INTRODUCTORY NOTES

AS TO

THE STATE OF THE INCORPORATION OF SURGEONS IN ITS EARLY PERIOD.

July 1, 1505.—Seal of Cause was granted at this date by the Town Council to the “Surregeanis and Barbouris” constituting them a Civic Incorporation of Edinburgh.

October 13, 1506.—Charter of Confirmation of the preceding was granted by James IV.

August 16, 1542.—Of this date it is recorded as follows :—

“Item, gevin to Anthone Brisset, surrurgeane, for labouris done be him to the Queenis Grace * at this time allenarly, xx li.

“Item, gevin to George Leche, William Quhite, George Fothringham, and David Robertsoun, surrurgeanis passand to the bordouris for curing of all personis that hapnit to be hurt be the Inglis menne, xii li.”
—(“Pitcairn’s Criminal Trials,” vol. i. part i. p. 325.)

None of these five appear to have been living in 1581, though Brisset may have been an ancestor of No. 2.

June 10, 1558.—Of this date it is recorded that the Incorporation sent twenty-five of their number, apprentices included, to join a corps then raised “for the defence of the toune” against “our auld inemyes of England.”

The names are as follows :—“Jhone Wawchthet, and Edward Wawghthet, his servand [i.e., apprentice]; David Robertsoun, and Thomas Kawpe, servand; Jhone Weddel; Patrick Mertene; Alexander Bruce; Jhone Libertoun; Robert Henrysoun, Andro Wyntoun, and Gilbert Prymros, his servandis; Nowye Bruschet, and Thomas Boyes, his servand; James Lindesay; Archibald Maw, and Jhone Scot, servand ; Alexander Percy, Thomas Blak, his servand ; Niniane Maw, Jhone Chalmer, his servand ; George Campbell ; Maister Armle, William Gray, his servant ; Maister Babteist, Jhone Pectarne, his servand ; Pate Hardye, Walter Hardye, his sone."—(T. C. R.)

* Mary of Guise, second Queen of James V.

Among these are found Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 9, and 15 of the subjoined list.*

November 28, 1560, and May 12, 1561.—At these dates Robert Hendersoun (No. 3) was "dekin."—(T. C. R.)

June 27, 1569.—At this date Patrick Hardy was a member, and must have died before 1581.—(See above, June 1558 ; also No. 2 in the list.)

November 1572.—"James, erle of Mortoun, regent, lay deidlie seik of rumbussanes [rupture], and war nocht he was cuttit he haid lost his lyff."—(Diurnal of Occurrents, p. 321.) The name of the operator, who was presumably one of the Incorporation, is not given. But it is probable that he was John Chisholm, Doctor in Medicine, some time Chirurgeon to King James VI. He died 22d August 1577, and his testament was confirmed in the Commissariat Court, Edinburgh, 6th January 1577-8. He could not therefore be included in the list.

To these things it may be added that in the first page of a work published in Edinburgh in 1620 by "D. Aparisiis Neapolitano," and entitled "Consilia Medicinalia de Conservanda Sanitate," there occur the following words :—"Eam (i.e. Medicinæ artem) exercent hodie magna cum laude Edinburgi doctissimi Doctores Arnotus, Gellius, Sibbetus, Kinkedius, mellifluus ille Henimannus, Lindesius, aliique." As it is mentioned a little further on that King James VI. on his visit to Scotland three years before the date of this publication had honoured them with some marks of his royal approbation, it is to be presumed that they were connected with his Scottish Court. Two of the names, and probably also the individuals, are identical with Nos. 5 and 63 of the following list.

* The cause of this alarm may be understood from the following extract—it being recollected that England and Spain were at this time at war with France, and that the Dauphin's marriage with Queen Mary Stuart was in the preceding April.

"During this hoill symmer (1558) the warris continowit still betwix France and Flanders vary hoit, and likewyse betwix Scotlande and Inglande, quair Monsieur Dosell and the Frenche-men maid continowall incursionis, and the hoill nobill-men and gentill-men and substancious yemen kepide the bordouris and accompanied the French-men to quarteris, as use is of the realme ; and thair was mony gret scarmishes maid with Inglane, quhair sindre was slayne and mony taiken on both sides."—Bishop Lesley's History, Bannatyne Club. vol. 830, p. 265.

LIST OF FELLOWS

OF THE

ROYAL COLLEGE OF SURGEONS.

The dates of entry of the first sixteen are not known; but they were all on the roll in 1581, the date of the earliest minute.

N.B.—Residence at Edinburgh is not noted in this List till after 1852, when the non-resident Fellows became numerous.

1. GILBERT PRYMROSS.

Ch. 1581-2, also 1602; died at Westminster, 8th April 1616, æt. 80—(B. E. p. 83). Surgeon to King James VI. Known to Dr Peter Lowe, founder of the Faculty of Physicians and Surgeons of Glasgow, who inscribed his treatise on Chirurgery to him and to James Harvie (32). He was apprenticed to No. 3 in June 1558. See T. C. R., 10th June 1558, and Weir's History of the Faculty of Physicians and Surgeons of Glasgow.

2. NOYER BRWSSATE.

On 27th June 1569 four surgeons were consulted by the Court of Justiciary in a maiming case,—Nowye Byssat, Dekin of the Chirurgicalis, Robert Hendersoune, Alexander Twedy, and Patrick Hardy. The first three are in this list. Hardy probably was dead in 1581. See Pitcairn's Trials, vol. i. part ii. p. 7.

3. ROBERT HENDERSON.

See No. 2, also Edinburgh Council Register, apud Maitland, quoted in Chambers' Annals, vol. i. p. 24. It appears from thence that, in July 1563, the Town Council voted to this gentleman 20 merks, being equal to £1, 2s. 2½d. sterling, for certain cures he had performed, some of which, from the statement given, seem marvellous enough. Ch. 1583.

5. JAMES LINDSAY.

Ch. 1588.

6. JHON VODDAL.
Father-in-law of No. 27.

The narrative of the tragic end of this gentleman is full of interest both in itself and with relation to the rude justice of the times, and the interference with the course of justice by the King. 63. THOMAS KINCAID.

E. 7th December 1646. He married Mary Young—B. E. Ch. 1655-6. Some informality in his admission is thus explained by an allusion to the Civil War—"The paucitie of their number, throw the decease of certane masters in the common visitation." Rff.—Selecta Poemata, Edinburgi, 1727, pp. 38 and 42.

During Mr Kincaid's tenure of the chair the surgeons acquired Curriehill House and grounds, on the site of which they erected two successive houses (in 1669 and 1697), for their meetings. Curriehill House, though not named, is delineated in Gordon of Rothiemay's plan of Edinburgh (1647), on the site of the old Surgeons' Hall, of which the remains are now a part of the fever hospital. The ground, which belonged to the Black Friars, was secularised, and passed successively into the hands of Sir John and Sir James Skene, judges of the Court of Session, both under the title of Lord Curriehill. It then became the property of Samuel Johnstoun of Scheynis; and after him of the Patrons of the University, who made it the house of their Professor of Divinity, and who sold it to the Surgeons for 3000 merks Scots. T. C. R. 21st May 1656; S. R. 23d June 1656.

E. 5th February 1649. See T. C. R. 27th August 1662, shewing that he was a "deaken of the kirk." He was apprentice to David Douglas (No. 34), who was probably living, as he is not called "umqle." Father of Nos. 93 and 96. Ch. 1663-4.

See also Chambers' Domestic Annals of Scotland for an unusual operation performed by Temple on 14th May 1671. Jonet Davidsons was daughter "of umqle Johne Davidsons" (No. 33). Her family was not of the same blood with that of the late John Henry Davidson, Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians, who became possessors of the estate of Ravelrig at a later date. Ch. 1665-6 and 1669-70.

78. CHRISTOPHER IRVING.

E. 28th December 1658. See Catalogue of Graduates of Edinburgh, 15th April 1645, shewing that he then took the degree of A.M. In E. H. (p. 21-22) will be found a good deal of information about him. See also T. C. R. 16th March 1660, shewing that he was employed by the Council to "translate from Latine" into the Scotch language the Bohemian Covenant, for the use of "the Colledge of Edinburgh." See E. H. p. 17, Note. The Irvings of Castle Irving, in Ireland, were his descendants—See E. H. p. 22, Note; and a family of the same name are still in possession of that estate in the county of Fermanagh. His own estate of Bonschaw appears to have been for some time in possession of a family of the name of Irving. See Pitcairn's Trials, vol. iii., 576, date 1624. He must have died before March 1703. See No. 137. He dedicated one of his publications to General Monk and another to Sir Robert Sibbald, and was made first physician to James VII. of Scotland. Sir Walter Scott, by a venial error, has introduced him into "The Fortunes of Nigel" as contemporary with James I. of Great Britain.

Christopher Irving was the first who entered after the crisis described in H. S. as having occurred in 1657. He was accordingly admitted "ane frie chirurgane," &c., and the words "and barber," which occur in all previous minutes of admission, are not added, either in his case or any later one.

84. JAMES NISBET.

E. 22d April 1662. A.M., and therefore designated "Mr" in the Surgeons' Minutes. See Catalogue of Edinburgh Graduates, 20th July 1638, for an A.M. of his name. He was also M.D. In the Surgeons' Minutes of 12th November 1689, and afterwards, he is always designated Doctor. Ch. 1679-80.

85. GEORGE STIRLING.

E. 26th June 1662. See H. S. p. 10, Note; was Member of the Scotch Parliament, as Commissioner for Edinburgh, in 1689. He must have died some time prior to 11th June 1700. See the Surgeons' Minutes of that date. See the minute of 14th January 1694, when he appears to have left off all business on account of bad health. See I. G. No. 8097, May 2, 1699, where he is described as "hæres Georgii Stirling, apothecarii burgensis de Edinburgh, patris." Ch. 1677-8 and 1689-90.

87. HEW BROUN.

E. 27th April 1665. This gentleman was of a Jacobite race. His son James was examined before Parliament in 1695, in the case of the Earl of Melfort, one of the Jacobite exiles. Before giving evidence James Broun craved "remission for his being and corresponding in France" after the 1st August 1693, contrary to an Act of the current Parliament. He and his son James also got into some trouble with the local authorities by attending, on 17th February 1695 (Sunday), a meeting for Roman Catholic worship. See Chambers' Domestic Annals, vol. iii. p. 108, also No. 109 and No. 130.

88. WILLIAM BORTHWICK.

He was eldest son of Alexander Borthwick in Gilchristoun, in East Lothian. From I. G. No. 8041 we find that his son Henry was served heir to him on 3d December 1698. Ch. 1675-6, second time 1681-2.

See minute of that date, and also a previous minute of 2d April 1703, in which on his deathbed he made a bequest of 300 merks to the Surgeons. Ch. 1685-6.

98. JOHN RAINOLDS.

E. 6th August 1678. "Maried to Janet, daughter of Robert Kennedie" (No. 74). See minute of admission. See below, No. 139. He was alive 14th January 1696. See minute of admission of that date, in which "unqle." is omitted. Ch. 1691.

99. JAMES CRAWFORD.

James Crawford, the son of this gentleman, was constituted his heir "in annuo reditu 124^l correspondente 2067^l 13^s. 10^d. de terris et molendino de Breistmilne cum 7½ acris in lie brae cum ustrinis, &c., infra parochiam de Kirklistoune." Holland, two months after his admission. From the minute of admission of Robert Elliot (No. 124) it appears that Elliot had been his apprentice. He died between 8th December 1691 and 7th March 1693—(See minutes at these dates). After his return from Holland Somervill was reponed at the former of those dates.

108. HUGH PATERSON.

Father of Dr John Clerk, Fellow of the College of Physicians. His portrait is at the Surgeons' Hall, and his son's at the Hall of the Physicians. He was elected in 1701 to the Chair, but refused it.

110. JOHN HAY.

E. 9th November 1689. This gentleman, who is always designated "Mr" in the minutes, was therefore a Master of Arts. There are in the Catalogue of Graduates of Edinburgh University no less than four M.A.'s of his name prior to the date of his admission.

111. GIDEON ELEOT.

E. 26th December 1689. Ch. 1693-4, also 1699-1700. From Chambers' Domestic Annals, vol. iii. p. 117, we learn that Sir Thomas Burnet and Gideon Elliot were employed in 1695 (April 3) by the Council of King William to visit the Earl of Home, a prisoner at his own house, The Hirsell, near Coldstream, fifty miles off, and report whether the state of his health was incompatible with his removal to the Castle of Edinburgh, he being deemed a dangerous person. For this journey Sir Thomas, as King's Physician, received 200 merks, equal to £11, 2s. 2 $\frac{2}{3}$ d. sterling, and Gideon Elliot, 100 merks, equal to £5, 11s. 1 $\frac{1}{3}$ d. sterling. His portrait is at the Surgeons' Hall.

112. JOHN KING.

E. 20th February 1690. Must have died before 22d June 1704. See minute of that date. Had been apprentice to Thomas Edgar.

113. JAMES AUCHINLECK.

E. 23d October 1691. See I. G. Nos. 6760, 6761, and 6762, October 7, 1686. "Hæres Willielmi Auchinleck, scribæ in Perth, patrui;" also of Ann and Grisel, daughters of the said uncle. His portrait is at the Surgeons' Hall.

114. ALEXANDER MONTEATH.

E. 22d December 1691. A distinguished early teacher of Anatomy and Chemistry. Son of James Monteath of Auldcathie, the representative of the second (or Stuart) line of Earls of Monteath. See H. S. pp. 16, 20; E. H. p. 23. After serving his apprenticeship to William Borthwick he went abroad several years, for improvement in his profession. He presented a number of books to the Surgeons, 2d June 1696. He acted as President in 1701, in consequence of Robert Clerk's refusal of the chair. Ch. 1695-6, second time 1699, but was deposed, probably because he was a Jacobite. Was owner of the estate of Todshaugh, now Foxhall, in Linlithgowshire. E. H. p. 23. From a Collection of Epitaphs, Glasgow, 1834, p. 76, and B. E. p. 262, it appears that he died 23d December 1713, nearly about the same time as his friend Pitcairn.

122. GEORGE KIRKTON.

E. 14th January 1696. See "Pitcairni et aliorum poemata selecta, Edinburgi, 1727," pp. 31 and 34, from which it appears that he died before No. 114. He was one of Pitcairn's friends.

123. JOHN CHEYN.

E. 14th May 1696. Portrait at the Surgeons' Hall. Practised in Leith; was succeeded by his nephew, No. 235. Was son of George Cheyne, town-clerk of Leith. His mother's name was Tennant.

124. ROBERT ELLIOT.

Always designated in the Minutes "Mr," and therefore had received the grade of A.M.,—in all probability from our own University, in whose "Catalogue of Graduates" (August 1683, July 1691, and April 1700) three M.A.'s of his name are entered. Portrait at the Surgeons' Hall. Ch. 1708-9, also 1740-1.

130. ROBERT CAMPBELL.

E. 25th March 1701. Portrait at the Surgeons' Hall. In his minute of entry he is designated "chirurgion to His Majesty's Regiment of Guards." From same source it appears he married Katharine, daughter of Hew Broun (No. 87).

132. JOHN MIRRIE.

E. 4th September 1701. Portrait at the Surgeons' Hall. Ch. 1706-7.

133. ARCHIBALD PITCAIRN.

E. 16th October 1701. H. S. pp. 13, 14, 15, with Notes. Born 1652; died 1713. He was son of a proprietor in Fife, and was born in the parish of Leslie, in which a small property, once belonging to him, still bears his name. His mother was a Sydserff of Ruchlaw, in East Lothian. He was A.M. of Edinburgh (1671), studied law at Edinburgh, and afterwards physic at Paris, became M.D. of Rheims, 13th August 1680, and of Aberdeen, 7th August 1699. He married Margaret, daughter of Colonel James Hay, by whom he had a son and a daughter. The son died, and the daughter, whose name was Anna, was constituted heir to her mother on 8th February 1694 (I. G. No. 7439). The mother died before he went to Leyden. After his return from thence he married, as his second wife, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Archibald Stevenson, Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians. By her he had one son and four daughters. The son was in the Rebellion of 1715, and owed his pardon and release from the Tower to the interposition, with Walpole, of Dr Richard Mead, a man of quite opposite politics, but a grateful pupil of his father's at Leyden. This son was afterwards in the Dutch service. The second daughter, Janet, became Countess of Kellie, 12th October 1731. Her husband was the fifth Earl, and the sixth and seventh were her sons. She died in 1775. Pitcairn's family have all died out. His portrait, by Sir John de Medina, is at the Surgeons' Hall.

E. 10th December 1702.

137. JOHN MONRO.

E. 11th March 1703. See H. S. p. 13. His portrait is at Surgeons' Hall. It is by Aikman, his relative, whose portrait is in the National Gallery. See his son's life by his grandson, the second Alexander Monro, 1781, in which it is said that John Monro died thirty years before his son, and three years after laying of the foundation of the Hospital, in which he took a warm interest. There must be some error in this, as the first A. Monro died 1767, and the foundation of the Hospital was laid 2d August 1738. John Monro married his cousin, Miss Forbes, niece of Duncan Forbes of Culloden. From the minute of his entry it appears that Christopher Irving (No. 78) was then dead. John Monro had been apprenticed to W. Borthwick, and transferred to Irving on account of some informality. Ch. 1712-13.

138. JAMES PRINGLE.

E. 22d June 1703. His portrait is at the Surgeons' Hall.

143. JAMES NISBET.

E. 5th July 1705. His portrait is at the Surgeons' Hall.

144. ADAM DRUMMOND.

E. 6th November 1707. Of this Professor of Anatomy to the Surgeons and to the University, and of his family, much will be found in H. S. pp. 17, 18, 19, and 34. From the autobiography of Dr Carlyle of Inveresk it appears that one of his apprentices, who was also his nephew, conveyed a large sum of money to his relative, Captain Adam Drummond of Megginch, then a prisoner in Queensberry House, Canongate, at the time of the battle of Prestonpans. His portrait is at the Surgeons' Hall, and there is another in possession of Dr Stuart of Chirnside, who, with others of the Dunearn family, is descended from his daughter. He was apprentice to No. 97. Ch. 1748-9.

145. JOHN LAUDER.

On the 27th August 1772 is a minute of the Surgeons, from which it appears that James Rae had then for several years given a course of Surgery, and also "practical discourses on cases of importance in the Royal Infirmary." These were supported by the Surgeons, and by them advertised. The course being continued, it appears that on 23d October 1776 it was attempted by the Surgeons to get a professorship of surgery established in the University in his person. A petition to the Crown to that effect will be found 1st May 1777. But this endeavour of the Surgeons to have surgery taught separately from other departments was defeated (see 21st May) by the influence of Dr A. Monro secundus. Dr Monro afterwards got his own chair of anatomy made also a chair of surgery, which it had not before been.
