WASHINGTON, D. C.
1900

HIGHLAND AND AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY OF SCOTLAND.

VETERINARY DEPARTMENT.

In the year 1823 the Highland Society instituted Lectures in Veterinary Science and Medicine, and arranged with the late Professor Dick to conduct the same.

In 1824 Examinations were commenced and Certificates granted, but only to those Students who attended these Lectures.

In 1859 the Society resolved that the Students of any Veterinary Teacher in Scotland, established under Her Majesty's sign manual, should be eligible for Examination for the Society's Certificate, and they authorised the Examining Board to take on trial any party duly qualified who made application for the Society's Certificate.

In 1870 the Examinations were opened to the Students of any Veterinary Teacher duly recognised by Government, and are now conducted under the following regulations:—

1. There are two Examinations yearly—one in April, the other in July.

2. Candidates are allowed to present themselves for Examination in Anatomy, Chemistry, and Botany, nine months after the commencement of their professional studies at a Veterinary College recognised by Government.

3. Candidates who have passed the First Examination, and who have attended at least two Winter Sessions and one Summer Session at a Veterinary College, are allowed to come up for the Second or Final Examinations, which embrace Histology, Physiology, Materia Medica, Cattle Pathology, Horse Pathology, and Clinical Medicine.

4. Candidates must pass a Practical Examination before they are taken on the subjects enumerated in No 3.

5. Candidates in entering their names for the Final Examinations must produce Certificates that they have attended a Course of at least Three Sessions at a Veterinary College recognised by Government, and also produce Certificates from the Professor of each subject required by the Curriculum.

6. Candidates failing to pass any of the Examinations are required to attend a Veterinary College one Session before being allowed to present themselves for Re-examination, which Session must be immediately before examination.

7. Candidates who are members of the Medical Profession, or of any Colonial or Foreign Veterinary School or College, are allowed to present themselves for Examination after attending one Winter Session at a Veterinary College in this country, and receive the Certificate on passing the Final or Major Examination only.

In 1874 the Society resolved to vote a certain number of Silver Medals to each of the two Veterinary Colleges in Edinburgh, and to the one in Glasgow, for Class Competition ; and two Medium Gold Medals, open to all the Students who come up to the April Examination for the Society's Veterinary Certificate for best general and best practical Examinations.

The Examinations are conducted by leading members of the Medical Faculty and of the Veterinary Profession selected by the Society ; and a Certificate in the following terms, bearing the arms of the Society, and signed by the Examiners, is granted to those Students who pass the required Examinations :—
