It is believed that a large collection of personal and family records such as these, would furnish important data for investigating the social and hereditary antecedents that are most favorable to success in collige and after life. They will certailly protect from oblivion many facts that may hereafter prove of considerable biographical interest to the undergraduater themselves and to their families; possible to a much wider circle.

FLY-LEAF

TO

THE RECORD OF FAMILY FACULTIES.

$_{\rm BY}$

FRANCIS GALTON, F.R.S.

MR. FRANCIS GALTON offers £ 500 in prizes to those British subjects resident in the United Kingdom who shall furnish him before May 15, 1884, with the best Extracts from their own Family Records.

These Extracts will be treated as confidential documents, to be used for statistical purposes only, the insertion of names of persons and places being required solely as a guarantee of authenticity and to enable Mr. Galton to communicate with the writers in cases where further question may be necessary.

The value of the Extracts will be estimated by the degree in which they seem likely to facilitate the scientific investigations described in the preface to the Record of Family Faculties.¹

More especially:

(a) By including every direct ancestor who stands within the limits of kinship there specified.

(b) By including brief notices of the brothers and sisters (if any) of each of those ancestors. (Importance will be attached both to the completeness with which each family of brothers and sisters is described, and also to the number of persons so described.)

(c) By the character of the evidence upon which the information is based.

(d) By the clearness and conciseness with which the statements and remarks are made.

The Extracts must be legibly entered either in the tabular forms contained in a duplicate copy of the Record of Family Faculties, (into

Works on similar subjects by the same author, and issued by the same publishers :---

Inquiries into Human Faculty and its Development, 1883.

To these may be added the following, as one in which the author has taken part :-- which, if more space is wanted, additional pages may be stitched,) or they may be written in any other book with pages of the same size as those of the Record, provided that the information be arranged in the same tabular form and order. (It will be obvious that uniformity in the arrangement of documents is of primary importance to those who examine and collate a large number of them.)

Each competitor must furnish the name and address of a referee of good social standing (magistrate, clergyman, lawyer, medical practitioner, &c.), who is personally acquainted with his family, and of whom inquiry may be made, if desired, as to the general trustworthiness of the competitor.

The Extracts must be sent prepaid and by post, addressed to FRANCIS GALTON, 42 Rutland Gate, London, S.W. It will be convenient if the letters "R.F.F." (Record of Family Faculties) be written in the left-hand corner of the parcel, below the address.

The examination will be conducted by the donor of the prizes, aided by competent examiners.

The value of the individual prizes cannot be fixed beforehand. No prize will, however, exceed $\pounds 50$, nor be less than $\pounds 5$, and $\pounds 500$ will, on the whole, be awarded.

A list of the gainers of the prizes will be posted to each of them. It will be published in one or more of the daily newspapers, also in at least one clerical, and one medical journal.

 The above conditions are in lieu of those provisionally sketched out by MR. GALTON in the Fortnightly Review of August, 1883, for the purpose of eliciting suggestions, and which were subsequently submitted in a more elaborate form to many members of the medical profession. Their present shape is fixed in accordance with the balance of opinions elicited by these preliminaries, which was in favour of throwing them open to general competition, and not to medical men only, as at first intended.

MR. GALTON would add, that extracts from the Records of any family would be very acceptable to him, even such as may be too incomplete in the opinion of their authors to have the chance of gaining a prize, or which for any other reason should have the words, "not for competition," written upon them.

He sincerely trusts that his efforts to draw the attention of the public to the utility of family records, to induce them to rescue facts that are steadily gliding into oblivion, and to collect materials for serious scientific study, will be taken in good part and in the spirit in which they are made.

December, 1883.

RECORDS OF FAMILY FACULTIES.

AWARD OF PRIZES.

THE number of Family Records that had to be seriously considered before adjudging the prizes barely reached 150; 70 of these being contributed by males, 80 by females. The remainder were imperfect, or they were marked "not for competition." The 150 Records were contributed by persons of very various ranks. After classing the female writers according to the profession of their husbands, if they were married, or according to the profession of their husbands, if they were married, or according to that of their fathers, if they were unmarried, I find that each of the following 7 classes has 20 or somewhat fewer representatives ; (1) Titled persons and landed gentry; (2) Army and Navy; (3) Church (various denominations); (4) Law; (5) Medicine; (6) Commerce, higher class; (7) Commerce, lower class. This accounts for nearly 130 of the writers of the Records, the remainder are land agents, farmers, artisans, literary men, schoolmasters, clerks, students, and one domestic servant in a family of position.

Three cases occurred in which the Records sent by different contributors overlapped. The details are complicated, and need not be described here, but the result is that five persons have been adjudged smaller prizes than they individually deserved.

I greatly regret that the allotted sum of \pounds 500 under the stated conditions is inadequate to enable me to assign prizes to all the authors of contributions of merit. The Records of many besides those whose names appear in the prize lists are of much value to me, though I am only able to tender to their authors my barren but hearty thanks.

The thorough consideration of the Returns will occupy years. I propose to examine one point after another, following out the several hints that their study may elicit, by special and independent inquiries. It is needless to insist on the scientific necessity for this. The main value of the Records lies in their suggestiveness, and I rate that value highly.

It will perhaps be months before any one of these points is worked out. As I have hitherto contributed memoirs on cognate topics to the Fortnightly Review, it is likely that the results of the first inquiry will also appear in its pages.

A Prize of £7 is awarded to each of the 40 following contributors.

FAMILY REGISTERS.

By FRANCIS GALTON, F.R.S.

I T is my desire to engage the interest and to enlist the good services of the medical profession in forming a collection of anonymous family histories that shall be suitable for statistical inquiries into hereditary health and disease, and into hereditary faculties generally.

Every ancestor in the same generation stands in an equally near degree of kinship, and may be expected to transmit an equal share of his qualities. Each ancestral root has therefore to be traced for at least a few generations backwards, before even an approximate knowledge can be obtained of the multifarious hereditary influences under which any individual nature has been evolved.

It is, however, well-nigh impossible to obtain so exhaustive a knowledge of the antecedents of even a few persons by the ordinary methods of inquiry, while on the other hand it is essential to do so concerning numerous persons before it can be possible to pursue those investigations into the causes of the rise and decay of families that the present state of the science of heredity imperatively demands.

Cases are observed in which brothers and sisters share, and transmit to their descendants, marked qualities good or bad, such as none of their ancestors could have possessed in an equal degree without attracting notice; but we have yet to learn what those ancestral qualities were, whose admixture produced so striking a result.

Other cases are observed in which faculties advantageous to the individual appear to be connected obscurely with conditions unfavourable to his descendants, so that our expectations may be often erroneous as to what families or varieties of men are best suited to multiply and thrive in the long run, and which are fated ultimately to die out.

These are only a sample of many important questions bearing on the evolution of our race, whose solution is delayed by the want of a large collection of family histories, extending exhaustively through several generations. The most limited field of inquiry, suitable for studies such as these, embraces three generations; namely, a group of brothers and sisters, their two parents, and their four grandparents. Brief notices of the uncles and aunts are also desirable, as assisting to prove the absence or existence of qualities that are latent in the direct line of ancestry, but liable to manifest themselves in future descendants.

In many cases the required data concerning the whole of a fourth generation are still in existence, and might be rescued from oblivion. They are those in which the contributor is himself still young, is married, and has children. Starting from his children, as the lowest group, and going backwards to the grandparents both of himself and of his wife, the desired information might be obtained.

The labour and extent of such an inquiry into four generations is obvious. It would usually relate to at least as many as thirty-six persons, whose numbers I reckon as follows: On the side of the contributor, there are his two parents, four grandparents, an average of three uncles and aunts on each of the two sides, three brothers or sisters, and himself; this makes sixteen persons. There is another set of sixteen for the relatives of his wife in the same degrees. Lastly, I allow an average of four children.

The difficulty of obtaining these large batches of biological registers is due, not only to the trouble of making them, but to the aversion of most men and women to record their family secrets of disease, and without fuller knowledge than they are generally disposed to afford, we are unable to make progress in the inquiry I have pointed out. What is to be done?

Let us consider. The writers of medical histories must be medical men, and they are also more competent than any other class to make anthropometric records. They understand the vast importance of medical registers better than any one else; they have less foolish timidity about medical facts than laymen; they are in writing anonymous cases. Why should not the members of the medical profession be appealed to, to write their own family histories, including those of their wives and children ? They have especial facilities, because they can communicate easily with those of their professional brethren who have attended their relatives, and ask them for particulars, which, doubtless, would be freely given under the circumstances.

The inquiries I wish to set in motion are such as many relatives and old friends of the family will gladly assist in making. The investigation is by no means wholly medical, and its successful pursuit, even so far as it is so, requires many half-forgotten memories to be reawakened before the proper clues can be found to the desired information. The memories of ladies are excellent repositories of personal matters, dates, and other details ; a family inquiry greatly interests them, and they are zealous correspondents. Whatever may be the medical results, the facts incidentally obtained during the course of the inquiry will form a separate document much prized by all the family.

The importance of each investigation will be soon appreciated by the author of it, for his researches will lay bare many far-reaching biological bonds that tie his family into a connected whole, whose existence was previously little suspected. Few, if any, have seriously studied the facts of heredity without becoming impressed with the conviction that no man stands on an isolated basis, but that he is a prolongation of his ancestry in no metaphorical sense, and I shall be surprised if the preparation of these registers by many persons does not extend the conviction very widely.

However successfully it may be shown that the advantages of the inquiry are real, both to science generally and to the persons who make them, and that it is not so very difficult as it may seem at first sight, the fact remains that every such inquiry into a family history will involve considerable research, and occupy in one way or another much time and attention. I have no doubt that I should receive valuable response to a simple appeal, but it would not, I fear, be by any means sufficiently wide to be of service in a statistical inquiry. The case is one that seems to justify and call for the stimulus of prizes, which, though by no means an wholly unobjectionable expedient, is one that in numercontinually reading, and have abundant practice | ous instances is found to be eminently successful, and, feeling as I do the supreme scientific importance and even duty of the inquiry, which I have emphatically expressed in not a few publications," I am prepared to offer prizes to the amount of £500. I am perfectly aware that in one aspect the offer has a mercantile air, as though it was wished to buy information from persons who were somewhat averse to giving it, and that it introduces an unworthy motive for purely scientific work. But there is another view of the matter; it is that the inquiry for which I ask will in every case demand more time than those young medical men, whose aid I especially want, are often in a position to afford gratuitously. It is impossible to remunerate them or others on the principle of so much per return, because the returns will be of very unequal merit, therefore no system of remuneration seems possible, except by means of awards for the best. A good effect of prizes is that they induce men to undertake with seriousness and with sustained effort what they might otherwise have done in a dilettante, half effectual way. I hope my offer will be accepted in the spirit in which it is made. I have consulted many of the leaders of the medical profession, and the very general, though not quite universal opinion. was decidedly in their favour.

> I may add that the Collective Investigation Committee of the Medical Association, of which I am a member, have under their consideration the best methods of inducing private individuals to keep a current record of their own lifehistory. Sharing as I do in the belief of the importance of such records, on which I myself have already published some observations,† I look upon the present inquiry as likely to help the efforts of that Committee in, breaking the ground, and in accustoming many persons to the practice of making them.

I now proceed to formulate, but only provisionally for the present, the appeal and offer that I propose to make, probably late in October. I do so in the hope of useful suggestions reaching me before the details are finally settled. I am already much indebted to many correspondents since the appearance of an article on this subject in the Fortnightly Review of August 1883.

PROVISIONAL OUTLINE OF PROPOSED APPEAL.

THE BIOLOGY OF FAMILIES.

REGISTERED medical practitioners are invited to send the outlines of the physical history of their respective families, as anonymous cases for statistical discussion.

The histories it is desired to obtain are such as shall cover at least three generations, namely :---

(t) The brothers and sisters of the youngest generation.

(2) Both of their parents, and most of their uncles and aunts.

(3) All four of their grandparents.

It is hoped that in not a few cases all the eight great-grandparents, and most of the greatand great-great-uncles and aunts may also be included.

The returns asked for are as follows :----

L A separate and compendious biological history of each member of the family in the direct line of ascent; that is to say, of the persons of the youngest generation and of their direct ancestors, namely, their two parents, their four grandparents, &c.

II. A very brief statement of the main biological facts in the lives of all, or many, of the uncles and aunts, great-uncles and great-aunts, &c.

(Pages ruled and headed, anti accompanied with fall instructions, will be furnished on application to any medical man in the United Kingdom. One side of each of those pages will be arranged to receive all the data that is asked for concerning any one direct ancestor, and the other side to receive the much briefer notices concerning each of the brothers and sisters of that ancestor.)

III. A description as full and exact as is possible, without ceasing to be anonymous, of the quality of the sources of information whence the various statements in I. and II. were derived.

IV. An Appendix containing an analysis of the medical history of the family, and of their other characteristics, with the view of showing what peculiarities have been transmitted in an identical or else in a changed form, and what others have failed to be transmitted. This Appendix will naturally fall into three sections. (t) Concerning the members on the side of the contributor; (2) concerning those on the side of his wife; (3) concerning the children.

The returns when sent to me (prepaid and by post) should bear a motto but no signature, and be accompanied by a sealed envelope bearing the same motto, and enclosing the name and address of the writer.

Prizes or awards to the amount of \pounds_{500} will be adjudged by myself, in concert with the medical Examiners whom I may select, acting in the same confidential manner as the medical advisers of assurance offices.

The prizes or awards will be adjudged to those whose contributions are deemed the most valuable. (\mathbf{i}) As regards the clearness and precision of the statements, and the judgment with which plain and well-established facts are adduced to corroborate them; (\mathbf{a}) the number of generations, and the exhaustive way in which each of them is treated; ($\mathbf{3}$) the style of the Appendix.

Owing to great uncertainty as to the amount and value of the response that this appeal may elicit, I feel it advisable not to specify before hand too minutely the way in which the \pounds_{500} will be distributed; but no single prize or award will exceed \pounds_{50} , nor fall short of \pounds_{5} , and I anticipate that \pounds_{250} , or thereabouts, will be distributed in prizes of about \pounds_{25} each.

The method of conducting the examination will be by paying regard at first solely to the anonymous registers, judging them by their untested merits. The envelopes containing the addresses of the writers of a sufficient number of the best of these will then be opened, and the authors will be privately invited to send supplementary documents, disclosing names and including photographs and whatever fresh data they may think most conducive to establish the accuracy of their several statements. The selected registers will then be reconsidered in the light of these documents, the final awards will be made, and the names of those who are successful will be published in one or more medical newspapers.

The supplementary documents, or such parts of them as may be desired, will be returned to the contributors.

After all this is concluded, I propose to open the remaining envelopes and acquaint myself with the names of the writers, that I may have the opportunity of communicating with them privately on such points as may prove to be of especial scientific interest. But the registers themselves will be allowed to bear no mark of my own by which their authorship might hereafter be disclosed; they will be simply catalogued numerically. I propose ultimately to hand over the registers as a unique statistical collection to the guardianship of some appropriate public institution, due care being taken throughout that they are not used for any idle or improper purpose, and that their anonymous character is strictly preserved.

All communications to be addressed as below.

Viscount blandeboye. F.23 V Viscount blandeboye bon The children are too young as yet to pronounce on their capacities. They appear to have talents for drawing inherited from Fi2 progenitors. All are healthy a well formed. A slight peculiarity has appeared in three of the Seven children, viz overhung, the upper jaw projecting a Showing the leth. It has often been wondered, from whence came this peculiarity as none of the ancestors on either side possessed it.

RECORDS OF FAMILY FACULTIES.

AWARD OF PRIZES.

THE number of Family Records that had to be seriously considered before adjudging the prizes barely reached 150; 70 of these being contributed by males, 80 by females. The remainder were imperfect, or they were marked "not for competition." The 150 Records were contributed by persons of very various ranks. After classing the female writers according to the profession of their husbands, if they were married, or according to that of their fathers, if they were unmarried, I find that each of the following 7 classes has 20 or somewhat fewer representatives : (1) Titled persons and landed gentry; (2) Army and Navy; (3) Church (various denominations); (4) Law; (5) Medicine; (6) Commerce, higher class; (7) Commerce, lower class. This accounts for nearly 130 of the writers of the Records, the remainder are land agents, farmers, artisans, literary men, schoolmasters, clerks, students, and one domestic servant in a family of position.

Three cases occurred in which the Records sent by different contributors overlapped. The details are complicated, and need not be described here, but the result is that five persons have been adjudged smaller prizes than they individually deserved.

I greatly regret that the allotted sum of \pounds 500 under the stated conditions is inadequate to enable me to assign prizes to all the authors of contributions of merit. The Records of many besides those whose names appear in the prize lists are of much value to me, though I am only able to tender to their authors my barren but hearty thanks.

The thorough consideration of the Returns will occupy years. I propose to examine one point after another, following out the several hints that their study may elicit, by special and independent inquiries. It is needless to insist on the scientific necessity for this. The main value of the Records lies in their suggestiveness, and I rate that value highly.

It will perhaps be months before any one of these points is worked out. As I have hitherto contributed memoirs on cognate topics to the Fortnightly Review, it is likely that the results of the first inquiry will also appear in its pages.

A Prize of £7 is awarded to each of the 40 following contributors.
