the tag 123 "The will ^{do can} to act is always followed immediately by the act --- we cannot have a will to do an act and not do it" — I disagree here. Making up the mind is different to acting.

M. Attention - children differ very much in their powers some are broad-minded - a spider in the corner. a butterfly is enough to withdraw their minds from lessons Some find a difficulty in withdrawing their attention from any object in which they are deeply interested. You bring me the are of them you, whereas all the time they are thinking of something of in said 10 minutes ago

Schoolmaster's difficulties 1885 Uniqueness of children of their parents, peculiarities, doctors, what difference there is in children as to this.

Prof. on Teaching p. 17 on acquisition of knowledge of English individually They are lord it over the whole school, that one named two others occasionally question his way a little yet they always give in obediently to his will. Sometimes unnecessarily amusingly grandiose delirious & ridiculous chaotic & straight forwardness - Phenomenon of school.
