

Francis Galton's notes on Physiologie der Nervenfaser

Publication/Creation

Post 1860

Persistent URL

<https://wellcomecollection.org/works/zkr79ppg>

License and attribution

You have permission to make copies of this work under a Creative Commons, Attribution, Non-commercial license.

Non-commercial use includes private study, academic research, teaching, and other activities that are not primarily intended for, or directed towards, commercial advantage or private monetary compensation. See the Legal Code for further information.

Image source should be attributed as specified in the full catalogue record. If no source is given the image should be attributed to Wellcome Collection.

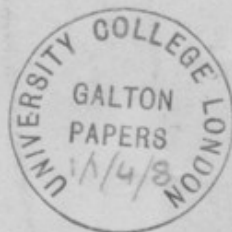

Wellcome Collection
183 Euston Road
London NW1 2BE UK
T +44 (0)20 7611 8722
E library@wellcomecollection.org
<https://wellcomecollection.org>

Dr Erasmus Darwin

F. 1r

H. Meyer in his "Physiologie der Nervenfasern"
S 239. ff. (as quoted by Fechner in his Psychophysik II. 485) alludes to Dr E. Darwin's experiments on phenomena of vision ^{in terms that were quite that show he looked at a matter of course that} as ^{as familiar to his readers} ^{these familiar with them} Meyer is speaking of his own forms of mental imagery, & gives as one ^{of his} examples.
~~the appearance of China~~ "which I wish to repeat Darwin's experiment (Zoonomia I. 1. 5378), only the edges of the die appear to me as bright lines on a dark ground..."

asked so in a way that ^{shows he took it} ~~completes his belief that they were known as a matter~~ of course ^{that} his readers were familiar with them. He ~~says~~ is speaking

61

f. 1v