command given in Adam to all his Posterity; and when Tamar complained to Judah of the Transgreffion of his Children, his Negligence to remedy the fame produced a Refolution in her, which, though Judah rashly condemned the Action, yet upon a due Confideration of the Caufe, and his own Neglect of enforcing the facred Laws of God, he could not but acknowlege that her Offence was much lefs than his, and that she had done more righteously than himself.

IF then Judah, instead of giving his Daughter-in-law Tamar in Marriage again after the Decease of his other Sons, had injoined her to a fingle Life in that of a perpetual Widowhood, could he have been juftified? Could he have been excused ? Could he have been free from Sin ? No.

No, furely; his Offence had not only been equal, but even greater, than that of Er and Onan; he had been guilty of a direct and wilful Opposition to the Law of God, of bidding Defiance to his express Commands, and, in effect, of a Complication of the greateft Crimes, and the most notorious Murders; as is evident from the Offspring of Tamar, from whence descended not only the regal Posterity of Judab and Ifrael, but also the holy Line of Salvation; and in his Refusal he had cut off the Meffiah, or Holy One of Israel, from whence the Salvation of the World was to proceed, as descending from her.

THE like had happened in the Cafe of Ruth the Moabitish; and God, by fuffering the Holy Line of Israel to proceed in such Channels, sufficiently shewed his Approbation of the nuptial State, preferable to those of Virginity or Widowhood: Again, in Bathsheba, the Widow of Uriah, is the like Instance confirmed; and in divers other Branches of the Holy Line.

WE find Jephtha condemned for the Rashness of his Vow, and the Offering up his Daughter, or dooming her to a State of Virginity, is no-ways justified in Scripture; that Action is not imputed to him for Righteoufrefs, but, like Saul's Vow, To facrifice to the Lord him that Jhould taste of Meet until the Evening (whereby Jonathan, who had been the chief Inftrument in obtaining the Victory, was fubjected to Death, had not the whole Army interpofed) was the Refult of a rafh and miftaken Zeal. But as we do not find Saul condemned for the Breach of that Vow, fo neither do we find Jephtha commended for the Rashnels of his, and the Execution of his Folly, nor any Bleffings promifed to him upon the Performance thereof, we have little Reafon therefore to believe the fame was acceptable to his Creator, but, on the contrary, a Violation of the facred and neceffary Institution for the Propagation of our Species, and the Support of Mankind; otherwife God, who is infinitely just, would have shewn his Approbation of that Action by fome fignal Bleffing and Declaration in his Favour, as he did in the Cafe of Abraham, on his Readiness to offer up his Son Ifaac by his divine Appointment.

IF we believe that Providence has endowed us with Free-will, and a Liberty of acting as Free Agents, we are yet to remember, that we are to account for every Action and Word, how indifferent foever the fame may appear to us; and if it be neceffary that Offences shall come, there is yet a Woe pronounced against those they come by; which fhould make us the more cautious in all our Actions, either how we offend ourfelves, or how we lay Snares to draw others into the Commission of Offences: If the fetting an ill Example he pernicious, and what we must one Day account for, how much more is it fo to injoin or oblige others to follow us therein, or to perpetrate the fame; every Injunction of that Kind is finful in the highest Degree, and whoever compels the fame, must expect to account for all the evil Confequences attending it, and cannot excuse himself upon the Pretence of a mistaken Zeal, we being expressly commanded not to do Evil that Good may come of it.

I SHALL, therefore, according to my Proposition first advanced, infift upon it, that neither Celibacy, nor a fingle Life in any State, is commanded, or even approved of by the omnipotent Creator of the Universe, but that the contrary is absolutely injoined by the most facred Institutions of the Almighty; and every Attempt to reftrain or oblige Mankind from entering into the nuptial Society is finful (let the Romanist's value themfelves as much as they pleafe upon their contrary Practice) and that whoever shall hinder or prevent their Posterity from entering into that Condition which the Apostle calls honourable, either by cloiftering up their Pupils, or by Injunctions reftraining them from Marriage, are, in effect, not only guilty of Murder, by preventing the natural Increase of Posterity which would otherwife be, but likewife are answerable for all other Sins and Offences which may happen thereby; every unchaste Desire, every irregular Action, and every Abuse of Nature, which may thereby be committed, shall be laid to their Charge, and for which they shall be accountable at the last Day.

THERE are innumerable other Arguments I could yet bring to enforce my Proposition, both from the Mofaical K 2 and and Evangelical Defpenfation, from the express Command of God himself, and the Instructions of our Saviour, as likewise from Reason, Law, and Nature: But what has been already faid, I hope, will prove sufficient to convince Christians, who are in a single State, that it is their Duty, if in a Condition, and may marry, neither to flight nor refuse that holy Ordinance upon any Pretence whatsoever.

UNCLEANNESS comprehendeth under it Adultery, Inceft, Buggery, Bestiality, and all Provocations that Way. To speak of all would be over tedious, therefore I shall only mention a few. Uncleanness then, as meant by the Apostle in Ephess. v. ver. 3. is of two Sorts: First, That which is against Nature: Secondly, That which is agreeable unto Nature. That which is against Nature appertains to those of a reprobate Mind, and is of two Sorts: I. Bestiality; 2. Sodomy or Buggery.

UNCLEANNESS, agreeable to corrupt Nature, is of two Sorts: First, That which is before Marriage; Secondly, That which is in Marraige. Before Marriage, First, When Marriage is fought for, and undertaken for wrong Ends. The right Ends are three: I. A godly Seed: 2. Preventing of Fornication: 3. Mutual Comfort; and therefore when Parties marry, either to fatisfy their own carnal Luft, or to advance their Eftate, or to enrich themfelves, Uncleannefs is committed. Secondly, When there is Inequality of Years, as an old Man and a young Woman, or a young Man and an old Woman; there Matrimony is unclean, becaufe they cannot give due, that is, reciprocal Benevolence the one to the other. Thirdly, If there be a Difparity of Religion, that Matching is unclean; for it oftentimes caufes Difputes, those Difputes Anger, and Anger is finful.

LASCIVIOUS Perfons take great Pains to commit Uncleannefs; as they are cunning to do evil, fo are they painful; the Adulterer waiteth for the Twilight. They, and all that do fo, is unclean, and all their Endeavour is to infect others. UNCLEANNESS is faid to be committed, if there be Inequality of Degree in the two Parties, as ignoble with noble, vel e contra, a mean Man with an honourable Woman; becaufe if a Husband fhall offer to do the Office of a Head, then may fhe ftand upon her Defcent, and by fetting light by him whom unadvifedly fhe hath made her Husband, there may arife an Alienation of Affection, and then the Devil, watching his Opportunity, will perfuade with either Party to follow ftrange Flefh. That Marriage is alfo unclean that is made without Confent of Parents, becaufe a Man's Child is a Part of his Goods, and not to be alienated without his Confent, and is one of the worft Sort of Robberies, as it is by no Means to be compenfated.

PARENTS themfelves, as hath been faid, may be the Caufe of the Uncleanness of their Children, if they let them pass the Flower of their Age, and Need so requireth, and yet they provide not fit Matches for them.

IT is Uncleannels allo, when those Parties marry that are inept for Marriage, as Eunuchs and unapt, as leprous Perfons: Thus much for Uncleannels before or out of Marriage. Now a little of Uncleannels in Marriage, and this, Firft, By coming together at fuch Times as God and Nature abhorreth. Secondly, By Excels in the Use of the Marriage-bed; for, as a Man may be drunk with his own Wine, and grow a Glutton with his own Meat, fo may he commit Uncleannels with his own Meat, fo may he commit Uncleannels with his own Wife, which God fometimes punisheth by Shortnels of Days in those that use it. Thirdly, Also when one Party doth deny unto the other due Benevolence, there is Uncleannels committed, and perhaps too the Sin of Adultery, if the Denial of either proceeds from Diflike to the other.

THOSE that are ignorant of God and his Will care not what they commit against his Will; there is no Sin they dare not, nay, that they will not, do. Quod libet licet, quod licet audent, quod audent possint, quod possint faciunt, quod faciunt fibi molestum non est. See a Tatte of this in Job. xxiv. 2, 3, 4, 7, 9. Pfalm lxxiii. 18. God giveth them up to vile Affections to do Things not comely.

THOSE

THOSE who have not only injured their Souls, but likewife their Bodies, vifibly by this Practice of SELF-POLLUTION, if the Cafe be chirurgical, of which I have given you one or two Inftances, ought immediately to repair to a skilful Surgeon, shunning what I faid, in Pages 15 and 16, was often the Fate of young people. Of Impotency, Infertility, and other Infirmities of this Kind, as there are feveral Degrees, fo fome are lefs difficult to be cured than others. Where the Strength is but in Part decayed, the Blood not altogether dispirited, and the Tone of the Parts but lately relaxed, Cold Bathing has been beneficial to many; in fome only accompanied with a Milk Diet, in others with a more nutritious Manner of Living, gentle Exercife, and a few reftorative Medicines. But as Every body cannot bear the Cold Bath, and Milk does not agree with all Conflictutions, in fuch Cafes, as well as others more stubborn and deplorable, as it is impossible to give general Rules for fo many Particulars, I would advife Every-body to apply themfelves to a learned and experienced Phyfician, and, without Hesitation, open their Case, which, if he be a sagacious Man, may be done with a very few Hints, and fo contrived, that the Phyfician shall not know the Patient.

THUS far (excepting the greateft Part of the Letters in the Second Chapter) I had finished this little Treatife more than Twelve Years ago; when reflecting on what I have faid in Page 8, of Secrefy's being one great Caufe of this Sin, I could not help thinking, that the greateft Part of People labouring under any Affliction of this Kind, would be very unwilling, and many of them rather perifh than to difcover the Caufe of them to any one living; witnefs the Letters in Pages 36, 37, 48, and 49, aforegoing. This made me communicate what I was about, and the Scruple which gravelled me, to a pious, as well as eminent Phyfician, who, having fhewed his Approbation of my Defign to render it more effectual, imparted Two Medicines of great Efficacy, the one in that Kind of Gonorrbæas spoke of in the preceding Chapter, Nocturnal Effusions, Seminal Emissions upon Stool, or with the Urine, the Fluor Albus in Women, and all Manner of Gleets and Ouzings, not occasioned by any Venereal Difease: The other other in most Cafes of Infertility and Impotency in either Sex, where either no Venereal Disease has ever been, or else the Distemper is wholly eradicated.

I HAD no other Thoughts at first of all, than to infert these Prescriptions as I had received them, only translated into English; but feeing the Preparations (especially the one) of them, to be fomewhat operofe, and feveral of the Ingredients very coftly, I found, upon fecond Confideration, that they could be of no Ufe to the Patient without employing others; and that to be made up for every Patient on Purpofe, they would either be exceffive dear, or elfe, for Lucre's Sake, by many imperfectly prepared. These Reflections induced me to have both Medicines made up by a Man of Skill and Probity, for my own Account, with a Defire that he would make Trial of them gratis, or otherwife, as often as he fhould have an Opportunity. This has been done for above two Years, before the first Edition, with Success, in many of the above-mentioned Afflictions, not occasioned from any foul Contagion, of which feveral have confeffed to have proceeded from SELF POLLUTION.

THE Perfon therein employed has, fome Time fince, begged of me, in Confideration of his Trouble and Charge, (which he fays is, and I partly know to have been, confiderable) the Property of these Medicines, and that I would lodge in him the fole Power to dispose of them as he should think fit; which I have complied with, obliging him to print Two Thousand of every Edition of these Books at his own Expence : And he has lately affured me, that, for more than Twelve Years, he has administered the Medicines with the greatest Benefit and Success in the World.

WHATEVER Reflections may be made, by the Cenforious, on the Defire with which I recommend these Medicines, I can affure the Reader, in the first Place, that the Perfon to whom (with the Coastent of the Physician abovementioned) I have granted the Disposal of them, is no-ways related to me, and that I am no otherwise obliged to him, than on the Confideration I have already named; fecondly, I folemnly declare, that I neither have the least Interest or Share in the Profits that now, or hereafter may, accrue to him from the Sale of them. Befides, that these Medicines are only hinted at for fuch as through Bashfulness, or other unreasonable Scruples, are never to be perfuaded to acquaint others with their Condition : Those who are less scrupulous I refer, as I have done before, to some learned and experienced Physician to confult with.

SOME People are of Opinion, that in Difeafes proceeding from Uncleannefs, whoever points at a Remedy encourages the Sin : But I leave every impartial Reader, after he shall have perused this little Treatife, to judge whether it be reafonable to think, that any Mortal fhould be induced to run the Hazard of drawing upon themfelves the frightful Confequences of SELF-POLLUTION, as here related, by what has been faid of the Poffibility of being cured when labouring under them; more especially when I shall have added the Caution I intend to conclude with, and which is, That whatever Remedies may be applied, or Physicians make Use of, no Rule or Prescription can ever be effectual, in removing the bodily Infirmities occasioned by SELF-POLLUTION, without they are likewife accompanied with an intire Ceffation of this Practice, a total Abstinence from the Sin itself, and an unalterable Refolution of never falling into it again, and that all Relapses are ever fatal in these Cases.

WITH this Caution I clofed the Three first Editions, and had the fourth, but that the following Letter came to my Hands from a Lady unknown, concerning the Use and Abuse of the Marriage-Bed; which, as it is very curious, and may, with my Answer to it, be of Service to many in the married State, I thought it proper to give the Reader both one and the other before I dismissed him.

To

To the Author of ONANIA.

SIR,

June 5, 1727.

THOUGH I am altogether a Stranger to your Person, yet, having read a little Book of yours, I am become acquainted with your refined Notions, and do like what you have faid against one particular Species of Uncleannes. bought your Book, in hopes you had faid fomething concerning the married State; what Decorum there must be observed not to defile the Marriage Bed : I wish you had faid something more on that Point, for the Sake of Some of my own Sex I have difputed with; they have fuch grofs Notions, they imagine the Marriage Bed cannot be defiled unless they commit Adultery. I fancy, Sir, you have finer Thoughts than to think Marriage a Provision for the Man's Brutality; therefore I have used the Freedom to address myself to you, hoping you will vouchsafe to tell me whether I am not right in this Particular. First then, I consider those Inclinations were given for the Continuance of our Species, and no other End, and Marriage instituted that it might be in a decent, regular Manner; therefore Fornication was forbid, not as in itself evil, but it not making for the Good of Society; it is fitter one Man abide by one Woman, that there may be a due Care of the Offspring's Education. To be in-Arumental to introduce poor Greatures into the World, and not take Care of them, is worfe than the Brutes. SELF-POLLUTION you have proved a Sin, because it is deordinate from the End; it is an Abuse of the creative Power, and very properly, I think, you term it Murder: Now what is in itself evil, Marriage cannot make good, therefore I conclude the Marriage Bed defiled, the Man and Wife committing Sin, when the End cannot be had for which that Sensation was given; for though the Man be at all Times capable of Generation, the Woman is not; as when she, according to the Course of Nature, is past it, it then centers 1 272 in the Pleasure of Sense, and is a frustraneous Abuse of their Bodies, the same, in my Opinion, with SELF-POL-LUTION and SODOMY. The Men being at all Times capable of Generation, has made me sometimes think the Men might have Plurality of Wives; but then I consider, God made but one Woman for the Man. Sir, I will tire you no longer with my Impertinency, only to beg Pardon for this Freedom, and to crave the Favour of a Line or two, which, I assure you, Sir, will infinitely oblige her that is

and Servant.

MADAM,

T HE Reafon why, in the ONANIA, I did not meddle with any Part of Uncleannefs relating to the married State is, becaufe I always did, as I ftill do, conceive, that no Branch of it could have any Affinity with the Sin of ONAN, and confequently was foreign to my Purpofe. But as your ingenious Letter, and the Scruple you feem to labour under, are well worthy the most ferious Reflections, I fhall endeavour, as far as I am able, to fatisfy you in the Particular on which you require my Opinion; and in order to it, defire you to be referred to the following Anfwer, which, becaufe I know not where to direct it, you could not reafonably expect before another Edition of the Book fhould be wanting.

IN the first Place, I was altogether of your Opinion, and think it undeniable, that the Inclinations you hint at were given us for the Continuance of our Species, and no other End. Secondly, I am forced to allow, that where that End cannot be had, as when the Woman has conceived, or by the Course of Nature is past it, all Embraces are fruftraneous, and can center in nothing but the Pleafure of Senfe; and I fhould think myfelf obliged to fubfcribe to all the Confequences you can infer from it, if I was not affured that you are miftaken as to the End of Marriage, and the Sinfulness of Fornication. In Relation to the latter, you imagine that it is forbid, not becaufe it is in itself evil, but as it is destructive to the Good of Society: This is a dangerous Affertion, and gives too great a Handle for Deifts and other Libertines, who would perfuade the World, that Religion is only a political Invention, and no farther to be minded, than as it is beneficial to the Order and Government of Society.

THE only Rule a Chriftian is to walk by is the Word of God; where his Precept is plain, we are reftrained from any other Standard of the Lawfulness or Unlawfulness of. an Action, whether it brings a visible Good, or visible Evil, either to ourselves, or the Public. The Justice of God is as incomprehensible as his Mercy. What could, to human Understanding, be more innocent than the Eating of an Apple? And yet what Crime was ever more feverely punished? The Sin of Adam was not Luxury, nor Wantonnefs, but Disobedience, and confisted folely in the Tranfgreffion of a direct Command of his Creator; that Fornication is forbid, is plain in Holy Writ; but why it is forbid, is Arrogance in us to determine. When our Notions are too much refined, they are apt to lead us into an Error. You fay that Fornication not making for the Good of Society, it is better one Man to abide by one Woman, that there may be a due Care taken of the Offfpring's Education: This is as ftrong an Argument against Polygamy as it is against Fornication, and therefore is not calculated for the Good of all Societies in general; for among the Mahametans, and those Heathens whose Religion allows them a Plurality of Wives, there are Nations as flourishing and populous as there are among the Chriftians, and the Neglect of the Offspring is no greater Complaint among them than it is among us. What you add to strengthen your Argument, that to be instrumental to introduce poor Creatures into the World, and not to take Care of them, is to be worfe than the Brutes, I will eafily grant; but am apt to think, that in faying this you made not a due Reflection on the true Reafon why Fornication, L 2

among us, is fo often the Caufe of this Piece of Inhumanity which you juftly condemn.

MARRIAGE is honourable throughout Chriftendom, not fo much on a religious Account, and becaufe it is a State entered into by the Inftitution of God, but chiefly as it is a Fashion and Custom every Way countenanced and encouraged by the Laws of the Land; a Formality which we fee that even those of the highest Ranks, Kings and Emperors not excepted, are proud to submit to. Among all Ranks and Qualities of People, there are Women deeply involved in Sin, and wholly neglectful of almost every Chriftian Duty; yet those of them who are fashionable, and would be counted to understand themselves, will, out of Pride only, without any other Confideration, always refuse to converse with any of their Sex that are openly known to have forfeited their Honour. As by this Caution Strumpets are rendered despicable, fo becomes their Offspring, and all Baftards muft infallibly fuffer Shame and Ignominy, which prove to often fatal to the Lives as well as Fortunes of illegitimate Children. But notwithstanding all this, those who are spurious, and born out of Wedlock, are only infamous in Comparison to those who are born in Wedlock, from the fame Parents, or others of the fame Degree: The natural Son of a great Prince will always have the Precedency of the most legitimate Child of a Peafant; from whence it is plain, that in a Country where one Man was not to be confined to one Woman, and Nobody was to be married, the Iffue of one Woman would not be lefs honourable to the Father than the Iffue of another, and confequently no Man could be awed by that Ignominy and Reproach which with us are certainly the chief, if not the only, Caufes of the little Provision you complain is generally made for the Offspring of Fornication.

IT is not to be imagined, that Men or Women fhould take lefs Care of their Offspring than other Creatures, if they were not diverted from it by a more prefling Motive than Brutes are capable of acting from. Avarice is fometimes more powerful than the ftrongeft Ties of Nature; and the Fear of Death itfelf is overcome by the Fear of Shame only: However our Paffions may impose upon us, Men

Men generally love every Thimg for their own Sakes, and Self-love is confpicious even in Suicide. The Love of rational Creatures to their Children, arifes not fo much from a natural Inftinct, as is commonly imagined, and depends very much on the Delight they take in, and the various Comforts they receive from them: And if we would enter into the true Caufe, why illegitimate Children are generally more neglected than others, we must compare the Scandal of having half a dozen Baftards, to the Applaufe and Credit which People receive from the Education, and all the good Qualities, of fo many lawful Children, and we shall find that it is altogether owing to the Shame and Ignominy of it, occafioned by a Cuftom which never could be introduced into any Society before Marriage had been, Time out of Mind, in Fashion among them. I have urged this fo far, to make it evident that you are miftaken as to the End of Marriage; becaufe it would be abfurd to imagine that Marriage was inffituted to prevent a Mifchief which could have no Being, if People did not marry at all. Marriage then is of a more facred Original, and was inftituted for Reafons more worthy the Holinefs of God, than the procuring of temporal Felicity, the Good of Society, or any other political Confideration. Throughout the Scriptures it is manifest, that God has no greater Aversion to any Thing than Uncleannefs of all Sorts; it would be inconfistent with his Purity, that he should suffer rational Creatures, made after his own Image, promifcuoufly to mix themfelves with one another like Brute Beafts: For this Reafon he has willed, that one Man should abide with one Woman, and vice versa, till the Death of either; and, to render this Agreement for Life more folemn, he has honoured it with that Inftitution which we call Marriage; and the very first Miracle our Bleffed Saviour wrought, when he was upon the Earth, you well know, was at a Wedding.

FROM what has been faid it will eafily appear, that the most palpable End of Matrimony to be traced from Holy Writ, is to prevent the Sin of Uncleanness; that is, hinder all People, in whom carnal Defires are stirred up, from FORNICATION, SELF-POLLUTION, and other Sorts of Defilements. From this End of Matrimony I argue thus: Whatever, instead of promoting, is destructive tive to the facred End of Marriage, could never be required from us by God; but the Forbearance you plead for is fuch, ergo, it could never, &c. As for Instance : Could you imagine that a young luftful Man, full of Health, after having lain four or five Weeks with a Woman he likes, should now be more able to reftrain and curb his carnal Appetites, than he was before he had touched a Woman? Matrimony at this Rate, inftead of rendering People more chafte, should ferve rather to whet their Luft, and prompt them on to all Manner of Uncleannels. If it be objected, that a lafting Sicknefs of the Wife, or the long Absence of a Husband, to which most Military, and all Seafaring Men are fubject, may produce the fame Inconveniency, I anfwer, that there is a great Difference between Accidents and Misfortunes, that may put a Stop to the Commerce between a Man and his Wife, and a fettled Abstinence as it were entailed on the State of Matrimony, and which you imagine all married People ought to comply with. Befides, the Sicknefs of a Wife is a Calamity inflicted by the Hand of God on the Husband as well as herfelf, and may ferve to put both in Mind of their Duty: And those who are exposed to the Sea, or engaged in other perilous Enterprizes, may even from thence reap Materials to fubdue Luft, and other diforderly Paffions; and in these Cases, to overcome all Temptation, they shall have the express Word of God to affift them: The Hope of everlafting Glory may excite them to the Obedience of the Divine Commands, as the Fear of eternal Punishment may deter them from doing Evil; for whether the Man or his Wife be fick or well, prefent or far off, the nuptial Vow, till the Death of either feparates the Union, cannot be broke, and God's Command against Adultery is as plain as it is strict.

BUT what shall we fay to a young Couple, both in Health, that live in Peace and Harmony, and have been a confiderable Time striving to render themselves delightful and endearing to each other? How shall they practice this Forbearance, when every Night, naked, they lie in the fame Bed together, as most mean People can make no other Shift? This to fome would be an infupportable Temptation: But what Reasons, what Inducements, shall make them undergo this fevere Abstinence, or rather excruciate eruciate themfelves with this intolerable Penance? What Hope have they to excite them to this extraordinary Piece of Purity, or what can frighten them from an imaginary Sin, against which there is no express Command of God? Nay, which Way shall they imagine that to be a Tranfgreffion, concerning which the Scriptures are altogether filent, both Old and New Testament?

IT is inconfiftent with the Goodneis, nay, the Juffice of God, that any Action in his Eye fhould be fo heinous a Sin as Sodomy, and that he, either by his Precept, or the Example of Punishment in others, should not have warned us against it. There are many Duties incumbent on married People that are expressly commanded, and not fo eafily observed: The real Difficulties that may occur in that State are sufficient; we need not, by being over nice, invent any more.

I AM of your Opinion, that there is a Decorum to be obferved as to the Marriage-Bed; and therefore think that all Exceffes and Indecencies, that are deftructive either to Health or Chaftity, are finful, and for this I have my Warrant from Scripture; but I likewife think that it cannot be defiled without a third Perfon, and then my Sentiment is, that all fhameful Freedoms with others defile it almoft equally with Adultery itfelf. The Compliment you defign me, by fancying I have finer Thoughts than to think Marriage a Provision for the Man's Brutality, I cannot accept of; for I fincerely believe that State to be a lawful Refuge to all who, from a Fault either of their Conftitution, or Manner of Living, find themfelves incapable of remaining fingle without Sin; therefore I would not fcruple to call Marriage a Provision for Incontinence in either Sex.

BUT I am at a Lofs for the Meaning of the Word Brutality; for if you give this Name to all Embraces in general, you include the most lawful ones, even those tending only to Procreation, and then the Expression is very injurious; but if you call so all Commerce with Women after they have conceived, or are pass it, the Word is the most improper in the World; for how can that be Brutality, what Brutes are not wont to do?

I WOULD

I WOULD not have you tell me, that what I fay now shews the Practice to be against Nature; and that Men, always refining upon their Paffions, have, by their Luxury, warpt the very Bent of their natural Appetites, and fo accuftomed themfelves to Enormities, which Beafts themfelves are not guilty of. There is a vaft Difference betwixt irrational Creatures and our own Species; we may often observe the same Operations in both from very different Principles. It is true, that the Females of most Brutes never admit the Males all the Time of their Pregnancy: But at the Seafons when their procreative Appetite flimulates them to Coition, fuch a Ferment is ftirred up within them, as advertifes all Males round them, and fome at a great Distance, of their Salacity. The Females that are affected with this are always capable of being impregnated, and without it no Male follicits them. I need not tell you that our Species is deftitute of this Piece of Knowledge; but shall only observe, that the very Want of this Instinct in Men is another Argument against you : For is it to be imagined, that God fhould have denied us a Faculty granted to Brutes, if it was of fo great a Concern to our eternal Happinefs, as this would be, if what you argue was true? Would it not be clashing with the Divine Justice, to have made an Action heinoufly criminal, of which we are not fure whether we commit it or no?

THE Business of Conception is full of Uncertainty: Many Women, even fuch as had been Mothers before, have been imposed upon by Flatulencies, and other Ailments, and thought themfelves with Child, and to be delivered, when at last they have brought forth nothing but Wind; others again have attributed that to Difeafes, for Months together, which has been really owing to their being impregnated, and fallen in Labour before they fulpected themfelves to be with Child: And in fome the only Sign to be relied on that Women have not conceived, has continued to appear regularly all the Time of their Pregnancy. Multitudes of Women likewife have had Reafon to think themfelves paft Child-bearing, and after that brought fine Children into the World: From whence it is evident, that if what you condemn was fo heinous a Sin

Sin as Sodomy, and by Every-body believed to be fuch, Procreation would fuffer very much. The Danger of committing fo capital a Crime, would render good People cautious beyond Neceffity. The Uncertainty I have fpoke of would raife a thoufand Scruples to obftruct the nuptial Enjoyments, and the Fear of having conceived already would, in many Cafes, hinder them from conceiving at all.

THERE is, in the Hiftory of the Old Teftament, likewife a Circumstance that feems to make against you, and which I would ferioufly have you to confider. If God has willed, that Men fhould practife the Forbearance you urge, it is not to be thought the Partriarchs, to whom God has, from Time to Time, revealed himfelf in fo peculiar a Manner, could have been ignorant of it. Abraham then, we will fay, was well acquainted with God's Will as to this Particular; but how comes it that, in this Part of the facred Hiftory, there is not the leaft Shadow of Reafon to make us believe, that Abraham had left off all carnal Commerce with Sarab when it had ceafed with her to be after the Manner of Women, but rather on the contrary? For had Abraham difcontinued the nuptial Embraces, there is no doubt but he would have acquainted Sarah with the Reafon of it, which alone would have been fufficient Ground for her Disbelief, when the Angel foretold that the was to have a Son. She knew that when the was young, and her Husband likewife in the Prime of his Age, and there was no visible Impediment why she should have no Children, fhe had all along remained infertile, which made her wonder how fhe fhould now conceive, when fhe had fuch manifest Tokens of being past Child-bearing, and her Husband alfo of a declining Age, and his Vigour much diminished: It was this that provoked her Laughter; the was far from reflecting on the Forbearance of Abraham's Benevolence, and feemed rather, when the laughed, confcious of the many fruitlefs Endeavours they had made fince their Youth. It is likewife to be observed, that when Sarah faid that her Lord was likewife old, fhe could not mean that he was impotent by Age, and incapable of performing the conjugal Rites: The contrary appeared after Sarah's Death; for he married another Wife, and had at least fix Children by her, fo that she only called M him him old in respect to his first Vigour, which certainly was decreased.

BESIDES, if Sarab had the leaft Sufpicion that it was a Sin for Men to meddle with their Wives after they were paft Child-bearing, fhe would never have alleged, as a Reafon of her Unbelief, that her Lord likewife was old; for if the Act itfelf had been an Indecency, a Thing never practifed, what had it fignified whether Abraham was old or young.

WHEN, in the Beginning of this Letter, I allowed the Embraces you condemn to be frustraneous, I would not be understood as to Procreation, for else it is manifest they are of great Use to Society; they are the Bond of conjugal Amity, and by their Means a thoufand little Differences and petty Quarrels are made up between a Man and his Wife, which without them would become wide Breaches, and often render the married Couple for ever irreconcileable. That (as you fay) they only center in the Pleafure of Senfe, is true, but fo does Mufic, yet it is not forbid us. What I fay of SELF-POLLUTION, you would apply to this, which is wrong. SELF-POLLU-TION is not Murder, becaufe what is wafted might prove a Child; if it were, all NOCTURNAL POLLUTIONS, which No-body can prevent, would be fo many Murders; but, becaufe the Seed is wafted in a finful Manner, it is a Crime which God hath punished with Death. This ought not to be confounded with an Action which God allows of, if not encourages.

BESIDES, from the Time the Woman has conceived till fhe is brought to Bed, and got up again, the procreative Faculty of the Man is of no Ufe; the fame may be faid when the Wife is paft Child-bearing: Therefore it is plain, what I have faid before, that the Forbearance you commend would deftroy the End of Matrimony, as it is manifeftly explained by St. Paul; for after he had told the Corinthians, That it was good for a Man not to touch a Woman, he goes on thus, Neverthelefs, to avoid Fornication, let every Man have his own Wife, and let every Woman have her own Husband. The Apoftle names the End End of Marriage to them, to avoid Fornication; and as he knew very well, that the Ceremony, or having the Name of being married, would not fuffice for this, but that the only Means to keep People chafte, and hinder them from Fornication, was carnal Copulation, and even the frequent Practice of it; therefore he adds, Let the Husband render to the Wife due Benevolence, and likewife alfo the Wife unto the Husband. He speaks of it as a Duty which both owe to each other, and ought never to be neglected but by a common Consent; and that only for a little while, and a religious Purpose: Defraud ye not one another, except it be with Consent for a Time, that ye may give yourselves to Fasting and Prayer; and come together again, that Satan tempt you not for your Incontinency.

IF what you induce us to believe, at the Clofe of your Letter, concerning your Sex, be true, and the Scruple you propofe, and which feems to gravel you, be real, then, Madam, I am perfuaded you are convinced of your Error before now; and I would not have taken fo much Pains, or been fo diffusive on this Subject, was I not affured that the fame Difficulty is often flarted, and the fame Arguments ufed by Libertines, and other lewd Profligates, to perplex confcientious People: For the openly Wicked, who neither can, nor endeavour to, hide their own evil Courfes, are always pleafed when they have an Opportunity, by the leaft Shew of Reafon, to infinuate, as if all Men were bad alike, and the fobereft Part of the World no better than themfelves.

I BEGAN my Letter by telling you, that I thought no Part of Uncleannefs, relating to the married State, had any Affinity with the Sin of ONAN; but I have fince confideredbetter of it, and am affured, that there are marrird Perfons who commit a heinous Sin to God, by fruftrating what he has appointed for the Multiplication of our Species, and are commonly fuch as think Children come too faft, and diftruft Providence for their Maintenance and Education. They indulge themfelves in all the Pleafures of Senfe, and yet would avoid the Charges they might occafion; in order to which, they do what they can to hinder Conception: What I mean is, when the Man, M 2 by by a criminal untimely Retreat, difappoints his Wife's as well as his own Fertility. This is what truly may be called a fruftraneous Abufe of their Bodies, and muft be an abominable Sin: Yet it is certain, that Thoufands there are, in the married State, who provoke and gratify their Luft as far as is confiftent with this their deftructive Purpofe, and no farther.

To the Author of ONANIA.

SIR,

THAVE carefully perused your Edition of ONANIA, and I take it to be the best Rule of Chastity that ever was penned; but yet I must trouble you to know, if the best general Rule that ever was prefcribed does not admit of an Exception? or, If there be not some Cases of mere Neceffity for which there is no Law? Because if there be, Itbink my Cafe to be one of them, which, Sir, I shall make bold to relate to you, presuming upon your Goodness for your Judgment in this Affair. Sir, when I was first married, I was a fetiled Houfe-keeper in the Country for about two or three Years, during which Time I had three Children, when through Misfortunes, and Want of Friends, I was obliged to quit my House and go to Service, and now I find it the greatest Difficulty in the World to provide for my Wife and the one Child God has been pleased to leave me, even when I have full Business, and I am very liable to be out of Business, so that upon a Halt, or in Cafe of Sickness, we are drove to the last Extremity of Want. Now, Sir, this melancholy View, which might be much more aggravated, drove us by Confent upon the Expedient you generally and justly condemn in your Answer to the Lady's Letter. My Confience feems to clear me of ONAN's Crime; for what he did was out of Spite and Ill-will, and contrary to an express Command of raising up Seed to his Brother, in Contradiction to the Method of our Redemption, whereas mine is pure Necessity, in respect both both of Body and Soul; and I am fariber confirmed from the two last Verses of the xivth Chapter to the Romans. It is true, if we were to live a funder it might be left off; but then again, our Gircumstances will not fo well allow of that, befides the Jealoufies and Distrusts that may arife, even in the losing of that conjugal Affection which we ought to take all the Care in the World to preferve. Now, Sir, by this you see my own Thoughts upon the Matter, but I shall Suspend my final Judgment, hoping that the same Charity that moved you to write your Book of ONANIA, will likewife induce you to give me your Opinion in this Matter, I being fully refolved to do what is most agreeable to God's Word; and if I am cleared by you, I shall think myself obliged to keep this as a Secret from the World, according to the aforementioned Text. I have no more to add, only to ask your Pardon, Sir, for troubling you thus, yet still hoping, that wherein you perceive me in an Error you will, out of Christian Charity, inform me, and your bumble Servant will for ever think himself obliged to pray, &cc.

The ANSWER.

Con Con Con

SIR,

WHETHER the Cafe you fent me be really your own, or a fictitious one, I fhall not inquire into. If you imagined it would be difficult to refolve your Doubts, and the Queftion you propofe would puzzle me, you was miftaken: My Anfwer, therefore, fhall be plain and decifive, and what I think Every-body ought, at first View, to judge of your Cafe, without Hefitation.

WHAT is a manifest Offence to God, knowingly and wilfully committed, no Circumstance in the World can make indifferent or excuseable, and consequently the Practise you own yourself guilty of is an abominable ble Sin. What you fay of your Industry, and the Precarioufness of your Bufiness, I must take upon Trust; but it is odd that your Earnings fhould be fo nicely fufficient to keep yourfelf, your Wife, and one Child, and no more; and I do not question, was I acquainted with your Manner of Living, but that I fhould prefcribe fuch an Oeconomy as would make the fame Income ferve another Child or two. He that cannot afford a fine Cloth may wear a Frize. Befides, you have only fpoke of your own Endeavours for a Livelihood, you have faid nothing of your Wife; when People are neceffitous, they ought to affift each other : Was fhe bred a Gentlewoman, fhe may turn her Hands to twenty Things to get a Penny, without Disparagement; if not, she ought not to think herfelf above mean Labour, and fervile Employments.

THE Fear you feem to Labour under of coming to Want, instead of lessening does but aggravate your Guilt, by the open Diftruft you difcover of God's Providence. Thousands of People, that live from Hand to Mouth, and hardly ever are worth a Month's Provision beforehand, are daily feen, and that for a long Continuance, to have a Child every Year, and bring up five or fix of them, by their own Industry, with Content and Alacrity. We ought, in the Fear of God, to exert ourfelves the best we can for the Maintenance of our Families, and to expect a Bleffing upon our ho-. neft Endeavours, without murmuring; for after all, we must stay God's Time; and tho' for many Years we have undergone Hardfhips, and even wanted feveral of the Comforts of Life that are looked upon as neceffary, we muft never despair. When a good Chriftian looks upon the Omnipotence of God, and his unfearchable Wifdom, it will infpire him with a Confidence, that Providence will take care of him at all Events, though himfelf is not able to forefee the Way or Method by which he is to be drawn from the Labyrinth of his Troubles.

ANOTHER Thing I wonder at is, that you never have reflected on yourfelf for the criminal Practice you live live in; but unlefs we imagine the World is governed by wild Chance, we have Reafon to expect God's Bleffing on our Undertakings more when we live conform to his Will and Commands, then when we act contrary to him, and contract an Habit of Sinfulnefs.

THIS, I think, is a fufficient Anfwer to your Letter; which, if it be truly fincere, my Advice to you is this: In the firft Place, humble yourfelf (as fhould alfo your Wife, as fhe is a Sharer in the Guilt) before God, and repent of your Sins; in the next, never feparate from one another without Neceffity, and make Ufe of the Marriage-Bed for every Purpofe God, in his wife Providence, has ordained it.

P.S. I would have left this Anfwer with the Bookfeller in Time, according to your Requeft, had I not thought that it might become more useful by being published. You will observe, that in your Postscript I have omitted the two initial Letters I was directed to, and confequently, that its being made public will not interfere with the Secrecy you defired.

[88]

The two following Letters, from two feveral Perfons, came to my Hands upon their reading the former Edition.

To the Author of ONANIA.

SIR,

London, Dec. 31, 1729.

I AM one of the many young Men who have read over your ONANIA, and can affure you, it was with no worfe a Defign than to be acquainted with the Nature of the Sin, and the Confequences of it, both with Refpect of the Souls and Bodies of fuch as live in the Practice of it. I must be fo free as to own, your Performance does not, in fome Refpects, answer my Expectations, though in others I acknowlege it goes beyond them.

I CAN very eafily believe, that all thefe frightful Confequences of SELF-POLLUTION, which you enumerate in your fecond Chapter, are the natural Effects of that bafe Practice, when either begun very young, or repeated very often; but when the Action wants thefe Circumftances, as is very common, the Fruits of it will neceffarily be lefs difmal: To this I queftion not but you will agree; but, as to what follows, I have Reafon to believe you and I differ in our Judgments.

THE Sin of Mafturbation, when committed by a healthy Perfon, grown up to twenty or twenty-one Years, and then but feldom, I take to be lefs heinous than Fornication. But you fay, Page 7. How can a Perfon be more fuperlatively [89]

latively unclean, than when he is guilty of SELF-POLLU-TION? I hope, Sir, you do not begin to suspect me to be an Advocate for the Sin you write against, but much less am I for Fornication. I must confess, you have taken a great deal of Care to express yourfelf, in your ONANIA, fo as not to excite any filthy Imaginations in the Minds of your Readers; and the only Danger that I can apprehend may accrue to any one that perules it is, left your feeming to prefer Uncleannefs with the different Sex before that with one's Self fhould tempt fome young Perfons, who have never yet known any other Kind of Uncleannefs but the latter, to exchange it for that greater Sin of Fornication. If I may judge by the ferious Air of your Writing, I fhould think you had no fuch Defign; but yet there are feveral Expressions in your Treatife which, to me, feem to look this Way: Befides the Place cited above, I shall only take Notice of one other of this Nature, which is this, Let us once suppose what some raw ignorant People do, who imagine that this (viz. SELF-POL-LUTION) is only a filly Practice; that there is no fuch Harm in it; and, if it be a Sin, it is less criminal than Fornication; let us, I fay, suppose this, though not grant it: I freely own myfelf one of those raw ignorant People, who imagine what you will not grant; and fince I know none properer to apply to than yourfelf for better Information, and feeing there are fome others whofe Imaginations are poffeffed with the fame wrong Notion, I hope you will not refuse to give us still farther Light in this Matter.

THERE is another Thing in your Treatife which, at prefent, I differ from you in, viz. That SELF-POLLU-TION is Murder. I know this Tenet agrees very well with the Doctrine of Traduction; and I fee not how it can be maintained without having Recourfe to that Hypothefis. Your Anfwer to the Lady's Letter I can readily fall in with, except where it thwarts what I have declared to be my Sentiments as above.

UPON the whole, Sir, it appears to me very probable, that your Performance has been of good Service to many, and that the Defign you had in View, when you composed it, has, in fome Meafure, been obtained; I fincerely with and hope, that not fo much as one fingle Perfon has experienced that Danger which an unwary Reader may be N brought brought into, by fomething you have faid about one Particular, which I have already given you a Hint of.

AND now, Sir, having given you my Remarks, and Opinion of ONANIA, allow me to give you the chief Reafon of my putting you to the Trouble of this Letter, which is, in fhort, this: There are fome Circumftances in my own Cafe, which, though they might properly enough have come under your Confideration of SELF-POLLUTION, are not, as I remember, taken Notice of in your Difcourfe upon that Subject; you will foon perceive what these Circumftances are, from the Account I shall now give you of my felf.

I AM a young Man, about three-and-twenty, was happily ignorant what ONANIA meant, till I arrived at twenty-one. My Conflitution, even from my Infancy, was ftrong and healthy, from the Commencement of Youth very amorous and paffionate, fo that it was rather thought the Influence of a religious Education, than any perfonal acquired Virtue, or natural Temper, that I attained to Manhood without any criminal Knowledge, either of a Woman or myfelf: But, alas! I foon after this found out the hurtful Secret of ejecting the Semen fine ufu feminæ, and these two Years have practifed it, fometimes more, and fometimes less frequently; but never yet to often (for any Thing I can now defcern) as to do my Body any Diskindnefs by it, for which, fince I read your Piece, I think myfelf to have infinite Caufe of Thankfulnefs. Scruples about the Lawfulnefs of the Action have often exercifed my Mind, both immediately before and after Commission. I have fometimes forbore fo long, that not only a very great Uneafinefs, but, as I feared, fome Illnefs or Diftemper-was coming upon me for Want of that Evacuation, which, as foon as performed, brought Relief; and though, for the most Part (I must confess) I practised this Filthiness, for the Sake of that pleafing Titillation which accompanies the Act, yet at other Times I did it upon a more rational Account. I look upon the Imagination which often go along with, and always facilitates the Operation, to contain the greateft Part of its Sinfulnefs; and have thought I might allow myfelf in it, could I but feparate the Action from those its usual Attendants, which I have experienced to be very possible.

poffible. I have fometimes been afraid left violent Inclinations fhould prompt me to repeat the Fact still oftener as I grow older; but, for fome Time paft, have not only refolved against this, but have used it feldomer than aforetime. One Thing you will join with me in wondering at, which is, that I find in myfelf as ftrong an Inclination to Marriage, if not ftronger than before I began with Masturbation; and were it not for my Circumstances, which render it as yet imprudent for me to profess myself an humble Servant, fome Fair One or other fhould very foon be a Witness how paffionately, and conftantly too, I can love. I can truly affirm, that but few if any young Men have a more high and honourable Opinion of Matrimony than myfelf; and I hope, in a fhort Time, effectually to be cured of all Temptations of finful Self. Conversation, by that lawful and commendable Receipt, a Wife: But till fuch a happy Time arrive I shall gladly be your Pupil, and take any Methods you fhall convince me to be proper for my Cafe.

IF you fhall pleafe, in your next Edition, to make fuch Enlargements, as I doubt not you are convinced there is Room for, and fhall particularly take my Cafe into your Confideration, you will thereby not only do me a confiderable Kindnefs (which I have not the Vanity to think worthy your Pains) but alfo to a great many others, whofe Circumftances, with relation to this Matter, may either be the fame, or vary but little from that of,

SIR,

Your Obedient

Humble Servant,

The ANSWER.

SIR,

AS your Letter feems to be wrote with an Air of Sincerity, fo I have weighed it thoroughly, and fhall give it a suitable Answer. The first I shall take Notice of is, that you never was guilty of SELF-POLLUTION before you was arrived to the Age of Manhood ; that you commit it but feldom; that it has not impaired your Strength, nor Inclination to the other Sex; and that you have Reafon to believe, that, if your Circumstances did not hinder you from thinking of Matrimony, you would make a very vigorous Husband: From all which I am willing to conclude with you, that it is probable, as you are of a ftrong Conftitution, this Practice may hitherto not have done any Injury to your bodily Health. You own, that Scruples about the Lawfulness of the Action have often exercised your Mind; that fometimes you have forbore fo long, that not only a very great Uneafinefs, but, as you feared, fome Illnefs or Diftemper was coming upon you for Want of that Evacuation, which, as foon as performed, brought Relief. You confess likewise, that you practifed this Filthiness, for the most Part, for the Sake of that pleasing Titillation that accompanies the Act; but add, that at other Times you have done it on a more rational Account. As the latter can only relate to your Care for the Prefervation of your Health, and there are two Perfons more that defire my Advice upon that Head, I defign to be diffusive on the Subject, and treat of it fo amply, that what I shall fay of it will be fufficient to answer not only yours, and the two following Letters, but every Thing else that can be reafonably asked on that Score.

THERE are two Vessels that are called Spermatic Arteries, teries, that, a little below the Emulgents, fpring from the Aorta. At their Beginning they are very fmall, and only admit of the fineft and most balfamic Part of the Blood, which they carry to the Testicles, and what is not made Use of there the Spermatic Veins carry back into the Cava. The Substance of the Tefficles confists in the Foldings of feveral small or foft Tubes, disposed in fuch a Manner, that, if they could be feparated one from another without breaking, they might be drawn out to a great Length. In these the Blood is made into Seed. which is further elaborated and purified in the Epidydimides, from whence, by the Vafa deferentia, it is carried into the Veficulæ Seminales, where it is laid up till, by Contraction of those Vesicula, it is carried through the Proflatæ into the Urethra, and forced through the Caput Galinaginis, which hinders the involuntary Running of it. The oftener these Vesiculæ Seminales are emptied, the more Work is made for the Tefficles, and confequently the greater Confumption of the finest and most balfamic Part of the Blood. When we are come to Manhood, and often before, and as long as our Vigour and Fertility laft, these Vesiculæ, when they are filled, and become very turgid, are, by the Force of Imagination, eafily contracted in our Sleep, and evacuate the Seed contained in them. Those that make no Use of Women or Masturbation, have this Discharge once a Week, or oftener, others not once a Fortnight, and fome are feveral Months without; and the Frequency of it depends very much on Conftitution, Manner of Living, and the Employment of Fancy whilft we are awake.

IT was neceffary to premife thus much, before I could treat intelligibly of the Retention of the Seed, the poifonous Quality of which is fo magnified by fome Authors. The Mifchief to be apprehended from it muft either proceed from the Seed already made and contained in the Veficulæ Seminales, or elfe the fine nutritious Particles fit to make Seed of, that through the Spermatic Arteries can find no Entrance into the Tefficles already filled, and through the Spermatic Veins, are forced back into the Mafs of Blood. The firft, I confefs, is a Diftemper, as much as the Want of all other Secretions; but then it is fo rare, that not one in Ten thoufand is ever troubled troubled with it. Whilft Men are in fuch Health and Vigour, that Seed is copioufly produced in them; it is hardly poffible that NOCTURNAL POLLUTIONS fhould not procure them as much Evacuation as Nature requires: For even in good Men, that guard themfelves againft Concupifcence, and who, whilft they are awake, fuffer not their Fancy to rove on the other Sex, we find that the very Diffention of the Veffels, and Ripenels of the Seed, have fuch an Influence on the animal Spirits, as, in Spite of Piety and Devotion, to procure fuch Dreams that fhall occasion the Discharge I speak of often, to their great Affliction. But let us suppose a Man really labouring under fuch a Retention, and actually fuffering the ill Consequences of it, as Dimness of Sight, Vertigoes, Dulnefs, and Melancholy, whofe Circumstances hinder him from converling lawfully with a Woman, I cannot fee why he fhould not look on this in the fame Manner as he would upon any other Affliction fent him by the Hand of God, either for Trial or Chaftifement: Let him apply himfelf to a skilful Phyfician, and I can affure him, that there never was a Diffemper produced in a Body, otherwife healthy, a semine diutius retento, that was not, or might not be, eafily cured by Diet or Exercife, and perhaps a little Bleeding. I write to Chriftians, and fuch as value their eternal Welfare beyond all other Confiderations. Should a Man pamper his Body, and indulge himfelf in Sloth and Idlenefs, when he is complaining of Ailments of Repletion, he would be the Caufe of his own Diforder himfelf. If a Man is fincere in his Religion, would he not rather abstain from rich Meats and strong Nourishment, and, by hard Labour and Fafting, mortify his Flesh, than wilfully offend God to obtain the same Ends? Not to run counter to fo many Men of great Parts and Erudition. I have allowed, that it is poffible that Diftempers may proceed a semine diutius retento, but I have Reafon to fufpect, that what is generally afcribed to that Caufe is owing to fomething elfe. The fame Diftempers that are charged to the retentio seminis, are oftener obferved in young Widows, and married Women after a long Absence from their Husbands, than they are in Men; and we are fo well affured from all modern Discoveries of Anatomy, that Women have no Seed; and it is plain, that that Diftempers cannot proceed from a Retention of the Thing they have not.

BUT let us try another Way, and affert, that by the Retention of the Seed is to be underftood the Retention of what fhould have been made into Seed, those balfamic Particles that through the Spermatic Arteries can find no Entrance into the Tefficles, every Thing being replete there, and must be thrown back again into the whole Mass of Blood. If we examine this thoroughly, and lay all the Fault on the finer nutritious Particles, that, for Want of this Evacuation, are in too great a Quantity retained in the Blood, we shall find that nothing is more clashing with Experience. Let us mind the Generality of Mankind, and it will appear, that the lefs they are addicted to Venery, the longer they preferve themfelves in Health and Vigour: See, upon this Head, the Colloquium Senile of Erafmus, who will tell you, that those who live very chaste, in their old Age retain their Strength and Memory, and the Ufe of all their Senfes, more efpecially their Sight, longer, and are more free from Wrinkles and Baldnefs, and every Way less decrepit than others. In Eunuchs likewise, every Particle of the ballamic Blood, that enters into the Spermatic Arteries, is flung back upon the whole Mafs of it, and it is certain that they have no Evacuation at all; yet they are commonly long-lived, and their Senfes more exquifite. and are, with the same Temperance, abundantly lefs fubject to Diftempers than those who have not lost their Virility, infomuch that, from a Principle of Epicurifm, Men have voluntarily undergone Castration to enjoy those Advantages. A Stone-horfe, that has been well difciplined. and kept till he is nine or ten Years old, without ever Leaping a Mare, as Thousands there are in England, after that discovers hardly any Defire after the Females of his Kind, which otherwise he is not eafily turned from. Here is a Retention of the Seed in both Acceptations, and yet where the Breed of Feeding and the Ufage are both equal, they have rather more Strength and Mettle, and are more capable of bearing Fatigues, without being more liable to Diftempers, than Mares or Geldings of the fame Age and Size. How comes it, that the poifonous Steams of the Seed evaporating from it for fo many Years, have no perceptible Influence Influence upon them? If you anfwer me, That the Mifchiefs occafioned by the Retention of Seed in yourfelf are prevented in a Stone-horfe, from the Inoffenfivenefs of what he eats or drinks, and the hard Labour he undergoes, you happily point at the Remedy yourfelf, a low Diet and ftrong Exercife; which I am certain you will readily and chearfully comply with, if your alas! where you complain of having found out the hurtful Secret, be fincere, and the Practice you live in be in Reality as filthy, in your Opinion, as you own it to be in your Letter; and I dare engage, that whoever will but make Trial, and perfift in this Method for fome Time, will find it as effectually as he could wifh it; efpecially if the other Means to preferve Chaftity, that are to be met with in this Treatife, be likewife fully made Ufe of.

I HAVE now before me that Part of your Letter, where you apprehend, that my feeming to prefer Uncleannefs with the different Sex, before that with one's Self, fhould tempt fome young Perfons, who have never yet known any Kind of Uncleanness but the latter, to exchange it for that greater Sin of Fornication. I am obliged to you for giving me this Opportunity of explaining myfelf on this Head, though I am not of your Opinion, that Fornication is a greater Sin than SELF-POLLUTION; and what you allege as a Reafon of it, that the first is an Action committed by two, is but little better than Sophiftry. A Man who debauches a Virgin, or any other innocent Woman, adds to the Sin of Fornication, by being a Seducer and Tempter to Wickednefs, and has perhaps vaftly more to answer for besides, according as the Circumstance may be: But when a Fact is perpetrated by two that are equally guilty, the most that can be faid of it is, that each of them bears the Burden of the whole Crime. A Man cannot commit Fornication without a Woman, nor a Woman without a Man. It is a Compound, a Sin that has no Exiftence, unlefs two Perfons are engaged in it. If three Rogues, by Agreement, break open and rob a Houfe, which it would have been impracticable to do by a lefs Number, it is certain that every one of them is guilty of the Burglary, whatever Part he acted in the Villainy; but his Crime is not greater greater for having two Companions, than if each of them had robbed fingly.

BUT be that as it will: You think Fornication worfe than SELF-POLLUTION; I will never hinder nor contradict you, as long as you equally abftain from both, and I fhall never differ with any Man about Things that are immaterial. Whilft we agree that both are abominable in the Sight of God, and confequently to be religioufly avoided, I will not lofe one Moment in difputing which is the most heinous of the two. My Business is to promote Chastity and Virtue in general: I would fortify Every-body if I could against Concupifcence, the Sin of the Flesh, and with all the wholesome Advice I am capable of giving, affist them in fubduing the Sting of Lust, and all filthy Inclinations.

IF I have faid any Thing that has given the leaft Handle to any of my Readers to think that I look upon Fornication as a venial Sin, in Comparison to SELF-POLLUTI-ON, or that I would decry the one to encourage the other, which is still more abominable, I am heartily forry for it, and can affure them, that whoever has conftrued me in that Manner has been most miserably mistaken; and that neither yourfelf, nor any other, may be fo again for the future, I folemnly declare, that the Height of my Wifhes is to deter both Sexes from Impurity of every Kind, and all Manner of Uncleannefs, without Exception. The Reafon why I have faid fo little of Fornication, and fo much against SELF-POLLUTION, I thought would have been obvious to the meaneft Capacity: I treat of the one ex professo, and not of the other. There are many wellwrote Books against Whoredom and Adultery, and a Thoufand good Things have been faid to difcredit them, which I heartily approve of; but the Uncleannels with one's Self, which I write against, has never been touched upon yet by any able Pen, at least not intelligibly, or fo much to the Purpofe, that any Good may be expected from it. I made Choice of this Subject, becaufe the Society flood in Need of it; and I thought that nothing was actually more wanted. It would be very deplorable, if young and ignorant People should for ever remain without Warning and Afliftance against fo powerful and fo treacherous an Enemy

as SELF-POLLUTION. Both Sexes, especially Youth, are in greater Danger of it, than they can be faid to be of any other Transgreffion; and there are more and stronger Temptations in it, than in any other Species of Impurity; nay, there is no Sin that has fo many. The kind of Obstacles that may hinder, and for ever keep them from Fornication, are innumerable. Some great Boys, though bred in fober Families, have vicious Inclinations, yet are fo bashful, that they dare not ask a Woman the Question, nor fo much as thew their Defires. Some Girls are full of Luft within, yet by Education made fo modeft, that they would not fuffer a Man to touch them for the World: Others more forward are fo well watched, that they can never get an Opportunity of being alone with the Perfon they would yield to. Many young Fellows can get no Money to give to Harlots, and Abundance are too covetous to part with it, though their Defires to deal with them be never fo impetuous. The Fear of Pregnancy in one Sex, Children to maintain in the other, difobliging of Parents, and other Relations; the Lofs of Reputation, Shame to undergo Diseases, and fifty Things more, are the happy Impediments by which lewd People, if they have any Forefight, or common Prudence, are daily, against their Will, prevented from hearkening to the Inftigation and Enticements of unlawful Love.

BUT what is it that could reftrain the Youth, and others, of either Sex, from SELF-POLLUTION, if they imagined that it could do them no bodily Injury, and had no Notion that it was an Offence to God? When we are fure to be out of Sight, and the Hearing of all the World, Modefty never affects us; and it is impoffible to be bashful by one's Self, and therefore nothing can be more enfnaring than a Satisfaction that may be procured without any Body's Affistance, Leave, or Knowledge, by the Poor as well as Rich; and no Care of Parents, or Watchfulnefs of Guardians, can ever keep Youth from a Pleasure to be had with out Fear or Trouble, at any Hour in the Four-and-twenty, one Day as well as another, either Up or a Bed, and which to enjoy they want nothing but to be alone, and hardly that when it is dark. This Sin then exceeding all others in Point of Danger and Temptation, all the Art of Eloquence, and Figures of Rhetoric, are hardly fufficient to arm arm Men against, and frighten them from it. I have no Faith in the Doctrine of Traduction, and am of Opinion, that God gives a new Soul to every human Body; and yet I believe that I may call SELF-POLLUTION, in our Sex, Murder, without Exaggeration. Every Emiffion of Seed might, if properly applied, have been the Caufe of Pregnancy, and confequently of a Child. I do not forget what I have faid in my Anfwer to the Lady's Letter, where I denied that those Emissions which are made in our Sleep, or a Man's converfing with his Wife after Pregnancy, are to be deemed Murder; but I shewed that the one was a lawful Action, not difpleafing to God, and that the other, being involuntary, could never be counted a Fault of our's: But this Excuse cannot be made for wilful SELF-POLLU-TION, which is an Action highly difpleafing to Almighty God, as appears from the Punishment of ONAN; and whatever Mischief a Man is the Occasion of, though not defignedly, whilft he is employed in an unlawful Action, is always conftrued in the worft Senfe. It is poffible, that an able Phyfician, in a difficult and obsure Cafe, may mistake the Distemper, and, by a wrong Method of Cure, shorten the Life of his dearest Friend; this is, at the Worft, but Erronea Praxis; but if wilfully he prefcribes what is noxious, with an ill Defign upon any one's Life, then it is Praxis mala, and ipfo facto, he commits Murder, whether the Patient lives or dies.

I AM of your Opinion, that the greatest Part of the Sinfulnels in SELF-POLLUTION confifts in the impure Imaginations that go along with, and always facilitates the Operation; but that you can feparate the Action from those usual Attendants, as you affirm, I cannot eafily believe. If we examine ourfelves we shall find, that we are all very apt to fet falle Gloffes on the Motives of our Actions, and give more eafy Constructions to the feveral Gratifications of our Appetites, than for the greateft Part they deserve: Therefore let me conjure you intirely to leave off this filthy Practice; no Excuses or Evalions can ever render an Action warrantable, that, in itself, is finful. If you are fincere in faying, that you gladly will be my Pupil, and follow any Method you shall be convinced of to be proper in your Cafe, I beg of you to try the Means I have prefcribed in this Anfwer, with Refolution and Affiduity, and I am confident, that, after a little Time, you will chearfully comply with them, and find yourfelf able, without the leaft Detriment to your Health on that Score, to withft and those craving Importunities of Nature, and abftain from all Venereal Pleasures, till you can lawfully enjoy them; to which when your Circumstances will any-ways let you, as your Constitution seems to require the Use of a Woman, give me Leave to advise you, the fooner the better.

To the Author of ONANIA.

SIR,

St. James's, June 14, 1733.

YOUR little Book having wrought in me a thorough Conviction, and Reformation alfo, I had wholly abstained from the Practice by you therein so justly condemned, for the Space of near three Months, when fuddenly little fine Bladders borke out in the thin Skin of my Groin, on each Side the Scrotum; a continual Hebetudo Cerebri, sometimes accompanied with a Vertigo, seized on me; I also had an itching (corbutic Humour all over my Skin, which was followed by a yellow Morphew, Spreading itself all over my Body. This spurred me on to inquire after the Cause of these many and (to me) uncommon Maladies. Aristotle fays, Coitus alleviat corpus aufert multas Ægritudines animi, Quia (fays he) expellit fumum spermatis de Cerebro, & expellit materiam apostematicam. The learned Scotus writes thus, Ex dimiffione Coitus, caufatur tenebrofitas Oculorum, Vertigo Capitas, unde Sperma viri ultra debitum tempus retentum, convertitur in Venenum. And that great Master of Natural Philosophy, my Lord Bacon, uses those very Words. Furthermore, the Abstinence or Intermission of the Use of Venus, in moift and well habituate Bodies, breedeth a Number of Difeafes, and more especially dangerous Imposthumations: The Reafon (fays be) is evident; for that it is a principal Evacuation, especially of the Spirits; for of the Spirits there 15 is scarce any Evacuation but in Venus, and therefore the Omiffion of it breadeth all Difeafes of Repletion. I would not have it thought from hence, that Mastupration is allowable, whilf the End is otherwise attainable: All I contend for is, that Excess therein only is hurtful, and moderate Use healthful to the Body, by discharging what would otherwise, by long Retention, become poisonous; whereas you lay it down for Truth, that it hurts the Body as well as Soul, by robbing the Body of its balmy Juices, &c. For that it is (in some Sort) a Sin, I will not gainsay, and if those Doctors say true, to what a Dilemma have I brought myfelf? Being lately married to a Virgin, not quite thirteen Years old (myself twenty-five) and her Father absolutely refules to let us cohabit till his Daughter shall be full fifteen Years of Age; what therefore is to be done? Must I incur the Diseases threatened from a long and hurtful Retention of Seed? Or may I, under fuch Circumstances as these, seek Relief from Nature's Handmaid, which I take for granted to be a Sin inferior to Fornication? Becaufe to commit the latter I must draw another into the fame Sin with myfelf. A Friend of mine (whofe Wife is lately eloped) joins with me in defiring your Thoughts on the Premises in the next Edition of your Book.

Your Humble Servant,

PHILALETHES.

The ANSWER.

SIR,

IT is poffible you may labour under the Circumstances you speak of, as it is likewise that an Acquaintance of yours, whofe Wife is eloped, fhould join with you in the Requeft of being fatisfied as to the Points in Queftion: But it is also not impossible, that yours is a feigned Cafe, contrived to try me. It is ftrange that a Man of five-andtwenty, whole Conffitution requires, and loudly calls for, the Use of a Woman, should marry a Virgin of Thirteen, whom it would be above two Years before he might cohabit with. Matrimony is a very good Remedy to prevent Fornication, and other Uncleannefs. But you could not be ignorant, that the bare Name of Wedlock could not have that Effect; and therefore if you are in a Dilemma, I cannot fee that you have any-Body to blame but yourfelf. You imagine that, by your Letter, you have reduced me to these Streights, that I must either bid you incur the Difeafes threatened from a long and hurtful Retention of Seed, or else give it under my Hand, that, on fome Emergencies, a Man may have Leave to commit what, throughout the Book, I have called a heinous and abominable Sin in the Sight of God. I shall do neither, and yet give you fuch an Anfwer as, I am fure, will be thought pertinent and fatisfactory in the Opinion of all equitable Judges. In the first Place, as to your Health, confult, and without Delay make Use of, the Means prefcribed in the Letter immediately preceding yours. In the fecond, wholly leave off the vile Practice of Masturbation, which, in a ludicrous Manner, you are pleafed to call Nature's Handmaid; and be affured, that to make Slight Slight of great Sins is a wrong and most unprofitable Way to atone for them. That you have hitherto felt none of the bodily Calamities that often attend SELF-POLLUTION, ought to be far from hardening you in it. We daily fee Multitudes of great Sinners thriving in the World; but this is no Argument that they fhould never be punished for their Offences hereafter. But if you thought it no Crime, I cannot imagine what you mean by faying, in the Beginning of your Letter, that my Book had wrought in you a thorough Reformation as well as Conviction; and if you really think it to be criminal, and difpleafing to God, you feem to have Wit enough, without asking any Body's Advice, to know for yourfelf and Friend, that no Circumstances can make it lawful or allowable: There can be no Want or Neceffity that can juffify, or be a good Plea for, Stealing, and pray judge in the fame Manner of all Sins.

The following is the fecond Letter which I had in View in my Anfwer to that of C. T. and came to his Hand upon his reading the former Edition; as did alfo the Letter which follows it, figned Will. Smith, and the other long one, a pretty many Pages after that, fubfcribed N. Pedagogus.

To the Author of ONANIA.

Worthy SIR,

"A T the Recommendation of a very Reverend Gentleman of my Acquaintance, I have lately given your accurate Treatife of ONANIA a diligent Reading; and though there are fome Things in it that do not exactly quadrate quadrate with my prefent Sentiments, and others that I could have been glad of a more full and adequate Anfwer to in this laft Edition, particularly the ingenious Letter of C. T. yet in the main it gave me fo much Satisfaction, that I have not only bought one myfelf, but have alfo engaged fome of my Acquaintance to do the like, it being hardly poffible to find any of Years who are intirely innocent; nor do I know of any Author that has handled this Subject (however deferving the Confideration of the wifeft and beft of Men) fo judicioufly, fo candidly, or fo modeftly, as yourfelf.

" IT is undoubtedly Matter of juft Lamentation, that a Vice fo odious in its Nature, and fo pernicious it its Confequences, fhould have found Means to infinuate itfelf fo far among us, as to become (what we have too much Reafon to fear it is) almost universal: To you, therefore, Sir, is the Public much indebted for your kind Endeavours to suppress fo great, fo growing, and fo mifchievous, an Evil. And may that good Providence that governs the Universe, and (notwithstanding what either the deluded or the proffigate Part of Mankind fays to the contrary) profpers or difappoints the Defigns of Good and Bad, according to his own good Pleafure, fo influence the Heart of every Reader, that the Effect may be eminently adequate to the Greatness, the Usefulness, and the Wildom, of the Undertaking. For my own Part I proteft, the End proposed by this Performance feems to me fo noble and momentous, and the Means made Use of to attain it fo judicious and extraordinary, that the more I reflect upon them, fo much the more fenfibly am Iaffected with Admiration and Gratitude. From which Reflections (together with those that occur from the Candour and Integrity observable throughout the Whole) I am at last induced to prefume upon (or at least to hope for) a full Refolution of fuch Difficulties in this Way, as have for a long Time (at Intervals) broke in a little upon the Quiet and Serenity of my Mind.

" THE Act itfelf, that you have fo largely and fo judiciously treated of, when encouraged by lascivious Inclinations, &c. and perpetrated merely to gratify the fenfual [105]

fual Appetite, has always appeared to me very criminal; but yet in many Refpects (even in these Circumstances) much inferior to feveral Crimes that Mankind is too much addicted to; fuch as Sodomy, Whoredom, prophane Swearing, Murder, and the like: But whether it be fo, abstracted from those Amours, and irregular Attendants (and from which it is poffible to be feparated) is, I confess, what I am not intirely fatisfied about. That Evacuations of this Fluid will frequently, copioufly, and unavoidably happen (provided there be a due Conformation of the Organs, and a regular Circulation of the Fluids) to Adults of all Sorts, is, I believe, what you, and all Men, will readily allow; and that it is even neceffary that fuch Evacuations fhould be, in order to continue us capable to answer one great End of our Creation, is, I suppose, what few, if any, will venture to deny; and that it is also, or may be, in every Man's Power to guess pretty nearly (if not exactly) at the Time when fuch Evacuations will happen (Nature being more intenfely disposed to admit of, and to be carried away with Venereal Pleasures of all Sorts, as the Repositories of the Seminal Fluid approach to a Fulnefs) is what may (I have Reafon to think) fafely be granted me.

" UPON these Presumptions, therefore, I beg Leave to know, whether it can properly be termed Pollution, or whether it can justly be deemed criminal, for a Man to eafe himfelf voluntarily of that Trouble and Stimulus, which is the neceffary Refult of a copious Secretion, and a long Retention, provided the Action be intirely free from mental Impurity, and the Perfon himfelf a fingle Man? Or, Is it better to acquiesce in an involuntary Emission, although that may, and often will, be attended with fuch Marks of Uncleannefs, as cannot but be taken Notice of, as well by those whose Business extends to either Bed or Linnen, as by our own Selves? I am very fenfible, that fhould fuch an Anfwer be given to the Propofal, as the Cafe thus flated feems to dictate, it is poffible that fome of weak Judgments and great Vigour might take Occafion from it to allow themfelves a more frequent Ufe of the above-mentioned Action, than an honeft and judicious Reasoning upon the Circumstances of the Case can fafely admit of; and where the Senfation is fo quick, and the Disposition fo strong, as it often is in this Case, the P greatest greatest Prudence is many Times unable to express itself fo as to check the Progress and prevent those Misfortunes, that are the unavoidable Confequence of a too frequent Indulgence. These Confiderations had almost prevailed upon me to forbear fending my Thoughts upon this Subject; and had I not been certain that there was fome Weight in what I have proposed, and that a confiderable Number of fober and ingenious Gentlemen would be much more obliged by an Anfwer to it, I had certainly spared myself and you this Trouble. However, fince you have been pleafed to appear in our Behalf on this Occafion, and have difcovered an Ingenuity and Industry, a Candour and Integrity, that but few can equal, and none, perhaps, exceed, I beg, Sir, that you will pleafe to take into Confideration, at a vacant Hour, what I have now offered; and if it may be thought either fafe or ferviceable to appear in public, you will very much oblige me, and many more than I can at prefent conveniently name, by inferting it (together with fuch Remarks as may occur upon reading it) in your next Edition. This, if you fhould incline to comply with it, would be rendered much more acceptable to us, if you would be pleafed, at the fame Time, to let us know, whether a Man may lawfully, and confiftently with his Health, make Use of any Means to prevent the Secretion of this Fluid, and the Evacuation of it when fecreted (provided fuch Secretions and Evacuations be moderate, and not oftener than may be reafonably expected, or fafely tolerated) without endangering an Interruption of the Course of Nature, and an Inducement of fuch Diforders as may very much impair the other Faculties, and incapacitate him to go through as he ought the feveral Functions of Life. That this, or fuch as this, will be the Confequence of long Retention after due Elaboration, is fufficiently apparent from the profound Writings of that flupendioufly great Man Borelli, in whofe learned Treatife de Motu Animalium, Part II. Prop. 227. are these remarkable Words, viz. Novum enim non eft, ut Semen Genitale in Animali perfectifimæ Temperici destinatum expulsioni pro Fine Generationis, diu retentum contrabat corruptam & venesicam Naturam. Now if Health be fo precious, and fo effential to a comfortable Subfiftence here, as it appears to be; and if a Defect in any of the fenfible fenfible Evacuations must necessarily be attended with an Excess in some other, or a Diforder of the whole Animal Oeconomy (as I think is abundantly evident from the curious Observations of those excellent Physicians Sanctorius and Keill) it appears to me to be the indifpenfible Duty of every Man to be more than a little fludious how to preferve that valuable Bleffing, and to admit of nothing eafily that any-ways tends to either the imparing or deftroying it. This, Sir, is what I have humbly to offer (in my own, and in the Name of many worthy Gentlemen) to your Confideration. It is, I confels, what I have more Reason to ask Pardon for, than to expect an Anfwer to; and therefore I fubmit it without any further Enlargement or Apology, and fhall only fay, that I shall be extremely glad of an Opportunity to shew you with how much Refpect I am,

[107]

«SIR,

66 Your most Obedient Humble Servant."

The ANSWER.

SIR,

VOUR very obliging, as well as curious, well-wrote Letter, deserves a well-weighed Answer, the greatest Part of which be pleafed to look for in what I have given to C. T. I am fo far from thinking that it will do Prejudice to any of my Readers, that I am confident it will be highly advantageous to them, for two Reafons: When a Man of the Learning and Penetration you feem to be of, approves of any one's Labours in public, it can hardly fail of adding Weight to his Arguments and Perfuations, and in anfwering you, it is probable, that many will fee Queflions refolved, which they would have asked themfelves. I AL-

I ALLOW of every Thing you think ought to be granted; but when I find these Words in your Letter, Upon these Presumptions, therefore, I beg Leave to know whether it can properly be termed Pollution, or whether it can justly be deemed criminal, for a Manto ease himself, voluntarily, of that Trouble and Stimulus, which is the necessary Refult of a copious Secretion, and long Retention, provided the Action be intirely free from mental Impurity, and the Person himself a single Man? Depend upon it, whatever is voluntarily done that Way is SFLF-POLLUTION, and confequently criminal. The Supposition, that the Action may be intirely free from mental Impurity, is very dangerous: I cannot think it practicable, and I fincerely believe, that whoever affirms the Poffibility of it, if he does not wilfully deceive others, impofes upon himfelf: Therefore pray acquiesce in the involuntary Emissions, without making the leaft Scruple of what you fay about the Linnen; those who make Beds, and are employed in washing and mending of Shirts and Sheets, are used to fuch Things: It is impoffible to prevent every Thing that is capable of fullying the Imagination of lewd People, either in Town or Country. Dogs in the Streets; and Bulls in the Fields, may do Mischief to debauched Fancies; and it is poffible, that either Sex may beput in Mind of lascivious Thoughts by their own Poultry. Lower you ask, Whether a Man may lawfully use any Means to prevent the Secretion of this Fluid? lanfwer, No, if it has the leaft Tendency to difable him from Procreation, and whatever may be injurious to his Manhood, is not lefs finful than Castration itself: But then, on the other hand, it is not only lawful, but likewife neceffary, by Diet and Exercife to fubdue the Rage of Luft where it is required; because such Means may be either made use of, or omitted at Pleasure, and prorenata; and fingle Men, who would preferve this Virtue, and complain of too great a Secretion, act very imprudently if they indulge themfelves in the Ufe of generous Wines, nutritive Meats, high Sauces, and other Things which are known to be Provocatives to Luft.

THE reft of your Queftions and Doubts I have Reafon to hope that you will find anfwered to your Satisfaction, either in one Part or other of the Letter which I referred you to at first. [109]

To the Author of ONANIA.

SIR,

TAM one of the young Fellows who have read your I ONANIA, and do question whether it be possible for any of your Readers to be better pleased with so beneficial a Work? I make no Doubt but you have had your Ends in publishing it, viz. by deterring some Hundreds of People from that horrid detestable Sin of SFLF-POLLUTION. It cannot be supposed, that your Intent was either to gain the Reputation of a famous Physician, or a very good Man (seeing you conceal your Name from the World) though all your Readers must allow you the latter, as I hope your Patients will the former. I shall not prefume to ask the Reafon of your Secrecy, yet, in my humble Opinion, you may be known to the World without being acquainted with any of your Patients, by the fame Method you now use, which may hinder any Quack after your Death from pretending to have been the Author of the ONANIA. As to what you mention in the Preface, about a virulent Pamphlet published against your Book, intituled, ONANISM, it is the Opinion of many others, as well as my felf, that you are very far out of the Reach of any fuch foolifh Malice: And it would be too hard a Task for wifer Heads than theirs feem to be to prove, by any Expression throughout your whole Book, that you give the least Encouragement not only to SELF-POLLUTION, but even any other Sin. However, as a Friend (though not a Judge) I will be bold to tell you, that it is humbly conceived, if four or five of your Letters in the latter End of the Second Chapter were omitted (seeing you have already acquired fo great a Name in those Sorts of Cures) it would give less Cause of Ridicule to your malicious Adversaries, and, from what I can learn, would intirely take off those unhappy Objections that have hither to lain against the ONA-NIA; it would then, I fay, be all of a Piece with the other Letters and Answers, which are very edifying and instructive, tive, and which may be read by the Chastest of Women. But I do not give you this intirely as my Opinion, for I am well enough satisfied that you have faithfully committed them to the Press in their genuine Simplicity, as may appear to any one who sees the great Difference between the Stile of them and the rest of the Work.

IT is no small Pleasure to me to find, that you partly promise the Satisfaction of another Edition to the World, wherein we may hope for an Answer to the two Letters, especially that of Philalethes, who seems to urge the Necessity of SELF-POLLUTION, and the dangerous Consequences of neglecting it; which he endeavours to prove from what my Lord Bacon fays, as if it was a Thing fo highly proper for Health. I would feign know what he thinks of fuch People as never practifed any fuch Thing, nor had carnal Knowledge of any Woman till the Ages of twenty, twentyfive, and thirty, and yet are healthy, strong, and vigorous. If the Prastitioners of that filthy Vice will not believe there are any fuch People now in the World (as I am fatisfied there are many) let them inquire what Ages the particular Favourites of God Almighty, in the Old Testament, were married at, who furely never were guilty of SELF-POL-LUTION, which was so severely punished in those Days by the fudden Death of ONAN, whole Story is transmitted as a dreadful Example to all fucceeding Ages: And shall my Lord Bacon, or Philalethes, perfuade the World, that any physical Excuse or Pretence (for that is no better) can extenuate the Guilt of fo borrid a Crime?

FOR my own particular Part I folemnly declare, that I never do use any such unclean Tricks to purge my Body of those poisonous Seminal Moistures (as Philalethes is pleased to call them) neither had I carnal Knowlege of any Woman for above these two Years, and yet em (Thanks to God) sound, strong, active, and of a very bale Constitution, and am now turned of the twenty-fourth Year of my Age: However, I must confess one Thing to you, which gives me some Concern; the Truth of it is, that I am very apt to dream of Women: You may guess the Consequence. Very apt, I say, because I think once a Fortnight, or once a Month, a great deal too often, if I could avoid it: And what adds to my Concern is, that most commonly I dream of one and the same Woman, Woman, whom I verily believe to be as perfectly virtuous, as the utmost Extent and Signification of the Word can possibly admit of: When awake I cannot bear any such Thought, nor find Place for it in my Breast, but always loath myself, and beg God's Pardon whenever I reflect on my sinful Dreams. If I know my own Conscience, I would not for the World meddle with that Woman in particular, as being one for whom I have a great Regard, and a married Person besides.

I AM well affured, that you are very capable of giving spiritual as well as physical Advice, and therefore earnestly request, that you will let me know how far I am guilty of a Sin in what I have here confessed to you, also what I shall do to prevent it: Your charitable Condescension herein will give great Satisfaction to, and mightily oblige,

SIR,

Your very Humble Servant,

WILL. SMITH.

IF you will be so good as to answer me before you publish the next Edition (which I shall be sure to buy as soon as it comes from the Press) direct to me hither, or leave your Answer with the Bookseller. All I now desire is, that you will please to pardon the Freedom I have taken in giving my Opinion of your Book so candidly, without being asked.

The ANSWER.

SIR,

BASHFULNESS and Ignorance are very often the Companions of the Sin I treat of. Many that are guilty of it labour under Diforders, without fuspecting the real Cause of them, and continue in their Uncleanness only for want of knowing the Confequences of it; and fome young raw People are fo much ashamed of their Guilt, that, for fear of being detected, they would never dare to complain of any troublefome Symptom occafioned by it, unlefs they were encouraged by the Example of others of about the fame Pitch of Understanding with themselves: To both these Sorts Experience has taught me, that the Letters you think would be better omitted have been beneficial, and my Confcioufnels of their being genuine, and wrote without my Knowledge or Defire, makes me despife the Ridicule I should justly deferve, if I had forged or contrived them myself. The Booksellers, through whose Hands they come to me, are good Witneffes to what I affirm; and as they perfonally know the Writers and Cafes of divers of them, who have been free, and opened themfelves to them, their Testimonies are the more Substantial. I take great Care, that all the Letters are copied Word for Word in the Print, as they were feen in the-Originals in Writing; and I cannot imagine what fhould induce Men of Sense to suspect a Fraud in the Letters of others, when Every-body fees the Exactness observed in that which he knows to be his own.

I AM obliged to you for the good Opinion you have of me and my Performance; and your well penned Letter, which I thank you for, I hope will be of Ufe to the Publick, in recommending Virtue and Purity, both by Precept and Example of your own Contrivance. AS to the Dreams you complain of, they are common to all fingle Men, especially those who live chastely, as long as their Vigour lasts. In my Answer to C. T. you will find that I have hinted at the Occasion of them, where there is a Turgescency of the Seminal Vessels. Involuntary Actions we are not to account for. When a Man keeps as great a Guard over his Thoughts as he is able whils the is awake, his Conscience needs not to be troubled at any Thing that happens in his Sleep; and therefore let no Pollutions disturb the Tranquility of your Mind, where the Will is not accessing or concerned.

«SIR,

June 27, 1734:

"CINCE you are known to be a Gentleman thoroughly experienced in the following Cafe, and none can give a better Judgment than yourfelf, you are therefore defired to fend an Answer to this Inquiry, whether you think it curable. The Cafe is thus: The Perfon who is now very much indifpofed, labours under much Faintnefs and Weaknefs, caufed by a Debility of the Seminal Veffels and a Gleet, with an Exudation from the Fundament, which Symptoms were perceived in October laft. Hypocondriac Melancholy, dreadful Pains in the Breaft, Want of Appetite, wafting of the Flesh, Atrophy, but nothing touching the Lungs fucceeded. His Appetite is now much better than it was three Months paft; but he hath hectical Heats in his Hands after Eating or Drinking, but fweats only moderately fometimes. He has had fometimes a clammy Rheum in his Mouth, and a bitterish Tafte in the Morning, which is not now fo much as it was: However, he looks pale, his Flefh is foft, and his Fibres feem to be unstrung: He has no Pains in the Head, Joints, or Legs, but fometimes great Pains in the Back and Groin: His Water is sometimes pale, with some white Contents, sometimes times high-coloured, but has no ill Smell. The Perfort has been married many Years, and has feveral Children, is now forty-five, and I know was never carnally concerned with any but his own Wife; but he thinks there might perhaps have been a Forcing that Way, and an unhappy Strain or Pull from the Hand of his deareft Friend in the Gaiety of Diversion, and Pleasantness of her Humour, which Fancies are like to prove the Death of the unhappy Man, unlefs the Gleet can be ftopped. The Gleet doth not make a great Discharge, but he cannot bear Riding with a Weeping a Pene, and an Exudation ab Ano, where there are fome Warts without Pain, caufed, as he fuppofes, by great Coffiveness. The Penis is relaxed, and the Matter which comes from it, proceeding from the Proflata, is, as that which immediately precedes Coition, white, transparent, and having no ill Smell, unlefs it continues long in the Prepuce, which fully covers the Glans. The Water is hot fometimes, and the Top of the Glans looks red at those Times: But there is no breaking-out in any Part of the Body but what feems to be fcorbutical, occafioned by the Weaknefs of the Body and Spirits. Upon any Tendency towards Erection the Weeping begins, and in his Sleep he has almost every Night a Priapifm, which goes offalittle while after he awakes: The Weakness of the Seminal Veffels caufes often large Evacuations in Sleep, after which there are great Pains in the Back. The Perfon is much emaciated, and the Remedies which have been prefcribed by fome eminent Phyficians have proved ineffectual. And, because it is known to be your Province to underftand fuch a Cafe, wherein the fick Perfon thinks there is the utmost Danger, his Blood being very much impoverished, the Balfam of it extremely weakened, and the radical Humidum almost gone, therefore hedefires your Judgment, Whether you think fuch a Cafe curable? Whether your Genital Medicies may be serviceable in this Matter, which you are then defired to fend, or any other Thing proper for the Matter? Or if the Person can take a Journey to London, he will endeavour it, if there can be any Thing done by you in a Cafe fo deplorable, where there is a Trembling of the Nerves all over the Body, an Hiffing in the Ears, and a Pulsation in the Abdomen. However, notwithstanding the Tremor Nervorum, he can hold his Hand fo steady as to write smaller than any Thing in this Letter. Your

To the Author of ONANIA.

«SIR,

⁴⁴ BEING one of those that have injured themselves by the abominable Practice so justly condemned by you in your Book, intituled the ONANIA, which, by visiting an Acquaintance about three Weeks since, I happened to light on; and having read it through, and thereby finding what dismal Consequences have attended those that have allowed themselves in the committing the grievous Sin of SELF-POLLUTION, am aftonished at the Goodness of God towards me, in not suffering the sold Calamities to light on me which have on others, who have much less deferved them than myself, who have followed this wicked Custom above five Years, being longer Time than (according to my Observation) any mentioned in your Book; and yet Q2 during all this long Courfe of Wickednefs, I have not found any great Inconveniency from it, fave that about Half a Year fince, or fomething more, I was feized with a great Dizzinefs in my Head, and a great Sinking of the Spirits, and indeed at feveral Times before, I should be taken with faintish Fits. Upon my being thus, I applied to Dr. B-d, acquainting him how I were, who ordered me feveral Things; but finding little Benefit from them, he, on feeing my Water, told me, that the Veffels of my Back were very much debilitated, and then ordered me to take of the TinEture Antiphthifica thirty Drop, every Morning, and fo at five in the Afternoon, in a Quarter of a Pint of Briftol Water, and alfo at going to Bed ten Drops of the Balfam of Gilead in a Spoonful of the Syrup of Comfry Roots, which I did; but still continuing to be ill, did determine to leave my Bufinefs (which was a Counfellor's Clerk) and go to the Place of my Nativity, in hopes that my native Air would be very ferviceable to me, which I found to answer my Expectations; for that in about a Quarter of a Year I was become pretty well, and at the Beginning of the laft Term came again to London, and have continued to be pretty well ever fince; and not imagining that my being guilty, as above, was the Caufe of my Illnefs (and which I am, by reading your Book as aforefaid, perfuaded that it was) did again return to my former Wickednefs, but not fo frequent as before. I had wont to do it once a Day, but fince my coming to London had brought it to once a Week, and from that to once a Fortnight, and from thence to three Weeks, and fo on till I had left it off for fix or feven Weeks; but at all these Times I found the Titillation to be as delectable as ever, the Seed to be rather more than usual; but the last Time (which is about a Month fince) the Titillation was very fmall, and the Semen very thin, and in it two or three little dry yellow Knobs, about the Bigness of the smallest Size of Fowling-fhot; and fince that I have hardly had an Erection, which I commonly had every Morning, as also feveral Times in a Day. I always find, that the Semen comes away in my making of Water; for that feeing as it were fmall Hairs fwimming about in it, and trying with a Feather, to take out fome of them, there hung at the End of the Feather, as it was taken out of the Water, a long String, like to thin Semen, which I find frequently comes away in my Water, I having reiterated the Trial feveral Times fince. I have also (if I fit a long while together). a Pain in the Small of my Back, and have frequently Motions to make Water. On reading your Book, at the latter End you treat of Medicines proper to relieve fuch as any injured in the Manner before-mentioned: You fay, that a Cure may be depended upon, where there is no ill Conformation of the Parts, &c. and that a Bottle or two of the Tincture will be fufficient for it, unlefs the Cafe be of long Standing, and then a Bottle or two more. But you fay, that when the Act of Generation is performed without any delectable Senfation, it is a fure Sign of a Deviation from the natural State, and that then little or no Help is to be afforded; which I fear is my Cafe, for that (although I never have experienced it in the natural Way) it did yield me the last Time I committed it little or no Delight at all, and my Defires as to Venery are very much abated. I having thus, Sir, laid open my Cafe to you, I would beg that you would pleafe to give me your Advice in the three following Particulars: The first whereof is, that if you judge I may be cured by the Medicines your Book prefcribes, how many Bottles of Tincture I had need to take ere the Cure be effected, one of which Bottles I have just begun to take. The next is. whether I have any Occasion to use the Injection, having no Gleet or Gonorrhæa, nor ever had any; and if you judge I ought to make Use of it, how much I must inject at a Time. I have done it two Days, three Times a Day, and find that there comes away in my Urine flimy Matter, much like the Scrapings of Parchment, and more of it in the Morning than at any other Times; and how long after the taking of the Tincture you will advise to ftay ere I take the Powders. And the third is, as for the future Provocations of my committing the former finful Practice I am (though young) determined to marry, and to that End have made Application to a young Gentlewoman, who I doubt not but will make me happy, and have gone fo far as to be in a Manner affured of her Affections, how long you would advise me to stay before I proceed to the Step of Court thip, which is the Solemnization of Marriage ; which is a State I will (on the other hand) never enter into, unless I find I shall be able to discharge the Duty that will then be incumbent on me. I hope, Sir, that as you have hitherto hitherto been not only charitable but merciful to thole that, by their Wickednefs, have deferved none, you will not difcontinue to be fo to one that is as great an Object of your Charity as any, perhaps, you may have met with; and that the Deficiency of your Fee (which would be inclofed if I were of Ability, but by Reafon of my lying out of Bufinels I am not, having but barely ten Shillings a Week to live on) will not deter you from condefeending to grant me the Favour of an Anfwer, which if you are pleafed to do, I would defire it might be left at the Bookfeller's as foon as your Conveniency will permit, whereby you will lay the greateft Obligations on,

«SIR,

" P. S. One Thing I had forgot, which is to acquaint you, that on the Left-fide of the Scrotum, a little below the Penis, I have a very great Itching, which I am obliged to rub, which has occasioned it to chop; be pleafed, Sir, to let me know what Courfe I must take with it."

CAN SENDERATER ME CAN SENDERATER AND SENDERA

To the most worthy Author of the Book called O NA N IA.

" Dear SIR,

"THE Liberty that fo many of my afflicted Brothers have taken in opening to you their lamentable Cafe, as the only Perfon capable of helping them in it, as well as your Readinefs in complying with their earneft Defires, by returning every one of them a most fatisfactory Answer; those, I fay, after the Perufal of your excellent and most bleffed Book, give me Hopes of Success in venturing upon the fame. Be it known to you, charitable Sir,

Sir, that I am a poor Footman (a Quality, perhaps, not worthy of your Compaffion) whole Mother notwithstanding fprung out of one of the beft Families in Flanders; but being unfortunately deluded by an English Knight's Son, I fecretly was taken Care of, and endued with a pretty good Education through my Mother's Means till I attained the Age of fifteen or fixteen Years; but (O most cruel Fate !) my Mother dying fuddenly that Time, without having the Opportunity of making any Provision for me, and confequently my Penfion not being paid as cuftomary, I was at last reduced to the aforefaid mean and fcornful Condition. I was in Hopes to move my Father's Pity by coming into England, but I found his Heart as hard as a Rock, and fo was conftrained to make a Virtue of Neceffity, though with an unspeakable Reluctancy; for I have a Spirit that aims at fomething more honourable, and lefs abject. Pardon, good Sir, this my tedious Deviation; my Intention is only purely to excite your Charity towards me, as being uncapable to fatisfy you to your Defert; but nevertheles, if any small Matter may do it, you may be fure I shall do my utmost to procure it you. My Cafe then is fuch: About the Age of fourteen or filteen Years I was fo unhappy as to meet with a Bedfellow that grafted into me (to my prefent Sorrow) that damnable and accurfed Practice, or rather that Performance of Satan called SELF-POLLUTION, and have from that Time made Use of it without any confiderable Intermission. I am sometimes fo giddy-headed, that I can fcarce make any Senfe of what People fay when in Company. My Memory has intirely failed me, fo that I can fcarce remember two or three Days at an end. I am dull, fleepy, and melancholy, fometimes to the last Degree: I cannot forbear fighing and fobbing, and often do not know for what. My bodily Forces, I think, are also much weakened, for I frequently observe, that when I get up a pretty high Pair of Stairs my Knees bent under me; neither do I walk with that Eafe and Facility as I was want to do. I feel fometimes a Sort of flying Pains in my Arms, Small of my Back, and Loins; in my Fingers alfo, the Joints of which are weakened fo, that I fear my Nerves are fome Way affected. I find my Body fometimes when I go to Bed full of Pimples, with a prodigious Itching in my Arms, Legs, and Thighs efpecially: I fcratch my Legs fometimes till the Blood comes, Whenever Whenever I chance to lean my Arms upon any Thing when I am writing or reading, they are perfectly benumbed. I fhould not forget to tell you, that fince that tender Age of mine I followed Drinking fomething more than I should have done; whether I may not, in some Measure, thank that Practice for my Ailings, I leave you to judge : As for the other, I have given it over fome fhort Time ago. Once a Week, or once a Fortnight at most, I have fome nightly Evacuations, but cannot fay that my Genitals have in the leaft retained that former Vigour as they used to have. I scarce ever have any Erections in the Day-time, without I facilitate them with handling of the Part: Therefore, good Sir, I beg the Favour to know whether I be fit for a married Life? or if I am not, whether fome of your Prefcriptions may enable me for it, being I am but twenty-feven or twenty-eight Years old as yet. Though I have for fo long a Time been led by that vile Paffion, I hope still (through the Providence of God) to fubfift in the World although with a Wife, finding that Expedient neceffary to make me adhere to my Duty towards God. Pardon, dear Sir, this long Scrawl, thinking me a great Object of your Pity; and if you receive not the Reward, you at least shall have the good Wifhes and Prayers of,

"SIR,

To the Author of ONANIA.

SIR,

April 8, 1736.

I DESIRE you would let the Bearer have another Bottle of the Strengthening Tincture; he has brought you the Price of it. I thank God I have found a great deal of Benefit by the other two Bottles. I have not now Noc-TURNAL POLLUTIONS oftener than once in four or five Nights, and those so small, that I do not perceive myself weakened by them. Indeed there is one Thing that troubles me, that is, after NOCTURNAL POLLUTION my Shirt is stained with green Spots, neither are these any less green than they used to be. Yesterday in the Afternoon I smoaked two Pipes of Tobacco, and at Night drank some Punch, but in the Morning I perceived a green Spot as broad as a Shilling upon my Shirt, and that was the only Evacuation I could perceive. Sir, I defire you would inform me whether Smoaking, or drinking the Punch, gave any Provocation to it. The Redness of the Glans of my Penis is quite cured, and the Mucus that used to ouze out upon my Glans, very much is very little now. I never perceived either my NOCTURNAL POLLUTIONS, or Mucus on the Glans, to be green above a Day or two before I wrote to you the first Letter. I never perceived any involuntary Emission upon Stool, nor after making Water. Sir, if you will be pleased to inform me in a Line or two, whether of itself the Tincture will be sufficient to work a Cure, and take away the Greenness (for I have hitherto taken neither Decoction, nor used the Injection) or whether you think a Bottle of the Reftoring Drink may be required, and you will eternally oblige,

SIR,

Your Humble Servant.

IF you will be pleased to give the Letter and Reftoring Drink to the Carrier, you shall certainly have your Money the next Week. I am naturally of a fair Complexion, but this Illness has made it somewhat yellow.

To the Author of ONANIA.

"SIR,

May 12, 1736.

"I HOPE you will pardon the frequent Trouble I have put you to with my Letters. I have made bold to trespass on your Patience once more. I am not apt to flatter myfelf with fancying I am more cured than I really am: But I believe it may be rather my Misfortune, on the contrary, to be too fuspicious of my Constitution; for I must needs fay, I think I am in a very low State of Health, for I was hardly ever leaner and thinner in my Life. But still the great Opinion I conceived of your excellent Medicine when I first read your Book, is not at all abated by the Experience I have had of it. I cannot perceive, by any Means whatfoever, that I have Noc-TURNAL POLLUTIONS frequenter than once in three or four Nights. The other Afternoon, being very fleepy (for I had been up late the Night before, but did not drink any Thing) I lay down on the Bed, but, having the Unhappiness to dream of one of the other Sex, I was awaked by a pretty large Pollution, fome of which was like a Jelly, which when it was dry was green. I perceived after this, for two or three Days, a smarting in the Calves of my Legs, fo that I thought it did me much Injury. I am apt to fweat, and it fmells dead and rank, efpecially about my Privy Parts, and is very troublefome. My Urine fmells very fweet, and is attended with fome fmall Particles like Sand, and fometimes it is hot and falt. My Penis is pretty much bent, and Thighs just near my Privy Parts are brown. I hope that Greenness cannot have any Opportunity to corrupt my Blood, or to corrode any Part, like 25 as in Perfons that have the Clap, for I do affure you I never had carnal Knowledge of any Woman in my Life. Although my Body be very thin and lean, yet the Parts of my Mind are much more vigorous and active than they were before I took the Tincture. God knows whether I had not ufed to have NOCTURNAL POLLUTI-ONS more than once a Night, but I am certain I had one every Night. Sir, the Benefits I have already received from your excellent Medicine (which I hope, with the Bleffing of God, will work a perfect Cure) in Point of Gratitude lays me under the greateft Obligation to fubfcribe myfelf,

" SIR,

" Your most Obedient

" Humble Servant.

" I WOULD not have you conclude, from what I have faid, that I defire to be fat; I only think my Conftitution is below a middle State of Health.

" I HAVE Reafon to think this hellifh Practice has hindered my Growth; but I hope the Tincture will reftore me, for I am now not above Eighteen.

" I DESIRE you would fend me two Bottles of the Tincture, I have fent a Guinea for them.

HAVING Knowledge of your being a Gentleman of Experience, make bold to relate this my Cafe, as follows: In the Book ONANIA, Eleventh Edition, Page 173, end in Page 175, which is my Cafe as exactly, as if the Perfon had known it in every Circumstance (this only excepted) a Year's Difference in our Age. I am a Perfon using the Sea, and often shifting the Climates very fuddenly, fo that in hot Weather if I ftir much I am apt to fweat very much at the Privy Parts or Thighs, and have a Pain in my Back in the Morning; my Urine I have likewife observed to be thready towards New and Full Moons, at other Times not to be perceived; have had feveral Conflicts within myfelf, whether to discover my Sin and shame; but, fearing the Cure may be imperfect without it, have writ you this in Part to fave me the Confusion of relating it to you on a personal Meeting. Be pleafed to come to the Crown Tavern behind the Royal Exchange, and ask for Numb. 6, on Tuesday, November the First, at five in the Afternoon. From,

YACWYACWYACWAACWYACWYACWYACWYACW

To the worthy Author of ONANIA.

« SIR,

St. James's, June 28, 1736.

AM one of the unhappy Persons that have so far injured myfelf by the abominable Practice of SELF . POL-LUTION, that I fear all the Means that I can make Use of will not be fufficient to reftore me to my natural Vigour. I first learned that vile Practice by the Example of a School-fellow, when I was about twelve Years of Age, and followed it till between fourteen and fifteen; in which Time I fo addicted myfelf to it, that not with ftanding every Opportunity of being by myfelf, I have not forbore to act it even in School-time, although I have been convicted by my School-fellows; but fome of them being alfo guilty, my Mafter remaining ignorant of it, for had he known it, without doubt he would have made an Example of the Offenders. I then left it off for about the Space of four Years, in which Time I frequently used to have NOCTURNAL POLLUTION, and for a great while together a Pain in my Back, that when I arofe in the Morning I have hardly been capable of gartering my Stockings. I am now in my twenty-fecond Year, and within these three Years last past I have about thirty Times acted my former detestable Practice; but fince the reading of your excellent Book (which I lately bought) I have made a Refolution never to commit the like Crime any more, hoping that God, upon my fincere Repentance, will pardon my former Tranfgreffions. If I should marry at present, I am wholy uncapable to perform the Duty of an Husband, but finding there is Relief for fome, I hope that I am not paft Help. I am at prefent an Apprentice, and obliged to rife early and fit up late, and work very hard; although I am almost out of my Time, my Parents allow me but very little Money; but I have, in my Apprenticeship, faved two Guineas, Half one one I have here inclosed, hoping you will accept of it, and, it it fuits with your Conveniency, to order me where to meet you on Sunday next in the Evening (for I cannot poffibly come on another Day) defiring you will affift me with your Advice, and what shall be necessary for my Relief, I will endeavour to pay for as I use the Medicines: Although my Circumstances at prefent confine me, that I cannot make you a Return suitable to your Merit, yet I beg that you will undertake my Cure; and, if it ever be in my Power, I do affure you I shall not forget to make Amends for the Benefit which I hope to receive.

. From your Unknown,

" But Humble Servant,

T. O.

" IF you pleafe to let me have a Line or two, with Directions where, and what Time, to meet you on Sunday Evening. Direct it for T. O. and leave it at your Bookfeller's, where I will call myfelf, or fend a Porter for it on Friday next.

To the Author of ONANIA.

" S I R, and Manhall how angil

"I AM a Perfon that was never married, nor never had the carnal Knowledge of any Woman in my Life, and am of the Age of forty-five, but have been fo unhappy as to practife SELF-POLLUTION for many Years paft, fometimes oftener, and fometimes but feldom of late, not in the leaft fufpecting it to be injurious to bodily Health; nor have I felt any ill Effects of it till this laft Spring, when in March laft I had fomething fell into my Left Tefficle, of a foftifh Substance, which made it fwell, and caufed a Pain Pain crofs my Loins, and above the Bottom of my Belly, where it continued three or four Days to my great Concern, not knowing the Caufe of it, but only fulpecting it to be occafioned by that miferable Practice. About three or four Mornings after, having my usual Erection, I ejected it out, and was for fome Time after very free from it, and very eafy; and from that Time I endeavoured to break myfelf from that vile Practice, fuppofing it to be my Seed which fell down through the Weaknefs of fome of those Parts into my Tefficles; and it has fince that feveral Times fallen into that Part when, in my Morning Erections, that my Seed is come into the Penis, and I not fuffering it to come from me, but checked it back again, have been forced to take the fame Courfe to get free from it as I did at first. It is but the other Day that I met with your Book, which I am forry I did not meet with it many Years ago, the reading of which has made me abominate that vile Practice; and fince I left it off I find, upon the leaft Occasion, or upon none at all, my Seed fall down into those Parts. There are other Ailments which, by reading your Book, I find by this Practice I have brought upon myfelf, viz. a Wafting of my Body, a Lowneis of my Voice and Spirits, and a Palpitation of the Heart, and I have a Noife in my Head like the Tinckling of a Watch. All these Ailments have fallen upon me fince the last Spring:

" I MUST now, Sir, defire your Judgment in this my Cafe, and your Advice of what is proper for me. have here inclosed a Guinea for your Advice: I must defire the Favour of you to order me fuch Things as you shall think proper and effectual for my Cafe, and defire the Favour that they may be ready at your Bookfeller's on Saturday Night, or on Monday Morning next, for they are to be fent to me by the Carrier, who goes out on Monday Morning; and I shall fend a Person for them, who will, at the Receipt of them, pay for them; What you fend me I defire may be taken with Secrecy. I have a Weakness in my Eyes, which I had some Years past, and do observe Things like Peas dart before them: I am afraid this unhappy Practice was the first Occasion of it. I should be glad if, by your Prescriptions, I could have

I SENT the proper Remedies to this Gentleman, who, upon his taking and using them as I directed him, fent me the following Letter.

To the Author of ONANIA.

SIR,

I RECEIVED yours, and find you received the Money fafe. You defired, in your last, to hear how the Medicines you fent performed: I find myfelf very well recovered, tho' I cannot fay perfectly; for my Left Testicle, which, from the Beginning of my Ailment, was always the largest, continues to be fometimes bigger than its natural Size, the other is reduced to its natural Bigness; and fometimes they both swell a little, and both are a little hard, which shews there is fome Remains of a Weakness yet left, though both the Swelling and the Hardness foon goes off again. The Powder you sent foon reduced the Swelling. Had the Medicines you fent last been each a little more in Quantity, they would have completed the S Cure:

L. B.

I CONFESS, the Number of Letters that come to me daily, from People of almost all Ages, and both Sexes, upon this Subject, more especially since the seven or eight last Editions of this Book, are surprising; and I have received, I can truly say, above fifty Times more Letters than I insert: But as every Body has Leave to write what tbey please, so I hope that, without offending in Point of Manners or Integrity, I may have the Liberty to chuse those I like best, and do not think myself obliged to print but what I judge will be useful to the Work, and beneficial to the Public; and of those who think themselves neglected on this Head, I must beg Pardon, and assure them, that when they see me not make Use of the Letters they sent me, I had some warrantable Reason why I did not.

[131]

The following remarkable Letter came while this Edition was in the Prefs.

To the ingenious Author of ONANIA.

SIR,

" CEEING in some public Papers the Advertisement O of your ONANIA, I was inclined to buy it, hoping it would enable me to forbear the Practice of what I must confess I never could reflect upon with Pleasure and Delight. After I had bought it, and read it through with a great Deal of Satisfaction, I thought if I did not leave off that pernicious Practice pointed at in your Book, I never should, as long as I continued in my present Condition, fecure the Enjoyment of my Health and Strength: Thus did I blefs myfelf with, and thank you (tho' unknown) for the Sight of a Book fo proper to all, and particularly to myfelf; and for fome Time, with what fingular Pleafure did I thank good Providence, that had directed me to fo effectual a Remedy with the Affiftance of his Grace; and thro' whole Power how pleafantly and often I did promife in my own Mind, that I would never abuse myself as I had done. But alas! how faint are our Promises, and how short-liv'd are our best Refolutions? No fooner did a little Sollicitation to Pleafure offer itfelf to my Mind, (which was about ten Days afterwards) but, like unhappy Eve, I dallied with the Temptation, and was foon overcome, not thinking of the Apostle's Advice, Flee all youthful Lusts; and having once fuffered the Enemy to scale my Walls, and enter my Citadel, I have never yet been able intirely to vanquish and subdue him; and he having both Nature and Habit ftrongly on his Side, I begin to fear that I never shall; for, as Horace lays,

Naturam expellas Furea licet usque recurret.

" AFTET having fallen again into my former Folly for three or four Times, the Thing feemed a little more venial, and I began to queftion whether all was real or no, which I fo fondly embraced upon reading over your Book; therefore I could not fatisfy myfelf without a fecond Perufal, and better Confideration; wherefore I beg Leave here to give you my Remarks which I made upon fome Parts that principally concern me; and if I feem to take the Part of myfelf, I beg you will excufe me when I affure you, it is purely to hear fome flronger Reafons on the other Side than my own Mind can furnifh me with; which I beg you would oblige me with in particular, by a Letter, and the Public in general in your next Edition.

" THE current Title of your Book being ONANIA, I can eafily allow of, it being a Word which conveys to the Mind of the Reader a tolerable Idea of the Substance of your Treatife: But when you tell us, as in Page 3, that the Sin of Onan, for which the Lord was fo angry with him that he flew him, was the fame as SELF. Pol-LUTION, by which, I suppose, you mean Masurbation, I must beg Leave to tell you, I am inclined to think that there is a very great Difference between the one and the other. You are very fenfible that it was a positive Command from Heaven, under the Mofaical Difpenfation, that if a Man's Brother died, when married, without Iffue, his Brother should go in unto his Wife, and raife up Seed unto his Brother : Now this being a politive Command of God, Onan was obliged to observe it upon a civil Account, but was refolved not to answer the Defign of God therein, the raifing up Seed unto his Brother. Further, in my Opinion, Onan semen non ejiebat solum per se ipsum, sed una cum Fæmina in Actu Coitus; and if so, then in both these Respects he differs very much from our Masturbators, most of which, I hope, are not fo wicked as to defire Perfons of their own Sex, much less of the contrary, to be their Accomplices in gratifying their innate Corruption. When Part of the Word you take Notice of to make the Thing feem a Parallel is, that the Thing which he did difpleafed the Lord, which, I must confess, I think points chiefly at the Defign of his Action, and not fo much the Action itfelf: yet if fo, as I have already faid, I think this Action is vastly differing from ordinary Masturbation. How far this may affect Perfons in a married Station I will not pretend to determine; neverthelefs, methinks, it has no great Reference to those that are unmarried, for I doubt not but Onan had been guilty feveral Times before of Masturbation, altho' we hear nothing of it, or any Punishment ensuing: And again, when you feem to infinuate. this Practice in fome Senfe comparable to Murder, I think you are a little too fevere. Perfons, indeed, that are married, or those that allow and indulge themselves in fuch an Abufe of themfelves, as to imbecilitate them, or render them abortive, do feem to favour fuch a Cenfure, and are the only Perfons that you can juftly point that Reflection at; but as for younger People, whole Circumftances will not at prefent allow them to marry, or others, who are fo moderate in the Practice as to perceive no Damage accruing from thence, ought not, in my Opinion, to be fo feverely aimed at. In deterring of Perfons (that have any Fear of offending God) from this Practice, you have cited fome Texts of Scripture, which expressly condemn Uncleanness, and exhort to glorify God in our Bodies, as well as our Spirits; but had you made it appear more fully, that the Folly you are reproving is that Uncleanness mentioned so often in facred Writ, you had certainly done a great deal of Service to your Argument, and would have made Multitudes more to forfake what they formerly thought was no Sin: For my own Part, I hope I can fay, I would not practice any one Thing in the World, how pleafant and delightful to the Flesh and Sense, if I firmly believed it was forbidden by Almighty God. What is strictly meant by the Word Uncleanness, mentioned in feveral Places of the New Teftament, I should take a great deal of Pleasure to hear nicely defined; and what Difference there may be between a voluntary Emission of the Semen, without one impure Thought or Defire, and the lawful Enjoyment of a Man's own Wife, with respect to outward Uncleannefs, and the rendering of our Bodies unfit to be the Temples of the Holy Ghoft, I do not at prefent fee very clearly. " WHAT " WHAT perhaps may add a little to my having fuch dark Notions of this Matter is, a Priest of my Acquaintance, a married Man, and for whom I have a vaft Refpect, and to whole Judgment I pay a very great Deference and Effeem (tho' I affure you I do not pin my Faith upon any Man's Sleeve) who has, to my Knowledge, followed this Practice for many Years, and yet a Man of strict Life and Conversation, and is as great an Example of Piety as almost any Man within the Verge of my Knowledge; and yet I believe he is more concerned for the gratifying of his Senfes per fe ipfum, than he is when he enjoys the Company and Society of his Wife: And my Reafon for this Opinion is what he once told me, that he never had at fuch a Time any luftful Defires after any Woman in the World, and therefore he allows himfelf in a frequent Practice that Way, which I am pretty fure he would not do if he thought it was a Sin. For my own Part, I do declare it as my present Sentiments of the Matter, that if a Perfon does reftrain and bridle his Paffion, fo as not to admit of one impure Thought, or finful Defire, the Practice may, in some Persons, be allowable. As for Boys indeed, or Persons of weakly Conffitutions, to be frequently pleafing themfelves that Way, I firmly believe it is highly prejudicial to their Health and Vigour, and in that Refpect is, and must be, displeasing to God, if they do it knowingly and allowedly; but what ill Effects a moderate Ufe may have in regard to a Perfon's Health that has arrived to one or two and twenty Years of Age, more than a lawful Enjoyment of the Pleafures of Matrimony, I could wifh to know, if there be any. Whether the Body is put to any unnatural Force when alone, which it is not expofed to in the Embraces of a Female, I folemnly proteft I am ignorant of, having never been fo unhappy as to offend my Maker, by having had carnally to do with any Woman, in the Act of Copulation, although I have many Years followed this Practice, which you feem to infinuate, in Page 7, we have neither Frailty nor Nature to plead for, when I, for my own Part, must declare, I have nothing elfe hardly to bring for an Excufe, either before God or Man. It is certain, that Perfons have, at proper Years, fome Motions to Vene-

ry,

ry, and a natural Promptitude to Pleafure that Way; and however bad Company, lewd Books, or a Familiarity with the contrary Sex, may draw young People fooner than ordinary into an Acquaintance with those Things you do, in fome Refpects, fo juftly condemn and reproach, yet it is to me a Matter of Doubt whether any one, firm in Health, living never fo fectuded from the World, has continued a Batchelor for thirty Years, without knowing of this Practice, which appears to me, I confess, almost natural.

" THERE are, indeed, a great many in the World, who are first brought into an Acquaintance of it by fome lewd Affociates and Companions, who first shew them the Way, and oftentimes lead them into the Practice; but I must acknowledge that it was not fo with me, but, purely moved by fome indwelling Defires, I ignorantly practifed what I am furprized at, and at fome Time could not tell what Judgment to pais upon it; yet I found fome Trouble of Mind often before, and foon after, every Time of indulging myfelf that Way, but this by Degrees diminished after several Repetitions, and I, by Tenderness of Age, not being capable to judge for myself, was eafily induced to believe it a harmles and innocent Practice, from the Example of Perfons more learned, aged, and pious, by far than myfelf; and if I have been fo exceffive in this Folly as to prejudice my Health, and damage my Conftitution, which I have Reason to fear I have, in some Measure, done, I must attribute my Unhappinefs, in a great Degree, to a young Student, with whom I became too much acquainted about fix or feven Years ago, who induced and obliged me, by the Influence he had over me, to a more frequent and oftener Repetition than I believe I should otherwife have been guilty of: This Course he had long practifed at School with his Companions, which is a crying Shame, yet too notorious, and frequently committed there, which, as you well observe, all Masters should endeavour to check, and put a Stop to, if possible; but, in my Opinion, it is a Practice fo immodest, that Boys ought not to be publickly fhamed and corrected for it, for feveral very confiderable Reafons; but if the Master suspects the Boy to be guilty of fuch a Crime, or likely to be fo, if he would recommend fome fuch Book as yours to his ferious Perusal, and afterwards talk to him affectingly about it, which one not long ago did to a Boy of my Knowledge with your ONANIA, which the Lad faid very much furprized him when he had read but two or three Pages; and the Mafter tells me, he hopes and believes it has, in a very great Meafure, if not entirely, diffuaded the Boy from the Trick of Youth; and I am inclined to believe, that if Mafters or others, would ferioufly warn the Guilty of the Prejudice of fuch Practice to their Bodies, how likely it is to draw them to a further indulging their Paffions in a more unlawful Way, how apt to raife finful Defires in their Souls at the Time prefent, which must certainly be displeasing to that God, who is of purer Eyes than to behold any Sin or Iniquity with Pleasure or Delight, and give them their best Advice to overcome fuch Pleafures, by praying to Almighty God for his Grace, and by a watchful keeping out of all Temptation that may work upon their Defires, avoiding an Intimacy with any of the contrary Sex, I fhould then hope that this Crime would be lefs common, and more hated. But whether it is impoffible, without the greatest Force to Nature imaginable, intirely to leave off fuch a Practice when it has been long followed, is what I would willingly know. For my own Part I must confess, all the Refolutions I have yet made are not able to fecure me from another Relapse every now and then; and whether I fhould not do myfelf a Damage by intirely leaving off fuch a continued Habit at once, I should be heartily obliged to you for your Advice about; my own Experience, as well as Phyficians, telling me, that Perfons who had habituated themfelves to hard Drinking, have foon wafted or died upon a total Denial of all, or their acuftomed Liquor; but whether there be a Refemblance in this Cafe I cannot tell, and fhould be glad of the Conversation of those that could.

"WITH Respect to Guilt before God, and the Defilement of myself, I have at present very little Horror or Concern, so far as I am free from finful Imaginations or filthy Desires, and it is so spontaneously committed as not to prejudice my Health, and unfit me for the Service of my Maker; but where it is attended with any of these evil Confequences, I must acknowlege, that I cannot review fuch an Action without fome Grief and Sorrow of Soul; and when Nature, which is now fo ftrong, and Habit, which is become almost invincible, make me uneafy without a Gratification, I confess I cannot fo fully convince my falf that it is a Sin to quench that Flame within me that Way, which I could wish to do some other Way, if this was difpleafing to God, or I knew of any better to prevent it.

" IN regard to the Effect it has upon my Body, it is not yet very confiderable, I not allowing myfelf in it fo commonly and frequently of late as heretofore; but what Seeds of Infirmities lie lurking at prefent within, or how far I may have wronged or impaired my Conffitution thereby, God only knows: This I am fenfible of, that I am nothing near fo lively and active as I were ten Yearsago; my Conftitution indeed was never fo ftrong and hail as fome Perfons, and yet not fo bad naturally as to be found Fault with, or complained of, but through Mercy I can fay, hitherto I have enjoyed an uninterrupted State of Health; yet my Senfes, I think, are not fo ftrong and penetrating, my Powers, both of Body and Mind, more dull and feeble, my Difpolition and Ability to fuffer Labour and Hardship not comparable to many of my Companions: But how far my Way of Living may contribute to this, you, perhaps, may be more capable to judge of than I am myfelf.

" I DO statedly allow myself in Bed form ten to fix, but of late have exercifed myfelf to read in Bed till I find myfelf inclined to fleep, according to one of the Rules of Directions in Pages 55, 56.

" BUT in the Morning, in Obedience to another, I find it hard to jump out of Bed as foon as I awake, when I knew my Bufiness does not oblige me to it; and feldom do I evacuate myself at any Time of the Night, but that except I have fome Bedfellow, from whofe Warmth and Company I find my Defires and Inclinations almost infufferably heightened. In the Morning I refresh myself with a moderate Breakfaft, sometimes Spoon-meat, at other Times dry Victuals, with a Draught of Ale; at Noon I Т generally eat a very hearty Meal, and drink a Draught of Ale, or a Glafs of Wine; and at Supper, unlefs I have Meat, I account it almost no Supper; and perhaps fome Times after wards, through Company, I have been induced to take too large a Quantity of Liquor, which, together with my Bufinefs, which is fedentary and fpending, may have helped not a little to this Decay, which I think I can eafily perceive in my Conflitution (particularly in my Digeftion, and my Legs and Arms, in which I feel more or lefs Pain always in the Morning, if I had drank any Thing confiderable the Night before) which, however, I would willingly redrefs by a future regular Way of Living, if I were but directed to that which is most proper to my State and Circumstance. I am fenfible, that if I should endeavour to live as hardy as fome People do, I fhould both fenfibly and fadly feel the Effects of it; therefore I would deny Nature none of her Necessaries, fo that I did not prompt her to Vanity or Excefs.

" THE Company of the Ladies I willingly fhun, especially that which is brisk and airy, finding from thence my Paffions are fo warmed, that I almost think it a Happines when I am out of their Company, that I can, in fome Measure, abate the Fire which they had kindled; and a few Hours after, the Imprefions of their Company still remaining on my Mind, I am almost as strongly tempted to a Repetition of the Fact, as before; and what is most melancholy of all, it is very hard to keep one's Mind free from finful, or at least from vain and foolifh, Imaginations at fuch a Time, fo that I effecm it as one amongst my wifest Maxims of Life, not to thrust ourfelves into the Ladies Company without Neceffity require, or we have fome Defires to ingratiate ourfelves into a particular Lady's Favour, with a Defign to offer her our Service: And though you tell us, in Page 6, that this foolifh Practice binders Marriage, and puts a full Stop to Procreation, yet I do affirm it for real Truth, that my Defires after Matrimony are ftronger than ever I perceived them in my whole Life; and I know but two Things which hinder me from attempting to make myfelf fo happy as I fondly imagine I should be in the Embraces of a chaste and virtuous young Woman, who, I hope, would quench those irregular gular Motions and Defires, which I find fo often to diffurb Firft, My Want of an agreeable Fortune and Setme, tlement for a Wife, which certainly would tend to our mutual Happiness, and which I hope, through God's Providence, I shall have in some Time; and fecondly, fearing leaft, by allowing an Intimacy with any one of the Fair Sex, I fhould be fo unhappy as to bring myfelf in to fuch a Condition as not to be able to refift a Temptation to carnal Gratification: Or like that unhappy Youth, in his Letter, Page 45, be forced to lament, that I attempted to keep a Woman company, before I have endeavoured to reftore my Health, and leave this Practice, if poffible, that I may be more fit to partake of those Pleafures that are to be met with in fuch an Alliance: However, I find my Inclinations fo ftrong that Way, that I will only wait for your Advice in answer to this; and if it may be thought proper to engage in fuch an Agreement in my prefent Condition, I fhall not defer long to fhew fome Lady or other how paffionately and fincerely I can love, chusing the Apostle's Advice, Rather to marry than to burn.

« NOW, Sir, I have thus plainly, and perhaps too rudely, given my Thoughts of fome Parts of your ingenious and valuable Treatife, and troubled you with an Account of my own Condition, and Way of Living, purely hoping, from your Gooodnefs, to receive an Anfwer of your Opinion and Advice to fome Parts thereof, if you think they are worthy your Notice or Trouble: And if you think proper to infert fome of the Contents of this too long and tedious Epistle, in your next Edition, with your Answer thereto, I am inclined to believe it will be very acceptable and a propos to many of your Readers; and what the rather induces me to defire your Anfwer to it in Public is, that your Piece, which is at prefent very useful and ferviceable, may be further complete to answer the Objections, and resolve the Doubts of all: But if you shall be fo very kind and obliging as to fend me an Anfwer in particular (which I am inclined to hope for, from your experienced Goodnefs, and univerfal Charity, to the unhappy Votaries of Pleafure) you will do me a fingular Favour, and which may contribute greatly to my Happinefs. The ANSWER.

«SIR,

THAT we are very partial, and confequently bad Judges in our own Cafes, is a Truth of which your Letter is a very uleful Example, and convincing Argument. To answer it as you defire, I must have Leave with Freedom to examine and dive into the Sentiments of your Heart, discover the Struggles that seem to be there between Virtue and Paffion, and fhew you, on the one hand, the just Fear you labour under of being a very great Sinner, and, on the other, the ardent Defire you have, and the Pains you take, to footh those Apprehensions, and lull asleep your Conscience. You have followed, you say, Masturbation for many Years, which yet you could never reflect upon with Pleasure; upon this you read the ONA-NIA, and are convinced of the Sin you committed : You thank God's good Providence for meeting with a Book that deterred deterred you from that filthy Practice, and take up a very ftrong Refolution never to be guilty of it again, but you are unable to keep it; Nature, and a vicious Habit, are too ftrong for your good Intentions, and you return to your former Folly, from which, by the Affiftance of the Divine Grace, you had been refcued.

AFTER this do but mind your own Conduct, and you will find how ftrangely our Inclinations beguile us. Could you have conquered your Paffion, it is plain to me, that you would have been glad to have had your Thoughts freed from the Imputation of that Impurity, and then my Book would, in your Opinion, have remained very ufeful, and very convincing: But finding that the Treatife, which you at first thought fuch a fovereign Antidote against Uncleanness, was not capable of hindering you from a Relapse, you imagined that it would be utterly impoffible ever to meet with any Argument or Perfuafion that could make you leave this This being your Cafe, Self-love, which, right Practice. or wrong, always will be gratified, now attacks you another Way, and makes you argue thus: If SFLF-PoL-LUTION, which I am obliged to continue, be fo heinous a Sin, as, by the Help of this ONANIA, I am perfuaded it is, I shall always be uneasy; and therefore it would be very happy for me if the Things contained in it were falfe, or that I could but confute the Arguments I have read there. It is evident, from your Letter, that from fuch a Motive you have revifed my Treatife, and when a Man fets out with fuch a Defign, and reads a Book with fuch a View, it is no Wonder he fhould difcover Faults, when, for the Eafe of his Confcience, it is fo neceffary he should find them. But, to let you see how ftrangely Self-love blinds even Men of Senfe, I defire you would fedately confider the Abfurdity of the Opinion, which you fay you are of, Quod Onan Semen non ejiciebat solum per se ipsum, sed una cum Fæmina in Actu Coitus: There is not a Word of it in the Bible, nor have the Jewish Rabbins, or the most extravagant Cabalists, that have made fuch monstrous Conjectures on other Things, even spoke of it; and yet you embrace it to justify an abominable Action which you condemn yourself, after that you are perfuaded it has done

you an Injury already, and impared your Health, Conflitution, and Manhood itfelf. As to your not boubting but that Onan had been guilty feveral Times before of Mafturbation, I can fay nothing to it; you may, with the fame Juffice, do the fame of Adam, and every Man fince him to this Day: But if you will confider what fmall Grounds you have for fuch a Belief, you will foon be convinced, that you have no Manner of Reafon to build any Thing upon it.

YOU think that I ought to have made it appear more fully, that the Folly I reprove is the Uncleanness fo often mentioned in Sacred Writ, which I confess I thought unneceffary to People that have read the Gofpel, and were acquainted with refined Notions of Virtue, and the Strictness of Morality contained in it. If not to love our Enemies be a Sin, and to luft after a Woman, committing Adultery, can any one doubt that it is Uncleannels, for the Sake of fenfual Pleafures, by our own voluntary Act and Deed to procure to ourfelves that Titillation which God has annexed to the Act of Procreation, only allowed of to be performed between a Man and his Wife? As to the Degree of Pleafure in the Emiffion of Semen by the unnatural Force in Masturbation, and that which happens in copula cum Muliere, be fatisfied, the Difference is confiderable : But I dare not be more particular on that Head, for fear of fullying the Minds of fome of my Readers; befides, that in this you may be informed by others.

I HAVE carefully read over your Letter more than once, and am perfuaded there is no Objection of Weight in it, nor Difficulty flarted, that is not anfwered and folved, either here, or in fome other Part of what has been added in this laft Edition, which I defire you would perufe, reading over the whole again with Attention, not forgetting your own Letter, and you will eafily perceive, that by continuing in the finful Practice you live in, you act against the Dictates of your own Reason, and russ Arguments to skreen yourfelf from your own Fears. Do but examine, on the other hand, your inward Inclinations, and on the other, the fophiftical Evasions you make, and you will find yourfelf wholly immerfed in Voluptuoufnels oufnels and carnal Defires, and that, like a drowning Man, you lay hold of every Straw you can catch, only to avoid the Confusion which would certainly overwhelm you, if you was to be fincere to yourfelf, and reflect on your Incapacity of fubduing your Luft, and your great Averfion to Self-denial. A Man who is fo lafcivious in his Temper, that his Defires and Inclinations are almost infuperably heighened by a Bedfellow of his own Sex, is in a dangerous Condition, and ought, far from pampering his Flesh by several Meals in a Day, to make Use of the most effectual Means to mortify it, before he can, without Folly or Impudence, hope for the Affiftance of the Divine Grace. There is no Refemblance between hard Drinkers, that fuddenly abitain from their accustomed Liquors, and luftful Persons, that at once wholly leave off Masturbation: The first may be injured many Ways, for Want of the Spirits that used to comfort them, and inftead of which they can get no Succedaneum; but the latter, if Nature requires in, will foon receive an Equivalent from NOCTURNAL POLLUTI-ONS, that will answer all the Purposes of Health. Therefore let me entreat you to leave off your finful Course, the fooner the better, and let no Inclination, or long Habit of doing ill, be a Plea to hinder your Conversion. It is by refifting Nature, and not by indulging it, that a Christian can expect God's Mercy and Forgivenels of his past Transgreffions.

「 I43]

WHAT almost raised my Indignation against your Letter, is what you relate of a Prift of your Acquaintance, who is a married Man, and has followed this Practice many Years. I have hardly Patience to fee what you write of his ftrict Life and Conversation, and his exemplary Piety. What perverfe Judgments do Men form to deceive themfelves! A Man may not be unjust in his Dealings, he may abstain from Drunkennes, Swearing, and other glaring Vices that are offenfive to the Eye of the World; but he can lay no claim to Piety, or Love of God, who continues, and is hardened, in the Practice of SELF-POLLUTION, for many Years, more especially in the State of Matrimony. A Man may flatter himfelf with his Innocence, and of his not thinking, at that Time, on any Woman in the World, as he pleases, but nothing can prompt prompt him to fuch an Action that has a Wife to go to, but Lasciviousness and Luft after senfual Pleasures. You may fee, in the Anfwer to one of the foregoing Letters, what I have faid of the Poffibility that a Perfon, in the Act of SELF-POLLUTION, should be wholly free from impure Thoughts, and you will find that this is only one of the frivolous Pretences, by which Masturbators would exculpate themselves, or at least endeavour to extenuate their Guilt. Some, to excufe themfelves, allege the Prefervation of Health, the malicious Effluvia of the Semen diutius retentum, and the Mischief to be feared from Diseases of Repletion; others, the Violence of the Stimulus Venereus, and committing Offences more odious in the Sight of God : But what Plea can a Man have for Masturbation that has a Wife, whom he may enjoy when he pleafes? Befides his Uncleanness, it is evident that he wrongs the Partner of his Bed, and if it cannot be called a Kind of Adultery, it certainly is acting quite contrary to the Precept of the Apoftle Paul, where speaking of the married Couple, he fays, Defraud ye not one another. You do not tell us that he does this when he is forced to be long absent from his Wife, but he feems to make Ufe of the one and the other promifcuoufly, for Variety Sake, which I am fure is abominable. See what I have faid in the Anfwer to the Lady's Letter, concerning the Ufes of conjugal Embraces befides Procreation. But if it was granted, that he only did eafe himfelf this Way when his Wife was in Child-bed, or otherwife difordered, or himfelf obliged, upon any other Account, to be without her for three or four Weeks, it ftill would argue the little Power he has of Forbearance over himfelf, and his Pronenefs to Carnality and fenfual Pleafures. A pious Man indulges not every Appetite the Moment it calls upon or diffurbs him; and if a Perfon can be called a good Christian, who refuses to practife the least Self-denial, then Continence, Chastity, and Virtue itself, are empty Sounds, without either Existence or Signification.

YOU fay that this Clergyman has followed, and upheld himfelf in, this Practice many Years, to your Knowlege, which to me is a Sign that he must have lost all Shame; for no married Man before ever communicated fuch a filthy Secret to another, whose Advice he stood not in

in Need of without being a great Reprobate; and therefore to conclude, Sir, I defire, whatever Refpect you may have for this Prieft, take my Advice, repent of your Ways, and pay no longer my Deference to the Judgment of a Man who can be guilty of fuch groß Errors himfelf, and all the while remain infenfible that he commits any.

AS I have, in feveral Places of this Book, taken Notice of the unaccountable Bashfulness of some People under the Effects of SELF-POLLUTION, how that they would rather die with their Maladies, as they have declared in their Letters aforefaid, than apply in Perfon to any one for Affistance, I had as little Occasion, as I had Intention, of inferting any Thing further on that Head: But, as the following Letter carries with it a more than ordinary Shamefacedness in the Writer, and happened to be brought me juft as the Pages before it were in the Prefs, and feems to be wrote from an overwhelmed Concern, and deep Remorfe of Confcience, for the Crime, I was willing to give it a Place, and take the Opportunity, at the fame Time, of observing the Necessity this shews there was of providing proper Remedies, as mentioned in Page 70 aforegoing, for fuch referved Delinquents, to be handed out to them in the private Manner following, whereby it can never be known who or what they are for, unlefs they will themfelves.

To that worthy GENTLEMAN the ingenious AUTHOR of a learned BOOK, intituled, ONANIA.

Worthy SIR, London, Oct. 12, 1732. I HUMBLY hope you will be pleafed to let this approach your Prefence, and that Almighty God will be pleafed to infpire your Heart, to have Compaffion on a pood deluded and finful Fellow. Dear Sir, I am a Perfon dejected under that heinous Sin of SELF-POLLUTION; it was the buying and reading of your excellent Book of SELF-POLLUTION, and the Christian-like Spirit wherewith it was penned, gave me fome fecret Hopes of your tender Compaffion in this my difmal Cafe. I was between fixteen and feventeen Years of Age when I first began this detestable Practice of SELF-POLLUTION; I was unhappily drawn in by the vile Example of a lewd young Man. I followed this abominable Sin for almost fix Years, more or lefs, but may be I abstained from that vile Practice for four or five Months together, and then I followed it again; and at the first Beginning that I took to this evil Courfe, I followed it once or twice a Day, then two or three Times a Week; and though I fay that it is about fix Years fince I began this fad Practice, as I mentioned before, I believe it was not above three or four Years, computing the Time I began to the Time I left off; it is almost four Years fince I left it off, but fince that I left it I have NOCTURNAL POLLUTIONS fometimes two or three Times a Week, and fometimes not in a pretty long while, but lately I have had them more frequently than ordinary; for about three Weeks ago I have had them almost every Night, though I committed no Diforder to occasion it, and I followed the Direction in your most excellent Book, of tying a String about my Neck, and the other End to my Private Parts, but I find no Benefit by it; but I have very often Noc-TURNAL POLLUTIONS in my Sleep, and in the Morning when I awake, I find a great Weakness in the Small

of my Back, and fome Pains, especially after these Noc-TURNAL POLLUTIONS; in Summer I have a small Weaknefs in my Hams, and in my Back almost always, and fometimes a Pimple on my Private Parts for a Day or two, and then it would go away as on any other Park of my Body, but I have but very few Pimples at any Time about me. I have a Weakness and small Pain in my Back, more frequent lately than ufual; I have observed the End of my Foreskin a little red, which is feldom fo above two Days at a Time, but this happens but feldom, and it is a pretty while fince I have observed any Redness at all; if I have any Pimples, it is in Spring and at Fall, and I have but few then. I have a good Stomach, and am naturally of a healthy Conftitution; I have took no Phylic for fome Years, nor have had no Diforders in my Body than what I have here related to you; I have fometimes a great Faintnefs, and Sinking of my Spirits, but this is but feldom; if I had not feen your Book, I should have rather died under my Illnefs, than have fpoken to any one about it; but hoping, Sir, you will not be worfe to me than to others you have had in cure. I do folemnly declare, I never had carnally to do with any Woman, and I am twenty-eight Years of Age this Month; meeting with your excellent Book, and there finding Advertisements of Medicines prepared for my Difease, but I was willing to advife with you, becaufe Peoples Cafes differ, and what may be good for another, may not be fo for me; and though I am but mean as to my Condition in the World, I am far from expecting your Advice gratis, but I only beg the Favour of you to let me know whether you can help me, and if you can, be pleafed, Sir, to honour me with a Line, not of Advice, but only to let me know if you can help me, and if you can, I will immediately order Half a Guinea, hoping you will accept of it from a poor young Man; It shall be left at the Bookfeller's, or at any other Place where you fhould pleafe to order; and as I have faithfully related my Condition, and I hope, Sir, you will be pleafed to give me your Advice by Letter, directed according to this Direction, for I cannot fee your Face. I should not have been thus tirefome, but knowing I have not Confidence enough to explain my Cafe to you by Word of Mouth, for I can by no Means fee your Face, but I will endeavour to answer you by Letters to what Questions you shall be pleafed to put to me. Pray, good Sir, I most humbly befeech you, for the fake of our dear Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, to have Compassion on my fad Misfortune, and that you will have an Eye of Pity on me, and not let me perifh in my Mifery. Pray, Sir, be not deaf to what I now write; pray, dear Sir, take into Confideration my Difease, and let me not perish for Want of Help, and be pleafed to let me know where these Noc-TURNAL POLLUTIONS, though involuntary in my Sleep, are finful or not, for I am afraid they are; but if they be finful or not, I find they are weakening to the Body, which I find by woful Experience. I thank you heartily for your Book; I wish I had met with so good a Discourse, on this Subject, Years ago, for until I read your Book, I was not enough convinced of the Heinoufnefs of the Sin, though I was convinced it was a Sin, but not of so detestable a Nature. I was in fear for my poor Soul; pray, good Sir, pray for me, that God would be pleafed to grant me a true Repentance. I hope that if I had been to happy as to have read your excellent Book before, I had not been drawn into this grievous Sin, I should never have been to infnared by the Wiles of the Devil. I am, with all Affection,

Your Obliged (though unknown)

Humble Servant.

PRAY, Sir, let me have an Answer as soon as possible.

Another very lately from a bashful Person.

SIR,

SIN is a most shameful Thing; I know it by Experience: Though I am not known to any of your Bookfellers, yet Though I am not known to any of your Bookfellers, yet I had not the Face to come myfelf for the Strengthening Tincture I am now taking, but I fent for it by Porters unknown to me, from Places where I was not known. It is for that Reason I dare neither see you, nor so much as to let you know where you might direct an Answer to me upon the following Particulars. I am indeed an old Sinner, having learned that abominable Practice from a Servant of my Father's, who put me upon the Trial of it before I could draw my Seed from me. This I have practifed more or less till the twenty-fixth Year, when by attempting three several Times a young and forward Woman (who loved me much, as I loved her) I found I had no ftrength in my Penis, and yet my Seed came from me as foon as I had touched her Nature. I am now thirty one; and though I have fince abstained from Masturbation, yet I have not been able to forbear polluting myself sometimes by lying on my Belly. I hope I have done with that toos for now I have a Bedfellow, and am feldom alone. I have Priapifms almost every Night, and some Nocturnal Emissions once or twice a Month, sometimes not at all in the Times: Upon Stool or Urine I do not know that ever I loft Seed above three Times. Upon the whole, I believe I should hardly yet suspect my Impotence if I had not read your Book, or had the experimental Conviction of it, as just now mentioned; and ten to one but I should be married. If my Cafe is hard, it must be because it is of a long Standing. However, I will not despair, but make Use of the Medicines prescribed in your Book: I thought I was to begin with taking the Strengthening Tincture. I have three Bottles of it; but how shall I know when I have enough, or whether they will do me any Good at all? I use neither Decoction or Injection, because I can neither prepare nor take them with Secrecy. The Prolific Powder I defign to take, take, but not till next Year, about this Time, when I shall be (God willing) in Town again: For my Situation in the Country doth not at all permit me to take Physic, unless I have a Mind it should be known. But I know not how many Papers I shall want. I do not see how I shall be able to take the Cordial Draught with Secrecy. May I not anoint with the Balfam, though I do not yet take the Powders? Sir, I would fain have an Answer, and know whether I proceed wrong, and how to do it well: But Confusion hath covered my Face; and it is not fit that such an ugly Greature should See a Man of your Character. How do I know but my State may, in many Respects, be that of others? You cannot perhaps tell but the printing of this Letter in your next Edition, with an Answer to it, according to the Premisses, may be useful to others as well as me. I hear that it is printing again : I shall certainly buy it, to fee whether you will be pleased to take Notice of my Letter. If it please God Almighty to bless your Medicines, and to reftore me, by your Advice, to the Integrity of my Nature, I shall not fail to acknowlege it in a fuitable Manner. Sir, I might now entertain you a long Time, by telling you, that my Conscience did very early oppose this Practice, having been warned against it by a good Man, who lay in the same Room with me; how I often resolved against it to no Purpose, and many Things more: But I forbare, it being of no Use either to you, or to,

SIR,

Your most unworthy Servant,

P.S. I intend to let you know all that I shall do in order to my Cure, and how it goes on. I have not yet taken above a third Part of one Bottle. I began the fifteenth of this Month at Night.

Note, This is the Letter which Mr. W. J. in Page 125, aforegoing, referred me to, as being exactly his Cafe, excepting a Year's Difference in Age.

The ANSWER.

SIR,

I AM glad that any Thing I have faid in the ONANIA has wrought a further Conviction on you, as you frankly allow it has. I fay further, because you seem, by your Letter, to have been fenfible of your Error in polluting yourfelf before you had read it. You fay alfo, that you fhould hardly have fuspected your Impotence, had you not read it, which implies your Cafe not to be fo bad as you would fear. You want my Anfwer, but dare not venture to direct how, and at laft with to fee it in Print, which I have here given you, as far as I conceive it to be needful, advising you, in the first Place, totally to abandon that vile Practice; fecondly, to read the many ufeful Exhortations the ONANIA will furnish you with, in order to enable you thereto; and, thirdly, for the Recovery of your Health and Strength, to keep strictly to the Medicines, beginning first with the Strengthening Tinsture and Viols of the Refloring Drink, and, after you have gone on with them for about two or three Weeks, then to use the Injection, and, at the fame Time, to take the Prolific Powder; and at last, to fortify the Parts, if there should be any Occafion, through the remaining Imbecility of them, the Cordial Draught, using, during the taking it, the Balfam, in the ONANIA both prefcribed, and following, as exactly as you can, in every Particular, the Rules prefcribed in taking and using them, which will foon fhew you when you may fafely leave them off. am,

Yours, &cc.

The Author of ONANIA.

[152]

The following Letter, which came from a young married Lady, for its Remarkablenefs, and that it might be a Caution to others of the fame Sex, I could not omit inferting.

To the AUTHOR of the BOOK called ONANIA.

«SIR,

December 18, 1731.

" CINCE it will be impossible for you ever to know from whom this comes, I can with Freedom relate my Cafe to you, which otherways I could not have Confidence enough so much as to mention one Tittle of it to any Physician living. My sad Cafe is, that when I was a young Girl of between fifteen and fixteen Years of Age, at the Boarding-School, being enticed and shewed the Way by three of my School-fellows, older than myfelf, which lay in my Chamber with me, two Beds being in the Room, I did as they did, which you can gue s at, and your Book tell, and I thought it was pleasing enough: I followed it afterwards upon all Opportunities by myfelf; and fo that by that Practice, and the lascivious Talk we had among ft us, and Play Books, and other Books, we used to read one to another, I was to that Degree prompted thereby, that I was refolved to marry the first Man that asked me the. Question, and the more, because my Parents used to say it was Time enough for a Husband at Four or Five-andtwenty: In short, Sir, at Sementeen I got me a Hufband, unknown to my Parents; and though he was no unequal Match, for I had a confiderable Fortune left me by

by a Relation, they turned me out of Doors, but soon after they were reconciled to us: I had three Children by my Husband in less than two Years, for I had two at a Birth, but they all died, and alfo my Husband foon after. I remained a Widow two Years, and then I married with my Friends Confent. But, alas! fuch was my Baseness during my Widowbood, I living in all Affluence and Plenty, meeting with nothing either to four or ruffle my Temper, and having no suitable Offers of marrying, and being more inclined to the Delights of the Marriage-Bed than ever, with fuch vehement Defires, more especially just before and after the Course of Nature, I could not forbear returning to my former wicked Practice, and that so often, and with so much Excess, that I could hardly fometimes walk, or fit with Eafe, I was fo fore : I indeed feared the ill Consequence, and now find it, but the Plea-Jure then would not let me bearken to that, for I had, and have now, a fad Bearing down and Forcing of the Womb, that I cannot fland long, and have another great Weakness follows me, so that I have not been so much as once with Child fince I have been married, which is now about three Years, and is a great Trouble to my felf, but much more does it discontent my Husband to have no Heir to leave what we have to: He would have me to take Advice, but as I could not tell my Cafe to any Man living, I spoke to my Midwife, and told her how I was; she asked me some Questions, which I could not answer, and she gave me fomething to take, but it did me no Good, fo that by my Husband's Order she went to Sir David Hamilton for his Advice, and he ordered me feveral Things to take, and the Bath Waters, and Injections, but nothing would do me any Good; and she going to him from Time to Time, and telling him I was no better, he faid he could do no more unless he searched me, but I absolutely resolved against that; but my Spoule faid I should, and very angrily infisted on it, so that to oblige him I said I would undergo it; and he brought Dr. Hamilton to a Relation's House, where be appointed, because he should not know us, and there 1 let him fearch me, my Mask being on, and my Widwife present; he told us that my Womb was very weak and flippery, and that he was afraid I should never have any Children, and wanted to ask me some Questions about the Caufe by myfelf, but I told him I could fay nothing of the Caufe, х

Caufe, he knew that best as he was a Physician; fo that I believe he gueffed at the Gaufe, but he ordered me down to the Bath, and he prescribed a great many Things, but all to no Purpole; and at my Return to Town, my Midwife coming to see me, and finding me no better, told me the had heard of a Doctor that had done many fuch Cures, and had published a Book about them, which she had at Home, and would bring it me to read the next Day, and brought it accordingly, which is called ONANIA. I was surprized to see a Book that so hit my Case, which made me think my Midwife fuspected the Caufe of my Illnefs. I told her I would read it through, and defired her to come to me again in a Day or two, and she did so, and then I told her I had read it, and would keep it, and we being by ourfelves, I gave her some Hints of the Cause of my. prefent Illnefs, which she faid she all along believed, and asked me some close Questions about it; so that at length, I knowing the wou'd keep all secret, I fully and freely told her the Matter; as I have here related to you, and which I have done in order to have fome Help from your Hands, if poffible; but as I cannot expect your Advice for nothing, the Perfon that brings this, which is my Midwife, will leave your Fee, a Guinea, with the Bookseller for you, and will call for your Answer in a Day or two, and I defire you wou'd not fail to leave it for ber, and therein to let me know whether the Tincture you recommend in your Book called ONANIA, or the Powder, or both, may be proper, for the Weakness is very confiderable, but perfectly white, but fo thin and fo much fometimes, that it runs from me if I Air never Jo little, and the Bearing-down fometimes very much, with a continual Pain in the Womb, and in my Back, which has worn me much away; and befides, I have now no Manner of Inclination to the Act of Procreation, and very little or no Pleasure in the Act, which I am thinking may be as much as any Thing the Reafon I can have no Children; but I have a good Stomach, and fleep well; but it is strange that I that used to be so amorous, and indeed to exceffively defirous of converting with my first Husband, should have no Inclination that Way at all to this Husband, whom I love as my Life. Sir. pray advise me for the best, and whatever the Charge is I will gladly pay it, and you shall find me very liberal, befides fo gais and and and and a for Your humble Servant.

I ADVISED this Lady by her Midwife, whom I talked with about her, to take of the TinEture and Powder, recommended in this Book, at proper Diftances; and alfo to follow fome other Methods directed to, which the carefully observed, and still continues to perfist in; and is therefore become fo much amended, that there are Hopes of a thorough Recovery, notwithstanding the Severity of her Weaknefs, &c. which was at first fo extraordinary, that I defpaired of relieving her, and accordingly gave her but very little Encouragement to expect it.

THIS Lady is fince become perfectly well, and brought to a due natural State of Health, Strength, and Vigour.

I THOUGHT here to have difmified the Reader, but confidered it might be neceffary to observe, that what has been faid in Pages 14, 15, 20, and 21, to be the Confequences of SELF-POLLUTION in Women, is a good deal made good in the Cafe of the above Letter; belides what will be found, towards the Clofe of this Book, to have been the fatal Cafe of the young Woman mentioned in the Clergyman's Letter, referred to in the Preface. And it is too justly to be feared, there are many Cafes of the like Kind, and from the fame Caufe, however induffrioufly they are concealed, even to those they apply to, and can only hope to have help from, and, for that Reason, are too often disappointed of the Relief sought for, and which, upon a true State of their Cafe, in as plain a Manner as this Lady's, in her Letter, they might probably have fucceeded in, as it is evidently known the has joyfully done. But tho' I fay it is to be feared, there are many fuch Cafes abroad, yet, on the other Hand, I cannot but own I have observed, that the many Complaints of Barrenness in that Sex (and which are chiefly among the better Sort of them) are much more generally from the other Side than their own, tho' too often to their their Wrong, as well as Difgrace, and frequently to the Prejudice of their Healths, they take the Caufe of it ignorantly, and too readily, upon themfelves. That this has been done, Dr. Baynard, in his Book of Cold Bathing, confirms likewife; for, where he has been speaking of Infertility in Men, he fays, " That he has often pitied poor, innocent, young, new-married Gentlewomen, who have sweated and stewed themselves in hot Baths, Season These unhappy Women, Jays he, thinkafter Seafon. ing the Deficiency lay on their Side, were willing to undergo any Toil or Trouble, in Hopes of a great Belly, Ec. when, alas! the Fault was in the vile and wicked whoremafterly Husband, broke and bankrupt in his Bedtackle; and this is the Reason (he tells us) of so many unhappy and miferable Marriages, and that there are in Families fo many married Maids, and makes Women ramble in queft of those Satisfactions which both Art and Nature, in a warm Conffitution, inceffantly prompts them to, and the Husband quietly to acquiesce under the Antlers of a difplayed Forehead, or to pocket his Miffortune, being confcious that his Wife's Extravagancies are the Issues of his own Infufficiencies, &c. The Organs fubservient to those Exercises having been shaked and battered in their unclean Combats, &c. fo as not to be capable after of begetting Children, or indeed to perform any conjugal Intercourfe at all, but with a great Diminution of the Pleafures and Delights to what they were before fuch Abuses; and yet the Husbands, to any outward Appearance, fhew not the leaft Sign of any Incapacity, nay rather pass for as capable Men that Way as any, but Fronti nulli Fides, and, as the above Doctor fays, they are Non Semper inferius, Sicut Superius; for that

A Man may look brisk, with Cherry Cheek, And yet below Stairs very weak. That Woman's in a doubtful Cafe, That builds her Hopes upon a Face; As one was cheated, when she chose A Husband by the Length of's Nose.

BUT yet a promifing Face, when there is no Capacity, is a hundred Times more tolerable (fay the Women) than where there are neither; a beardlefs Chin, and

and an effeminate Voice, are the the Averfion of that Sex, as well as Ridicule, and we may allow they are generally pretty good Judges that Way, as believing what Hudibrafs fays, That Want of Virility is averr'd, To be the Cause of Want of Beard.

ANOTHER very late Author (a Phyfician alfo) fpeaking of the Imbecilities and Weakneffes incident to the Fair Sex, and their Cure, fays, " There is one Calum. ny, amongst many others, Ignorance and Partiality have very unjustly thrown on them, viz. That the Barrennefs, Unfruitfulnefs, and Want of Posterity, fo frequent in England (especially among the better Sort) is commonly caft on them, whereas it is very great Odds if the Fault lies not on the other Side. If the Account of Generation, now established and confirmed by undeniable Experiencies and Observations, be true and just, which I really think it must be, viz. That the Female furnishes out only a proper Habitation, fit Nourishment, due Warmth, and fuch like outward Conveniencies for the little Beings; but that the vital Principles, the living Particles, proceed altogether from the Male, then it will follow, that the Concurrence of a great many more Circumstances, and their precise Degrees (which he enumerates) is more neceffary for Fecundity in the Male than in the Female. The Liberties Men take beyond Women, the Riot they run into, their continued Debauches, the Vicifitude of Heaters and Coolers, the high feafoned and inflaming Diet the better Sort of young Perfons of our Sex accustom themselves to, will more than sufficiently justify this my Observation. How can Fruit be expected from a Tree whofe Root is roafted, spiced, or falted to a Mineral? Life is likely to hold long, or be very healthy, that comes feasoned and fowfed in Hermitage, Tokay, or Citron Water. How fertile are the Scotch Highlanders on their Milk and Oatmeal, and the native Irish on their Potatoes and Milk? It is common to fee at their Doors a Range of Children, like the Steps of a Stair, thewing the Number of Years fince their Parents came together; whereas here in England you shall fee great Families extinguish, and large Estates defcend to an OAler or a Centinel, scarce within arithmetical Degrees of Kindred, for want even of a Female, in a direct Line, to inherit. Such Observations as these, as my Friend (lays he) has fince informed me, enabled him to direct feveral Families, which he named to me, towards Heirs of their own Bodies, who had lived fome feven, some ten, some more Years, from their Marriage, in Despair of any. And I am very certain, continues he, if those who are so very anxious for Posterity, the Want of which feems to make their worldly Mifery, would in any Time, not long after the Meridian of their Lives, enter upon a Course of cooling, sweetening, and fructifying their Juices, by imitating the Labour and Diet of the Poor, and other proper Affiftance, they would more certainly give Heirs to their Families, and enjoy better Health themselves than they do, provided there be not a Scrophulous and Venereal Taint on either Side; in which Cafe I think their Infæcundity is no Misfortune." Meaning, I fuppofe, if by their own Procurement.

THE Act of Generation is never like, as fays ano. ther Author, to prove more fuccefsful, than when the Faculties and Defires of both Sexes are reciprocally powerful, and the just Means to preferve the genital Forces on both Sides, in a just and laudable Equality, is to be careful never to impair Nature, by either an Excels of ftrong Liquors, or to fall into a vile Habit of inordinate Venery, both which are very great Enemies to the pleafing and profitable Work of Generation; without a moderate commendable Use of which, the grim King of Terrors must foon reign triumphant over the whole Univerfe, and the World be reduced from all its fplendid Improvements to an uninhabitable Wildernefs: Therefore it remains as a principal Duty upon Mankind, to beget their Like in a lawful Way, that whenever they are called to their last Home, they may leave the Beauties of the Creation to be comfortably enjoyed by a hopeful Posterity; that they their Bones are mouldered to their first Original, their Names may flourish to the last Day; for which Reafon Providence has ordained different Sexes of the fame Species, and has implanted in them a mutual Affection to each other, that they may affociate together with inexpreffible Delight, and cordially join with a voluptuous luptuous Extafy to themfelves, in this great and noble Work for which they are appointed: therefore it is abfolutely neceffary, whenever they engage in this endearing Duty, that they look beyond the bare pleafing Senfuality, and have a juft Regard for that most glorious End for which it was chiefly conflituted; and not to use it with fuch bestial Indecencies, as to make that finful which may be lawfully enjoyed both with Delight and Benefit to both Sexes.

ALL what these Authors have fo rightly set for the to be the Effects of hard Drinking, hot and high-feasoned Diet, inordinate Venery, and the like Debauches, may be juftly faid of SELF-POLLUTION, and more, as the Confequences thereof have been worse, and harder, if ever, to be intirely retrieved; and where these Excessions meet, or are accompanied with the additional Effects of a third, viz. Whoring, how deplorable must that Case be, and insuperable the Difficulties of it? That this has been the lamentable Condition of some, what is said to have been the Fate of the young Man mentioned in the Clergyman's Letter, which here follows, and which I referred the Reader to in the Preface, is an Instance as notorious as it is furprising.

END E COLEEND E COLEEND E COLEEND E COLEEND

To the ingenious Author of ONANIA.

Sept. 24, 1742.

"IN April laft I wrote a Letter to Mr. Corbett, fignifying that I had read your most ingenious Book called ONANIA, much to my Satisfaction, and told him I believed it would do a great deal of Service in the World, by deterring youth from that vile and base Practice. Several of my Brethren the Clergy, as well as other Friends, by my Recommendation, bought it also, and were of my Opinion when they had read it. Another Friend of mine called at Mr. Corbett's Shop for one, but was told it was out of Print, but that it was a printing again, with large Additions. As foon as I heard of it, I bethought myself of my Promife in my Letter to Mr. Corbett, of fending you a remarkable Occurrence or two, of my own Knowledge, to be inferted for the Good of others, to deter them from that evil and pernicious Practice, in your next Edition. I here accordingly make Good that Promife, and hope they come not too late: Had I known you fhould have Occasion to print the Book again fo foon, I would have fent you them in better Time. The Occurrences I mentioned are thefe: I hinted in my Letter, which I suppose Mr. Corbett shewed you, that I was a Clergyman, and kept a School ;* I had a Youth of fome Note my Scholar, who for feveral Years, from the Age of fifteen, very profulely addicted himfelf to the cruel and finful Practice of Masturbation; he alfo followed as he could get Time, as extravagantly, that of lying with lewd Women, and Drinking, whereby he got no lefs than three Claps and two Poxes by that Time he was twenty-one. These brought him into divers other Diforders, but more especially into Miseries of the private Parts, and though he was most excessively weak in them as to any Venereal Defire, and had a hard and painful Swelling upon one of his Tefficles, and the other fhrunk to nothing, and the fpermatic Veffels leading down to them cluftered, or twifted like Ropes. yet he had fuch conftant and ftrong Erections, that he often voided Blood through the Urethra involuntarily, which the Surgeon, who, with myfelf and his other Friends, advised him to, called a Satyriafis or Priapifm, but it gave him rather Pleafure than Pain. He had a great Diforder in his Urine with it, that at Times was very painful. Under this Condition he laboured, and badly enough feit the Effects of his enormous Crimes for many Months, and went thro' two Salivations, and divers other Courfes of Phyfic, by a Confultation of feveral eminent Phyficians and Surgeons; but in fpite of all they could do, the whole Matter, at length, iffued in a very deep ftinking Ulcer in his Bladder, which, by Degrees, wore him to a Skeleton, that he died tabid ; but for about three Months before he expired, he flunk fo intolerably, that Nobody could could ftay a Quarter of an Hour in the Room, without holding fome ftrong or volatile Aromatic to their Nofe. The Caufe of this Ail of his, all the Doctors allowed, proceeded at first from the SELF-POLLUTION more than from either his Drinking or Whoring, but was extremely heightened and aggravated by both.

THE other Cafe is this: Some Time after the faid Death of this young Man, upon my fmoaking a Pipe, and talking with one of the Phylicians that attended him, who also practifed Midwifry, he told me what he had observ'd in a young Woman of about Nineteen, that was his Patient: She was a Person of a fanguine Complexion, and hot and luftful Temperament, which overcoming the virtuous Principles fhe in her younger Days had imbibed, was prompted to abuse herself in the Commission of that foul and enormous Sin which you have, with fo much Goodnefs, exposed, and shewn the Danger of. She confessed, that fhe had lived in that Practice from the Age of Fourteen, and that fhe had often bewailed, by herfelf, the Folly of it, with a Refolution to leave it off, but could not keep it, but never imagined either any Sin or Danger in it, any more than that the believed the had robbed herfelf of her Virgin Badge, which the dreaded the Confequence of thould fhe marry: The Inftruments fhe chofe to gratify her Luft with, are by no Means proper to be named here; by the Nature of them, and the Frequency of their Ufe, fhe brought herfelf into a most miserable Condition; and the more she followed the Practice, the oftener were her Defires heightened, till at Length, by the Excefs, it brought her into many dangerous Diftempers, and fevere Womb Weakneffes, which obliged her to require the Affiftance of a skilful Phyfician, but no Help could be afforded her; for, after all, a Furor Uterinus feized her, and that fo violently, that in the Fits of them fhe would extravagantly fcream out, talk obscenely, pull up her Coats, and throw off the Bed-cloaths, calling to, and laying hold of, any Man fhe faw, or could come at, to lie with her; and, what was remarkable, it was observed, that in the Height of one of those lascivious Fits, by the Violence of the ftimulating Power upon the Ovaria, there were externed or fhed fome of the Ova, which my Friend, the Phyfician that attended her, fays, the Nurfe fnewed him, as wonderwondering what they fhould mean, and that he had more than once feen feveral of them which came from her at a Time. She living in this Condition, fometimes better, and at other Times worfe, till the was three-and-twenty, and all of a fudden, in a most violent Fit, died raving. Upon Opening her, which was done in the Prefence of feveral Phyficians and Surgeons, the Extremity or Glans of the Clitoris, called by the Latins Preputium Muliebre. which was much above its natural Size, and which, as Phyficians fay, is the chief Seat of Pleafure in Women, was observed to be invested with a sharp corroding tettery Humour, which they imagined muft, in that Part, itch to a prodigious Degree, and occafion the infuperable Titillation and Defire; and it was their Opinion, that the acrimonious Humour which that Part was affected with, had been enticed thither by the Method and Means fhe had fo long taken with herfelf; and yet this young Woman folemnly affured them, when the was feveral Times asked, that fhe never had the leaft carnal Knowlege of any Man living. I am,

" P. S. I have, by the Method I have taken, effectually prevented that foul Practice in my School; and, the better to inculcate the Danger of it in the Minds of the Youth under my Care, I have collected the Injuries and fad Inftances you have taken Notice to have accrued thereby, together with the wholefome Admonitions therein laid down, und turned them into Latin, the more to be obferved; and to oblige the Head of every Form to read audably to the reft, fuch a Part as I appoint, twice in every Week, to raife a Deteftation in them of it; and I could wifh that every other Schoolmafter in the City and Country would do the like. « SIR,

" AM an utter Stranger to you, but yet could not forbear to let you know that I had long observed an Advertisement of your little Book, called ONANIA, aginst SELF-POLLUTION, fold for Three Shillings fix-Pence, by Mr. Corbett, a Bookfeller, in Fleet freet, but had no Curiofity to fee it till within thefe two or three Weeks, that I heard it commended by one that had read it; upon which I writ to my Bookfeller in London, to get one of the New Edition, and fend me. When I entered into it I could not leave it till I had read it through, and being a Schoolmafter, and having feveral Times furprifed both my Boarders and other Scholars at the Practice which your Book justly reprehends, I read to them, as Occasion offered, those Paragraphs, wherein you fo wifely and truly condemn the Enormity thereof, infomuch that, together with the Letters, fhewing the Sufferings of many Youth thereby, I have Reafon to believe it has deterred them all, even to a fingle Boy, from that Practice for the Future. My Spoule has a Sifter in the fame City where I dwell, that keeps a Boarding-school for Girls; and the having told her feveral Times, with Concern, of fome vile Practices that Way in the elder Girls, whom fhe has caught, I got another of the ONANIA, and fent it her by my Wife, first turning down the Parts of the Book that relate to that Sex, and which I hear has had a very good Effect, as it has drawn them into a Confeffion of that abominable Crime with Tears, and Refolutions to abandon it for the future. But what, Sir, amazes me most is, that any of either Sex, as your Book takes Notice of, fhould purfue fuch Vilenefs in a married State, when the Man and Wife bed together, and there is no Impediment in the one or the other to hinder the lawful lawful Enjoyments. This makes me to be the more of the Opinion of the dignified Clergyman, who in his Letter, in the Preface of ONANIA, fays, That it ought to be read by all Sorts of People, of both Sexes, of what Age, Degree, Profession, or Condition foever, guilty or not guilty of the Sin declaimed against. And, I fay it is Pity but that every Man, Woman, or Child, in the Nation, that is capable of reading and understanding it, should have one of them, as it contains the best Rules for Chastity, and Admonitions founded on Reason and Scripture, that is possible, to deter from the Enormities of the Flesh. I heartily wish it may have with all, the same Success it has had with the Youth of both Sexes under mine and my Sister's Care.

" Your most Humble Servant,

⁵⁴I AM one amongft that unhappy Number, who have been guilty of that moft abominable Sin of SELF-POLLUTION, to the Detriment both of my Body and Soul. It is now about four Years ago fince I firft faw your excellent Book, the reading of which put me into a very great Concern, to think that I fhould be guilty of a Sin fo long, which had brought me into fo deplorable a Condition; though my Cafe was fo bad, I was refolved not to make any one acquainted therewith, but by Fafting, and other Methods recommended in your Book, to abftain from that vile Practice: But alas! in a little Time I was troubled with NOCTURNAL POLLUTIONS, Heat of Urine, was very coffive in my Body: In this moft fad miferable Condition I went on, till fuch Time I was obliged to make my Cafe known to a Surgeon, who, upon Sight of my Members, told me that I had got the Foul Difeafe from fome naughty Woman; but I can appeal to Almighty God for my Innocency, who knows the Secrets of all Actions, that I am an utter Stranger to the carnal Knowlege of any Woman. I took feveral Things by his Directions, and have taken feveral Bottles of your Strengthening Tincture, which I have found fome Benefat from; but as I still labour under very great Diforders, you knowing the Particulars of my Cafe, fills me with Hope you can preferibe that which may recover me.

" I HAVE a Weakness in my Testicles, my Right one is fmall and weak, but the Left one is longer; there is fomething hard in the Veffels, which I fuppofe to be the Semen fallen into it, which is very hot, and gives me a great Uneafinefs; my Yard is fmall and weak, have very feldom an Erection, my Urine is very hot. I have the Piles very often, which I take to be owing to the Weaknefs of my Body; my NOCTURNAL POLLUTIONS are but feldom to what they used to be; I am troubled with Flushings in the Face: All these Things gives me a deal of I rouble, dreading what may be the Confequences. Dear Sir, I defire you to leave your Answer with the Bookfeller, whether you have known any in my Cafe cured; if fo, pray direct me to those of your Medicines mentioned in your Book, that may be most proper for my Cure. I shall not forget your Fee, which I have ordered to be left on the Receipt of your Answer, by the Perfon who brings this. Let your Answer be directed as I fubscribe myself, se Yours,

" ONUS, A. C.

66 I AM about twenty-three Years of Age.

" PRAY leave the Anfwer with the Bookfeller, till called for by the Perfon who brings this." IN Answer to this Letter, I advised the Patient to take the Strengthening Tincture, and the Viols of the Restoring Drink, which, upon his Request, I sent him accordingly; and after he had taken them for awhile, he sent me the following Letter of Success.

To the Author of ONANIA.

" Most worthy SIR,

Nov. 29, 1739.

"T RECEIVED the Basket, in which was every I Thing according to your Account, and have made Use of them according to the Directions of your Book, and have found a great deal of Benefit, viz. My Urine is not near fo hot as ufual, and I make it more freely, though there continues still fome Sharpnefs; my Right Tefticle is now much bigger, my Left is not fo hot as ufual, nor hangs down fo much (for which the Trufs is of great Service to me) my Spermatic Arteries are much ftrengthened; do find that my Blood and Spirits, and my whole Conflitution is much amended: I have a good Stomach to my Victuals, and begin to grow fat. Your Medicines gave me one or two Stools a Day; the Reftoring Drink being gone two or three Days fooner than the Tincture, I have taken it alone, fince which I have been more coffive in my Body; do beg of you to mention what Sort of Diet is most proper for me, and whether Smoaking is prejudicial or not. Dear Sir, I beg of you to judge of my Cafe, and fend whatever may be more neceffary to recover me, and that it may be left directed as I subscribe myfelf, on Thursday, being the second Day of December: I beg of you that it may be left at the Bookfeller's that Morning by eleven or twelve o'Clock at Noon, at about which Time there will be a Perion call for them, and pay the Charges as directed. I do humbly thank you for your Advice, &c. which have been fo ferviceable

ble to me; do hope it will pleafe God, in his Goodnefs, to blefs those further Means that may be made Use of to my perfect Recovery. Pleafe to tell me what will be the Signs of my thorough Recovery. I subscribe myfelf, as before,

" Your most Obliged,

" Humble Servant,

" ONUS, A. C."

THIS Patient finding great Benefit by the faid Tincture and Viols, I advifed him to go on with them a little longer; which he did, and then he fent me the following Letter.

To the Author of ONANIA.

" Most worthy SIR,

Jan. 3, 1739-40.

"T RECEIVED yours, &c. in the Basket, all which I have fince make Use of, do still continue to be better, more strong, active, and lively. I have a good Appetite to my Victuals, and fleep well; but ftill there remains a Heat in my Left Tefficle, and fome Sharpnels in my Urine, which I hope in Time will wear off. My Teeth are bad with the Scurvy, I do suppose, being loose, and the Gumbs very much eat away. I defire you to fend me whatever more may be neceffary for me, though I am unfpeakably better in every Refpect; yet I am fenfible I am capable of being in better Health, by your Advice and Medicines, which I hope, by the Bleffing of God, I fhall foon fee. I observe you mention in your Book the Prolific Powder, and Balfam, which I have not made Ufe of, which if you think proper for me, I defire you to fend it. Was

Was I well, I have a great Defire to enter into the married State; do defire to know how long it may be proper to ftay before I engage in it. I heartily thank you for your Care and Trouble, and do defire that the Medicines may be packed clofe up, at the Bookfeller's, againft Tuefday Morning, by nine o'Clock, at which Time the Bearer will come and pay for them, as wrote on the Direction; likewife I have ordered your Fee. I am, as before,

" Your for ever Obliged,

" Humble Servant,

" ONUS, A. C.

" I HAVE POLLUTIONS but very feldom, but very often ftrong Erections."

UPON this Letter I fent him what he wrote for, by which he was compleatly reftored.

 N_{71}^{OTE} , The two Medicines mentioned in Page 70, 71, aforegoing, are to be had, by the Author's Appointment, now Only of C. CORBETT, Bookfeller, opposite St. Dunstan's Church, Fleet-flreet, who fells this Book; the first of which is to be asked for, by the Name of

The STRENGTHENING TINCTURE,

The other by the Name of

The PROLIFIC POWDER.

AND are now both fo much improved to what they have hitherto been (as will eafily be perceived by their Tafte, Smell, and Colour, as well as Effects) that it is prefumed, fumed, no Medicine, for the Purpofes intended, can be more judicioufly contrived, or efficacioufly adapted.

THEY are now, I fay, only to be had at the faid Mr. C. Corbett's Shop, as directed above, and will be delivered to any Meffenger, fealed up with the fame Seal as here in the Margin, whereby they can never be either counterfeited, altered, or diminifhed.

AND are each of them to be taken, in the feveral Cafes mentioned, according to the following Directions, viz.

OF the Strengthening Tincture 50 Drops, which is about a Tea-spoonful (shaking it well first) dropped or poured upon a little powdered Sugar in a Spoon, which will make it into a Sort of Paste, and, when you have swallowed it down, drink immediately after it a Dose of the Restoring Drink, which will be by and by spoke of, taking it the last Thing going to Bed, having supped at least an Hour before, and also the first Thing in the Morning, fasting for near an Hour after it, and then you may eat and drink, and go abroad as usual.

THIS Tincture is of an alterative, balfamic Quality, whereby it not only regulates and amends the whole Mafs of Juices, and corrects the Acrimony of the Humours, but prevents the falling of them down upon the Glandules of the Urethra, and Parts contiguous, which caufe Gonorrhæas, Gleetings, Emiffions of Seed upon Stool, or in making of Water, NOCTURNAL POLLUTIONS, external Rednefs, or Ouzings of Mucus, or a Moifture in Men, as well between the Glans and Preputium as from the Paffage, which being harboured there, fpreads a white Furrinefs upon the Nut, and the Infides of the Prepuce, and fometimes fmell rank.

IN Women it falls on the Glans in the Vagina, caufing the Whites, a Bearing down or Relaxation of the Womb, Pain or Weaknefs in the Back, and inward Waftings and Decays, which, by its reftraining, balmy, and more than common bealing, agglutinating Virtues, this Medicine Z prevents, as also the undue Shedding of the Seed or Mucus in either Sex, which latter, in the Weakneffes mentioned, does almost continually iffue or ouze from those Glands, and Parts adjoining, and, by Degrees, much impairs Nature.

IT at the fame Time corroborates and confirms the Tone of the Parts, that very feldom, if ever, any Relapfesenfue, unlefs upon fome remarkable Hurt received, or frefh Irregularity committed to occafion them. And what further adds to its Excellency, and renders it vaftly more valuable, is, that it is the moft certain Remedy known, and, by reiterated Experience, proved, to help or forward Conception, and prevent Mifcarriages in Wo-men, tho' they had never conceived for Years together, or when they had, have mifcarried feveral Time before. For this it is held in Effeem by many Midwives, who, for thofe Exigencies, keep it always ready by them. And, befides its being a very pleafant Medicine to take, it is perfectly agreeable to the Stomachs of every Body, and is, in all Refpects, a comfortable and generous Cordial.

THE Price is Half a Guinea the large Ounce Bottle, being fomewhat bigger than they ufed to be : Two or three of them most commonly cure, unless where the Cafe has been of long Standing, and the Glands and Seminal Veffels very much debilitated, and then a Bottle or two more of it may be required.

THE Phyfician that imparted this, and the other Medicine spoke of, said also, that if either Sex would, in all the Cases mentioned, during the taking of this *Tinc*ture, drink of the Decostion, and likewise make use of the Injestion following, they would very much expedite and facilitate the Cure.

The DECOCTION is this.

TAKE Archangel Flowers dried, fix Handfuls; Cypress Roots, and Galangal Roots, both bruised, of each two Ounces; Bistort Roots bruised, an Ounce; Roots of Osmand Royal, cut small, two Ounces; Red Rose Leaves, four HandHandfuls; Isinglass cut small, three Ounces; boil them all in eight Quarts of Water till it comes to six Quarts. strain it, and drink of it a Quart a Day, viz. Half a Pint in the Morning, an Hour or two after you have taken the Drops; a Pint at Noon with your Dinner, and Half a Pint at Night, an Hour or two before you take the Drops, either warm or cold.

The INJECTION is this.

TAKE Sugar of Lead, a Dram; white Vitriol, a Dram; Roch Allum, a Dram; powder the Vitriol and Allum, and put them, with the Sugar of Lead, into a Pint and an Half of Smith's Forge Water, then pour them into a digesting Glass, and set it in a moderate Sand-heat, close covered, for ten Days, then take it out, and, when it is cold, add Spirits of Wine campborated, three Spoonfuls; shake them well together, and filter it, or let it well settle; then pour off the clear, which will be as fine as Rock Water. It is to be used by Men three or four Times a Day, with a proper Syringe, and by Women with a Womb Syringe, as often ; and if it be injected fo warm as eafily to be borne with, especially by Women, the better. If it fhould fmart much, or give any Uneafinefs, it may be weakened with a little more of the Smith's Forge Water. Thefe two Medicines will be made up at a fmall Charge by any Apothecary. In many Cafes I have obferved, that the Bath or Briftol Well Water, with the Tincture, to have had the fame Effects, and in fome People more than the Decostion, by only drinking a Pint, at feveral Draughts, after every Dofe.

BUT as Experience is the beft Schoolmafter, I muft admonish those of my Readers who may stand in Need of physical Assistance, that, since the Publication of the Sixth Edition of this Book, I have (in order to bring the Cure of the Disorders and Infirmities spoken of into as narrow a Compass as possible, as well in regard to Dispatch as Expence) prepared a pleasant Drink (to be asked for by the Name of the Restoring Drink) to be taken with the Strengthening Tinsture, as before-mentioned, which, by many Trials and Observations, I have found to answer all that can be expected by, and be vastly preferable to, either the above Decostion, or the Bath or Briffol Water, by only drinking Half a Pint of it (fhaking it very well first) every Night and Morning, after the Tinsture, as before directed, which, as it will more immediately convey the Efficacy of the Tincture to the Parts affected, fo it will be a better Vehicle by far and of more Service than the Decostion, or any other Vehicle, in fpeedily compleating the Cure, I cannot but recommend it to be taken inftead thereof, without taking or using any other Medicine at all except the above Injection, whofe Use in Gleets in Men, the Whites and other Womb Weaknesses in Women, is advised to, as mentioned in th'; Book. This Restoring Drink is also to be had at the faid Bookfeller's, at Four Shillings a Flask, each holding about five half Pints, and is fealed up with the fame Seal as the Tincture. But yet

el-

NOTE, That though of this Drink the Bookfeller has fold very large Quantities, which have been owned to him to have had the expected Effects, yet the Bulk of feveral Flasks (many having had them by Dozens. at a Time) having been complained of by most People, and even of fingle ones, as not being fo portable, and consequently not of so easy or private Conveyance; the Author has now so contrived and ordered the Ingredients compounding it, that they will not fill above a Quarter of a Pint Viol (which may be carried away in the Pocket) and which by being well shook, and poured into an empty Spaw Water Flask, or any other Bottle that will hold about five Half-pints, and then filled up with fair Water, and well shaken together, makes the aforefaid Reftoring Drink, of the same Goodness, and in the same Perfection, or better (as by this Means it will be always fresher, and keep longer, than it used to do in the Flasks). and will answer, in every Respect, the same as that did, and is also to be taken after the same Manner. Those Viols are sealed up with the same Seal as is the Tincture, and as the Flasks used to be, and are to be had only at Mr. Corbett's, Bookfeller, named in the Title-Page, at the fame Price of the Flasks, viz. Four Shillings eack Viol, and is to be asked for by the Name of a Viol of the Reftoring Drink.

AND

AND as the real Efficacy (as well as Conveniency) of the Viols, and the Strengthening Tincture, taken together as directed, has been, to Numbers of People, exceedingly confiderable, even in doing all that was neceffary, and could be expected, in first rectifying the Diforders of the Body, and then reftoring in the most exceffive weakening Imbecilities of the Seminals and Genitals, which those who, by the immoderate Practice of SELF. POLLUTION, Sc. had brought upon themselves, I could not but again, and can hardly fufficiently enough, recommend them; and among the many Letters acknowledging their Virtues, and good Effects, in fome of the worft of Cafes that have been fent me, I cannot help inferting the following as a Specimen, which came to my Hands whilft ONANIA was reprinting in the Prefs. 1 shall first give the Reader the Letter of the Patient's Cafe, and then the two he fent me after he had taken the faid two Medicines.

To the most worthy Author of ONANIA.

" SIR, London, Feb. 2, 1739-40.

" ITTH humble Submiffion, beg Leave to trouble you with these few Lines, as follows. Sir, I am one of those unhappy young Youths, that have injured themfelves by that most abominable Practice of SELF-POLLUTION, of which I do earneftly repent, and am heartily forry. Sir, the first Time that ever I knew any Thing of that most heinous Sin, I was about my feventeenth Year, when I was fhewn by a Man that was old enough to have been my Father; he was at leaft 50 Years of Age; not only that, but the deteftable Sin of Fornication, which Practice I committed about twenty Times; the very first Time I committed it I got a small Damage, of which I got foon well; and about Half a Year ago I got another, which proved more fatal than the other, for it was for the Space of four Months before I got well; but having met with your well-penned excellent Book against SELF-POLLUTION, and fuch like finful Practices, in which I found fome Cafes in relation to mine, which puts me in a great deal of Terror, thinking what Damage I have done my poor Soul and Body, being ignorant of it before. I have, for this three Quarters of a Year, Pimples continually going and coming upon my Face and Head, and fome Parts of my Body; I am apt to fqueeze them, and comes a white Matter, then follows a Water; I have had feveral upon my Members as big as grey Peas. I am troubled with fad Dreams, fo that I cannot get my natural Reft. I have had NOCTURNAL POLLUTIONS about fix Times, all within these twelve Months, none before. My Memory I find is fomething fhorter than usual; my Secrets are very weak to what they used to be, and I have not fuch , a Force with my Water as usual; my Nut under my Foreskin is full of fmall Pimples, about the Bignefs of Pins Heads; it is very fore, and very much inflamed. I have had for this Year and Half, a great Scalding in my Water, and is generally very foul, and fmall Things fwimming about in it. I feel no Manner of Painsabout my Body, which makes me to think it is much the better. I am now about my twentieth Year; it is about three Years fince I have followed this most horrid Practice, fometimes twice a Week, fometimes thrice, fometimes twice a Fortnight, and fometimes once in three Weeks. O abominable Sinner against my bleffed Maker! Therefore as I do here, in the Prefence of Almighty GOD, folemnly and truly declare, I never will follow that deteftable Practice any more; if I had but known the Confequences of it, I never would have done it. Sir, I beg that you would be pleafed to give me what Directions you think proper for the Cure; there is a great many good Directions in your Book, I do believe; but, Sir, if you please to tell me how many Bottles of Tincture will do, or whether I need use all the Things that your Book mentions. Sir, I am an Apprentice, and have a Year and Half to ferve of my Time, my Friends will allow me but little Money, but I have faved up two Guineasin my Apprenticeship; herein, Sir, I have inclofed Half a Guinea to you, hoping that you will be pleafed to accept of it, and, when I am out of my Time, I will

I will be fure to make you Amends, and you shall ever have the hearty Prayers of,

" PRAY, Sir, direct for Mr. E-, at Mr. Corbett's, and I will call or fend on Saturday next for it."

UPON this Patient's taking the Strengthening Tincture, and Viols of the Restoring Drink, which I advised him to begin with, and continue for a while, he sent me the two following Letters of their Effects.

To the most worthy Author of ONANIA.

SIR,

London, Feb. 23, 1739-40.

TOURS I received the 8th Instant with great Joy and Thankfulnefs, and, to my great Satisfaction, as foon as I received yours, I began with the Tincture, and Viol of the Reftoring Drink. I have taak one Bottle, with Four Viols of the Reftoring Drink, and I do find my felf much amended, which I do return my hearty Thanks for. I was not willing to proceed any further, before I let you know how it is fince I have began with your Directions : I have had three NOCTURNAL POLLUTIONS, which I never had but fix before; but as you fay, in your ONA-NIA, lying upon the Back is a very great Friend to that, for every Time I had them I was upon my Back; but I will take Gare to prevent it for the Future : My Water is still the same, foul, with Things swimming about in it, and the Pimples of my Face is not yet abated, but, to my thinking, encreases, but much smaller than usual. I find myself stronger, brisker, and livelier, and those Parts that were much weakened are now become firing and well, to to my thinking. But, Sir, I am the most concerned as possible can be, because I am not, at this Time, in a Capacity to make you Amends: I do thank you, Sir, for the Good you have done me, I never can make you Amends; and, had it not been for your Christian-like Book, I might, consequently, have followed it to my Life's End: But, Sir, in a small Time, when I am of Age, I then, Sir, shall be more able, for now I am allowed but very little Money. I hope, Sir, you will be pleased to further direct me as you think proper, and, Sir, you shall ever have the hearty Prayers of

Your most humble Servant,

PRAY, Sir, be pleased to direct as before, for Mr. E____, to be left at Mr. Corbett's till called for.

SIR, I forgot to put this in the foregoing, the scalding in my Water is much abated; but if I chance to drink a Dram, or any Thing strong it comes very violent; but when I have taken the Physic, as soon as it takes Effect it is gone, which shews the Goodness of the Physic, and I hope it will take it quite away.

To the most worthy Author of ONANIA.

Worthy SIR,

London, March 9, 1739-40.

YOURS I received, the 24th of laft Month, with great Joy and Satisfaction, which I humbly thank you for. Sir, I took your Advice according to Order, and find myfelf much amended in this Bottle, as well as in the other. I have had no NOCTURNAL POLLUTIONS fince I took this laft, as I had fix before; my Water is very clear, hardly any Thing to be perceived in it: The Pimples of my my Face are almost gone, but fometimes come a great hard Pimple, and long before it breaks; but I have had none of them this four Days, makes me think they are gone; my Yard is in good Order, but a little reddifh. I do find myfelf very ftrong and hearty, and fleep well, without any troublefome Dreams, as I ufed to have, and feel no Pains at all about me, but all well to my thinking; and, Sir, I hope you will be pleafed to further advife me what I had best to do in the Cafe, whether I must take any more or not, I hope, Sir, you will be pleafed to fend an Answer to this, to be directed as before, for Mr. E----, to be left at Mr. Corbett's till called for, Sir, I hope you will be pleafed to pardon the Imperfections of my Writing, and you shall ever have the hearty Prayers of

" Your most Humble Servant,

OF the Prolific Powder (which is a great Specific, and is now very much improved to what it was) one Paper is to be taken mixed up in a Coffee-difh, with feven or eight Spoonfuls of the strongest Mountain Wine that can be got, the laft Thing going to Bed at Night, fupping an Hour before, and also the first Thing in the Morning, fasting an Hour after it, without any Observation as to Diet, but only that if nutritive Foods be eaten often, as Eggs, Candied Eringo, Gelly Broths, Soops, Artichoaks, Lobsters, Cray-fifb, Oyfters, Cavair, Chocolate, Sago, and the like; and alfo ftrong, generous, and rich Wines, with the Spaw Water, be drank, the better; or a ftrong Decoction of Pine Apples, or Ofmond Royal Roots in Water, which have also a peculiar agglutinating Property of curing the Whites in Women, and strengthening the Womb, and between whiles fome found, good, home-brewed Ale.

THIS Powder has no fenfible Operation, but yet enriches, comforts, and nourifhes the Parts of Generation in both Sexes, furnifhes them with Seed, and invigorates them; it having been experienced to be a very great Reftorer of Nature, even when feeble, decayed, and almost fpent; those that take it will foon perceive its noble Effects, by its remedying Impotencies in Men, judged in-A a curable.

curable, and Infertilities in the Fair Sex, when they have been fupposed to be barren ; and will be ftill more effectual, and the better brisk up and enliven the Generative Faculties, if they be taken in the afore-mention Viols of the Restoring Drink, a full Quarter of a Pint (fhaking it well) with each Paper, in the room of the Mountain Wine, mixing them well together, and another Quarter of a Pint drank, by itself, after it. It is sealed up as aforefaid, in Papers, 24 in each Parcel, Price 12s. and muft be continued till the Patient is well, which will be fooner or later, according as is the Nature or Degree of the Cafe. Where there is no ill Conformation of the Parts, a Cure may be depended on; but where the Blood is vapid, and the Act of Generation performed without any delectable Senfation, as is often the Misfortune of fome in both Sexes, it is a fure Sign of a Deviation from the natural State, and there little or no Help is to be afforded : But where the Impotency is only for want of Seminal Matter, it may be fupplied with Balfamics of the moft nutritious Particles fimilar to the Seed, and that is eafily done by Medicine, Diet, and Cordials, which are generous, and truly prolific, will circulate the Fluids with active Principles, and reftore the loft Tone of the Parts; the two firft, viz. Medicine and Diet, have been recommended; but, that nothing might be wanting to render them as effectual as poffible, and procure all due Nourishment, the fame Phyfician, that imparted the Medicines, has likewife, for the Sake of those that are, as it were, quite worn out, communicated the two following Prefcriptions, which, he affures the Author, will infpire, and give new Life and Vigour to, the deficient and debilitated Parts.

TAKE of the best Palm Sack, six Ounces; of Gelly of Hartshorn, three Ounces; Essence of Ambergrease, ten Drops; Chocolate, all Nut, Half an Ounce; black Pepper, finely powdered, one Scruple; Essence of Satyrion, twenty Drops; Confection of Alkermes, a Dram; Essence of Cantharides, twelve Drops; Volatile Salt of Vipers, ten Grains; white Sugar-candy, three Drams; diffolve the Chocolate and Sugar-candy in the Sack over the Fire, but not to boil, and when it is cold, add the other Things, with the Yolks of two Eggs; mix them all together very well, and drink it at one or more Draughts every Morning at Break-fast-time, an Hour or two after you have taken the Powder, repeating the fame at Night about the fame Distance of Time before you take the Powder, continuing it fo every Day during the whole Time the Powders are a taking.

THIS Cordial Draught will be found an exceeding Comforter and Nourisher of the genital Parts in both Sexes, will replenish all the Defects, or Want of seminal Matter, which it also enriches and spiritualizes. But as many may not know where to get the three Effences, and volatile Salt named in it, in their Perfection, or care not to have the Injection made up by any Apothecary they know, it may not be amils to inform them, that they may be had, faithfully prepared, at any Chemist's or Apothecary's Shops.

AS in Men a deficient Ferment in the Tefficles very often incapacitates them, and as in the Fair Sex, thro' a natural Coldnefs in their Parts, Generation is hinder'd, they fhould both, whilft they are purfuing the Directions above given, anoint with the following delectable Balfam, which mightily irritates, warms, and ftrengthens the nervous and musculous Parts, which administer to the Act, and will haften the Cure.

TAKE Oil of Mace, by Expression, two Drams; Peruvian Balsam, one Dram; Oil of Nutmegs, Oil of Cloves, of each fix Drops; Musk, eight Grains; Civet, 10 Grains; Essence of Cantharides, and Essence of Ambergrease, of each fix Drops; mix them all together very well upon a Tile, without the Use of any Fire, and with it let both Sexes anoint the Parts, intra S extra, every Night going to Bed, and in the Morning also; and if, at the fame Time, the Man would use Cold Bathing, it would in a superlative Degree make him Amends for the Trouble, for, as Dr. Baynard, whom I have mentioned before, rightly fays, Cold Bathing has this Good alone, It makes old John to hug old Joan, And gives a Sort of Refurrection To buried Joys, thro' loft Erection, And does fresh Kindnesses intail On a Wife tafteles, old, and stale.

THUS have I taken Notice, I think, of every Thing requifite in Cafes of Impotency and Sterility, and recommended the most proper Medicines, as well for external as internal Use: But as oftentimes the Deficiency or Want of Seed is more the Occafion of fuch Complaints than any Thing elfe, and being willing to omit nothing that might contribute, or prove useful, to either Sex, be the Cause from what it will, I shall not think my Time ill spent, nor will the Reader, I hope, believe his Patience too much trespassed upon, if I am something more particular in what may be reckoned as Auxiliaries in the generating or increasing of Seed; nor can I do it better, or from a greater Author, than the fagacious Herman Boerhaave, late Phyfic-Professor in the University of Leyden in Holland, who has enumerated all of that Tribe, which ferve as well for Diet as Medicine, in a Chapter of his Book De Viribus Medicamentorum, under the Title of Medicines that generate Seed: Nor can I put what he fays on that Head in better Words than the Translator has given us; for which Reason I shall transcribe the whole Chapter verbatim, as it is handed down to us, and is as follows.

"THIS Chapter confifts of fuch Medicines as increase Seed, and promote its Secretion; but we are ignorant how the Animalcules in the Seed are generated. Leeuwenboeck tells us, they are not to be found in any Part of the Body but in the Male Sperm of all Animals, which is feparated in the Testicles, and are like fo many Tadpoles, of a prodigious Number, fwimming every Way in the Seed, with incredible Briskness and Activity. That they are not to be found in the Liquid of the Prostatæ is evident from castrated Animals. Now there are four Things which augment the Seed.

" First, ALL fuch Things as augment Chyle, Milk, and Blood, increase also the Quantity of Seed, and excite Venery. Milk, taken in large Quantities, is a great Breeder of Seed, and renders Persons more falacious than Wine or Spices. Hence they who eat much of Vegetables, Eggs, or Milk, are very much addicted to Venery.

" Secondly, ALL Medicines which convey a more abundant Quality of chylous Blood towards those Parts where the genital Liquid is prepared; to this Purpose Fomentations, Bathings, Frications, Emplastics, Balfams, made of Spices, are very conducive; as also Oil of Rue and Euphorbium, Plaisters of Melilot; thefe will encrease fufficiently the Spermatic Juice. The following Things are much commended by the Italians as Specifics, who are much Admirers of fuch Delicacies, viz. all Balfams, Emplastics composed from Sea-Southernwood, Buffwort, Calamint, sweet-scented Dittany of Crete, Loveage, which are commended as falacious Herbs; Parfley, Savine, Savery, especially that of Grete; Thyme, Wild-Thyme, Nepenthe, Wild Marjoram, as that of Grete, where Animals are most falacious; Pepper, Eringo Roots, Hedge Mustard, are great Provocatives to Venery, as are also Compounds from these Herbs made up in Decostions, Lotions, Cataplasms, and Ointments.

" Thirdly, SUCH Things as caufe a vehement Stimulation in the Liquids; as all Aromatics ftimulate the nervous Juices: Thus Onions, Garlick, and Leeks, are great Incentives to Luft, which is evident from those Perfons who eat them frequently, as the Perfians and Egyptians do, who are much given to Venery, and are fcarce fatisfied with one Woman; hither belong all aromatic Gums: Thus we fee hypochondriac People, to whom we have given for refolving Obstructions, by taking them often, become very falacious, as Myrrb, Aloes, Galbanum, Opoponax, Sagapenum, Tachamahac, Bdellium, &c. alfo Ballams, as Capavy, &c. if these be used too much, will cause a Priapismus, and excite an abundant Secretion of Seed; hither alfo belong all natural Salts except Nitre, all volatile Salts, especially those that are oily, and oily Spirits, as of Wine, which operates chiefly by Stimulation, Soaps, all Diuretics, chiefly by Water excepted, Castorium distilled, aromatic Oils, which operate two Ways, either by encreafing Motion, or by Irritation.

"Fourthly, THERE are specifical Provocatives to Venery which act upon Bodies not fitly disposed, as Seeds of Dill, Vetches, Satyrion, concerning which see Dioscorides; rides; the Brains of Sparrows, and the Stones of falacious Animals, as of Cocks, Lambs, &c. are very much commended, as likewife the Glandules of Animals, which are of a fimilar Nature to the Tefficles, as those which grow in the Asperia Artera of Calves, all which are to benefacial as they generate good Chyle; Ultiocimus, a small Seafish, which, if eaten, is faid to cause fuch an Incitement to Venery, as to induce a Satyrias, or continued Erection of the Penis: But I am of Opinion, that that Effect doth not depend so much upon the Fish as upon those Things which are taken with it; for it is generally eaten with Pepper, Salt, Galangal, &c. A Milk Diet may be proper, because the Generation of Seed depends upon a good Chyle." Thus far the great Dr. Boerbaave.

I WELL know, that there are other Things too commonly taken and used by lascivious People, which, in a very powerful Manner, will stimulate Nature, and provoke, in both Sexes, an immediate Inclination to the Venereal Act, of which I could mention feveral; but befides their unwarrantable Use upon a religious Account, the fole End fuch Means can answer, is only the Purchase of a fhort Pleafure, which, by being fo procured, more strains, damages, and debilitates the spermatic Vessels and Nerves, than 20 Times as much as is prompted only by natural Incentives. Etmuller, a noted Phylician, observes two Ways of contributing to Venery; one is by fuch Things as have been named, which ftrengthen the Parts, and encrease the Quantity of Seed; and the other, fuch as the warmer Aromatics, which only, like a Spur, ftimulate, and inflame the Defire, without adding to the Ability of Performance.

I INTENDED here to have concluded, without faying any Thing further; but, whilft the foregoing Sheets were printing, I have received feveral Letters, worth Notice, and more effectially one, as follows; in which I am preffingly defired, as the Reader will fee by it, to fet forth the Heinoufnefs of Fornication and Adultery, that the miftaken Silence I am charged with concerning them, and the Prolixity with which I treat the Sin of SELF-POL-LUTION, might not miflead the unwary Reader.

CONSCIENCES CONSCIENCES

To the commendable Author of ONANIA.

08. 20, 1732.

WITH incredible Pleafure have I more than once perused your little, but most excellent Book about Onan's Sin. Whether my Son, my dear and only Child, ever was guilty of that unnatural and filthy Practice, God knows: But almost ever fince he has been at the State of Manbood, which is eight or nine Years, he has lived in continual Adultery and Fornication, which I take to be worfe; and has well nigh distracted and broke the Heart of me bis tender Father, and his Mother's alfo, who, alas! poor Woman, does not know fo much of his Naughtinefs that Way as myfelf. I have argued the Cafe with him, and admonished him with Tears in my Eyes, but nothing will reclaim him. It is a Practice which, he fays, he cannot deny himself, or live without, nor will be ever marry, he declares, whilft his Father or Mother lives, and protests, when often put to him, that he is not married. He never arinks, nor is he extravagant in his Whoring, becaufe I know of every Penny he bas, which is sufficient for any fingle Gentleman; nor does he game, or keep bad Hours, or swear, or is in the least undutiful, excepting his not hearkening to our Advice in avoiding Wenching. He is conscious and devout at Church, never out at Nights, at Home constantly at Nine, exceeding diligent in my Businefs, and, in every Respect, excepting his Whoring, as complete a Gentleman as any in London, of admirable Address, and of excellent Sense. He will not bearken to Reproof, but insists upon being indulged in this one Passion, as he fays. He is Heir to large Poffeffions, and we would fain he should marry, and live commendably. A fine young Lady, of 17,000 l. Fortune he has lately refused, of the brightest Parts, and honourable Family, which surprizes every body. What is to be done? Pray, good Sir, advije me; me; and if you will be pleased to do it in your next Edition, with the same prevailing Arguments against Adultery and Fornication as you have against SELF-POLLUTION, I shall hope it may work upon and reclaim him, for I can engage him to read it, and shall be infinitely obliged to you for it; and if you shall be pleased so to blacken that Sin, and shew the Happinesses in Marriage, as the Scriptures will furnish you with Texts, as that it should have an Influence over him, to lay afide and abandon the abominable and finful Practice which be lives in, and thinks you have, in your Sixth Edition (which he has read as well as my self) rather encouraged than declaimed against, I will make you a handfome Prefent, worth your Acceptance; and there is no doubt, Sir, but fuch a Discourse will gain you Praise, as it will be of excellent Service to the World in general, as I trust in Almighty God it will be in particular to my poor deluded, or rather infatuated, yet doated upon Son. I am,

SIR,

Your unknown humble Servant,

DIVES.

I HAVE no Objection to your printing this Letter, if you think fit.

[185]

The ANSWER.

SIR,

I TAKE your LETTER, by the Stile of it, to be wrote with Sincerity, and the Matter of Complaint to be real; and shall be heartily glad, if any Thing I am capable of faying may have the wifh'd-for Succefs, which is all the Reward I shall think I merit. As I shall quote Scripture for every Thing contained in it, you Son, for whole Benefit it is designed, if he believes the Word of GOD (as, by his Devoutness at his Church, one would think he does) and has not totally abandoned himfelf to all that is good and facred, muft, from what he will find, meet with Checks of Confcience and Conviction for this one Sin (as he calls it) if not Reformation, in the reading it; and be made fenfible, if he is not fo already, that in the Practice he allows himfelf, and feems at prefent refolved to perfift in, he greatly wrongs his own Confcience, highly offends his Creator, and, directly contrary to GOD's express Command, is guilty, to the last Degree, of Undutifulnefs and Difobedience to his tender and indulging Parents.

I HAVE already thewn, in the former EDITIONS, and now again in this, Pages 97, 98, my Abhorrence against those Sins, with the Reason why I had not spoke of them before; and answered every Thing that, with the least Shadow of Justice can be objected to me on that Head. But, as my great Aim is to promote the temporal Good of the Society, as well as the eternal Welfare of Mankind, by exposing all Manner of Uncleanness in general, I shall employ some remaining Pages in demonstrating, from the Word of GOD itself, how abominable all Fornicators, as well as Adulterers, are in the Sight of GOD; and endeavour to undeceive the Vain and Voluptuous, who look upon all the Effects of Concupiscence cupifcence as venial Sins, and imagine the Commands to preferve Chaftity, and mortify the Flefh, to be only a Scarecrow to keep the Vulgar in Awe, which the wifer Sort, and People of Fafhion, need not have any Regard to.

WHEN, after reading the Scripture, we foberly confider the Precepts contained in it for a holy Life, the Plainnefs in which they are delivered, and the Woe and everlafting Mifery denounced againft the Tranfgreffors of the divine Laws, it is furprifing how People in their Senfes, who pretend to believe the BIBLE, and to be Chriftians, fhould dare to make a Mock at Sin, or fet light by the leaft Neglect of their Duty: Yet, fo ftrong are the Allurements of the Flefh, and fo powerful the Force of Luft, that they can blind Men from the moft obvious, as well as weighty Confiderations, and make them outwardly ridicule what, upon Self-Examination, they muft find they are inwardly ftartled at.

WOULD Men be fo fincere, as to own the Violence of their Paffions, and complain of the Difficulty they found in fubduing them, they might be affifted with wholefome Counfel, and made more capable of governing their unruly Nature: But to deny plain Facts, and make flight of Things that are of the greateft Moment, as if Fornication was a trifling Transgreffion, puts them in a State of Reprobation, from which there can be no Delivery. They are milerable, and run headlong into the Way of Perdition, that give Ear to thole easy Casufts and Impostors: It is to them that St. Paul speaks, in his Epistle to the Ephesians, Chap. v. ver. 6. Let no Man deceive you with vain Words; for because of these Things cometh the Wrath of GOD upon the Children of Disbedience.

CAN we think on the infinite Purity of GOD, and make any Doubt that he is offended at Uncleannes? Keep thyself pure, fays the fame Apostle; and again, Unto the Pure all Things are pure; but unto them that are defiled nothing is pure, but even their Mind and their Conscience is defiled, I Tim. v. 22. Would you have this enlarged upon, see what St. Paul fays, in his first Epistle to the Thessalonians, Chap. iv. ver. 3, 4, 5, 7. For this is the Will of GOD, even your Sanctification, that ye should ab.

abstain from Fornication. That every one of you should know how to poffels his Veffel in Sanctification and Honour. Not in the Luft of Concupiscence, even as the Gentiles, which knew not GOD; for GOD bath not called us unto Uncleanness, but unto Holiness. And again, in his Epistle to the Coloffians, Chap. iii. ver. 5, 6. Mortify therefore your Members which are upon the Earth; Fornication, Uncleannefs, inordinate Affection, evil Concupiscence, Ec. for which Things Sake the Wrath of GOD cometh on the Children of Disobedience. In his Epistle to the Romans likewife, Chap. xiii. ver. 12. Not in Chambering and Wantonness. Walk not, fays he, as other Gentiles walk, who, being past feeling, have given themselves over to Lasciviousness, to work all Uncleanness with Greediness, Ephel. iv. 17, 19. And to the first of the Corintbians, with Emphasis, Flee Fornication, Chap, vi. ver. 18. Mind the Occasion he gives for it in the same Verse, He that committeth Fornication finneth against his own Body. And in the 13th Verse aforegoing, Now the Body is not for Fornication but the Lord, and the Lord for the Body. Ver. 15, Know ye not that your Bodies are the Members of Christ? Shall I then take the Members of Christ, and make them the Members of an Harlot? GOD forbid. In another Place, viz. 1 Cor. iii. 16. Know ye not that your Body is the Temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of GOD, and ye are not your own? And in the fame to the Corinthians, Chap. iii. 17. If any Man defile the Temple of GOD, him shall GOD destroy; for the Temple of GOD is holy, which Temple ye are.

SODOM burnt with unnatural Lusts, and the Lord burns them up with the Flames of unnatural Fire, Gen. xix, 24.

BUT if any are fuch Reprobates as that the Injury done to the Soul, and the Danger of being caft into the Lake that burns with Fire and Brimftone everlaftingly, for the Sake of carnal Pleafures, will have no Weight, let them confider what Detriment in this Life, the filthy Practice of SELF-POLLUTION, and the Uncleannels of Fornication and Adultery, brings on and exposes the Body to. I have, in feveral other Places of this Book, particularly fet the fame forth, and which, one would think, are fufficient to make the Guilty look back with Abhorrence on their past Crimes, and deter them from committing the same for the future.

to

EUSEBIUS tells us, that Maximinianus, one of the Roman Emperors, abufed his Body fo, to the Gratification of his Lufts, that that Part which he most abufed became the Subject of fuch a flinking Imposthumation, that his Physicians chose rather to be put to Death by him than to approach near him.

NOTHING is more manifest, than that the New Testament enjoins a stricter Morality than the Old; yet even there GOD faid, There shall be no Whore of the Daughters of Israel, nor a Sodomite of the Sons of Israel, Deut. xxiii. 17. That Fornication, as well as Adultery, was criminal, even among the Jews, we may learn from Job, Chap. xxxi. ver. 9, 11, 12. If my Heart bas been deceived by a Woman, or if I have laid wait at my Neighbour's Door, this is an beinows Crime, yea, it is an Iniquity to be punished by the Judges; for it is a Fire that confumes to Destruction, and would root out all my Increase.

MAN might have Reafou to complain, if carnal Defires, how violent foever, were always to be withflood, and never to be indulged upon any Account whatfoever: But GOD requires no Impoffibilities; he has given us a Remedy in Marriage, which is not only lawful, but likewife honourable. Marriage is honourable in all, and the Bed undefiled, but Whoremongers and Adulterers God will judge, Heb. xii. 4. And that Matrimony was not only inflituted for the Sake of Propagation, we may learn from St. Paul, who gives us another Reafon for it in express Words. To avoid Fornication, let every Man have his own Wife, and every Woman her own Husband; for it is better to marry than to burn, 1 Cor. vii. 2, 9.

BUT those who refuse to enter into the State of Matrimony, have no Allowance to justify their carnal Defires, and their very Thoughts, if we believe the Gospel, may be criminal. Whosever looketh on a Woman to lust after ber, hath committed Adultery with her already in his Heart, Matth. v. 28. Men may flatter themselves as they pleafe, but we are fure, from the Word of GOD, that neither Fornicators, nor Adulterers, nor Effeminate, nor Abufers of themselves with Mankind, shall inherit the Kingdom of GOD, 1 Cor. vi. 9, 10. And, That no Whoremonger, nor unclean Perfon, bath any Inheritance in the Kingdom of CHRIST and of GOD, Ephel. v. 5. The wifest Man that ever was upon the Earth, who had experienced more the pleafurable Delights and Ways of Women than any Man either before or fince his Time, declared at last, that Favour was deceitful, and Beauty is vain; and all was Vanity and Vexation of Spirit: And adviseth, among the reft of his excellent Precepts in Prov. vi. ver. 24, 25, 26, 27. To keep thee from the evil Woman, from the Flattery of the Tongue of a strange Woman: Lust not after ber Beauty in thine Heart, neither let her take thee with her Eye-lids; for by Means of a whorish Woman a Man is brought to a Piece of Bread. Can a Man take Fire in his Bosom, and his Cloaths not be burnt? And, in Ch. v. ver. 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, he exhorts to remove thy Way from a Brange Woman, and come not nigh the Door of her House, lest thou give thine Honour unto others; left Strangers be filled with thy Wealth, and thou mourn at the last, when thy Flesh and thy Body are confumed, and fay, How have I hated Instruction, and my Heart despised Reproof? And again, in the viith Chapter of Proverbs, the 22d, 23d, 25th, and 27th Verses, Let not thine Heart decline to ber Ways, for her House is the Way to Hell, going down to the Chambers of Death. Thou goest after her, as an Ox to the Slaughter, till a Dart Strike through thy Liver; as a Bird hasteth to the Snare, and knoweth not that it is for his Life. And then in the Ecclefia Aes, Chap. vii. ver. 25. he tells us, that after he had applied his Heart to know, and to feek out Wisdom, and the Reason of Things, and to know the Wickedness of Folly, even of Foolishness and Madness, he declares himself in the next Verse thus, And I find more bitter than Death the Woman, whole Heart is Snares and Nets, and her Hands as Bands: Whofo pleafeth GOD shall escape from her, but the Sinner shall be taken by her. And Ecclesiasticus fays, Give me any Plague, but the Plague of the Heart; or any Wickedness but the Wickedness of a Woman. Now regarding the other Sorts of Uncleannels spoken of, and warned againft, against, thro' this whole Book, that no Scripture may be omitted to awaken and reclaim, if poffible, the Minds of the carnally Prophane, and those who have given themfelves up to fenfual Pleafures that Way, let me add what St. Paul, to the Romans, fays of the Almighty's Anger, and the Reafon thereof, against fuch Sinners, in Chap. i. ver. 24, 26, 27. Wherefore GOD alfo gave them up to Uncleanness, thro' the Lusts of their own Hearts, to dishonour their own Bodies between themselves; and to vile Affections. For even their Women did change the natural Use into that which is against Nature. And likewife also the Men, leaving the natural Use of the Woman, burned in their Luft one toward another, Men with Mer., working that which is unfeemly, and receiving in themselves that Recompence of their Error which was meet.

BUT those who are little affected with the Joys of Heaven, and the Love of GOD, if they have no Regard to what a Chriftian has to hope for, let them have a Care, and remember, that he that enters upon any unlawful Act, either with himself, or with another, is guilty of all the Confequences that may attend it, tho' he might not defign them; and at least reflect on what they have to fear, and the everlasting Miseries that are prepared for them. Nothing can be more ample on this Head than what St. Peter, in his 2d Epiftle, Chap. ii. ver. 9, 10, 14, 15, fays, and with whole Words I shall conclude: The Lord will referve the Unjust unto the Day of Judgment, to be punified; but chiefly them that walk after the Flesh, in the Lust of Uncleanness, and despile Government; baving Eyes full of Adultery, and that cannot cease from Sin. These, as natural brute Beasts, made to be taken and destroyed, shall utterly perish in their own Corruption: Even as Sodom and Gomorrah, and the Cities about them in like Manner, giving themselves over to Fornication, and going after strange Flesh, are fet forth for an Example, suffering the Vengeance of eternal Fire.

PREFACE.

HOEVER reads the Beginning of the following Supplement to the Onania, will not think there is a Preface wanting; neither did I intend to have troubled the Reader any further : But recollecting that I had not taken Notice of one Thing in fo particular a Manner as I believe it deferves, I thought it not improper to do it here: What I mean is, the inconfistent Behaviour of my Adversaries in general, and all who either envy, or are otherwise no Well-wishers to, the Book against Self-Pollution.

THEY all, at first, pretend to have a great Aversion to the Sin exploded there; and having said this in their own Defence and Justification, they either endeavour to extenuate the Crime, and complain that I have made it appear more beinous than it really is, or else they make the Act itself innocent, and the Frequency or Abuse of it only criminal; or, lastly, call it necessary, an Easement of Nature; and pretend to prove, that, in many Cases, a total Forbearance and Abstinence from it may be very prejudicial to Health.

WHAT has given a Handle to the latter, is the Opinion of some Physicians, who imagined that the Seed being long detained, many noxious, and even poisonous, Particles were sent back from it into the Mass of Blood. I have refuted this Opinion in all the Editions, at least from the 7th to the aforeaforegoing 17th of the Book itfelf, and in this Supplement shewed the Futility of it, and the little Strefs that ought to be laid upon it.

SOME, on the other Hand, have afferted, that this was a Matter never to be touched upon, and that by barely mentioning it I have actually taught this Practice to many, who, without feeing my Book, would never have been guilty of it. This they urge obstinately, and at the same Time, Speak more plainly about it than I have done.

OTHERS complain, that I have betrayed the Secrets of my Patients; though it is impossible, from what I have printed, to find out one of them.

OTHERS are angry with me for faying, that, among the Fair Sex, many fingle as well as married Women are guilty of Self-Pollution: This they represent as an Injury done to all modest Ladies, and an Affront offered to the whole Sex; though why it is more fo than the Charge of Adultery and Fornication, which are daily proved on many of the fame Sex, no Body can tell.

NAY fome have accused me of writing obscenely, and forwarding the Corruption of Manners; though nothing is a more palpable Calumny; and it is impossible, either in Theory to recommend Chastity in a more serious and cogent Manner, or in Practice to express what I had to fay more modefly than I have done.

THE Reader, therefore, is defined, whatever he may bave heard or feen against the aforefaid Book, called Onania, that he will suspend his judgment till he has perused both That, and This Supplement. A no groups to the guild

ONANIA:

OR,

The Heinous Sin of SELF-POLLUTION, and all its frightful Confequences, in Both Sexes, confidered, &c.

N all Perfuafives, it is neceffary we fhould infinuate ourfelves into the Inclinations, and endeavour to gain the Good-will of the Readers. To perform this well, to Perfons of different Ages and Sexes only, is a very difficult Tafk; but to do it for the Entertainment of Men of

Senfe and Erudition, and, at the fame Time, adapt it not only to the meaneft Capacities, but likewife to Perfons of almost every Kind, is utterly impossible, unis the Readers themselves will be fo candid as to pick out out what fuits them, and contentedly pafs over what plainly appears not to be wrote for them. It is ridiculous, therefore, from fuch a Book as the ONANIA, in order to blacken and bespatter the Author of it, to make Citations of Things trivial or jejune, and perhaps unworthy the Perufal of a Man of Senfe. From Sixteen Edition, and the Variety of Readers they have made me acquainted with, I have learned what I could not have believed without that Experience; and I have known half a Sentence of a filly Letter rouze the Confcience of a young Man, whom the grave Reafoning, and the folid Arguments, of the fame Book had made no Impreffion upon. Thofe, who, animated by Envy, or elfe the Malice of their Nature, have endeavoured to obstruct the Sale of the ONANIA by Calumny, and in vain attempted to hinder the fpreading of it, may from thence likewife learn the Caufe of their Difappointment. Men of Senfe and Candour, Men of Reflection, and fuch as know there is no Vice more general than that which I write against, must foon perceive what a vast Variety of Readers I have to engage, and contenting themfelves with the main and fubstantial Part of the Book, will eafily forgive what they find calculated for meaner Capacities than their own. Those, who have pretended to detect the ill and fordid Defign of the Author of ONANIA, have been fo little regarded, that I would have only pitied, and never made mention of them, but to introduce the most folid Refutation that can poffibly be imagined, and is contained in the undeniable Proofs I have of the Converts the Book has made, and the Good it has wrought on many. It is incredible what Heaps of Letters I have by me, of Penitents that have all thanked me for the Hints they have received from the ONANIA: Some of them have been fent by Men of Senfe ; others are florid and pedantic ; from a third Sort it is evident that the Authors had no great Depth; and I have feveral that are ill spelt, as well as ill wrote. I have had the Satisfaction of the Applause of Men, whole Efteem I value, for inferting fome Letters, and giving Anfwers to Queftions not immediately relating to my Purpofe. As to the Reality of the Letters I have printed, I folemnly declare there is not one that was not actually fent me, or that I ever knew any Thing of, before I opened it. This is a Condescension I make to the meaner Sort of my Readers, it being ing fuperfluous to Men of Judgment and Penetration, who at first View difcover the difference between genuine Letters and spurious ones, such as are forged from others; or at least know that to do them well, and to imitate even the meanest Persons, requires so much Skill and Labour, that a Man might with less Difficulty write almost any thing else. I cannot discown that Men of Candor, and who otherwise approved of the ONANIA, have thought that fome of the Letters had better been less out. This I have not stilled, as appears from all the former EDITIONS, and now again Word for Word, in Page 109, of the aforegoing Seventeeth EDITION; to which, and my Anfwer to it as therein follows, I refer the Reader.

THUS far I had gone, and thought that what has been faid here was fufficient to have ferved both as an Apology for my Book, to which, according to my Promife made in Pag. 197 of the 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, Sc. Editions of it, I will never make any more Additions, and an Introduction to fome Letters that have been fent me fince the last Edition, and other Matters relating to the fame Subject, which without any thing elfe I defigned fhould have composed this Supplement : Thus far I fay I had gone, when I was informed that fome envious People had laid a greater Strefs upon the Calumnies raifed against me, which I have here already hinted at, than could have been expected from the Merit of those Performances : This has made me refolve to fay fomething in my Juftification, and acquaint the Reader with what hath been done against me, in relation to the Onania.

AFTER the 3d Edition of it, a virulent Pamphlet was published against it, under the Title of Onanism. The first Notice I took of it, was in the 7th Edition of my Book, and then only because I would not stifle and keep from my Readers, that, as I had many Well-wishers who very much approved of my Work and the Design of it, there were not others wanting who disliked and exclaimed against it. The Reason why I gave no formal Answer to it, you may see in the Preface that has been prefixed to that Edition, and all the others that have succeeded it. In Page v. you will find these Words. For this Reason therefore I here ad-D d drefs myfelf to the Author of that Rhapfody, protesting that I heartily forgive him the Injury he intended me, the' I was forry to hear any one heap so many Calumnies, and undeferved Aspersions on a Person utterly unknown to him. If the whole had been less filly and impertinent, I would before now have vouchsafed it an Answer, but as it is, and the Author cannot be imagined to be a Person, either of the least Goodness or Erudition, I shall not endeavour to refute him, or make any Apology for the Weakness or Insipidity of the Performance he complains of, otherwise than by publishing (now) the Seventeenth Edition.

I HAVE heard no Body fince take amils the Neglect I fhewed to this Libel; on the contrary, a Correspondent of mine, tho' he finds Fault with my inferting feveral LET-TERS, which he mentions, writes concerning it in the following Manner. As to what you mention in the Preface about a virulent Pamphlet, published against your Book, entitled Onanism, it is the Opinion of many others, as well as myself, that you are very far out of the Reach of any such foolish Malice: And it would be too hard a Task, for wiser Heads than theirs seem to be, to prove by any Expression throughout your whole Book, that you give the least Encouragement, not only to SELF-POLLUTION, but even any other Sin. See the ONANIA aforegoing, Page 109.

WHEN the 9th Edition of the Onania was come out, another virulent Pamphlet was published against it, larger than the former, by the Name of Onania Examined and Detected. The Author feems to have had a good deal of Spleen against the Book before he read it, and accordingly has judged of it, with that Candor and Impartiality one might expect from fuch a fetting out. This however, he endeavours to conceal, and, in the Beginning of his Preface, he takes Notice of the Time the Book had paft, and the many Editions it had gone thro'; from whence he takes an Opportunity of telling his Reader, that if fond Conceitedness of himself, or a love to contradict others, had prevailed with him, there is no doubt but he might have feen it fooner; without confidering, that by faying this, he gives us to understand, that when a Book has a great Run, it is his Opinion, that the chief Motive a Man can have to fee it, is a Defign Defign to contradict it; and the longing after the Pleafure there is in fhewing ones Parts in crying it down, is refuting what has gained the Effeem of others. His Thoughts of me are, that I am Mafter only of some flat, senfeles, erroneous, and, in some Things, pernicious Conceptions; and that the Book is fluffed with Immodesty, Ignorance, Error, Difingenuity, Self-Contradictions, empty Boasting, Confidence, Quacking, Whim, and Cant. A Man of moderate Spleen, having thus emptied himfelf, would have been pretty eafy, tho' the Book he discharged himself against, was as bad as bad could be; and as long as he was not perforally acguainted with the Author, and confequently had no room to accuse him of Thest, Murder, Coining, or Adultery, no Body would imagine that the Critic's Fault lay in sparing 'him, what other Crimes foever the poor Author might be guilty of. But the good humoured Philo Caftitatis thinks he has favour'd me too much, and almost repents of his forbearance; which with his ftrong Inclination for Quarrelling, we learn from his own Mouth. Having in the first Page of his Preface prov'd his Modefty, by industrioufly keeping from the Publick his Name and Profession; he shews his Courage in these Words, not out of Fear of being aggressed by my Antagonist, for he shall find me ready enough to aggress him when he pleafes; but perhaps the next time he may come not to receive so favourable Treatment. I suppose he would fling the Moon at me.

IF we confider the Subject of the Book called Onania, it will not be an eafy Matter to find out a more fuitable Title, either fhorter and equally intelligible, or more explana. tory on the Contents, and yet equally remote from Obfcenity. Having made this Choice, it was necessary I should fay fomething of the Sin of Onan : This I have done to the Satisfaction of feveral Perfons of Learning and Piety that perused it, tho' I confess, that in the Performance I have not confulted any Commentators, and only followed the plain Letter of the Bible; which I then did, as I still do, imagine was fufficient for my Purpofe. When the 7th Edition of this Book was in the Prefs, and almost finished, a long Letter was left for me at the Bookfellers, figned Pedagogus, which was in all the Editions after, and now in the foregoing 17th Edition of the Onania begins at Page

131. This Letter, tho' not ill wrote, I thought contained feveral Errors and Inconfiftencies: The Author owns himfelf guilty of SELF-POLLUTION, is glad to have met with the Onania, commends it, bleffes himfelf for the Sight of it, and thanks good Providence that had directed him to it : He makes a Refolution to leave off that pernicious Practice; but finding himfelf unable to keep it, he fancies that Sort of Uncleannels not to be fo criminal as he had imagined, and I had reprefented it to be : Upon this he took great Pains to extenuate his Guilt, re-examines the Cafe of Onan, and takes feveral Things for granted, not to be met with in the Bible : as it is his Opinion, Quod Onan Semen non ejiciebat folum per se ipsum, sed una cum fæmina in actu coitus, and he doubts not but Onan had been guilty several Times before of Masturbation, altho', fays he, we hear nothing of it, or any Punisbment enfuing : But what is his greateft Security that SELF-POLLUTION is no Sin, and which I own feems to me to be very flocking and abominable, is the Example of a Prieft, who is a married Man, and has owned to him that he makes frequent Use of Masturbation, and has followed that Practice many Years: What is still more furprizing, the Author of the Letter afferts of this fine Prieft, that he is a Man of as ftrict a Life and Conversation, and as great an Example of Piety. as almost any one within the Verge of his Knowledge. To all this I have wrote an Anfwer, which I am not afhamed of, and refer the Reader to, in the Edition above-mentioned.

I have premifed thus much, to make the Reader thoroughly acquainted with this Part of our Controverfy. My Antagonift takes the Part of Pedagogus, quotes his Letter, and endeavours to prove what he afferts of Onan; firft, that the principal Part of his Offence confifted in his refufing to raife up Seed to his Brother; fecondly, that Onan had been frequently guilty of the Crime for which God flew him. From the Title I had taken, every Body may fee what Sin it was I had in View to write againft; and I own, I did not imagine that I had any thing to do with Onan, further than as he had been guilty of the Crime from which I would deter my Readers. Therefore, when I faw a Man, who had long perfifted in the Practice of a great Sin, fluctuating in his Mind, and labouring between tween Remorfe of Conscience, and the Temptation of Senfuality ; when I faw, I fay, fuch a Man, not entirely loft to Goodnefs, nor altogether infenfible of his Duty, in danger of eternal Ruin, was I not obliged to refcue him from a most pernicious Error? It is evident from his Letter, that the Construction he puts on the Sin of Onan, and all the Arguments he labours for to leffen the Turpitude of SELF POLLUTION, are fo many Shifts and Evalions to quiet and hill afleep his own Confcience, and make himfelf eafy under the Continuance of a Practice which he could not leave, and had in vain taken Pains to forbear : He wanted a greater Security than the Example of the Priest his Acquaintance could furnish him with; for he only fays of it, that perhaps it might have added a little to his having fuch dark Notions of that Matter. In his Heart he thought the Action criminal, but wifhed that it had been innocent, or at least more indifferent than it appeared to him. From what I have quoted, it is plain that he was in Obfcurity, and had great Doubts concerning his Condition; nay, this was the Occafion of his writing the Letter, and he afked my Advice for no other Reafon than to have this thing cleared up to him. When a Man owned himfelf to be in fuch Uncertainty, and was at the fame Time openly pleading the Caufe of his darling Luft, was I not in the right to refute his Arguments; and as much as lay in my Power, to overthrow whatever fuch an Advocate for Sin alledges in Behalf of it? Pedagogus fays in his Letter, that he doubts not but Onan had been guilty feveral Times before of Masturbation, although we hear nothing of it, or any Punishment enfuing : To this, perceiving the Drifts it was faid with, I answered, that I could fay nothing as to that, but that with the fame Justice he might entertain the same Opinion of Adam, and every Man fince him to this Day. Could I mean any thing elfe by this, than that, as he afferted this of Onan, without any Warrant from Scripture, by his own Confession, so he might with equal Juffice do the fame with every Mortal, of which the contrary could not be plainly proved ? And was not this, confidering his Circumstances, a proper and very useful Remonstrance to him, that he ought to beware of harbouring any Thoughts of Onan, that might tend to his own Juffification, and the foothing of his Confcience, for for which he had not an unqueftionable Authority ? No candid Reader will ever otherwife interpret what I have faid, and it is impoffible that without Violence, it fhould bear any other Construction; yet what Work has my Antagonist made with it, for two or three Pages together, as if I had broached the greatest Herefy, or uttered the profaneft Sentence in the World ! Pray behold the vaft Concern for the Reputation of Adam, and all the Patriarchs and Prophets, it has thrown this wife man in : Having quoted the Paffage I mentioned, and which was in the former Editions, and is in Page 141 of the foregoing 17th Edition of the Onania, he descants on it in this manner. I fay I have no fuch Ground to fufpect either Adam's Guilt, or the Patriarchs and Prophets Guilt herein; for if Adam, the Patriarchs, Apostles, and all Christians ever fince, had been as guilty hereof as Onan, why was God's Justice only to fall upon Onan, and not upon all or some of them, as well as apon him? Thus he goes on a great way in the fame Strain. How fuitable this Animadverfion is to that Paffage of mine, I must leave to the Reader and all Lovers of pertinent Remarks. As to the Matter in Queftion, whether Onan had been but once guilty of the Thing for which God flew him, or oftener ? this is certain, that there are no express words in the Scripture that demonstrate, necessarily imply, or fo much as infinuate that he was guilty of it more than once. It fignifies nothing to tell me that the Text fays, When he went in unto bis Brother's Wife, and not as foon as he went in unto her, or, at first going in unto her, or, upon their first Embraces. Can I not answer to this, that the Text likewife does not fay, whenever he went in unto her, or, as often as he embraced her; and that when, in its fimplest Application, favours the former Construction much more than the latter ?

PAGE 18, my Cenfurer fays, that Onan was not immediately punifhed, becaufe it is inconfistent with the Method of God's common Procedure, fo quickly to punifh a Sin, (if it had been only for SELF-POLLUTION) against which we do not find that he had revealed any more positive and express Command. As to what is contained in the Parenthesis, I have allowed that the SELF-POLLUTION of Onan was aggravated by his refusing to raife up Seed to his Brother; and and as to the reft I would afk, what politive Command there was against a Man's endeavouring to hinder the Ark from falling, (which was the Offence of Uzzah) and how often he had repeated that Action before he was punished ? As to the Opinion of the Commentators and Schoolmen. Junius, Tremellius, Menochius, Lyra, &c. which my Antagonist alledges, they are of very little Weight with me : Abundance of their Gloffes and Conjectures on Things, whenever there is the leaft room for them, are very filly and impernitent; of which take as a Sample, that which my Cenfurer quotes of Menochius on the Sin of Er, Page 17. Idemcum eo Onanis peccatum fuisse ferunt Authores, nempe immunditiæ eo quod in actu Matrimonii, fe retraherit & fic Semine extra vas fuso Generationem impedivit. And what follows is still more foolish, and falle Latin into the Bargain, and is faid by Lyra and Menochius both, viz. ex libidine ne puerperio & lastatione pulchritudinem uxoris minueretur. And again, Lyra and Tyrinus fay, ne ejus Concubitu ad tempus privaretur. All this fine Stuff is gathered from the Text that fays, And Er, Judah's First-born, was wicked in the Sight of the Lord, and the Lord flew him. Whenever one Text explains another, or the infpired Writers fupply the Senfe of an obscure Passage, I am ready to own the Authority, and fubmit with all imaginable Deference and Humility to any Supplement or Conftruction of theirs; but I do not think that a Man of Senfe, where the Scripture is altogether filent, ought to lay any Strefs on the Gueffes and Opinions of Men that have fo egregiously abused their Leifure, as Menochius, Lyra, Tyrinus, and fifty more of that Stamp have done. When you afk me then, what L mean by a fudden Punishment? I answer, such as immediately follows the Crime for which it is inflicted. And the Thing which he did displeased the Lord, wherefore he flow him alfo. I fee nothing between the one and the other : I own, that without altering the Words, or doing the least Injury to the Text, there might have been twenty Years as well as a Day or a Minute, between the Crime and the Punishment ; but then he that affirms this, ought to prove it, or elfe we have no Warrant to affert that there was any greater Diffance of Time between the Offence and the Punishment in the Cafe of Onan, than there there was in the Cafe of Uzzah: So that the most that can be faid against me is, that the Words of the Text are fuitable to either Construction. But this ought to be no Inducement to me why I fhould admit of an Interpretation, which I plainly fee a Man makes from a Depravity of Heart. You own yourfelf, that SELF-POLLUTION is a Sin, and it is evident that what Pedagogus labours for, is to difprove this to avoid the Imputation of a Crime, to quiet his Mind, and perfuade himfelf that Masturbation is no finful Practice, but only a foolifh Trick of Youth; that, in the Sight of God, the Action is indifferent, and altogether as harmlefs as it is filly. As to the Complication of Onan's Sin, it would have been no material Omiffion if I had taken lefs Notice of it than I did in writing the Onania; and to have allowed of it as a good Plea in what Pedagogus faid, who made use of it in favour of his Prevarication, and to extenuate his own Guilt, would have been injurious to him, and perhaps proved hurtful to a great many of my Readers.

THE hiftorical Part of the Old Testament has been given us, as well as the reft of the Bible, for our Inftruction, that we might imitate the Obedience, the Virtue, and Piety of the holy Men that are there represented to us, and be deterred from Wickedness and Disobedience to God's Commands, by the Examples of Evil-doers, and the Punishments that have befallen them. But what a Chriftian is to walk by, is the ftrict Rule of the Gofpel; and he is to follow no Pattern or Precept to be met with in the Old Testament, that is not likewise recommended by, and agreeable to the Doctrine of the New. If under the Law, it was a Duty for a Man, in order to raife up Seed to his deceased Brother, to marry his Widow, it is far from being the fame under the Difpenfation of the Gofpel; and pray, if a Cuftom, or a Practice, that was observed by God's Command in the Old Testament, ceases to be fo in the New, what great Use is to be made of this in Morality? Might I not as well warn Men against the eating of the forbidden Fruit, or exhort them to abstain from Swine's Flesh, or the wearing of Linsey-Woolfey? But if the fame Thing be prohibited and counted Inceft among Chriftians, it is, with your Leave, good Philo Castitatis, very little to the Purpose to lay fo great great a Strefs on this revoked Command, as you have done for many Pages together; and very injudicious to call me Names for not having been more diffusive on this obfolete Cuftom, and rather chosen to deter my Readers from an Action much practifed among Youth, and which you yourfelf own to be a Sin. I cannot fee that grofs Ignorance and pernicious Error you pretend to have detected in what you quote from me, Page 4, of your Book, and which I will repeat as it is in Page 2 and 3 of the Onania, without your Mutilation. SELF-POLLUTION we fee remarkably punished in Onan, by a particular Stroke from ALMIGHTY GOD, for it is not to be thought that his Guilt lay totally in not raifing up Seed to his deceased Brother Er, the' I must own that this was an Aggravation of it, but the Way he took to prevent it would have been highly culpable at any other Time; and from the Words of the Text, which inform us of this Part of facred History, it is reasonable to imagine, that the greatest Part of the Offence lay in the Act of defiling himfelf, rather than in the Neglect of his Duty: The Thing which he did displeased the Lord, wherefore he flew him alfo; it was therefore the Thing he did, rather than the Thing he omitted, which most displeased the Lord; as may be further feen, Deuteronomy, Chap. xxv. from Ver. 5 to 10.

TO which you answer, Page 4: Now here I posttively deny, that Onan's not raifing up Seed to his Brother was only an Aggravation of the Sin of Self-Pollution; and allo, that the greatest Part of the Offence lay in his Self-Pollution : for I am rather inclined to believe that this his Self-Pollution was only an Aggravation of his other Sins, and not they an Aggravation of this; and that the least Part of his Sin lay in his Self-Pollution, as fimply confidered, and the Circumstances laid aside. Your first Reason for this Opinion is, becaufe it was a Sin committed against an exprefs Command of God, and then you quote the Text in Deuteronomy which I had cited myfelf before. You are confcious that Onan was dead long before this Law was promulgated, but tell me withal, that that will not help me, because the Patriarch had express commanded the marrying the Wife of the deceased Brother, totidem verbis. I shall not infist upon it, and am willing to allow, that God had acquainted the Patriarch with this Law by Infpiration 1 Ee But

But it does not appear that the holy Patriarch told Onan, that he had it from God; or that those who refused to obey that Precept would be punished for the Neglect of it. When Mofes gave it as a Law, he added a Form of Process to be observed against the Transgreffors. They were not to be immediately punished upon a fimple Refufal, nor fuffer any thing but fhame if they were obflinate. For, in the 7th, 8th, and 9th Verfes of the fame Chapter, God fays : And if the Man like not to take his Brother's Wife, then let his Brother's Wife go up to the Gate unto the Elders, and fay, My Hufband's Brother refuseth to raise up unto his Brother a Name in Israel, he will not perform the Duty of my Husband's Brother. Then the Elders of his City shall call him, and speak unto him; and if he fland to it, and fay, I like not to take her : Then shall his Brother's Wife come unto him in the Prefence of the Elders, and loofe his Shoe from off his Foot, and fpit in his Face, and shall answer and say, so shall it be done unto that Man that will not build up his Brother's House.

FROM this it is evident, that either the not railing up Seed to his Brother, was not the principal Offence of Onan, and the Crime for which God flew him; or that the Transgreffion of that Law, whilft it was only delivered as a bare Precept of the Patriarch, deferved a Punifhment infinitely greater than it did, after it was folemnly promulgated by Mofes as an express Command of God. Thefe Things are of little Weight with you, and you ftill perfut in the Opinion, that the principal Offence of Onan confifted in his not raifing up Seed to his Brother; and that the chief Motive of that Refusal was his Hatred to his dead Brother: which latter Affertion you deliver to us in fuch a fhining Paragraph, in the 7th and 8th Pages, as we fhall feldom meet with the like in ordinary Writer's viz. Thirdly, His Sin was aggravated beyond other Men's Sins, viz. Envy and Hatred of bis Brother's Name and Honour, which fprung from the Pride of his Heart. Now, be knew, if a Man hate his Brother whom he daily feeth, bow can be love God whom he never faw? And if a Man, for calling his Brother Fool, be in Danger of Hell-fire; much more, if he, Onan like, bear an irreconcileable Hatred against his Brother when dead; yea, and to hate him to fuch a Degree, as out of Malice and Envy, that Onan hould

Should break this express Command of God, positively commanding him, by the Mouth of the Patriarch, to raise up Seed to his Brother. This was to hate his Brother in Despite of God's Command and Law. How many desperate Tragedies acted has Hatred been the Cause of? But, &c.

IT is pity, I own, that fuch fublime Senfe and fine Language fhould be fo debafed, as to be mixed with any thing to mean and pitiful as my Performances. I beg pardon for my Prefumption, and defire you would read it over once more, and then tell me how, having fo ftrenuoufly afferted this Matter, it came in your Head to talk of Er, and by your own Sagacity, as well as the wife Conjectures of your Commentators, to endeavour to prove he was guilty of the fame Crime with Onan : Er, I fay, who had no dead Brother, either to raife up Seed unto, or to hate? From this it is evident, that Er could not have been flain for any other Sin than SELF-POLLUTION, becaufe there was no other that was common to Onan and himfelf; and that the Moment you fay that both Brothers were put to Death for the fame Crime, you abfolve Onan of what you have fo violently maintained to have been the principal Part of the Offence. Would you further purfue the wild Gueffes and extravagant Suppositions of the Commentators you have called into your Affiltance, and fay, with them, that both Brothers were Sodomites. and that God flew them as fuch ? This (as you faid to me with lefs Reafon) will not help you; and it still remains proved upon you, by your own Confession, (if you take Refuge here) that Onan was not punished for what you have all along charged him with, as his most heinous Crime, the Sin committed against an express Command of God. I brought this fo clote home to you, that whenever you may want an Example of a manifeft Self-Contradiction, you need not ftray from your own Works for it.

IT is from the Schools of fuch Commentators, as my Adverfary feems to delight in, that Men learn to make extraordinary Confequences. Speaking of SELF-POL-LUTION, and what had been wrote about it, I fay, Page 3, of the ONANIA, Some eafy Cafuifts, notwithstanding the exemplary Punishment that has attended this Sin, have made C c 2 flight of it, and shamefully deceived those who confulted them, feveral of them perhaps to their Ruin; others, by being too open, the' severe enough, have treated this Matter fo grofly in the learned Languages, that it is impossible to translate any Part of them without offending Chastity. In the same and next Page I complain, that the learned Oftervald, in his useful Treatife on Uncleanness in all its Branches, has, thro' an Excess of Modesty, passed over this abominable Sort of Impurity in Silence, or, at least spoke of it in such general Terms, blending it with leffer Trefpaffes of Uncleannefs, that be has failed representing the Heinousness that is in it. Page 4. I fay, that there have been other Cafuifts again, who preating of this Subject, have been neither too plain, nor too remifs, but by too much Subtilty firained their Arguments beyond their natural Force, and done an Injury to Truth and good Senfe, by being too fophistical. When befide I had faid, Page 13, Thefe Gonorrhæas are chiefly occasioned, says Etmuller, (a famous Physician) a damnata Mastupratione, from that damnable Self-Pollution ; and as Dr. Baynard alfo confirms, (speaking of that Practice) by that curfed School Wickedness of Masturbation (res fæda dictu). Without mentioning what is to be feen in the Preface, efpecially both the Letters quoted there, or what I wrote, Page 72; when a Man has read all this, can he wonder where I had my Information? Can a Man, who has conversed in the World, doubt whether SELF-POLLU-TION be a frequent Practice among the male Youth of this Nation, efpecially School-boys? Is there a Scholar fo ignorant as not to know my Lord Rochefter has reckoned it among the Things that are not only universal, but never to ceafe? As I had heard many Complaints of People after Twenty, who continued in, and could not leave this Piece of Impurity, I fpoke in favour of early Marriages, with all the necefiary Reftrictions. See what fine Inferences and just Conclusions my Adverfary draws from this, and my fuspecting fome Perfons that refused advantageous Matches. When, (fays he, Page 28) our Author fays that be cannot help thinking that fuch Perfons who delay Marriage after fuch a Time must be either naturally impotent, or rendered fo by some vicious Practice; ____ I am perfuaded the Reader need no Interpreter to explain what has been the Author's orun own Frailty or Infirmity. Who can forbear justly reckoning him to be one of those who has burned in Lust, and therefore he married, as was wife and commendable in him? And alfo, that, during his being a Batchelor, he had been a Mastuprator, or Self-Pollutor, I fee no room to doubt of; feeing, as he fays, this Sin is become univerfal; nay, and which is still worfe, that he has been guilty of Freedom herein with his School-fellows and Comrades, fince it is so common a Practice in Schools, I pray, do but consider how he came to think Mastupration had been universal, unless he had been one, and so would measure every Man's Corn with his own Bushel? A very deceitful Gage indeed. How came he to know that School-boys did fo frequently practice it, unless he had done to himself while a Scholar ? How came he to know that they did it in private Clubs or Companies, unless he, some Time or other, had been one of their Fraternity or Accomplices? Sure these are native Confequences from his Discourse : Seeing he has given it upon his own Authority, it must be from his own Practice; elfe he would, in fuch a filthy Story, have been feen to quote fome Authors for what he has charged against Youth .---

THE Reader will pardon this long Quotation, when he confiders how neceffary it was to fhew the Juffice my Adverfary has done me, as also the Brightness of that Gentleman's native Parts. I must beg his Patience a Moment longer, to see my Adverfary clear himself and all the School-boys and Students he ever was acquainted with. Where we left him he goes on in these Words:

FOR I must take the Liberty to inform our Author that I have been at several Schools, and those none of the meanest Repute, or smallest Frequency, where there were Youths of several Ages, as they were Students of several Sciences; yea, and I have had the Honour of being at some Universities, where, if such Practices had been, the' I neither defired nor would have seen them, yet I could scarce have failed to have heard of them; and I solemnly protest, before God, I neither ever heard or knew any such Thing, either then practifed, or ever to have been among the Youths or Students. Is it not strange, that a Man who never knew, and and therefore will not believe there are young People guilty of this Practice, fhould be fo well informed of the Time when they leave it off, as it appears he is, from Page 27 of his Book, where he fays, in his ufual Accuracy of Stile, Nay, I must tell our Author that the very Years he looks on as fit for Marriage, viz. twenty-five Years in a Man, is a Time when much of his vain Frolic of Self-Pollution begins to be a little cooler in him.

WHAT furprizes me in this, is, that in writing a Book, a Man fhould in one Place feem to be well acquainted with a Thing, of which, three Pages after, he is not only ignorant, but queftions the Exiftence; nay more, he protefts to God that he never heard of it. The longer indeed we live the wifer we grow, and it is common for Men to increase in Knowledge, as they extend their Labours; therefore I do not wonder that, Page 104, he fhould cite three Examples of young Men, who were not only guilty of, but had likewife injured themfelves by Maftupration. Thefe I will quote at Length, not fo much to expose my Adversary, and shew what Credit ought to be given to what he fays against me, as to pursue the main Defign of my Book, and promote the temporal and spiri. tual Welfare of my Fellow-creatures, by deterring them from a Practice fo injurious and detrimental, both in point of Health and that of Confcience. I remember, fays my Adversary, a Youth of about eighteen Years old owned to me, that he had followed Mastupration fo much, and fo frequently every Day, without Intermission, that he first became fo confiipated that he was unable to go to Stool for feveral Days, and that with fuch Straining, that he had brought upon himself the Piles; neither did this cause him to break off his Practice, till fome Time after, instead of poor thin Stuff be had used to eject, he threw out Blood copiously, which surprized him a little, but put him not off his Practice long after : This he confessed to me with Sorrow afterwards.

ANOTHER young Fellow, being watched by a Friend of mine, was observed to follow Mastupration very often, every Night constantly. As soon as I beard of it, I quick by prognosticated the Wretch's Fate, which came to pass within within eighteen Months after, for he died of a deep Confumption, having lived till he became like a Ghost, or living Skeleton.

ANOTHER I knew, who a little before his Death, acknowledged his following this bafe Practice till his Seed did indeed come away without any Provocation, and little or no Erection; whereby he fell into a Hectic, and was foon cut off.

THE Reader will observe, that the Man who furnifhes us with these three remarkable Instances, not only extenuates the Sinfulness of SELF-POLLUTION, but moreover blames and ridicules me for afferting that it often is the Occafion of bodily Ailments and Calamities, and has wrote a Book for almost no other Purpose, than (as he pretends) to undeceive People, and draw them from the Error which I have plunged them into, viz. That SELF-POLLUTION is not only abominable in the Sight of God, but likewife of dangerous Confequence to the Health and Conffitution, and that the frequent Ufe of it may be the Caufe of temporal, as well as eternal, Ruin. And our Author himfelf, fays, after his three juft now mentioned Instances, I infert these Passages designedly, that fuch as indulge themselves in this Practice may see the Danger of it, and defift in Time before they prove their own Ruin.

DISINGENUITY is a fad Difeafe : My Adverfary, in feveral Places, charges me with exposing my Patients, and those that confult me : As it is certain, he has no other Ground for this than that I print fome of the Letters of those who write to me, and my Answers to them; fo in his heart he must be convinced that his Accusation is unjust from what he fays himself. He tells us, in his Preface, that, he has industriously kept his Name and Proseffion from the Public, and makes Use of this, as a clear Demonstration, that he had not published his Book from an itching Defire of appearing in Print. It is evident then, that what he charges me with is a wilful studied Calumny which he is knowingly guilty of : For it is impossible he should imagine, that a Man might be known by the feigned feigned Name of Pedagogus, (for Example) or the Afflicted Onan; when he takes it for granted that himfelf is carefully concealed by that of Philo Castitatis.

MY Antagonist thinks it not chaste in me to produce a LETTER, telling us of one who was guilty of SELF-POLLUTION, in lefs than an Hour's Space, eight Times in one Day. He accuses me of being abusive and affronting to chafte Ladies; and Page 88 of his Book, fays, that I feem industriously to have cast Dirt and Shame on Women, and the next Page, quotes from me feveral broken Sentences and incoherent Scraps to prove his Affertion, and ends thus, But all this being too little, he (the Author of the Onania) next gives them a broadfide Charge, (in Page 70 of the aforegoing 17th Edition of the Onania.) Among all Ranks and Qualities of People, there are Women deeply involved in Sin, and wholly neglectful of every Christian Duty; but if my Adverfary had added the reft of the Period, viz. yet those of them who are so fashionable, and would be accounted to understand themselves, will, out of Pride only, without any other Confideration, always refuse to converse with any of their Sex that are openly known to have forfeited their Honour. If, I fay, he had added this, without which it is plain the Senfe is imperfect, nobody could have found out what he had quoted it for. Page 88, he blames me for having mentioned SELF-POLLUTION as the Caufe of feveral Distempers in Women in my Mother From all this, one would imagine Philo Tongue. Castitatis to be a Man of fingular Politenes, that would never fay any thing unhandsome of the Fair Sex, or stain the least Page with Impurity; yet fometimes he is not more referved in his Language than his Neighbours, for, in Page 77, and the three following, he gives feveral Symptoms to know bad Women by, which, in another Place, he calls Marks of sufpicion. One of them is, When they are fuch as no Reafon can bind, no Arguments can perfuade, no Favours can oblige, unless you gratify their senfual carnal Defires. Lower he fays, that they will not Spare even their own Hushands; for unless he facrifice his Health and Life to their Luft, all the World round must hear of it, if not other Gallants invited into, to affift him without his Knowlege.

THE laft of his fhrewd Marks of Suspicion is, That they are very often barren; because (fays he) they have so abused themselves by Friction with their Fingers, and other Instruments, that if a Husband, or other Person, should throw in the best or most elaborate Seed, it comes away presently: Partly because, through frequent Friction, the Inside of the Womb is become perfectly callous and thick, so that it has lost that exquisite Fineness that is necessary the Womb should have; and partly, because the muscular Fibres of the Uterus have lost their proper Elasticity, and are become lax, whereby they are incapable of retaining the least Part of the Seed when ejected into the Womb.

IF this is not his Mother's Tongue, my Antagonist is a Foreigner. Turpe est doctori cum culpa redarguit ipsum. The Reader fees, that one of the Marks to know theie bad Women by is Barrennefs, and the Reafon why they are fo at large : Yet, in Page 88, my Adverfary has altered his Opinion again, and expressly names Barrenness among the Diftempers which, he fays, is ridiculous in me to affert that Women might procure to themselves by Friction. The Curious will find likewife, that it is not uncommon for the Author of the Onania Examined and Detected to be angry with me for a Thing in one Place, which, in another, when I am a little out of his Head, he afferts himfelf in the fame Words he found fault with in me; and, the more narrowly I look into his Book, the more I am convinced, that it was chiefly wrote for the Sake of Contradiction, right or wrong. If I prove a Thing to be white, he will have it black, and Things actually the more falubrious, he endeavours to demonstrate to be Poifon. I had faid, in the former Editions of my Book, and in Page 99 of the aforegoing 17th, That the greatest Part of the Sinfulness of SELF-POLLUTION confists in the impure Imaginations that go along with, and always facilitate, the Operation. And again, in the former Editions, and in Page 94 of the aforegoing 17th, For even in good Men, who guard themselves against Concupiscence, and who, whilft they are awake, suffer not their Fancies to rove on the other Sex, we find, that the very Distention of the Veffels, and Ripeness of the Seed, have such an Influence on Ff the the animal Spirits, as, in Spite of Piety and Devotion, to procure fuch Dreams, that shall occasion the Discharge I Speak of, often to their great Affliction. He having quoted this, and, on a Detection of an Error of the Prefs, Detention for Distension, in three succeeding Impressions (though in all the former it was Distension) raised a great Triumph over my Ignorance, even in the leaft and commonest Part of Literature, writes thus, Now if thefe were truly good Men, who thus carefully guarded against lustful Thoughts, and restrained their Inclinations, and yet, from such a necessary natural Cause as our Author affigns, had frequent nocturnal Pollutions from Dreams, what Occasion was there for their being fore troubled and afflicted in Mind? Seeing what our Author believes to be true in the former Editions, and in Page 113 of the aforegoing 17th, Sure the Guard and Watchfulnels was superfluous, and a Work of Supererogation, and so far from being commanded, that it ought to be cenfured as ceremonious and fuperstitious.

HERE he pretends to quote the Place he referred to : A Man's Confiience need not to be troubled at any Thing that happened in his Sleep; and, therefore, let no Pollutions disturb the Tranquility of your Mind, where the Will is not accessary or concerned. ____SELF-POLLUTION in Dreams is common to fingle Men, and an involuntary Action we are not to account for. I shall fet down presently this Paffage as it is in the Onania; by which it will appear, that my Antagonist, in the Quotation, has not only transposed the Sentences, to ferve his Turn as much as he could make it, but likewife left out the most effential Part, that guards the whole Paragraph against all Censure, and the Poffibility of being cavilled at, viz. When a Man keeps as great a Guard over his Thoughts as he is able whilft he is awake. But, first, I must defire the Reader to take Notice, how entirely the Spirit of Contradiction had poffeffed my Adverfary in this Part of his Book, beginning at Page 109. When I had faid, that the involuntary Difcharges in Dreams happened to Men of Piety and Devotion, to their great Affliction, my Adverfary tells us, that fuch good Men had no Reafon to be troubled at that : I had faid the fame; and no Mortal can imagine why he quoted quoted me, unless it was to confirm what he faid himfelf. It is certain, that his quoting what he does from me, renders his own Remark superfluous. But he could not have vented his Spleen without it; for, if he had not quoted any Part of that Paragraph, he could have had no Opportunity of speaking against me afterwards; and, if he had quoted it entire, that likewife would have difarmed him, and rendered that which he had a Mind to vent equally unneceffary and impertinent with what he had faid before: Therefore, having fitted the Paffage to his Purpole, and left out my Safe-guard, the grand Precaution I made Ufe of, he fallies out after this Manner.

THE moderatest Construction I can put upon the Author is, that he has either been afleep, or dreaming, when he wrote his Book : For, first, he tells you, that Self-Pollution is the most superlative of Uncleanness; and, that the greatest Part of the Sin-lies in the Impurity of the Imagination; here he fays, Self-Pollution in Dreams is an involuntary Act that we are not to account for.

WHAT? Does not filthy Dreams flow from impure Imaginations ? Does not the Devil inflame the Minds of Men to Luft, whereby the Body as well as Minds of Men are frequently defiled in their Sleep, by impure Dreams ? Hence holy St. Augustin bewails his finful, filthy Dreams, in the 10th Book of his Confestions, Chap. 30.

ALL the Reafon my Cenfurer had for this Triumph and Exultation, was taken from the Paffages in the former Editions of the ONANIA, as they have been quoted, and his transposing and mutilating the following Paragraph in those Editions of the same Book, and in Page 113 of the aforegoing 17th. As to the Dreams you complain of, they are common to all fingle Men, especially those who live chaftly, as long as their Vigour lasts. In my Answer to C. T. you will find that I have hinted at the Occasion of them, where there is a Turgescency of the Seminal Vessels. Involuntary Actions we are not to account for. When a Man keeps as great a Guard over his Thoughts as he is able whilft he is awake, his Confiience need not to be troubled at any Thing that happens in his Sleep; and, therefore, let_ Ff2

no Pollutions disturb the Tranquility of your Mind, where the Will is not accessary or concerned.

ONE would hardly imagine, that this could have given rife to the Cenfures and Reflections I have already quoted from my Antagonist against it : But his watchful Head could not fo foon give over this Subject of Dreaming; and as I forefee that many of my Readers will not vouchfafe to purchafe his Labours, I will transcribe the most curious Part of what he has faid further on this Occafion, that fuch useful Observations, and fine Erudition, difplayed fo much to the Purpofe, might not be entirely loft. Hear my Adverfary, Page 111. If our Confcience need not be troubled at any Thing that happens in our Sleep, then Lot's Incest with his Daughters was no Sin. The Lying Prophets, in Jer. xxiii. 25. which cried out I have dreamed, I have dreamed, were not Sinners nor Offenders. Neither were those filthy Dreamers, who defile the Flesh, Jude, ver. 18. culpable or finful. If we are not accountable for these involuntary Actions in our Dreams, why does Jeremiah rank Dreamers, Diviners, Inchanters, and Sorcerers, all together ? Jer. xxvii. 9, 10.

I WISH my Readers would examine thefe Texts; but as few will give themselves that Trouble, he will give me Leave to transcribe only what my Adversary quoted laft from Jeremiah. Therefore hearken not ye to your Prophets, nor to your Diviners, nor to your Dreamers, nor to your Inchanters, nor to your Sorcerers, which speak unto you, saying, Ye shall not ferve the King of Babylon : For they prophely a Lye unto you, to remove you far from your Land, and that I should drive you out, and ye should perish. Here, I believe, it will not be unprofitable to remind the Reader of the Subject we are upon : for, when fuch Quotations as my Adverfary makes are read at Length, it is not impoffible a Man might be diverted from it. In the third Page of his Preface, my kind Antagonist says of me, That if I happen' to quote a Text of Scripture, it no where comes near the Purpose, unless by a long Fetch, I have afferted, that nocturnal Pollutions need not trouble a Man's Confcience, who is upon his guard against impure Thoughts as much as is possible whilk he is awake; and the Things I have

I have quoted from my Adverfary are alledged by him to prove that I was dreaming when I wrote that. I have, to fave Paper, left out feveral Things equally pertinent with those I have quoted; and I shall only add one sublime Observation, which he finishes his Remarks with on this Head. And is it not, says he, both a shameful and sinful Practice yet among many in England, who, upon a certain Day in the Year, fast the whole Day, and so go to Bed at Night, that they may see (as they term it) their Sweet-heart? Some I have known who have done so; yea, and some to whom the very Persons appeared in this Sleep, and to whom they were afterwards married, though they were utter Strangers to one another at the Fast and Dream.

I HAD overlooked a Thing which my Adverfary thought material enough to deferve a Paragraph by itfelf; it immediately follows what I quoted laft, and is this: Eufebius alfo tells us, that Simon Magus had in his Dreams haunting Devils.

HAVING given fome Inftances of my Adverfary's polite Learning, and uncommon Capacity, I must now beg Leave to own, that Men, of a Genius as exalted as his own, when they are hurried away by Anger, and a furious Spirit of Contradiction, may, fometimes, fail in Point of Accuracy, and be lefs exact than ordinary People. A Female Correspondent has asked my Advice on some Matters relating to the Marriage-Bed : This in feveral Places of the ONANIA, when I had Occafion to fpeak of it, I have called the Lady's LETTER. She feems to be of Opinion, that when a Woman has conceived, or, according to the Courfe of Nature, is paft Child-bearing, the Husband's Embraces become criminal, and that, as it can only center in the Pleasure of the Sense, Copulation, is then a fruftraneous Abufe of their Bodies, the fame with SELF-POLLUTION and SODOMY. I used a great many Arguments to diffuade her from an Opinion, which L thought dangerous, for the Reafons there alledged ; and, among other Things, to convince her of her Error, I faid what follows.

RIC C C BO B

UD AVEN

IT is inconfistent with the Goodness, nay the Justice of God, that any Action in his Eye should be so heinous a Sin as Sodomy, and that he, either by his Precept, or the Example of Punishment in others, should not have warned us against it. There are many Duties incumbent on married People that are expressly commanded, and not so easily observed: The real Difficulties that may occur in that State are sufficient; we need not, by being over nice, invent any more. ONANIA, Page 93 of the 7th, 8th, 9th, &c. Editions, Page 87 of the 13th, 14th, &c. and Page 79 of the aforegoing 17th Edition.

THIS, which can have no Relation to any Thing but the Embraces in a married State, of which I fpoke before, my Adverfary cites against me, in Page 112 of his Book, as if I had faid it on Account of SELF-POLLU-TION, not without Invectives. Speaking of me, and what he had quoted from me, he fays, Here you fee he makes it both the most fuperlative and loathfome Uncleanness; and, to argue from his own Words, I fay, it is inconsistent with the Goodness, nay with the Justice of God, to make this Action more heinous in his Eye, than any other Degree or Kind of Uncleanness, and to revenge and punish it more severely, when he has not given us an express Commandment against it, whereby we may see its exceeding Heinousses, as he has done in other Sins of Uncleanness, which are, for the most Part, express not good and forbidden.

A F T E R this, he quotes near forty Texts, to prove, from the Old and New Teftament, that there are other Sorts of Uncleannels belides SELF-POLLUTION, which I do not believe any body in the World denies. If he had read the whole Paragraph, the Words, married Pcople, and, in that State, could not have permitted him to go on in that Blunder; and, even in the first Part of the Paragraph, a Man in his Senfes must have feen, that I spoke not of Self-Pollution, in faying, that God had not warned us against it (The Thing understood) by his Precept, nor the Example of any Punishment in others: It is impossible I should fay this of Self-Pollution, when I had not only infisted fo much on the Sin and Punishment of Onan; Onan, but likewife taken the Title of my Book from that very example.

YET on this my Adverfary triumphs over me with great Pomp; and having pleafed himfelf with the Subject for five Pages following, he leaves it, by telling the Reader, that it were eafy to heap up more of my Contradictions if it was to any Advantage. From all which I shall only infer these two Things. First, That, however he denies it in his Preface, my Adversary not only loves, but is highly delighted with, contradicting others. Secondly, That Rage and extreme Paffion, may blind a Man, as clear fighted as himfelf, as effectually as if he had no Eyes, or was afleep, which he thinks I was when I wrote the Onania, as the most moderate Construction he is able to make of me. It would be doing Injuffice to the Parts and Erudition of my Adverfary, fhould I affign another Caule for the Fact I have related, or endeavour to derive his Behaviour from any other Motive; and I dare fay, that every impartial Reader will be of Opinion, that no Man, even of the most ordinary Capacity, could, in his Cenfure of a Book, be guilty of fo grofs a Miftake, fo glaring an Overfight, unlefs he had read it half afleep, or examined it in a violent Paffion, and wrote against it with an Anger that was wrought up into Rage. But if, to the Scrupulous, one Inftance, how convincing foever, might not be thought fufficient to form their Judgment of an Author, and the Temper he wrote with, I shall give another that will difplay the whole Man, and leave no Room to doubt of the little Moderation, as well as Candor, he has treated me with.

I HAVE already fpoke of the Lady's Letter, in which fhe maintains, that all Embraces in Wedlock are finful, which a Man and his Wife know to be fruftraneous, and certainly ineffectual as to Procreation. In that Letter there are thefe Words: Self-Pollution you have proved a Sin, becaufe it is deordinate from the End; it is an Abufe of the Creative Power, and very properly, I think, you term it Murder. Now what is in itfelf evil, Marriage cannot make good; therefore I conclude the Marriage-Bed defiled, the Man and Wife committing Sin when the End cannot be be had, for which that Senfation was given; for tho' the Man be at all Times capable of Generation, the Woman is not, as when she has conceived, and she according to the Course of Nature is past it: It then centers in the Pleasure of Sense, and a frustraneous Abuse of their Bodies; the same in my Opinion with Self-Pollution and Sodomy.

THIS LETTER I answered as well as I could, and I will freely own, that it coft me more Labour and Study than any Part of the Book befides of the fame Length; which, by the bye, is no great Sign that all the Pains I was at were taken with a mercenary View, and for mercenary Ends, as my Adverfary is fo often pleafed to infinuate; fince it is utterly impossible that Gain or Lucre could accrue to me or any other directly or indirectly, from the LETTER or the Answer to it, any more than from the printing of a Sermon, or any other Piece of Morality. The Truth is, I thought the Notion broached there a pernicious Error; and as I defire nothing more than to promote Virtue, and have at Heart the eternal as well as temporal Felicity of Mankind, I thought it my Duty to expose it, and fnew my Reader its Weakness, flight Foundation, and the little Reafon there was to embrace fuch an Opinion. The Motive I had to print and anfwer this LETTER, and what my Sentiments were when I did it, may be learned from what I fay in the laft Paragraph of the Answer but one, viz. If what you induce us to beliave concerning your Sex is true, and the Scruple you propole, and which feems to gravel you, be real, then, Madam, I am perfuaded you are convinced of your Error before now; and I would not have taken fo much Pains, or been fo diffufive on this Subject, was I not affured that the fame Difficulty was often started, and the same Arguments are uled by Libertines, and other leved Profligates, to perplex conficientious People: For the openly Wicked, who neither ean, nor endeavour to bide their own evil Courses, are always pleased when they have an Opportunity by the least Shew of Reason, to infinuate as if all Men were bad alike, and the foberest Part of the World no better than themfelves.

WHOEVER reads the LETTER, will find that I had great Caufe to fufpect what I have mentioned, more especially from what is faid in it concerning Fornication; that it was not forbid as an Evil in itself, but in not making for the Good of Society; it is fitter one Man abide by one Woman, that there may be a due Care of the Offspring's Education. To which, before I refuted it, I anfwered in particular, that, this was a dangerous Affertion, and gave too great a Handle to Deifts, as well as other Libertines, who endeavour to perfuade the World that Religion is only a political Invention, and no farther to be regarded than as it is useful in promoting the good Order and Government of Mankind. How well I have fucceeded in anfwering that LETTER in general, I do not pretend to judge, but can affure the Reader that it has been taken Notice and approved of by Men of Piety and Learning; that the Whole is carried on in the fame fober religious Stile with that I have quoted from it; and whoever has feen it must know, that there is not an immodest Word nor one Sentence in it capable of fullying the Mind of the most lascivious with Impurity; nothing that is ludicrous, nor any Thing indeed that, before a grave Audience, might not be spoken in a Pulpit. See what Use my Adverfary has made of it. He quotes, as from me, what follows. How can a young healthy Couple practice Forbearance, when every Night they lie in the same Bed together ? This is an insupportable Temptation to Some : But what Reasons, or what Inducements, should make them undergo so severe an Abstinence, or rather excruciate themselves with so intollerable a Penance ? Which Way shall they imagine this to be a Tranfgreffion, concerning which the Scriptures are altogether filent ? ____ The Marriage-Bed cannot be defiled without a Third Person.

I SHALL first observe, that Stroke, which the Reader sees above, stands for what in the ONANIA is contained in fixteen Lines, and now will set down the Paffage he cites without his Mutilations. It is in Pages 78, and 79, of the aforegoing Eighteenth EDITION of it, But what shall we fay to a young Couple, both in Health, that live in Peace and Harmony, and have been a considerable G g Time

Time striving to render themselves delightful and endearing to each other? How shall they practice this Forbearance, when every Night, naked, (for many of the poorer Sort can make no other Shift) they lie in the same Bed together? This to some would be an intollerable Temptation; but what Reasons, what Inducements, should make them undergo so fevere an Abstinence, or rather excruciate themselves with such an intollerable Penance? What Hopes have they to excite them to this extraordinary Piece of Purity? Or what can frighten them from an imaginary Sin, against which there is no express Command of God? Nay, which Way shall they imagine that to be a Transgression, concerning which the Scriptures are altogether filent, both Old and New Testament?

THIS Paragraph my Adverfary quarrels with for its Lafcivioufnefs, and, in the Middle of his maimed Citation of it, bids the Reader note the Air of my Writing: Then fkipping fixteen Lines, as I have already hinted, he falls foul on my afferting, that the Marriage-bed cannot be defiled without a Third Perfon. This, fays my Adverfary, truly is a ftrange Affertion, and can be fuppofed to be writ or publifhed by none but fuch whofe Heart is boiling full of Luft, or one altogether ignorant of the Scripture. If this be fo, why fays the Apoftle, Heb. xiii. 4. Marriage is honourable in all, and the Bed undefiled; where is plainly implied, that the Bed may be defiled, even in a conjugal State, without Adultery.

IT is not eafy to determine which is moft juft, the Inference, which in Charity he makes of my Writing, or that which he draws from the Words of St. Paul; for I confefs I cannot find out what this Text was quoted for. It proves my Affertion, even without the Reftriction which I made, and which my Adverfary left out on Purpofe to ferve his Turn. Nothing is more evident than that St. Paul, who in this Verfe exhorts the Hebrews to live honeft, means, that, by Marriage, all might fhun the Imputation of Difhonefty; that Matrimony itfelf was fufficient to keep them from Blame, and that as foon as a Couple had entered into that State, they might enjoy one another, and yet reft fatisfied, that, notwithftanding withstanding these mutual Embraces, their Bed was undefiled, and they had done nothing that was diffionourable. What the Apostle fays in Praise of Marriage, he fpeaks in Opposition to the criminal Commerce of Men and Women that are not married together, as is manifest from what follows in the fame Verfe, but Whoremongers and Adulterers God will judge. After this, my Adverlary quotes Mr. Trap, Estius, Dr. Owen, St. Austin, Beza, Lævinus, Seneca, and feveral more, to prove the Falfity of what he had cited from me, viz. The Marriage-bed cannot be defiled without a Third Person; not faying one Syllable of the Precaution I had made Use of, that might have faved him the Trouble of all those Quotations : For if he had fet down what he stifles, it must have been very impertinent to have proved against me that the Marriagebed may be defiled without a Third Perfon, by Things which I name myfelf: As, among other Things, he quotes from a learned Divine the following Words. A good and moral Use of the Marriage bed is the natural and lawful Use of the Wife by the Husband, and of the Husband by the Wife, according to the Law of God; but the excellive Use thereof is abusing and defiling it. The quoting of this would have looked very filly, if my Adverfary had owned that I had myfelf barred, in Words at length, all Indecencies and Excelles that are destructive either to Health or Chaftity, before I afferted that the Marriage bed could not be defiled without a Third Person.

B U T, without this Piece of Sincerity, his ingenuous Authorship could not have had the Pleafure of contradicting me, or fhewing how well he was read, nor have concluded with this fine Rant after his Quotations, Page 37. Who, pretending to Arist Piety, could ever be fo indulgent to their Lusts, and so immersed in sensual Pleasures, as to suppofe that the Marriage-bed could not be defiled betwint the Husband and Wife, without a Third Person, when the Word of God instructs us to the contrary, and whereunto I have shewn our learnedest and foundest Divines have affented? But our Author, being a Man of extraordinary Confidence, thought he might venture his Piece abroad with no better Authority than his oron Ipfe dixit ; fince a Part of it, in some former Editions, had found fuch Acceptance with fome Peo-Gg2 ple, ple, and alfo bidding fair for bringing Profit to himfelf; expecting, feeing it had escaped Censure so long, He and It were become both hardy enough to impose the greatest Nonsense and Deceit upon the World without any Notice, or any to examine his Assertions, expose his Weakness and Contradictions, or discover his Design.

WHEN thus he had taken his Fill of laying me on, he begins to think of faving himfelf : Falfe Quotations, and bare-faced Difingenuity, he knew must appear very odious when found out; and tho' he had industriously concealed the Page of the Paffage which he pretended to quote from me, yet he had Reason to fear that somebody or other would hunt for it, and therefore at last he begins to confess, but comes too as willingly as a Bear to a Stake. The Manner he does it in difcovers the kind Difpolition of his Heart towards me, and gives us no fmall Infight into his Depth and Capacity. It has been very entertaining to me, and, I dare fay, will give great Diversion to every judicious Reader, that has been attentive on what has been faid concerning this notable Cenfure of my Adverfary. The Paffage I speak of, immediately follows what I have quoted from him laft, and is here (the Commas before the Lines excepted) fet down exactly as it is printed in the Onania Examined and Detected.

"TO what I have here faid, perhaps our Author will object, that he had faid, that there was a Decorum to be observed as to the Marriage-bed, and therefore thought that all Excesses and Indecencies, that are destructive either to Health or Chastity, are sinful.

" I own indeed, he does fay fo; and nothing to his Credit when he has faid it: For he tells you, that there is no Indecorum, Excefs, or Indecency, or wronging of Chaftity till Health first is impaired or destroyed: For his own Words you see are, that Excesses and Indecencies that are destructive to Health. You see he puts Health before Chastity; clearly infinuating, when Health is not hurt, Chastity is unwronged: But this being his Sentiments, he should rather have said, that there was no Indecorum, where there was no Murder: And that this is " is his plain Meaning, appears from the preceding tranfporting Expression for unbridled Liberty; insupportable Temptation, severe Abstinence, excruciating and intollerable Penance: And also from his ingenious Acknowlegement, that the Marriage-bed cannot be defiled without a Third Person."

IF any of my judicious Readers have ever blamed me for not answering this formidable Author, I doubt a great many more will laugh at me for having taken Notice of him at all, and centure me, I am afraid not unjuffly, for throwing away fo much Time in refuting fuch Arguments and Objections as thefe. But as I have faid already in the Beginning of this Supplement, I have a great many Readers to pleafe; otherwife, I can affure the Reader, I would never have meddled with one of my Adverlary's Size. I beg Pardon then for going on, and treating him ferioufly a little further; tho' I believe a Man might be a very grave Perfon, and yet laugh heartily at the Criticifin I quoted laft, concerning my postponing Chastity to Health. Good Philo Caftitatis, dread Champion of Chaftity, why fhould you imagine that defignedly I had made Health take the Wall of your Miftrefs? It was done long before I could know that you would take her Name upon you, and declare yourfelf her errant Lover. We often put those Things last that we should lay the greatest Stress upon : But you are angry with me, and therefore find Fault with every Thing I do. If I had faid of a great Profligate, that he had broke through all Laws human and divine, you would accufe me of Impiety, for having openly preferred the Laws of Men to those of God. In many Things it is indifferent, as when I fay I will have either a Green or a Blue, it is hard to determine which Colour I prefer. But in the Paffage you quarrel with, I had good Reafons why I named Health before Chaftity. In the first Place, sensual People have no Notion that any Thing can be unchafte between a Man and his Wife. In the fecond, the greateft Part would fooner deny them felves a Pleafure, if they imagined it would fhorten their Days, than they would becaufe they knew it to be a Sin. Thirdly, the Voluptuous, from their Exceffes, often receive Warning in their Health, long before they would have owned owned them to be Exceffes in Point of Confcience; and examining themfelves, they not only perceive fooner a decay of Strength than a decay of Virtue, but they are likewife vaftly more concerned at the first, than they are at the latter. It was for these Reasons that I put Health before Chastity, with Intention to name that first, the Confideration of which I knew would weigh the most with those I wrote to.

IF I am told, that fuch a Digreffion as this is very impertinent when addreffed to Men who write at random, and know nothing of Language, Diction, or Propriety, I again beg Pardon of the judicious Reader, and return to my Adverfary. Your Cenfure, Sir, on the Precedency between Chaftity and Health, I own to be very extraordinary ; but the Inference you draw from it, in my Opinion, bears it quite out of Sight; and is a Thing fo curious, that I know nothing on Earth to compare it to. If I had forbid a Man to commit no Excess in Drinking either at home or abroad, according to your Conftruction, I give him Leave to be as drunk as he pleafes whilft he is abroad; and that as long as he commits no Excels at home, drinking can do him no Hurt when he is abroad. But, to keep strictly to the Thingitself, suppose I had exprefled the fame Meaning in other Words, and faid, I think that all Indecencies and Exceffes that are injurious to Body or Soul, are finful; might you not, with the fame Juffice, have perfuaded the Readers that I told them, "That there is no Indecorum, Excess, or Indecence, or wronging of the Soul, unless the Body is first impaired or injured : For his own Words you fee are, that Exceffes and Indecencies that are injurious to the Body .- You fee he puts Body before the Soul; clearly infinuating, when the Body is not hurt, the Soul is unwronged." And might you not, with as little Injury to good Senfe, have faid every thing you have added befides?

B U T we will fuppose that I have actually affronted Chastity in not giving her the Rank that is due to her, and that you, as her Lover, are in the Right to refent it as much as if I had not named her at all; yet you know I spoke of Health, and you own that I have barred Excesses destructive deftructive to Health : You fhould either not have allowed this, or picked fome Quarrel with the Word Health, as you did with that of Chaftity, or elfe not have faid, What may not the Marriage-bed be defiled by fuch an exceffive Use thereof as may procure all these Misfortunes; and in as high a Degree as what he says comes by Mastupration? I have known some, who, by the exceffive Use thereof, have so debilitated their Retention of Seed, that Semen emitterent ad primum contactum Labiorum Vaginæ : Others, who upon the least amorous Look on their Wife, tho' at a Distance, cito ejicerent Sperma. Others I have known, who, by their Excess, have effectually digged their untimely Graves, and put themselves irrecoverably beyond the Help of Medicine; while others have procured to themselves Gleets, Stranguries, Priapisms, &c.

HERE I would ask any Man in his Senses, if there is any Poffibility that these Things could have happened if they had forbore Exceffes deftructive to Health ? But Phiz lo Castitatis will be heard, and is refolved that the Precautions I have taken shall not hinder him from speaking what he has a Mind to fay. Here certainly he was not dreaming, and too much Sleep was the leaft of his Ailments. Where we left him he goes on thus: Was there no defiling the Marriage-Bed in all this ? Nay, was there no Murder in all this ? Had not fuch, Eyes and Hearts full of Adultery, even towards their own Wives ? Does not this excellive Coition render the Marriage-bed either unfruitful, or elfe only produces fuch a puny, fickly, weakly Offspring, as are a Mifery to them lelves, a Dishonour to the human Race, and a Scandal to their Parents? But I must own, though this may fometimes be owing to the venereous Husband; yet, at other Times, it is owing to the infatiable Lechery of the Wife who is never fatisfied with Embraces; of whom the Husband may, from wretched Experience, fay, with Horace, Quod tibi vis muller, nigris dignissima barris-Such excite their Husbands by Diet, and fuch other Means as Modesty obliges me to conceal.

I SHALL make no farther Descant on these Beauties: The Language, the Ingenuity, the Stile, or Coherence; the Reader has it all before him, and can doubt no longer

1.2 100 1.10 Date: Unit

Manner than ever I would have done any Antagonift who had behaved himfelf with any tolerable Decency. Thofe again, who delight in gay and fprightly Figures, will imagine that I have little Reafon to make Excufes for a few ironical Praifes, and unmerited Commendations, I have beftowed on a Man, with whofe Authorship it would be ridiculous to be ferioufly angry : and they would have been better pleafed if I had returned him his fcurrilous Civilities, and been more diffusive and particular in pointing at the Weakness and Puerility of his Stile, and exposed him with the fame Licentiousness and Petulancy of Language with which he fell upon me without any Provocation. To fuch I fhall only obferve, that where there is much Railing, there is little Reafon; and it is reckoned a fure Sign of the Badnefs of a Caufe, or of the Weakness of its Advocates, when they have Recourse to foul Language in Defence of it.

I A M fatisfied; and the attentive Reader, who have likewife feen the Onania Examined and Detected, must know, that I have answered all the material Objections that any ways obstructed my View : What this is, I have hinted at often, viz. to promote Virtue in general, efpecially that which affifts us in conquering Luft and Impurity; and more particularly that Branch of Uncleannels, that, without Witnefs, may be committed with one's Self; that is, to prevent and deter both Sexes, Youth and others, from the heinous Sin of SELF-POLLUTION. I have demonstrated that the most confiderable Part of Onan's Sir, for which God flew him, was SELF-POLLUTION, even from the Proofs my Adverfary had brought to evince the contrary. I have likewife proved, whatever, to contradict me, he has either extenuated or denied concerning the Enormity of the Sin in the Sight of God, to have been rightly afferted in my Book; that it is practifed by both Sexes, and that it is of dangerous Confequence as to bodily Health. These Things I have made evident from the very. Examples unwarily dropped and alleged by my Adverfary, whilft he was endeavouring to refute me, as may be feen in Page 20, 22, and 23, of this Supplement. I have also shewed that my Adversary's Accusations (as if I had broached pernicious Errors, and countenanced and encouraged Lasciviousness between Man and Wife) are entirely entirely falfe, and wilful Calumnies, in which no Appearance or Shadow of Truth is to be found even in his Book, but what are owing to palpable Mifconftructions, malicious Infinuations, and fuch Stratagems in his Quotations, as can only flow from Infincerity, and the utmost Want of Candour: By all which, I have made it manifest, that what I have faid concerning the Marriage-bed in the ONANIA, is agreeable to found Doctrine, and can have no other Tendency than to recommend and increase Virtue and Religion, Chastity and good Manners.

THAT I have been fo fevere againft SELF-POLLUTION from a fecret Defign to encourage Fornication and Adultery, as my Adverlary infinuates more than once, has been fo amply refuted in the former Editions of the Book he writes against, and now in Page 96, 97, of the aforegoing 18th EDITION, that I thought it fuperfluous to be again mentioned : But to those who never read the ONA-NIA, what I shall quote from one of them, I hope will be fufficient to remove all Sufpicion. Having in the Anfwer to a LETTER questioning me on that Subject, given it as my Sentiment, that Fornication as well as Self-Pollution, were both abominable in the Sight of God, and therefore to be equally avoided, I proceed thus: If I have faid any thing that has given the least Handle to any of my Readers to think that I look upon Fornication as a venial Sin, in comparison to Self-Pollution, or that I would decry the one to encourage the other, which is still more abominable, I am beartily forry for it, and can affure them, that whoever has misconstrued me in this Manner, has been most miserably mistaken; and that neither yourself, nor any other, may be Jo again for the future, I Jolemnly declare, that the Height of my Wishes is to deter both Sexes from Impurity of every Kind, and all Manner of Uncleanness without Exception. The Reason why I have faid so little of Fornication, and so much against Self-Pollution, I thought would have been obvious to the meanest Capacity : I treat of the one, ex professo, and not of the other.

THE ONANIA is a Book of Morality, and there is nothing I abhor more, than that I fhould be any Ways acceffary to the Corruption of Manners; therefore my great-H h 2 eff

eft Concern is to demonstrate and convince the Reader. that I have broached no falfe Doctrine, nor pernicious Error, and that nothing is contained in it that can be deftructive, or in the least injurious to Chaftity, or any other Virtue. It is that which I call material, and without that Confideration, no Provocation of Injuries, nor Importunity of Friends, could ever have perfuaded and drawn me in to answer Philo Castitatis, or trouble my Head about any thing fuch an Author could write. As to his other Sarcafms and Conjectures on the mercenary Views I have. the Motives I act from, and the Intentions of my Heart, of which God ought to be thought, and is the only Searcher, he is welcome to make as many more ; and I can affure him, that they fhall never give me one Moment's Difquiet, neither will I fpend more Time to vindicate the Strength of my Understanding, my Capacity in Writing, or Skill in any Art or Science whatever,

SHOULD my Adverfary complain that I have left Matters unanfwered, which he calls Material, and imagine that I ought to be more particular on fome Things he charges me with, let him first reply to the Things I have answered already, and overthrow what I have faid to confute him ; after that I will do what he pleafes ; but unlefs he folidly refutes the Proofs I have alleged, and anfwers without Shifts or Evafion, to every Particular I have touched upon; unlefs, I fay, he does that, in a Manner clofer, more pertinent, and more worthy being taken Notice of than what he has wrote against me already, I shall not give myfelf, nor the Reader, any further Trouble about him : He may write, and aggress me, (as he calls it) as long as he pleafes, but before I fee fuch a fatisfactory Reply, he fhall hear no more of me. In the mean Time, let my Adverfary hug himfelf in his own Sufficiency, he shall have my Leave to crow, triumph, and rejoice at the Conceit of his Superiority over me, in every Respect: and I fhall be glad to fee him extol to the Sky, the Purity of Language, the correct Diction, the fine Senfe, and Delicacy of Stile, with every other Merit, of his valuable Work; and deprefs, as much as he pleafes, the rhapfodical Cant, wrong Reafoning, and Meannels of my pitiful Verformance.

I have, in the ONANIA, answered an Objection that was made against fome LETTERS I had inferted therein : and in the beginning of this Supplement I have again obviated what might be farther faid on that Head. I have likewife taken Notice, as may be feen in Page 24, of what Philo Castitatis charges me with, viz. That I have been injurious to virtuous, modeft, and chafte young Ladies, and affronted the whole Sex, by faying that Girls in Boarding-Schools, and often Women grown, were guilty of Self-Pollution ; and that I had trefpaffed against the Rules of Modesty, by naming, in my Mother Tongue, the Distempers which that Practice was often the Occasion of. But why this is a greater Affront, than to fay that many of them are guilty of Fornication and Adultery, and have drawn Diseases upon themselves by promiscuous Embraces, I cannot fee; especially why it should seem to to a Man who thinks the first-named Sin inferior to, and much lefs heinous than, either of the latter. I have as great an Effeem, and pay as much Deference, to the virtuous Part of the Fair Sex, as anybody; but it is an infipid Compliment to them, as well as Stupidity, to affert that there are no other : Vice is a Foil to Virtue, and to fay that there are many lascivious Women, is so far from being an Affront to chafte and married Ladies, that it points at, and heightens their Merit. To convince the Reader that what I have faid of Girls and others concerning this Sin, is not a Calumny, or ill-grounded Afperfion, I fhall give two or three Inftances, by and by, proved by their Letters, of Women, that have not only been guilty of SELF-POL-LUTION, but likewife by the long Continuance of that Practice, have grievoully injured their Bodies, and brought themselves into most miserable Conditions.

A S to the revealing of Secrets, the exposing of Patients publickly, and the breaking of one's Truft, which I have been told are in the printing of LETTERS fent to me for Advice, I have spoke to it already, and am still of Opinion that the Charge is ridiculous, being well assured, when the Names of the Persons remain concealed, and the Business likewise which they follow, and the Places of their Abode are neither mentioned nor pointed at, that from from fuch Letters there is no more to be discovered or gathered, to any one's Prejudice, than there is from every Cafe and History, related in any Practical Book of Phyfic or Surgery : Not to mention the Precautions the Writers of some of them take to conceal themselves, even from me, which make it still the more impracticable, an Instance of which may be seen in the former Editions of the ONA-NIA, and in Page 152 of the aforecoing 18 th, from a married Lady, who begins her Letter to me thus : Sir, Since it will be impossible for you ever to know from whom this comes, I can with Freedom relate my Case to you, which otherwise I could not have Confidence enough, so much as to mention one Tittle of it to any Physician living, & c. As also from other married as well as fingle Women, which the Reader will likewise fee by-and-by.

BUT before I fet down the LETTERS I intend to produce, I must shew the Reader a Passage of my Adversary, who has blamed me fo much for divulging the Frailties of the Sex, and is of Opinion that all fuch Matters, if we knew them, ought to be fliffed and suppressed, at least not published in one's Mother Tongue. It is in Page. 126 of his Book, where he fays, A married Woman alfo, aged about 47 Years, confulted a Phylician for Barrenness, from a Laxnefs of muscular Fibres of the Vagina and Uterus; but examining the Cafe, and suspecting from both the Character she went under, and from what she faid herself, that it was not owing to any Infufficiency in the Husband, whom she publicly complained of, but to her own infatiable Luft, for it plained appeared her Cafe was owing to Friction; wherefore confidering her Age, and the little Hopes of Succefs upon fuch a Patient, he refused meddling. . If I had made this Judgment, without any further Proof than what Philo Caftitatis gives for this bold Affertion, he would, and not unjuftly, have called me a very cenforious Fellow: But I have quoted this only to fhew how well my bright Antagonist observes the Lessons he gives, and how carefully he avoids the Faults he charges me with.

To the ingenious AUTHOR of a Book, entitled, ONANIA.

SIR,

Feb. 28, 1750.

IWRITE in Behalf of a young Creature who has abused herself by SELF-POLLUTION; she has made a Resolution of never falling into that Sin again, which I hope will move your Compassion to give some Relief in this dismal Cafe. Sir, I will explain her Cafe to you, she has a great Heat in her Privities, Belly, and Thighs, with darting shooting Pains, which are very great fometimes, a continual Pain in her Head, and fometimes in all Parts of her Body floating about; she has nothing appears outwardly, nor any thing comes from her, but her Complaints are all inward, great Pains and Heat in the Privities and Belly, as I faid before. I have writ all her Complaints, she is in great Affliction and Trouble for this her (ad Condition; and is fo bashful, that she had died in this Condition if she had not seen your extraordinary Book, which I bought a Month ago. Sir, I apply myself to you in hopes of a Cure by some of your proper Medicines : If her wretched Condition be past Cure, and you" will not undertake it, be pleased to direct your Answer for me to be left at the Bookfellers, and I will give Mr. Corbett Half a Guinea for your Trouble, Sir, when I come for your Answer. Pray, Sir, be very private in this Matter, for I am ashamed to come of this Errand; but it is Charity to help them that cannot help themfelves, and I hope she may live and repent of this great Sin, which is the Defire of,

Your very humble Servant,

ANNE L.

[240]

To Mr. C. CORBETT, Bookfeller, opposite St. Dunstan's Church, Fleet-Street.

Mr. CORBETT,

" I DESIRE you would give the enclosed LETTER as directed, and be pleased to fend me a Bottle of your Strengthening Tinsture by the Bearer, and to fend this Letter back, which will much oblige,

" Your humble Servant, &c.

To the ingenious AUTHOR of ONANIA. Thefe.

Saturday, Nov. 9, 1733.

Honoured SIR,

I T is one of the greatest Afflictions of my whole Life, that I am forced to acquaint you with the melancholy Circumstances of a near Relation and Friend of mine, occasioned by the vile Practice of Self-Pollution, which she has continued in for a long Time; and I fear "her Case is too like that of the young Woman mentioned in the Clergyman's Letter.

SHE has for a long Time been very much out of Order, and I could never guess the Reason till I found her reading your your Book, fince which Time she has been extremely dejected and cast down, and I fear it will affect her Reason is not timely prevented; and therefore, Sir, I hope you will be so good as to confider of her Case, and, if there is any Help for her, to let me know.

I SHALL, in as brief a Manner as possible, let you know all the different Symptoms, in Hopes of your best Advice.

SHE has long complained of Lownefs of Spirits, and Pains in the Head, fometimes on one Side, fometimes on the other.

A ND with violent Pains just before the Course of Nature, though those are much abated to what they have been six Months ago; and what frights me most is, a Pain in her Nose, and a violent Itching all over her Body, but chiefly in her Head, and the extreme Parts. When she told me these Pains wandered about her Body, I advised her to have a Physician, but she declared she would die first, and suffer all the Tortures she could possibly undergo; and this made it necessary for me to apply myself to you, which, I hope, will be a sufficient Excuse for this Trouble.

BESIDES this, the has had a Weaknefs, occasioned by the Whites, which lasted two or three Days, but no longer, nor any Time before.

AT prefent she has a shortness of Breath, and a Cough, and a constant running at her Nose, with Loss of Appetite; but whether this proceeds from her great Concern, or the Malignity of the Disease, I should be glad to be informed.

I HAVE fent Half a Guinea by the Bearer, which I beg you to accept of, and another for a Bottle of the Tincture, and shall order a Person to call for your Answer on Monday; and beg you will let me know what Medicines will be best for her, and what they will come to, and, when I fend for them, I will order the Money.
IT may be necessary to inform you, that she is thirty Years of Age, and, I think, began that vile Practice as early as any ever did; and I know she has been a very great Offender that Way. I cannot get her to be more particular in this Matter.

I B E G, Sir, you will be fo good to excufe this long Letter, and to let me know what may be the worft Confequences of her prefent Condition; and it would be a farther Favour to know, if there is any visible Sign of this Vice in any Part of her Face discoverable by others. Thus complying with this Request, will be a great Obligation to

Your unknown humble Servant,

SARAH R---.

B E pleased to direct the Letter for Mrs. Sarah R-, in whose Name the Person shall call for it.

I SHALL let you know how the Medicines operate, and defire your farther Advice, and, if they fucceed, shall be very grateful.

This for the good Author of ONANIA.

SIR,

" PRovidence has been fo kind, as to direct me to your excellent Book, called ONANIA, I feeing an Advertisement of it in an old News-paper by Chance; but it was a great while before I could contrive how to fend for it, and then there was none to be had: I fent three or four Times for it, and at laft I got one, and read many Cafes in it fomething like my own Cafe, but yet of none

none of my Sex that begun the wicked Practice of SELF-POLLUTION fo foon as myfelf, for I began with it at eleven Years old, by the Devil's leading me to it I think, and followed it till I was married, which was before I was quite feventeen, but was always pale and weakly when a Girl, and never had the Courfe of Nature but twice till I married; and I must own my farther Wickedness, which was, that I used that b fe and cruel Practice after I was married, and had a great deal more Pleafure in it than when my Hbsband lay with me, although he is a young brisk Man, and till I read your valuable Book I followed it almost daily, and have been married four Years, but never was with Child, nor been in Order as Women should be, and as other Women are; and have never been right well in Health all my Marriage, though I have took Abundance of Phyfick; but now, by reading your wonderful good Book, I fee what the Caufe is, and thank the Almighty I have left it off. I am troubled very much with the Vapours, and a fluttering and trembling; and I ufed that Practice the oftener, becaufe it always helped me in the Vapours, and the trembling and fluttering; but then I thought it increased the Pain in my Back by what ufed to come away from me, and my bearing down of my Womb alfo, which is very much fometimes; and I have great Slipperinefs of the Womb, as Midwives and Doctors have told me, but none of them could ever do me any Good, but I hope, Sir, that you can without feeing me, for I can never fee you after telling you my Condition, if I die for it. I entreat you to affift me, and will pay whatever the Charge is, for I would be cured, for my Hufband wonders what is the Matter with me, for I have not the leaft Defire he fhould lie with me, nor the leaft Pleafure in the Act when he does; and my Womb is fo flippery, that I am told I shall never be with Child till that is cured, and I want to have a Child. I was fadly put to it how to fend privately to you; and the Woman that brings this is employed by another Woman, and the does not know me neither; and I have fent you a Guinea Fee by her, and pray let me know if you can cure me; and direct me what I must do, for I am fometimes at my Wit's End that I fhould be fo luftful, and foolifh, and wicked, as to bring myfelf into this fad Condition; and my Huf-Ii2 band band knows nothing of the Caufe of it, but knows I am not as I fhould be. I must defire you, Sir, to fend me back this Letter, with your Answer, and feal them up fafe, and the Woman shall call at the Booksfeller's for it on Wednesday Morning next, without fail; and you will oblige,

"SIR,

" Your most distressed

" unknown humble Servant,

Feb. 12.

5 A. 2?

I fent this Gentlewoman fome Medicines feveral Times, and received divers Letters from her, and among them the following.

To the Author of ONANIA.

SIR,

Received your Letter of March the 11th, and the Medicines you ordered me, and have here fent you Half a Guinea Fee. You ordered me to take a Tea-spoonful in five er fix Spoonfuls of White-wine, drinking a Glass of Spaw Water after it, and to take it Night and Morning, drinking a Flask a Day, the Time this Viol lasted, but was obliged to take two Tea-spoonfuls at a Time, and that did but just keep me laxative. This Viol lasted me about a Fortnight; I then began with the small one, taking twentyfive Drops in White-wine, and Spring-water a Quarter of a Pint, taking it at eleven in the Morning and four in the Afternoon, leaving the Spaw Water quite off. Both thefe Medicines agreed very well with me; I was not out of Order till Monday before Easter; it was seven Weeks the Friday before fince I was out of Order : I had them about four Days; they were not a clear Colour, nor were they fo black black as sometimes they are. On Wednesday in Easter Week I began with the Injection, which I used as usual; there came away with it little Pieces of Skin and Felly, but not near fo much as used to come from me. This Day Fortnight my Drops were out; I had them this Day Sevennight: I had them fix or feven Days; it was but two or three Days above a Month fince I was fo before; they are of a clearer Colour than before. I have omitted writing to you till I could fend this Fee, being very fenfible of the Trouble I have given in writing fo many Letters. I believe it had been better for me had I feen you, but could never think of it without a very great Uneafiness to me. I should not think much of the Expence had I enough to go on with it, for I can deny myself any Thing in Hopes of having Health again; and have done it to the uttermost of my Power; and am very thankful to ALMIGHTY GOD, who has given a Bleffing ta your Medicines, and return you Abundance of Thanks for your great Care of me, and shall ever think myself bound to pray for you; for I believe I had continued in this wicked Practice as long as I had lived, had I not read your excellent Book of ONANIA. I have a great deal of Pleasure in the Act, but cannot tell if I have fo much as other Women have; and great Inclination to it fometimes, which causes a little bearing down of the Womb, and the bearing down of the Womb for a Day or two when I am first out of Order. I hope my Womb is not fo flippery as it was, and hope I shall gather Strength every Day, and then believe I shall be better; but I think I keep the Seed after Coition longer than I used to do. The Person I employ in this Matter is almost ready to lye-in; as foon as pleafe God she is up again you shall bear from me again. Pray let me have a Line from you Tomorrow Morning, and you will very much oblige

To the Author of ONANIA.

SIR,

" Think I had rather die than make my Cafe known;

but, as we cannot do that when we would, I must now make my Complaint to you, in Hopes of Re-Some Time fince I had a very great Inclination to lief. be married, and was, as I thought, very near it; but, as my Fortune was fmall, and the Offers I met with not very extraordinary, my Friends would not confent to any of them; though it would have been better for me; for my Defire, after being courted fome Time, grew very ftrong, and I could not help, in fome Meafure, encourageing it; which GOD forgive me! that being, I think, my only Fault. I never used any Thing but my own Hands. I have now been under the Physicians Hands this Halfyear, though never the better, I think worfe : Indeed I never could tell them my Cafe, nor could I to you, were I to fpeak it. I for many Years have had very weak Nerves, and a good deal of the Rheumatifm; if I lean on my Elbows, or ufe any Strength with my Hands, they are then benumbed, and my Fingers will catch, and draw up, like the Cramp; my Stomach feems outwardly fwelled, and I have a racking Pain in it, which often makes me feel as if I should choak, and appears to me as if I were inwardly fore from my Throat to my Navel. I have alfo a racking Pain in my Back, between my Loins and under my Shoulders ; if I offer to pull myfelf up, all my Bones will fnap, you may hear them if you ftand by me. If at any Time I turn my Head a one Side, or offer to talk much, it hurts me mightily : The Hollow of my Stomach, and under my Shoulders, feems inwardly fwelled, and full of Pain : My Hands are feldom warm, and the Bones of my Infteps by Night feem much fwelled, and full of Pain: Whenever I fleep, I awake with a great Numbnels in my Arms; and, if I happen to lie on my Back, with a great Pain

[247] Pain in my Heels. If at any Time I lean on my Elbows, they then will be much numbed, and my Sidesfull of Pain, that I can hardly fit upright : if I offer to walk. I am ready to die with a Numbnefs in my Loins, and Pain in my Stomach and middle of my Back : My Shoulders fometimes feel as if they were fluck full of Pins ; it really hurts me to put my Hands to my Head, fo that I fancy I have ftrained fomething within me. After I have had the Pain all the Day, towards Night I fall into prodigious Fluthings in my Face, which makes a thoufand Pulses in my Head, and almost blinds me, it so weakens my Eyes. In a Morning I awake very dry and my Tongue very white ; and have a great inward Heat and Drought, and am apt to vomit and be very giddy, and often subject to have fick Fits; but my Pain in my Body is fo great, that I do not wonder at that : I dread an Ulcer in the Wonb or Kidnies, for I am, I think, always upon the Rack. Nothing ever comes discoloured from me, only my Water is generally very thick and high-coloured, when it ftands fome Time is like Curds and Whey, or elfe a Cloud in it. If you think you can help me, let me know by a Line ; but be fure you feal it up, this Friend not knowing what is the Matter with me, and very likely may fend her Maid to you. I live forty Miles off the Perfon I fend, fo it will be fome Time before I can have your Letter. If you think the Strengthening Drops I have bought of the Bookfeller proper for me, fend me Word what I shall take them in, and if any particular Food be good for me : I am apt to be very coffive, and whenever I go to Stools, it firains my right Eye as if it would blind me.

" If I had been to happy to read your Book before, I had never done this; but did not think it to great a Sin : I am fure I thall never fall into it again, I to much abhor it. I could not venture to take the Bottle of Drops without your Advice; tho' at prefent I am Miftrefs of very little Money; however. I have here fent you a Guinea : If I can recover this great Diforder, I thall foon have it in my Power to oblige my Friends; and affure yourfelf, if I find Benefit by what you otder me to do, you then thall hear of me. I am where I cannot take much 'Things, and without I foon find Benefit, I thall have very little Courage.

" I fear you will hardly have Patience to read all this, but could not tell you my Cafe exactly in lefs Words.

"Direct your Letter for Mary S-, when I shalt have it fafe; as foon as I have it I will let you know.

" I have the Bottle of Strengthening Drops, which I gave Half a Guinea for; fend me Word if I should keep them cool.

" Your Humble Servant,

April 22.

" M. S."

" I am apt to think I have a good deal of the Cholic."

I ordered this Gentlewoman to take the Strengthening Tincture, and Viols of the Reftoring Drink, and to go down to the Bath; which fhe did with good Success, and was cured.

To the Author of the ONANIA.

SIR,

Nov. 14, 1739.

" I AM a young Woman, that have been in a Surprize near this Twelve-month, not knowing what was the Matter, till reading the News, found therein an Advertifement of a Book, which I bought, and found great Part of my Diftemper defcribed, and accordingly fent for a Bottle of the Tincture; and finding that do me good, I took a fecond, which has reftored my Nerves and Spirits almost as good as ever, but has flung it more upon apon a certain Part, which makes me very uneafy, and indeed frightens me very much; for if I had ever had any private Converfation with a Man, I fhould think it the Foul Diftemper; but I do affure you I never had: I am as well for a Fortnight or three Weeks after a certain Time, as ever I was in my Life; and I was ftill in Hopes it would have gone away, but its quite the reverfe, for I am worfe, and would willingly take your other Medicines, if you think it proper to leave a Line at the Shop, with your Advice fealed up with them, if I may take them fafe, and you will for ever oblige

" Your Servant,

" Mary Sm ----.

" I WILL fend the Beginning of the Week, and the Meffenger fhall bring the Money.

" BECAUSE the Post will not bring the Money, or I had fent a Month sooner. I beg your Pardon, Sir, for going so far.

"SIR, your Book fpeaks of Swellings in the Part, but I have none, only fore and uncafy, and that about a Week or ten Days before the Time : And now I have fent you, Sir all the Account I can give, and am in Hopes to find Relief."

ANOTHER Fault that has been found with the ONANIA, is the first Severity with which it forbids SELF-POLLUTION at all Times, without Exception, or the leaft Indulgence on any Emergency whatever. Those who endeavour to extenuate the Sin of Onan pretend, that Masturbation may be allowed of, whenperformed without luftful Imaginations, and fometimes become neceffary for the Sake of Health : They will have it, that, for the want of Evacuation, the Seed corrupts, or at leaft that, by its returning through the Spermatic Veins, it fills the Mais of Blood with noxious Particles, that may be the Occasion of, feveral Diftempers, I had a Letter fent me, wherein this Opinion is ftrenuoufly maintained and confirmed by Quotations of feveral Authors of great Repute. But as its Kk teemee feemed to me, that those Arguments were only alledged to puzzle the Cause, and oblige me to give it under my Hand, that Masturbation was not only an indifferent Action, but likewise that, in many Cases, it might become necessary, I wrote an Answer, to it, in which I referred to another Answer, where I had made it appear, that in vigorous People, who only could make this Plea, Nocturnal POLLUTIONS would answer all the Occasions for Evacuation that could be required. The Letter was figned Philalethes, and was in all the Editions from the 7th to the 16th, and is now in the aforegoing 17th of the ONANIA, beginning at Page 100, and the Answer following it, both which I refer the Reader to.

AFTER that, I received another Letter on the fame Subject, and I own that I have heard feveral make the fame Objections fince. I am well affured, that if once it is taken for granted, the Mafturbation is no Sin, if committed for Health's Sake t will be a vaft Inlet to Wickednefs, and be perpetually made a Handle of by luftful People, to indulge themselves in their Uncleanness, and juffify an abominable Practice, which they know that they are only prompted to by their own lascivious Inclinations. To prevent this, I defire the Reader carefully to weigh what I have faid on this Head, in all the former Editions from the 7th, and now again in Page 94 of the aforegoing 18th Edition of the ONANIA, viz. But let us suppose a Man weally labouring under fuch a Retention, and astually fuffering the ill Confequences of it, as Dimnefs of Sight, Vertigo, Dulnefs, and Melancholy, and whofe Circumstances in the World hinder him lawfully to converse with a Woanan, I cannot fee why he should not look upon this in the fame Manner as he would upon any other Affliction fent him by the Hand of God, either for Tryal or Chastifement. Let bim apply bimfelf to a skilful Physician and I can assure him, that there never was a Distemper, produced in a Body otherwife healthy, a Semine diutius retento that was not. er might not, have been eafily cured by Diet and Exercife, and perhaps a Bleeding. I write to Christians, and such as value their eternal Welfare beyond all other Confiderations, Should a Man pamper his Body, and indulge himfelf in Sloth and Idlenefs, when he is complaining of Ailments ments of Repletion, he would be the Caufe of his own Diforder himfelf. If a Man is fincere in his Religion, would be not rather abstain from rich Meats, and strong Nourishment, and by hard Labour and Fasting, mortify his Flesh, than wilfully offend God to obtain the same Ends?

T O prevent this plaufible Plea, of the Seed's Retention, from doing any further Mifchief to Chaftity, I shall fet down a curious Piece, concerning the Return of the Seed into the Blood, which a Gentleman, a Stranger, has been so obliging, as to refer me to, by a Letter from the Country to the Bookfeller.

SIR,

"O Blerving in the Papers an Advertisement about your AUTHOR'S Book, under the Tittle of ONANIA, I remembered there was something in the Acta Lipsiensia very proper to his Purpose. It is Schmeideri Observationes de Semine Regressu ad Massam Sanguineam. He will find it in Tom. V. Supplementorum ad Acta Eruditorum quæ Lipsiæ publicantur in 4to. Lips. 1713. Page 408. If he thinks proper he may infert it either as it is in the Latin, or will translate it as he sees fit. If this is too late, or known before, there is nothing lost but the Trouble of his reading this, and no more need be faid,

From your unknown
Friend and Servant.
K k 2

THE Latin Original, as referred to in the above Letter, I found in the faid Acta Lipfiensia, as mentioned, and which I translated, and is as follows, viz.

The Observation of L. Salomon Schmeider, concerning the Seed's Return into the Mass of Blood.

A S fometimes I have been meditating on various na-tural Subjects, the human Body, the wonderful Structure of it, its Motion, Humours, &c. I thought, that, among other Things, the Genital Liquid well deferved to be more narrowly inquired into. And the examining into the Nature, the conflitutive Parts, the Veffels, Receptacles, and Secretion of it, has brought to my Mind fome Things concerningits Motion; not that which is ejaculatory, and excited in Coitu, or by another filthy Titillation ; nor yet its own private or inteffine Motion, which, that it must have, we are pretty fure of, from the spirituous and fulphureous Particles it abounds with ; but the Motion I mean, is a progreffive one, from its Receptacles back again into the Mass of Blood : And feveral Things have induced me that I fhall believe and affert, that there really is fuch a Motion, fo long till the contrary thall plainly and evidently be demonstrated to me. To get some Light into this Matter, I perused Abundance of Authors, both Antient and Modern, Philological as well as Anatomical, but to little or no Purpofe, for I have been able to find little or nothing in any of them, concerning this progreffive or circulatory Motion, except in Hippoerates, in his Book de Genitura. The Words from which it may be gathered that Hippocrates, was of this Opinion, in the Latin from him, are these Words: Nam fimul ac Genitale Genitale Samen oritur Caro & extrema Cuticula rarior evadit, venulæ que magis quam antea aperiuntur. Et Paulo post: Qui vero ætate adhuc puerili Eunuchi existunt eam ob causam neque in Pube, neque in meato pilas habent lavesque toti sunt, quod, cum nondum via Genituræ facta sit nusquam rarescit summa Superficiei, nam quemadmodum paulo ante me dictum est intercepta, est Genituræ via. In English these : For, as soon as there is Seed made, the Flesh and autward Skin become more porous, and the little Veins are more opened than they were before. And a little after he fays: But those who are yet in their Childhood, or elfe Eunuchs, have, for that Reason, no Hair either on the Pubes or Chin, and are all over smooth, because no Passage being yet made for the Seed, the outward Superficies is no where rarefied; for, as I faid a little before, the Passage of the Seed is stopped up.

" From these Words I think it is evident, that Hippocrates has made mention of this Progress of the Seed into the Blood and Body; whilft he afferts, that, by this fame Seed the Flesh and outward Skin are rarefied, that the Beard and Hair on the Pubes might come through, because then there is a Paffage made for the Seed, which before the Years of Puberty, and in Eunuchs, is yet flopped up. Rolfinch just hints at it, and, at the fame Time, denies the Circulation of the Seed, as will appear from his Words : The oftentatious Name, fays he, of Circulation gives no rest to the Curious. The Seed Seems not to circulate either within ar out of the Testicles. The Vigour which the Testicles add to the Body, ought not to be afcribed to their Bulk, but to their Power. Yet I will not deny, but that some Seminal Atoms may be mixed with the Blood from the Remainder of what serves for the Nutrition of the Testicles, and which is received back in the Veins. That these Words intimate a Regress of the Seed into the Blood is undeniable; but they are not ftrong enough, and a few Atoms are not fufficient, to procure the Body Mettle, and add Strength and Vigour to it; and it must not be a small Quantity of them that would be able to have that Effect. Tauvry, speaking of the Use of the Seed, in regard to the Body it is made in, and confidering it on Account of the the visible Effects it has upon the Body, comes, without doubt, into the Opinion of its circulatory Motion. I shall transcribe the Passage intire; it is worth reading, and runs thus : No-body doubts, but that we owe our Origin to the Seed, and that, whilft it regenerates us in other Beings very like ourfelves, it renders us as it were immortal: But it is more difficult to trace and know the Use it is of to the Subject itself in which it is produced. Let we see that it gives us a certain Degree of Perfection, Strength, and Vigour; becaufe Eunuchs, Women, and those who, by exceffive Venery, are enervated, are, like Children, daftardly and imperfect; for the same Reason it produces a Beard, and makes the Voice of a deeper Sound : And as between a Eunuch and a Man, there is no other Difference than what relates to the Production of this Liquid, it is very probable that this same Liquid, returning into the Mass of Blood, is the Caufe of those remarkable Effects.

" THESE are the words and Arguments of that Author, to which I shall add my own Reasons, to confirm this Opinion. The first and weightiest, is the Smallness of the Seminal Bags, and the continual and daily Afflux into them. That they are fmall we are convinced of by our Eyes; for they are not three Inches in Length, and hardly one Inch in Breadth and Thickness, though on one Side they are commonly fomewhat bigger than they are on the other. Now, let any one well confider the fmallnefs of these Vessels, and the daily Influx of Seed into them, which No-body can deny, unless he denies likewife, against all Reason and Experience, the Circulation of the Blood, the undoubted Caufe of the Secretion of all Humours in the Body, good or bad : Now let, I fay, any one well confider the continual Applaufe of Seed, and the fmallnefs of these Seminal Bags, that are no Ways capable of receiving and containing only fuch a Quantity of Seed as must be made in feven or eight Weeks (I will fay nothing of many Years) and fo long till a Man lawfully cohabits with a Woman. As thefe things then are inconfiftent together, fo it is requifite that the Seed goes off again to the Mais of Blood, or the Body, for the already 1.000 already named Reafons by Tauvry, and others yet to be alledged. The Change likewife that is observed in the Temperament of the Body after Caffration, helps plainly to prove this progreffive Motion of the Seed. For it is manifest that Animals, after their Testicles are taken away grow fatter, are more languid, and lefs courageous. It is among other Things, likewife to be minded, that in Eu_{-} nuchs, the Hairs of the Beard and Privities do not fall off before Caftration; and that if in the Beard, or other Parts, they are not come out, yet they never will as they are observed to do in those that are not castrated. The Privation of Virility likewife changes the Voice, which becomes more sharp after it. It is reported of Stags that are fit for Copulation, that if, immediately after the fhedding of their Horns, that fall off every Year, they are deprived of their Virility, no new Horns will ever grow again. This Motion of the Seed is moreover proved from the rank fmell and Taite of fome Brute Beafts, and the Flefh of them, as also the flated Periods on which their Defire of Copulation returns. What becomes of all the Seed? Where is it hid when those Animals do not couple with their Females? To fay then that no Secretion of Seed is made, is speaking against all Reason and Experience. There are the Organs fet apart for that Secretion, which, according to the Laws of Nature, are ever employed in their Office. There is the Matter, viz. the Arterial Blood, from which the Seed is feparated. Experience teaches us likewife the Prefence of the Seed in Animals at all Times. Diffect an Animal when you pleafe, the Seed Bags will ever appear turgid with recent Seed. I believe moreover, that if the Seed did not circulate in the Body, it would be utterly impoffible for unmarried Men to abftain from Fornication, by Reafon of the ever-growing Quantity of Seed, and the continual pricking that it would give to abominable Luft, not to fpeak of the various and most dangerous Difeases such an Abundance of Seed would produce, if the Quantity of it could no Way be leffened but by Matrimony. But God, who abominates Impurity, has, in his Word, feverely forbid Fornication, which he would not have done, if Men had been left destitute of the Means to avoid it. If we fay otherwife, we must believe believe God to be the Author of Sin, which is Blafphemy. What is to be faid of the Chaftity of the Patriarchs, and other holy Men? Was there in them not likewife a Circulation of the Seed? Very probably there was. In their Bodies was a perpetual Circulation of the Blood, and a continual Secretion of Seed: They had the fame Parts and Organs, and yet felt no diforderly Defires from them: They lived a holy Life, and were contented with a fpare and fimple Diet, as is witneffed of them in Holy Writ. In the fame Manner Men might live chaftely now, if they would but do their Duty, and what the Word of God commands them. The Seed, according to the Laws prefcribed to it, cannot excite Men to commit fuch Sins; the fame Quantity as goes from the Blood to the Seed Bags, returns and goes from them into the Blood again. But it is true, that a Man may spoil and diffurb this Motion of the Seed by Exceffes in Diet, and various Meats and Liquors, that either augment the Quantity of Seed too much, or render it fharp, or elfe obstruct the Vessels, and fo cause a Stagnation and Corruption of the Seed; fo that afterwards it is no wonder that very often diforderly Motions, evil Concupifcences, and from thence various Sorts of Difeafes, are produced. And it feems not improbable, that a Stagnation of the Seed, occafioned by Obstruction, and an Acrimony contracted from thence, ought fometimes to be reckoned among the morbific Caufes of a Furor Uterinus, Priapifm, and Satyriafis. This is evident from what is often obferved in Women troubled with the Furor Uterinus, viz. that upon rubbing the Pudenda with Musk or Ambergreafe, or giving them Glifters of the fame Nature, great Quantities of Spermatic Matter are difcharged, with immediate Relief of the Patient. From what has been hitherto faid, I think it is manifeft, that the Seed, from its Veffels, returns into the Blood, and from that again into them: But where is the Paffage through which it is carried? This, I confess, we know little of ; but then, our Want of Knowledge is no Reafon we should deny that there is such a Passage. Our Ignorance and Diffidence cannot take away the Truth and Reality of Things, Tell me, pray, which Way is it, that often from an Empyeng in the Thorax, an Imposthume hid, hid in the Abdomen, or an Inflammation of the Pleura, Lungs, &c. the purulent Matter is carried to the urinary Paffages, the Guts, or the Mouth? We fee, that in a Pleurify, the Matter is most commonly discharged at the Mouth, but then at other Times we find likewife that it is brought away with the Urine and Excrements. Nay what is still more to be admired, feveral hard Substances that had been fwallowed, as Pins, &c. have, through the urinary Paffages, been brought away with the Urine; as we have had feveral Examples, attefted by Perfons of Worth and Credit. Miscell. N. C. 4. 11. D. 10. 111. P. m. 4. and Act. Eruditor. Menf. August. Anni MDCCXII. P. M. 347. Which way could thefe Things get to the urinary Veffels? That the Blood carried them with it through the Arteries, Veins, and capillary Veffels, is very difficult to conceive. Let any one who understands Anatomy weigh and confider the curious Progrefs, and many crooked Windings, the Chyle from the Stomach is forced to make to get into the Blood : Let him confider moreover the various Windings, and capillary Veffels, through which the Blood circulates, and compare to it these hard Substances, and then judge whether they can as eafily be carried to the fecretory Organs of the Urine, and with the fame Facility be feparated from the Blood, as the Urine is, without wounding the Veffels. The above-mentioned Tauvry is of Opinion, that the Seed, through the Pores of the Veins, goes back into the Mafs of Blood, which Regrefs he conceives to be made in this Manner. The Seed, fays he, included within its Veffels, ferments, and, by continuing there, gets a Conflitution it was not endued with before, viz. it acquires more Motion, and is more fubtilized, fo that returning into the Mafs of Blood, it there brings forth those Alterations, which it could not have produced unlefs it had been rectified and exalted in the Seminal Veffels. When thefe Veffels are once filled, and more Seminal Matter comes to them, that which is contained in them is forced by Degrees to go off into the Pores of the Veins, and circulating with the Blood, by its glutinous Quality, in a Manner involves and with-holds the Spirits, and hinders: the Diffipation of them. This is the Reason that when in the Veneral Act, great Quantities of this oily Sub-LI itance, ftance, at often repeated Times, are exhausted, the Spirits fly away, and from this Principle arifes the Debility of those that are destitute of this Liquid. Monsteur Bayle, whom I have quoted before, is of the fame Opinion. As to myfelf, I believe that the Seed, being attenuated and fubtilized in the Tefficles and Seminal Veffels, returns by the lymphatic Veffels, which, together with the Vafa deferentia, alcend into the Abdomen, and there discharge their Lympha in the chyliferous Veffels, and that after this Manner it is carried again into the Chyle and Blood, to the great use of the whole Body. I heartily with, that the most skilful Anatomists, and philologic Writers of the greatest Penetration, would further inquire into this Affair, the clear Knowledge of which would be of immenfe Utility. What has been faid concerning this Matter here shall fuffice; the candid Reader, I hope, will take it in good Part, friendly defiring him, if he knows any Thing better, he would amend this, and communicate it to the Public. For why fhould I (to end with the Words of Derlingius, in Præf. Obf. Sacr. pag. 1.) refuse to submit what I fay to the Judgment of the Learned, when I examine the Sentiments of learned Men myfelf, and freely give my Opinion of them? This I know, that I shall always think it an Honour, as well as Advantage, to be admonifhed and taught by Men verfed in this Sort of Studies; but the raw Judgment of the ignorant (which often. prevails now-a-days) I fhall contemn without fear : for in our Age we fee the fame Thing which formerly Anacharfis wondered at among the Greeks : That Artificers ftruggled together for the Prize, and were judged by those who were no Artificers."

FROM these Observations of Schmeider it is evident, how much Stress ought to be laid on the Arguments built upon the Seed's returning into the Mass of Blood: But to those who complain of too much Vigour, and are destitute of nocturnal Emissions, I must once more recommend what I prescribed before, viz. Hard Exercise, and a spare Diet: Those who would have Helps from the Materia Medica, must be content with such Recipe's as against plethoric Habits, and excessive Repletions, are to be met with in physical Authors, or else consult a Physician. The Remedies medies which my Adverfary names are the following, and which they may try if they have Faith enough: Take Seeds of Rue and Chafte Tree, Roots of Water-flag, of each a Dram; Lettuce Leeds two Drams and a half; dried Mint three Drams; Loaf Sugar one Ounce, make a Powder, mix; a Dram whereof let be given in thin White-wine, two Hours before Dinner, for fome Days together. Or elfe fuice of Lemons, with Spirit of Turpentine and Camphir. He recommends likewife Emulfuns made of Hempfeeds, Chafte Tree Seeds, Melon Seeds, and Pappy Seeds, whereto may be added Camphir, Spirit of Vitriol, a few Drops of it in any Liquor; or, which is better, fays he, Crude Nitre.

THESE, and Hundred of other Prefcriptions to the fame Purpose, may be found among Practitioners; but of the vigorous Men, who might really stand in need of them, I am certain, that not one in fifty would have recourse to such Medicines: But I dare promise likewise to all who will be fincere in this Matter, and make use of the two Things I named, Exercise and low Diet, that not one in a Thousand will ever be afflicted with any Distemper occasioned by a Redundency of Seed.

AS to the Recipe's of fome Medicines, which many, who know no better, have laid a great Strefs upon, on finding them fland recommended in physical Books, it is too notorioufly known, they have often done more hurt than good; whether from the Difingenuity of the Preferia bers, or Ignorance of those who have applied them, or their miftaking the Cafe they have been faid to be good for, I will not fay; but we are too well fatisfied, that at the beft, no Dependance can be made on many regular Prescriptions in some Books commended, much less on the bare promiscuous Nomination of Ingredients, where neither the Quantities, nor Qualities, Compositions, Time, nor Manner of giving them, are in the least taken Notice of: This is what my Adversary has done, in the lastmentioned Things, out of mere Kindnefs, for the Benefit of his Readers, as he would have them to believe; but I appeal to all judicious Phyficians, whether it be not the most uncertain, unintelligible Way of prescribing, and L12 what what can in no-wife, in the Way they are mentioned, stand the Patients in any Manner of Stead. All People know, or should, that the most prudent Care possible ought to be taken in the compounding and administering of Remedies, even of those for external as well as internal Use, and even by Men of the best skill and Probity; for fo different are their Principles, and fo various their Operations and Effects, that the most falubrious Ingredients, if not well prepared, and exactly dofed, or are ignorantly put together, may prove, upon Application, to be of the most pernicious Confequences, more especially if regard be not had to the Difference of Constitutions, Ages, &c. We have upon Record what Mischief was done by the Use of an Injection only, prepared by a Quack for a married teeming Woman, who had a Gonorrhæa, the Receipt of which he took, as he owned, from a phyfical Author : It indeed ftopped the Gonorrhan, but deftroyed, not only all future Conception in the Woman, but abfolutely extinguished, for ever after, all Manner of Inclination to, or Defire after, Venery, nay, caufed her to abhor the Thoughts of Coition, and fpurn at her Hufband's attempting any Thing with her of that Kind, to both their Difquietudes all their, Lives after. And if Medicines, ufed in fuch a Manner, have had those fevere Effects on fome, and been fatal to others, what may we apprehend from those which are commonly given at the Mouth, when Perfons, altogether ignorant of the Practice of Phyfick, fhall undertake the Preparation and Administration of them? I knew myself a Tumour, or Swelling of one of the Tefticles, in a young Gentleman, which might eafily have been discussed and reduced by proper Means, at first (it happening by the Regurgitation, or precipitate Return of the Seed, on its being ftopped by a Surprize, as he was in the Act of polluting himfelf, and heightened by the Titillation to the point of Ejaculation) brought to be as hard as a Board, and bigger than one's two Fifts, to the atter Extinction of his Fertility for ever, by the improper Applications of an ignorant Fellow.

I SHALL make no other Apology for printing fome other Letters that have been fent me. I have faid enough on that already; and I am fatisfied, that a great many of my

my Readers will be glad to peruse them, and most of those who wrote them not displeased to see them inferted; to prove which latter, the first shall serve me for an Argument and an Example.

To the Author of ONANIA.

SIR,

Cicester.

I F you continue your Thoughts of reprinting the Supplement to the Book ONANIA, and if the Merit of this Letter can contribute in the leaft to the dreadful Appearance of this odious Sin, I fhould be obliged to you, good Sir, to let it find Place in your next Edition.

SIR, I am a Divine, and very nearly allied to the Gentleman that fent you the Letter figned T. B. and though I feem to favour what you have been a little too hard upon in my Opinion, yet I must own, your Goodness ought to be acknowledged by at least all poor Sufferers by this abominable Practice of SELF-POLLUTION, Notwithftanding I am confcious of my Crime, I cannot be perfuaded, that after any Paffage has been made of the Seed through the Penis, either by SELF-POLLUTION, or the carnal Use of a Woman, that nocturnal Pollution is as natural as it is for the Seed to grow : For Inftance ; Was the Bladder to be tied up, till by Fullness, or firring, it made its Way, would not the Water, and doth it not, vent itself as often as full, or has occasion? Nor do I believe it any Crime, any more than the first that made the Way, nor hurtful to the Body, except very frequent or oftener than at the Seafons of the Moon, which, in my Opinion, is rather a Release and Refreshment to the Body than a Hurt.

AS to SELF-POLLUTION, I was very eafily perfuaded to the Guilt of it; your Book did no more than confirm my my Doubts, which were not great enough to confirm any Refolution, notwithftanding the ill Confequence that attended it as to my Body, had given me to think it not fo natural as using the Seed in the Way it was defigned for, which had made me almost abandon the Practice, but not before I had very much abused myself with it, and I believe should a great deal more, had not I reflected on the Manner of doing it in private, which gave me Suspicion (though I was very young) of the Uncleanness of it, and the Indecency of acting it, which was all I could imagine might be meant in Scripture of SELF-Pollu-TION, by the Name of Uncleanness; but then again I was not fatisfied there was any such Thing practised in those Days: As to the Text you quote of Onan, I never could look on that but as his Disobedience to God.

SO as this was a little Pleafure to me, I used to practife it as I found my Body would bear it, once a Week, or fo, till I was fo happy as to fee your most excellent Thoughts on the Subject; nor was I long before I perufed it through, with a ferious Confideration on every Page, and am as fully convinced of my Guilt, as I am of the Hurt I have done to my Body, the Particulars of which should not relate, but do affirm I really believe those Cases that have been sent you may be very true; and, as to the other Sex, I was very well acquainted with a young Woman that followed that deteftable Practice till fhe was wore to an Anatomy; her Skin was as yellow as Saffron, and fo fhort breathed fhe could hardly go, and at last died in a most miserable Condition, not much unlike the young Woman you gave the Particulars of: And the Wretch that taught me the Way to pollute myfelf, has made himfelf a Spectacle to the World; and I had injured myfelf very much before I knew what I did, but am now, I think, almost come to my natural Conftitution, and as ftrongly refolved never to be guilty any nore of this grievous Sin of SELF-POLLUTION, and, by his intire Reformation, I do not doubt but to bring my Body, &c. into a right Disposition; I a little doubt of fo ight as if I never had known this wicked Sin.

AND, as to NOCTURNAL POLLUTIONS, I believe they will never hurt my Body, nor lay any Weight on my Spirits, as knowing they are owing to Thoughts and Dreams, which we are not Masters of, if we are of our Hands; as to the Method of preventing it, I cannot comply with at all.

I A M in fo good a Way at prefent, that I want no Advice; but if I fhould, I will fend a Gratification. I defire you would add this to the Supplement; and if Ihave erred in any Part, I defire to be convinced, which you may very eafily do, I having fo good an Opinion of you, good Sir, and am your

P. S. ALTHOUGH I have not done myfelf fo much Damage as to want a particular Medicine, I could heartily beg all young People would abandon that damnable Practice of SELF-POLLUTION, on the Peril of losing both Body and Soul.

AND married Folks are the eternal Shame of this Life, as well as the juft Punifhment they may expect in the next. I fend this to Town by a Friend, becaufe I would not put you to Charge. I do not doubt, through my Advice, most in this Town reads this Book, and will for ever think themselves obliged to the Author of ONANIA.

SIR when I see the new Edition advertised, I think to send for several Dozens of them.

To the DOCTOR.

Honoured SIR,

I HAV E taken four Bottles of your excellent Tinchure, and find myfelf (bleffed be GOD) hearty and well; my only Grievance is now, that I have noctural Emiffions frequently, when I happen to dream of any Obfcenity (but always find a delectable Senfation) which commonly is once or twice a Week. I am now going to take your Prolific Powder, which I hope, in GOD, will finish my Cure. I shall leave this with Mr. Corbett, and beg that you will write a Line or two, to certify me of my prefent Condition, I will fend a young Gentleman for it next Week.

SIR,

Yours, Sc.

Good SIR,

London, Jan. 26, 1733.

"I HAVE received your last Edition of the ONANIA, and, in the feveral Letters fent you, I read fomewhat of my own deplorable, wretched Condition: I hope Thousands will have Cause to bless God for so necessary and laudable an Undertaking, viz. the exposing (in my Opinion) one of the most vile and abominable of Practices. As to my own Case, I think it so far exceeds all that are mentioned in your Book, that if it might be of Service to any one Person in the World, to deter deter them from fo heinous and hurtful a Sin as that of SELF-POLLUTION, I should be glad on that Account, though I own, as to myfelf, I think my Cafe remedylefs; for my Circumstances, to which my Sin has brought me, as to the World, are fo low, that I cannot expect Relief, and the Horrors of my Confcience, upon a Reflection of a Life spent in defiling myself this Way, I cannot express, and in my Opinion is the Beginning of that Worm that never dies, and that Fire that fhall never be put out. To reprefent my Cafe as fhort, and yet as clear as I can, it is this: When I was about fourteen Years of Age, and then at School, I was very fubject to liften, and give great Attention to any filthy, nafty Difcourfe that I heard from my School-fellows; this I nourifhed and cherifhed ; and tho', to my Knowledge, I do not remember I met with any Inftance of any Lad guilty of the Commission of the Act, yet, in a little Time, from frequent and vile Thoughts, I went to the Practice of this Sin; and it is almost incredible to think (as it is terrible for me to write of) how often in a Day I was guilty of this : At this Time I must own I had little if any Notion of this Practice being finful, my chiefest Concern was, to take Care I was not feen by any Perfons at the Time of my committing this Fact; and though I had a very good Education, and religious Parents, and fo was preferved from other Vices, yet this I never heard them or others speak of, at least in its proper or particular Name. In the frequent Practice of this I continued while at Home, and about a Year and Half after I came to London, and was put 'Prentice to a Linnen-Draper, where I met with (from my Fellow-'Prentice) affiftance in this vile Practice. Some Occurrences falling out, I was removed from thence, but I still found my Inclination strong to this vile Sin, not yet imagining any Evil in it, having never read or heard of Onan's Sin till I faw your Book about eight or nine Years agone, whilft I was a 'Prentice ; after I had read it, I was under great Concern of Mind, and wanted Relief of Body and Mind, but knew not how to reprefent my Cafe to any one. I was all this while fubject to Coughs, and other Illneffes, and grew very little in Stature. I had not your Book long before Somebody in the Family found it, but I never knew who it was, nor durft Mm Laik

I afk after it. For fome Time I ftrove hard against this vile Practice ; I promised and vowed I would not be guilty of it, and used all the Means I could think of to prevent this Sin; but fo ftrong and violent was my Propenfity to this Sin, that it was hard to keep from it one Week, and I afterwards had the Misfortune to meet with fome Perfons that pleaded a Necessity of Nature for this Practice. but after this I could not be brought to think it was no Sin. I have made feveral Attempts to alter my Condition, and to enter into a married State, but have been difappointed. I now write to you, good Sir, under great Extremity, my Body is brought very low by this vile Practice; I have for a long Time had a violent Cough, and have frequent Reachings, though I bring up but little; my Head is often in Pain, as also my Back, and great Weaknefs in my Limbs, my Head alfo is very cloudy, and Eyes weak and dim. I have not lately been guilty of this vile Practice, but I look on this not as the Effect of Virtue, but rather Incapacity. Sir, it would be a Deed of Charity, if you might be prevailed upon to affift me in your Advice, as to my Body and Mind: My Circumstances are very mean, but if ever I should be in a Capacity to requite you, I shall not be ungrateful : I must perifh without fome Affiftance, and I know not to whom. to apply to in this fad and forrowful Cafe if you refuse to help me : For the Sake of my poor Soul I entreat fome Advice from you, that I may not be brought to that Dilemma to conclude there is no Hope for me, but that I must perish. Pardon my Importunities; it proceeds from the Senfe I have of my miferable Cafe, and that Readinefs you have fhewn to relieve Perfons in Diffrefs. If you think this Account of my Cafe may be of any Service, you have my free Confent to publish it. I am

" Your forrowful Petitioner,

P. S. If you will favour me with any Anfwer, direct for Thomas F_{----} , and I will get a Friend to call for it in a few Days.

SIR,

Feb. 11, 1732-3.

"I HAVE taken what you fent, and find the Operation the fame as the laft, only I obferve I make Water with much ftronger Stream than before. I wafhed as you directed, and find it anfwer the Expectation; but how fhall I know whether I have the Strength of Retention, without a clofe Communication with Women? Which I have refrained, left it might obftruct the perfecting of a Cure I almost defpaired of when I first wrote to you. If you please to let me know some of the Symptoms of a compleat Cure, you will highly oblige him that hath a profound Respect for you.

P. S. Whether you think it proper to fend me any Thing more, or not; or whether it may be more convenient to flay longer, to fee what the Effects may be of what I have taken already, I refer to your Judgment.

SIR, I humbly beg you will excuse the Tautology of my Letter, for at some Times I am not without Fears left I should never be cured, which makes me fo urgent to know what are the Signs of Restoration.

SIR,

SFR,

OING into a Coffee-House the other Day, and I taking up one of the News-Papers, the first that offered to my View was the Advertisement of your excellent Book called ONANIA, which I read over with great Attention, and too well knew myfelf guilty of the moft abominable Sin you there treat of. My Curiofity did not here end, for I went the fame Day, and bought the Book at Mr. Corbett's Shop, and at Night read it through with great Circumfpection; and, on thorough Confideration of the many Arguments you there make Use of, I refolved never to commit the Crime any more, having practifed it very frequently, till within this Week, for about these three Years; sometimes once, other times twice or thrice a Day, just as my Inclination fuited, not thinking it was fo great an Offence to the Almighty, as I am now convinced it is; though indeed I must confess, I generally had fome Terror on my Confcience either before or after the Act; but that, and my corrupt Nature, admitting of a Parley with each other, the latter generally came off the Victor : But now I hope God will have Mercy on me, and, with my own Endeavours, endue me with fufficient Grace to withstand this and all other evil Temptations for the future; and likewife thefe Sparks of Virtue, which already I find kindling within me, that they may become a confuming Flame to deftroy all the wicked Allurements of Satan, which tend to nothing but Damnation.

"This accurfed Practice was taught me when I was between fourteen and fifteen Years of Age, by my then Bedfellow; before which Time I had not the least Thought of any fuch Thing, he telling me it was as great a Pleafure as lying with a Woman, which he had no fooner mentioned, but my fenfual Appetite took the Hint, and put put it in Practice, my only Inducement being mere Curiofity, little thinking then it would prove of fo dangerous a Confequence, as I now find it has, both to Soul and Body ; the former for certain being not (while this Sin is followed) concomitant with any Thing divine, fince the Apostle St. Paul fays, that the Holy Spirit will not dwell within a polluted Mind : and as for the latter, that does and has fufficiently fuffered (and I pray God that may be its only Punifhment) fince my Conftitution is wholly fpoiled, and my Joints enervated ; for, in the first Place, I am troubled with a prodigious Trembling all over me, especially my Hands and Arms, together with Pains in my Head, Loins, and Back, as well as about those Parts that have been most contributing to this detestable Wickednefs, not omitting the almost continual Emittance of Urine I have likewife been troubled with for these nine Months past, though but a small Quantity voided at a Time.

" I SHALL always hold myfelf infinitely obliged to you, though unknown in Perfon, and for ever acknowledge the great Service done my Soul : But I hope you will have fome Compafion too on my Body, it being in the Condition I have related, by prefcribing fome more particular Rules than fpecified in your Book for my common Diet (fince my Circumftances will not permit the following your phyfical Directions) whereby I may abftain from any Thing that may be detrimental to me hereafter. If I am fo happy to have my Requeft fulfilled as to this Point, I beg you will be pleafed to direct your Letter with the initial Letters W. S. to be left at Mr. Carbett's till called for.

" IF you think proper, I am very willing this, or any Part of it, may be inferted in your next Edition of ONA-NIA, that by this my Example others may be deterred from the like Enormity; which perhaps, had not I had the good Fortune to have feen your Book, might have fuddenly brought me to my Grave, which would have been a fad Thing for one of my Age, having not as yet feen eighteen Years.

To that ingenious and learned Gentleman the Author of ONANIA.

WORTHY SIR,

London, Feb. 1, 1732-3.

TWO Twin-Brothers, among the many of your Scholars and Patients, make bold to trouble you with the following Lines. It was but very lately fince we happened to fee an Advertifement in the daily Papers, of a Book intituled ONANIA, which led us to a farther Curiofity of buying it; and, having diligently perufed it, are thoroughly conwinced how great our Error has been, in thinking the Sin you fo finely treat on but an innocent Diversion: There has been so mutual a Love between us even from our Infancy, which obliged us not to keep or conceal any Thing from each other.

W E were about feventeen Years of Age when first we practifed the Sin of SELF-POLLUTION, we being now full twenty; it came to us at first entirely through Nature, not by any evil Conversation: The first Time we perceived our Seed it surprized us very much, yet the uncommon Titillation was pleasing to a great Degree : but then it growing customary to us, and our Manhood riper, we used it more frequent, and thought it much better to quench our lustful luftful Defires that Way, than carnally having to do with the Female Sex; and we believe that was the only Motive that induced us from that Sin, and we were willing (as we thought) of two Evils to chufe the leaft: We have neither of us ufed it to Excefs, but are both of weakly Conftitutions, except in our Manhood. We do verily believe, had not your excellent Book been publifbed, we had always been ignorant of the Prejudice we did our Bodies as well as our Souls, by committing that fo heinous (yet undefigned and unknowing) a Sin.

THE Occasion of our giving you this Trouble is, we are both troubled with several Pains and Ailments, not usual, and now we perceive, by many Instances in your Book, from whence they proceed; we have till now kept the Matter secret, and not made any Body acquainted with it, which are as follows:

I A M troubled with a violent Weaknefs and Pain in the fmall of my Back, which is to that Extremity, that if I floop down at any Time, I am flarce able to raife myfelf up, and a fmall Faintnefs and Weaknefs all over me, and a Pain and fwelling in my Teflicles; and ever fince I left off the Practice, which is about ten or twelve Days, I am very often troubled with, I think, NOCTURNAL POLLU-TIONS, that is, wasfing my Seed in my Sleep, especially when I have a pleasant Dream, and then when I rise my Back is worse, and then I find a Pain (though not violent) in my Groins.

MY Brother has a violent Weakness and Pain in his Groins, accompanied with large Kernels not usual, and a flushing in his Face, and other small Weakness.

BOTH of us are very spare and lean, though pretty tall, and I believe this Practice has been very detrimental to our growing in Bigness.

A N D, good Sir, as you have writ your Book for the Good of Mankind, we defire your speedy Answer, with Advice according to your real Sentiments of each of us, in a Letter left at Mr. Corbett's for us : Our Names must be con-concealed, therefore I hope, without Offence, we may fubforibe ourfelves, though with the utmost Sincerity,

SIR,

Your obliged,

Humble Servants,

Castalio and Polydore.

N. B. Whatever Medicines you preferibe us, pray obferve it must have no Operation upwards or downwards, nor so as to hinder Business, or going abroad.

P. S. It would oblige us to the higheft Degree, if you will please to print our Letter in the next Edition of your Supplement.

SIR,

" I AM one of those young Persons who have brought themselves into such Circumstances, as greatly to stand in need of those Directions of which you are capable of giving, I have offended the ALMIGHTY GOD, and wronged my own Body, by that abominable and odious Sin of SELF-POLLUTION : Since you have allowed others to lay open their Cases before you, in order to give them your Affistance, I likewise take the same Liberty, hoping you will be pleased to afford your Affistance. Sir, I sall lay lay my Concerns open to you, that you may be the better Judge of them, which I shall do as briefly as is postible. I have committed that heinous Sin four Times, the first Time was about fix Months ago, the other three Times a Month following each other; no ill Effect fucceeding, only after every Commission of it I found a Stoppage in my Head, and a Pain in my Back, as if I had a great Cold, which continued four or five Days: But the laft Time that I committed it, the Stoppage in my Head was attended with a great Pain in my Back and Tefficles, which turned to a great Pain in my left Thigh. I applied myfelf to an Apothecary of my Acquaintance about fix Weeks ago (which was before I met with your Book) who advited me to take fome Diet-drink, which I did about a Gallon, which purged me pretty much, but didnot remove the fixed Pain in my Thigh, and made me fo weak that I had nocturnal Emiffions twice a Week, and the next Day after each Emiffion a Pain in my Back, but now the Emiffions which I have, which are about once a Week, are not attended with any Pain. I find myfelf weak and faint, and have a Weaknefs in my Privy Parts, fo that when I make Water it does not come away with fo great Force as it used to do. I have a Sharpness in my Back, which fhifts from one Place to another; and I have fometimes the Pain in my Thigh and Back. My intellectual Faculties are much impaired, and my Memory is very bad, and my Nerves are weak and have often a trembling : I have a flupid Pain in my Head, and a Giddinefs, and am apt to be drowfy and low fpirited; my Voice is not fo ftrong as it used to be. I thank God I am brought to a thorough Senfe of my Sin, which is, in fome Meafure, owing to the reading your Book, I have enclosed Half a Guinea: I shall call at your Bookfeller's for an Answer on Friday next, hoping you will be pleased to give me Directions for my Cure. I fhould have taken the Tincture according to your Directions, but, having taken the Diet drink, I did not know whether it might be fo proper without your Advice. If you pleafe to give me your Opinion, whether in Time I may recover my former Vigour and Strength if I refrain from committing that foul Sin, which I promife to do, Divine Affiftance accompanying

Wednefday, Nov. 27, 1733.

" A FTER long and continued uneafy Thoughts, and n tedious Ails, I am perfectly free from all those Pains, &c. which heretofore I have complained of. I took the two Gallipots as you directed, and found a furprifing Alteration in me for the better, after taking the laft of them. I am now as brifk and lively as ever; my Emissions are regular, and pretty frequent : I am strong, and of a healthy Disposition, but have not the least Inclination to Masturbation, having fo dearly paid for it in Body and Purfe. I am afraid I am furfeited of marrying; for, if the forcing the Seed from me has caufed fuch Diforders in my Seminal Veffels, and contiguous Parts, I am perfuaded that in Coition (as I fuppofe is oftener than once a Month, which was the Time I ceafed between each Action) there is a greater Quantity of Seed neceffary, and confequently it must occasion greater Pains. I have had many Thoughts about it (not that I have any Propofals of Marriage) therefore a Line, either in the Negative or Affirmative, will highly oblige

I THINK I am not quite fo ftrong in making Water as I used to be.

Dear SIR,

March 26, 1733.

I AM another poor afflicted Creature, who, by the accurfed Practice of SELF-POLLUTION, have brought upon myfelf those Miseries which do justly attend those who give themselves up to that vile Practice: Sir, my Case is this:

I HAVE been guilty of this Practice from the Age of ten or eleven Years of Age, and cannot remember how I came by this criminal Knowledge of myfelf, and have been guilty of it in a very profuse Manner, so that I often wonder that I have not long e'er now murdered myfelf by the frequent Practice of it for so many Years, being I am now above twenty Years of Age : I can impute it to no other but to the great Goodness of ALMIGHTY GOD. I have been leaving it off ever since I happened on your Book, which is about a Year agone, fince then have committed it but three or four Times, and have made a solemn Resolution never to commit it again, yea, I hate and detest the Thoughts of it.

I A M still very frong and active; have a very good Stomach and Appetite, -which I am wonderfully amazed at ; The chief Things I am sensible of as an Effect of this cursed Practice, is a Pain and Weakness in my Back and Reins; I am sensible also of a Weakness in the Penis, though not to Loss of Erection, for those I have sometimes once a Day, sometimes twice, but generally in a Morning about the Time I awake; the Squirt which drives out the Water is pretty much weakened, and I feel and am sensible of my Spirits being very much such such ar Thing I am sensible of is, that upon Riding chiefly I have a bearing down upon the Tefficles, which I thought at first had been Wind, but now now I believe is another Effect of that curfed Sin, and those Veffels which leads down to the Tefficles are fometimes very tender and painful, and seem fometimes to be swelled.

I NEVER had the carnal Knowledge of a Woman but once, which is about four Years ago, and never offered it but once fince, to a Woman who would have received me whilf in her Menstrua, but I was not able, at that Time, to touch her, which is something better than a Year ago, and my not being able, at that Time, to touch that Woman, has funk my Spirits very much, tho' at other Times I had Erections very often, but then was deprived of it; those Erections which I have now are not fo Arong, I think, as formerly. I have fometimes a small Gleet, a Seminal Matter illuing from me, but very small. I have had but one nocturnal Emillion of Semen within this three or four Years, and that was by a burtful Dream. I am in very good Circumstances, and had an Offer of Marriage made to me very lately, but am not willing to make my Address to any of the Fair Sex till I can find that my Spirits are again revived, and that the Generative Parts, which are very weak and feeble, are brought to their right Tone. Indeed, by the long Practice of this forcing (forcing I may well call it, for I committed it fo often, that I was forced to ftudy and contrive to trump up some new filthy Imagination, whereby to render the Commission of it the more easy) I say of this forcing unnatural Sin, the natural Use of Women is become more undefired by me, for my Inclinations to Venery are very weak; and you may wonder to fee, that, in the first Part of this Letter, I say I am still strong and active, fo I am in all the other Parts of my Body, they being very quick and nimble, and very strong. Sir, I have Reafon to blefs the Day that ever I faw your Book, for I do verily believe had I not feen it, that I should have gone on in the fame Sin, and, very probably, in that enervated State in which I now am, might have married, and, by that Means, might have made myself miserable for ever; but I hope you will have Pity upon me, and give me fuch Directions as you Shall think proper :

ift, FOR my Pain and Weakness in the Reins and Back. 2. For preventing any Sort of Gleet, or Seminal Emission.
Emission. 3. To strengthen the Penis, and Squirt which drives the Water. 4. If it is in your Power to prevent that pressing or bearing down upon the Testicles, and to strengthen them, and those tender Vessels which lead down to them. 5. To recover the lost Tone of the Generative Parts, and to incite a true natural Desire. 6. To revive and quicken my poor sunk Spirits, which are sunk to the lowest Ebb.

NOW, Sir, as I have related my Cafe to you as large as I can, and I do not doubt but out of your great Pity, you will do for me what you can, in giving of me the best Advice, and in fending or ordering of me the best Medicines you can for my Cafe. I have here inclosed a Guinea for your Fee, which I defire you to accept of a poor Creature that shall always pray for you. Please to send your Answer to Mr. Corbett, who is advertifed in your Book, and by whom this Letter comes to you, and to whom I shall fend on Sunday next five Pounds, to pay for fuch Medicines as you shall order me : If you give Orders for me to take of the Tincture and Powder, please to advise me of what Distance of Time one from the other; and if you order me the Injection, with what Force it should be injected. I would take the Tincture and Powder with the Reftoring Drink, being I am willing to have a Cure as foon as possible. I would beg of you to let Mr. Corbett have the Orders and Anfiver to me without fail, Time enough for the Meffenger to. bave the Things on Sunday at Mr. Corbett's, for I am going to some confiderable Distance from the Place where I now am, and if they are not ready then I shall miss of them. It is very probable you will hear more from me as I find myfelf, and you will remember my Letter by my Name; with this I shall conclude, being I doubt I have already tired your Patience, and am

Your unworthy humble Servant,

Paracelfus.

YOU need not make any other Direction than for Paracelfus.

ISENT

I SENT this Gentleman proper Medicines, which perfectly reftored him. He is fince married, and on coming to London with his Lady, appointed me a Meeting at a Tavern, where he thanked me for my Cure, and made me a Prefent of fome Guineas over and above the Price of the Medicines.

SIR,

"I T was a long Time before I could get one of your Books after they were published in the News-Papers, although I fought carefully; for finding myself in fuch a bad State of Health, and could get no Help from our Country Apothecaries, to whom I applied myself, but concealing (as I now believe) the real Cause from them, found no Help from their Medicines, but still growing rather worse, thought myself in a sad deplorable Condition, when being at Oxford at our last Affizes, met with one of our little Books; the reading of it was some Satisfaction to me, it so nearly hit my Case, which is as follows.

" I LIVED till the Age of two-and-twenty very chafte in all Refpects whatfoever, when, by mere Accident, found the Way of SELF-POLLUTION, which I followed for near feven Years, finding no other Harm to my Body than Lownefs of Spirits, Heavinefs, and fome Pains in my Head and Back, and a Weaknefs in my Hams, all which I really believed was occafioned by Fatigue of Bufinefs, and the ill managing myfelf, never being of a very firong Conflitution, but now I believe otherwife; for about two Years ago the Gonnorhæa feized me, which was attended with Pains in making Water, and held me near a Month, then ftopping of its own Accord; after which for fome fhort Time I was pretty well, but then followed followed (and ever fince I have been afflicted) with Pains in my Head, Bowels, and Stomach, but very much in my Back, which is got up to my Neck and Throat, which is fometimes fore, and both Sides my Neck, attended with uncommon Pains; the Pain in my Back fhifts itfelf in divers Manners and Places, likewife my Arms at fometimes are in fuch Pain, as I can fcarce lift them to my Head, beginning at my Shoulder Joints, and runs down my Sinews to my Wrifts and Knuckles; alfo inward Tremblings, Palpitation of the Heart, and I have had a small Gleet ever fince the Gonorrhæa stopped, but clear and thick, befides inward Sharpnefs in my Body, and of late have obferved an inward Pain in my Body, which moves downwards to my Tefticles, as a Weakness, with Pain in my Knees, which Pain goes down to my Ancles by my Shinbones; and I have had a fcorbutic Humour all over my Skin for near feven Years paft, and cannot get rid of it. although I used Means feveral Times for that Purpole, and I think all the Parts of my Body are out of Tone.

" I O W N I had carnally to do with a Woman once, and that was about a Month before the Gonorrhæa ceafed, but very flightly, for I believe fhe was a Virgin, and I went no farther than for a Man to do with the pureft as ever was, the first Time of Trial, and I never touched a Woman before nor fince; unless the redoubling the Strokes injured me, I am at a Loss to know what did in that Coherence.

"SO you fee what a bad State of Health I am in, and cannot be relieved, therefore intreat your Favour to form a right Judgment of my Cafe, and do all you can to relieve me; for if you fhould fail, I cannot expect any Help from any other Perfon.

"FOR I have applied myfelf to a Phyfician, and told him my Cafe, who believed I had received fome Hurt from a foul Woman, and gave me Phyfic accordingly, but had not the defired Effect; fo whether it is all owing to the first-mentioned Caufe, or partly the latter, I leave that to your your Judgment, for I have left nothing out as might inform you in order thereto.

" THE Perfon that bears the Letter to you being an intimate Friend of mine knows the whole Matter; fo if there be occasion you may ask him what Questions you please concerning me; for I could write more of the Oddness of my Complaints, but thinks I have been somewhat tedious already, concludes myself

"I T is not above a Week ago fince your excellent Treatife concerning SELF-POLLUTION came first into my Hands : After a Perufal of it with fome Attention, I could not forbear withing with the Gentleman of Dublin, that I had met with fo good a Difcourse on that Subject feven Years ago. As you have, Sir, approved yourself the Æsculapius of the Distressed in this Way, I beg Leave to lay before you my Cafe, which, in fhort, is this : I am one of the many unhappy young Fellows who; without Regard to Conscience, Health, or Reputation, have very greatly injured myfelf by that abominable Practice you have fo juftly condemned. It is now more than five Years fince I first defiled myself with it, at which Time I frequently practifed it, and continued in the vile Drudgery v Complaints an 0.0 : into a ferious C with with fmall Intermiffions for a confiderable Time; but, being naturally of a good Conftitution, I did not very foon preceive any Prejudice : I cannot fay to a Nicety when I became first fensible of Injury done myself, but I believe it is more than three Years ago, when it discovered itself by a Weaknefs in the Small of my Back, and in my Hams and Toesafter but moderate Walking; befides, Ilaboured under involuntary nocturnal Emiffions, Foulnefs of Urine, whofe Colour I have obferved to be fometimes wheyifh, and at others brown, or a little inclined to Blood : I am now near twenty-three Years of Age, and have, for the laft Year or more, in a great Measure, left off that vile Practice ; and Oh ! that the fad Effects of it had likewife ceafed; but alas! they ftill remain, and get Force: My Urine is generally pale or foul, my Head very much difordered and confused, which is always a prodigious Hindrance to Study, and fometimes an utter Difqualification; my Memory is particularly affected, an exceeding Faintnefs of Spirits is generally upon me, which (excepting fome few Intervals when it abates) renders Life itfelf irkfome. I fhould not omit to inform you, Sir, that, for a long Time, in a greater or lefs Degree, my Tefficles have been lax, and cold to the Touch for the most Part, and the Left more especially impaired in Bigness. There is a Particular in my Cafe, which I think I ought not to conseal from you, becaufe I did not meet with it in all the Representations fent to, and published by, you : It was usual with me after Masturbation (which I cannot now reflect on without the greateft Horror) to check the Emiffion of the Seed intirely. You cannot but imagine, from the Detail of Symptoms I have given (and more I might have reckoned up, as flooting Pains, Difficulty of Breathing, &c.) that my Condition is as deplorable as it is deferved ; but I hope it is not irretrieveable.

" BEING in the Country part of the laft Winter, and all the Spring, I took both Balfam of Capivi, and Oil of Saffafras, two things which I observed to be recommended as good for a Gonnorrhæa; my Urine was much mended as to its Foulness for a Time, but it is fince ret inned in a great Measure. Pray, dear Sir, be pleased to take my Complaints and Case into a serious Confideration:

fion. I have already loft to much Time, therefore I beg that immediately upon the receipt of this you would favour me with an Answer, with your Thoughts upon my Cafe, and Directions as well what Medicines are proper, as in Point of Diet, Exercife, Sleep, &c. at what Diftance of Time the Strengthening Tincture and Prolific Powder are to be taken from each other, and any Thing elfe you shall think neceffary. I hope you will be able to judge of my Cafe without my coming up to London, which I would not do if there be not an absolute Necessity for it : I would not have too great a Quantity of the Medicines fent till I found their Efficacy; but this I leave to your Difcretion. If you think fit, I should defire Quantum sufficit of the three Effences, and Volatile Salt, with Chocolate, and Confection of Alkermes, to make the Cordial Draught; as likewife fome of the delectable Balfam ready prepared. I earneftly with for a fpeedy Anfwer (which may be left at Mr. Corbet's, in order to be fent with the Medicines) and beg your Acceptance, Sir, of this fmall Fee, my Circumffances not permitting me to prefent a greater. I hope your Goodnefs will excufe the Tediousness of this Letter, and that it will find you as willing as you are able (through the Bleffing of God) to relieve

" Yours to command.

" PRAY give me your Opinion of Cold Baths; I fhall be ready to follow any Directions."

To the Worthy AUTHOR of the Book called ONANIA.

Worthy SIR,

Monday, July 29, 1733.

" II Appening to read your excellent Book of O N A-NIA, which I heartily with I had been to happy as to have perufed nine Years ago ; it would have prevented that fhameful Practice, and deteftable Sin, I have for to long been guilty of, being ignorant of the Henioufnefs of the Crime, and the ill Confequence that now attends it, and hope, through God's Mercy, and your Affiftance, to find Relief in this unhappy Circumstance. Sir, my Cafe is as follows : When I make Water, as foon as I have done, I feel a great Pain in my Belly; I generally have a Pain all over my Privy Parts, and am afraid the Violence I have used has strained the Veins, they look fo red. I have wandering Pains all over me, but efpecially the Small of my Back, and Infides of my Thighs, befides a Pain in my Head, and fuch Sleepinefs and Dulnefs, that I am hardly fit for any Bufinefs. I eat my Meat very well, and can work, fleep, &c. bleffed be God for it, but drink very little, becaufe I think it increafes my Pain. I do declare I never had carnal Knowledge of any Woman, but unfortunately learned this difmal Sin of my Bedfellow when I was twelve Years old, and, God knows, ufed it feveral Times a Day for a long Time, and then made Refolutions to leave it off, but in a little Time fell to the frequent Use of it again, for which I humbly implore the Divine Mercy for my poor Soul and Body. Sir, I hope you will be pleafed to confider my deplorable Condition, and if you please to leave any thing for me at the Bookfeller's, feller's, I will get a Friend to call for it on Tuefday nexts near Six o'Clock in the Afternoon, and he fhall bring Money along with him ; but muft make bold to let you know I am a working Man, and at prefent in mean Circumftances, therefore defires your charitable Confideration, and likewife the favourable Conftruction of thefe imperfect Lines, which bears no Refemblance with your excellent and ingenious Book. Sir, I beg of you to excufe this Liberty, and fhall evermore continue,

ONE of my Tefticles is at prefent exceeding painful, and I think fwelled.

A Gentleman, who was recommended to me by a former Patient of mine, for an Imbecility of the Genitals, and violent Pain in his Back, Testicles, and Groins, and to whom I administered the proper Medicines, and cured in no long Time, wrote me the following Letter.

SIR,

THIS is to let you know, that, by Heaven's Grace, and your Care, I am now out of the Labyrinth I have for folong Time been involved in; and do not doubt but I shall, by the Continuance of both, be made a perfect and found Man, both in Mind and Body; for when the latter is well, the former is calm and sedate: This is a Favour for which I shall for ever earnestly thank Heaven, and pray that all Blessing's may attend you on Earth, and an eternal Crown

SIR,

L ATELY feeing your ONANIA, and knowing myfelf guilty of the Sin declaimed against in it, although God knows I never thought it a Sin before I read your Book, which has now made me very sensible it is, and I heartily ask God's Pardon for committing so great a Crime; and believing I have injured myself by such abominable Practice, desired you would be pleased to appoint me a Place and Time where and when I shall wait upon you, to advise with you about my Case, which I sear is bad enough. SIR,

[287]

SIR,

Nov. 7, 1731.

I HAVE read your Book with much Pleafure and Satisfaction, though not without the greateft Concern for the Unhappinefs of Mankind, many of whom are ignorant of the Sin, and I believe the greateft Part of the fatal Confequences that attend the Thing you treat of; a Thing deteftable in the Sight of God, deftructive of themfelves, and ruinous of all Pofterity.

A S to the first : Never any Crime was punished in a more exemplary Manner, the first that is recorded to have been guilty of it being ftruck dead upon the Spot; and though no doubt there were fome particular aggravating Circumstances in his Case, yet, abstracted from these, there is fufficient to let us know the Almighty's Abhorrence of the Fact itfelf, and therefore the extreme Danger of ever committing it. As to the fecond : Themany Inftances you have given, and the Thoufands more that might be produced, too plainly demonstrate the Truth of it. And, as for the third, This necessarily follows from the foregoing ; for if we deftroy our own Being, at a Time when we are capable of, and should be giving it to others, or, which is all one, if we incapacitate ourselves for the continuing our Species, there is most certainly the Ruin of Posterity, and a Period put to the future Existence of Mankind. Now what can there be of a more monftrous Nature ? In what View foever we confider it, whether from Scripture, Experience, or Reason, it is every Way shocking, and includes in it the most comprehensive Guilt. It were easy to expatiate, and fhew the Infallibility of these Affertions at large, but this is not my Business or Design ; and if it was, it would be needlefs after what you have faid upon the Subject. In thort, Sir, your excellent Treatife, if a proper Regard be had had to it, I take to be an effectual Antidote against a reigning Vice, that has done more Mischief than perhaps all other Vices together : There may be Books of more Art and Cunning in the World, but I question whether any have done more real Service. Sir, I heartily wish you well, and you shall be sensible e'er long that I do, and that I am both able and willing to serve you; at present I can only subscribe myself

Your fincere Friend, &cc.

7. P.

DOCTOR,

This instant July 13.

" S O M E Time before All-Saints last, I very acci-dentally met with a Book called ONANIA, which I perufed, and heartily with I had feen it twelve Years fooner, becaufe I must own myself guilty with those unfortunate Men that have made Complaints to the ingenious Author of that Performance, and the Sight of it might likely have prevented me from the abominable Practice of SELF-POLLUTION, therein condemned, the evil Confequences of which, though now I feel, I did not at all, at that Time, forefee. I happened to ferve Apprenticefhip in a Town where there were feveral young Men, who not only indulged themfelves in this fatal Courfe, but ufed their utmost Endeavours to enfnare others, nay some of them had the hellish Confidence to act it over before my Face, telling me, if I would do the fame, it would afford an unspeakable Pleasure, and gradually bring down my over fleshy robust Body (which, at that Time, I must confess, was promising enough) and make me more fine and fhapely : These Temptations I withstood at the prefent, and for above Half a Year after, till one Day lolling 112 in the Garden, and being unhappily left to myfelf, I began to reflect on what I had feen acted by my unfortunate Comrades, and I would then do no lefs than practife the fame upon myself, which I did fometimes twice a Day, once a Day, thrice a Week, twice a Week, for fix or feven Years together ; but by this Time my Body being, in a great Measure, exhausted, and feeling some Inconveniencies arifing, I began to confine this wicked Practice to once a Month, twice a Quarter, twice in the Halfyear, for three or four Years; and for these two Years and a Half laft paffed, I have been enabled not to commit it fo much as once, and I hope never shall do it any more. However, though the Miferies I have brought upon myfelf by this fhameful, mischievous Practice be not, in every Respect, fo great as some mentioned in your ONANIA, yet my Cafe is bad enough; for though there are no Swellings nor Scars in my Private Parts (as has been the Cafe of fome) yet my whole Conftitution is become very weak and languid, my before flefhy Body meagre, and all my active Powers dull and uncapable, in Comparison of what they were.

" I HAVE contracted habitual Pains and Weaknefs in my Back, Reins, and Limbs, especially, if I stoop down my Body any Space, or lay on my Belly (though there be not the least Motion like that in Generation) I feel great Pains from my Kidneys downwards, and particularly in the Small of my Back, fo that I can fcarce be raifed up again without taking hold of fomething with my Hands: I have not fo frequently NOCTURNAL POLLUTIONS as four or five Years ago; but this may be imputed much rather to Scarcity of radical Moifture, than any new Strength the Seminal Veffels have received ; for befides the nightly POLLUTIONS, which I have now and then, the Seed fometimes comes away at Stool, and often on the View of a lascivious Object, though it were triffing; all which doth prove, that the natural Power of Seminal Retention is much abated : My inclination to Marriage is as. great as ever (and greater perhaps than when I had more Ability) but am fenfible of an utter Indifpolition for that State, having feldom Erections, and when thefe happen they are very languid, and of no Continuance; fo that a Pp Man.

Man of feventy or eighty Years has a better Hazard of being fervicable to the World this Way then I, though I do not exceed the Numbers of thirty-one: Befides, there is fuch a Weaknefs (or fomething elfe) in the Mufcles of the Yard, that I cannot expel all my Water, but, for the most Part, Half a Spoonful stays behind, which about Half a Minute afterwards, when I have given over preffing, comes away involuntarily, unless I sqeeeze the under Part of the Root of the Yard with the Tops of the Fingers, and then it comes away immediately with the reft; fometimes my Water is very clear and thin, but ordinarily high coloured, thick and muddy, and dyes the Chamber-pot of a red fleshy Colour, with Sand in the Bottom of it; fometimes my Urine is fo hot and fharp, as to occafion great Pains in the internal Parts of the Yard after Emiffion, but this does not trouble me : In fhort, my chief Indifpolition confifts in Weaknels, and in an Inaptitude for Action in all the Faculties of both Body and Mind, and Pains in the Kidneys and Reins, and chiefly the Small of my Back, and in an utter Weakness of the Genitals. I was never married, nor can be faid to have had carnal Knowledge of any Woman in my Life, and yet all this Mifery and Ruin has the abominable Practice of Masturbation brought upon me. I never made known my Cafe to any Phylician before you, nor applied any Means for Relief, but fuch as my own Reafon and common Report fuggested, such as drinking of Whey, new Milk, and the Cold Bath, which I have found to be of fome Advantage, but little as to the moving of these Maladies I complain of. This is as brief and full an Account of my Cafe as I could at prefent think of, which I fubmit to your Judgment and Perufal; for though I must own, that the Book called ONANIA, does in general, contain excellent Doctrines for Man labouring under these Miffortunes, yet I think they cannot be adapted to the Cafes of particular Perfons, without the Help of a skilful Phyfician ; I beg therefore, good Doctor, that you would carefully confider my Cafe, and direct me, in applying them, that fo I may have Recourse to any Apothecary to make them up as I think fit, and may be at no Lofs as to the using them when I am by myself; or if you furnish the Medicines yourself I am fatisfied, only defire you to be as moderate as you can in charging them; I am willing to do all that I am able, no Man (you may be fure) will spare his Pocket in such Circumstances that has it, but I am come many Scores (nay, fome Hundreds) of Miles to you, fo that my Cure, if it fucceeds, coffs me not only what I give to the Doctor, or the Apothecary, but likewife all my Expences travelling Home and Abroad. I was of Opinion, that if I received Help any-where it would be in London, the Scene of fo many fad Examples of this Nature, that are often applying to Phyficians, which in many other Places of the Kingdom have fcarce any fuch Applications, and confequently cannot have your Skill nor Experience. I would gladly converse with you upon the Subject of this Letter, which you may do over a Bottle, that I have at your Service, of any Liquor that is most agreeable, and at any Time of the Day that you shall think fit, when you may give me your Advice and Directions : You shall have a Guinea in Hand before either I receive your Receipt, or fo much as a Word of Advice; and if you provide Medicines, it shall not be counted into their Value. I pray you, good Sir, have fome Concern for me, and remember, that though I be an utter Stranger to you, yet that I am a reafonable Creature, a Man, and perhaps too of fuch Qualifications (for any Thing you know, and I hope it is, and really will be, fo) as fhall render me acceptable to God, and useful to my Fellow Christians in some Part of the World or other, notwithstanding of the finful, ruinous Practices that wicked Examples, and corrupt Nature, led me to in my Youth. Be pleaf d therefore to leave Word at Mr. Corbett's Shop in Fleet-freet, where this was left, when and where you are to be found, and I will do my Endeavour to wait upon you, which is from your Patient,

* MY Conflictution from my Childhood has been obferved by Phyficians to incline to a Predominancy of Heat, and to fomething of a Scurvy, which, in my prefent Circumftances, may help to dry and confume radical Moifture; but this with Submiffion."

« SIR,

"HAVING read fome Time ago your Treatife of ONANIA's Difeafes, I remember fomething of a certain Composition of Medicines which, I think, will be proper for a Perfon of thirty-two Years of Age, married laft Year, and now enduring Want of Erection this three Months paft, being the whole Night very cold about the Secret Parts, and having only in the Morning fome little Erections for a Moment's Time, which caufes him much Melancholy, Abatement of Spirits, confused Thoughts, and little Sleep, and fo becomes lean. Two or three Days before this Infirmity attacked him, he had more than ordinary Coitions with his Spoule : He was once (fome Years ago) lightly clapped, and afterwards three Times very ill of continual involuntary POLLUTIONS, of which (after being very feeble) he was reftored by proper Medicines, and Abstinency of Venery, to which he was much inclined, though not of the ftrongest Constitution. He takes at prefent fome fortifying Pills, and Rhenish Wine, in which Herbs are infused, but all in vain, for which Reason he defires to know of you if the faid Tincture would be good for him, and, in Cafe you think it to be proper. how much do you take for that Composition, and how to use it, hoping you will excuse the Liberty of writing to you these few Lines, without having the Honour to know you more than by Reputation : I expect the Anfwer by the Post, directed to Aan Mynheer, De Heer J_____ G-----, ten huyfen Van Monsteur V----- D-----, in de heeren straat, het 4de Huys Van Polyenburg, tot S. " SIR,

SETTISTESTER! TERSPERSE

BY yours of the eighth of last Month, I observe you can furnish my Friend with due Medicines, that will reftore him, by first bringing his Constitution, and afterwards the Genital Parts, into due Order, Strength, and Vigour. He has not given you an Anfwer till now, because he returned only this Week from a Voyage which he was obliged to do to Hamburgh, where, by Accident, he fpoke to a famous Phyfician about his Complaints; upon which he advised him not to do any Thing for it, but that he ought to abstain from Venery, and only use fome good nourishing Meats till the Month of May, when not being better he would order him what to do; but, Sir, fearing that to ftay fo long will relax him more, and hoping that by your Experience (and the Help of God) he may be sooner reftored, he resolves to fend you inclosed a Bill of three Guineas (according to your Demand) though he has not many to fpare, and put himfelf into your Hands, for to make Use of the Medicines which you will be pleafed to fend him by the first Sloop, directed, To J--- G----, ten huyfen Van Monsteur V---- D----, in de heeren straat, het 4de huys Van Polyenburg, tot S. Hage, fo as the Letter was. I need not to repeat to you his Complaints, only you will be pleafed to obferve, that tho' he find himfelf more brisk and lively of Spirit, and has much lefs Melancholy, for all that his Genital Parts continues to be relax and cold, with a Sort of Numbnefs, Infenfibility, or Stupification of the Nerves and Sinews of the Yard, and very feeble Erection only for a little while in the Morning, and has no Stimulation at all to Venery, and is very lean about his Body, though his Appetite and Stomach are much better, as also his Colour, which is brifk enough, but his want of Sleep is every Day worfer : He mill

He finds that any hot Thing, let it be Liquors, Wine, or Spices, revives for a Moment his Spirits and Strength, but a little afterwards finds himfelf much more abated : There is more to be obferved, that he has now no more Ejaculation of Seed, and, for all that, his Strength and Stimulation to Venery is not greater, which makes him think that by too much ufing of Coition, efpecially laft Summer, and not minding the continual Pollution of Seed in that Time (which he may reckon to have been a Sort of a Gonnorrhæa, by too much forcing himfelf) he has exhausted too much of his Spirits, Seed Veffels, and natural Heat, and relapsed his Sinews and Nerves too much; of all which he hopes you will take Reflection, for to prepare the proper Medicines, and give him a plain Direction how to use it, and you will oblige,

WORTHY SIR, London, Aug. 22, 1735-

I A M one of the many unfortunate young Men that bath been guilty of that borrid Sin of SELF-POLLUTION for many Years, not being fensible of the Heinousness of the Crime against GOD, nor the sad Consequences to the Body, till about three Weeks since, reading in the Weekly Journal the Advertisement of the Tenth Edition of your excellent Book, I immediately bought it : I wish to GOD I had seen it sooner : I am, to my great Sorrow, fully convinced of the Heinousness of that damnable Sin, which I humbly beg Pardon of Almighty GOD for, and hope, with his Alsance, never to commit the like for the future. I am troubled with a Pain a Pain in my Back, Arms, Legs, and Thighs; I have likewife a Weaknefs in the Penis, and Lofs of Erection; I have a Dullnefs in all Parts of my Body, and am ready to fleep as I stand. I would gladly wait of you as soon as possible, if an Evening will be as agreeable, it will best fuit me: If you fend a Line to Mr. Corbett's, where and when I shall wait of you, I have several Questions to ask you, and am

Your afflicted humble Servant, unknown,

Please to direct yours as I subscribe myself, till called for, which shall be in a Day or two, and as for your Fee, I will give it at the Receipt of yours.

To the ingenious AUTHOR of the Book intituled, ONANIA. Thefe.

SIR,

London, Sept. 2, 1735.

E. 7.

TAM one of those unfortunate young Men who have injured themfelves (though ignorantly) by that abominable Practice of SELF-POLLUTION, in which I have been a very great Offender : It was the buying and reading your most excellent Book, that discovered to me those unhappy Rocks which I have fo often fplit upon ; for had I had the good Fortune to have met with it five Years ago, I had never been guilty of it. I begun this Practice in my 15th Year, and followed it fucceffively for about two Years, committing it at leaft once a Week, or more ; but GOD being very merciful to me, put a Stop, in fome Meafure, by inflicting me with a Rupture, though I have committed it feveral Times fince; but accidentally meeting with your Book against it, and having perused the first Part, which I had no fooner done but I was firuck with Horror and Amazement

ment; indeed, it is impossible for me to write or express the Trouble of Mind which I have laboured under fince I begun this vile Practice; and, if there is fuch a Thing as a Hell upon Earth, I believe I have felt it, though I could not tell what to impute it to, but now am thoroughly convinced, that this was the Reafon that provoked God to afflict me in fo terrible a Manner. I have now left it off two Years and more, being now nineteen Years of Age ; though I have had nocturnal Emiffions almost ever fince, at least once a Week, and indeed now I am still afflicted with the fame Misfortune, which is a very great Trouble to me: I have now applied myfelf to you, hoping you will extend the fame Compaffion to me, which you have fhewn to others in the fame Condition, and not let me perifh under my Difeafe, which certainly must be my Portion, if not redreffed by fome charitable Christian. The Calamities which I have brought upon myfelf, by this accurfed Practice, are many. In the first Place, I labour under a very great Dimnefs of Sight, which I perceived about four or five Months ago, as likewife a Weaknefs in the Penis, and Lois of Erection, and the Squirt which drives out the Water is not near fo ftrong as it ufed to be; though indeed I am much better now than I was two Years ago, having taken a Bottle of your Strengthening Tincture, and likewife fome other Medicines, which a Surgeon of my Acquaintance, whom I applied to, prefcribed me. The Faculties of my Mind are very much impaired by this Practice; my Memory, which was once very good, is extraordinary bad ; my Brain is fometimes as though flupified, which renders me very unfit for my Bufinefs : I have no Pain about me except in my Back, which is only when I floop: I have a very good Stomach, and am elfe in perfect Health.

THUS, Sir, I have given you as full an Account o myfelf as I am able, hoping you will enable me to cure those Wounds which I have given myfelf, as likewise an Answer to this, whether you think my Case curable by the Description I have given you ?

YOU will do me a very great Favour, if you will give meyour Prefcriptions in Writing, that I may get the Medi-Q q cines cines made up at my Father's, who is a Surgeon, and a Man of very good Repute, and had I difcovered it to him, I make no Doubt but he could have given me proper Remedies for my Diftemper; but, alas! I had not the Confidence to do it.

I HUMBLY beg Pardon for being fo troublefome, but hope you will excufe it. I fhall fend to the Bookfeller's in a Week's Time or lefs, and if you will condefcend to leave me an Anfwer, directed for me as I fubfcribe myfelf, I shall with Joy and Thankfulnefs receive it. SIR,

Your most Obedient

Humble Servant,

Theophil. T----,

P. S. I hope you will give me in Writing what Medicines you think proper for me, that I may take Care to have them made up.

To the ingenious, much-commended AUTHOR of the learned and worthy Book, incituled, ONANIA.

SIR,

" E^{UROPE} hath Caufe, but England in particular hath Caufe, to blefs God, and to give you Gratulation for that ufeful Book of yours, and much wanted Book, for we of this Nation ftand in great Need of it; for had many of the Youths of this Nation but known the Confequences of it, as to the Soul, and the many Weak-

Weakneffes and Infirmities it bringeth upon the Body. even to the deftroying the whole Fabric; for most which I have converfed with concerning it acknowledge, that if they had known it was a Sin, they would not have used it as they had done. As for myfelf, I knew not that it was a Sin in the leaft, until long after that I had received any Hurt by it, as I fhall fhew; and one Reafon why I thought it was not a Sin, was the Commonnels of it. A Perfon which I knew, who was very much guilty of this Sin, afked me my Opinion of it, and whether it was a Sin ? and I told him I did not know that it was, which is now above four Years ago fince he afked me the Queflion; and, about three Years after I had underflood that it was a Sin, I writ him a Letter to acquaint him that it was a Sin, for I thought it my Duty fo to do. I had heard of your Book for two Years before I could get it, and I have had it above Half a Year, and have perufed it over and over, and find many Paffages in your Book which is like my Cafe, which I shall relate as followeth : I came of fober and religious Parents, was religioufly educated, as many in your Book acknowledged the fame; I was very early taught this Sin by an elder Brother than myself about eight Years, even before I came to Years of Puberty, which I more or lefs practifed fome Years. I have often reflected upon my learning it fo by my Brother; but, had I not learned it by him, I fhould have foon learned it, for I faw it used in the School, and in the School-time, which filthy Practice I followed until I got, I am afraid, my irreparable Wound, which was between the fixteenth and feventeenth Years of my Age. About a Month before I was in the feventeenth Year of my Age, by this my wicked Practice, which then I did not know it was, I found a red fore Place, like a Pimple, upon the under Side of my Penis, on the Forefkin, at the Edge of the Skin, which, in a little Time, run all round, and it got broader and broader, as it were a Cord round it, and fo intollerable fore, that I could not tell how to bear it, or to let any Thing touch it; I made Things to go eafy, but to little Purpofe; but in your Book I faw fome like me, but theirs went off again : But all the Means which I have used, by the Doctor's Prefcriptions, could never remove it, which brought upon me a continual Un-Qq2 deep cannot kneel at all, and now within this Year and a Half I have been greatly afflicted in my Head, which I find almost all in your Book to complain of; with a great Dulnefs, even to the stupifying my Senfes, that I think fometimes I shall lose them, now and then my Head seemeth of a great Weight with the Numbness of it. I have at fometimes hardly a clear Thought, and my Head is full of Humours, which caufeth a Breaking-out of my Face with Pimples, that caufes feveral Reflections upon myfelf when I confider the Caufe of it : The Badnefs of my Head caufes a great Weaknels in my Eyes, a great fluffing up in my Head, a Stoppage in my Ears, and finging in my Head. I am troubled with a fmarting and pricking, fometimes, in the Urethra Paffage: Sometimes, if I fit much, or write much, I find it bringeth down the Humours very much upon the Glandules in the Urethra, and then upon the Glans and Preputium, with a great Soreness on those Parts, Itchings on the Scrotum, and that Swelling in the Scrotum, and Uneafinefs, which I before fnewed, and Heating and Itching of my Thighs. One Thing I almost forgot, and that is, I have fuch furring upon my Prepuce, betwixt the Glans and the Preputium, that if I did not continually, about once a Week, cleanfe it, it would fo fur up, that I could not get the Forefkin back on the Nut: I have fomewhat to wafh it with, which I mix on Purpofe. This Furring upon the Nut fmells rank, and makes it very fore if I do not keep it clean; and fince I have left off this wicked Practice, which I had left off fome Time before I faw your Book, and have not been guilty of voluntary SELF-POLLUTION fince; but I have fince been troubled with nosturnal POLLUTIONS in my Sleep, which I find does me Hurt, in bringing down the Humours into those Parts, which I would not be guilty of if I could help it; and fometimes I have Emiffion of Seed upon the Stool, but not very often : I cannot find that my Impotency is for Want of Seed. I never had any carnal Knowledge of any Woman, as I must give an Account to the Great Omniprefent and Omnifcient GoD; which are weighty Words, if we do but rightly confider of them as we fhould; and could that excellent Advice which a Rabbin gave to his Pupil, Remember, faid he, an Eye that fees you, an Ear that hears you, and a Hand that notes notes down all you do ; O what Creatures fhould we then be ! for it is the Want of the ferious Thoughts of the Allfeeing Eye of God upon us that we live as we do; for that would keep us in Awe, if we had the Fear of God before our Eyes. I have often thought what Mercy it is, where God has given Perfons reftraining Grace in their Youth, for they are liable to commit fuch Sins in their Youth, which may flick by them as a Blot as long as they live ; which is only to be afcribed to the reftraining Grace of God, that they do not run into great Sins with others, which Youth is fo prone to; for Want of which I do feverely fuffer, though I have Caufe to thank God for his reftraining Grace, which hath made me to differ from Thousands, who kept me from open and profane Sins, except this my luftful and wanton Temper. I often think of those Words of Job, For thou writest bitter Things against me, and maketh me to posses the Iniquities of my Youth, Job xiii. 25. But all the Comfort I have when I view myfelf, concerning this Sin, is, that I did it ignorantly, for I never knew it was a Sin until long after I had my Wound, as I shewed before; I have often wished that I was one of those that were never guilty of it; but it is my fad deplorable Misfortune to be one of those unhappy Perfons that have wounded myfelf by this Sin : But I would let you know, that my Weakness is not altogether by my following this wicked Practice, but taking fuch Abundance of wretched Phyfic ; though I acknowledge that it was the first, as to second Causes, of my Ailment, though I did not follow it after I had that Sorenefs upon my Forefkin (as I before mentioned) as I had done before; for I thought fometimes that this must be the Cause of it, and then I fhould have Thoughts on the contrary, as I hinted before. I hope, Sir, that you will acknowledge, that Sins of Ignorance, I mean not Sins of wilful Ignorance, is much lefs heinous, than when knowing it a Sin, and yet to commit it: Paul faid of himfelf, I was a Blasphemer, and a Persecutor, and an injurious Person, yet I obtained Mercy, faith he, and why was it ? Becaufe I did it ignorantly. But, to my Sorrow and Shame I committed it, after I had fome Knowledge that it was a Sin; but I was not yet convinced that it was a Sin, which was about the nineteenth Year of my Age, when I was guilty guilty of it: I had a Fear upon me that it was a Sin. which made me fearch, as I mentioned before, when I found it was a Sin, but I was not fenfible of the Heinoufnefs of it. One Thing I admire at is, that feeing it is fuch a Sin, that Minifters should neglect such a great Duty, as not to warn Perfons against it, as well as other Sins ! I have thought, fince I faw your Book, what they fhall have to answer for the neglecting the Warning of Perlons, when they know it a Sin fo much prevailing, as well as other Sins, and to let fo many poor Souls to live and die in this Sin, and never warn them of it, and if they do, it is not plain to understand. You have put a great many People into a Surprize by your excellent Book" (as I think of it) for fince I have had the Book, I have fhewed fome of my Acquaintance it, which put them into a furprizing Dulnefs, and faid to me, that they did not know that it was a Sin; though I knew it was a Sin, but was not as yet convinced of the Heinoufness of it (as I faid before) yet through the Luft of my Flefh I committed it afterwards, which caufed a great Terror on my Mind, tho' I ftrove, and refolved against it. I writ fome terrible Scripture on a Piece of Paper, and wore it about my Neck, that when I was tempted to commit this Sin, the Paper might put me in Mind of the Sin to prevent me : The Saying of Foleph would often come into my Mind, How then can I do this great Wickedness and Sin against God? Gen. xxxix. 9. But I have refolved against it never to commitit any more; but being too bold with the Species of this Temptation, which hath overcome me, would caufe me great Conviction; for of this Sin we are always in Danger of being guilty of it, if we be not upon our Guard; fo at laft, when I was guilty of it, though it was feldom, as three or four Months or more betwixt, fometimes ; but every Time I repeated the Actmy Sin was the greater, fo was my Terror; for when I did commit it, I thought I could not hardly call it voluntary, becaufe, through the violent Hurry of Temptation, being of a hot Temperament, and full of Seed, it has come when I did not defign to have done it, neither have I had any Pleafure in the Act; for as foon as I found it would come, O the piercing Thoughts that would come into my Mind ! and then I should think with my-, O what Terrors do I feel! and think with myfelf, I thould fhould never be guilty of it more ; and I have gone cut in the Fields, and mourned to think that I fhould offend my Creator in this Manner, and would reflect upon myfelf to think of my Folly to fin against God with this Sin, which I thought was but a fmall one; and would think with myfelf, that I have done that To-day which I could never make Satisfaction for, though I could weep Rivers of Tears; and the Saying of Feremiah would come into my Mind, Thine own Wickedness shall correct thee, and thy Backflidings shall reprove thee, Jer. ii. 19. Know therefore, and fee, that it is an evil and bitter Thing; though I was reforved against it, yet I was in the Way of Temptation, or tempting the Tempter by fome little Actions, and handling those Parts ; and I should have been guilty of it until now, if I had not faw all the Species of this Sin; but I had fo conquered my Lurt by the Grace of God ftrengthening me, fome confiderable Time before I faw your Book, fo as not to be guilty of voluntary SELF-POLLUTION fince. I am now in the twenty-first Year of my Age, and I do beg of God to keep me from everoffending him by this Sin, and all other Sins; and that if it pleafe God to spare my Life, I defire to give up myfelf to a holy felf-denying Life, and live to his Honour and Glory, as I ought to do, as the Duty of a Creature to his Creator : For I acknowledge my Tranfgreffion, and [I defire to have] my Sins ever before me; and to be putting up this excellent Petition of the Pfalmift, Remember [O LORD] not the Sins of my Youth, nor my [former] Transgreffions. I would not have troubled you with fuch a long Defeription of my Cafe, but that I thought I should not tell how to acquaint you with my many Weakneffes by Word of Mouth. I pray, Sir, confider of my Condition, and fee whether you can do me any Good. I am

OODDODODODODODODODO To Mr. CORBETT the Bookfeller who fells the ONANIA.

" SIR,

" NOT knowing the Author, but understanding you are the Printer of the Book intituled ONANIA, or, The Sin of SELF-POLLUTION ; and I being an Offender in that Kind, and fmarted for my Folly, I thought it my Duty to make a Discovery of the Heinousness of that Sin; and to let you know how much I have experienced the Anger and Hatred which the Almighty bears towards it; that the Child yet unborn may be forewarned to avoid that Sin, and confequently the Punishment that attends it. And first, it will not be amifs to fet down those Bleffings which Ihave enjoyed, before I was drawn to commit this deteftable Sin. As first, I had a strong healthful Body, free from all Impediments, fo that I had no Caufe to complain; a firm Conftitution, fo that I was unacquainted with Sicknefs; fuch a regular Appetite, that it was easy for me to be temperate, with many other Endowments, both of Body and Mind, too tedious to mention here; which all foon vanished like Smoke, when the Devil had drawn me to commit this Sin ; a Sin fo unnatural, that Man would not commit, were he not tempted to it by the Devil : For, when I was fifteen Years of Age, I lay under great Temptations to commit this Sin, but it could not be effected at that Age ; fo the Temptation left me till I was eighteen Years of Age, and then came upon me as ftrongly as before, but was not effected then; fo it left me till I was in the twentieth Year of my Age, and then was overcome by the Temptation : How I was overcome I am not willing to fet down, the Hatefulnels of it is fuch, that I do, in a Manner, abhor myself for it; but certainly it is a Sin of the Devil's inventing; for if it proceeded only from the Luft of the Flefh, why might not a Man have an Inclination to commit it at one Time as well as another, provided he was in Health all the While ? So having learned the Way of committing mitting it, I practifed it daily, all that Year, till I was in the one-and-twentieth Year of my Age, and then did the Lord afflict me with a fore Sicknefs; but recovering my Health again, I followed that wicked Courfe that Year, towards the latter End of which I was afflicted with a Swelling in my Secret Parts; but recovering again, I still purfued the old wicked Courfe, and my Appetite being grown to unruly, that I could not forbear eating more at a Meal than did me good, fo that I had a continual War with myfelf; this abominable Practice caufed me to look lean and thin, and yet I had a great Defire to look fat : Before I committed this Sin I had not fuch Thoughts in my Head, but by these two Contraries I was the more exceedingly tormented. Being in the two-and-twentieth Year of my Age, and still taking no Warning, the Lord afflicted me with a Fever, and brought me down to the Brink of the Grave, and shewed me the infernal Pit; for I was fo very bad, that I thought I should not have lived all one Night, and I looked to be with the Devils every Moment which did fo horribly affright me, that I cannot express the Amaze I was in; then did I beg and pray for Mercy, promifing to lead a godly Life if it would pleafe the Lord to reftore me to my Health again ; and, in a fhort Time, my Fever abated, and, in the End, turned to an Ague, which I got Cure for; fo for a while I refrained the former abominable Practice; but it was not long before the Devil drew me to commit it again; and, to make me fenfible of the Sin, the Lord caufed my old Diftemper to return upon me in a few Hours after the committing of it, fo that I was fenfible the Hand of the Lord was against me for that Sin; but, recovering my Health again I thought I would refrain the wicked Courfe, but the Grace of God was fo decayed in my Soul, and the Devil had got fuch Power over me that I could not withftand his Affaults, though whenever I committed this Sin, my Heart would be heavy and forrowful, which of itfelf was enough to make me refrain the Practice, but at last my Enemy made this forrowful Heavinefs a Means to draw me to commit this Sin; for being in forrowful Heavinefs as I fat by the Fire, the Devil put it in my Mind to commit this Sin; with that I rofe up, and went into a Barn, where I committed this Sin; but, as I entered the Barn there darted into my Mind this Thought, that there was no Spirits there, fo that I might fecurely commit this Sin but the Devil, who ever promifes great Safety where there is the greatest Danger, deceived me, for that very Moment that I committed this Sin, there feemed to me as if fomething fell from above down upon me; it was not of Weight or Substance, for I perceived it then only by my Eyes, which, from the Time, were weak and dim, tho' I was not twenty-three Years of Age, yet they might have been ftronger at Threefcore had I lived avirtuous Life; but this was not all my Punishment, for I got fuch a terrible Cold which could not be removed by the Doctor's Skill, but fettled down upon my Lungs, which caufed me to confume and wafte away; this was in 1735; from which Time none knows what I have gone through, neither is it in my Power to express, for all my Body was difordered, having violent Pains in my Head and Breaft, and fo coffive in my Body, that I fcarce could go to the Ground, and yet fuch an infatiable Appetite, that I could not use Moderation, tho' I thought it would be for my Eafe : But what exceeded all the Pains of my Body was, the Pain of my Mind, for now I thought I fhould die a lingering Death of a Confumption ; and remembring the Health, Strength, and Agility of Body, which I once enjoyed, and knowing at the fame Time, that I had been the Inftrument of my Mifery, and feeing all the Pleafure and Comforts of this Life were gone, it put me upon Thoughts of feeking after a better Life after this was ended : But this increased my Misery; for, when I came to dive into Divinity, I faw fo much Sin and Filthinefs in my paft Life, which drove me into Defpair, the Devil being then as bufy to drive me to Defpair, as he had been to tempt me to Sin; and I having my Death in View could not lie idle. fo I ftrove what I could to repent of my wicked Life ; but, alas ! what can a Man do, when the Spirit of the Lord has forfaken him? For do what I could, I could not bear up under the Burden of my Sins, for I had not Faith to believe my Sins fhould be forgiven me; but not rightly understanding the Nature of Religion, I thought the Externals of it might be a Furtherance of my Salvation, fo I frequented the Church, and took great Delight to hear Sermons, especially those that promised Forgiveness to repenting Sinners, fo I was now as fober as any, feemed

Rr2

to be as religious as most; but my Repentance did not proceed from an honeft and good Heart, but from the Fear of Punishment : But this World, which fees not the Heart of Man, was deceived in me; for I was taken Notice of by fome Perfons, who, as I think, were truly religious, and they perfuaded me to receive the Holy Sacrament; but, alas! how unfit was I for fuch an heavenly Banquet, wanting those fit Qualifications which would have rendered me a worthy Receiver : However, I prefumed, from Time to Time, to go to the Lord's Table, till the Year 1738, in which Year fuch a dreadful Judgment fell upon me, which quite drove me from God and his Service : What that Judgment was I am not willing, for feveral Reasons, to set down; for if I should, few or none would believe it, because it is not visible to the Eye of Sense : For whereas my Sins have been committed against God Almighty, and the World faw not my Sin, fo God Almighty punishes me, and the World fees not my Punishment; my Defire is, that all they that fhall happen to read thefe Lines may take Warning by this my Fall, and prefume not to go to the Lord's Table without due Preparation : About the Time that this Judgment fell upon me, I heard a Sermon, the Text was taken out of the xixth Chapter of St. Luke, 41st and 42d Verfes, where it is faid of Chrift's riding to Jerufalem, That when he drew nigh unto the City, he beheld it, and wept over it, faying, Hadst those but known, even thou, at least in this thy Day, the Things that belong to thy Peace, but now they are hid from thine Eyes: From whence the Minister made it appear, that there was a Day of Grace, in which all Men might make themfelves happy if they pleafed : Secondly, That that Day of Grace could not be continued during our good Pleafure ; Thirdly, That we might play it away, and beyond which there remained no further Hopes of Mercy : Fourthly, That God Almighty was fo far from delighting in the Ruin and Dectruction of finful Men, that he even lamented him when he had made himfelf uncapable of his Mercy : Fifthly, He mentioned a Lift of those Sins which drew down these heavy Judgments of God Almighty upon Men. Had these Sermons been made upon my Account, and been preached to none but me, it could nothave come nearer to the State and Condition of my Soul than it did; for it difcovered those Methods God Almighty com-commonly uses with the Sons of Men, before he gives them up to a reprobate Mind, and being very fenfible how good and gracious God had been to me, in warning me to avoid those Judgments that were ready to fall upon me : How did this torment my Soul to think, that, by my own Wickedness, I had caft myfelf out of the Favour of him that would fain have faved me, and made myfelf a Slave to the Devil, who hates and abhors all Mankind, and makes it his whole Business to work their Ruin and Destruction : Perhaps fome young and ignorant Perfons may wonder how the Devil doth all this, for I confess, I once did wonder at it myfelf, not knowing how the evil Spirits fhould tempt Man to Sin, becaufe I thought they were confined to that infernal Den called Hell, but now I know that they hover in the Air, and have Accels to Man, to fuggeft into his Mind wicked Thoughts; but where the Grace of God abounds, they cannot there prevail; for it is no Sin to be tempted, provided Man yields not to the Temptation; and the only Way is, to pray to God for Grace, for I do verily believe, had I made my Supplication and Prayers to God as I ought to have done, the Devil had never found out a Way to have brought me to commit the fore-cited deteftable Sin ; but I believe that what Divines do fay is true, That a prayerless Person soon becomes a graceless Person; and, furely, no Sin is more destructive to Divine Grace than the Sin of SELF-POLLUTION, which cries aloud to Heaven for Vengeance upon the Head of the Offender, for it is a Kind of Murder, for by that Sin we deftroy Generation, and that would as fain come into Being, as we ourfelves would live that are in Being : It is a Sin that can never be exclaimed against enough; and I think the Author is worthy of Commendation for publishing fuch a Book as the Advertisement shews it to be, for I have not yet feen the Book, only I understand there is such a one set forth : But I think if it could have been afforded cheaper, it might have fooner found Acceptance among the Commonalty, amongft whom this Sin ftrangely abounds. I defire that what I have faid may find a Place in the latter End of the Author's Book ; if what I have written be not fo well compacted as it ought, a better Compiler may alter as he thinks fit; but I defire the Senfe and Meaning of it may be retained, becaufe it is Truth, and no more than what I have experienced; and and my humble Defire is, that all pious and good Chriftians may commiferate my Condition, and remember me in their Prayers, imploring the Lord to have Mercy upon me, and to deliver me from that dreadful Judgment which I labour under.

KARANAR!KRANKA

To the Author of ONANIA.

WORTHY SIR, Oct. 5, 1735. E- in Scotland.

IT has been my Fortune to have had the reading of your Discourse against that vile Practice of SELF-POLLU-TION, which I myfelf have notorioufly been guilty of, and for all I can ever do against the Thoughts of it, they still will not be kept under ; though I must confess, that if I had not read your Discourse, I could not have left it, or conquered myfelf fo foon, nor indeed was I fenfible of the Fault; and I do believe that none are free from all Thoughts to provoke them to it when they are young, and from a natural Instinct of Nature are always aiming at something that Way. Now, to be short, I shall come nearer the End of my Design in writing to you : I have been so perplexed to fuch a Degree with thinking of my having been fo notorious in this finful Action, that I have almost despaired of seeking Pardon at Almighty God's Hand of Mercies ; for though I have faid conquered myfelf, yet I am in Danger every Night, that I should do it as I have heretofore, for in my Sleep I have done it unknown to myfelf till I have waked : But at first when I had read your Book, I looked into the Matter over and often again, but at a Time when I had had no Exercife in Walking, and prompted to it fo prodigiously, that it would be my Master in spite of all I was able to do, though though at the same Time I did not think any Ways of any Thing filthy on any Perfon. I am not injured as to Health, though I believe I am not half fo firong and vigorous as if I had not done it; my Memory is not fo good as it might have been, and I am fometimes almost melancholy for want of Spirits, or the Thing I have loft ; though feemingly I am as well, to every one's Thinking, as one that never was affeeted with the Action. I would willingly take any Thing that would prevent me from falling into it, which I am in Danger of always. The Tincture you have mentioned Iwould kave, and all the rest of the Things ; but then it would prompt me to it more, and I cannot, nor have not, Opportunity to exercise it to do me good enough, so that unless you can advise me about it in some other Way, I know not what to do. I have used all the Means to subdue it, and yet it will be the ftrongest for all that; for I have forfaken Meat Diet, and all strong Suppers, but I am a Lover of Potatoes, and eat them for Supper often. I do affure you, Sir, that I have no less than fix Times a Day prayed to Almighty God for his Affiftance to deliver me from it; and I find myfelf vastly better since I have made such earnest Desires, but ftill I am very weak in the Resistance of this horrid Crime ; and this is the last that I thought to do, to apply to you : If you please to advise me in this Case, I desire you to let it not be for want of your Fee ; for though I am not fo able as I may be, pray accept of what I shall fend you after you fend me what you think proper ; and if to my Benefit, I shall make a Shift to find you out in London, and be better acquainted with you, and also make more Retaliation for your good Service already done to the Public, which, I think, will never be able to make you a sufficient Return. With Thanks of Gratitude, I am,

T H E following Letter is from the fame Perfon who fent that in Pages 296, 297, 298, giving an Account of the Effects of the Medicines I had before fent him.

To the ingenious AUTHOR of the Book intituled, ONANIA. Thefe.

SIR,

London, Oct. 13, 1735.

I HAVE now almost made an End of taking those Medicines which you ordered me, and I find they have prevented those Emissions.

A S to the other Imbecilities, I do not find any great Alterations in me for the better; though, perhaps, that may proceed from my Ignorance: But, however, I must do you that Justice to say, that they have been of good Service to me.

I HAVE very punctually observed your Directions in taking them, except Yesterday, when I was obliged to omit the Drops in the Asternoon, upon Account of my being from S i Home; themfelves, and the terrible Judgments impending over their Heads, and ready to be executed on them everyMoment of their Lives : Were all to meet with the fame unhappy Fate as Onan did (who in all Probability, was the original Tranfactor of this Sin) I am inclinable to think this World would foon be reduced to its primitive Chaos. Therefore a Book wrote in Oppofition to a Vice fo flagrant, and yet fo common amongfl us, deferves an univerfal Effeem, and befpeaks the Author a Man of fingular Integrity, and one truly follicitous for the Promotion of Virtue in this wicked vnd degenerate Age.

" I COULD, with Abundance of Pleafure, expatiate upon the Ufefulnefs of your compendious Treatife, but would by no means intrude upon those happy Minutes of yours, which are, beyond all Dispute, daily employed in doing benevolent Acts of Kindnefs to others : For which Reason I think myself obliged to defist from such an Undertaking, and shall now proceed to lay before you a true State of my own miserable Case, in as concise a Manner as the Nature of the Thing will admit of.

"KNOW then, most ingenious Sir, that I am a Youth of nineteen Years of Age, who have, to my great Shame and Confusion, for the Space of five annual Revolutions, more or lefs, addicted myfelf to that odious Practice of Masturbation, which being attended with a pleafing Titillation, I purfued the more vigouroufly, committing it frequently every Day, and feldom omitting it longer than two or three Months. During which Time I cannot fay I found any great Diforders upon me till about the first Day of January last, when I began to have a violent and exceffive Gleet, which increased more and more upon me for fifteen Days, and then abated. While this Diftemper was raging, I had occafion to make Water every Hour in the Day : The Quantity was fmall, and came forth with fuch exquifite Pain, that one would imagine Pins and Needles, if it were poffible, were forcing their Way along with it. After the Voidation of Urine, which feemed to be pretty much fomented, there followed a Seminal +IT(S/1)

minal Emission, as I take it to be, by the Contamination of my Linnen : For if I shifted myself in the Morning the greater Part of the Fore-flap of my Shirt by Night was stained and vitiated by the immense Running that came from me. I laboured about a Fortnight under this terrible Afflictton, after the Expiration of which I found my Pain gradually decrease, and could make Water much more eafily than before; the Running is likewife much extenuated; but the Courfe of Nature is ftill accompanied with a radical Moisture, which, I believe, cannot be prevented without the Application of proper Remedies. 1 have other Complaints befides this of a much longer ftanding, which I fhould have never imputed to my finful Habituation, had not the like Inftances occurred to me in the Perufal of your Book.

" I AM perplexed with frequent aching Pains, Dizzineffes and Noifes in my Head, the latter of which is feldom perceptible but when I lie down : If I am ever fo much inclinable to read or write, I begin to be tired and stupified; and if I read aloud for any confiderable Time my Mouth is thirsty, and my Head seems to be confused. Sometimes I have inward Tremblings and Palpitations; fometimes a Chillness feizes me, and paffes through every Part of my Body, and if I lean upon any Place my Arms are prefently benumbed, and feel as if they had no vital Warmth left in them : But what still enhances my Grief is this, imagining it to be an antecedent Sign of a Confumption, I have an ugly Rifing in my Throat, which. when I hawk up, appears to be a thick phlegmy Sort of Spittle. The repeated Commissions of this detestable Practice has certainly prevented my Growth, and not only fo, but has tended very much to the Diminution of the Spermatic Parts; though as to my Growth I have often flattered myfelf that it is natural, my Parents being both of a small Stature when living. I thank God, I do not find my Memory is in the least impaired, but am frequently troubled with Lowners of Spirits, which makes me unfit for Conversation. My Sleep is generally found, and feldom diffurbed with Dreams; and I do not remember that I ever had any involuntary Emiffions of Seed in the Nighttime.
time. I commonly have a good Appetite for my Breakfaft and Dinner, but very rarely for Supper: My usual Breakfaft is Green Tea, and hot Roll and Butter, and my Dinner Butcher's Meat of one Sort or other. I give you an Account of my Diet, that I may be the better informed whether it will be repugnant to the Means of my Cure.

" " HAVING now given you a true Account of my deplorable Condition, I queftion not by that, by this Time, you are able to form a right Judgment of it, and are thoroughly convinced of the indifpentible Neceffity I lie under for your Advice. Therefore I most earnestly beg and intreat you, for God's Sake, to let me have your Anfwer by Saturday Morning, directed for T-R---, at which Time I will call at the Bookfeller's for it. I fhall very readily fubmit to your Prefcriptions, being determined to observe whatever you think will be iustrumental to the Reftitution of those Seminal Juices which I have to unhappily deprived myfelf of. Be pleafed to fignify in your Anfwer, if Walking is any-ways prejudicial to me; for I go frequently Abroad about Bufineis for a Friend of mine, who is beftowing upon me an Education in a commendable Science, and with whom I fhall continue to live, till I am in a Capacity of procuring my own Maintenance. I have fent you inclosed Half a Guinea, and hope that the Smallness of your Fee will not make me a less Object of Pity; for I do affure you I would, with all Chearfulnefs, be more generous, did but my prefent Circumstances enable me fo to be : And if there are peculiar Bleffings referved for good Men (which is a Truth Chriftians are infallibly affured of) I doubt not but that Deficiencies of this Nature will be made up with a more valuable Compensation than Mortality is able to beffow. It only remains that I once more intreat you (if ever you were moved to pity a poor repenting Onan) ferioufly to confider my melancholy Cafe, and hope that that diffusive Goodnefs, fo experimentally confpicuous in you, will be now extended towards me in the fame compaffionate Degree, as it hath been to other unhappy Youths of this Juft as this Supplement was (as it were) printed off, the following Letter, from a young Lady, was left for me at the Bookfeller's, which, for the Particularity of the Cafe, and Ingenuity of the Writer, I thought I could do no lefs than make Room for.

To the commendable Author of ONANIA.

SIR,

Oct. 16, 1735.

THIS Letter comes from a young Female Creature, but an old Transgressor in the Practise of that filthy Pleasure which you have so justly exploded and condemned in your ingenious Book of ONANIA, which I happily met with about ten Days ago: But in all the Cases therein enumerated, there is not one that is parallel to mine, which, as my Welfare requires it, I must be obliged to relate, and is what I question, Sir, whether you have ever once met with: Nor could I tell it, though, at the fame Time, I bless the Opportunity, but that I am sure you no more know the Writer of it, nor ever will, than I know the Author of ONANIA, or defire it. I began, Sir, the Folly at eleven Years of Age; was taught it by my Mother's Chamber-Maid, who lay lay with me from that Time all along till now, which is full feven Years, and so intimate were we in the Sin, that we took all Opportunities of committing it, and invented all the Ways we were capable of to heighten the Titillation, and gratify our finful Lufts the more, as being prompted to it by Aristotle's faying, That Women might procure to themfelves, cum Digitis, vel aliis Inftrumentis, a Senfation, non multo minor Coitu Voluptas. We, in short, shamefully pleasured one another, as well as each ourselves; but whether by the hard Usage of my Parts by her, or myself, or both, or whether from any Thing in Nature more in my Make than is cultomary to the Sex I do not know; but, for above half a Year past I have had a Swelling that thrust out from my Body, as big, and almost as bard, and as long or longer, than my Thumb, which inclines me to exceffive luftful Defires, and from it there iffues a Maisture or Slipparinefs, to that Degree, that I am almost continually wet, and sometimes have such a forcing, as if something of a large Substance was coming from me, which greatly frightens both me and my Maid. She went to a Midwife about it, but did not, she fays, tell her of our Practice; the Midwife faid it was a bearing down of the Womb by Weakness, and told her what I should do, which I did, but to no Purpose. Ever fince I have been so, I have not had the Course of Nature, have a great Pain in my Back, and my Belly is fwelled; am not near fo strong as I was, my Countenance much paler, Appetite less, yet an utter Stranger (I aver) to your Sex. It has almost distracted me, and unfits me for my Learning, and am afraid I am fo burt, as that it cannot be remedied. O! that I should be fo wicked; I, who had a much nobler Education (and should know better) than is common to most of my Sex ; that am verfed in the Clafficks, and designed by my Friends, who are very rich, for something above the common Station of my Sex; I fay, that I should fo filthily debase myfelf, wrong my Body, and, which is worfe, my Soul, is furprising even to myfelf. Had I read more the BIBLE, and other godly Books, and lefs in Martial, Juvenal, Ovid, Sc. it had been better for me ; but thafe Books, Rocyefter, Aristotle, and Plays, at first debauched my filly Fancy. But I hope, as now both myfelf and Maid have, on confulting your curious Difcourfe of SELF-POLLUTION, abandoned doned the Practice, and refolved, through God's Grace, to commit it no more, we shall find Pardon, and my infirm Body, from your Hands, good Sir, Relief. She ails nothing, is a strong Wench of twenty-seven, myself of a tender Make, and naturally inclined to be weakly, and but just turned of Eighteen. I have with this sent you a Guinea Fee, and desire your cordial Advice what I had best to do, and your Opinion of my Case, sealed up safely, directed for Mrs. E. N. and I will send for it To-morrow Morning, at the Bookseller's where this is left; and, Sir, I must needs desire you to send me this Letter back, that I may have the Satisfaction of committing it to the Flames myself. According to your Answer you shall hear further from,

« SIR,

Your ever Obliged, and

Most Obedient, Humble Servant,

E. N.

NOT Sir, but you may copy my Letter first, and, if you, think it worth while, print it also in your next Edition, as a Caution to others; but would not that my Hand be seen by any besides yourself, the Circumstance of the Relation, so as not to be known it is me, I having taken great Gare of, and guarded against.

THIS young Lady's Cafe, through the Height of her Luft, and Force and Frequency of abufing herfelf, and probably the unnatural Propendance of the Part, is no more, according to the Account fhe gives, than a Relaxation of the Clitoris, a Thing common to many of the Sex, both fingle and married, who are vigorous and lafcivious, and have given themfelves to the Practice of SELF-POLLU-TION for any Time. In fome Women it extends itfelf, and is enlarged when inflated, to the exact Likenefs and Size of a human Penis erect, except that it has Perforation (though it really looks, by the natural Imprefion at the End, as if there was a Paflage) nor is altogether fo T t long, but yet it crects and falls as that does, in Proportion to the Venereal Defire or Inclinations of the Woman. I have had, in my Time, one or two under this Circumftance, by the fame Practice, for Cure, who, upon their living afterwards chafte, and using fome aftringent Foments, and a few Internals, to regulate their inordinate and enraged Venereal Defires, have been brought to Rights, and the Parts reftored to their priftine, natural State and Condition. It was the like Cafe of this Lady's that gave Rife to the Report of the two Nuns at Rome, having changed their Sex, and which had made fuch a Noife in that City, that the Pope, upon hearing of it, gave Orders for their being inspected by some Cardinals. Dr. Carr, in his Medicinal Epistles, translated by Dr. Quincy, has, in his Anfwer to a Letter fent him by a Divine, upon the Subject of it, wrote his Opinion at large; which, as it may confirm mine in relation to the aforefaid Lady's Cafe, and be of fome Ufe both to Practitioners and Patients, I shall not think much to transcribe it, and give to the Reader verbatim. It is his 16th Epiftle, intituled, Concerning two Nuns reported to have changed their Sex.

" SIR,

"I SHOULD blufh perhaps, from too much Modefty (notwithftanding your Commands) to concern myfelf in a Story that is not a very chafte one, had not a Profeffor of Divinity given it to the World in Print, and a College of Cardinals inquired into it. This gives me fome Affurance, and guards me from any Imputations of Indecency: I fhall not therefore write any Thing out of Wantonnefs, or omit any Thing material upon the Account of Modefty.

" IT is an Unhappinefs that you have fixed upon me to account for fo wonderful a Phænomenon in Nature. You would have greatly obliged the learned World, had you prevailed with the Honourable Mr. Boyle, who is a finished Philosopher, to have undertaken this Work; tho' I am not indeed without Hopes, that, as soon as this strange Story is related to him, he will think it worth his skilful Inquiry; for such is his consumate Learning, and, which will be to his eternal Honour, such are his Inclinations to inftruct others, that he will be provoked not to fuffer fuch an extraordinary Cafe to escape the Notice of the ableft Philosopher.

"YOU acquaint me in your Letter, that it is reported at Rome, that two Nuns in a Monaftery were changed in fuch a Manner, as to be fufpected of Virility. Upon the Increase of fuch a Report that it came to the Pope's Ears, who, upon fuch an extraordinary Occasion, ordered some Cardinals to inquire into the Truth of it : That, after their Search, they affirmed, that the Nuns were grown in fuch a Manner, as to have changed their Sex; in Testimony of which, you fay, the Cardinals commanded them to be expelled the Monastery, and that, at that Time, they had changed their Dress, and took upon them the Employs of Men.

" IWONDER what could induce his Holinefs to commit the Infpection of that Affair to his Cardinals, who are no Ways converfant in the Difference of Sexes. It is true indeed, that the Reputation of their Integrity would prevent all Manner of Sufpicion as to their Report; but yet their unfpotted Chaftity, joined with Shame and Modefty, could never fuffer them to make fuch a nice Inquiry as the Nature of fuch a Thing demanded.

" PERSONS who read this Account may, perhaps, be divided into different Opinions, and both of them wrong.

"SOME, who have a Confidence in the Integrity of the Cardinals, may not, upon that Account, disbelieve it; but, as it exceeds the wonted Bounds of Nature, take it for a Miracle.

"OTHERS may wholly difbelieve it, as it fo far exceeds the Reach of Nature, that, as Miracles are ceafed, it must be impossible; and as they are under no Obligations to believe Impossibilities, fo they will not believe that.

20 11 T 35

" I WOULD, Sir, fatisfy both thefe Kinds of Readers, and by you, I doubt not, in fuch Intricacies, it will be well taken, that I have endeavoured to do my beft : The one, that the Excursion of Nature, which you call a Change of Sex, is no Ways to be accounted an Impoffibility, from the Structure of the Parts of Generation; and the other, that fuch a wonderful Phænomenon does not exceed the Bounds of Nature, nor is it fo in frequent as to deferve to be reckoned a Miracle. He must be a Stranger to the Power of Nature, who thinks the cannot fometimes do what the thinks not fit to do often.

"WHOSOEVER thinks that those two Nuns have changed their Sex is under a Mistake; all that gives any Ground for such an Opinion is, the uncommon Increase of the Clitoris, which, as it is used to frequent Irritations, thrusts out and enlarges its Dimensions, not unlike to a human Penis.

" I AM unwilling to be fo cenforious with relation to these Nuns, who profess a severer Way of Living, and a more constant Attendance at their Devotions, as to suffect their Lascivious found prompt them to an unusual Exercise of those Parts, by which they might increase their Bulk, according to Martial,

66 Mentiturque virum prodigiofa Venus, because there are Instances of the same in Infants themselves, who cannot be supposed guilty of such wanton Practices.

"NOR can I be of Opinion, that these Perfons were Men from the first; because if they had counterfeited their Habits to fatisfy their Luss in such a Place, there would have happened some Discoveries of it, which there has not done, and therefore no such Thing ought to be suspected. Besides, such a Conjecture cannot take place, when we consider that their Breasts are like those of other Women, and were so at their Admission into the Convent, and continue so still. " THE inquifitive Regnerus de Graef, in his Book of the Female Organs, upon that Head, De Clitoride, takes Notice of the Clitoris of an Infant to come fo near the Member of Virility in the other Sex, as to deceive the Nurfe, and the other more fkilful Goffips, who took it for a Male Child, and, in its Baptifm, named it accordingly; and that the Miftake was not detected till after its Death, upon an accurate Diffection of the Body, of which the fame Author gives an Account.

" The Clitoris, in fome adult Perfons, is feen to hang out beyond the Labiæ, or the Openings of the Thighs. There is a Diftemper called Furor Uterinus, which fometimes arifes from this Caufe, that in Walking, or other Exercife, the Clitoris is rubbed by the Cloaths, and excites fuch extravagant Defires as puts them out of all Shame and Modefty, and ftimulates them with a Degree of Madnefs to Venereal Embraces.

" THIS uncommon Growth of the Clitoris is fo frequent in fome Eaftern Countries, that the most skilful Surgeons have found out a Method of amputing it, and to take it away from Perfons about to marry, left it should be a Hindrance in Coition.

"NOR is the Reafon of fuch a Growth very difficult to be affigned.

" 1. BECAUSE the Fury of Luft wonderfully diftends the Nerves and Arteries, and particularly, above any other Parts, blows up those Organs with Spirits and Heat. Upon Coition, real or imaginary, those of a Man are blown up and extended, by a plentiful Influx of Blood and animal Spirits from the Titillation which attends it, as if Nature was prodigal in her Care for a Supply of those Parts.

"2. THE Cavity of the Part wherein it is fituated (as if it were not to be confined to narrow Bounds, which would hinder its Increase) facilitates its Growth; and, as it is placed where there is Room enough, it can enlarge itself on every Side, whereby its Vessels are prolonged, and receive Nourishment on all Parts.

« FUR-

"FURTHER, Sir, upon a Comparison of the Male and Female Organs, you will not find them to differ fo much as you imagine at first Appearance, excepting, that those of a Man are thrust out with a more vigorous Heat; whereas those of a Woman, by a Defect in that Respect, are only to be perceived inwardly.

" THE Uterus of a Woman, upon turning out, would refemble a Scrotum, and the two Ovaries annexed to the Sides of its Bottom, with what they include, would make up the Number of the Testicles.

" THE Clitoris is fhaped like a Penis; it has the fame Senfe of Pleafure, and ftretches out and relaxes in the fame Manner again; it alfo ends in a Gland, but wants a Cavity; which is no Wonder, becaufe it does not ferve for the Difcharge of any Thing, as it ouzes out its Contents more conveniently into the Aperture of the Neck of the Bladder; but was that Aperture to be clofed, as it is in Men, then, in an Erection, it would neceffarily find fome other Outlet towards the End of its Gland: For the Veffels of all Kinds are firft formed by the Impulfe of fome circulating Fluid, where the Fluid is obftructed it forms a Cell, and Veffels where it circulates.

" IN our first Formation, when the Genital Parts hardly exceed the Point of a Needle, the Difference of Sex depends upon very nice Circumstances; but when Perfons are grown up, it is the most difficult Thing in the World to believe there can be a thorough Change from one Sex to the other, as the Poets tell of Terefia. But there is more Reason to think, that the Largeness of the Clitoris, by its Likeness to a human Penis, might deceive the Inquirers into this Matter; or that they were Men from their first Formation; but that the Genital Parts, by fome Defect in the first Rudiments, not obtaining a due Protrusion, upon the Increase of Strength, and Venereal Titillations, broke forth, and so feemed to grow afresh.

"WE have frequent Inftances of Nature's Excursions in the Make of those Parts. There is a very remarkable Story of a Child born fome Time fince in a Village near the the Mountain called Grandvaux in France, in all other Refpects like other Children who had those Parts which diftinguished its Sex perfectly like a Man; the Pubes were grown over with thick Hair, and he frequently had all the Motions of Lasciviousness, with an Erection fit for Coition, especially from waking from Sleep: and, before he was two Years old, his Parents were advised not to fuffer him to lie with his Sisters or Maids, less that should happen at two Years of Age which Hieronymus wondered at in twelve or thirteen.

" NATURE refufes to be circumfcribed in her Operations, but ye fhe has never been known to make fuch Excursions as this must have been; we ought therefore to stand in Wonder at her exact Regularities, because of our Inability in following her through all her Works.

" I AM forry for your Departure from Town, becaule we cannot be together as often as I wish; let us therefore, by an Agreement of Minds, pursue the same Inquiries in such a Manner, as if we had not been as der. I am intirely

" Your very Humble, &c."

IT is very evident, by this curious Account, that these two Nuns were not Men, but brought into a Resemblance of the Male Sex by the vile Practice of SELF-POLLU-TION, and the abusive Use of the Genital Parts one with another; and as there are many Women, who, from the like luftful and excessive Abuse of themselves, have this Propension of the Clitoris, so are there many others who are born with it, much to their Trouble and Shame.

Dr. DRAKE, in his Book of Anatomy, tells us, that the extraordinary Size and Laxnefs of the Clitoris, hanging out of the Body in fome Infants, has made the Women miftake Children for those Sort of Monsters they call Hermaphrodites. Of this Sort, fays he, I had one brought to me upon another Occasion, whose Cliteris hung out of the Body so far, at about three Years old, that it refembled very much a Penis, but it wanted the Perforation, and, instead of that, just behind it, the Urine issued out at the Hole, which was nothing elfe but the Corner of the Rima, the Clitoris filling all the reft of the Orifice; fo that the Parents miftook it for a Boy, chriftened it as fuch, and efteemed it fo when it was brought to me; but the Neighbours, who had Notice of this Appearance called it an Hermaphrodite. Regner de Graef alfo fays, he faw a Girl new-born, whofe Clitoris had fuch a Refemblance to a Man's Penis, that the Midwife, and the reft of the Women there prefent, took it for a Boy, and baptized it as fuch.

IT is certain, that in fome Women, especially those who are very falacious, and have much abufed themfelves by SELF-POLLUTION, the Clitoris is fo vaftly extended, that, upon its thrufting out of the Paffage, it is miftaken for a Penis; fuch have been called Fricatrices; by Calius Aurelianus, Tribades; by Plautus, Subigatrices, and accounted Hermaphrodites, becaufe, as is faid before, they have been able to perform the Actions of Men with other Women. Amatus relates of two Turkish Women of Thessa. lonica, and De Castro fays he has also seen some Women at Lifbon, punished for the like most filthy Wickednes. In Creophagi in Arabia, they circumcife the Women that are fo, by cutting away a certain Apophofis of musculous Skin, that defcends from the fuperior Part of the Matrix which fuffers Erection in Coition. Lusitanus tells us, Obf. 82, that a most renowned and very honest Virgin, having naturally a propended Clitoris, which fo provoked her to Venery, by only its unavoidable rubbing against her Linnen as fhe moved, that it gave great Trouble and Affliction to her Soul, infomuch that, with the Confent of her Parents, this Physician was applied to, to cut it off; which he fays, with the Help of two fkilful Surgeons, was done, and fhe cured, and well ever after.

I HAV Eread, that in France there are a People who have a great Propension of the Clitoris naturally, and are equally able to make Use of those of both Sexes; and that the Laws there leave to their Choice which Sex to make Use of, after which the Use of the other are absolutely forbidden them. And we read, that in Florida and Virginia there is a Nation that have the Generative Parts of both Sexes.

Sexes: To confirm the fame, those that will take the Pains to confult the Works of Jacobus de Moyne may see a Defcription of them in certain Figures ; but, it feems they are People that are hated by the very Indians, and by them made fervile, to carry Burdens, and do Offices inftead of Beafts, they being very ftrong and able-bodied. Plauterus, a Phyfician, fays, in his Works, that he faw a Clitoris in a Woman as big and as long as the Neck of a Goofe. Riolanus and Schenkius, two noted Phylicians, both fay, they have observed it as long in a Woman as a Man's Finger. Plempius writes of one Helena, a Woman, that lay with feveral Women, and vitiated feveral Virgins with that Part. Diemerbroek fays, he himfelf faw, in a certain Woman at Montfort, a Clitoris, as long and thick as the ordinary Penis of a Man, which came to be of that Magnitude after the had lain-in three or four times.

THE following Hiftory, fays an Author, made a mighty Noife, both at Paris and Thouloufe. A certain young Woman at Thouloufe had a Relaxation of the Vagina, refembling a Man's Penis, and fome pretended that fhe abufed it that Way, it being fix Inches in Length, and four in Circumference in the Middle, where it was very hard. It gradually increafed from her Childhood: She was fearched by the Phyficians there, who gave their Opinion, it was a real Penis; upon which the Magistrates of the Town ordered her to go in Man's Habit. In this Equipage fhe came to Paris, where the got Money by thowing herfelf, till, upon other Affurances that the was a Woman, and a Promise of being cured, the was brought into the Hotel de Dieu, where the Descent was soon reduced, and fhe forced to refume her Female Drefs, to her great Regret.

VERY rarely, or hardly ever, do we hear of what Baubinus, a Phyfician, has obferved concerning a Clitoris, that it became bony in a Venetian Courtezan, which, by Reafon of its extreme Hardnefs, did fo hurt her Lovers in Coition, that many Times, by Reafon of Inflammations thereby, they were forced to fly to the Surgeons for Help.

AN Hermaphrodite is by all looked upon as a Creature of vile Deformity, bringing a Shame upon both Sexes; and in old Times, wherever found, were drowned, or made away with, fuch Monsters not being thought by them fit to live.

IN Jul. Obseq. lib. prod. there is an Account, that at Luna, at the Time that L. Metellus and Q. Fabius were Confuls, there was born an Hermaphrodite, which, by the Command of the Soothfayers, was cast into the Sea, and the like others were ferved in other Countries, as foon as discovered, as at Umbria, Ferretinum, Fore Vessionem, Rome, Saturnia, &c.

CALIPHANES reports, that beyond the Nafamones, and about Matchlies, there are ordinarily found Hermaphrodites, which fo much refemble both Sexes, that they have carnal Knowledge one of another by turns; and this, by an Expression in the young Lady's Letter, Page 319, &c. (and which has introduced all this Discourseabout the Clitoris) seems to be Part of the Practice between her and her Bedfellow the Chambermaid.

MONTUUS, de Med. Thoref. lib. 1. cap. 6. fays, that a certain Hermaphrodite, who was counted to be a Woman, was married, bore Sons and Daughters, and notwithstanding was wont to lie with her Maids, and get them with Child. I have read a remarkable Account of an Hermaphrodite, in a certain City in Scotland, that went for a Maid, yet got her Master's Daughter, who lay in the fame Bed with her, with Child : She was accused of the Fact in the Year 1461, found capable as Man as well as Woman, convicted, and condemned before the Judges, and fuffered Death, by being put into the Ground alive.

THE Clitoris very much, as I have faid before, refembles a Penis, and its End like the Glans of that; and as the Seat of the greateft Pleafure in Man is in the latter, fo that of Woman is in the former, for therein is the Rage and Fury of Love, and there Nature has placed the peculiar Seat of Delight; from whence it is called by Columbus, lumbus, Amoris Dulcedo, the Sweetness of Love, and by Bauhinus, Æstrum Veneris, the Sting of Love ; for that the neceffary and unavoidable Frication of the Penis against the Clitoris, in the Act of Coition, causes those exceffive Ticklings, and transporting Itchings, to each Sex, that are not to be defcribed fo well as felt, and the more of the ferous Matter (before spoke of) the Woman sheds in the Act, eo major voluptas; for as the Penis in Men, and especially the Glans of it, fills and is inflated with Spirits in actu Cœundi, fo does the Clitoris at the fame Time in Women, and which jointly, together, reciprocally produce each to the other that inexpreffible Satisfaction that is diffused through all the animal Functions; and which, if Nature had not rendered fo extremely pleafing, what Man (that Divine Animal, born for the Contemplation of heavenly Things) would, as Andreas Laurentius elegantly expresses it, concern himself in fo filthy a Thing as is the Act of Coition? And what Woman (endowed with Modesty) would submit herself to be exposed to Man, and readily undergo the Toil and Danger of Childbearing, befides the Anxiety and Care of educating her Children ? But nether the Filthinefs of the Act will deter Men, nor the fevere Inconveniencies which great Bellies often cause to Women, nor the frequent extreme Hazard of their Lives when in Labour, nor Lofs of Beauty and Shape, the most precious Gifts they have, and which render them amiable, and admired by all, as well as beloved by those that possess them, can or will either affright or deter them therefrom ; nor will any of them make those Reflections till after the Action, or confider any Thing before it but the mutual Pleafure they expect, and allow that they receive with inexpreffible Satisfaction by it.

THAT all, as well as fome of, the Parts of Generation, in Women, are of a Texture naturally lax, and will, in a wonderful Manner, dilate themfelves upon Occafion, as the Uterus, and the Meatus Urinarius, we need no further Evidence for the first than Child-birth, and the other by its yielding to the Extraction of a large Stone generated in the Bladder, without cutting : And that the Urethra, in that Sex particularly, will fuffer itself to be very confiderably diftended, without any Thing like the Uuu 2 Force which a Steel or Silver Inftrument must neceffarily occasion, we may see by the Story which the late famous Mr. Cowper, the Surgeon and Anatomist, gives us of a Woman under his Care for Cure, whose Husband could never, till by the Help of Surgery, make any other Senetration than into the urinary Passage, for that the Vagina, or Collum Uteri, was so preternaturally closed, that there could be no Admission for the Penis. The Relation of it is in his Explications of the 51st Table of Bidloo's Anatomy, and taken Word for Word from him, as follows, viz.

I WAS called to a married Woman of above twenty Years of Age, whose lower Belly was distended as if with Child: Upon examining the Pudendum, I found the Hymen altogether impervious, and driven out beyond the Labia Pudendi, in Such a Manner, that, at first Sight, it appeared not unlike a Prolapfus Uteri. In the upper Part, towards the Clitoris, we found the Orifice of the Meatus Urinarius, or urinary Passage, very open, and its Sides extended not unlike the Anus, or Cloaca of a Cock, that, without any Difficulty, I could put up my Finger into the Bladder of Urine. On dividing the Hymen, at least a Gallon of grumous Blood, of divers Colours and Confistencies, came from her, which was the retained Menstrua. The next Day no lefs Quantity of the same Matter flowed, upon taking out the Peffary, which I had put in the Day before. After three or four Days she was easy, and soon after recovered, and within a Year after was delivered of a healthful Child. Her Husband told us, though lying with her at first (before this Operation) was paireful to himfelf as well as to her, yet at last be had a more easy Admission, which could be no other Way than in the Meatus Urinarius; which feems fomething uncommon, that her urinary Paffage should fo dilate itfelf to let in the erected Penis, by ng more than the Force the Strength of an Erection would afford.

THIS History, says he, proves, that this Woman's Hymen was not only a strong Membrane, that could make Resistance to that Force which overcame the Meatus Urinarius, and Sphincter of the Bladder, which is considerably strong; but by admitting of so great a Dilatation, as to hang extra Pudendum, shews, that the Structure of it is shows, and consequently capable of great Distentions.

THERE

THERE was another young Woman that laboured under the fame Misfortune, of having an obstinate Hymen, infomuch, that her Husband, though a healthful, strong, young Man, could make no Penetration; but she chose rather to have her Marriage disannulled, than to endure the Operation, being deterred by the Shame of exposing her Body, and the Discourses that might be raised upon it: For that a Lady's being viewed by the Judge's Order at Paris, by the most noted Physicians and Surgeons there, upon a Contess about her Virginity, gave Occasion for their Fans and Snuff-Boxes being painted afterwards with indecent Postures.

I COULD furnish the Perusers of this Supplement with Variety of Histories of the like Nature from Authors; but those which I have taken Notice of, I think, are enough, as they are pertinent to the young Lady's Cafe. which occafioned my mentioning them, and may be a Means to deter others of the Sex from practifing what may fo monftroufly expose them. I could likewife add many more Letters to the fame Purpose of those that precede these Histories, but that those which I have here inferted, and which I took promiscuously from the Heap I have of them by me, I found, upon a fresh Review of them, to be as material as any, as they, in a fufficient Manner, make evident the great Anxieties to the Minds, as well as Injuries to the Body, and principally the Genitals, which the Practice of that filthy Titillation has, by their own Confessions, occasioned, both in the married and fingle of each Sex.

I HAVE now nothing further to add, nor, I think, any Thing more to fay, on this Subject, therefore fhall conclude with only acquainting those of my Readers who are fo unhappy as to ftand in Need of Medicinal Affistance, and care not to apply themfelves to any Phylician of their own, or be feen by the Author of the ONANIA, that they may advife with him by Letter, on their ftating their Cafes in Writing, and left for him, faled (with his Fee (at Mr. Corbett's Bookfeller, opposite St. Dunstan's Church, Fleet/treet: Or they may first make Use of the Remedies recommended in the preceeding Seventeenth Edition of the ONANIA,
