HISTORICAL SKETCH OF THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF PHYSICIANS.

HE attempt to incorporate the Practitioners of Medicine in Scotland, for the purpose of raising the standard both of the character and acquirements of Physicians, originated in 1617. King James I. of England, to whom an application for that purpose was made, received it favourably, and issued an Order to the Parliament for the establishment of a College of Physicians in Edinburgh. This Order is still extant. After reciting the evils which the community had suffered from the intrusion of irregular practitioners, it directs the Parliament to form a College of Physicians, appoints seven persons to examine those who proposed to practice Medicine, and makes it illegal for any person to exercise the art and science of Physic within Edinburgh and the neighbourhood without the Diploma of the College.

His Majesty also further suggests that warrant should be given to the College to appoint yearly three of its number to visit the Apothecaries' shops in the burgh, to examine the state of the drugs exposed for sale, and to destroy such as might be found corrupt or insufficient.

How frustrated.

Dissensions, chiefly of a religious kind, had the effect of preventing the wishes of the King from being carried out.

In 1630 the attempt was renewed, and King Charles I. referred the matter to his Privy Council; but, owing chiefly to the unsettled state of public affairs, nothing more was done in his reign.

Patent by Cromwell, 1656.

The matter was warmly taken up by Cromwell during his Protectorate; and a Patent, still extant, was made out in 1656, instituting a College of Physicians of Scotland, "who shall have power and authority to oversie, rule, and order, what may concerne the right administratioun of Physike to the people of Scotland in all pairs and places of the said nation, with power to them to censure and punish all persons who shall presume to practise, exercise, or profess Physike, or give medicines, or ordaine Physicall Praescritpiones in any pairt or place in Scotland, being not members of the said Colledge, or not being approved and licensed by the said Praesident and Colledge under their Common Seal." Further, in this Patent of Incorporation, it was proposed to give to the said President and College the power to practise the Art of Surgery: "forasmuch as the Science of Physick doth comprehend, include, and containe in it the knowledge of Chirurgery, being a special part of the same and member thereof." By it, also, the power of examining and licensing Apothecaries, and of visiting their shops, was to be conferred on the proposed College; and, lastly, the College was to be entitled to receive from the magistrates of the several cities and burghs, and the sheriffs of the respective counties, "such dead bodies of malefactors executed as they shall desyre, for making of dissection and anatomie for the use of the Colledge."

The extensive powers thus proposed to be conferred naturally created jealousies among the other public Medical bodies, and before the various conferences for the adjustment of these differences were ended, the death of the Protector put a stop for a time to the whole scheme.

Eventually, though not without great opposition on the part of the Surgeons, the Universities, the Municipal Corporation, and even the Bishops and Archbishops, a Charter of Incorporation was, chiefly by the exertions of Sir Robert Sibbald, and the assistance of the Earl of Perth, obtained from Charles II., and the Great Seal was appended to this Charter on St. Andrew's Day, 1681.

This Charter commenced by laying down the necessity which existed for ascertaining that those who design to practise any profession should be examined as to their capacity for doing so, and stated that from the absence of any regulation of this kind regarding Medicine, great confusion had arisen, and many very ill qualified persons exercised the healing art. It then proceeded to institute the College of Physicians as a great and powerful means of correcting this abuse. It ordained that the College should consist of certain individuals who were named, and of all others who might be chosen by them as Colleagues and Fellows of their Society, within the city of Edinburgh, its Suburbs and Liberties: so that they and their successors should be united and conjoined into one Body, Community, and College, in all time coming. The Charter further provided for the election of a Council President, and other Office-Bearers, and conferred on the College the power to enact Laws for its due government and welfare, and for promoting the Science and regulating the practice of Medicine within the city of Edinburgh and Leith, their Suburbs and Liberties.

It prevented, under certain penalties, any one from practising Medicine within the jurisdiction of the College who had not obtained its Licence or Diploma.

It conferred on the College the power, under certain regulations, of calling before it and fining unlicensed practitioners, and also of punishing all Physicians, Doctors of Medicine, Licentiates, and Fellows practising within their jurisdiction, who might violate any of the Laws of the College.

The College was further invested by the Charter with power to examine, along with a magistrate and chemist, the Medicines kept in the Apothecaries' shops, and to destroy such as were not found to be of good quality.

The Charter also prevented the Magistrates from allowing any one to open an Apothecary's shop until he had, by an examination, satisfied the President and Censors of the College that he had a competent knowledge of drugs.

The Charter further provided, that no Fellow of the College should be cited as a juror on any assize in town or country, or be called out to watch or ward, or on any pretext whatever be withdrawn from his patients.

The College continued to discharge its functions under this Charter for many years, although it eventually abandoned in practice the exclusive rights conferred on it, and ceased to exercise any inspection over the shops of the Apothecaries. In fact, the changes of social position necessarily caused many of the provisions to fall into abeyance.

The College had not been insensible to the advantages that would accrue to it from obtaining a new Charter, more especially that it might thereby free itself from the obligation laid on it of admitting to its licence all Scottish University Graduates, without examination and without a ballot, and also that it might get rid of the clause prohibiting it from being connected with a Medical School, and further, that it might obtain the power of expelling unworthy Members.

The subject of a new Charter had repeatedly been considered by the College, but was always delayed, in the hope of the settlement of the long-vexed question of Medical Reform.

In 1843, when the late Sir James Graham, then Home Secretary, had all but succeeded in carrying a Bill for Medical Reform, the College instructed the late Mr. Richard Mackenzie, W.S., to prepare the draft of a new Charter, which, after revision by the College, was finally adjusted in 1845 by Mr. Drinkwater Bethune, the Government official, but the abandonment by Sir James Graham of his Bill caused it to be laid aside.

On the 9th of May 1854 the long-forgotten draft was referred to the Medical Reform Committee for its consideration and amendment, and the Committee reported on the 1st May following. Fresh discussions on Medical Reform again interrupted procedure regarding it, and it was not until the Medical Act had received the Royal Assent in July 1858 that the subject was again resumed. On the 21st of September of that year the Committee of the College on Medical Reform presented to the College a very full and exhaustive Report on the manner in which the College would probably be affected by the Medical Act (21 and 22 Victoriae, 1858).

This Report fairly brought before the College the propriety of obtaining a new Charter, as it was authorized to do by clause 49 of the Act. The objects to be kept in view were stated in this Report to be, First, To give the College a wider designation, The Royal College of Physicians of Scotland; Second, To get rid, if possible, of the restrictive clauses in the existing Charter; Third, To introduce an order of Members; Fourth, To obtain power to examine, should the College choose it, all applicants for the Licence, whether University Graduates or not; Fifth, Should the power of examination not be given or exercised, to have power to apply the ballot; Sixth, To have the undoubted power of the suspension and expulsion of unworthy Members vested in the College.

A new Charter resolved on.

Difference of opinion as to its provisions.

The College resolves to retain the name of "Edinburgh" in preference to "Scotland."

On the 21st of December the College took this part of the Report into consideration, and resolved to apply for a new Charter. At several meetings thereafter (28th and 29th December 1858, and 18th February and 1st March 1859) the College discussed the draft of the proposed Charter. Considerable difference of opinion was manifested, chiefly in regard to whether the College should admit to its Fellowship other than University Graduates, and whether the College should get rid of the restriction which prevented it from erecting a Medical School. Both these questions were at length decided in the affirmative. The College also introduced a clause to enable it to hold property in its corporate name. Between the period when the new Charter was agreed to by the College and the date of its being granted, the College, on a Report by the Council, agreed to retain the name of Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh, in preference to that of Royal College of Physicians of Scotland, which the Medical Act authorized Her Majesty to bestow. This resolution was come to on the 5th February 1861, and the new Charter was obtained, dated the 16th August, and sealed and registered on the 31st October 1861.

This Charter sets out by reciting the petition of the College for the grant of a new Charter. Clause first constitutes the President, the Vice-President, the Members of Council of the College and their successors, and the other existing Fellows and all who shall hereafter be admitted Fellows or Members, a body corporate, with all the rights and privileges usually appertaining to corporate bodies.

Clause 2 gives to the College, as constituted by the new Charter, the right to all property, of whatever description, which belonged to it under the former Charter.

Clause 3 constitutes the existing Fellows the first Fellows of the College as newly incorporated.

Clause 4 gives power to admit new Fellows and Members under such regulations, and on payment of such fees, as the College may from time to time ordain.

Clause 5 gives power to grant Licences.

Clause 6 gives power to the College, with consent of three-fourths of the Members present, to censure, suspend, or depose any Fellow, Member, or Licentiate of the College who has obtained admission by false pretences, or violated any of the Bye-Laws.

Clauses 7 to 10 regulate the Ordinary and Extra-ordinary Meetings of the College.

Clauses 11 to 17 regulate the appointment of the Office-Bearers.

Clause 18 arranges for the management of the property and affairs of the College.

Clause 19 secures the validity of the acts of the College, notwithstanding any informality in the election of the President or of any Councillor.

Clause 20 gives to the College power to make bye-laws for promoting the Science of Medicine, for duly ordering the practice of the same, and for the good government, order, and direction of the College.

Clause 21 continues the existing Bye-Laws in force until new ones are passed.

Clause 22 gives to the new College, its Fellows, Members, and Licentiates, all the powers enjoyed by the existing College, and those connected with it.

Among the other changes effected by this Charter was the power given to the College to elect its President directly, and not through the intervention of the Council ; and the abolition of the offices of Censors and Fiscal, the duties of which having long been in abeyance, the names were now finally relinquished.

Returning to the history of the College after the first Charter (1681) had been obtained, we find it enter with great zeal on the discharge of the duties committed to it.

The publication of a Pharmacopœia was undertaken, and arrangements were made for regular attendance on the sick poor.

The loss of the earlier Minutes renders it very difficult to ascertain where the meetings of the College were at first held. Dr. Beilby, in his Address at the opening of the present Hall, stated that the first and several subsequent meetings were held in the house of Sir Robert Sibbald, but there seems no sufficient authority for this ; and it is evident that what follows in Dr. Beilby's narrative is founded on his having misread the name of Dr. (afterwards Sir Archibald) Stevenson for that of Johnstone.

The cause of the door being locked in the faces of the President and Fellows by Dr. Stevenson, which Dr. Beilby was unable to explain, is rendered sufficiently clear by a reference to the disputes in which Dr. Pitcairn and Sir Archibald Stevenson were so conspicuous, all mention of which were, however, erased from the Minutes by authority of the College.*

On the 24th May 1697, the Treasurer was authorized to pay £3, 10s. to Mr. William Livingstone for a year's rent of the room in which the College met, and half a dollar to the maid.

On 17th April 1698, the College resolved unanimously to buy a house of its own, and two days afterwards a Committee was authorized to offer £75 for the house of Mr. Livingstone, where the College then met. This offer probably proved insufficient, as the College continued to meet in apartments rented for the purpose, until, in 1704, it acquired the house and grounds of Sir James Mackenzie, in Fountain Close in the High Street.

This property, purchased for £194, 8s. 10d., immediately adjoined that of the Marquis of Tweeddale; and when, seven years subsequently, the College acquired the land belonging to Bailie Jeffrey (price £127, 14s. 11d.), which lay between their first purchase and the then fashionable Cowgate, the extent of the gardens and shrubbery were the envy of the neighbouring Peers, to several of whom the privilege of walking in them was, at their request, permitted as a favour.

It throws a curious light on the manners and customs of our ancestors, and on the absence of what are now considered indispensable arrangements for personal comfort in every private dwelling, to find that the College converted certain ruinous buildings which bordered on the Cowgate, into a pavilion-shaped cold bath, which was open to the inhabitants generally, at a charge for each ablution of 12 shillings Scots and one penny to the servant. But those who subscribed one guinea annually might resort to it as often as they pleased.

At first a Committee of the Physicians appears to have attended to receive the fees and superintend the ablutions ; but this having been found inconvenient, the President was allowed to let the bath on lease.

In 1714 the bath was let to Alexander Murray and John Russell of Bradshaw, W.S. The speculation does not seem to have been a successful one, as they and several successive tenants were continually craving for an abatement of the rent, while the bath was as continually requiring repair.

In 1722 a new Hall was erected in the garden, the necessary funds having been borrowed from Robert Marshall, merchant in Edinburgh.

“ Notwithstanding,” says Dr. Beilby, “ all the sums that had been expended in the erection of a new building, and in the repair of the old, the former seems to have been slight and insufficient, and the latter was in so dilapidated a condition, that in 1760 it was resolved to build a new Hall upon the premises then held by the College, and a plan was obtained and approved, the execution of which was to cost £800, a sum that was declared to be within the means of the College ; but before commencing the work, it was determined to submit the design to the judgment of Mr. Robert Adam, the King’s Architect, who, after inspecting it, gave it as his opinion that it was unsuitable, and quite unworthy of the Body for which it was intended ;—and, with great liberality, Mr. Adam gave, spontaneously and gratuitously, a plan of his own, the execution of which was estimated to cost between £5000 and £6000, exclusive of the statues, busts, and bas-reliefs, which he recommended as appropriate and almost necessary. This plan, after being handed about and admired, was laid aside as unsuitable to the finances of the College.

“At length, however, such was the state of the College buildings, that the books were suffering great injury, and it became absolutely necessary to remove them without further delay. Application was made to the Managers of the Royal Infirmary for permission to deposit the Library in a spare apartment of that building, and also for liberty to hold the meetings of the College in the Manager’s Board-room. These requests were readily granted, and the privilege was continued to the College for fifteen years. The Library had now become so extensive, that it was insured for £600.

“By this time a design had been formed, and some progress had already been made, towards laying out a New Town in the northern vicinity of the city. To this situation the eyes of the College were turned, as being greatly preferable to that which it had hitherto occupied. A petition was presented to the Town Council for a site, and the negotiation was nearly concluded for the lot of ground on which the Register Office now stands, for which the College was to have paid a feu-duty of £8 sterling per annum; but Mr. Adam, the architect who was employed by Government to give a design for the Register Office, perceiving how peculiarly desirable that situation was for the noble building he intended to erect, had influence enough to prevent the consummation of the transaction, and to secure that site for himself.

“The Town Council then agreed to give a site just where the Scott Monument has been erected; but this was deemed by the College ineligible. A choice of two sites was next offered,—the one in George Square and the other in George Street, the latter of which was finally fixed upon, being destined to receive in succession two buildings of more pure and refined taste, perhaps, than any others in the city.

“The premises in Fountain Close were sold in 1770 for £800, being intended for the site of an Episcopal chapel. The Hall in George Street was not commenced till 1776, when the foundation-stone was laid by Dr. Cullen, the President. About £4800 was expended upon it. This, notwithstanding all the efforts made to procure subscriptions, plunged the College into debt to the extent of nearly £1000, for which sum the Hall was immediately mortgaged. Some of the Fellows were now so despondent about the state of the treasury, that before ever the College had entered upon the occupation of it, a proposal was brought forward to sell the building. A negotiation was entered into with a party for the purpose of its being converted into Assembly Rooms,—the stream of fashion having by this time begun to flow towards the New Town, and some of the Lady Directresses of the Edinburgh ‘Almack’s’ having become dissatisfied with their dingy apartments in Bell’s Wynd. The sale was agreed upon, the price to be paid was £3750; missives had actually passed, and the College, by a majority, had sanctioned the act of their Committee, when, most fortunately, it was saved from the indelible disgrace into which it was plunging, by some of the Lady Directresses changing their minds, when they began to reflect on the remoteness of the locality from the residences of the greater part of them, and the danger they might incur of an overturn of their chairs while crossing the newly erected bridge over the North Loch in the dark and stormy nights of winter. This ‘second thought’ came fortunately in aid of a resolution, which had already been formed by some of the objecting Fellows, to endeavour to get the transaction rescinded by an appeal to the Courts of Law. In the end the College relinquished all intention of selling the building, and all trace of the proceedings relative to it was removed from the Minutes. It was now resolved to take possession of the New Hall without further delay, submitting to whatever inconvenience might be sustained from the yet unfinished state of the interior. The College assembled in it for the first time on the 7th of August 1781, just one hundred years after being first incorporated."

During the subsequent removal of that building, after being disposed of by the College under circumstances to be immediately narrated, the foundation-stone was discovered in May 1845. A well-cut inscription on this interesting relic sets forth that it was laid on the 27th November 1775 by the President, Dr. Cullen. Enclosed in the stone, a bottle was found, containing, 1st, A Parchment Roll, on which are beautifully inscribed the names of the Fellows of the College at the time; 2nd, Several British Coins of date 1771; 3rd, A Silver Medal, representing on the one side the future College, surmounted by the words, "ARTI SALUTIFERA SACRUM," at its base a serpent entwined round a club; on the other side—

The same poverty which had prevented the College from availing itself of the plans of Adam, and which had caused it to desire to part with its New Hall in George Street, even before it had entered on its occupation, still pressed heavily on it. Having at that time no funded capital, it was entirely dependent on the entrance fees paid by Fellows, a fluctuating and inadequate source of income. Besides, beautiful as the George Street Hall was in its outward proportions, its internal arrangements were not so convenient as might have been desired, and it is therefore not to be wondered at that when the College found that its site was coveted by a wealthy banking corporation, its poverty and not its will consented; and in 1843 the George Street Hall was sold to the Commercial Bank for £20,000,—a sum which it was hoped would suffice to build a more commodious, if less imposing, Hall, and leave a surplus to secure a certain annual income.

Although the transaction was obviously an advantageous one for the College, it was not without some difficulty that many of the Fellows made up their minds to part with a building of which they were justly proud.

On the 8th of August 1844, the foundation-stone of the present Hall, designed by Mr. Thomas Hamilton, was laid by the President, Dr. Renton, in presence of the Fellows of the College, and various representative persons. As is customary on such occasions, a bottle containing various memorials was deposited in the stone. In this instance these were—1st, A copy of the last edition of the Edinburgh Pharmacopœia, containing a list of the Fellows of the College; 2nd, A work regarding the private affairs of the College, printed several years previously; 3rd, An Edinburgh Almanac for the current year; 4th, Several British Coins of the day; and lastly, A silver plate with an inscription in Latin suitable to the occasion.

During the erection of the Hall the College rented for its use a private house, No. 121 George Street, from which, in 1846, it removed to its present building.

Ample as the accommodation of the Hall appeared to be at the date of its erection, the rapid additions to the Library, and the great increase in the number of Fellows, consequent on a reduction of the entry money, and other changes, soon rendered some extension necessary.

After long and anxious deliberation, and much delicate negotiation, the Trustees, on the recommendation of the Council, agreed to purchase from the Trustees of the late Dr. Reid, formerly Principal of the

The purchase was made in 1865 for £6000, but the house was then under a lease to the successors of the late Dr. Reid, which did not expire until May 1867. This house, No. 8 Queen Street, which immediately adjoins the Hall on the east, had been built and occupied as his residence by Baron Orde, and considerably exceeds in size the other houses in the street.

Plans of Library Extension.

Alteration of Hall.

New Building.

Considerable difference of opinion existed as to how the new purchase could be made most available for the extension of the present Hall. Mr. Bryce, as instructed by the Council, prepared a plan for a new Library, to extend along the back of the existing Hall and of the new purchase, and this plan was laid before the College. It was ultimately, however, agreed to carry out so far the design of Mr. Hamilton, the architect who planned the original building, and double the size of the existing Hall, by extending it backwards, at the same time completely altering the character of the roof according to suggestions made by Mr. Bryce, with the view of increasing the light and improving the acoustic properties of the Hall. Additional accommodation for books was provided by arranging round the new Hall dwarf bookcases, which would, it was supposed, contain all the additions which the Library was likely to acquire for some years to come. At the same time a spacious building was erected at the back of the adjoining house, which was leased for a term of years to the proprietors of the Institution, with a view to its ultimately affording additional accommodation for the Library. But so rapidly has the accumulation of books gone on, that it was soon found necessary to connect this building with the Hall, and convert it into a Library capable of containing about twenty-five thousand volumes.

It will be apparent to every one who has perused the preceding pages, that the College of Physicians was not, until very recently, a wealthy body ; and yet, as has been observed by Dr. Poole (Appendix to Report on Licensing), "it has throughout its career manifested a conduct that would do honour to a rich community." . . . "It appears to have existed purely for the welfare of society."

On the 7th February 1738, the Members were recommended to encourage the design of founding an Orphan Hospital. In return for the assistance afforded, the President of the College is still ex officio a Governor of that Institution.

On the 3rd of May 1744, £50 was unanimously voted by the College to aid in the erection of an Episcopal Chapel on the site formerly possessed by the College in Fountain Close. This building is now in possession of, and used by, the Roman Catholics.

On the 20th March 1775, fifty guineas was subscribed towards the erection of the High School, which was afterwards converted into part of the Surgical Hospital ; and this at a time when extraordinary efforts were being made to raise the necessary funds to erect the Hall in George Street.

On the 13th November 1789, the sum of £150 was subscribed to assist in the erection of the University of Edinburgh ; and when, rather more than eighty years later, a scheme was set on foot for extending the scientific and educational buildings of the University, the College, on the 6th May 1873, subscribed a sum of one thousand guineas in aid of it. subsequently, on the 4th February 1885, subscribed a further sum of five hundred guineas towards the completion of the new University Buildings.

On examining the Minutes it will be found that many of our oldest Charitable Institutions were indebted to the College for pecuniary aid—as the Blind Asylum, the Lunatic Asylum (more than once), and the Charity Workhouse.

In 1874, one hundred guineas was voted in aid of the Building Fund of the Royal Maternity Hospital, and in 1875, fifty guineas in aid of the Livingstone Medical Missionary Memorial Dispensary. In 1889 the College voted the sum of two hundred and fifty guineas to Queen Victoria's Jubilee Institute for Nurses.

In 1871, fifty guineas was subscribed to the local fund for defraying the expenses of the reception of the British Association in Edinburgh; in 1881, fifty pounds was voted towards defraying the expenses of the International Medical Congress which met in London; and in 1891 a sum of twenty-five guineas was voted in aid of the International Congress of Hygiene and Demography held in London.

Among other liberal donations may also be chronicled one to the National Monument in 1822, of fifty guineas; and the same day (30th August) one of a like amount for a statue to commemorate the visit of George IV. to his Scottish metropolis; one of fifty pounds for a statue of Dr. Jenner at Gloucester, 4th November 1823; one to the Scottish National Memorial of the late Prince Consort of twenty-five guineas, on the 20th June 1862; and one of twenty-five guineas to the fund for erecting a statue to Dr. David Livingstone, African explorer. On 5th May 1863, one hundred pounds was voted by the College to assist in repairing the tomb of the late Dr. Cullen, in Kirknewton burial ground. On the 24th February 1880, the sum of one hundred guineas was voted in aid of the fund for the Restoration of the Cathedral Church of St. Giles.

Two hundred pounds was voted for the relief of the poor in the famine of 1796. On the 24th December 1878, a sum of two hundred and fifty guineas was voted in aid of the fund for the relief of the sufferers by the failure of the City of Glasgow Bank.

On the 15th February 1796, £200 was voted towards the defence of the country "in the present exigency of public affairs." In return for this liberality, the Government, judging of the capabilities of the College more by its generosity than by its actual income, imposed a Stamp Duty upon the Diplomas of its Licentiates and Fellows—the former of which was only, after repeated application, removed in 1859; while the latter still exists.

Besides these donations to public objects, the College seem to have been not unmindful of the claims of their own Fellows, and occasional contributions to the widows of deceased Fellows are recorded in the Minutes. Sundry donations to the College also seem to have called forth a pecuniary return, as when, on two occasions (August 4, 1713; January 11, 1715) the College voted a guinea to Mr. Alexander Bruce for a book he had presented to the Library; and, in 1717, two guineas to Mr. Gordon, surgeon, Aberdeen, "for a great excrescence he had removed from a person's cheek, and complimented the College therewith." In 1696 the College presented to the University a Boat, honestly avowing that it was because there was no place in the College to keep it, to which is appended the additional reason, that the University had already the oars and the skirt of the barbarous man that was in it. boat seems to have come into possession of the College as one of Sir A. Balfour's curiosities.

To the College of Physicians also the public are indebted for the origin of some of our best Medical Charities. A care for the sick poor manifested itself at a very early period of its history; for we find that, at the third meeting of the College (10th February 1682), two Physicians were appointed to serve the poor of the City and Suburbs.

These appointments continued to be regularly made; but the Physicians, "in serving the poor," found all their efforts often unavailing, from the want of suitable accommodation, diet, and nursing, and accordingly about 1725 the plan of an Infirmary was suggested by the College to several well-disposed persons; and the scheme having been favourably received by them, a public meeting was called to make the proposal known. Thereafter, on the 1st February 1726, we find the following Minute:—

"The President represented to the College that according to their desire, he and several of the members had set on foot a subscription for erecting and maintaining an Infirmary or Hospital for the sick poor, and had pretty good success; and recommended to all the Members of the College to use their best endeavours to procure more subscriptions for accomplishing so good and charitable a work."

On 1st August 1727, the College bound itself by a Minute, "that one or more of their number shall attend the said Hospital faithfully and freely, without any prospect of reward or salary, until the Stock of the said Hospital shall be so increased that it can afford a reasonable allowance for one or two physicians."

On 7th November 1727, appears a Minute, "That the Members of the College had sett this charitable work on foot;" and on the 7th May 1728, the College memorialized, and sent a deputation to the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, calling the attention of that Reverend Body to the value of the proposed charity.

On the 5th August 1729, the Minutes of the College show that a temporary Hospital was established by it, in which the sick poor were attended by its Fellows.

It will be seen from the History of the Royal Infirmary, published by authority (1778), that as soon as £2000 had been subscribed, "The College of Physicians called the Contributors together; at this meeting a Committee was appointed, who prepared a report regarding the management, which was submitted to a second meeting, when twenty Managers were elected." The Infirmary was incorporated by Royal Charter, 25th August 1736. By this Charter it was provided that five of the Managers at least, must be Fellows of the College. By the new Charter, granted to the Royal Infirmary 20th June 1870, the number of the Representatives of the College on the Board of Management was reduced to two.

At a meeting of the College, 7th February 1738, a letter was read from the Managers of the Royal Infirmary, stating that it had been resolved for the future that none but Fellows of the College were to act as Physicians to that charity.

1st August 1738.—The College attended as a body at the laying of the foundation-stone of the Royal Infirmary; and the next day voted thirty guineas to the funds, to be raised by voluntary contribution.

On the 2nd November 1742, the College ordained

On the 2nd February 1819, the College, on account of the expense incident to the prevalence of fever, voted fifty guineas to the Infirmary, and ten guineas to the Society for preventing Contagious Fever.

It having been decided to remove the Royal Infirmary to a new site, and a public subscription having been instituted to provide the necessary funds, the College, on the 18th February 1868, voted the sum of £1000 in aid of this object.

On the 3rd May 1879, the College agreed to contribute a sufficient sum (£630) to furnish two Medical Wards in the New Royal Infirmary.

On the 29th October 1879, the College attended as a Body at the inauguration of the New Royal Infirmary.

There are many other Minutes showing the close and intimate relationship subsisting between the College and the Infirmary; and it should be known to all the Fellows that the College can insist that none but its Fellows shall act as Physicians to the noble institution which it was mainly instrumental in founding.

The Royal Edinburgh Asylum for the Insane at Morningside also owes its origin to the enlightened liberality of the College of Physicians. On the 2nd of August 1791, a Committee reported to a Quarterly Meeting of the College on the propriety of placing the Private Asylums under regulation, and also of erecting a Public Asylum near Edinburgh, similar to one at York. This Report pointed out that if Trustees in whom the public had confidence were appointed to manage the proposed Asylum, donations and bequests might be expected to come in. It further suggested that the Trustees, to whom a sum of money had been left by the late Mr. Watson to establish a Foundling Hospital, should be applied to, to give it to the proposed Lunatic Asylum, as being a charity of a less doubtful character. It also proposed the names of those who should be Trustees. This Report was unanimously adopted by the College, and was the first movement which led to the formation of the present magnificent establishment at Morningside.

The publication of a Pharmacopœia engaged much of the attention of the College, and it was issued in 1799; from that time the publication of successive editions enabled the College to keep pace with the progress of scientific discovery.

When, however, the Medical Act of 1858 conferred on the General Council of Medical Education and Registration the power of issuing a Pharmacopœia, which should be obligatory in all three divisions of the kingdom, the College, on the 1st of July 1862, gave its formal assent to the introduction into Parliament of a Bill, the effect of which was that the British Pharmacopœia, published by the General Medical Council, superseded in Scotland the Pharmacopœia published by the College of Physicians.

The College, restricted by its original Charter in many ways—prevented from connecting itself with any Medical School—compelled to receive, without examination and without ballot, the Graduates of all Scottish Universities, and having allowed any power of licensing which it had possessed to pass from it by desuetude, occupied a position of a very peculiar character among the Medical Bodies. Highly respectable and respected, containing among its Fellows the most eminent Physicians in Edinburgh, and the Medical Professors of the University, full of good works and charity, it never comprised any large proportion of those practising medicine in Edinburgh, or in Scotland, who usually joined the College of Surgeons.

Privileges of its Fellows.

This state of matters existed, notwithstanding the exclusive privileges which the Fellows of the College possessed, of being the only Physicians of the Infirmary, and of certain of the Dispensaries in the city. The unsatisfactory condition of such a state of matters, as bearing upon the real interest and due importance of the College, pressed itself at various times on the attention of the Fellows.

Licence of College.

Up to 1829 the College had issued a Licence to practise; but this was given, as the Charter required, to all University Graduates, without examination. It was conferred on no others; and on 1st November 1763, the Licentiate-ship was made a necessary stepping-stone to the Fellowship of the College. Finding, however, that by making each fellow pass through the grade of Licentiate the College compelled him to pay a double tax to Government, this regulation was abolished in 1829, and, the Fellows being elected without passing through the inferior grade, the old order of Licentiates ceased to exist.

On two several occasions an elaborate Report was drawn up and printed, strongly recommending the College to admit another class of Licentiates, who should derive their Qualification to practise directly from the College; but, besides that such a measure was of doubtful legality, influences were at work within the College which were sufficient to frustrate all efforts in that direction.

Changes in composition of College.

In the meantime, however, certain changes in the Extra-Academical School, particularly the working of a regulation which required every Teacher of Medicine or Surgery to belong to, and subsequently to be examined as to his capabilities for teaching by, a College of Physicians or Surgeons, were gradually introducing a new element into the College, and associating it with interests very different from those with which, in its earliest years, it had been inseparably connected.

It would be a tedious task to enumerate all the keen discussions to which the struggle between the party which had long been dominant in the Councils of the College, and that which was gradually springing up, gave rise; even the copious Minutes of the Meetings held during the protracted contendings scarcely serve to record their extent; suffice it to say, that the passing of the Medical Act of 1858 inaugurated a new era in the history of the College. An elaborate Report on the manner in which the Act would affect the College was presented by the Council to the College on the 21st September 1859, in which it was argued that the admission of Licentiates other than University Graduates was, in the altered state of the whole medical profession, absolutely essential for the credit of the profession, as well as for the very existence of the College. It will probably appear strange to those Fellows who have joined the College since 1860, and who hear read at each Quarterly Meeting the long list of Licentiates admitted by examination, that the proposal to examine and confer a Licence on gentlemen who had not previously obtained a University degree was strenuously resisted, not only by Professors of the University, but by a large number of Fellows who had no direct connection with that Body, and that it was ultimately carried on the 5th of April 1859 only by the vote of one Fellow; and that there actually appears in the Minutes of the College (26th April 1859) a protest, signed by ten Fellows, against the Licence being conferred on any but University Graduates.

The College having, however, resolved to examine and admit to the profession, as Licentiates of their Body, gentlemen who had no other qualifications to practise, or who might wish to possess the Licence of the College in addition to qualifications already obtained, proceeded to consider a report of the Council, suggesting the regulations under which the Licence should be conferred. As one of these regulations was unfortunate enough to provoke keen discussions in the College, as well as hostile criticisms on its policy from without; and as the proceedings of the College in this respect have been, and still are, the subject of misrepresentation, it appears essential, even in this slight sketch of its history, to enter somewhat fully into an explanation of the motives which actuated the College in a matter which has been the subject of so much controversy.

With regard to the permanent regulations, the amount of study and of examination required of Candidates for the Licence has never been considered otherwise than sufficient, it was the exceptional admissions, during what was termed the Year of Grace, which excited all the clamour with which the College was assailed.

The College had been compelled, by its Charter of 1681, drawn up under the influence of the Scottish Universities, to admit all Graduates of these Bodies within its ranks without examination. There existed various Licensing Bodies, which required of their Licentiates an education and examination equal to that of any, and superior to that of some, of these Universities. The London College of Physicians had passed regulations extending for one year the privilege of becoming Licentiates of their Body to all Graduates or Licentiates of Universities in Great Britain, simply requiring of them the recommendation of three Fellows, and the test of the ballot. The Commissioners for the Improvement of the Scottish Universities had intimated that the Degrees of these Bodies were henceforth to be considered as Licences for general practice. Under these circumstances, it was strongly urged upon the Council of the College that it would be a right and fitting thing to inaugurate the new era in Medical practice, by extending for a limited period, to men equally well educated and equally qualified to practise, the privilege long enjoyed by University Licentiates, of entering the Body without examination. This Act of Grace was intended for a large body of men of mature age, who, having begun life as Surgeons or Apothecaries, had established their position as good Practitioners, and were naturally anxious to be connected with a Body of higher position than a Trading Company.

Many young men did, undoubtedly, apply for admission, but, with few exceptions, they were told that they must undergo an examination, as the Regulations of the "Year of Grace" were only intended for Practitioners of mature age. The securities instituted by the College to prevent the conferring of the Licence on unsuitable persons were the following:—

1. That the Candidate had passed the examination of one or more of the Licensing Boards.
2. That he must give up the sale of drugs, if he had previously dealt in them.
3. That he must produce certificates of his fitness to be a Licentiate of a College of Physicians from Hospital Physicians, or men of eminence in the profession.

Supposed to be better tests in the circumstances than a mere examination.

Large number of Applicants.

Assumption by Licentiates of title of Doctor.

Practice of Registrar and Medical Council.

These appeared to the College to be better tests of the fitness of men to be Licentiates of the College, than the subjecting them to an examination framed for Students fresh from their studies. They were in strict accordance with the principles of an ad eundem admission which almost every Licensing Body at that time permitted.

The boon thus offered was sought for with an eagerness which startled even those who had been most forward in urging it. In fact, it was its very success which provoked the attacks made upon it. Another circumstance, naturally calculated to excite jealousy, was, that many of the Licentiates of the College, possessing no University Degree, at once proceeded to call themselves "Doctors of Medicine." Unjustifiable as this was, the Edinburgh College of Physicians was not chargeable with any blame in the matter; it had encouraged no such assumption of titles. The mistake, as far as it could be traced, seemed to have arisen from the old practice of the London College of Physicians to style all its Licentiates Doctors. That this is no mere surmise appears from the fact, that the then newly appointed Registrar under the Medical Act, who had long been Registrar to the London College of Physicians, at first gave the title of Doctor to the Licentiates of the Edinburgh College in the receipt granted to them for their Registration-fee; and from the other fact, that as the agitation proceeded, the title of M.D., which had long stood after the names of many gentlemen in the Army and Navy Lists, who had no other claim to that title than that these gentlemen were Licentiates of the London College of Physicians, began rapidly to disappear from these Lists.

It may be, as indeed was afterwards admitted, that a privilege which, in the opinion of the College, might safely have been extended to gentlemen who had previously been examined and licensed in Medicine, ought not to have been offered to those who only held a Surgical Qualification, and who had undergone no examination in Medicine.

Probably those who proposed the scheme, at a time when the requirements of the various Licensing Bodies were not so well known as they now are, overlooked the fact that there were Bodies licensing for practice which did not examine in Medicine; certain it is that the mistake was no sooner pointed out than it was rectified, by the institution of an examination in Medicine alone, to be passed by those Candidates who had not already been subjected to that ordeal.

The jealousy and rancour which had been excited were not, however, to be easily appeased. The Medical Press still reiterated their charge against the College, of "selling Licences" to practise. The London College of Physicians was induced to remonstrate with the Edinburgh College, which it did in the most courteous terms. A reply, equally courteous, was forwarded to it, pointing out the reasons which had induced the Edinburgh College to modify its terms of admission; and regulations subsequently passed by the London College would appear to show that in some important respects it had become converted to the views of the Edinburgh College. It indeed was the inventor of what was called a Year of Grace, during which it agreed to admit certain men to its Licence without further examination. The Edinburgh College imitated its example; but, in consequence of the different state of Medical practice in Scotland, and its consequently different position, its admissions were on a wider scale. If the giving of Licences without examination be a crime, and if it is to be stigmatised as a Sale of Licences, both Colleges are reprehensible, as well as every other Examining Board which admitted ad eundem Licentiates, as most of them did at that period.

Non-graduated Licentiates not inferior to University
Graduates.

It would be difficult to prove that the Licentiates of the various Bodies who were admitted without examination to the Edinburgh College, were inferior in medical knowledge and ability to practise their profession, to many Licentiates of Universities who were eligible for admission to the Licence, without examination.

Extraordinary proceeding of British Medical Association.

The British Medical Association, a Body which contained in its ranks a large number of Fellows of the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh, and which, during its recent meeting in Edinburgh, had received the utmost hospitality and encouragement from the Edinburgh College, acting on the unwarrantable publication of a private letter, addressed by a Fellow of the Edinburgh College to one of its Members, without requesting or even giving any opportunity for explanation from the College or any of its Fellows, passed a resolution condemnatory of its Regulations,—a piece of interference, on the part of a self-constituted body, of a most reprehensible kind, and which had the effect of causing a number of its most distinguished Edinburgh Members to withdraw from its ranks. Ultimately, at a meeting of the Medical Council, Sir D. J. Corrigan, on the 8th of August 1859, moved, "That the General Medical Council is of opinion that any Degree or Licence obtained since the passing of the Medical Act, without regular examination by the University or College granting such Degree or Licence, ought not to be placed on the Register, excepting ad eundem Degrees, or Degrees and Licences in Medicine or Surgery of any University in the United Kingdom, admitted to the Fellowships or Licentiateships of the several Colleges of Physicians and Surgeons." This motion was strenuously resisted. Dr. Alexander Wood, the President of the Edinburgh College, and its Representative in the Medical Council, showed the real position of the question, and the unfair advantage which such a resolution would give to the Graduates and Licentiates of Universities; after which the Medical Council adopted an amendment to Sir D. Corrigan's motion, proposed by Dr. Wood, namely, "That the General Medical Council are of opinion that for the future no Licence or Degree should be given by any of the Bodies in Schedule (A) to the Medical Act, without examination."

Since the publication of this opinion no one has received a Licence without examination; but the examination is modified and restricted in the case of gentlemen already holding a Licence to practise. It may not be out of place to state here, that, long before the passing of the Medical Act, it had become the conviction of the leading Fellows of the College that it had been a highly impolitic proceeding on the part of the London College of Physicians to refuse the offer made to it by the Government, in the year 1815, to undertake the licensing of General Practitioners in England, as by so doing that important office was thrown into the hands of a trading Company of Apothecaries, and thereby the name of Apothecary, as that of a Medical Practitioner, was legalised, instead of one of the time-honoured names—Physician or Surgeon ; that they were desirous of having the name Apothecary, as applied to a Medical Practitioner, wiped out without delay ; that, at the same time, they recognised the excellence of the Regulations acted on for a number of years by the Apothecaries' Company with regard to their curriculum and examinations, and therefore they felt themselves called on, as soon as it was in the power of the College, to offer to those gentlemen who had been compelled, for many years, to put up with the title of Apothecary, the opportunity of exchanging it for that of a Licentiate of a College of Physicians, provided they could produce testimonials of respectability and ability in the past conduct of their practice.

Such is a brief outline of this most critical part of the history of the College, with which it is incumbent on every Fellow to be acquainted, and regarding which explanations are often asked even at the present day.

But the College had still a serious difficulty to contend against in the shape of a tax of Fifteen Pounds imposed on every Licence which was issued. By the Medical Act all exclusive privileges enjoyed by certain Bodies had been swept away, and the Licentiates of any of the Bodies in Schedule (A) to the Medical Act had an equal right to practise Medicine and Surgery, or Medicine or Surgery, in any part of Her Majesty's dominions. The Licentiates of Colleges of Physicians, and the Graduates of Universities, were alone subjected to a Stamp Duty, and this proved an important obstacle to any increase in their number. Various attempts had been made at various periods to obtain a remission of these duties, but without success.

On the 27th November 1858, Dr. Alexander Wood, then President of the College, and its representative in the Medical Council, moved that Body to memorialize the Lords of Her Majesty's Treasury on the subject. This memorial was not prepared or transmitted till the 5th February 1859. No effect having been produced by it, Dr. Wood endeavoured to organize a joint deputation from the three Royal Colleges of Physicians, to the Treasury, but without success. Ultimately, at the request of the Council, he proceeded to London, and on the 20th May 1859 he received the announcement that the Stamp Duty of Fifteen Pounds on the Diploma of Licentiates would be remitted. For his services on this occasion the President received a special vote of thanks from the College at its meeting on the 14th June 1859; and for his other invaluable services in placing the College on the advantageous footing which it had lately attained, it was unanimously resolved, in the following year, to present him with his portrait, painted by Sir John Watson Gordon.

Other difficulties still beset the College in regard to its new Licence. The English Poor Law Board, and the Army Medical Board, not being previously aware of its existence, refused to recognise it as a sufficient Medical Qualification. This led to a correspondence between the heads of these Bodies and the President of the College, and eventually Dr. Wood, proceeding to London, succeeded in obtaining the recognition of the Licence of the College, which was thereafter regarded as a sufficient Medical Qualification.

In 1859 important arrangements were made with the Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh and the Faculty of Physicians and Surgeons of Glasgow, both of which have the right to license in Surgery. In combination with each of these Bodies the College granted a "Double Qualification," conferring upon the holder the right to practise all branches of the profession in every part of Her Majesty's dominions.

The terms on which these alliances were formed will be best understood from the following proposals submitted, by the two Edinburgh Colleges, to the General Council of Medical Education and Registration, on the 6th of August 1859, and approved of by that Body on the 8th of the same month:—

“1. By Clause 19 of the Medical Act, ‘any two or more of the Colleges and Bodies mentioned in Schedule (A) may, with the sanction and under the directions of the General Medical Council, unite or co-operate in conducting the Examinations for Qualifications to be registered under this Act.’ Hence it is quite competent for a College of Physicians and a College of Surgeons to combine, in order, by a Joint Examination, to give a Double Qualification, embracing Medicine and Surgery.

“2. Co-operation between a College of Physicians and a College of Surgeons being legal, as stated above, the Colleges of Physicians and Surgeons of Edinburgh propose, with the sanction of the General Medical Council, to make an arrangement for the purpose of granting, by a series of Examinations, Preliminary and Professional, their respective Licences in Medicine and Surgery, so as to constitute a Double Qualification.

“3. It is proposed that the Preliminary Examination in Literature and Science, and also the Examinations on those professional subjects which are common to Medicine and Surgery, shall be conducted conjointly by a Board formed of Examiners in equal proportions from the two Colleges.

“4. It is proposed that the Examinations in Medicine shall be conducted exclusively by Examiners from the College of Physicians, and the Examinations in Surgery exclusively by Examiners from the College of Surgeons.

“5. It is proposed that the decision as to the competency of the Candidate, in all the branches except Medicine and Surgery, shall rest with the conjoined Board of Examiners from the two Colleges; but that the decision as to his competency in Medicine and in Surgery shall rest entirely, in the one case with the Examiners from the College of Physicians, in the other case with the Examiners from the College of Surgeons.

“6. It is proposed that, having passed through the final Examinations, the Candidate shall receive two separate Diplomas—one from each College—signed by the Office-Bearers of each respectively, so that he may be enabled to produce them to the Registrar under the Medical Act, and to register two separate Qualifications—viz., L.R.C.P. Ed., and L.R.C.S. Ed.

“7. The Colleges wish it to be clearly understood, that such co-operation is not to interfere in any degree with the right of each College to grant its Diploma separately, as heretofore, to those who may wish a Single Qualification, or with the right of each College to make similar arrangements with other Licensing Bodies, if deemed expedient, and if sanctioned by the Medical Council.

“8. For the purpose of carrying out the objects stated above, the Colleges have prepared a Series of Regulations, which they beg now to submit to the Medical Council for their consideration.”

These “Double Qualifications” were eagerly sought after; and the College was thus enabled, after long and arduous struggles, to exercise the licensing functions legitimately appertaining to such a Body, and, while containing on its Roll of Fellows the names of the most distinguished Physicians in Scotland, to confer the right to practise Medicine on a numerous and increasing body of general Practitioners.

Several changes have in recent years been effected in regard to the admission of Licentiates.

On the 5th February 1884 the College resolved not to grant the Licence as a Single Qualification, except to those who have already obtained a registrable Diploma in Surgery.

During the same year, 18th March 1884, the College approved of and adopted a scheme for conferring the Licence in association with the other two Scottish Corporations as a Triple Qualification, and the two Double Qualifications were superseded. The scheme then adopted, which was approved of by the General Council of Medical Education and Registration, 31st March 1884, and which has worked most successfully, may be quoted in its entirety:—

Conditions of Triple
Qualification.

“ I. That each of the three Medical Corporations of Scotland—namely, the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh, the Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh, and the Faculty of Physicians and Surgeons of Glasgow—while reserving to itself liberty to confer its Higher Qualification or Qualifications as it may deem proper, resolves, That on and after the 1st day of October 1884, it shall abstain from the exercise of its power of granting its Licence separately and independently, except only in the cases herein provided for:—That is to say, the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh may, notwithstanding this Agreement, grant its Licence to Candidates already possessed of one or other of the Surgical Qualifications mentioned in Schedule (A) of the Medical Act, 1858; and the Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh, and the Faculty of Physicians and Surgeons of Glasgow, may each grant its Licence to Candidates already registered Licentiates of one of the Colleges of Physicians of the United Kingdom, or Graduates in Medicine of a British or Irish University mentioned in Schedule (A) of the Medical Act.

“ II. That the three Medical Authorities above mentioned shall co-operate to form an Examining Board to conduct their Examinations in combination; and that from the date to be fixed for the commencement of this Scheme, the Agreement or Convention at present subsisting between the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh, and the Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh, by which, under Section XIX. of the Medical Act, 1858, these two Colleges conduct Examinations in combination, and the similar Agreement or Convention at present subsisting between the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh, and the Faculty of Physicians and Surgeons of Glasgow, by which these two Bodies conduct Examinations in combination, shall cease and terminate; and the provisions of this present Agreement, in respect to Combined Examinations, shall alone be valid.

“III. That each of the co-operating Medical Authorities shall elect two Members of a Committee, herein called the Committee of Management. Of this Committee of six Members three Members shall retire annually, that is to say, one elected by each of the Authorities; but they shall be eligible for re-election, but shall not at same time hold office as Examiners. To the Members of this Committee reasonable remuneration shall be paid for attendance at the Meetings.

“IV. That the duties of the Committee of Management shall be—

- (a) To elect annually a Chairman, who shall also be Convener, and have both a deliberative and casting vote.
- (b) To fix the periods and places of Examination under the provisions of this Scheme.
- (c) To convene the Examiners, and to apportion their work at the different periods and places of Examination, in accordance with the provisions of this Scheme.
- (d) To appoint a General Treasurer and any other Executive Officers they may consider necessary.
- (e) To determine the Fees to be paid to the Examiners and other Officers.
- (f) To arrange for the visitation of Examinations.

Conditions of Triple
Qualification.

(g) To act generally as a Committee of Superintendence and Reference under the provisions of this Scheme, and also in all matters concerning the Examinations which are not specially provided for in this Scheme.

“V. That each of the co-operating Medical Authorities shall elect its own Examiners to examine on special or allied subjects, each of these Authorities determining the number to be elected on each subject, and the period for which they shall hold office; and notification of the names of the Examiners, with the subjects for which they are appointed, shall be duly made to the Committee of Management.

“VI. That the Examination on the Principles and Practice of Medicine (including Clinical Medicine) and in Therapeutics, and except only so far as is provided otherwise in the note appended to this Article, shall be conducted wholly by the Examiners on these subjects appointed by the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh; that the Examination on the Principles and Practice of Surgery (including Clinical Surgery) and on Surgical Anatomy shall be conducted wholly by the Examiners on these subjects appointed by the Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh, and by the Faculty of Physicians and Surgeons of Glasgow; and that in all the other subjects the Examinations shall, subject to the provisions of Article VII., be conducted by the Examiners of the three co-operating Authorities.

NOTE.—At the Examinations to be held in Glasgow, the Examination in Clinical Medicine shall be conducted by Examiners of the Faculty of Physicians and Surgeons of Glasgow, being Hospital Physicians, and by the Examiners of the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh.

“VII. In arranging for the Examinations at the different periods and places, the Committee of Management shall apportion the Examiners in the different subjects of the three co-operating Authorities, on the plan provided for in the Schedule appended to this Agreement, which plan may from time to time be modified, with the consent of the three co-operating Authorities.

“VIII. The Examinations shall be held in Edinburgh and in Glasgow, it being arranged that at every third period they shall be held in Glasgow, and at the other periods in Edinburgh.

“IX. That there shall be three Professional Examinations, named herein the First, the Second, and the Third Examinations.

To the First Examination, Candidates shall be admissible at the end of the first year (embracing a Summer and Winter Session) of study, on producing Certificates of Attendance on the prescribed Courses of subjects embraced in the Examination.

To the Second Examination, Candidates shall be admissible at the end of the second year of study, on producing Certificates of attendance on the prescribed Courses of subjects embraced in the Examination.

To the Third Examination, Candidates shall be admissible at the end of the full period of study, on producing Certificates of having completed the entire Curriculum.

“X. That the Subjects of the First Examination shall be—Chemistry.
Practical Chemistry.
Elementary Anatomy and Histology.

That the Subjects of the Second Examination shall be—Anatomy.
Physiology.
Materia Medica and Pharmacy.

That the Subjects of the Third Examination shall be—Principles and Practice of Medicine, including Therapeutics, Medical Anatomy, and Pathology.

Conditions of Triple
Qualification.

Clinical Medicine.

Principles and Practice of Surgery, including Surgical Anatomy, Operative Surgery, and Pathology.

Clinical Surgery.

Midwifery and Diseases of Women.

Medical Jurisprudence and Hygiene.

“ XI. That a Candidate on passing the Third Examination shall be admitted and receive the Diplomas; as

Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh.Licentiate of the Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh.Licentiate of the Faculty of Physicians and Surgeons of Glasgow.

“ XII. That the total fees payable by Candidates in respect of the Examinations and Qualifications shall be Twenty-five guineas. Of this there shall be paid—

At the First Examination—Five guineas.

At the Second Examination—Five guineas.

At the Third Examination—Fifteen guineas.

For each Examination after rejection—

At the First Examination—Three guineas.

At the Second Examination—Three guineas.

At the Third Examination—Five guineas.

“ XIII. That all moneys received in respect of the Examinations shall be paid into a common fund under the control of the Committee of Management, which fund, prior to apportionment annually, shall be liable to the following charges:—

- (a) Remuneration to Members of Committee of Management.
- (b) Fees of Examiners and Officers.
- (c) Expenses of Printing and of Material for Examining purposes.

(d) Such other expenses as the Committee of Management may deem necessary for the proper carrying out of this Scheme.

Conditions of Triple Qualification.

“XIV. That after deduction of the aforesaid charges, the Surplus Funds shall be apportioned to the co-operating Authorities in the manner as follows:—

To the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh—Five-tenths.

To the Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh—Three-tenths.

To the Faculty of Physicians and Surgeons of Glasgow—Two-tenths.

“XV. That this Agreement shall come into operation on the said 1st day of October 1884, and remain in full force and effect for the period of five years from and after that date; but declaring that the same shall come to an end and shall cease and determine on the said 1st day of October 1889, provided one or other of the said parties shall have given to the said first, second, or third parties one year's previous notice in writing of their intention that the said Agreement shall be so terminated; and, failing such notice, the same shall continue in full force and effect from and after the said 1st day of October 1889, until the expiration of one year after such notice shall have been given as aforesaid.”

On 5th May 1885 the College, with the approval of the General Council of Medical Education and Registration, determined to hand over the Preliminary Examination to the Educational Institute of Scotland, and on 2nd February 1886, it was resolved to admit Women to the Examinations for the Conjoint Qualification.

Change in Preliminary Examinations.

As already stated, the College obtained power by its Charter of 1861 to institute an order of Members who should be intermediate in rank between the Licentiates and the Fellows. No special privileges were conferred upon the Members ; but a Law was passed to the effect that no one should be eligible for the Fellowship until he had been at least one year a Member of the College. At first the only qualifications for the Membership were, that the Candidate should be a Licentiate of a College of Physicians, or a Graduate of a British or Irish University ; that he should have attained the age of twenty-four years ; that he should produce satisfactory testimonials as to his social and professional status ; and that a motion for his election should be carried by a majority of not less than three-fourths of the Fellows voting. Under these conditions a large and constantly increasing number of Members was admitted. In course of time, however, the opinion began to gain ground among the Fellows, that these conditions of admission were unsatisfactory, and that it was desirable that an examination should be instituted, which all candidates for the Membership should be required to pass. The subject was brought before the College from time to time, but was delayed in the hope that some comprehensive measure of Medical Reform would be introduced by the Government. As years, however, passed, and no such measure was proposed, the subject was taken up seriously, and on the 24th February 1880 a Committee was appointed to consider the Laws relative to admission to the Membership and Fellowship of the College. After a good deal of discussion at several meetings of the College, the Report of the Committee was, on the 1st February 1881, approved of, and the new Laws relative to admission were agreed to. A few minor alterations were adopted on 30th October 1890, when the Laws of the College were revised. In conformity with these Laws, Candidates for the Membership are required, before they are balloted for, to pass an examination on Medicine and Therapeutics, as well as on one of the following subjects, to be selected by themselves:—

(a) One or more departments of Medicine specially professed; (b) Psychological Medicine; (c) General Pathology and Morbid Anatomy; (d) Medical Jurisprudence; (e) Public Health; (f) Midwifery; (g) Diseases of Women. Power is, however, given to the Council to exempt from examination Candidates over forty years of age who have been Registered Practitioners for not less than ten years, and who have been highly distinguished for their scientific or practical attainments.

The College, looking to the increasingly important position occupied by the subject of Public Health, resolved, on the 29th December 1874, to establish a certificate of Qualification in that subject; and on the 4th May 1875, agreed to the Regulations under which it is now granted. The Regulations for the Diploma in Public Health were revised and altered on 21st November 1889.

The Regulations regarding the Diploma in Public Health are as follows:—

I.—GENERAL REGULATIONS.

1. Candidates shall not appear for the final Examination for the Diploma in Public Health till twelve months after receiving a registrable qualification.

2. Candidates shall be required to produce evidence that they have worked in a Public Health Laboratory, specially recognised by the College, for a period of not less than six months, and for not less than fifteen hours a week; and that they have for six months practically studied the duties of Outdoor Sanitary Work under the Medical Officer of Health of a County or Large Urban District.

In certain cases

3. Candidates shall be subjected to two Examinations, and there shall be an interval of not less than six months between them.
4. The Examination shall be written, oral, and practical.
5. The Examination shall be held in the Physicians' Hall, or elsewhere if found more convenient.
6. Rejected Candidates shall not be admitted for re-examination till after the expiry of six months.
7. Holders of the Diploma are designated as "Diplomates in Public Health, R.C.P.E."

* * * The Rules as to study shall not apply to—

- (a.) Medical Practitioners registered on or before January 1, 1890.
- (b.) Registered Medical Practitioners who have for a period of three years held the position of Medical Officer of Health to any County, or to any Urban District of more than 20,000 inhabitants, or to any entire Rural Sanitary District.

II.—EXAMINATIONS.

1. THE FIRST EXAMINATION SHALL EMBRACE—

- (1.) Physics.—Especially Pneumatics, Hydrostatics, Hydraulics, and Engineering in relation to Sanitary Operations, including a knowledge of Architectural and other Plans.
- (2.) Meteorology.—Including Climate, Topographical and Seasonal Influences in relation to Health and Disease.
- (3.) Laboratory Work, including—
 - (a.) Chemical and Bacteriological Examination of Air, Water, and Sewage.
 - (b.) Chemical Examination of Foods:—Milk, Butter, Bread, Animal Food, Tea, Coffee, Cocoa, Alcoholic and other beverages.

(c.) Bacteriological methods as applied to Public Health, including preparation of Nutrient Media, cultivation and identification of Micro-organisms.

Two days will be allowed for Laboratory work, which will embrace both qualitative and quantitative Analysis.

2. THE SECOND EXAMINATION SHALL EMBRACE—

(1.) Epidemiology and Endemiology.—Including the corresponding departments in the Diseases of Animals and Plants,—Contagious Diseases,—Diseases of Periods of Life, Professions, Trades, Seasons, and Climates.

(2.) Practical Hygiene.—Duties of a Health Officer ; Food ; Water Supply, Sewerage, and Drainage ; Nuisances ; Construction of Hospitals, Public Buildings ; Dwellings ; Manufactories ; Slaughter-Houses ; Cemeteries, including the explanation and drawing of Plans.

(3.) Sanitary Law and Vital Statistics.

3. Meetings for both Examinations shall be held annually in April and October. The First Examination shall begin on the second Tuesday of the month, with the Examination in Physics and Meteorology, and be followed on the two next days by Practical Laboratory work. The Second Examination shall begin on the third Tuesday of April and October, and shall occupy two days.

4. The Examinations must be passed in their order, First and Second, and at least six months shall elapse between each.

5. A Candidate remitted at either Examination will be allowed to come up again after a further period of six months.

III.—FEES.

1. The fees for Examinations must be paid at least a week before the day of Examination.

Diploma in Public Health.

2. The whole charges by the College for the Diploma amount to Ten guineas.
3. The fee for the First Examination is Five guineas; and the fee for the Second Examination is Five guineas.
4. Candidates forfeit the fee for the Examination which they have been unsuccessful in passing.

Notes as to progress of Library.

Every Fellow to contribute a Book on entering, 1696.

From the date of its Incorporation in 1681, the attention of the College appears to have been steadily directed to the formation of a Library. Sir Robert Sibbald, to whose exertions the College is mainly indebted for its Charter, was a large contributor to the Library. Two years after the Incorporation of the College a Librarian was appointed. The Library was, during the earlier years of its existence, enriched by donations from Fellows of the College, eminent Physicians, and individuals of distinction not even connected with the Medical Profession.

The following Chronological Notes as to the progress of the Library may be interesting, from the references made in them to many of the former Fellows to whom the College is indebted for valuable services in connection with it, which have helped to bring the Library to its present satisfactory condition.

In 1683 Dr. Archibald Stevenson was elected Librarian, and Dr. Pitcairne, Deputy-Librarian.

In 1696 a law was enacted, that every Intranter should contribute a book or books to the Library; and numerous donations of single books are noticed from time to time in the Minutes of several following years—one consequence of which was, that duplicates, and works unsuited to a Medical Library, began to accumulate, which were every now and then ordered to be sold, and new medical books to be purchased in their stead.

In 1713 it was resolved that the Fellows should have the option of buying such Duplicates before they were put up to auction.

In 1705 a considerable addition was made to the Library by the purchase of the books of the late Patrick Murray, Laird of Livingstone, for 300 merks Scots (about £16, 13s.). The first Library Committee seems to have been appointed at the end of that year; for the Minutes bear, that on December 13, Sir R. Sibbald, Drs. Smelholm, Riddell, and Luitfoot, with the President, Censors, and Library-keeper, were appointed Curators and Overseers of the Library.

In 1741 the College came into possession of the library of a former President, Dr. John Drummond, after his decease, by the Bequest of David Drummond, Advocate, his brother and heir. Two conditions were attached to the Bequest, namely, that these books should be kept in presses by themselves, and that none of them should be lent out unless the full value was deposited with the Keeper of the Library. The College formally accepted the conditions, and took measures to comply with them; but by the lapse of time, and by the repeated transferences of the Library, these conditions were unfortunately lost sight of, and can now no longer be fulfilled. It seems probable that this neglect is to be accounted for, in a great measure, by the sudden removal of the books in 1766 from the Old Hall in the Cowgate (where they were suffering from the insufficiency of the roof) to the Royal Infirmary, in which they were accommodated for fifteen years, until the Hall in George Street was built, and ready for their reception. A printed Catalogue of the Drummond books was presented along with them, and a copy of this Catalogue, still extant, has appended to it the legal documents of conveyance and acceptance, signed in due form. This Catalogue contains a list of 1250 works in all, many of which are no longer in the Library, having in all probability been exchanged, together with other duplicates and non-medical books, in order to enable the College to enlarge its medical collection. Like so many of the books themselves, this copy of the Catalogue had at one period gone astray, and was not recovered till 1820, as appears from an inscription on the title-page, in the handwriting of the late Dr. Duncan, Senior, containing an anathema upon any one who should thereafter take it away. On further inquiry, it was found that the College was indebted for its restoration to Mr. David Laing, Librarian to the Society of Writers to the Signet, who, on returning it to the Library, stated that he purchased it at a sale of books in Edinburgh; and seeing, from the official documents appended to it in writing, that it had belonged to the Royal College of Physicians, he presented it through the late Dr. Alexander Wylie, at that time Librarian. Dr. Poole has since written on the blank leaves some interesting entries, chiefly taken from the Minutes, calculated to throw light on the fate of this Drummond Collection. It cannot but be deemed a cause of regret that the conditions of the Bequest have been so completely lost sight of, and the Library Committee would gladly have done what was possible towards complying with their spirit, on the occasion of the removal to the Hall in Queen Street in 1846; but, from the great dispersion of the Collection, and the difficulty in replacing the books long since disposed of, which appear from the printed Catalogue to have been partly theological, it was found impossible.

In 1756 a considerable addition to the Library was obtained from Messrs. Hamilton and Balfour, booksellers, in return for the copyright of the Pharmacopœia published in that year, and for duplicates and other books considered to be unfit for a Medical Library.

In 1761 the College was presented with the library of a former Fellow, Dr. Edward Wright of Kersie, by Sir Alexander Gibson of Clifton Hall, to whom it had fallen by inheritance. About the same time Dr. James Mackenzie, another Fellow, bequeathed to the College seventy-nine quarto volumes, being the Transactions of the Academy of Sciences of Paris from 1666 to 1755.

In 1763 a proposal from the Principal of the University for the union of the Library with the Library of the University, on conditions represented as favourable to the Fellows, came before the College; but after some deliberation, a Report against the proposal was finally adopted. Another proposal to the same effect was made soon after by Dr. Robert Whytt, then Professor of the Institutes of Medicine, and a Fellow of the College; but neither was this entertained. In the same year the insurance of the Library is mentioned for the first time, to the amount of £600.

In 1766, owing to the defective condition of the roof of the Old Hall, accommodation, as already noticed, was obtained for the books in the Royal Infirmary. Among the donors to the Library at this period is found John, Earl of Bute, who presented the twenty-six magnificent folios of Sir John Hill's Vegetable System.

In 1767 the first Catalogue of the Library was printed. This Catalogue, which shows that the Library must have been a large and valuable collection for the period, contains a list of 2346 works. It was printed in 12mo; but there is no notice in the Minutes of the College as to the person by whom it was compiled.

Singularly enough, no copy of this interesting little volume had been preserved in the Library, and it was entirely unknown to the Library Committee of 1849, when engaged in preparing the Preface to the Catalogue issued in that year. The College is indebted for the copy now in the Library, probably the only one in existence, to William Brown, Esq., F.R.C.S.E., who, finding it bound up in a volume of pamphlets in his library, lately presented it to the College.

Removal to George Street.

In 1781 the Library was removed from the Infirmary to the New Hall in George Street. In the same year Sir John Pringle presented to the College ten volumes of MS. Annotations, on condition that they were never to be lent out, and never to be published; conditions which have been faithfully adhered to.

Purchases at sale of Dr.
Cullen's Books.

In 1791 the Library Committee were empowered to expend £100 in the purchase of books at the sale of Dr. Cullen's library. The new shelving of the Library being by this time completed, a Press Catalogue was prepared, and from it a printed Alphabetical Catalogue was formed, and brought out in 1793. This Catalogue was completed under the care of Dr. Thomas Spens, at that time Librarian. In the same year, on the proposal of Dr. Duncan, then Professor of the Institutes of Medicine, it was resolved to allow the Professors of the University the privilege of borrowing books from the Library, on condition that the Fellows of the College should enjoy a similar privilege in regard to that of the University. The Senatus Academicus agreed to a trial of this arrangement for one year, but it does not appear to have remained in operation longer.

Library to be
inspected.

In 1800 a law was made that all books borrowed should be called in once a year.

In 1801, on the occasion of the retirement of Dr.

James Home from the office of Librarian, the first notice appears of the useful practice of appointing a Special Committee to take the Library off the hands of the retiring Librarian, and hand it over to his successor.

Library Committee first appointed.

In 1821 an Appendix to the Catalogue was printed, containing the additions made to the Library from 1793 to that time.

In 1823 the appointment of an Assistant Librarian, with a salary, was first resolved on, and Mr. John Small, senior, was appointed to the office. Up to this time, and indeed throughout the whole history of the Library, much difficulty seems to have been experienced in preventing the books from being taken away in an irregular manner, and in getting the whole of the borrowed books returned.

Assistant Librarian first appointed.

In 1826 the subject of access for the Fellows to the University Library was again agitated, and a Committee was appointed for the furtherance of this object. This Committee continued in existence for nearly four years, and successively memorialized the Patrons of the University, and the Royal Commission on the Scottish Universities, but finally met with a refusal from both.

Access to University Library refused to Fellows.

In 1826 Dr. William Moncrieff was requested to undertake a Catalogue raisonnée of the Library, and in the following year thanks were voted to him for the progress he had made in it. Several years later, after Dr. Moncrieff's death, a Committee was formed to prosecute the same object, while Dr. William Thomson was Librarian; but after some progress had been made it was relinquished, chiefly because the state of the College funds would not permit of its being printed.

Catalogue Raisonnée abandoned.

In 1828, by the Bequest of Dr. Andrew Duncan, Senior, the College came into possession of a large collection of manuscript Notes and Lectures, being the

Dr. Andrew Duncan's Bequest.

Lectures of the Founders of the Edinburgh School of Medicine, and his own Practical Observations used as notes for his Clinical Lectures. The whole collection includes about 180 volumes. A portion of the Practical Observations, however, seems to have been presented by Dr. Duncan during his lifetime.

Extraordinary Contribution for Library imposed.

In 1830, on a Report of the Council as to the low state of the funds applicable to the purchase of books, it was resolved that each Fellow should contribute two guineas annually for this purpose. This resolution, however, was suspended almost as soon as passed, and appears in no instance to have been enforced.

In 1831 Dr. Walter Adam presented to the Library the twelve folio volumes of Montfauçon's Antiquité Expliquée.

Collection of Prints of Medical Practitioners commenced.

In 1833 Dr. Thomas Spens presented four Engraved Prints of Medical Practitioners, with a view to make a commencement of a collection of such Prints. The collection rapidly increased, and a list of these Engravings is appended to the Library Catalogue.

In 1835 the Librarian was authorized to have an Appendix to the Library Catalogue printed, but the resolution was not at that time carried into effect.

Dr. William Moncrieff's Bequest.

In 1836 the College, by the Bequest of Dr. William Moncrieff, acquired his medical books, consisting of two hundred and twenty-five volumes, of which twenty-one were notes of lectures, etc., in manuscript.

In 1844 the Library Committee was empowered, under certain conditions, to make temporary regulations in regard to the Library, owing to the inconvenience arising from the necessity of making a formal application to the College on every new emergency, however trivial.

In 1845 the Library was increased by two considerable donations of books; one by Dr. James Home, just before his death, the other by the family of Dr. John Abercrombie, after his death. The former consisted of two hundred and forty volumes, including manuscript lectures by St. Clair, Alston, Cullen, Rutherford, Black, Francis Home, and Gregory. The latter donation comprised about eighty volumes.

In 1846 the Library, which during the previous three years had been placed in the temporary apartments of the College at 119 George Street, was removed to the New Hall in Queen Street. In the same year, on the occasion of the opening of the New Hall, an important donation to the Library falls to be noticed, consisting of a number of scarce and curious old Medical Books presented by Dr. Beilby, who was at that time President.

Immediately upon being settled in the New Hall, the Library Committee took measures for preparing for the press a new Alphabetical Catalogue, and the work was entered upon by the late Mr. Small, senior. From the progress made, it was hoped that the printing might have been commenced in the summer of 1847. But unforeseen obstacles were interposed in consequence of the illness and death of Mr. Small, and the subsequent illness of the Librarian, who was for a considerable time rendered incapable of superintending the work. In these circumstances the task was taken up by certain members of the Library Committee, who in the end of the year went through the labour of comparing the MS. Catalogue left by Mr. Small, with the books themselves, and by great exertions brought the work to a successful termination in 1849.

Since 1849 the Library has increased very rapidly. By the additional funds placed at its disposal, the Committee have made many valuable additions, particularly in 1852, when they purchased a large portion of the Library of the late Dr. John Thomson, Professor of General Pathology in the University of Edinburgh.

Among the benefactors to the Library, between the years 1849 and 1854, were Drs. Begbie, Bennett, Brown, Jackson, Seller, Robertson, and Simpson.

In 1854 an Appendix to the Catalogue of 1849 was printed, incorporating these additions to the Library.

Dr. Cullen's MSS. presented.

In 1860, agreeably to an arrangement contemplated by the late Dr. John Thomson, there were presented to the College, by Dr. Allen Thomson and Dr. Craigie, twenty-two volumes of manuscript writings by Dr. Cullen; one complete manuscript copy of his Lectures; several editions of his First Lines, especially that by Dr. Peter Reid; a German translation of the First Lines, and some smaller articles by the same physician.

All the donations now mentioned, with many others, as well as numerous purchases, have added greatly to the extent of the Library. In the year 1849, when the third edition of the Catalogue was printed, the number of volumes contained in the Library was estimated at about 9000. At present it is calculated that there are in the Library between thirty and forty thousand volumes.

Progress of Library.

In order to indicate the progress of the Library, the following statement of the annual additions made to it during the last twenty years is presented:—

| Vols. added. | Vols. added. | Vols. added. | | | |
|-----------------|-----------------|-----------------|-----|------------|-----|
| 1870 | 422 | 1877 | 389 | 1884 | 540 |

| 1876 | 450 | 1883 | 590 | 1890 | 820 |

Total number of volumes added, 10,251.

In 1861 the previous edition of the Catalogue having been all but exhausted, the preparation of a new one was undertaken by Mr. John Small, junior, who had succeeded his father as Assistant Librarian, and by his able management, under the supervision of Dr. David Craigie, the President, was completed in about two years. The complete Catalogue was published in a handsome volume in January 1863, and on the 5th May 1863 the sum of £105 was voted to Mr. Small for his labours. Since that time two Supplements have been published, and the preparation of a Catalogue raisonnée is being proceeded with by the Librarian, Dr. G. W. Balfour, with the aid of the Sub-Librarian, Mr. J. Matheson Shaw.

The formation of the Museum of Materia Medica may be dated from the 4th August 1835, when a Committee appointed to consider the sale or improvement of the College Hall in George Street reported—"That it had occurred to the Committee that it might be desirable to commence a Museum of Materia Medica, for the reception of which the Hall, or other part of the building, might gradually, as required, be fitted up." A Committee was appointed to take all measures which should appear to them to be proper for commencing such a Museum.

Museum of Materia Medica.

The Committee accordingly invited the Fellows and others to contribute Donations to the Museum, and entered into a correspondence with Lord Glenelg the Colonial Secretary, and with the Heads of the Army and Navy Medical Boards, for the purpose of procuring, through their influence, objects of interest for the Museum.

In the meantime Donations began to be received, and Dr. Jonathan Davidson had the honour of being the first Contributor, presenting the first three specimens on the 3rd November 1835. Dr. Christison's Donations were the most numerous and valuable, numbering twenty-nine by April 1837.

The first Honorary Curator, Dr. James Stark, appointed in 1839, entered vigorously on the discharge of his duties; and it was chiefly through his exertions that many Donations were obtained.

Collection.

In 1839 Dr. Christison put the duplicates he might receive for his own collection at the disposal of the College, and became a contributor to the Museum of valuable specimens not otherwise attainable. Mr. Duncan (of Duncan & Flockhart), Mr. J. F. Macfarlan, and others, also made numerous donations. The Messrs. Lawson & Son, on a list being furnished to them of such articles as they could easily procure, kindly presented the collection of cereals now in the Museum; and the Botanical Society of Edinburgh, on being furnished with a list of the medicinal plants of Great Britain, generously presented select specimens of the whole, amounting to 338 species, to the Museum of the College. Through the kindness of Professor Graham, and Mr. Macnab, the College also obtained from the Royal Botanical Gardens specimens of such medicinal plants as flowered or bore fruit there, and from this source several interesting specimens were procured, which have been preserved both in the green and in the dried states.

To forward the formation of the Museum, Dr. James Wood gave a donation of £10, 10s., and the College, from its entertainment fund, gave £25, to be expended in purchase of articles of the Materia Medica. These sums were spent in adding to the Museum 301 specimens, which were placed there on or before the 9th November 1841.

Very few additions were made to the Museum from the above date till 1847, when the College, having heard that Dr. Theodore Martius of Erlangen, the brother of the celebrated Brazilian traveller, wished to dispose of his splendid and very complete collection of Materia Medica, resolved to purchase it. After considerable correspondence, it was announced to the College at its meeting on the 3rd August 1847, that Dr. Martius' collection had been secured for the College for the sum of £250. Through the influence of Sir William Gibson-Craig, then M.P. for Edinburgh and one of the Lords of the Treasury, the whole collection was not only passed free of duty, but was allowed to be forwarded to the College Hall before being opened.

No time was lost in getting suitable cases and show-tables fitted up for the exhibition of this collection, and on the 1st of May 1848 the Martius Collection was arranged and ready for inspection.

During the years 1848, 1849, and 1850, the Museum received a valuable addition in the form of a complete series of Cinchona and allied Barks, presented by John Elliot Howard, Esq. of Tottenham. This series embraced specimens of all Barks met with in British commerce, and also a series of the Lichens growing on the Barks.

On a rough calculation, the preparations in the Museum may be arranged as follows:—

Report of Committee as to Museum.

When the Museum of Science and Art was established by Government, some idea existed of presenting the College Museum to it. This, however, was set aside by a Report from a Committee on increased Library Accommodation, which was drawn up by a Committee, of which Dr. Christison was chairman, and unanimously adopted by the College on 18th November 1862. The following Excerpt relates to the Museum:—

“ It was next suggested, that time might be given for beginning the extension of the Hall, by converting the present Museum room into a Library room, which would provide for the increase of books for a period of ten years at least. For this purpose it would be necessary to part with the Museum of Materia Medica; and it was further suggested that the Museum might be presented to the Museum of Science and Art, or the University, where it would be more accessible, and more widely visited than in Physicians' Hall. The Committee resolved, however, almost unanimously, to recommend the College, if possible, not to part with the Museum. The Museum and Cases, together with the special embellishment of the apartment, cost the College about £750. The Collection is a unique one in this country, being an almost complete Collection of the “ Medicamina Simplicia ” of the Materia Medica, as it stood at the time of its purchase from Dr. Martius of Erlangen; and as the specimens are choice and in excellent order, the Collection will always be an object of interest on this historical ground, even although the College should never add to it. The Committee, indeed, are assured that it is a subject of interest to strangers, and that its existence in the College is well known to the cultivators of Materia Medica. They do not think that the College would willingly part with a Collection which cost them so much, and which brings the College some credit. The Committee have come to the resolution to recommend the retention of the Museum, all the more willingly, because they see a plan for leaving it untouched, for obtaining increased Library Accommodation, and for extending the Hall without delay, by a single scheme which will not unduly encroach on the College Funds."

For some years there had been a growing feeling on the part of many Fellows of the College that its opportunities might be turned to good account in furthering those scientific researches to which modern medicine owes so much ; and this feeling led to the institution of a Laboratory devoted to physiological and pathological research.

On the motion of Dr. John Batty Tuke, a Committee was appointed on 4th February 1885, to consider and report on means for furthering the prosecution of original research in connection with the College. The Committee, on 7th July 1885, reported in favour of founding and maintaining a Laboratory in connection with the College, and submitted a scheme for carrying out this design. A majority of the College voted in favour of a formal motion for the adoption of the Report ; but as no motion tending to alienate the property of the College, or to apply it to other than the ordinary purposes of the College, can be adopted unless approved of at three meetings by three-fourths of the Fellows present at each, and as the majority did not comprise so large a proportion, the motion was not carried. A new Committee was appointed at the same meeting, in order to consider the matter further, and report to the College.

The new Committee presented their Report on 6th April 1886. It was substantially the same as, but more definite than, that submitted by the previous Committee, and recommended the College to found and maintain a Laboratory for the purpose of providing facilities for carrying on scientific investigations. A motion for the adoption of the Report was supported by more than three-fourths of the Fellows present at this meeting, and was therefore read for a first time. The Report, however, when submitted for its second reading, on 15th May 1886, was not carried, as, although supported by a majority, the number of Fellows in favour of it was not large enough to secure its adoption.

Strong feeling in its favour.

The strong feeling which prevailed in the College in favour of such a scheme was not extinguished by the lack of success which had hitherto attended the efforts of its supporters, and it found expression in a Petition to the Council, calling attention to the want of a Laboratory, influentially signed by Fellows of the College. The Petition was remitted to the College, and was read 3rd August 1886. As a result of this movement, a new Committee was appointed to draw up a Report on the subject.

Scheme adopted.

The Report of the Committee, which was laid before the College on 2nd November, was in similar terms to those previously submitted. The motion for its adoption was carried unanimously, and declared to be read for a first time. The same result was obtained when the motion for its adoption was submitted for its second reading on 28th December 1886, and for its third reading on 15th February 1887, when it was declared to be finally approved of and adopted by the College.

Nature of Scheme.

The Report of the Committee, as adopted by the College, recommended :—

1. That the College shall establish and maintain a Laboratory for the prosecution of Original Research.
2. That the President and Council of the College shall appoint a Curator and Committee, whose duty shall be to superintend the establishment and equipment of the Laboratory, and to supervise its work and control its expenditure. In the opinion of your Committee the Laboratory Committee should discharge duties analogous to those of the Library Committee, should bear the same relations to the Council, and should be appointed annually in the same manner.

3. That the Council of the College shall also be empowered to appoint a scientific man as Superintendent of the Laboratory.

This officer shall be held responsible for the maintenance of order in the establishment, and for the safe-keeping of all instruments and apparatus. He shall devote such portion of his time as may be determined by the Council to the work of the Laboratory; where, under the supervision of the Curator and Committee, he shall himself undertake the prosecution of Original Research, and be prepared to assist, if required to do so, in the work of other investigators. Under like supervision, he shall also be prepared to furnish Fellows of the College with Reports upon such matters as the histology of morbid specimens, and of the chemical and microscopic characters of urines.

For the first three years after the establishment of the Laboratory, the salary of the Superintendent shall be £200 per annum. After the expiry of that period the amount of the salary shall be determined by the Council.

The Superintendent shall be elected annually by the Council at the meeting for the election of Office-bearers.

4. That the Laboratory should be open, without Fee—
 - (1.) To Fellows of the College.
 - (2.) To Members.

Nature of Scheme.

- (3.) To any Licentiate who shall obtain the sanction of the Curator and Committee to use the Laboratory for purposes of Scientific Research.
- (4.) To any Medical Man or Investigator who shall obtain the sanction of the Council of the College, as well as of the Curator and Committee, to use the Laboratory for purposes of Scientific Research.
5. That the College shall vote from its capital funds, for the establishment of this Laboratory, the principal sum of £1000, and shall empower the Curator and Committee to draw every year upon the Treasurer for such sums as may be required for its maintenance and current expenses; it being provided that the whole yearly expenditure, including the rent of the premises and the salary of the Superintendent, shall not exceed the sum of £650.
6. It is suggested that the fitting-up of the Laboratory should be proceeded with cautiously, and that apparatus should be procured only as occasion requires. Although £1000 is asked as probably necessary for the full equipment of a Laboratory, it is suggested that only the essentials of a Laboratory should be at first procured, and that the balance should remain at the disposal of the Laboratory Committee, to be employed, if necessary, for its further development.
7. That every year, before the Quarterly Meeting of the College in February, the Curator shall submit to the Council a written Report regarding the year's work done in the Laboratory, and the Expenditure incurred. This Report, along with the Report of the Council upon it, shall thereafter be submitted to the College at the Quarterly Meeting in February.

8. That the College shall vote annually a sum of £100, which may be employed by the Council, as it deems fit, in making grants to investigators, in furthering the publication of Researches made in the Laboratory or elsewhere, in offering prizes for original work, or for any other allied purpose.

Nature of Scheme.

No time was lost in executing the scheme after its adoption. The Council appointed Dr. Tuke as Curator, and Dr. Woodhead as Superintendent of the Laboratory. A house, situated in the immediate vicinity of the Royal Infirmary, was rented and fitted up with the instruments and apparatus necessary for scientific research, and the work of investigation was forthwith entered upon.¹ In honour of the opening of the Laboratory, the College entertained a distinguished gathering at a Conversazione within the Hall, on 21st February 1889.

Execution of Scheme.

The good results which have flowed from the institution of the Laboratory have exceeded the most sanguine hopes of those most ardent in the prosecution of the scheme. The Laboratory has not only been taken advantage of by many Fellows, Members, and Licentiates of the College, but a considerable number of scientific men unconnected with it have found in the Laboratory a means of making observations which would have been difficult to carry out but for the provision thus afforded. So much good work was produced that the College, desirous of fostering in every way the pursuit of Medical Science, resolved to publish an annual volume of Reports of the work done. Three volumes have already appeared, each containing a large number of valuable contributions by workers in the Laboratory.

In order to stimulate a spirit of research, Dr. Barbour, a Fellow of the College, has generously presented a sum of money to be held in trust by the College for the purpose of endowing "The Freeland - Barbour Fellowship" in connection with the Laboratory, and awarded for distinction in original investigation.

It is very gratifying to be able to record that the example of the College was soon afterwards followed by the sister College in London, which, in conjunction with the Royal College of Surgeons of England, now possesses a similar Laboratory devoted to scientific investigation.

During recent years the College has on several occasions been appointed Trustee for funds destined to encourage the study of Medicine.

Sir Alexander Morison, a Fellow and former President of the College, on 2nd August 1864 handed to the College the house and lands of Larchgrove, Midlothian, for the purpose of founding and endowing the "Morison Lectureship" on Insanity. The Lectureship has since been held by several distinguished Fellows of the College, as well as by eminent members of the Medical Profession unconnected with the College, among whom may be mentioned Dr. William Sellar, Sir Arthur Mitchell, Dr. Skae, Dr. W. T. Gairdner, Dr. J. B. Tuke, Dr. D. J. Hamilton, Dr. A. Keiller, and Dr. T. S. Clouston.

On 2nd May 1876 it was announced that Dr. Thomas Hill Pattison, a Fellow of the College, had assigned two Policies of Assurance on his life, for £850, to the College, for the purpose of founding and endowing a Bursary to be awarded to Male Students of Medicine studying in Edinburgh. On the decease of Dr. Pattison in 1885 the arrangement took practical effect, and on the 1st May 1888 the College adopted a scheme for the administration of the "Pattison Bursary." The Bursary has been awarded by competition on three occasions.

It was announced, on 2nd November 1886, that His Excellency Dr. Robert Halliday Gunning, Grand Dignitary of the Empire of Brazil, had resolved to found a Triennial Prize, to be awarded for the greatest benefit done to Practical Medicine by any Fellow, Member, or Licentiate of the College, in commemoration of the Jubilee of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, to be known as the "Victoria Jubilee Cullen Prize," in memory of the celebrated Dr. William Cullen. The sum set apart by Dr. Gunning for this purpose amounted to £1000. The College, in accepting the generous gift, adopted a Scheme which was approved of by Dr. Gunning, and the first award took place in 1890.

The late Dr. John Parkin, a Fellow of the College, bequeathed £1500 for the purpose of founding and endowing Prizes for Original Research, upon certain subjects, open to the entire Medical Profession. This Bequest, with the conditions attached to it, was intimated to the College on 7th May 1889. The first award will be made next year.

On 5th November 1889, as already mentioned in connection with the Laboratory, it was announced that Dr. Alexander Hugh Freeland Barbour, a Fellow of the College, had resolved to hand over the sum of £1250, in order to endow a Prize for Original Research, to be called, in memory of his father, the "Freeland-Barbour Fellowship." This Fellowship has been already awarded.

Finally, on 4th August 1891 it was announced that Dr. James Struthers, a Fellow of the College, had bequeathed a sum of £1000 to the College, "to be added by the College so as to form part of, and be administered in the same manner as, the Bequest to the College by the deceased Dr. Pattison of Edinburgh."

Morison Prizes.

Sir Alexander Morison, in addition to founding the Lectureship, bequeathed a sum of money for the purpose of founding Prizes, which are annually awarded for Meritorious Attendance on the Insane.

It has been thought advisable to conclude this short sketch of the History of the College, by a brief summary of some of the more interesting or more important Minutes of the College.

First Meetings,
7th, 8th, and 9th
December 1681.

The first two Meetings of the College (7th and 8th December 1681) were occupied with the election of Office-Bearers. Immediately thereafter they proceeded (9th December 1681), under the powers vested in them by the Charter, "to enact Laws for its due government and welfare." It is exceedingly interesting to find, that, in addition to fixing the number necessary to constitute a quorum, the two Laws then enacted have continued in force to the present time. The one provides that every new Law shall be considered at two separate Meetings of the College before being enacted, and that every proposal to abrogate a Law shall be considered at three several Meetings before a decision is come to; the other, that every proposal before being laid before the College, "shall be represented to the President and Council, who shall take it into consideration, and report the same at the next Meeting of the College, with the sense of the Council thereupon."

Period of Election of Office-Bearers.

4th and 18th January 1682.—Nearly as early in the history of the College, the day for the election of the Office-Bearers, and the periods at which the Quarterly Meetings were to be held, were fixed, and these, too, have continued unaltered to the present time.

10th February 1682.—At these Meetings, fines of “seri” (coming one quarter after the hour of meeting) and “absentes,” are first mentioned, although, as the time for collecting them only is fixed, it seems probable that they had been inflicted previously.

21st March 1682.—The draught of the promissory engagement, to be signed by Fellows on taking their seats, was agreed to.

3rd November 1684.—A Committee was appointed “to revise all former Acts, and to order the booking of such of them as they shall think fit in the Great Register.”

6th January 1685.—The Committee appointed to revise the Laws reported. They first proposed a regulation for the minimum course of study for the Licence; next for the trial of Apothecaries, suggesting that none should be permitted to officiate as Apothecaries until they had been examined “upon their skill in the Simples, in the Latin tongue, reading of receipts, and what else shall be found needful.”

From 22nd November 1684 to 21st March 1693, a blank occurs in the Minutes; and during that period, and for some time thereafter, the College would appear to have been chiefly occupied with the discussions between it and the Chirurgeon Apothecaries, and the legal proceedings consequent upon them.

9th November 1693.—The Fees to be paid by Fellows and Licentiates were fixed.

It would appear that a custom had prevailed of the whole College electing the President. It was, however, proposed and discussed at two Meetings, and passed into an Act (14th November 1695), that the seven Councillors chosen by the College should elect one of their number to be President, and this notwithstanding any custom to the contrary; and this Law, which indeed seems to have been compulsory by the Charter, continued in force until the first Bye-Laws under the new Charter of 1860 were passed.

No Fellow to keep an Apothecary's Shop.

26th August 1701.—The Fees of admission of Fellows and Licentiates were again altered.

12th January 1704.—A Committee was named to revise the Laws.

6th May 1707.—An Act was passed to render more effectual the separation between the Physician and Surgeon. It was ordained that this Act should be signed by all the Fellows. This would appear to have been done; and, subsequently, each Fellow at his entrance would seem to have signed it up to 1756, when the practice was discontinued, but without any notice of its discontinuance in the Minutes.

For some time subsequently to this, various Acts were passed regulating the “dues of Entrants and Licentiates,” but nothing of particular interest occurs until—

6th November 1750.—When an Act was unanimously passed, prohibiting the admission of any one as a Fellow of the College who was a Member of the Corporation of Surgeons or Apothecaries, or who kept a shop for the dispensing of Medicine, and declaring that any one doing so after his admission “shall, ipso facto, forfeit all privileges which he did, or might, enjoy as a Fellow of the College, and his name shall be expunged out of the Roll of Fellows.”

11th April 1754.—A further Act to prevent the same person from conjoining the professions of Medicine and Pharmacy was read a third time, and passed unanimously.

1st November 1763.—An Act was read a third time, and passed, “that in all time coming every Doctor of Medicine should remain a Licentiate one whole year before becoming a Fellow; that no Member of the Corporation of Surgeons should be admitted a Fellow or Licentiate, and that any Licentiate or Fellow becoming a Member of the said Corporation should forfeit his Licence or Fellowship.”

1st May 1764.—On the Report of a Committee, the College confirmed its former Act (11th April 1754) in regard to Fellows keeping Apothecaries' shops, and extended it to all residing in great Britain and Ireland, declaring that any Fellow of the College practising Pharmacy within the three kingdoms should, ipso facto, forfeit his right of Fellowship, and his name should be struck off from the Roll of Fellows.

17th May 1765.—An Act was passed declaring that for the future no person should be admitted to be one of the Fellows, “whose common business it is either to practise Surgery in general, or Midwifery, Lithotomy, Inoculation, or any other branch of it in particular; and further, that if any Member of the College shall, after his being received a Fellow, practise any of these lower acts in the manner above mentioned, and shall thereof be lawfully convicted, he shall be degraded from the honour conferred upon him when he was admitted a Fellow, and his name shall be struck out of the Roll.”

7th February 1769.—After full consideration by a Committee, and repeated discussion in the College, an Act was passed providing that no Fellow or Licentiate of the College should exercise the business or profession of Midwifery, Lithotomy, or any of the other manual operations of Surgery; and providing that, if lawfully convicted, he should be fined 40 pounds Scots for the first offence, and for the second, if convicted, he should forfeit his right of Fellowship, if a Fellow of the College, or his right of Licence, if a Licentiate, and all right and title whatever to practise physic within the city of Edinburgh and Liberties thereof.

7th November 1769.—The Act of 7th February was rescinded.

5th May 1770.—A motion to rescind the Act 17th May 1765 was rejected.

5th February 1771.—An Act was passed for henceforth balloting for Candidates for the Fellowship.

6th August 1772.—The Act of 17th May 1765 was amended on the Report of a Committee to whom it had been remitted for consideration.

4th August 1772.—The Act prohibiting Fellows from practising Surgery or Midwifery was renewed, and it was ordained that all Fellows doing so, and against whom it should be fully proved, should forfeit their Fellowship, and their name should be struck out of the Roll.

3rd November 1773.—The number of Honorary Fellows was restricted to ten.

Honorary Fellows ex officio to be distinguished.

24th February 1784.—Professors of Universities having by the Charter a right to be admitted Honorary Fellows, it was resolved that in any lists of Fellows thereafter published, such Honorary Fellows, ex officio, "shall be distinguished by some proper mark from those admitted by the voluntary act of the College."

4th November 1783.—The form of petition for Non-Resident Fellows was altered.

Graduates of Foreign Universities.

8th June 1784.—An Act was passed permitting the Graduates of Foreign Universities to be admitted Fellows without examination, on a motion to that effect being proposed at one Quarterly Meeting, and duly determined by ballot at the next.

Hitherto the Laws and Regulations of the College are to be gathered only from the Minute-Books. It is apparent, however, that a growing desire began to be felt that these Laws should be digested into one body or code, and printed. In this matter the College appears to have acted with becoming caution and consideration, for on the

to be prepared.

2nd November 1784, a Committee was appointed for the purpose of preparing an Abstract of the Laws enacted from 7th December 1681 to 3rd August 1784. This Committee reported on the 2nd May 1786, when the matter was re-committed to be further considered and completed.

1st August and 7th November 1786.—From statements made at these Meetings, it would appear that the Committee was not yet prepared finally to report.

6th February 1787.—The Report of the Committee was laid on the table, ordered to be printed, and circulated among the Fellows.

1st May 1787.—A motion approving of the Report was read a first and a second time.

6th November 1787.—Some delay was now interposed, until the question of the repeal of the Law preventing Fellows from practising Midwifery was settled. This Law having been repealed on the 5th August 1788, the College, at the first Quarterly Meeting thereafter (4th November 1788), unanimously approved of the Laws as proposed, “sanctioned and established the same, and resolved that the Laws should be printed as amended.” Thus the first Code of Laws was arranged and printed in the year 1789. Copies of this little volume are still extant.

6th May 1788.—The College repealed the Resolution of 4th August 1772, “in so far as it prohibits the Fellows of the College from the practice of Midwifery.”

Soon after the changes were introduced, and, on the 2nd February 1790, it was enacted—

First, That when two or more Licentiates were elected Fellows at the same Meeting, they should be marked on the Roll according to the date of their admission; and if they were of the same date as Licentiates, they should be enrolled according to the date of their Diplomas; and if their Diplomas were of the same date, they should be enrolled according to their age.

Second, That any Law of the College might be suspended for a limited time, provided said suspension was agreed to by two-thirds of the Fellows present, and that due intimation of the proposal was made in the Billets by which the Fellows were summoned.

3rd August 1790.—To secure the strict enforcement of the payment of fines, it was ordered that absentees at the last Meeting should be called on to pay their fines immediately after the roll-call, and Fellows who were late, to pay the fines as they came in.

6th August 1793.—The Entrance-Fee of Resident Fellows was fixed at £100 net.

2nd February 1796.—A proposal was made to repeal the Act dated 11th April 1754, in so far that every Fellow or Licentiate of the College might have it in his power to supply his own patients with medicines, or the patients of those with whom he might be conjoined in practice. This motion was read a second time 3rd May 1796, and a third time 2nd August 1796, when the discussion was adjourned, to be resumed 1st November 1796, and again adjourned.

The proceedings connected with this gave rise to a most painful personal dissension between some of the most eminent Fellows, the discussions on which appear to have occupied much of the Minutes at that time. All these Minutes were, however, erased by an order of the College, dated 4th May 1830. Enough, however, is still to be found in the volumes printed on the subject: Dr. James Gregory's Censorial Letter; Dr. Andrew Duncan's Opinion on a Charge against Dr. James Gregory, 4to, Ed. 1808; Dr. Andrew Duncan's Letter to Dr. Gregory, 8vo, Ed. 1811; Narrative of the Conduct of Dr. James Gregory, published by authority of the Royal College of Physicians, 4to, Edin. 1809.

Contributions from Fellows.

On the 4th August 1795, another attempt to enforce the rigid collection of the fines was made, and the reason of this became apparent on 2nd May 1797, when, the contributions and fines not being sufficient to defray the expenses of the entertainments, the College resolved that in future £5 be paid by each Fellow towards them.

Revision of Laws.

7th February 1804.—A Committee was appointed to revise the Laws with a view to a new edition being issued. This Committee reported progress 1st May 1804, and laid a copy of their Report before the College 7th August 1804.

Second Edition of Laws adopted.

The Report was considered in November, and again in February, when, in consequence of much difference of opinion, it was (5th February 1805) re-committed. The amended Report having been brought up (7th May 1805), the first reading engaged the attention of the College at no fewer than four Meetings. The Laws, however, were finally read a third time and adopted (2nd September 1805), not however, without a protest.

5th November 1805.—It having been stated that the copy of the promissory engagement signed by each Fellow on taking his seat was irretrievably lost, the Clerk was directed to prepare a new one.

4th February 1806.—The new edition of the Laws in print was laid on the table. A new promissory engagement was produced and signed by those present.

6th May 1823.—The Council of the College was appointed a Committee for the purpose of revising the Laws of the College, with a view to the printing of a new edition.

6th May 1823.—The Act of 1754, as far as it regarded the practice of Surgery, was totally repealed, and that part of it relating to the practice of Pharmacy altered as follows:—“If any Fellow or Licentiate of the College shall, by himself, copartner, or servants, keep a public Apothecary’s, Druggist’s, or Chemist’s shop, he shall, ipso facto, forfeit all the rights and privileges which he does, or may, enjoy as a Fellow or Licentiate of the said College, and his name shall be expunged from the List.”

3rd August 1824.—The Committee appointed 6th May 1823 laid on the table proof copies of the Revised Laws; these were considered at no fewer than eleven Meetings of the College, but were never finally adopted.

5th August 1828.—The President having reported that the edition of the Laws, 1805, was exhausted, it was agreed that the Laws which had been in proof for four years should be again revised, for which purpose a Committee was appointed.

4th November 1828.—The Report of the Committee on the Laws was given in; it was ordered to be printed and circulated among the Fellows.

4th August 1829.—The Laws and Regulations of the College as amended were finally adopted.

Members of Council to be fined for absence.

5th November 1833.—A Motion for the infliction of Fines upon the Members of the Council of the College for non-attendance was agreed to.

Proposal for College to grant Licences.

1st August 1837.—A Letter was read from a Fellow of the College, proposing that for the future Candidates for the Licence and Fellowship should not be required to possess Medical Degrees, but that provision should be otherwise made for ascertaining their Qualifications. This subject occupied much of the time of the College, and gave rise to much discussion at many subsequent Meetings. At the succeeding Meeting, 7th November 1837, a Committee was appointed to consider and report upon it.

Legal Opinion.

7th February 1838.—The Report of this Committee was given in, along with the Opinion of Mr. John Hope, Dean of the Faculty of Advocates, and Mr. James Ivory, Advocate, on certain Queries submitted to them regarding it. The remit to the Committee was continued, that they might report further on the matter.

Fees not returned where a Fellow elected died before taking his seat.

19th May 1838.—In consequence of the death of a gentleman who had been balloted for, and admitted a Fellow of the College, but who died before taking his seat, a question arose as to whether his fees of admission should be returned to his heirs. The College resolved that money so paid was the property of the College, and could not be alienated unless in the manner prescribed by law for the alienation of other property.

18th December 1838.—The Report of the Committee on the admission of Fellows was again considered, and the final decision on it postponed.

20th February 1839.—The Report of a Committee on the admission of Fellows was again considered. Two motions were made:—1st, Motion to approve of the Report. 2nd, Motion to disapprove. The vote being taken, the second Motion was carried by the casting vote of the President.

21st March 1843.—The draught of a proposed new Charter for the College was read and approved of. Owing to the prospect continually held out of some measure of Medical Reform being adopted by the Legislature, by which the Charters of all existing bodies would be altered, no further steps were taken to procure this new Charter for the College.

1st August 1843.—Resolved that all property belonging to the College should be invested in Trustees to be chosen by the Council with the approval of the College. The Trustees to be five in number, of whom the Treasurer should be one ex officio.

7th November 1843.—Certain regulations for the examination of Foreign Graduates, which had been several times under the consideration of the College, were read a third time, and passed.

4th November 1846.—A motion that an official costume should be worn by the Fellows was read a second time, and negatived.

4th May 1847.—Resolved that as full a notice as possible of the business to be transacted at the Meetings of the College be given in the Billets by which the Meeting was summoned.

4th May 1847.—Report of Committee on the examination of Fellows proposing to deliver Lectures on the subjects required by Examining Medical Boards, laid on the table.

2nd November 1847.—Regulations in regard to the examination of Fellows proposing to Lecture finally adopted, after being discussed at Meetings held 11th and 14th May and 3rd August 1847.

1st August 1848.—Resolved that the book containing the record of examination of Foreign Graduates should not henceforth be laid on the table, but only a copy of the entry regarding the examination of successful Candidates.

Revision of Laws.

5th November 1850.—Moved that a Committee be appointed to revise the laws, and to report to the Council such suggestions for their improvement as might appear to them desirable; and that the Council, after full consideration of these suggestions, should report them to the College, with their opinion thereon.

Revision of
New Laws.

5th August 1851.—The new Laws, as considered by the Council, were laid on the table, and the following motion was unanimously adopted:—“That, as it is extremely desirable that no Law should be adopted until it has received the fullest possible consideration, the College do now resolve that all proposed amendments on the Laws be given in to the Secretary, in writing, within ten days, and be thereafter considered by the Council and Law Committee conjointly, who shall Report them, with their opinion thereon, at next Meeting of the College.”

It was further resolved, That the amendments to be proposed, with the Opinion of the Council and Committee thereon, should be printed, and circulated among the Fellows previous to the Meeting at which they are to be discussed.

New Laws
adopted.

4th May 1852.—The new Laws were considered for the third time, and agreed to.

2nd November 1852.—Standard Order regulating the manner in which Fellows were to take their seats, unanimously adopted.

2nd August 1853.—The College agreed to petition Parliament on behalf of the Assistant Surgeons of the Royal Navy.

Dr. George Paterson presented to the College a Digested Index of its Proceedings for the first fifty years of its existence, for which he received the “warm thanks” of the College.

Dr. Cullen's
Cane.

1st November 1855.—Mr. Craig, Surgeon, Ratho, presented to the College the cane which had belonged to, and had been used by, the late Dr. Cullen. This cane has since been used as one of the insignia of the Vice-President.

Report on Registration
Bill.

9th May 1854.—A Committee appointed for the purpose, presented a Report on the Bill for the Registration of Births, Deaths, and Marriages. The College adopted the Report, and petitioned in favour of the Bill.

7th August 1855.—A Committee reported on the expediency of having a Meteorological Society established in Scotland.

Legal Opinion as to College Investments.

1st February 1859.—The Trustees submitted to the College the Opinion of Mr. Maitland, Advocate (afterwards Investments.

Lord Barcaple), as to the nature of the Investments which they were warranted in availing themselves of for placing the funds of the College.

8th February 1859.—The College resolved that the funds be withdrawn from investments in companies where a liability might exist for sums beyond those invested.

A Committee was appointed to consider the best means of accommodating the rapidly increasing Library.

The College altered the Laws relating to the election of the Council, and decided that the voting papers should not be signed.

An application from certain Non-Resident Fellows was read, desiring to be admitted to participate in the government of the College.

18th February 1859.—The College agreed to a Memorial to the Chancellor of the Exchequer, praying for relief from the Stamp Duties on the Licence of the College. It was resolved to join with the London and Dublin Colleges of Physicians in sending a deputation to London on the subject.

1st March 1859.—The draft of the new Charter, with the Opinion of Mr. Roundell Palmer (afterwards Lord Chancellor Selborne), was further considered, and ultimately agreed to.

8th March 1859.—The College, on a Report by the Council, resolved to petition in favour of the "Sale of Poisons Bill;" it also resolved not to interfere in regard to two Lunacy Bills which appeared to refer to England exclusively.

29th March 1859.—The President refused to allow the business of an Extraordinary Meeting, called by requisition, to proceed, because the requisitionists had failed to submit their proposed Motion to the Council previously, as required by the Laws of the College.

5th April 1859.—The College, by a majority of one, resolved to admit to examination as Candidates for its Licence, gentlemen who had no previous Medical Degree or Qualification.

24th December 1878.—The College voted two hundred and fifty guineas in aid of the subscription for the relief of the sufferers by the failure of the City of Glasgow Bank.

A letter was read from the Rev. Sir W. G. Carmichael, Bart., requesting the College's acceptance of a marble bust, by Sir John Steell, of the late Dr. James Warburton Begbie. The College accepted the offer, and voted thanks to the donor.

4th February 1879.—The President reported that he and the Council, as representing the College, had by invitation attended the Special Services in St. Giles' Cathedral Church on 22nd December last, on the occasion of the death of the Princess Alice of Hesse.

14th March 1879.—The College having considered the Medical Act (1858) Amendment Bill introduced into the House of Lords by the President of the Council, concluded that it was not expedient that a Conjoint Board be established for each division of the United Kingdom, and that previous to legislation taking place, the whole subject of Medical Reform should be submitted to a Select Committee of Parliament, and instructed the Council to take such steps as they might consider necessary to carry out the wishes of the College.

3rd May 1879.—The College agreed to contribute a sufficient sum to furnish two Medical Wards in the new Royal Infirmary. (The sum required amounted to £630.)

The Council reported that in accordance with the instructions of the College, they had forwarded a petition against the Medical Acts Amendment Bill to both Houses of Parliament.

5th August 1879.—It was reported to the College that the Medical Act Amendment Bill, having passed the House of Lords and been introduced into the House of Commons, had been referred to a Select Committee, and that evidence to a certain extent had already been taken.

16th December 1879.—The College voted a retiring allowance of £75 per annum to their late Officer.

A communication was made from the Presidents of the Royal Colleges of Physicians and Surgeons of London, intimating that it was proposed to hold the next meeting of the International Medical Congress in London in 1881, and requesting to be informed how far the holding of the proposed Congress would meet with the approval and co-operation of this College. The College approved of the proposal, and gave power to the Council to send a Delegate to be present at a Preliminary Meeting, which it was proposed to hold.

24th February 1880.—A Committee was appointed to consider the Laws relative to admission to the Membership and Fellowship of the College, and to report at the next Quarterly Meeting of the College.

The College, by a majority, voted the sum of one hundred guineas towards the fund for the Restoration of St. Giles' Cathedral.

3rd May 1880.—The Committee appointed to consider the Laws relative to admission by Examination to the Membership of the College, laid a Report before the College, which was approved of, and read for a first time.

Widows' Fund.

Additions to Laws.

Proposed Sale of Larchgrove.

Vote towards Congress of Hygiene.

Bequest by late
Dr. Struthers.

22nd May 1891.—The additions to the Laws were read for a second time.

12th June 1891.—The additions to the Laws were read for a third time, and adopted by the College.

The College resolved that it was expedient, in order to obtain a more steady source of endowment for the "Morison Lectureship," to sell Larchgrove, at a price not under £1100.

The College voted a sum of twenty-five guineas towards the International Congress of Hygiene and Demography, to be held in London during August 1891.

4th August 1891.—It was intimated that the late Dr. Struthers, a Fellow of the College, had bequeathed a sum of one thousand pounds "to be added by the College so as to form part of, and be administered in the same manner as, the bequest to the College by the deceased Dr. Pattison of Edinburgh."

5. The College shall grant Licences to practise Medicine and Midwifery, the holders of which shall be entitled Licentiates of the College. (See Chapter IV.)

6. The College shall grant Diplomas of qualification in Public Health, the holders of which shall be designated Diplomates in Public Health of the College.

CHAPTER II.

Of Fellows.

1. The Fellows of the College on the Roll of Attendance shall administer the property and affairs of the College, enact its Laws, elect Fellows and Members, admit Licentiates, and elect the President and Council.

2. No one shall be elected a Fellow of the College until he has been at least one year a Member thereof, and has attained the age of twenty-five years.

3. Every motion for the election of a Fellow shall be made at a Quarterly Meeting of Fellows by one of the Fellows present, and seconded by another; and this motion shall be determined by ballot at the next Quarterly Meeting of Fellows,—a majority of three-fourths being necessary to carry it in the affirmative.

4. The names and addresses of Candidates for admission as Fellows, with the names of their proposers and seconds, shall be announced by Billet to the Fellows on the Roll of Attendance, within one week from the date of the Meeting at which the motion for their election has been made. The names and addresses here referred to shall be repeated in the Billet (Chapter X., Law 9) summoning the Meeting at which the motion for election is to be determined.

5. If an urgent reason, satisfactory to the Council, be assigned, a Candidate may be proposed at an Extra-ordinary Meeting of the Fellows summoned for the purpose, and his petition may be balloted for at an Extraordinary Meeting of the Fellows summoned for the purpose ; provided that the holding of this Special Meeting be agreed to by a majority of five-sixths of the Fellows present at the Meeting at which the Candidate was proposed ; provided also that not less than one week intervene between the two Meetings, and that due notice of the intended ballot be given in the Billets summoning the second Meeting. The Candidate shall in this case pay to the Treasurer a sum of ten guineas in addition to the ordinary Fees.

6. No Fellow shall take his seat in the College until the next Quarterly Meeting after his election,—intimation to attend being sent to him by the Clerk.

7. The Fellows shall be placed on the Roll according to the date of their election. When two or more Fellows are elected on the same day, they shall be entered on the Roll according to the date of their Membership ; and if their election as Members be of the same date, they shall be enrolled according to seniority of original qualification.

8. Every Fellow resident within five miles from the General Post Office of Edinburgh shall, on his admission, have his name placed on the Roll of Attendance, and

 - (c) General Pathology and Morbid Anatomy ;
 - (d) Medical Jurisprudence ;
 - (e) Public Health ;
 - (f) Midwifery ;
 - (g) Diseases of Women.

Council to prepare Plan of Examination.

4. The Council shall annually, at the Quarterly Meeting of the College in August, submit to the College the Plan of Examination for the Membership, and the dates at which it is proposed that the Examinations shall be held.

Mode of Application.

5. Application for the Membership shall be made through the Secretary, who shall transmit to the Candidate a copy of the Regulations and Plan of Examination, together with a Petition in terms of the Form in the Appendix No. IV.

Must produce Testimonials.

6. The Candidate shall return the Petition duly filled up to the Secretary, and shall at the same time transmit testimonials of recent date from well-known members of the profession, certifying as to his professional and social standing. These documents shall be submitted to the Council, who shall also employ such other methods of scrutiny as they may deem necessary. If satisfied as to the eligibility of the Candidate, the Council shall authorize his examination by the Board of Examiners, who shall report the result of the Examination to the Council. If the report of the Examiners be satisfactory, the Council shall report the same to the College at the next Quarterly Meeting, when it shall be competent for a motion to be made for the election of such Candidate to the Membership of the College.

7. If any Candidate who has attained the age of forty years, and has been a Registered Practitioner for not less than ten years, shall produce Testimonials showing that he has been distinguished for his scientific attainments, or eminence as a Medical Practitioner, the Council may, if they see fit, exempt him from the whole or any part of the prescribed Examination.

8. Every motion for the election of a Member shall be made at a Quarterly Meeting of the College by one of the Fellows present, and seconded by another, and the motion shall be determined by ballot at the next Quarterly Meeting; a majority of three-fourths of the Fellows present being necessary to carry it in the affirmative.

9. The names, qualifications, and addresses of Candidates, along with the names of their proposers and seconders, shall be announced by Billet to the Fellows on the Roll of Attendance, within one week from the date of the Meeting at which the motion for election has been made. The names, qualifications, and addresses here referred to shall be repeated in the Billet summoning the Meeting at which the motion for election is to be determined.

10. The Members shall be placed on the Roll of Members according to the date of their Diplomas of Membership; and when two or more Members are

6. All Applicants for Licence or Diploma, and all Candidates for Membership or Fellowship, must lodge their Fees, and the amount of Stamp-duty payable at the time to Government, with the Treasurer, previously to presenting their petitions.

CHAPTER VII.

Of Forfeiture of Fellowships, Memberships, and Licences.

1. No Fellow or Member of the College shall by himself, co-partners, or servants, keep a public Apothecary's, Druggist's, or Chemist's shop. If any Fellow or Member of the College shall by himself, co-partners, or servants keep a public Apothecary's, Druggist's, or Chemist's shop, he shall, ipso facto, forfeit all the rights and privileges which he does or may enjoy as a Fellow or Member of the College, and his name shall be expunged from the College List.

2. Any Fellow, Member, or Licentiate of the College who shall, in accordance with the provisions of the Medical Act, Section XXIX., have his name removed from the Medical Register, shall be deprived, ipso facto, of his Fellowship, Membership, or Licence to practise, as given by the College.

3. If any Fellow, Member, Licentiate, or Diplomate in Public Health shall have been convicted by the Law Courts of the country in which he resides of any felony, misdemeanour, crime, or offence, or shall, after due inquiry, be judged by the College to have been guilty of infamous conduct in any professional respect, the College may, if they see fit, expel him from the College, and deprive him of his Fellowship, Membership, Licence, or Diploma in Public Health, and of all the rights and privileges which as Fellow, Member, Licentiate, or Diplomate in Public Health he does or may enjoy.

Censure or Suspension.

4. Every Fellow, Member, Licentiate, and Diplomate in Public Health shall at all times conduct himself in a becoming and professional manner. Any Fellow, Member, Licentiate, or Diplomate in Public Health who shall, after due inquiry, be judged by the Fellows to have acted in an unbecoming or unprofessional manner, may be censured, or may be deprived, for such time as the Fellows may determine, of all the rights and privileges which as Fellow, Member, Licentiate, or Diplomate in Public Health he does or may enjoy.

Mode of Procedure.

5. The proceedings for censure, suspension, or expulsion shall be the following:—The motion for the censure, suspension, or expulsion of the Fellow, Member, Licentiate, or Diplomate in Public Health shall contain a statement of the offence of which the Fellow, Member, Licentiate, or Diplomate in Public Health is accused. This motion shall be submitted to the Council, and shall be laid by them, with their opinion thereon, before a Meeting of the Fellows, at which it shall be proposed and seconded. A vote of the Fellows shall then be taken, as to whether it is expedient to entertain the motion; and in the event of its being decided by a Majority that the motion shall be entertained, the further proceedings shall be the following:—The motion shall be determined at another Meeting of the Fellows, summoned at an interval of not less than three months after the first. The object of both these Meetings shall be announced in the Billets summoning the Meetings; and the Billets shall be issued one week previous to each Meeting. A majority of not less than three-fourths of the Fellows present shall be required to carry the motion.

Clerk to send notice to accused.

6. The Clerk shall, within three clear days after the Meeting at which the motion has been proposed, transmit a copy of it to the Fellow, Member, Licentiate, or Diplomate in Public Health accused. It shall be held sufficient evidence of this Law having been complied with, if the notice has been posted in registered envelope with the address of the Fellow, Member, Licentiate, or Diplomate in Public Health as given in the latest issue of the Medical Register.

7. The Fellow, Member, Licentiate, or Diplomate in Public Health accused may appear and plead either personally, or by a Representative, at the Meeting at which the motion is to be considered.

8. It shall be in the power of the Council to shorten the period of three months between the tabling and determining of the motion, should the Fellow, Member, Licentiate, or Diplomate in Public Health accused petition to that effect.

The accused to appear by himself or Representative.

Council may shorten period of three months.

CHAPTER VIII.

Of the Election of Office-Bearers.

1. At the Annual Meeting for the Election of Office-Bearers (vide Chapter X., Law 1), it shall be competent for any Fellow to propose one of the Fellows present, as President; and on his motion being seconded by another Fellow, the Fellow so nominated shall be elected President, if no other name be proposed. If, however, another name or names be duly proposed and seconded, a vote shall be taken, and the Fellow having the greatest number of votes shall be President of the College for the ensuing year.

President not to hold office for more than two years consecutively.

2. The newly-elected President shall take the Chair, and nominate a Vice-President.

3. The President shall then nominate three of the Fellows present, not being in the Council, as Scrutineers. Thereupon the roll of the Fellows shall be called by the Clerk. Each Fellow present, as his name is called, shall then place on the table before the President a paper signed with his name, containing the names of six Fellows on the Roll of Attendance whom he may desire to elect to be, with the President, the Council of the College for the ensuing year. The Scrutineers shall, without leaving the room, arrange these Lists, and report to the College what names have received the greatest number of votes. Should any List be found incorrect, it shall be returned for correction to the Fellow who signed it; or if he should have left the meeting, it shall be destroyed.

4. The Council of the College, who shall be Electors of the other Office-Bearers, shall within seven days make choice of a Treasurer, a Secretary, a Librarian, a Curator of Museum, a Curator of Laboratory, and a Registrar of Licentiates, all of whom must be Fellows of the College; and of Examiners, a Clerk, an Auditor, a Superintendent of Laboratory, a Sub-Librarian, and an Officer. These Office-Bearers shall continue in office for one year.

5. The Clerk shall announce by billet the names of the Office-Bearers.

6. The same Fellow may be elected President for two years successively, but not for any longer consecutive period, unless by the consent of three-fourths of the Fellows present. But the same Fellow may be re-elected after having been out of office for two years.

7. In the event of the outgoing President having a majority of votes, but not a sufficient number to entitle him to re-election, the Fellow having the next highest number of votes shall not be declared President, but a new nomination (from which the retiring President shall be excluded) shall be made, and a new vote be taken, and the Fellow having the greatest number of votes shall be declared President for the ensuing year.

8. The other Office-Bearers may be re-elected for an unlimited number of years.

9. In the event of the death or resignation of any Office-Bearer, with the exception of the President or a Member of Council, during the currency of the year, the Council, in accordance with other Laws, shall have power to fill up the vacancy, such appointment to continue in force until the next Election Meeting.

If retiring President have not enough of votes, another election necessary.

6. In the absence of the President, his duties and powers shall devolve upon the Vice-President.

§ 2. THE COUNCIL.

1. The word Council shall mean the Council of the College for the time being. The Council shall consist of the President and six of the Fellows resident within seven miles of the General Post Office in Edinburgh, and shall be elected annually, at the Election Meeting fixed by the Bye-Laws; but the acts of the Council shall not be invalidated by the existence of any vacancy in the offices of President, or Member of Council, or by any informality, afterwards discovered, in the election or appointment of any such President or Member of Council. Four Members shall be a quorum.

2. The Council shall elect the Examiners of the College, and shall also elect a Treasurer, Secretary, Clerk, and such other Office-Bearers as may be deemed necessary, annually, and as often as occasion may require or vacancies occur by death, resignation, or otherwise, in accordance with the Bye-Laws.

3. The Council shall, with the approval of the Fellows, nominate four Fellows, who, along with the Treasurer, shall be Trustees of the College, and shall fill up vacancies as they arise by death, resignation, or otherwise.

4. In the event of an Office-Bearer not being elected on the day appointed for the election of such, or if the person elected does not accept office, the previous occupant of such office shall continue to fill the same until his successor is appointed.

5. If any Member of Council die or resign before the expiration of the year or other time for which he shall have been elected, the Fellows present at an Ordinary Meeting of the College, or at an Extraordinary one called as provided, may elect a Member of Council, who shall serve for the remainder of the year of office or other time for which the Member dying or resigning was elected.

Vacancies in Council.

6. The Council may call Extraordinary Meetings of the Fellows for the consideration and disposal of any special business of the College at any time when the same shall be deemed necessary.

1. At the appointment of every Committee (except standing Committees), a time shall be fixed for the business being finished which the College entrusts to it.
2. No expenses shall be incurred by Committees without a special vote of the College, and a limitation of the sum to be expended.
3. Committees appointed at one Quarterly Meeting shall bring up written Reports to the next Quarterly Meeting, unless it has been otherwise determined.
4. A Committee shall be held as discharged when its final Report has been laid before the College.

§ 4. THE TREASURER.

1. The Treasurer shall receive, disburse, and be accountable, for the Funds of the College.
2. He may pay, without any special order, the ordinary expenses of the College, but shall not pay or disburse any other sum without previous direction to that effect from the Council.
3. He shall balance his Accounts every year on the 20th day of January, or, if that day shall happen to be Sunday, on the 19th January, and shall deliver, or cause to be delivered, to the Quarterly Meeting in February, the Auditor's Abstract and Statement of Accounts, containing his Charge and Discharge of the money belonging to the College, with a true state of his Accounts.
4. He shall keep a Regular Book of Accounts, containing the various items of Income and Expenditure for the year, which Book shall be produced yearly at the February Meeting.

5. He shall keep a Book containing a statement of the Capital Account, which Book shall also be produced yearly at the February Meeting.

6. He may retain £20 in his hands; but any surplus above that shall be lodged in the Banking-house where the cash account of the College is kept; and when the funds so lodged shall exceed £500, as ascertained at the next Meeting of the Trustees of the College, such sum shall be placed on deposit receipt, in name of the Trustees, till an available security is found.

7. If at any time he shall have occasion to overdraw the cash account of the College, he shall on no account do so without the direct authority of the Council.

8. He may expend the sum of £5 on such repairs on the buildings as may be necessary; but when the expense exceeds that sum, he shall previously obtain the authority of the Council.

9. All papers and vouchers relating to the property of the College shall be lodged by the Treasurer in the Safe of the College, and the key retained by him.

10. After the Treasurer's Accounts have been approved of, he shall see that the Report be regularly transcribed by the Clerk into the Minute-Book of the College.

11. He shall, previously to the last Meeting of Council before the Quarterly Meeting in November of each year, give to the Clerk a list of the Trustees who may have been absent from any of the Meetings, in order that the penalties exigible from them may be collected and included in the Annual Statement of the contributions and fines.

13. He shall also, subject to the control of the Council, act as Manager of all entertainments given by the College, as well as of all ceremonies in which the Fellows may take part.

14. On the resignation or retirement of the Treasurer, his books and relative vouchers shall be examined by a Committee appointed for the purpose, and if found correct, he shall be exonerated from his intromissions with the funds of the College. He shall also hand over all documents and papers in his custody, with a proper inventory thereof, to his successor in office, whose receipt for the same shall free him from all further responsibility regarding them.

15. The Treasurer shall be authorized to employ a Clerk for the necessary clerical work connected with his office.

§ 5. THE AUDITOR.

1. The Auditor, who shall be a Chartered Accountant, shall examine the Treasurer's Annual Accounts and frame an Abstract thereof, to be printed and submitted to the College at the Quarterly Meeting in February.

2. He shall also prepare a Statement of the funds and property of the College, to be printed and circulated with the Abstract.

3. For these services he shall receive such Fee as the Council may from time to time fix.

§ 6. THE TRUSTEES.

1. The Trustees shall consist of the Treasurer, and four Fellows to be selected by the Council, subject to the approval of the College.

How appointed.

2. They shall invest all property belonging to the College, in the name of the College, in its corporate capacity, with the exception of the amount allowed to be retained in the Bank and in the Treasurer's hands (see Chap. IX., Sect. 4, Law 6).

All Property to be vested in name of the College.

3. They shall hold two stated Meetings in the year, viz.—on the second Tuesday of May and November, and shall also meet at such other times as the duties imposed upon them in regard to the property of the College may require (Chap. XIV., Laws 3 to 5).

4. The Examiners shall have power to conduct the Examinations at such times as the Council may select, and to adjourn them as often as may seem advisable.

§ 8. THE SECRETARY.

1. The Secretary shall take charge of all the correspondence of the College, and cause copies of all his important letters to be entered by the Clerk, or otherwise, in the Letter-Book of the College.

2. He shall, at all Meetings of the College or Council, take himself, or cause to be taken by the Clerk, Minutes of the Proceedings, and shall see that they are properly extended, and, after approval, engrossed in the respective Minute-Books.

3. He shall submit to the College the Opinion of the Council on all motions or other matters of business which have been considered by them, and shall give such explanations to the College as the Council may direct.

4. He shall, in conjunction with the President, sign all Diplomas issued by the College.

5. He shall keep under his custody all the copper-plates on which are engraved the forms of Diplomas, and also the lithographed or printed forms of Petition for the Fellowship and Membership.

6. He shall keep under his custody, in the Safe of the College, the various Minute-Books, Letters, and Papers belonging to the College. The Current Letter-Book and Minutes of Council he may keep in his own house, but the Minute-Book of the College is, on no account whatever, to be removed from the building.

7. He shall allow access to these Minutes at all times to the Fellows of the College; but it shall be in the power of the Council to authorize the Secretary to withhold the Minutes of the Council as to any particular business still in dependence. Other parties shall only be permitted to inspect them on making written application to the Council and receiving its sanction.

8. He shall arrange for summoning all Meetings of the College and Council, and shall take care that the programme of the business to be transacted at each Meeting is duly entered in the Billet by which the Meeting is called. He shall also, previously to each Quarterly or Extraordinary Meeting of the College, cause a programme of the business to be suspended in the Reading-Room.

9. He shall, previously to the Meeting of Council before the Quarterly Meeting of the College in November of each year, give to the Clerk a list of Members of the Council who may have been absent from any of the Meetings, in order that the fines exigible from them may be collected and included in the Annual Statement of the contributions and fines.

§ 9. THE REGISTRAR.

1. The Registrar shall have charge of the whole correspondence regarding applications for the Licence and other qualifications granted by the College.

2. The Registrar shall make the necessary arrangements for Candidates appearing before the several Examining Boards.

3. The same Fellow may hold the office of Secretary and Registrar.

4. The Registrar shall receive for his services such salary as the Council may from time to time determine.

To arrange for summoning Meetings of College or Council.

To report absentees from Meetings of Council.

Duties of Registrar.

To arrange for Examinations.

May also be Secretary.

Remuneration.

§ 10. THE LIBRARIAN.

To have control of Library.

1. The Librarian, who shall be Convener of the Library Committee, shall have the general control of the Library, and superintend the ordering of Books, and the performance of the duties of the Library by the Sub-Librarian.

To register
absentees from Library
Committee.

2. He shall, previously to the Meeting of Council before the Quarterly Meeting of the College in November of each year, give to the Clerk a list of Members of the Library Committee who may have been absent from any of the Meetings of the Committee, and also of those Fellows who may have committed any breach of the Regulations of the Library, in order that the fines exigible from them may be included in the Annual Statement of the contributions and fines, and collected.

§ 11. THE SUB-LIBRARIAN.

Duties.

1. The Sub-Librarian shall have sole charge of the Library, under the Librarian and the Library Committee. The Sub-Librarian alone shall remove Books from the shelves, give them out, take them in, and replace them on the shelves. For these purposes he shall have the assistance of the Porter.

Hours of Attendance.

2. The Sub-Librarian's hours of attendance at the Library shall be from 10 A.M. to 1 P.M., and from 4 to 6 P.M., and on Saturday from 10 A.M. to 12 noon; and no Books shall be given out except at these hours. He shall have every Sunday free, and also all public holidays. He shall have the month of September for his annual holiday; but for this period, as well as for any time of sickness, he shall provide a substitute to be approved by the Library Committee.

3. He shall regularly enter all Books, purchased or presented to the College, in the Library Journal kept for that purpose, and in the Alphabetical Catalogue.

4. He shall receive and execute the instructions of the Librarian and Library Committee regarding the concerns of the Library; and shall also attend all Meetings of the Library Committee.

Registers to be kept.

To execute instructions of Librarian.

§ 12. THE CURATOR OF MUSEUM.

1. The Curator of Museum, who shall be Convener of the Museum Committee, shall have the general control of the Museum, and the superintendence of the duties connected therewith.

2. He shall, previously to the Meeting of Council before the Quarterly Meeting of the College in November of each year, give to the Clerk a list of Members of the Museum Committee who may have been absent from any of the Meetings of the Committee, in order that the fines exigible from them may be included in the Annual Statement of the contributions and fines, and collected.

To have control of Museum.

To register Absentees from Museum Committee.

§ 13. THE CURATOR OF LABORATORY.

1. The Curator of Laboratory, who shall be Convener of the Laboratory Committee, shall have the general control of the Laboratory, and shall exercise a general supervision over the performance of the duties of the Laboratory by the Superintendent.

2. Every year, previously to the Meeting of Council before the Quarterly Meeting of the College in February,

To have control of Laboratory.

To report on Annual Work in Laboratory.

the Curator shall submit to the Council a written Report regarding the year's work done in the Laboratory, and the expenditure incurred. This Report, along with the Report of the Council upon it, shall thereafter be submitted to the College at the Quarterly Meeting in February.

To register
Absentees from Laboratory
Committee.

3. He shall, previously to the Meeting of Council before the Quarterly Meeting of the College in November of each year, give to the Clerk a list of Members of the Laboratory Committee who may have been absent from any of the Meetings of Committee, in order that the fines exigible from them may be included in the Annual Statement of the contributions and fines, and collected.

Responsibilities.

§ 14. THE SUPERINTENDENT OF LABORATORY.

1. The Superintendent of Laboratory shall be held responsible for the maintenance of order in the Laboratory, and for the safe keeping of all instruments and apparatus.

Duties.

2. He shall devote such portion of his time as may be determined by the Council to the work of the Laboratory, where, under the supervision of the Curator and Committee, he shall himself undertake the prosecution of Original Research, and be prepared to assist, if required to do so, in the work of other investigators. He shall also be prepared to furnish Fellows of the College with Reports on such matters as the histology of morbid specimens, and the chemical and microscopical characters of urines.

Remuneration.

3. For the performance of these duties he shall receive such salary as the Council may from time to time determine.

§ 15. THE CLERK.

1. The Clerk shall attend all the Meetings of the College, the Quarterly Meetings of the Council, and any other Meetings of the Council, or of any of the Committees at which his assistance may be required.

To attend Meeting of College or Council.

2. In the event of the Clerk being unavoidably prevented from attending a Meeting, some competent person deputed by him may attend in his place. But the Clerk shall in no case be absent without such properly qualified substitute, for whom he shall be considered responsible; and he shall in each case furnish a sufficient excuse to the College for his own absence.

When absent, shall provide a Substitute.

3. He shall call the Roll at the commencement and close of each Meeting of the College, and register the fines against those who are late, or absent.

To call Roll.

4. He shall read the Minutes of the College, and any Petitions of Candidates for admission as Fellows or Members.

To read Minutes and Petitions.

5. He shall, at each Meeting of the College, minute the proceedings, and shall subsequently extend them under the direction of the Secretary.

To keep Minutes.

6. He shall submit the draft of the Minute so prepared to the Quarterly Meeting of Council previously to its being read at the next Quarterly Meeting of the College. He shall, within four days after each Minute has received the sanction of the College, cause it to be engrossed in the Minute-Book, and enter the separate items in the Index.

To submit Minutes to Council.

7. He shall, when directed by the Secretary, copy all letters or other documents which the interests of the College may require.

To engross Minutes in the Minute-Book.

To copy all Documents required by College.

To collect Fines.

8. He shall, on or before the Quarterly Meeting in November, annually collect all the fines incurred by Fellows, and shall keep a regular statement of them and of the contributions, which he shall annually submit to the Auditor of the Accounts.

To engross Financial Statements.

9. He shall engross all Financial Statements that have been approved of by the College, in the Account and Minute-Book of the College.

To issue Billets.

10. He shall issue the Billets summoning the Meetings of the College, with such list of the business to be transacted as shall be furnished him by the Secretary.

To intimate to Fellows names of Candidates.

11. He shall intimate to every Fellow on the Roll of Attendance, the names of Candidates for the Fellowship and Membership, within one week after the Meeting at which the motion for their election has been made.

To intimate to Fellows and Members their election.

12. He shall intimate to Fellows and Members their election, and to Fellows the time when they are expected to take their seats in the College.

To transmit motion accusing any Fellow, etc.

13. He shall, within three days of the proposal of any motion, for the censure, suspension, or expulsion of a Fellow, Member, or Licentiate, transmit a copy of the motion to the Fellow, Member, or Licentiate accused.

To arrange papers, and prepare Annual Index.

14. He shall, before the 31st of January of each year, arrange the papers and vouchers of the College for the past year, and shall prepare an Index of the same, to be given to the Secretary for custody.

Salary.

15. For these services he shall receive an annual salary, the amount of which shall be determined by the Council; and a further sum of two guineas for attendance at and engrossing the Minutes of each Extraordinary Meeting at which his presence may be required.

§ 16. THE OFFICER.

1. He shall be elected by the Council, and hold his office during their pleasure.
How to be chosen.
2. He shall reside in the apartments provided for him in the College; and shall give his whole time to the performance of the business of the College.
To reside in College.
3. He shall be subject to such bye-laws as may be from time to time enacted by the Council.
To deliver Billets and other Papers.
4. Besides coal, gas, and apartments, he shall receive such salary as the Council may appoint.
Salary.

CHAPTER X.

Of the Meetings of the College.

1. A Meeting of the Fellows of the College on the Roll of Attendance shall be held annually, at four o'clock in the afternoon, on St. Andrew's Day, if it shall happen to fall on a Thursday; and if not, on the first Thursday thereafter,—for the sole purpose of electing Office-Bearers for the year ensuing.
Election Meeting.

2. The Ordinary Quarterly Meetings shall be held on the first Tuesday of February, of May, of August, and of November, at four o'clock in the afternoon.
Quarterly Meetings of Fellows.

3. On the Tuesday preceding each Quarterly Meeting, the Council shall meet in the Hall at such hour as they may from time to time determine, to consider the business which is to be brought before the Fellows on the Tuesday following, and to instruct the Secretary or Clerk as to the notices to be circulated in the Billets, which shall be issued on the same evening.

4. The business of the College shall be managed solely by the Fellows on the Roll of Attendance, twelve of whom shall be a quorum.

5. The President or Council may call Extraordinary Meetings of the Fellows when deemed necessary; the business for these Meetings shall be arranged by the Council, and printed in the Billets summoning the Meeting.

6. The President shall be bound to call an Extraordinary Meeting of the Fellows, on a requisition to that effect, specifying the purpose of such Meeting, and signed by any five of the Fellows, being delivered to him or to the Secretary of the College.

7. The President, Secretary, or Treasurer may severally call a Meeting of the Council when they think it necessary.

8. Every Fellow of the College resident in Great Britain and Ireland, whose name is on the Roll of Attendance, shall be summoned to the Meetings of the College. The summons shall be by a Billet specifying the day and hour, and the business to be transacted at the Meeting.

9. The Billets summoning the Meetings, and, generally, all intimations required by the laws of the College, may be sent by post; and, in this case, the fact of such Billets having been posted to the address in Great Britain or Ireland last furnished to the Clerk by any Fellow, shall be held to be sufficient evidence of legal delivery. The Billets for Fellows resident in Edinburgh, or in the Extended Royalty thereof, may be delivered by the officer; and, in this case, proof of a Billet being delivered at the last address furnished to the Clerk shall be held to be sufficient evidence of legal delivery.

CHAPTER XI.

Of the Order of Business.

§ 1. OF ELECTION MEETINGS.

The business shall be transacted in the form prescribed in Chapter VIII.

Election Meetings.

§ 2. OF THE QUARTERLY MEETINGS OF FELLOWS.

1. The Clerk shall read the Minutes of the last Quarterly Meeting, and of all subsequent Meetings of the Fellows. These Minutes, when approved of, shall be signed by the President, or by the Chairman for the time being.

Minutes of former Meetings.

2. Newly elected Fellows shall be introduced.

Petitions.

3. Petitions of Candidates for admission as Fellows shall be considered.

4. Ballots for admission to the Fellowship shall take place.

8. Reports of Committees shall be received and discussed.

Reports.

9. Any other business, according to the Laws, shall then be brought forward. (Vide Chap. XII.)

Other business.

§ 3. OF EXTRAORDINARY MEETINGS OF FELLOWS.

Extraordinary Meetings.

The order of business shall be the same as in Sec. 2, except that no Minutes shall be read, and that no business shall be transacted except that for which the Meeting has been summoned.

§ 4. FORMS APPLICABLE TO ALL MEETINGS.

President to be in Chair.

1. All Meetings shall be constituted by the President taking the chair, at the hour appointed ; and all Meetings shall be dissolved or adjourned by the President leaving the chair.

2. The President shall be addressed by those who speak in the Meetings.

3. In the event of the President being absent, the Vice-President shall take the chair ; and in the absence of both, the chair shall be taken by the Senior member of Council present.

4. At the commencement and close of all Meetings, the Clerk shall call the Roll of Attendance, and he shall fine those who are absent.

5. Notice of all business to be transacted at the Meetings of the College shall be circulated with the Billets ; and in the case of Billets for the election of Fellows and Members, or for the forfeiture of Fellowships, Memberships, and Licences, or in the case of motions affecting the Property and Laws of the College, the Billets must be issued at least one week before the day of Meeting, and must be otherwise in accordance with the Bye-Laws.

6. No business shall be transacted of which notice has not been given in the Billet.

Chairman in absence of President.

Roll-call.

Notice of all Business to be given in the Billets.

No Business without Notice.

CHAPTER XII.

Of Motions, Laws, and Protests.

1. No business can be taken up at any Meeting of the College, other than that specially provided for in the Laws, unless it has been first considered and reported on by the Council, or by a Committee appointed by the College for the purpose.

Business to be first submitted to the Council.

2. All business shall be brought before the College, either in the form of a Report by the Council or a Committee, or of a Motion by a Fellow of the College.

Form in which Business shall be brought before the College.

3. When business is to be brought before the College by a Report, it shall either be circulated with the Billets summoning the Meeting, or be laid on the Library table for the consideration of the Fellows, at least six clear days before the Meeting ; and of this due notice shall be given in the Billets.

Reports to be circulated among the Fellows.

4. No Report, or recommendation contained in a Report, shall be approved, disapproved, or otherwise dealt with by the College, unless by a motion or amendment duly proposed and seconded.

Approval or disapproval of Reports.

5. When business is to be brought before the College by a motion, a copy thereof shall be sent to the Secretary at least ten clear days before the Meeting of the College at which it is proposed to be discussed.

Motions to be sent to Secretary.

6. The Secretary shall submit any motion so received by him to a Meeting of the Council, to be held at least six clear days before the Meeting of the College at which the said motion is to be considered ; and the Council shall report their opinion of the expediency of passing the motion to the said Meeting of the College, or refer it simpliciter to the College.

Copy of Motion to be circulated.

Any Fellow may move approval or disapproval of Report.

No Motion unconnected with Report to be entertained.

Votes to be decided by a majority.

Procedure in regard to Motions for altering Laws.

Restriction in speaking.

Fellows may protest against any decision.

7. The Secretary shall cause a copy of the proposed motion, or an abstract thereof, to be circulated with the Billets summoning the Meeting at which it is to be brought forward, and the motion itself to be suspended in that part of the College where notices are usually posted. No motion which has appeared in the Billet shall be withdrawn without the consent of the College.

8. It shall be lawful for any Fellow, at any Meeting of the College, to move the approval or disapproval of any Report and of any recommendation contained in such Report, or to propose, either in the way of motion or amendment, any modification of any such recommendation.

9. It shall not be lawful under the foregoing Law for any Fellow, while a Report is under consideration, to table any motion or amendment relating to matters not brought before the College in the Report.

10. All motions shall be determined by the votes of a majority, except in cases otherwise provided for in the Laws.

11. Motions for the abrogation or alteration of a Law shall be approved of by three several Meetings of the College before they are adopted, a vote being taken for or against at each Meeting. Should such a motion, however, at its first or second reading, be approved of by five-sixths of the Fellows present, it may be immediately adopted and acted on as a temporary regulation.

12. No Fellow shall speak oftener than once on a motion, except the mover, who shall have a right to reply, after which the debate shall be concluded.

13. Any Fellow present at a Meeting may protest in his own name, and in the name of those present who may adhere to him, against any decision come to by the College. The reasons for such protest shall be assigned either at the time, or shall be given in at the next Meeting of the College.

14. It shall not be lawful to take any exception to the Minutes, except on the ground that their narrative of the res gestæ is inaccurate, or that the Meeting in question had not been properly summoned.

15. The College may reject any document, protest, or instrument, the language of which may be considered objectionable, until amended to the satisfaction of the College.

16. The Standing Orders may be suspended on the motion of any Fellow, on his submitting to the President or Chairman a motion in writing setting forth the subject proposed to be discussed, and the reasons for regarding it as urgent. The proposer shall not speak in support of the proposal to suspend the Standing Orders. The President or Chairman shall read the motion from the Chair, and the College shall, without debate, proceed to vote whether or not the Standing Orders shall be suspended. A majority of two-thirds of the Fellows present shall be required to carry the motion.

Protest cannot be entered against Minutes, unless inaccurate, or Meeting not properly summoned.

College may reject protests of which language is objectionable.

Standing Orders may be suspended.

CHAPTER XIII.

Of the Contributions and Fines.

1. Every Fellow who shall be absent during the Meeting for Election, or during any of the Quarterly Meetings, shall pay a fine of 2s. 6d.

For absence at Election or Quarterly Meeting.

For absence at Extraordinary Meeting.

Fine for not answering to Name.

Fine for absence of Clerk ;

for absence from Council ;

for absence from Library or Museum Committee ;

for absence from Meeting of Trustees ;

for excuses for absence ;

for Annual Contribution.

Clerk to lay before Council annually a list of Fines.

Amount of Fines to be intimated to each Fellow.

Clerk shall be bound to show each Fellow a list of his Fines.

2. Every Fellow who shall be absent during an Extraordinary Meeting shall be fined 1s.

3. Every Fellow who shall not answer to his name when the Roll is called at the beginning or end of any Meeting, shall be fined 6d.

4. If the Clerk be absent without an excuse satisfactory to the Fellows, and without sending a properly qualified substitute, he shall pay a fine of 5s.

5. At the Quarterly Meetings of Council, any Member of Council absent during the whole Meeting shall be fined 2s. 6d., and at all other Meetings of Council, 1s.

6. All Members of Committee absent from a Meeting of the Library, Museum, or Laboratory Committee shall be fined 1s. for every such absence.

7. Trustees absent from a Meeting of Trustees shall be fined 2s. 6d. for every such absence.

8. No excuse shall be sustained for absence from the Meetings, except confinement to the house by illness.

9. Each Fellow on the Roll of Attendance shall pay annually, at the Quarterly Meeting held in November, one guinea of contribution, and such fines as he may have incurred, whether his domicile be in Scotland or not.

10. The Clerk shall annually make up, and lay before the Quarterly Meeting of the Council previous to the Quarterly Meeting of the College in November, a list of the fines incurred by Fellows during the past year.

11. The gross amount of fines due by each Fellow shall be appended to the Billet summoning him to the Quarterly Meeting of the Fellows in November.

12. The Clerk shall be bound, on application, to show to any Fellow a list of the separate occasions on which he has been fined.

13. The Council shall meet within ten days after the November meeting of the Fellows, for the purpose of considering appeals against fines.

Council shall consider Appeals against Fines.

14. All appeals shall be sent to the Clerk in writing, and signed by the appellant; and the Council shall have power to adjourn, if necessary, and to request the appellant to attend, for the purpose of giving such explanation as may be desired.

Appeals to be given in to the Clerk in writing.

15. No appeal shall be received after the lapse of one year from the Quarterly Meeting of the College in November.

No Appeal to be received after a year.

16. Any Fellow who may be in arrear of his annual contributions and fines for a longer period than two years, shall, after due intimation having twice been given to him, at the interval of a month, be deprived of the use of the Library and Reading-Room, and of the privilege of attending the Meetings of the College, and shall have his name struck off the Roll of Attendance. No Fellow who is in arrear of his contribution and fines for two years shall be allowed to vote at the election of Office-Bearers.

Penalties for being in arrears.

CHAPTER XIV.

Of the Property of the College.

1. No motion tending to alienate any part of the property of the College, or apply it to other than the ordinary purposes of the College, shall be discussed except at Extraordinary Meetings called for the purpose. No such alienation shall take place unless approved of by a majority of three-fourths of the Fellows present, at three several Meetings, eight days at least intervening between each.

Motions tending to alienate the Property of the College.

Of Money Votes.

2. No sum of money shall be voted in donation, subscription, or otherwise, excepting for the ordinary expenses of the College, till the propriety thereof has been considered at two several Meetings, eight days at least intervening between each. One of these may be a Quarterly Meeting, provided intimation of the proposal has been given in the Billets; and there must be a majority of three-fourths of the Fellows present at each of these two Meetings, to give effect to such a proposal. But if the sum proposed do not exceed twenty-five guineas sterling, it shall be competent for the Fellows, by a majority of three-fourths of the Fellows present, to vote such sum immediately at any Meeting, Quarterly or Extraordinary, provided in either case notice has been given in the Billets summoning the Meeting.

All Property to be vested in the College or Trustees.

3. The securities for all the sums of money or property that may belong to, or constitute any part or portion of the funds of the College, and all heritable rights connected therewith, shall be conceived and taken to and in favour of the College in its corporate name, or in favour of the persons who may be Trustees for the time being, and to their successors in office.

How to be invested.

4. The Trustees shall have power to lend out and invest the monies belonging to the College on heritable or moveable, real or personal securities, in terms of the Charter.

Purchase and Sale of Property.

5. No purchase or sale of property or stock shall be made at any time by the said Trustees, without the special consent of four-fifths of the said Trustees acting for the time being, expressed by a Minute entered in the sederunt-book of the Trustees, and subscribed by the Trustees so consenting and approving.

CHAPTER XV.

Of the Library and Library Committee.

1. The President, Vice-President, Treasurer, and Librarian, together with two other Fellows appointed annually at the Quarterly Meeting in August, shall form a Committee for the purchase of books and superintendence of the Library, and shall meet at least once a month.

Constitution of Committee.

2. The attending Fellows of the College, and Members who have the use of the Library, may borrow any books from the Library, except manuscripts and such other books as, from their value or other cause, the Library Committee think it inexpedient to circulate. A list of books not allowed to be lent shall be hung in the Library for the information of the Fellows.

Books to be, and not to be, lent.

3. No book shall be lent out unless a receipt be given for it. Every Fellow or Member on borrowing a book from the Library shall give a receipt to the Sub-Librarian.

Receipts from Fellows.

4. On returning books each Fellow or Member shall receive from the Sub-Librarian a receipt for the same.

Receipt from Sub-Librarian.

5. No Fellow or Member shall be permitted to have in his possession at one time more than thirty volumes belonging to the Library.

Fine for neglect.

Not to be issued for a month after their receipt.

6. No Fellow resident beyond ten miles from Edinburgh shall be permitted to borrow books from the Library except by special permission of the Council.

7. The Sub-Librarian shall attend daily at the hours appointed for giving out and receiving books, and the performance of other duties connected with the Library. In his absence the presses shall be kept constantly locked, except those in the Reading-Room which contain the Consultation Library.

8. The Sub-Librarian shall be responsible for all books lost which are entered in the receipt-book, and for which he can show no receipt.

9. Any books which have been less than a year in the Library may be called in after being a fortnight, and all other books after being a month, in the possession of Fellows. Any Fellow neglecting to return a book after intimation to do so has been duly sent him by the Sub-Librarian, shall be fined one shilling for each day that he detains it, and no other book shall be lent to him until he has given notice that the book has been lost, and the matter has been dealt with by the Council.

10. All books and periodicals shall (unless withheld by order of the Library Committee) lie on the table of the Library for a month after their reception. On being withdrawn from the table, the Sub-Librarian shall insert in the Library Catalogues their titles and places on the shelves ; after which they shall be permitted to circulate among the Fellows. The numbers of periodicals, after being removed from the table, shall be laid aside until they form a volume, and then bound. In the meantime, they may be given out to Fellows under the ordinary regulations, but liable to be called in when wanted for binding.

11. A list shall be regularly kept by the Sub-Librarian of all books and periodicals laid upon the table, together with the date of their reception and removal. This list it shall be the duty of the Sub-Librarian to compare with the books actually on the table every morning after 10 o'clock, reporting to the Librarian any that he finds missing, in order that they may be traced, and the proper penalty inflicted for their unauthorised removal or detention.

List of new Books and Periodicals to be kept.

12. In the evenings, at 6 P.M., the Sub-Librarian may give out to Fellows, to take home with them, any of the books or periodicals which are laid on the Library table, on condition of their being returned by 10 o'clock the next morning. He shall mark down in a proper book their titles and the names of the Fellows to whom they are delivered, taking a receipt for the same; and if not returned at the time appointed, shall record against the offender a fine of one shilling for each hour they are detained.

May be removed after 10 P.M., and returned before 10 A.M. next day.

13. Any Fellow removing books from the Hall without informing the Sub-Librarian shall be reported to the Council, who shall take such action as they deem proper. Newspapers shall on no account whatever be removed from the Reading-Room.

Fine for removal of Books without authority.

14. The Catalogues of the Library, with all recent additions inserted, the Library-table book, the Evening Receipt book, the Proposal book, and a List of fines incurred for infringing the regulations of the Library, shall be regularly laid before the Committee at each of their Meetings.

No Newspaper to be removed.

Committee regularly to examine the Books.

15. Fellows whose names have been taken off the Roll of Attendance may avail themselves of the privileges of the Library and Reading-Room, under the regulations contained in Chap. II., Laws 13 and 14.

Non-Resident, and Non-attending Fellows may have the use of Library under certain Regulations.

Admission of Strangers.

Books to be called in annually:

and when a new Librarian appointed.

Books
unreturned.

Books lost;

to be paid for.

Strangers wishing to consult books, if unattended by Fellows, must have the permission of the Council in each case, and shall do so in an adjoining apartment.

16. A fortnight before the Quarterly Meeting in August of each year, all books borrowed shall be called in by the Sub-Librarian. This intimation must be responded to within seven days, in order that the Librarian and Committee may institute an examination and comparison with the Press Catalogue of all the books in the Library, which they shall do within a fortnight after the said Quarterly Meeting. Fellows who neglect to comply with this order shall be fined one shilling for each book and each day of detention. The books shall be called in and examined in like manner on a vacancy in the office of Sub-Librarian, before being handed over to the custody of a successor.

17. After such examination of the Library, a list of any books standing in the receipt book against any Fellow as unreturned, shall be sent to him, and he shall be fined six shillings per week for every book retained thereafter, unless he intimate that he has lost the book.

18. In every case where an intimation of loss has been made, and also in every case where a book has remained unreturned for two months after it has been recalled, the Library Committee shall have power to purchase a copy of the missing book at the expense of the Fellow who has failed to return it.

19. The price paid for such book shall absolve the Fellow from all fines for its non-return, and shall be collected along with, and be subject to all the regulations regarding the fines of the College.

20. The Committee may from time to time make temporary regulations in regard to the Library. But such regulations shall not be acted on until approved of by the Council, and the whole or a part of them may be suspended or abolished by a vote of a majority of the Fellows at any Quarterly Meeting of the College. Such temporary regulations, moreover, shall be held to be in force so long only as a copy of them hangs in the Reading-Room or Library.

Interim Regulations
may be made.

CHAPTER XVI.

Of the Museum and Museum Committee.

1. The President, the Professor of Materia Medica in the University of Edinburgh (if a Fellow of the College), the Curator of the Museum, and two other Fellows appointed annually at the Quarterly Meeting in August, shall form a Committee for the superintendence of the Museum, and shall meet as occasion requires.

Constitution of Committee.

2. The Curator shall keep the keys of the Museum cases, arrange the specimens, and see that they are all properly put up and preserved.

Curator to keep Keys.

3. The Curator shall enter in a book kept for the purpose a description of every article presented to the Museum of the College, with the name of the donor, and the date of its presentation, and shall exhibit to the College, at the first Quarterly Meeting thereafter, the donations received since its last Meeting.

Admission of Visitors.

4. Any Fellow of the College may give a written order for the admission of visitors to the Museum ; but the cases shall not be opened to such visitors without the consent of the Museum Committee previously obtained, and in the presence of the Curator or one of the Members of the Museum Committee appointed for this purpose.

Constitution of Committee.

CHAPTER XVII.

Of the Laboratory and Laboratory Committee.

Use of Laboratory.

1. The President, Vice-President, Treasurer, Curator of Laboratory, and six other Fellows, appointed annually at the Quarterly Meeting of the College in August, shall form a Committee for the superintendence of the Laboratory and the control of its expenditure. The Committee shall meet at least once a month, except in August and September.

2. The Laboratory shall be opened without fee—

- (1.) To Fellows of the College.
- (2.) To Members.
- (3.) To any Licentiate who shall obtain the sanction of the Curator and Committee to use the Laboratory for purposes of Scientific Research.
- (4.) To any Medical man or Investigator who shall obtain the sanction of the Council of the College, as well as of the Curator and Committee, to use the Laboratory for purposes of Scientific Research.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Of Diplomas, etc.

1. All the Diplomas of the College shall be engraved according to a form approved of by the Council. The plates shall be kept in the custody of the Secretary. Every Diploma issued by the College shall be signed by the President, and countersigned by the Secretary.

Forms of Diplomas.

2. Forms of petition for admission to the Fellowship and Membership shall be kept by the Secretary, and be furnished by him to intending Candidates.

Forms of Petitions.

CHAPTER XIX.

Of Certificates of Qualification to Lecture.

1. Any Fellow of the College desirous of being recognised as a Lecturer by the College and other Licensing Boards, shall make written application to the Secretary, who shall lay the same within ten days thereafter before the Council. The Council shall then appoint five well-qualified gentlemen to be a Board of Examiners, three of whom shall be a quorum.

Certificate of ability to Lecture.

2. The Board having met and determined on the mode of examination, shall inform the Candidate of the time and place where such examination shall be held. The examination shall consist of—

Board of Examination.

1. Questions to be answered either viva voce or in writing.

Nature of Examination.

2. A lecture on some part of the subject which the Candidate proposes to teach, in the course of which he shall give appropriate illustrations or demonstrations.
3. He shall also give proof of possessing available means for illustrating the course.

Certificate to be conferred.

3. In the event of the Board having reported favourably to the Council, the President shall, at the first Meeting of the College after the Report of the Board has been received, confer on the Candidate a Certificate of Qualification to Lecture.

4. The Certificate of Qualification to Lecture shall be in the form given in the Appendix No. IX.

5. For the examination of Lecturers not Fellows either of this College or of the College of Surgeons (which examination is to be conducted by a Joint Board of the two Colleges), the Council shall nominate an equal number of gentlemen with those appointed by the sister College.

6. Previously, however, to any such Candidate being taken on trial, a petition shall be presented to the President of either College, with a testimonial as to general character, signed by at least three Fellows of either College.

7. The number composing the Joint Board shall be left to the decision of the Councils of the two Colleges.

8. The sum of ten guineas shall in each case be paid to the Board of Examiners, one-half by the Candidate, and the other half, in the case of a Fellow, out of the College funds. The Candidate when not a Fellow shall pay the whole sum required.

Terms of Certificate.

ROYAL WARRANT FOR Charter of Incorporation
IN FAVOUR OF THE
ROYAL COLLEGE OF PHYSICIANS OF EDINBURGH,

16th August 1861.

VICTORIA R.

VICTORIA, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Queen ; Defender of the Faith :

Whereas the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh have, by their Petition, humbly represented unto Us that our Royal Predecessor Charles the Second was pleased to erect and incorporate the said College by Charter or Letters Patent, bearing date at Whitehall, the twenty-ninth day of November, one thousand six hundred and eighty-one, in the thirty-third year of his reign, which Charter was afterwards ratified, approved, and confirmed by an Act of the Scottish Parliament, bearing date the sixteenth day of June, one thousand six hundred and eighty-five ; and that the establishment of the said College has fulfilled the high purposes of consolidating the medical profession, elevating its character and dignity, and encouraging and advancing medical learning and science: And whereas the said College have also represented unto Us, that by an Act passed in the twenty-first and twenty-second year of our reign, intituled "An Act to regulate the Qualifications of Practitioners in Medicine and Surgery," it was enacted that it should be lawful for Us to grant to the Corporation of the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh a new Charter, and thereby to give to the said College of Physicians the name of "The Royal College of Physicians of Scotland," and that it should be lawful for the said Royal College of Physicians, under their Common Seal, to accept such new Charter, and that such acceptance should operate as a surrender of all Charters heretofore granted to the said Corporation; and that by another Act, passed in the twenty-second year of our reign, intituled "An Act to amend the Medical Act (1858)," it was enacted that the term "Member" should be added to the Qualifications described in the schedule to the first-mentioned Act, in reference to the said College; and further, that by another Act, passed in the twenty-third and twenty-fourth year of our reign, intituled "An Act to amend the Medical Act (1858)," it was enacted that any new Charter to be granted to the said College may be granted either by and in its present name, or, as provided by the Medical Act, by and in the name of the Royal College of Physicians of Scotland: And whereas the said College have further represented to Us that the said Charter granted by our Royal Predecessor contains various provisions, which, by reason of the great changes that have taken place in the practice of medicine, have altogether gone into desuetude, and that it is expedient, and would be for the benefit of the said College, and of the medical profession, that a new Charter should be granted to the said College, by and in its present name, in pursuance of the provisions of the said Acts: Now know ye, that We, taking the premises into our Royal consideration of our especial grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, have given, granted, and ordained, and by these presents, for Us, our heirs and successors, do give, grant, and ordain, as follows (that is to say) :—

I. Alexander Wood, Doctor of Medicine, President ; James Young Simpson, Doctor of Medicine, Vice-President ; and Peter Fairbairn, William Seller, Charles Bell, William Henry Lowe, Alexander Keiller, and William Tennant Gairdner, Members of the Council of the said College, and their successors in office, and the other existing Fellows of the said College, and all other persons who shall hereafter be admitted or elected Fellows and Members of the said College, as hereinafter provided, shall be and are hereby united and incorporated into one body politic and corporate, by the name of "The Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh," and shall by that name have perpetual succession, and a Common Seal, with power to break, alter, and renew the same from time to time, and may by that name sue and be sued ; and the College shall at all times hereafter be capable in law to take, purchase, possess, hold, and enjoy, for the uses and purposes of the College, any lands, tenements, or other heritages, and personal estate not exceeding in the whole the yearly value of Ten Thousand Pounds, and, if necessary, to sell, dispone, and convey the same, and to lend money on heritable or moveable, real or personal securities, and to hold goods and chattels for the uses and purposes of the College; and all charters, dispositions, securities, and other deeds or instruments affecting heritable or moveable, real or personal property, to be granted in favour of the College, may be taken in their corporate name, or to Trustees, on behalf of the College; and all charters, dispositions, or other deeds or instruments to be granted by the College, shall be under the Common Seal, and shall be subscribed by three of the Trustees, and by the President, or Treasurer, or Secretary of the College, for the time being.

II. All property, heritable and moveable, real and personal, wheresoever situated, and all feu-charters, dispositions, bonds, instruments of sasine, leases, agreements, and other deeds and instruments, and vouchers of such property, or relating thereto, which have been already acquired by, or taken, granted, or executed in favour of the said Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh, or any person or persons, as Trustee or Trustees, or otherwise, for the use or on behalf of the said College, whether the same be held absolutely or in security, and in general all estate and effects, and all debts, obligations, rights, interests, liberties, privileges, and immunities of and belonging to the said College, or vested in any person or persons for the benefit of the said College at the time of the granting of these presents, shall be, and the same are hereby transferred to and vested in the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh hereby incorporated, as fully as if the same had been acquired by, or taken, granted, or executed in favour of the College after the granting of these presents; and the same shall in future be held, managed, sold, conveyed, assigned, leased, discharged, or otherwise disposed of by the College, under their corporate name of "The Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh," without the necessity of any connecting or continuing title, or separate investiture, or writing, or procedure, other than these presents.

III. The existing Fellows of the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh, at the time of the granting of these presents, shall be the first Fellows of the College hereby incorporated.

IV. The Fellows may, from time to time, elect and admit to be Fellows and Members of the College such persons as they shall think fit and qualified, in such manner, at such times, under such regulations, and on payment of such fees, as may, from time to time, be directed by the Bye-Laws.

V. The Fellows may, from time to time, admit to be Licentiates of the College, any persons who shall have gone through such course of studies, and passed such examinations, or submitted to such other regulations, and paid such fees, as may, from time to time, be directed by the Bye-Laws; and the existing Licentiates of the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh, at the time of the granting of these presents, shall be Licentiates of the College hereby incorporated.

VI. If it shall at any time hereafter appear that any Fellow, Member, or Licentiate of the College has obtained admission to or licence from the College, or the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh, by any fraud, false statement, or imposition, or that he has violated any bye-law, rule, or regulation of the College, then, and in every such case, and after such previous notice to, and such hearing of, such Fellow, Member, or Licentiate, as under the circumstances the Council shall think proper, it shall be lawful for the Fellows, with the concurrence of not less than three-fourths of their number, present at a Meeting, specially summoned for the purpose, to pass such censure or sentence of suspension against the Fellow, Ordinary Meetings of Fellows.

VII. Ordinary Meetings of the Fellows, for the transaction of the business of the College, shall be held at such times as shall, from time to time, be fixed by the Bye-Laws.

Extraordinary Meetings of Fellows.

VIII. Extraordinary Meetings of the Fellows, for the consideration and disposal of any special business of the College, may be called by the President or the Council at any time when the same shall be deemed necessary; and it shall be incumbent on the President to call an Extraordinary Meeting of the fellows on a requisition to that effect, specifying the purpose of such Meeting, and signed by any five of the Fellows, being delivered to him or to the Secretary of the College; and notice of all Extraordinary Meetings of the Fellows shall be given in such manner as shall be directed by the Bye-Laws.

Ordinary Meetings of Fellows and Members.

IX. Ordinary Meetings of the Fellows and Members for the consideration of matters affecting the general interests of the medical profession and the public, shall be held at such times as shall from time to time be fixed by the Bye-Laws.

Extraordinary Meetings of Fellows and Members.

X. Extraordinary Meetings of the Fellows and Members may be called by the President or the Council at any time when the same shall be deemed necessary ; and it shall be incumbent on the President to call an Extraordinary Meeting of the Fellows and Members on a requisition to that effect, specifying the purpose of such Meeting, and signed by any five of the Fellows or Members, being delivered to him or to the Secretary of the College ; and notice of all Extraordinary Meetings of the Fellows and Members shall be given in such manner as shall be directed by the Bye-Laws ; and any matters affecting the general interests of the medical profession and the public, which shall be specified in such requisition and notice, may be considered at any such Extraordinary Meeting of Fellows and Members.

XI. The Council of the College shall consist of the President and six of the Fellows resident in Edinburgh, or within seven miles of the General Post-Office in Edinburgh, by the nearest public highway.

XII. A meeting of the Fellows shall be held annually, on such day and at such hour as may, from time to time, be fixed by the Bye-Laws, for the election of the President and the Members of the Council.

XIII. The Council shall elect the Examiners of the College, and shall also elect a Treasurer, Secretary, Clerk, and such other officers as may be deemed necessary, annually, and as often as occasion may require, or vacancies occur, by death, resignation, or otherwise.

XIV. The Council shall, with the approval of the Fellows, nominate four Fellows, who, along with the Treasurer, shall be Trustees for the College ; and as often as a vacancy shall arise by death, resignation, or otherwise, the Council shall fill up the same ; and the existing Trustees of the said College at the time of the granting of these presents, shall be the first Trustees under these presents.

Existing Office-Bearers shall continue in Office till next Election Meeting.

Vacancies in the Presidentship or Council may be filled up by Fellows.

Filling of Vacancies caused by Death or Resignation.

XV. The existing Members of the Council of the said College at the time of the granting of these presents shall continue in office, and be the first Council of the College under these presents ; and the existing President shall continue in office, and be the first President of the College under these presents ; and the existing Treasurer, Secretary, Clerk, and other officers of the said College shall continue to hold their several offices until the first Annual Meeting of the Fellows for the election of the Members of the Council and the President, to be held after the granting of these presents.

XVI. If it shall happen that any election of the President or of the Members of the Council, or any of them, shall not be made on the day appointed for that purpose, or if any Fellow elected to any such office shall not accept thereof, the person or persons then filling such office or offices shall continue to fill the same until another person or persons shall be appointed thereto ; and the Fellows present at any Ordinary Meeting, or at an Extraordinary Meeting, to be called as herein provided, may elect out of the Fellows a person or persons to fill the said office or offices, or such of them as shall not have been filled up, or shall be vacant by reason of non-acceptance as aforesaid, for such part of the year of office as shall be then unexpired.

XVII. If the President or any Member of the Council shall die or resign before the expiration of the year, or other time for which he shall have been elected, the Fellows present at any Ordinary Meeting, or at an Extraordinary Meeting to be called as herein provided, may elect out of the Fellows a President or Member of the Council, as the case may be, in the place or stead of the President or Member of the Council so dying or resigning ; and the Fellow or Fellows so elected shall serve for the remainder of the year of office, or other time, for which the President or Member of the Council so dying or resigning was elected.

XVIII. The property and affairs of the College shall be managed and administered by the Fellows and the Council, in such manner, and under such regulations, as may from time to time be directed by the Bye-Laws.

XIX. All Acts done by the President, or by any Meeting of the Council, or by any person acting as President or Member of the Council, shall, notwithstanding it may be afterwards discovered that there was any defect or informality in the election or appointment of any such President or Member of the Council acting as aforesaid, or that they, or any of them, were or was disqualified, or that there was any vacancy in the office of President, or in the Council, be as valid as if every such person had been duly elected or appointed and was duly qualified, and as if no such vacancy had existed.

XX. It shall be lawful for the Fellows, and We do hereby grant full power and authority to them, from time to time, to make Bye-Laws, Rules, and Regulations, for promoting the Science of Medicine, for duly ordering the practice of the same, and for the good government, order, and direction of the College ; for the admission and election of Fellows, Members, and Licentiates, and fixing and defining the qualifications of persons to be so admitted and elected ; for the management of the property, funds, and affairs of the College ; for the regulation of all meetings, actings, and proceedings of the College, and of the Council and Fellows, and of the Fellows and Members, and of the several Office-Bearers and Officers of the College, and fixing the times for holding such meetings; and for the division of the persons composing the body corporate of the College into such orders of Resident and Non-resident Fellows or Members, or otherwise; and for giving and assigning to these orders such qualifications, powers, privileges, exemptions, and restrictions, as the Fellows may from time to time determine; and it shall be lawful for the Fellows, from time to time, to repeal, vary, or alter such Bye-Laws, Rules, and Regulations: Provided that every Bye-Law, Rule, and Regulation to be hereafter made, and every repeal, variation, or alteration of any existing Bye-Law, Rule, or Regulation, shall be submitted to and approved by an Ordinary or Extraordinary Meeting of the Fellows, in such form and manner as they shall from time to time direct and appoint.

Existing Bye-Laws to continue in force unless inconsistent with this Charter.

XXI. The Bye-Laws, Rules, and Regulations of the said Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh existing and in force at the time of the granting of these presents, except in so far as the same may be inconsistent with these presents, shall be and continue to be the Bye-Laws, Rules, and Regulations of the College hereby incorporated, until the same are repealed, altered, or varied, in whole or in part.

College to have same powers as it possessed before the granting of this Charter.

XXII. The College hereby incorporated, and the Fellows, Members, and Licentiates thereof, shall and may have, exercise, and enjoy all such powers, functions, rights, and privileges, as the said Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh, or the Fellows, Members, or Licentiates thereof respectively, before the granting of these presents, had or might have had, exercised or enjoyed under and by virtue of the several Acts of our reign hereinbefore recited.

XXIII. The following words and expressions in these presents shall have the several meanings hereby assigned to them ; that is to say :—

The expression “the College” shall mean “The Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh,” hereby incorporated ; the words “ Council,” “ Fellows,” “ Members,” and “ Licentiates,” shall respectively mean the Council, Fellows, Members, and Licentiates of the College for the time being ; and the word “ Bye-Laws ” shall mean and include the Bye-Laws, Rules, and Regulations of the College, made or to be made, as herein provided.

Interpretation Clause.

And with the consent of the College, testified by their acceptance of these presents, and by the authority of the Act of our reign first before recited, We do hereby accept the surrender made to Us by the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh of the said Charter or Letters Patent granted by our Royal Predecessor King Charles the Second, and do hereby revoke, annul, and make void the same : And We do hereby, for Us, our heirs and successors, further grant to the College, that this our Charter shall be in and by all things valid and effectual in law, according to the true intent and meaning of the same, and shall be held, construed, and adjudged in the most favourable and beneficial sense, and for the best advantage of the College, notwithstanding any misrecital, defect, uncertainty, or imperfections whatsoever : And We do hereby, for Us, our heirs and successors, covenant, grant, and agree to and with the College, that We, our heirs and successors, shall and will, from time to time, and at all times hereafter, upon their humble suit and request, give and grant to the College all such further and other powers, privileges, and authorities for rendering more effectual this our grant, according to the true intent and meaning of these presents, as We, our heirs and successors, can or may lawfully grant, and as shall be reasonably advised and devised by the Council learned in the law of the College for the time being.

This Charter to pass the Seal.

And We further will and command that this our Charter do pass the Seal appointed by the Treaty of Union to be kept and used in Scotland in place of the Great Seal thereof per saltum, without passing any other Seal or Register: For which these presents shall be, as well to the Director of our Chancery for writing the same, as to the Keeper of the said Seal for causing the said Seal to be appended thereto, a sufficient warrant.

Given, at our Court at Saint James's the sixteenth day of August 1861, in the Twenty-fifth year of our reign.
