MADAM,

PERMIT me, as a tribute of gratitude and respect, to lay before you a Work, which, if it has any claim to utility, I trust will meet with your approbation and patronage.

It has always been my pride, and I feel now publicly called upon to declare, that, to Mr. Thomas I am indebted for the principal part of my knowledge in Cooking; and, at the same time, to return you my grateful thanks for the repeated proofs of friendship I have received from you, which has induced me to submit this Work to your consideration; knowing that you are perfectly competent to judge of its merits.

As a duty I owe to the Public and my Friends, I feel myself indispensably called upon to apologise for the many errors of different kinds which will be found in this work, and which, owing to my absence from the press, were in some measure unavoidable. I have endeavoured to be as concise as possible without being obscure, yet could not always avoid tautology, from my desire to make each article plain and easy to every capacity, which was the more necessary, the book being intended for general use, but more particularly for young and inexperienced Cooks.

From the very favourable reception the first edition of this work met with from my Friends and a generous Public, and from its being now quite out of print, I am encouraged to offer a second, for which I earnestly solicit their patronage, having endeavoured to deserve it by correcting some errors in my first edition, and by adding many Receipts in Cookery and Confectionary, which I trust will prove of some utility; and in consideration of my efforts for the benefit of others, I hope it will be favourably received and consulted with candour. There is also added a General Index.

INTRODUCTION.

THE following Work will be found very useful to Cooks, Clerks of the Kitchen, House Stewards, (not being brought up to the Cooking Business), Women Cooks, Housekeepers, and likewise to Gentlemen who do not keep Men Cooks, and particularly to Tavern Keepers.

There are a number of books published on the Kitchen Business, but not one on this plan. There may be a greater number of dishes mentioned in some of them, but I may safely say that more than one-half of them are useless, as they are never put in practice by any one.

I have not mentioned a dish that I have not myself sent to table, and are in general use by other Cooks. I have added several useful Receipts in Confectionary which are not in the first Edition; this I have done at the particular request of several of my friends.

Young Men and Women Cooks are frequently at a loss in writing Bills of Fare; to obviate which, I have given a Bill of Fare for each day in the year, and all in regular order, from the 1st of January to the 31st of December; which will be a guide to providers and managers of large as well as small families. For instance, a gentleman who does not keep a Man Cook, and not in the habit of giving large dinners but at certain times; the day that he intends to give his dinner, he looks for the Bill of Fare for the day. Perhaps it may not be so large as he intends his dinner to be, but most likely there will be one found in some part of the month which will inform him what is in season, and how to provide for the intended dinner; for what is in season at the beginning of a month, may be considered as such during the remainder.

Rules necessary to be observed by Cooks, in the Regulation and Management of their Larder, and which ought on no Account to be neglected.

The first thing that should be done is to have the dressers and shelves scoured, and the larder made as clean as possible, by washing the floor with plenty of cold water, as it most undoubtedly cools it very much in the summer; next change all the cold meat, put it upon clean, dry dishes, and place it where the most air comes in. Then look at all the stocks and sauces to see if they want boiling up, in close, sultry weather. Soups should be boiled up every day, and to be very particular about the pans they are put in, for they should be very dry and free from grease, as soup most certainly will foment without the greatest attention. If the stock should begin to turn off, the better way will be to boil it down for glaze, by way of making sure of it. When you put the sauces on to boil, make it a rule to put a little stock in the stewpan first, to hinder it from burning to the bottom. Sauces should be boiled at least every second day in summer.

Whatever is done in braises in the summer, should be made stronger than in winter, otherwise they will not keep to be of service.

All lardings, if they return to the kitchen whole, put them in the braise they were done in, and cover them with the sheets of bacon that covered them before they were taken out of the braise.

Tenderones of lamb, tenderones of veal, ox rumps, beef or veal olives, roulards of mutton or veal, rump of beef, in short all those kind of things that are done in braises, should be taken particular care of: there should be as much attention paid to putting by those dishes that would be useful again, as in dressing the dinner.

All meat that is dressed to be kept until cold, whether boiled or roast, should be over done, particularly in summer; for if the gravy is left in either boiled or roast, it will not keep good more than two or three days, but if done quite dry, it will keep a week or longer; the roast meat should be well sprinkled with salt before it is taken from the fire; and beef that is intended to be boiled for cold, should be at least fourteen days in salt; if a few days longer it will eat all the better when boiled; for this reason, if not well salted, by being boiled longer than if used hot, it would eat insipid.

UNDRESSED MEAT.

When in the country in summer, and the cattle not having been killed at home, cooks should be very particular with butchers that they bring their meat not later than six o'clock in the morning; for, when the sun gets warm, the flies do much mischief, and it is next to an impossibility to prevent them blowing it.

BEEF.

When the beef is cut in proper pieces, those that are intended to be hung up, such as the sirloin, ribs, rump, and brisket, in the first place examine them well and see that the flies have not been about them; in the sirloin the flies are very apt to get under the loose side of the fat; look well and see that there are no fly-blows; sprinkle the fat with salt, and rub salt on the chine bone, and take out the pipe that runs along the chine bone, rub the place with salt, and take out the kernel that is in the fat at the thick end of the sirloin; the peth should be taken out, and the place well rubbed with salt, and the outside and two ends the same, then hang it up; it will keep good a week by strictly observing the above rules.

Ribs.—Rub the chine bone very well with salt, cut out the piece of skirt, and rub the inside of the ribs well with salt, sprinkle the outside, ends, and tops of the ribs; then hang it up.

Rump.—Cut the fat that is generally left in by the butchers, and take out the kernel that is near the small end, sprinkle the rump all over with salt, and hang it up.

N.B. If you want stakes from it, cut the outside off before you cut the stakes, or if for daubing the same.

Brisket.—The part that is generally kept for stewing is the thick end; as to the size, that must depend upon the judgment of those who are to use it: if wanted to be kept for three or four days, it should be well sprinkled with salt before it is hung up.

The pieces that are intended for boiling require equal attention; there are two kernels in a round of beef, one in the middle, commonly called the pope's eye, the other in the thick fat: be sure that the butcher takes them out, otherwise no quantity of salt will preserve them from spoiling, particularly in summer time. In the thick flank there is a kernel in the middle of the fat, which be sure to see taken out; there is one in the aitch-bone just where the rump is cut off, and one in the shoulder-piece, or sometimes it is left to the neck-piece, but be careful that it is taken out of either piece; joint the brisket, by way of letting the salt in, and the flat ribs the same. When all this is done, then see that the butcher rubs the salt well into the beef with the heel of the hand, and fill all the joints with salt; when properly done then put it down tight in the salt bin, the prime pieces at the bottom, and cover all well with salt, and the coarse at the top, to be used first; by adhering to these rules the salt beef will be as good in summer as winter.

VEAL.

Leg.—The first part that spoils is where the udder is skewered back; that skewer should be taken out and the under part of the udder wiped very dry, and then rubbed with a little salt; and on the udder, top, and the middle part, where the bone is, and take out the kernel from the thick fat.

Loin.—Cut the pipe that runs along the chine bone; rub it well with a cloth under the kidney of the loose side, for fear the flies have been there; there is a kernel under the fat that is in the inside of the chump, which must be sure to be taken out. Sprinkle it all over with salt; not so much as you would over beef.

The Shoulder is a joint that is seldom kept, as it is either wanted for the stock-pot or the family dinner; if it should be wanted to be kept, sprinkle it with salt and hang it up.

Neck.—There is a pipe that runs along the chine bone which should be cut off, and the chine bone and the inside of the ribs rubbed very dry with a cloth, then rubbed with a little salt.

Breast.—The skirt that is inside should be cut off and the bones rubbed quite dry, and then sprinkled with salt.

MUTTON.

Leg.—A leg of Mutton frequently spoils in two days in sultry weather; which partly may be prevented by taking the kernel from the fat of the upper part of the leg (the butchers ought to take that kernel out when they are dressing the sheep) and sprinkle it with salt.

A Chine of Mutton spoils first at the tail, where there is a kernel which must be taken out, and the place rubbed well with salt; take out the kidney fat quite clean, and cut the pipe that runs along the back bone, and sprinkle the inside with salt.

Shoulder. - Rub the inside well with salt, if wanted to be kept three or four days.

Neck.—The chine bone should be rubbed quite dry with a cloth, the ribs the same, and the inside of the scrag trimmed. Sprinkle the chine bone, and the inside ribs and scrag with salt.

Breast.—A breast spoils first at the brisket part; cut out the skirt that the butchers generally leave in, and sprinkle both sides with salt.

LAMB.

Lamb is generally cut in quarters: take the kernel from the fat of the legs, sprinkle that and the I give it as my firm opinion, that a Cook should pay as much attention to the management of his larder, as to any one branch of his business; which will gain him much credit with his employer, and give general satisfaction to all other parts of the family.

FIRST COURSE.

Soup à la Reine.

CUT a few slices of lean ham, and cover the bottom of a stewpan that will hold four quarts, cut up two fowls and put them in the stewpan, with a few slices of veal, a faggot of thyme and parsley, six onions, a few blades of mace, and about half a pint of water; put it on a slow stove for an hour, to draw down, (be sure that it does not catch at the bottom); when drawn down, fill up the stewpan with some of your best stock, and let it boil very gently for one hour; take out the fowls and pull the meat from the bones, and put it into a mortar, with two ounces of sweet almonds, and let it be pounded quite fine, so as it will go through a tammy: when beat enough, put it into a small soup pot that will hold about three quarts, put about two quarts of the stock that the fowls were boiled in, with the crumb of three French rolls, let it boil for one hour, then rub it through a tammy, and add about a pint of good cream that has boiled; put it into the soup pot, and put the pot into a stewpan of hot water, and set it by the side of a stove where it will boil. Before you put it into the tureen taste it, as perhaps it may want a little salt, or a small bit of sugar; cut the crust of the rolls (that you had the crumb from) into round pieces, about the size of a shilling, and put them into the tureen, before the soup is put in.

N. B. All white soups should be warmed by putting the soup pot into hot water.

Haunch of Doc Venison.

When on the spit, oil some butter, and butter the venison with a paste brush, lay it thick, and sprinkle it over with salt; put two sheets of white paper over it, then make paste of flour and water, roll it out rather thick, put it on the venison, and four sheets of paper on that; tie it all on very tight, put it to the fire, and baste it well, otherwise the fire will burn the paper and twine: it will take two hours and a half; take the paper and paste off, baste it with butter, flour it, and sprinkle it with salt, make the dish very hot, put the venison on the dish, and put some good gravy to it.

N.B. All roast venison is drest the same way. A haunch of buck venison will take four hours: be very careful that the venison has no colour from the fire, the paler the fat is the better the venison is cooked. A neck of doe venison will take one hour, a ditto of buck an hour and a half, or two hours. Venison should be rather under than over done.

Veal Olives.

Cut six slices of a fillet of veal, let them be about ten inches long and about four inches wide, beat them with a flatter to make them thin, brush them over with an egg, (beat up white and yelk together,) spread a layer of forcedmeat, and brush that over with egg; roll them up quite close, and lay them in a stewpan that will just hold them; lay bars of bacon on the bottom of the stewpan, and lay the olives on the bacon, put a few spoonsful of good stock, and cover them over with bars of bacon; let them do gently for one hour, then take them out, dry them with a cloth, put them on the dish, and pour a sharp sauce over them.

A Fowl à la Daube.

Bone a large fowl without cutting the skin, singe it, put in it a small piece of the prime of a Westphalia ham, (about the size of the breast of the fowl), then fill it with a good forced-meat, and braize it in a white braize; when done, take it up and dry it, then glaze it, and put mushrooms on the dish, and the fowl at the top; garnish either with croutons, or with paste baked for that purpose.

Calve's Head hashed and grilled.

Boil a calve's head (that has been skinned) until nearly done, or so as the bones will part from the meat, cut one side of the head in square pieces, the tongue and palate the same, wash it in several waters, then put it into a stewpan, with some of the best stock, to boil until quite tender, (but not for it to break in shreds,) the other side should be scored and boiled with the other part, (but not quite so much,) take it out when done enough, put it on a soutiespan, and pour a little oiled butter over it; sprinkle à little pepper, salt, and fine herbs, mixt, over it; then shake a few bread crumbs and drop a little clarified butter over it, and put it in the oven for a few minutes, and then on the gridiron to colour it. To make the sauce for the hash, put about a quarter of a pound of butter into a stewpan, with some chopped shalots, parsley (more of this than any other herb), orange thyme, lemon ditto, a little sweet marjorum, knotted ditto, a very little basil, chopped mushrooms, and two large onions chopped; put about a quarter of a pound of lean ham, cut very fine, with the herbs and a few spoonsful of stock, put the stewpan on the stove, let it simmer for about one hour, then put about three spoonsful of flour, stir it about with a wooden spoon, then put the stock that the calve's head was last boiled in into the stewpan, and a pint of good Madeira wine; keep stirring it until it boils; let it boil a few minutes, then rub it through a tammy, and put it to the calve's head; put it over the fire to give it a boil up, put in some forced-meat balls, and egg-balls; just before you dish it up squeeze a lemon in it, and season it with Cayenne pepper, a very little fine spice, and a small lump of sugar, to make it palatable; dish it up, and put the grill in the middle.

N.B. A Seville orange should be added, when to be had, as this acid is softer than lemon.

A Neck of Mutton, with a Purée of Potatoes.

Trim a neck of mutton very neat, put it on to blanch in cold water; when it comes to a boil take it up, and wash it in two or three waters, then lay the bottom of a stewpan with bars of fat bacon, lay the mutton upon the bacon, cover it over with bacon, and put about one pint of second stock, and cover it over with a sheet of white paper, and put the cover on; put it on a slow fire, the slower it simmers the better; it will take two hours: take it up and glaze it; put a purée of potatoes under it. See Appendix.

A Chine of Pork, roasted.

A chine of pork is the neck chine of a bacon hog, it should be sprinkled with salt and hung up four or five days at least before using; it will take about two hours and a half roasting, it should be well done. All pig meat should rather be over than under roasted. Serve up apple sauce in a boat.

A Turkey and Truffles.

Draw a turkey three days before it is intended to be dressed, put about two pounds of truffles that have not been dressed or peeled, tie a string quite tight about the neck, and another at the vent, and hang it up by the legs; when you want to roast it, take it down and truss it, take out the truffles, pare one-half and cut them in slices, and put them between the skin and the breast, then fill the crop full of white stuffing, made as follows: scraped veal, fat of ham scraped, a little lean ham that has been dressed, pound all truffles, a few shalots, chopped parsley, a very little of orange and lemon thyme, two eggs, and bread crumbs; wrap the turkey up in sheets of fat bacon, put slices of lemon between the bacon and the breast of the turkey, then wrap it up in paper and tie it well on with packthread, and put it down to roast; be sure to keep it well basted; it will take two hours; braise the remainder of the truffles in a pint of sherry wine and a pint of good stock, fat bacon under and over the truffles; when done, take them up and pare them very thin, (as you should be very careful not to waste the least bit, as they are a very expensive article,) cut them in slices, strain the braise they were done in, skim the fat from it very clean, reduce it to glaze, and put coulis to it: squeeze a Seville orange and a lemon, and a little sugar.

A Breast of Veal, ragouted whole.

Cut the chine bone from a breast of yeal, then cut the tenderones out, (as they will do for another dish), cover the bottom of the stewpan with fat bacon, lay the yeal in, put eight or ten onions, a little mace, a fagot of thyme and parsley, cover it over with bacon, and then with white paper; put about three pints of second stock, put it on a slow stove to simmer for about two hours and a half, take it up, pull all the bones from it, dish it, and put a ragout of sweetbread, mushrooms, and forced-meat balls, over the veal. The raggoo is made as follows: put a few mushrooms into a stewpan, with a bit of butter, a little pepper and salt, and half a lemon squeezed, put it on a slow stove for a quarter of an hour, or until the mushrooms are done, cut two long sweetbreads in slices, put it to the mushrooms, and about two dozen of forced-meat balls, and one dozen of egg balls; put sauce tourney as much as you think will do, add two glasses of Madeira; and the braise strained, skimmed, and boiled down to a glaze, answers two purposes; first, it gives a right, flavour to the ragout; and next, the glaze gives it a nice gold colour.

Ox Rumps,

About four ox rumps make a good dish; put them into a brown braise, and let them do very slow for about five hours; one hour before they are done put as many bundles of cabbage as you think is wanting, (one cabbage will make four bundles), the cabbage should be three parts boiled, then squeezed very dry with the hand, and lastly with a cloth, so as not to leave the least drop of water in the cabbage; tie the bundles up with packthread, and put them into the braise for one hour, take them up and squeeze the fat from them, put the rumps on the dish, and the cabbage round them; either glaze the rumps, or pour Spanish sauce on the rumps and cabbage.

Beef Palates, rolled.

Boil six ox palates in the broth pot, until nearly done, then take them up, peel, and trim them, brush the inside over with egg, lay a layer of forced-meat on the egg, roll them up, and tie them with a string; put them into a white braise for about two hours, take them out, dry and glaze them, make a ragout of the trimmings, and a few very small egg balls; put the ragout on the dish first, and the palates on the ragout. The ragout is made as follows: shread the palates in neat small pieces, and put them into a stewpan, with coulis and a glass of sherry wine, squeeze either a lemon or orange, and a few drops of shalot vinegar, and a little sugar, salt, and pepper.

Loin of Lamb braised, and Celery Sauce.

Bone a loin of lamb, lay the bottom of a stewpan with fat bacon, lay the lamb in, put in a few onions, bits of carrots, a faggot of thyme and parsley, and a few blades of mace tied up with it; cover the lamb with fat bacon and paper, put about a pint of stock, set it on the fire, and let it do very gently for about two hours; take it up, dry it and glaze it, put the celery on the dish first, and the lamb upon the celery.

Giblet Soup à la Tortue.

Scald four sets of giblets, bone the pinions, feet, and heads, cut the necks into pieces about one inch long, cut the gizzard into about eight pieces, (the livers leave out, as they make a good dish for second course,) put them on to blanch, take them off when they have had one boil, throw them into cold water, and wash them as clean as possible: put them into a small soup pot with about two quarts of best stock, put them on a stove, let them boil gently till tender, put about a quarter of a pound of butter into a stewpan, with chopped shalots, orange and lemon thyme, knotted and sweet marjorum, a little basil, about a quarter of a pound of lean ham, cut very fine, and two onions chopped, a handful of parsley chopped and squeezed dry, about half a pint of stock; put it on a slow stove for an hour, then put as much flour as will dry up the butter, then add the stock the giblets were boiled in, and a pint of Madeira, let it boil a few minutes, and then rub it through a tammy, and put it to the giblets; squeeze a Seville orange, and put a little sugar and Cayenne pepper.

Sirloin of Beef.

A sirloin of beef will take from four to five hours, it depends on the size and fire. Before it is taken from the fire shake some salt and flour over it.

SECOND COURSE.

Partridges.

Partridges take about fifteen minutes to roast; before you take them up baste them with butter, shake a little flour over them, and a little salt, put them on a dish with a little plain gravy, send up bread sauce, made as follows: put crumbs of bread in a stewpan, with a little weak broth, an onion, and a bit of butter; let it boil for a few minutes, beat it up with a fork, and put a little cream, pepper and salt, and send it up in a boat; some gentlemen like clear shalot sauce; it is made as follows: put a few chopped shalots into a stewpan, with a little stock and a few spoonsful of vinegar, let it boil a few minutes, season it with pepper and salt; serve it in a boat.

Brawn.

Brawn is generally had at the fishmongers.

Potted Ham

Cut the prime of a Westphalia ham that has been dressed, fat and lean equal, pound it in a mortar until it is quite fine, put a little sifted spice to it and mix it well about; then put it in pots provided for that purpose, clarify a sufficient quantity of butter, cover the ham with the butter, and put the pots in a slow oven; let it soak for an hour, then take it out and fill up the pots again with butter; send it up in the pots, except at particular times, then turn it out and garnish with aspick, &c. &c.

Asparagus.

Asparagus is tied up in bundles; put a little salt in the water, and the water should boil before the asparagus is put in; the asparagus will be done in fifteen minutes: make a toast, dip it in the asparagus water, put it on the dish, and the asparagus upon it.

A Trifle.

Cut a few slices of a Savoy cake, and put them on the bottom of a trifle dish, (which is something like a salad dish in respect to depth,) lay a layer of macaroons on them, and a layer of ratifees, pour a pint of Lisbon over the cakes, leave it long enough to soak all the wine up, then cover the cakes with custard, made in the following manner: put a quart of milk and cream mixed, and a little cinnamon, lemon peel, and sugar, let it boil for half an hour, take it off the stove and put it to cool; to this quantity of milk and cream, put the yelks of eight eggs, and a spoonful of flour, beat them up in a bason, with a spoon, very well, put the milk in by a little at a time, keep stirring it all the while, then strain it through a hair sieve into a stewpan; put it on a brisk fire, and be sure to keep stirring it until it comes to a boil, then take it off and put it to cool; when half cold put a glass of brandy and a few spoonsful of ratifee; then cover the cakes with it, and upon the custard lay apricot jam; then put a pint of good cream into a bason, with the white of an egg, a lump of sugar rubbed to a lemon, about two glasses of white wine, beat it up with a whisk, and skim the froth with a spoon that has holes in it, and lay the froth on the back of a sieve, which should be laid upon a dish, to saye the drainings to return into the pan again for whipping; lay the whipped cream over the trifle; put a few harlequin seeds in any form you think proper; garnish the edge of the dish with preserved orange or dried orange peel.

Mince Pies.

Seven pounds of currants, rubbed and picked very clean, and three pounds and a half of beef suet chopped very fine, three pounds and a half of the lean of a sirloin of beef minced raw, very fine, three pounds and a half of apples chopped very fine, (they should be the lemon pippin,) half a pound of citron cut in very small pieces, half a pound of lemon peel, half a pound of orange peel cut like the citron, two pounds of fine moist sugar, one ounce of fine spice, (such as cloves, mace, nutmegs, and cinnamon, all pounded together and sifted), the rind of four lemons and four Seville oranges; all these to be rubbed together until well mixed; then put it into a deep pan, put over it one bottle of brandy, one of white wine, (of the sherry kind,) the juice of the lemons and oranges that have been grated, mix the wine and brandy together in a bason, and lemon and orange juice; pour half over and press it down tight with your hand, then add the other half, and let it remain at the top to soak in by degrees; cover it up. It should be made six weeks before it is wanted; the pans are sheeted with puff paste, and covered with the same. About ten minutes will bake them.

Ragout Mellé.

Cocks combs, fat livers, lamb sweetbreads, pullets eggs, &c. let all be blanched off, put the combs into a stewpan to boil for a quarter of an hour, with about half a pint of stock; let it do down to a glaze, then put the other part of the ragout, with a sufficient quantity of sauce tourney.

Larks.

Larks take about ten minutes, they should be basted very often with butter, and sprinkled with bread crumbs, until the bread crumbs stick to the breast of the larks, fry about a plateful of bread crumbs of a nice gold colour; fry them in an iron frying pan, with a little clarified butter: butter without being clarified is apt to burn.

Teal.

Teal will roast in ten minutes; they should be rather under than over done; baste them with butter, sprinkle a little salt and flour over them before they are taken up, put gravy under them, and shalot sauce in a boat.

French Beans.

French beans should be cut fine. Let the water boil before the beans are put in, put a little salt in the water, boil them ten minutes; when they are done, strain them off and drain them quite dry, then put them into the sauce, have the sauce hot, do not put the beans on the fire in the sauce.

Maccaroni.

Maccaroni should be first boiled in water and butter for a few minutes, then strained off, and put stock enough to cover it, boil it until tender and has soaked up all the stock, then put beshemell and grated Parmasan cheese, dish it up, and put grated Parmasan cheese over it, and put it in the oven for a few minutes; have a salamander hot to brown it before you send it out of the kitchen; it should not be brown at all times.

N.B. If the maccaroni is for meagre, use cream, instead of stock or beshemell.

Potted Hare.

Bone a hare and cut it up in small pieces, cut as much fat and lean ham as there is hare, put it into a stewpan, with a bit of butter and a little stock, pepper and salt, a little fine spice, put it on a slow stove to draw down for an hour, then put a pint of Port wine, and let it boil very slow until all the liquor is reduced to a glaze, then put it into a mortar and pound it until very fine; taste it, that you may know if it wants any more seasoning; put it into potting pots, pour clarified butter over it, and put it into a slow oven for half an hour, then take it out and put it to cool, and fill it up with clarified butter: either send it up in the pot, or turn it out and garnish it with aspick.

Rabbits.

Rabbits will take twenty minutes to roast; baste them constantly with butter, and just before they are taken up baste them with butter, flour them, and sprinkle them with salt; before you dish them, cut the heads off and split them, and put them on the sides of the dish. The sauce is the livers and parsley boiled together, then chopped fine, and add a little stock and melted butter.

No. 2. BILL OF FARE.

FIRST COURSE.

Soup à la Flamond.

SHRED turnips, carrots, celery, green onions or Spanish, very fine; add lettuce, chervil, asparagus, and pease; put them all into a stewpan, with about two ounces of butter, and a few spoonsful of stock; put them on a slow stove to sweat down for an hour, then fill up the stewpan with the best stock, and let it boil very slow for an hour: make a liaison with the yelks of six eggs, (for two quarts of soup,) beat the yelks very well in a bason, put a pint of cream (that has boiled) by little at a time, strain it through a hair sieve, then add a large spoonful of beshemell; take the soup off the fire, put the liaison to it, and keep stirring the soup; then put it on the fire until it comes to a boil, stir it all the time it is on the fire, otherwise the eggs will curdle. Season it with a little salt, if wanted, and put a small lump of sugar.

A Fowl à la Duchesse.

Cut either one or two small fowls, (as for a fricasee,) according to the size of the dish it is wanted for; put clarified butter on a soutiespan, lay the chicken on, and put it on a pretty brisk stove, to give it a nice colour; then put it into a stewpan with a few mushrooms, a bit of butter, and a few slices of ham, cut neat; put it over a slow stove, let it simmer gently for one hour, pour the liquor from the chicken into another stewpan, put sufficient flour to dry up the butter, add a little stock, and a little coulis, squeeze a lemon, a few drops of shalot vinegar, and a lump of sugar; dish it up; put the slices of ham round the edge of the dish, by way of garnish.

Tenderones of Veal.

Tenderones of veal is the gristle-bone of a breast of veal; cut it into thin slices, put them into a stewpan, with cold water, and put them on the stove to blanch; take them off when they come to a boil, put them into a white braise, let them summer for four hours, in which time they will be tender; take them up, and lay them on a clean cloth to dry the fat from them; cut some braised truffles into slices, and put them into coulis, with a little white wine, and a bit of truffle glaze; squeeze an orange, and put a little bit of sugar; dish them round the dish, and put the truffles in the middle; garnish with croutons of bread or paste, or a slice of truffle between every tenderone.

Brisket of Beef, stewed.

Cut the bone from a brisket of beef, tie it up, and put it into a brown braise; it will take about five hours; put six Spanish onions into a stewpan, with some second stock, and boil it down to a glaze; take the beef up, trim it neat, and glaze it; put Spanish sauce on the dish, the onions round the dish, and the beef in the middle; the onions should be glazed.

A Fillet of Pork.

Bone either a neck or loin of pork, and cut the rind off; put some second stock into a stewpan, with fat, from any braise that you have by you; put the pork in the stewpan, cover it with onions and sage, sprinkle it with salt, and lay the rind over it; it will take three hours; take it up, dry the fat from it, and glaze it; put sauce rober on the dish, and the pork on it; garnish with either paste or croutons.

Two Ducks à la Daube.

Bone two ducks and fill them with force-meat, put them into a stewpan with a little stock to set them, put them on a slow stove for about ten minutes, then add about a pint of good stock, and the bones and giblets, half a pint of sherry, six or eight onions, a faggot, and a few blades of mace; cover the ducks with sheets of bacon, and put them on a slow stove; they will take about two hours; take them out of the braise, dry and glaze them; strain the braise, skim the fat off, and reduce it to glaze; put coulis sufficient for the quantity of sauce that is wanting; put about two dozen of olives that have been pared and scalded; put the sauce on the dish, and the ducks on the sauce.

N. B. The olives should be pared as near the stone as possible, and without breaking: when boiled they will come to their shape.

Chickens and Celery Sauce.

Boil the chickens about twenty minutes, and make the celery-sauce as follows: Cut the celery (after being properly trimmed) into small pieces, boil it in clear stock for a quarter of an hour, reduce the stock to a glaze, and add beshemell to the cellery; take the chickens up and dry them in a cloth, put them on the dish, and the sauce over them.

A Loin of Veal à la Beshemell.

Put a loin of veal on the spit, (first, cutting the chump end off, as that makes a fricandeau, or à la daube,) do it over with oiled butter, sprinkle it with salt, paper it with double paper, tying it on with packthread, and put it to the fire; it will take two hours, or more, according to the size; when done, take it up, lay the kidney-side on a dish, (not the one that it is to be served up on,) cut out the fillet, leaving about an inch at each end, and either mince it or cut it into collops; put some good beshemell to it, season it with a little garlic vinegar, pepper, salt, lemon, and sugar; put the mince, or collops, into the place where you cut the fillet from; put bread crumbs over it, and a little clarified butter; put it in the oven for a few minutes, and brown it with a salamander; put beshemell on the dish, and the veal upon the sauce.

N. B. A loin or neck of veal that has been served up and not cut will answer the purpose as well as a fresh roasted one, by papering it, and putting it in the oven to make hot.

A Ham braised.

Put the ham to soak in warm water the day before it is wanted to be drest; put it on to boil in cold water, and let it boil about twenty minutes; take it up, take off the rind, and trim it, put it into a good brown braise, and a pint of sherry in the braise, put it on a slow stove, (the braising-pan should be covered down very close,) and boil as gently as possible for four hours, more or less, according to the size of the ham; when done, take it up, and trim and glaze it; put either spinnage, greens, beans, or coulis, according to the time of the year.

Boiled Chickens and Tarragon Sauce.

Boiled chickens and tarragon sauce. The tarragon sauce is made as follows: pick the tarragon from the stalk, leaf by leaf, put it on to blanch in a little cold water; when it boils, strain it off, put it into a small stewpan, with a little clear and pale-coloured stock, and boil it down to a glaze; add beshemell, and a few drops of tarragon vinegar. For directions about boiling the chickens, see page 13.

A Roulard of Veal and Mushrooms.

Bone a breast of veal and beat it well with a beater or chopper, (the more it is beat, in reason, the better it will keep its shape when rolled) brush it over with an egg beat up together; season it with pepper and salt, spread some good forced-meat over it, egg the forced-meat, and roll the veal up; put three small skewers in it to keep it tight, tie it up with twine, and put it in a braise; it will take two hours, or more; if there should be a ham, or a rump of beef braising, put the veal in the same pan: when done, take off the twine, but leave the skewers in, only put them out of sight, glaze it, and put the mushrooms under it.

N. B. Sorrel, white haricot beans, French beans, Spanish sauce, haricot roots, stewed cucumbers, &c. &c. will answer as well as the mushrooms: for which sauces, see Appendix.

A Goose.

A goose will take one hour to roast: put chopped sage and onion, seasoned with pepper and salt, keep it well basted while at the fire; put good gravy on the dish, and then the goose. Send apple sauce in a boat.

A Neck of Venison, stewed.

Lay the bottom of a small braising-pan with sheets of fat bacon; trim a neck of venison and lay it on the bacon, put a few onions, three heads of celery, a faggot of thyme and parsley, a few blades of mace, and a quart of stock; cover the venison with bacon, and then white paper; cover the braising-pan down close, and put it on a slow stove; let it simmer for two hours, or till the bones will pull out; take the venison up, strain and skim the braise, and reduce it to a glaze; put haricot roots and coulis to it; put the venison on the dish, and cover it over with the roots.

N.B. A breast and shoulder are done the same way; only, bone the shoulder.

White Collops and Cucumbers.

Cut the collops about the size of a half-crown-piece, flat them, and put them on a soutiespan that has been buttered; put them over a stove for a few minutes, turn them, take them off, and put them into some hot beshemell. The cucumbers should be cut in quarters, and the seed taken out; make two pieces of each quarter, let them lie in vinegar and water (with pepper and salt) about an hour before they are put on the fire; then put them into a stewpan, with a few spoonsful of stock and a bit of butter; let them do gently until they are done, then put them to the collops.

N.B. The collops should be sprinkled with shalot and parsley, chopped very fine, before they are put on the stove.

A Currie of Rabbits.

Cut two rabbits up, the same as for a fricassee, fry them in a little clarified butter until they are of a light brown colour, put them into a stewpan with a little stock, let them do very gently for about half an hour, then put a proper quantity of sauce-tourney, and a small table-spoonful of currie powder; raise a rim of rice round the dish, and put the rabbits in the middle.

Vermicelli Soup, white or brown.

Blanch as much vermicelli as is wanted, by putting it on the fire in cold water, let it boil up, then strain it off, and put it into cold water; let the vermicelli stay in the water until it is cold, (if it is left on a sieve to drain while hot, it becomes lumpy, and will not dissolve again,) strain it quite dry from the cold water, put as much best stock as you want soup. If it is for white, make a liaison of six eggs, as directed in page 12.

A Chine of Mutton.

A chine of mutton will take rather better than two hours, but that depends on the size. When you have tied it on the spit, butter it with oiled butter, and sprinkle it with salt, tie about three sheets of paper over it, put it down to the fire, and baste the strings directly, otherwise they will burn.

N. B. Mutton should be done with the gravy in it, but not under done. Always use a paste brush to butter your meat with, as no one thing looks so untidy as daubing the butter on with the hand.

SECOND COURSE.

Wild Ducks.

Wild ducks will take fifteen minutes roasting: they should be rather under than over done.

Apricot Tourte.

Sheet the tart pan with puff paste, put in some apricotjam, cross-bar it as your fancy directs, and bake it rather pale; sometimes it may be glazed, which is done in the following manner: sift some fine sugar on it, after it is taken out of the oven, and hold a hot salamander over it till the sugar is melted.

Mince Pies .- See page 8.

Fat Livers in Cases:

Scald the livers for a few minutes, to take away any bitterness that might remain from the gall, lay them on a cloth to dry, then butter a tart-dish, put in the livers, and sprinkle them with pepper and salt; put them in the oven for about ten minutes, have a proper case to the size of the dish, put the liver and liquor into the case, and put the dish with the case on it in the oven for a few minutes.

N. B. If they are too much done, they become hard.

Fondues.

Grate half a pound of Parmasan-cheese, put a bit of butter into a stewpan, when melted, add a few spoonsful of cream; put the cheese in while on the fire, and keep stirring it until melted; then take it off the fire, and put in six yelks of eggs, one at a time, stirring it all the while; put in about two tea-spoonsful of mustard, and a little pepper and salt, beat it up until it becomes like a thick cream, then beat up well the whites of three eggs, and put them to it; put it into a case, if for one, or in small cases folded up for that purpose: ten minutes will bake them.

N.B. There are moulds sold at the turner's for making paper cases.

Stewed Muchrooms.

The mushrooms should be peeled very thin and put into water, with the juice of a lemon; melt a bit of butter in a stewpan, then put in the mushrooms, and a little pepper and salt, set them over the fire for about fifteen minutes, (they should do very slow) add a little beshemell, if for white; and coulis, for brown.

N. B. Garden mushrooms are best.

Cauliflowers.

Cauliflowers should be cut in handsome pieces before boiled; a few minutes will boil them, if young; take them up on a sieve, and let them drain quite dry; put them on the dish, and the sauce over them.

A Pheasant.

A pheasant will take about twenty minutes to roast: send bread-sauce in a boat, made as directed in page 7.

Shoulder of Lamb.

A shoulder of lamb will take half an hour to roast; send mint-sauce with it.

N. B. Chop mint very fine, and put it into a boat with vinegar and sugar.

Orange Tourte.

Sheet the tart-dish with puff-paste, fill with marmalade, cross bar it, and bake it of a nice brown, or glaze it.

A Hare.

A hare will take about three quarters of an hour to roast; make common stuffing in the following manner: about three handsful of bread crumbs, one of suet, chopped very fine, a little lemon-thyme and parsley, and two eggs; roll it up, and put it into the belly of the hare; cover the back of the hare with fat bacon to keep it moist, baste it very often, dish it up with gravy and butter, and send currant jelly in a boat.

N. B. Beef suet is best for all purposes.

With a dinner of seven dishes a side, send up, at least, six dishes of vegetables to go down the middle, or on the side table, it being more genteel.

No. 3. BILL OF FARE.

FIRST COURSE.

Italian Soup.

BLANCH off Italian paste, and put it in a small souppot, with as much stock as necessary, and boil it about half an hour; if for white, make a liaison, as before directed in page 12. Two quarts is quite sufficient for one tureen.

Haunch of Venison.—See page 2. Petit Patés.—See Appendix.

Small Mutton Pies.

Raise as many small pies as the dish will hold, cut the fillet off a neck of mutton and some fat, take all the skin and sinews from it, and mince it very fine with your knife, (not with a chopping-knife); put about a spoonful of stock into a stewpan, with the mutton; mix a little chopped shalot, mushrooms, parsley, and thyme, and very little pepper and salt; add it to the meat, and set it on the fire for a few minutes, stirring it all the while; take it off to cool, then fill the pies; they will take about half an hour baking: with the meat that is left, put as much coulis and stock as you think will fill the pies up; when they are baked, cut the tops off, and fill them with it; dish them on a napkin.

N. B. All pastry should be dished on napkins.

Boiled Fowls, and Beshemell.

Boil them as before directed in page 13; pouring beshemell only over them.

A Fillet of Veal à la Flumond.

Daub a fillet of veal with bacon, rolled well in fine herbs and fine spice; cover it with bacon and paper; either roast or braise it, (it eats better roasted); it will take two hours and a half either to roast or braise; if braised, put a pint of sherry in the braise, and pour sauce-flamond over the veal. For sauce, see Appendix.

A Neck of Pork.

A neck of pork will take nearly two hours roasting: saw the chine-bone off, and take the blade-bone out, score it, and sprinkle it with salt: send apple-sauce in a boat.

A Haricot of Mutton.

Cut a neck of mutton into cotelettes, pass them off on a soutispan buttered; as soon as they are warm, turn them; take them off the soutiespan, and put them into a stewpan, laying them regularly round the bottom; put in about half a pint of good stock, cover them with white paper, and let them simmer for two hours; lay them round the dish, and the roots in the middle; skim the stock they were done in, and add it to the haricot-sauce, which will give it the true flavor of the mutton.

N. B. A haricot of venison is dressed the same way.

A Leg of Lamb and Cucumber Sauce.

A leg of lamb will take one hour and a half roasting; put it on the spit, butter and salt it, tie on it three sheets of paper, and baste it well; when done, take it up, and put the sauce on the dish, and the lamb on the sauce: if it should not be brown, glaze it.

Lamb's Head and Appurtenances.

The head should be sawed in two, and boiled till quite tender; then take it up and pull all the bones out; mix fine herbs and bread crumbs, pepper and salt; egg the lamb's head, and put the bread crumbs, &c. on it; then dip it in the eggs again, and put more bread crumbs on it; then peel the tongue, and crumb it in the same manner, which should be done three times over, to make it look large and handsome; pour oiled butter over them, and put them in the oven; cut the liver and heart in slices, with the same quantity of fat and lean bacon; fry the bacon first, and put it on a sieve to drain; then fry the liver and heart; the liver requires very little frying; if fried too much, it becomes hard and unpleasant: lay the liver round the side of the dish, with a little poivrade-sauce at the bottom; put the head on the dish, one side at each end, and the tongue in the middle.

N.B. The head and tongue should be of a nice light brown: if the oven does not brown them enough, hold a salamander over them.

A Turkey and Truffles .- See page 4.

A Salt Chine.

A salt chine will take three hours boiling; put greens round it.

Breast of Veal.—See page 5,

A Fillet of Mutton.

A fillet of mutton means a loin, the chump end cut off, and may be braised, or roasted; it will take two hours either way: if roasted, it should be first put on a lark-spit, then tied on a spit, butter and salt it well, put a paste on it, and a paper over all; when done, take it up and glaze it, and put haricot beans under it.

Two Fowls, and Oyster Sauce.

Boil the fowls as before directed in page 13. Make the oyster-sauce as follows: blanch and beard half a hundred of oysters, don't let them come to a boil, (oysters should not boil by any means, as they become hard and insipid,) strain the liquor, put a bit of butter into a stewpan; when melted, add as much flour as will dry it up; then the liquor belonging to the oysters and beshemell, according to the quantity: dish the fowls, (first drying them,) and put the sauce over them; squeeze half a lemon into the sauce, and put a little salt and sugar.

A Neat's Tongue.

A neat's tongue will take three hours boiling; when done, take it up, peel, trim, and glaze it; put greens round the dish, and the tongue in the middle.

A Goose.—See page 15.

Mock Turtle.

Scald a calf's head with the skin on, saw it in two, take out the brains, tie the head up in a cloth, and let it boil for one hour; then take the meat from the bones, and cut it into small square pieces, and throw them into cold water to wash them clean; then put the meat into a stewpan, with as much good stock as will cover the meat; let it boil gently for an hour, or until quite tender; then take it off the fire, put about half a pound of butter into a stewpan, and half a pound of lean ham cut very fine; some chopped parsley, orange and lemon thyme, sweet marjoram, knotted ditto, basil, three onions, chopped mushrooms, and shalots; put a pint of stock to the herbs and butter, put them on a slow stove, and let them simmer for two hours; put as much flour as will dry up the butter; add stock accordingly, (so as to make two turcens); add one bottle of Madeira, let it boil a few minutes, rub it through a tammy, and put it to the calf's head; put force-meat balls and egg ditto; season it with cayenne pepper, and a little salt, if wanted; squeeze two Seville oranges and one lemon, a little fine spice and sugar to make it palatable.

Ribs of Beef.

Ribs of beef will take about three hours; but that depends on the size and weight; put it on the spit, butter it, and salt and paper it; before the beef is taken up, baste, flour, and salt it.

SECOND COURSE.

Partridges.—See page 7. Savoy Cake.—See Appendix.

A Basket of Pastry.

A basket of pastry, such as tartlets of any sweetmeat: sheet the tartlet-pans with puff-paste, put in any sweetmeat you think proper, cross-bar them, and bake them in a quick oven.—For basket, see Appendix.

A Gooseberry Tart.

A gooseberry tart at this time of year is made of bottled gooseberries; sheet the tart-pan with tart-paste, put the gooseberries in, and moist sugar; cover it over with the same sort of paste, beat up the white of an egg, brush the tart over with the egg, sift sugar over it, and bake it in a slack oven.

Escaloped Oysters.

Blanch the oysters, beard them, and strain the liquor; put a bit of butter into a stewpan, when melted, put as much flour as will dry up the butter; pour in the oyster liquor and a little stock, boil it for a few minutes, put the oysters in, season it with a little pepper and salt, butter the escalopshells, then put the oysters, and as much of the liquid as they will bold; put crumbs of bread over the oysters, and drop oiled butter over them with a paste brush; put them in the oven to brown; if the oven is not hot enough, hold a salamander.

N.B. If for meagre, do not use any stock, but cream instead.

Smoked Salmon.

Smoked salmon is had from the oilman's; it is to be cut in thin slices and put in a case, and then put in the oven; there should be a little oiled butter in the case: a few minutes will do the salmon, as it only wants warming through.

Rabbits.—See page 10.

Larks.—See page 9.

Asparagus.—See page 7.

French Beans.—See page 9.

Woodcocks.

Woodcocks will take about fifteen minutes; have a toast baked and put on a plate, and put under the woodcocks to catch the train; put the toast and train on the dish, and gravy and butter, and the woodcocks upon the toast.

No. 4. BILL OF FARE.

FIRST COURSE.

VERMICELLI Soup.—See page 16. Fish.—See a general direction in the Appendix. Ham Braised.—See page 14.

Tenderones of Lamb à la Poulet.

Cut a breast of lamb into six pieces, put them into a stewpan with cold water, and put them on the fire to blanch; when they come to a boil, take them off, and wash them in cold water; put them into a white braise, put them on a slow stove, and let them do very slow for two hours, or until the bones well draw out; take them up and dish them, and pour sauce à la reine over them; garnish either with paste or bread croutons.

A Civet of Hare.

Cut up a hare (that has been roasted not too dry) as neat as you can, by leaving as little bone as possible; put the trimmings into a stewpan, with four large onions, a faggot of thyme and parsfey, a few blades of mace, a pint of good stock, and a pint of port wine; put them on a slow stove, let it boil very gently for two hours, and then strain it off; put a bit of butter into a stewpan to melt, then put a little flour, stir it about to mix it, then the liquor that was strained from the trimmings of the hare; let it boil for a few minutes, and strain it through a tammy; boil two dozen of button onions in stock, and put them to the civet; dish the hare first, put the sauce over the hare, and the onions at the top.

A Leg of Lamb boiled, and Loin fried, and Spinage.

A leg of lamb boiled, and loin fried: the leg of lamb will take about an hour and a half (but depends upon the size: cut the loin in cutlets, and fry them; put spinage round the dish, the leg of lamb in the middle, and the cutlets round it; put a little beshemell over the leg of lamb; garnish with carrot, &c. &c.

Boiled Fowls .- See page 13.

Breast of Veal à la Flamond.

Cover the bottom of a stewpan with bacon, put the veal in, and cover it with bars of bacon; put a pint of stock, and a pint of white wine; set it on a slow stove for two hours, or until the bones will part from the meat; take it up, strain the liquor that the veal was stewed in, and skim it; make the sauce from that, add mushrooms, squeeze a lemon, and put a little shalot vinegar, and a little dust of sugar; dish the veal and pour the sauce over it.

Two Ducks braised, and Turnips.

Bone them and fill them with force-meat; put the bones, and any other poultry trimmings into a stewpan, lay the ducks on the bones, &c.; put a few onions, a faggot, a few blades of mace, a pint of stock, and a little sherry wine; cover the ducks with sheets of bacon and paper; cover them down close, and put them on a slow stove for two hours; when they are done, take them up, strain the braise, skim the fat from it, and reduce it to a glaze; scoop as many turnips as is requisite, and fry them in clarified butter; put a little coulis to the glaze of the ducks, and the turnips in the coulis; give them a boil; put the turnips on the dish first, then the ducks, first glazing them.

A Neck of Mutton larded, and Carrot-peas.

Trim a ncck of mutton, lard the fillet, put it into a stewpan of cold water, and put it on the fire to blanch; when it boils, take it off, and put it into cold water; put trimmings of any kind of meat into a stewpan (that will hold the neck of mutton) with a few onions, sweet herbs, and a quart of second stock; put the neck of mutton in, cover it with sheets of bacon and paper; set it on a stove; it should simmer only for two hours; take it up, put it in the oven for a few minutes, and glaze it: have about half a pint of scooped carrots, the size of peas, boil them in some good stock down to a glaze; add coulis: put the sauce on the dish, and the mutton on the sauce.

A Shoulder of Lamb larded.

Take the blade-bone out of a shoulder of lamb, fill it with force-meat, sew it up with twine, then lard it; put trimmings of any sort of meat into a stewpan, with onions, celery, a faggot, and bits of carrots; put the lamb upon those, cover it with fat bacon, put a quart of second stock, and let it do very gently for two hours; put a little lighted charcoal upon the lid of the stewpan to raise the bacon;

when done, take it up, and put it in the oven for a few minutes; glaze it, put sorrel-sauce on the dish, and then the lamb.

A Woodcock-Pie.

Raise a pie according to the size of the dish that it is to go on; lay a few slices of veal on the bottom; then a layer of force-meat; then put in six woodcocks, season them with fine herbs, and chopped mushrooms; put in a pound of raw truffles pared and cut in thick slices; cover the woodcocks over with sheets of bacon; cover the pie, and garnish according to fancy; it will take two hours and a half to bake; when done, cut the top off, pour off the fat, and put in some coulis.

A Partridge Pie.

Raise a pie according to the size of the dish; put in slices of veal in the bottom of the pie, then good forcemeat; then put in the partridges, which should be boned and filled full of forced-meat, and a whole raw truffle in each; season it with fine herbs, and chopped mushrooms; put in one pound of raw truffles, first being pared; cover the partridges with sheets of bacon, then put the lid on, and garnish as you please; it will take three hours baking. The oven for those kind of pies should not be too hot. Cut half a pound of ham into small pieces, and put it into a stewpan, with the bones, livers, and gizards of the partridges, and any other loose giblets that you may have at hand; put about a dozen shalots, and a few blades of mace; set it on the fire with a little stock to draw down, for about ten minutes; then put about three pints of good stock, and half a pint of Madeira; let it boil very gently for about two hours, then strain it off, and put about one ounce of butter into a stewpan to melt; then put as much flour as will dry up the butter; then put in the liquor that the partridges bones were stewed in; boil it very slow for a few minutes, (keep stirring it while on the fire, for, any thing that has flour in it is apt to stick to the bottom,) and strain it through a tammy; pour the fat from the pie, and put in the sauce; you may add a few fat livers and a sweetbread cut as for a ragout.

A Fricandeau of Fowl and Endive.

Prepare a fowl, as in page 3; lard it, lay the bottom of a stewpan with sheets of bacon; then lay the bones of the fowl, and any other trimmings, and the fowl upon them; put in about a pint of second stock, a few bay leaves, onions, and a faggot; cover the fowl with sheets of bacon, and then with white paper; set it on a stove, and let it do very gently; the slower these kind of things do the better; put a little fire on the top of the stewpan; it should simmer for about one hour and a half; the liquor should not come near the bacon; when done, take it up and put it in the oven for a few minutes, to raise the larding, before it is glazed. Put the endive on the dish first, and the fowl on it; garnish with croutons and carrot roses, or what you think proper.

N. B. Ail lardings should be put in an oven for a few minutes before they are glazed.

A Fillet of Beef, larded.

Cut the fillet out of a sirloin of beef, trim it and lard it; then lay it in a marinade, made as follows: put the fillet, after it is larded, in a deep dish; pour about half a pint of salad oil over it, slice four or five onions, spread them over the beef, and a few bay leaves, thyme, and basil; and over them pour half a pint of vinegar; let it lie in this all night, then put it into a braising pan, (but not a very deep one,) with the marinade, and about a pint of stock; cover it with bacon and paper; be sure to let it simmer very gently; it will take two hours: when done, pour off the liquor, and strain it; skim the fat from it very clean; reduce it to a glaze, and put Spanish sauce to it; boil four Spanish onions until they are done, glaze them, and put them round the beef when you dish it; put the sauce on the dish first, then glaze the beef, and put it on the sauce.

A Roulard of Mutton, done the same as a Roulard of Veal.—See page 15.

Cucumber Sauce, with other Sauces.—See Appendix.

An Ox Cheek, with Roots.

Stew an ox cheek the same as a brisket of beef; dish it, and put haricot sauce over it. All the bones should be taken out and trimmed very neatly.

A Neck of Mutton, boiled.

A neck of mutton will take an hour and a half to boil; rub the turnips through a hair sieve; first, be sure to squeeze all the water from them; put a little cream and butter, a little salt and white pepper; garnish with carrots cut as croutons, or roses; send caper sauce in a boat.

N. B. Before it is put into boil, saw the chine bone, and strip the ribs half-way down, and chop them off.

Bacon, Chine.

A salt chine of pork will take about two hours; put greens round the dish, and the pork in the middle; garnish with carrot.

A Salmie of Wild Duck.

Cut up two wild ducks, (that have been dressed, and left from the day before); put the legs, wings, and breasts, cut in slices, into a stewpan, and set them by until wanted; put the trimmings into another stewpan, with a few shalots, a pint of good stock, and half a pint of red wine; set it on a stove, let it boil for half an hour, and then strain it off; put a bit of butter into a stewpan, when melted, put a little flower, and the liquor that has been strained from the bones; give it a boil, and strain it through a tammy sieve; put it into a stewpan, give it a boil, squeeze a Seville orange in it, put a little cayenne pepper to it; then pour it over the duck, and put it by the side of the stove; do not let it boil, or it will be hard; the sauce should not be quite so thick as sauces are in general.

A Matelot of Eels.

Cut one or two eels in pieces about two inches long, put them into a stewpan, with cold water, to blanch; when they come to a boil, take them off, and put them into cold water; scrape the second skin and fat off, wash them in several waters, (otherwise it will make the sauce muddy and greasy); when very clean, put the eels into a stewpan, with half a pint of good stock, half a pint of red wine, about two dozen of button onions neatly peeled, and take care that the root is not cut off, for, if it is, the onions will boil to pieces; put about an ounce of butter into a stewpan, with a little chopped thyme, parsley, shalots, and as much flour as will dry up the butter; put the liquor from the eels to it, and keep stirring it till it boils; then rub it through a tammy, and put the sauce to the eels; put a little anchovy essence, squeeze a lemon, put a very little sugar, and garnish with croutons.

Soup and Boulie.

Cut a brisket of beef that has been stewed into small square pieces; have some turnips and carrots scooped, button onions and celery cut in small pieces; put the pieces.

of beef in the pot first, then the roots, and about half a piece of stock; put the soup pot on a slow stove to simmer gently for one hour, then fill up the soup pot, (one that will hold about three quarts,) with best stock, and let it boil gently for about half an hour.

Fish.—See Appendix.

Chine of Mutton.—See page 16.

SECOND COURSE.

Pheasants.-See page 18.

Clear Jelly, ornamented or plain.

Directions how to boil the stock is given in the Appendix. Put the jelly stock into a stewpan; put about a handful of isinglass with it, a little cinnamon, a few cloves, and a few coriander seeds; put the jelly stock on the stove to melt; when melted, take it off; for two quarts of jelly stock, peel (very thin) six lemons and six Seville oranges; rub sugar to six more lemons, and six more Seville oranges; then squeeze them all into a bason that has the peel in, and the sugar that has been rubbed to the lemon and oranges; put a bottle of Lisbon wine, and about half a pint of brandy; put all this to the jelly stock, then break eighteen eggs (leaving out twelve yelks) whites, shells, and the six yelks, beat up together, and put them to the jelly stock; put sugar sufficient to sweeten it; put it on the fire, have a whisk, and keep whisking it until it boils; then put it to the side of the stove to boil for about five minutes; take it from the fire, put the cover on, and put lighted charcoal on the cover, and let it stay for half an hour; then put it into the jelly bag, prepared in a stand for that purpose; return it into the jellybag until it is clear, which is known by trying it in a glass; cover it up quite close to keep it warm, as by that means it will run the better: as for ornamenting, that must depend on fancy.

For Jelly Stand .- See Appendix.

Raspberry Cream.

Boil a quarter of an ounce of isinglass in a very little water; when dissolved, strain it through a hair sieve; while warm, put it to a quart of cream; keep whisking it up while putting the isinglass in; warm about half a pint of raspberry jelly and put it to the cream, and a little sifted sugar and a small glass of brandy; whisk it up well until it becomes quite thick, then put it into the mould.

N.B. In summer, use fresh raspberry; about a pint will make a mould of about a pint and a half; rub it through a tainmy.

Asparagus and French Beans as before directed.

Peths au Gratin.

Peths are taken out of the chine-bones of beef, mutton, or veal; put them on to blanch; when come to a boil, take them off the fire, and throw them into cold water, wash them, and put them on a cloth to dry; dip them in egg, and then in bread crumbs; do them twice over, and have clean lard in a stewpan; when hot, put in the peths, fry them of a light brown, and serve them up with fried parsley.

A Lobster.

A lobster, if sent up cold, is generally cut up and sent in the shell.

Mince Pies.—See page 8.

Cheese Cakes, of Cheese-curd, and Almonds.

Press the cheese-curd very dry, so as to get all the whey from it; then put it on the back of a hair sieve, with a bit of fresh butter, and rub it through the sieve with the back of a spoon; then put it into a bason. To as much as will make two dozen of cheesecakes, put six yelks of eggs, three whites, and a few bitter almonds; grate a lemon, and put a glass of brandy; sheet the pans with puff-paste, and put the preparation in; put them in the oven; they will bake in ten minutes.

Woodcocks .- See page 24.

Dun Birds.

Dun birds are of the widgeon and duck kind, and should be rather under than over done: they will take about fifteen minutes.

An Omelet.

An omelet is made as follows: break eight eggs (leave out four whites) into a bason, put a little chopped parsley, thyme, shalot, and pepper and salt; beat them all together for five or six minutes; then put about a quarter of a pint of good cream, and break in about two ounces of cold butter;

put butter in an omelet pan, when melted, put in the omelet, and keep stirring it about until it begins to set; then gather it up together with a knife, or a very small slice made for that purpose (which are made by Mr. Bailey, of Holborn, London); if the dish is oval, shape the omelet oval; if round, shape the omelet round; turn it out on a plate, then put it on the dish, and a little sauce-tourney round the edge of it. If for meagre, put no sauce; a few oysters chopped and put in the omelet (to make a change) eat very well: as also chopped ham, or kidney of veal, and any other thing your fancy leads to.

N.B. The slice will be found better than a knife.

Mushrooms .- See page 17.

Cederata Cream.

Boil a quarter of an ounce of isinglass in a very little water; when dissolved, strain it into a quart of good cream; keep whisking the cream while the isinglass is putting in, to hinder it from settling; then put in a glass of brandy, and one table spoonful of the extract of cederata; whisk it well up until it becomes quite thick, then put it into the mould; garnish with sliced orange, if in season.

N. B. Sweeten it with lump sugar.

GIBLET Soup.—See page 6.
Loin of Veal à la Beshemell.—See page 14.
White Collops.—See page 15.

Pigs Feet and Ears.

Braise them in a brown braise until quite tender, so that the bones will pull out of the feet without breaking the skin: the ears should be shred very fine, and put into rober-sauce; the feet should be dipped in egg, then in bread crumbs, mixed with parsley, chopped thyme, mushrooms, (if to be had,) and a little shalot, pepper and salt; do them with the egg and bread crumbs twice over; clarify a little butter, and put it on a soutiespan, and put the pigs feet on it; set them on a stove to finish, they should be of a nice light brown; put the ears on the dish first, and the feet round, the same as you would dish cutlets.

A Mutton and Potatoe Pie in a raised Crust.

Raise a pie about three inches high; cut a neck of mutton into cutlets, butter a soutiespan, sprinkle it over with mixt pepper and salt, chopped mushrooms, parsley, a little thyme, and chopped shalot; lay the cutlets on, then sprinkle them over; put them on a stove for about two minutes, just to set them; then turn them and put them to cool; when cold, lay the cutlets round the sides of the pie, in the same manner as you would round a dish; scoop potatoes, (with a turnip scoop,) and put them in the middle; scrape off the herbs from the soutiespan, and put in the pie; cover it in, and garnish as fancy directs; it will take two hours baking, in what is called a soaking oven: when done, cut the top off, and pour off the fat, but take care that none of the gravy comes out, as that is what gives it the real flavour; pour a little good coulis in; dish it on a napkin.

N.B. The neck of mutton should be boned before cut up.

A Pâté Goodeveau..

Raise a small pie about three inches high; put forcemeat round the sides, cut a sweetbread in slices, a few fat livers, and five or six truffles that have not been braised, or raw; cut them in slices, and cover the pie in; when done, pour in some good coulis, and a glass of Madeira wine.

N. B. Boil the coulis and wine together before it is put in the pie.

A Neth of Venison,

A neck of vehison is dressed in the same manner as a haunch; one hour will roast it.

Neck of Pork .- See page 20.

Beef Olives, with Sauce Restauret.

Cut about seven thin slices of beef from the rump, the same as you would cut beef-stakes; beat them very well with a beater; brush them over with egg, and then sprinkle them with fine herbs; season them with pepper and salt, roll them up quite tight, put a little stock at the bottom of a stewpan that will exactly hold them, (for, by being pressed together, they will keep their shape better,) cover them with fat bacon, cut in sheets, and put paper over that; put them on a stove to do very gently, the slower the better: they will take full two hours; take them up, and lay six round the dish, and one in the middle; pour sauce restauret over them.

A Fillet of Mutton .- See page 22.

A Turkey with Chesnuts and Sausages.

A turkey with chesnuts and sausages is done the same as a turkey and truffles, only using chesnuts and sausages instead of truffles.

A Rump of Beef à la Daube, and Cabbage.

Trim a rump of beef and daube it; put it in a marinade the night before, (make the marinade as before directed), and put it on in a brown braise: it will take four hours. Remember that it must do very slow; about one hour before it is wanted, put in about six bundles of savoy cabbage; the cabbage should be about half boiled in water, then squeezed very dry, and tied up in bundles; put Spanish sauce on the dish, the cabbage round, and the beef in the middle.

N.B. The beef should be glazed; garnish with carrot.

Stewed Partridges, with Truffles.

Draw in the legs of four partridges; lay the bottom of a stewpan with sheets of bacon, lay the partridges in, the breast downwards: put in the livers, necks, and gizards, and cover all with bacon; put in a pound of truffles that has not been braised nor peeled, half a pint of sherry, and about a pint of good stock; three or four onions, a faggot, and a few blades of mace; put paper over all, and cover them down close; set them on a stove; they should simmer very slow, and will take one hour and a half; when done, take out the truffles, peel them, and cut them in slices; then strain the braise that the partridges were done in, and skim the fat from it; put a bit of butter into a stewpan, when melted, add flour, then the liquor the partridges were done in, then put in the truffles; take up the partridges, dry them on a cloth, and pour the sauce and truffles over them; garnish either with paste, croutons, or carrots.

A Leg of Lamb, and Haricot Beans?

A leg of lamb will take one hour and a half to roast; put the haricot beans on the dish first.

N. B. Butter, salt, and flour the lamb.

A Neck of Veal.

A neck of veal will take about an hour and a half to roast; put gravy and butter under it.

N. B. Butter, salt, and paper it, before put to the fire.

Sheep's Rumps and Kidneys.

Bone four rumps, (or more properly called, tails,) fill them with force-meat, and put them in a white braise; split four kidneys, and put them into the braise; put them on a slow stove to simmer gently for two hours; put piquant sauce in the dish, the rumps round the sides, and the kidneys in the middle.

N.B. The rumps should be glazed, and a little sauce poured over the kidneys.

A Fricassee of Chicken.

Cut up two chickens very neat, take the thigh bones from the legs, put the chickens into a stewpan of cold water; and put them on the fire to blanch; when they come to a boil, take them off the fire, and put them into cold water; put the trimmings of the chickens into a stewpan, with a little lean ham, two onions, a few cloves stuck in the onions, a faggot, and a few blades of mace; put them on the fire for an hour, with about half a pint of water; then strain it off, and put it to the chickens with about two ounces of butter; let it simmer over the stove for about half an hour, then put a bit of butter into a stewpan; when melted, put a little flour and the stock from the chicken; add as much cream as will make it of a good white. It is a custom with some to thicken it with a liaison; a liaison of three eggs will do; put a few drops of garlic vinegar, half a lemon squeezed, and a little sugar.

A Volevent of Fish.

A volevent is puff-paste, cut in the shape of the pies, either qual or round; take out the inside, the same as you do petit pâtés; put a souties of sole in, and dish it on a napkin.

Pâté à la François.

Raise a pie about three inches high, lay the bottom with slices of veal, then a few mushrooms, then a few slices of ham, a chicken cut up, a few more mushrooms, and a sweet-bread cut in slices; season it with pepper and salt, and sweet herbs; cover it in, and put it in the oven; it will take about two hours in a slack oven; when done, pour off the fat, and put coulis, and six yelks of eggs boiled hard.

A Souties of Mutton and Cucumbers.

Cut a neck or loin of mutton into cutlets, butter a souticspan, and sprinkle it over with shalot, thyme, parsley, pepper and salt, and chopped mushrooms; put the cutlets to pass off; when done, lay them round the side of a stewpan, put a little stock in the middle, and a sheet of white paper cut round, over the cutlets; they will take one hour over a slow stove; dish them round the dish, and the cucumber-sauce in the middle.

N.B. Bone the mutton before you cut it up.

Soup Santé.

Shred turnips, carrots, small onions, and Spanish onion, when to be had: cut cabbage lettuce, pick a handful of chervil, and a pint of asparagus peas; put all into a souppot, with a pint of stock; set them on a stove to boil, until the stock is quite reduced, but not catched; then fill up the pot with good stock, and put two small lumps of sugar in, and a little salt, if wanted.

SECOND COURSE.

Wild Ducks. - See page 16.

Coffee Cream, in Cups.

Boil a quart of cream and put a little isinglass in, about half an ounce will be sufficient; strain the cream, and put about a pint of strong coffee; sweeten it with white sugarcandy, and put about a tea-spoonful of cederata (if to be had); put the cream into a pan, and whisk it up for about five minutes, then put the cream into cups.

Darioles, (so called from the Name of the Moulds.)

Make a bit of half puff-paste, sheet the moulds, and first butter them and dust them with flour, and half bake the paste; then fill them with custard made as follows: put a pint of milk, a pint of cream, a little cinnamon, and the peel of a lemon, into a stewpan; set it on to boil for a quarter of an hour, then let it cool; beat up the yelks of eight eggs in a bason, sweeten it with sifted lump sugar, pour the cream, &c. in, a little at a time, then mix it well, and strain it through a hair sieve; set it again on the fire, and when it begins to thicken, fill the darioles, and put them in the oven for ten minutes; when done, turn them out, and dish them, sift a little fine sugar over them, and glaze them with a salamander.

Eggs à la Trip.

Boil eight eggs hard, and put them in cold water; peel them, leave the yelks whole, and shread the whites; put a little chopped parsley into a little beshemell, and pour it over the eggs: there is no occasion for putting the eggs into the stewpan, the sauce being quite hot will warm the eggs sufficiently.

FIRST COURSE.

SOUP à la Flamond.—See page 12. Fish.—See Appendix.
A Matelot of Eels.—See page 30.

Semels of Carp.

Bone two good-sized carps, and cut them into rather a large collop; put about three ounces of butter into a stew-pan; put in fine herbs, such as thyme, parsley, shalots, chopped mushrooms, a little anchovy essence, pepper and salt; put it on the stove so as to melt the butter, then let it stand until three parts cold, dip the carp in, (and make as many herbs stick to it as you can,) then put it in bread crumbs, and lay them on a soutiespan, with clarified butter on it: when done, dish them round the dish, with fried parsley in the middle.

A Breast of Lamb, and Cucumber Sauce.

Cut the chine bone from a breast of lamb, put it on to blanch; when it comes to a boil, take it off, and put it in cold water for a few minutes; then score it, but mind that it is not cut through; put it into a stewpan, with about a pint of good stock; let it boil very slowly for an hour, or until the bones will pull out, then put it on the gridiron to grill; put cucumber sauce on the dish first, and the lamb on the sauce.

Beef Palates in Cotelets.

The palates should be braised, until very tender, then cut them into the shape of a cutlet, with a cuttrr for that purpose; dish them round the dish, and pour ravigot sauce in the middle.

A Pheasant braised, and stewed Cabbage, &c.

Draw in the legs of a pheasant; put a few trimmings of poultry, the neck and gizzard of the pheasant, (the same of any other game that you may have,) put it into a stewpan, with a quart of good stock, a few onions, a faggot, a few blades of mace, and the fat of any braise that has been strained off; wrap the pheasant up in bacon; put the breast downwards; put half a pint of sherry; set it on a stove, to do very gently: one hour will do it; when half done, put in six bundles of cabbage, (prepared the same as for partridge); when done, strain off the braise, and skim the fat very clean from it; put a bit of butter into a stewpan, when melted, put a little flour to dry up the butter; then put in the bottom of the braise the pheasant was done in, and squeeze a lemon; when it has had a boil, put the pheasant on the dish, the cabbage round it, and the sauce over all.

N. B. The cabbage should be well dried, in a clean cloth, before it is put on the dish.

Fowl and Oyster Sauce.—See page 22.

A Sparerib.

A sparerib will take one hour and a half, but that depends upon the size; sprinkle it with sage, chopped very fine, a few minutes before it is taken up; put gravy under it, and send apple sauce in a boat. Be particular never to put gravy over the meat, as it makes it eat insipid.

Neat's Tongue, and Barberries.

Cut a tongue that has been roasted into neat slices; put some sauce-tourney into a stewpan, and about two table spoonsful of preserved barberries to the sauce; give it a boil; then put in the slices of tongue to warm; when warm, dish the tongue round the dish, and the barberries in the middle.

A Goose.—See page 15.

Chickens à la Reine.

Chickens à la Reine are boiled for fifteen minutes; dish them, with cauliflower or broccoli round them, and pour sauce à la reine over them.

Rabbits à la Portugueze.

Bone two rabbits, and spread them with forced meat; roll them up, and make them as near the shape of chickens (trussed for boiling) as you can; put the bones into a stewpan, with any other trimming of poultry, with a few onions, a faggot, a little mace, and three or four bay leaves; put the rabbits in, peel two lemons, then cut them in slices, lay them over the rabbits, and sheets of bacon over them: put a pint of stock; set them on the fire, and let them simmer very slowly for one hour and a half; then strain the braise, skim the fat off, and make the sauce from it; put a few truffles in the sauce; put the sauce on the dish first, then glaze the rabbits, and put them on the sauce: for a change, lard them.

Breast of Veal and Peas.

Braise a breast of veal the same as directed in page 6; stew peas in the following manner: put a bit of ham on the bottom of the stewpan, then a bit of butter, (wash the peas in several warm waters to take the salt from them,) then put the peas into a stewpan, with two chopped onions, one table spoonful of sugar, and about half a pint of stock; put them on a stove to stew for one hour, then put a bit of flour and butter mixed; take up the veal; pull all the bones out; put it on a dish, and put the peas upon the veal.

N.B. Peas are preserved, in salt and water, in bottles.

Roots.—See Appendix.

Brisket of Beef, stewed .- See page 13.

Lamb's Head .- See page 21.

Fillets of Salmon, with Capers.

Cut six thin slices of salmon, flat them gently, season them with pepper and salt, (first brush them over with egg); roll them up, and put them in a stewpan that will just hold them; put about half a pint of stock; cover them with bacon; set them on a stove for half an hour, when done, lay them round the dish; put a little coulis into a stewpan, with the liquor the salmon was done in; a few capers, chopped; a little anchovy essence, a glass of Madeira, and squeeze half a lemon in it, with a little sugar. If for meagre, use fish stock.

Fillet of Sole à l'Italienne.

Fillet a pair of soles; scrape two of the fillets, and as much fat bacon; put it into the mortar, with a little parsley, shalots, and thyme, all chopped very fine; rub it about the mortar for a few minutes; put in half the crumb of a French roll, that has been soaked in cream; mix them all together; then beat up the white of an egg, and put it in the mortar, with a little pepper and salt, and two anchovies, washed, boned, and chopped very fine; take it all out of the mortar; flat the fillets of soles, brush them over with egg, then spread the force on, and roll them up; put them in a tart pan, (first covering the bottom with bacon); put a few spoonsful of stock; cover the fillets with bacon; put them in a slow oven for half an hour, then dish them, and pour white Italian sauce over them. If for meagre, leave the bacon out.

Italian Soup,—See page 20.
Fish.—See Appendix.
Chine of Mutton.—See page 16.

SECOND COURSE.

A Wax-Basket.—See Appendix.
Prawns are had from the fishmonger, readily boiled.
A Gum Paste-Basket.—See Appendix.

Tartlets.

Sheet the tartlet-pans with puff-paste, put what sweetmeat you think proper, cross-bar them, and put them in the oven to bake; when done, put them on paper to soak the butter from the paste.

Artichoke Bottoms à l'Italienne.

Put the artichoke bottoms to soak in warm water, change the water several times; when quite soft, trim them, and put them into a stewpan, with a little stock, to keep hot; put the artichoke bottoms on the dish, and Italian sauce over them.

Salsifie.

Boil it until it is tender, then peel it, and put it on a dish; put a sharp sauce over it.

Mince Pics.—See page 8.

Gateau Millefleur.

A gateau millesseur is cut out of puff-paste; there are millesseur cutters for that purpose; put different sweetmeats in every piece, spin carmel sugar over all, as it hinders the paste from falling off.

Lobster, cold.—See page 32.

Pickled Oysters.

Get one hundred of the largest oysters that you can procure; when opened, put them on the fire to make hot; (but do not let them boil,) take them off, and strain the liquor through a tammy-sieve, beard the oysters, and put them into cold water for the time the pickle is making; put to the liquor of the oysters about a gill of vinegar, and the same quantity of sherry, a few blades of mace, a little whole white pepper, and a little salt; let it boil for half an hour; then make the oysters very dry, by laying them on a cloth, and put them to the pickle to boil for one minute; put them to cool. They do either for second course or supper.

Spinage and Eggs.

The spinage, when boiled, should be squeezed as dry as possible; then chopped very fine, and put into a stewpan, with a little beshemell, or a small bit of butter, a little cream, and very little pepper and salt; dish the spinage, and then put the eggs in to poach; be careful that they do not get too hard; the water should boil, and have a little salt and vinegar in it; when the eggs are put in, do not put the water on the fire, as they will do better by being covered up; they will do in three minutes; when you take the eggs up, trim the ragged parts of the white off, put them on the spinage, and garnish with croutons.

No. 7. BILL OF FARE.

FIRST COURSE.

Soup Cressey.

GRATE four carrots, a few sliced onions, cut lettuce, and chervil, and put them all into a stewpan, with a bit of butter; put a pint of lentils on the top of the roots, and add a pint of good stock; let it simmer for half an hour, then fill it up with stock; let it boil gently for an hour, then put in the crumb of two French rolls: when well soaked, rub it all through a taminy; have a little rice boiled in stock to put in the tureen.

Fish.—See Appendix.

A Turkey and Truffles. See page 4.

Petit Pâtés.—See Appendix.

Risoles.

Mince any kind of white meat, such as fowl, turkey, or yeal sweetbreads; put a little beshemell in a stewpan, make it hot, then put in the mince, season it with pepper and salt, a drop or two of garlic vinegar, the juice of half a lemon, and a little pounded sugar; put it on a dish to cool; when quite cold, roll it up, either round or long, beat up two eggs in a bason, dip the risoles in them, and roll them in bread crumbs; they should be done twice over; have some clean lard in a stewpan made quite hot; (the lard is not hot enough for frying either risoles or fish, until it stops boiling) then put in the risoles, have a sieve by the stove where you are frying to put them on, as soon as done, which will not be many minutes; pick some parsley, and dry it before the fire; put it in a proper cullender, and set the cullender in the lard; about one minute will be sufficient to crisp it: lay the risoles round the dish; and the parsley in the middle.

A Leg of Pork à la Boisseau.

A leg of pork for this purpose should be in salt about four days, and put in boiling water, to boil for about ten minutes; then take it up and skin it, spit it, and put it to the fire; it will take two hours to roast. About half an hour before it is taken up, shake on plenty of bread crumbs; then baste it with butter, put on more bread crumbs, and repeat basting and putting bread crumbs until it looks of a nice brown; take it up, and put under it a little sage and onion, chopped very fine, and boiled in good gravy: send apple-sauce in a boat.

Two Necks of Lamb à la Chevaux de Frize.

Trim two necks of lamb very neatly; strip and scrape the bones very clean from the meat; lard the fillet part, which is the lean, the length of the neck; the fat at the best end to be taken equal to the lean of the other end; braise them in a dry braise, for which see Appendix; when done, take them up, and put the bones one within the other; put them in the oven for a few minutes, glaze them, and put cucumber sauce in the dish, and then the lamb.

A Blanquet of Poularde, with Mushrooms.

Cut the breasts of one or two fowls (that have been roasted or boiled) into collops; put all the other parts into a stewpan with some lean ham, a few shalots, a faggot, some trimmings of mushrooms, and about a pint of pale-coloured stock; let it boil very slowly for half an hour, then strain it off; put a bit of butter into a stewpan, about half a pottle of mushrooms cut into thin slices; a table spoonful of stock, and the juice of half a lemon (to keep the mushrooms white); let them do gently for about ten minutes; put in a little flour, and shake it about the stewpan, (do not stir it with a spoon, for fear of breaking the mushrooms); then add the stock that the bones of the fowls were boiled in, with the addition of a little cream; let it boil about three minutes, then put it to the fowl, add a few drops of garlic vinegar, and a little pounded sugar; garnish with croutons, either with paste or bread.

Fillets of Mutton, with Cucumbers.

Cut the fillet of the inside of a cold chine of mutton into thin collops; prepare the cucumbers the same as for sauce, (only leaving out the onions,) and put the mutton to them; set it on the fire for a few minutes, but do not let it boil.

Neck of Veal Irraised, and Sauce à la Reine.

Trim a neck of veal by cutting off the chine bone, and cutting the rib bones short; set it on the fire in cold water to blanch; when it comes to a boil, take it off and throw it into cold water; lay the bottom of a stewpan with sheets of bacon, put the yeal in, and cover it with bacon; put in a few onions, a faggot, a few blades of mace, and a bit or two of carrot, and one quart of stock; cover it with paper, and set it on the fire; it will take two hours to do; when done, take it up, dry it, and put the sauce over it.

Boiled Chickens and Cauliflower. - See pages 20 and 18.

Loin of Veal.

Cut the chump off, (which you may use for another purpose,) and put the loin on a spit, butter, salt, and paper it; it will take two hours; then take the paper off, baste with butter, salt and dredge it: dish it and put gravy and butter under.

Neck of Mutton boiled, and Turnips, &c .- See page 29.

Chickens with tarragon .- See page 14.

Scorch Collops.

Cut the collops from the fillet of veal, flat them, and put them on a dish; cut a few slices of fat bacon, and put them into an iron fryingpan to draw the fat from them; then put the fat on a plate, leave a little in the pan, fry the collops of a light brown, then turn them; when brown on both sides, put them into a stewpan that has a sufficient quantity of coulis; make a few force-meat balls, and fry them in the fat of the bacon, or clarified butter will do; make the collops hot, put a glass of sherry in, and squeeze half a lemon; put a dust of sugar, and a little cayenne pepper.

Souties of Sole, with Sauce à la Reine.

Bone a pair of soles, and out each fillet in three; butter a soutiespan, and sprinkle it with pepper and salt, thyme chopped very fine, (but very little,) chopped parsley, and mushrooms; lay the soles on, and sprinkle them over; set them on a slow stove; a very few minutes will do them: dish them round the dish, pour the sauce over them; scrape the herbs from the pan, and put them to the sauce; squeeze a lemon, and put a few drops of shalot vinegar.

A Fillet of Mutton with Haricot Beans. - See page 22.

Crockets.

Crockets are made the same way as risoles, only of a different shape; put the small claw of a lobster in one end, and the broad part of the tail in the other, giving it the shape of a bird: dish them the same as risoles.

Small Mutton Pies.—See page 20. Chine of Mutton.—See page 16.

SECOND COURSE.

Partridges.—See page 7. Trifle.—See page 8.

Rhenish Cream.

Beat up the yelks of eight eggs very fine; put a quart of jelly by a little at a time, then strain it through a lawn sieve; stir it until near cold; then put it into a mould: garnish with China orange.

Mince Pies.—See page 8.
French Beans.—See page 9.
Asparagus.—See page 7.
Small Puddings.—See Appendix.
Escaloped Oysters.—See page 23.

Sea Kail.

Sea kail is tied up in bundles, like asparagus; put a toast on the dish, and the sea kail on the toast: put a little melted butter over the kail.

Artichoke Bottoms.

Artichoke bottoms are put to soke in warm water, for four hours; change the water frequently; when quite soft, trim them, and put a little coulis to them; squeeze a lemon, and add a little sugar: if for meagre, use cream.

Larks-See page 9.

Snipes, the same as Woodcocks.—See page 24.

Lobster au Gratin.

Cut up a lobster, take the fish out, cut it in small pieces and put it into a stewpan, with a little sauce tourney, pep per and salt, and a little anchovy essence; mix it all toge ther, split the tail and body shell; put the lobster in, and cover it over with bread crumbs: drop clarified butter ove the lobster, and put it in the oven to brown: if for meagre use cream.

No. 8. BILL OF FARE.

FIRST COURSE.

A Blanquet of Fowl.—See page 72. Cut a few truffles in slices and add them to the fowl.

Lamb's Feet, with Asparagus Peas.

It will take twelve lamb's feet to make a corner dish; they are had ready scalded from the butcher's; take the worm from between the hoof first, and then loosen the skin and gristle from the shank bone; then put them on in cold water, let them boil until the shank bone will draw out; then cover the bottom of a stewpan with sheets of bacon; put in the lamb's feet, and two lemons peeled and sliced; and half a pint of second stock: cover the feet over with bacon and paper; set the stewpan on a stove to simmer very gently, for an hour; when done, take them up, and lay them on a clean cloth to dry; then lay them round the dish, put the asparagus peas over the feet; the asparagus should be put into a stewpan, with as much stock as will barely cover them, and set on a stove to boil until the stock is quite reduced, (but not to burn to the bottom); then put beshemell according to what is wanted; set it by the side of a stove to make hot, but not to boil, as it would spoil the colour of the sauce by boiling.

Turkey boiled, with Oyster Sauce.

A turkey boiled and oyster sauce is done the same as a fowl: the turkey will take longer boiling.

A Bacon Chine and Greens .- See page 30.

A Souties of Hare.

Cut the back and legs of a hare into collops: flat them, and put them on a soutiespan that has been buttered and sprinkled with pepper and salt; put a glass of Madeira wine in the pan; a few minutes will do them. Do not put them on the fire until a few minutes before they are wanted: put them off the soutiespan on the dish; the sauce should be made from the remainder of the hare, put into a stewpan, with lean ham, a few shalots, a faggot, a little mace, and a pint of good stock; set it on the fire to simmer for an hour, strain it off; put about an ounce of butter into a stewpan, when melted, put flour to dry it up, and add the liquor from the bones of the hare; let it boil for a few minutes, strain it through a tammy-sieve, slice about half a pound of truffles in, and put the liquor that the souties was done in; squeeze a lemon, and put it over the hare; garnish with croutons, or paste.

Souties of Fish.

Fillet two haddocks, and cut them in collops, butter a soutiespan and sprinkle it with pepper and salt, flat the collops of fish, and put them on the soutiespan; set them over a stove for about three minutes, turn them, and put them on a dish; put the liquor that comes from the fish into a stewpan, and some beshemell; a few drops of essence of anchovies, a few drops of garlic vinegar, a little lemon juice, and a dust of sugar; put the sauce over the souties: garnish with paste, or croutons.

Haunch of Lamb and Chervil Sauce.

Cut a hind quarter of lamb into a haunch, lard it, and put it into a marinade; cover it well with bacon and paper, put it in the oven to do; one hour will do it: put the sauce in the dish, and the lamb on the sauce: first glaze the lamb.

Breast of Veal, braised.

Braise it as directed in page 5: glaze it, and put ravigot sauce under it.

Ham Pie.

Raise a pie according to the size of the ham that is inrended for it; lay a few slices of veal at the bottom of the pie, and some good farce upon it, then put in the ham; it hould be the prime part of a Westphalia ham, braised until hree parts done before it is put in the pie; put plenty of arce round the sides of it, cover it in; it will take about wo hours to bake: when done, pour off the fat, and put in ome good coulis, with a glass of Madeira wine in it: it is good either hot or cold.

Amiens Pie.

Raise a pie to match the ham-pie, bone two ducks, and ill them with farce; put them in a stewpan, with a little tock, cover them with bacon, and set them on a slow stove o simmer for an hour; then put them to cool in the liquor hey were done in; when cold, put them in the pie; first, laying a few slices of yeal at the bottom, and farce on the yeal; put the ducks in, and the liquor, fat, and all that they were done in; cover them all over with bacon; the pie will take two hours baking. Put the bones and giblets of the ducks, and any other giblets that are handy, into a stewpan, with a faggot, a few blades of mace, a pint of sherry, a pint of stock, and about a dozen of shalots; set them on a stove to boil very slow for two hours, then strain it off, and skim the fat from it; put a bit of butter into a stewpan, when melted, put flour to dry up the butter, then the liquor the bones, &c. &c. were boiled in: let it boil a few minutes, strain it through a taminy sieve, and put it in the pie.

N. B. Put about one pound of truffles in the pie before it goes in the oven; the truffles should be peeled, but not boiled: this pie is good either hot or cold.

A Neck of Venison and Roots .- See page 15.

A Neck of Mutton larded, and Endive .- See page 27.

A Souties of Pheasant and Truffles.

Cut the breasts of two pheasants into thin collops; flat them, and lay them on a soutiespan that has been buttered, put in a few chopped truffles, (if to be had,) and a few spoonsful of sherry; set them on a stove for a few minutes, at dishing time. All souties should be left until the last minute; the sauce is made as follows: put about a quarter of a pound of lean ham, cut fine, into a stewpan, with the bones of the pheasants, a few shalots, a faggot of thyme and parsley, a blade or two of mace, and a pint of stock; set the stewpan on the stove to boil very slowly for an hour, then strain it off; put a bit of butter into a stewpan, when melted, put flour to thicken it; stir it a few minutes over the fire, then put in the liquor from the pheasants' bones, let it boil a few minutes, and strain it through a tammy; put a few sliced truffles'in it, a little lemon juice, and a dust of sugar; put the souties on the dish, and the sauce over it: garnish with paste.

A Souties of Sweetbread, and Piquant Sauce.

Cut two long sweetbreads that are about half done into thin slices; butter a soutiespan, and sprinkle it with chopped parsley, shalot, truffles, or mushrooms, and a little pepper and salt; lay the sweetbreads on, and set them over a stove to simmer for five or six minutes, then turn them, and let them simmer as many more minutes, then dish them round the dish; empty the soutiespan into the stewpan that has the sauce in, finish the sauce, and put it in the middle of the dish.

Tongue and Greens.

Boil a neat's tongue for three hours; then peel it, and trim the root so as to make it stand on the dish; put greens round the dish, and the tongue in the middle: glaze the tongue.

Boiled Chickens and Tarragon Sauce. -- See page 14.

Tenderones of Veal .- See page 12.

N. B. A la poulet means to put beshemell over them, or sauce à la reine.

Calves Ears.

About ten ears will make a corner dish; the ears should be particularly well cleaned, so as to be quite free from hair inside as well as out; then fill them with force-meat, and put them in a stewpan, with a white braise; they will take about an hour or better: when done, take them up, and put them on a clean cloth to soak the fat from them; then put them round the dish, pour white Italian sauce over them, and a little in the middle of the dish: garnish with croutons.

N.B. Asparagus peas are a proper sauce for them.

Soup Julian.

Soup Julian is nearly the same as soup santé: for which, see page 38, only leaving out the lettuce and chervil.

Sirloin of Beef.—See page 7.

SECOND COURSE.

Pheasants, Roast.—See page 18.

Plovers should be rather under-done; about ten minutes will do them; put gravy in the dish; garnish with water-cresses.

Fat Livers.—See page 17.
Asparagus.—See page 7.

Currant Tourte.

Sheet a tartpan with puff-paste, and put preserved currants in and cross-bar it.

Compote of Pears.

Peel the pears, cut them down the middle, and take out the core: put a pound of sugar on to boil in about half a pint of water, skim it until it is quite clear, then put a pint of Port wine to it; put the pears into a preserving pan, and pour the sugar and wine over them; put in about two dozen of cloves, cover them over with paper, and let them boil gently until tender; they will take two hours: this quantity of sugar and wine will do for twelve pears.

Compote of Golden Pippins.

Peel the pippins very thin and even, and put them into water; put the peelings into a stewpan with half a pint of water, half a pint of white wine, a pound of lump sugar, a little cinnamon, and two lemons cut in slices; set the stewpan on the stove to boil very slow for an hour, (core the pippins, and put the cores in with the peelings, &c.) strain it through a lawn sieve, put the pippins into a small preserving pan, lay them in even, not one upon another; then put the sirup over them, and set them on a stove to simmer very gently until they are tender; then take them up with a slice, and put them on a dish to cool; reduce the sirup to as much as will cover them on the dish: garnish with sliced preserved Seville orange.

FIRST COURSE.

A TUREEN of Turtle.—See Appendix.
A Loin of Veal à la beshemell.—See page 14.

White Collops of Turtle.

Butter a soutiespan and sprinkle it over with turtle herbs; cut the collops and flat them; put them on a soutiespan, and set them on a stove for a few minutes; turn them, and put them into a stewpan with beshemell in it; scrape all the herbs from the soutiespan, season it, squeeze half a lemon in it, and put a little sugar: garnish with paste.

Intestines of Turtle.—See Entrails, in the Appendix. N. B. Put onion sauce over them the same as rabbit.

A Goose.—See page 15.

Neck of Venison .- See page 15.

A Raised Pie, with Mutton and Potatoes. - See page 35.

A Timball of Maccaroni and Chicken.

Boil the maccaroni in broth until tender, then put some beshemell and grated cheese, and a chicken cut up as for a fricassee: (a chicken that has been left from dinner the day before will do;) put it to the maccaroni and make it hot, then put it to cool; butter the mould (that is intended for the timball) and put in some bread crumbs, or vermicelli; shake it about, what does not stick to the mould, turn out; then sheet it with trimmings of puff-paste that has a little flour worked in it; when the maccaroni and chicken is cold, put it into the mould, cover it in, and put it in the oven; one hour will bake it: the oven should not be over hot; when done, turn it out, cut the top out, and put a little beshemell, and a little in the dish round the timball.

Fricandeau of Turtle.

Fricandeau of turtle is done the same as a fricandeau of veal: put sorrel sauce under it.

Turtle braised as Chickens.

Cut two pieces of the lean meat of the turtle, the same size as for a fricandeau; blanch them by putting them into cold water; then cover the bottom of a stewpan with sheets of bacon; put in the pieces of turtle, put slices of lemon over them, and sheets of bacon; about a pint of stock, a few onions, a faggot of turtle herbs; set the stewpan on the stove to simmer for an hour; then take them up and pour sauce à la reine over them; garnish with white broccoli or cauliflower.

A Ham braised. See page 14.990 at bluom out as mod

Fillet of Veal à la Flamond,—See page 20.

Turtle Fins.

They should be served in a deep dish, something like a tureen dish. For dressing, see the Appendix.

Sucking Pig.

Put chopped sage and bread crumbs in the inside; put it on the spit; when it has been at the fire for a few minutes, rub it over with sweet oil, then flour it well, do not baste it, but keep flouring it every five minutes: it will take about an hour and a half, but that depends on the size: about ten minutes before it is taken up, cut the head off, and take it off the spit: split the head, take out the brains, and cut the tongue out; peel it, and chop that and the brains together; put them into a stewpan, with a little of the crumb of bread, and sage from the inside; put a little stock and melted butter to it; when the pig is done, take it off the spit, rub all the flour from it, and wipe it over with a cloth that has been dipped in salad oil; then split it down the back, and lay it on the dish; send the sauce in a boat: egg sauce is sent with it as well as other sauce.

Leg of Lamb and Cucumbers.-See page 21.

Rump of Beef à la Mantua.

Trim a rump of beef, daube it, and put it in a marinade for twelve hours; then put it into a brown braise; put four large carrots into braise along with the beef, and four bundles of cabbage; when the beef is done, take it up, and put it in the oven for a few minutes; then glaze it; put sauce Allemande on the dish and the cabbage, and a piece of carrot between each bundle of cabbage.

Turtle roasted as Sturgeon. - See the Appendix. (Put a little of the turtle soup in the sauce.)

Grenedines of Turtle.

Grenedines of turtle are done the same as veal grenedines; larded, braised, and put French beans under them.

A Chatreuse.

Sheet the mould with sheets of bacon, cut a carrot in leaves, or any flower to ornament the bottom of the mould; then lay in a layer of spinage, scoop some carrot as long as the mould is deep, (the carrots should be boiled first, and all the other vegetables,) then trim as many heads of celery; roll out spinage the same length and thickness, then put them upright in the mould, first a carrot, and next spinage, and so on; then have some good force-meat, and put it all round the sides and bottom of the mould, and fill up the middle with cauliflower and beshemell; put a bit of any kind of paste on the top, and egg it over to bind it to the force-meat; then put the mould into a stewpan of water, so as to come up to the middle of the mould; then put the stewpan in the oven for about an hour; when done, turn it out, and take the bacon off, and soak the fat up that runs on the dish; put a little white Italian sauce round the bottom of the dish.

Beef-steak Pie,

Raise a small pie so as to match the mutton pie; cut some beef-steaks thin, butter a soutiespan, and sprinkle it with pepper and salt, shalots, thyme, and parsley; put the beef-steaks on, and the pan on the fire for a few minutes; then put them to cool; when quite cold, put them in the pie; scrape all the herbs in, cover the pie, and ornainent as you please; it will take an hour and a half; when done, take the top off, and put in some coulis.

A Bacon Sparerib.—See page 42,

Scorch Collops of Turtle are done the same as of yeal;
—See page 49.

Chine of Mutton.—See page 16.

SECOND COURSE.

Wild Ducks.—See page 16. Snipes.—See Woodcocks, page 24, Partridges.—See page 7.

A Capon will take about half an hour to roast. Gum Paste Basket of Pastry.—See page 23. Wax Basket of Prawns.—See Appendix. Asparagus and French Beans.—See pages 7, and 9. Cheesecakes and Mince Pies.—See pages 32, and 8. Peths.—See page 32.

Salsifie, fried.

Salsifie should be boiled until quite tender, then peeled and put into batter, then into hot lard to fry; if, for meagre, use clarified butter; it should be fried of a light brown.

Cauliflower and Queen Sauce.—See page 18. Sea Kail, the same as Asparagus.—See page 7. Savoy Cake.—See Appendix.

Chantilly Basket.

Stick ratifies on a dish, (in the shape of a basket,) with carmel sugar; a few hours before it is sent to table, put in the same preparation as is for the bottom of a trifle, and whipped cream at top.

No. 10. BILL OF FARE:

FIRST COURSE.

TURTLE.—See Appendix.

Semels of Turtle.

Cut the lean flesh of the turtle into round pieces about the size and thickness of a crown-piece; put about a quarter of a pound of fresh butter into a stewpan, with pepper and salt; chopped mushrooms, parsley, thyme, knotted and sweet marjoram, and a very little basil; set the stewpan on a stove to melt the butter; then let it get three parts cold, put some elarified butter on a soutiespan, dip the turtle first in the butter and herbs, and then in bread crumbs: put it on the soutiespan, then on the stove to finish: dish them round the dish, and the sauce in the middles.

Petit Patés of Turtle.

Mince the white collops that were left from the day before, warm them, and fill the patés.

A Leg of Lamb boiled, and Spinage.—See page 26. Three Fowls and Oyster Sauce.—See page 22. Sheeep's Rumps and Kidneys.—See page 37.

Sausages and Sour Crout.

The sausages are had at the poulterers, and the sour crout at the oil shop; the sausages should be fried.—See Appendix.

Fillets of Fowl larded, and Mushrooms.

What is meant by fillets of fowl is all the flesh of the breast left to the wing; lard them and put them on to blanch in cold water; when they come to a boil, take them off; put the bones, and any other trimmings, into a stewpan, with a few onions, a faggot, a little mace, and about a pint of stock; lay some sheets of bacon over it, and the fillets of fowl on it; take the bones from the legs, and fill them with force-meat; sew them up, and put them along with the fillets; when done, glaze them, and put mushrooms on the dish, and the fillets and legs on the mushrooms. For mushrooms.—See page 17.

Veal Cutlets larded, and Sorrel Sauce.

Cut six cutlets from the best end of a neck of veal; trim them very neat, lard them, and put them on to blanch; when they come to a boil, take them up; put any trimmings of veal that is at hand into a stewpan, a few onions, a carrot, and a faggot; put bacon over them, and a pint of second stock; lay the cutlets in, and put bacon over them; set them on a stove for an hour, then take the cutlets up, and put them in the oven for a few minutes; glaze, and dish them on sorrel sauce; for which, see the Appendix. Garnish with crouton.

Stewed Beef (see page 13) and Roots.—See Appendix. Loin of Veal.—See page 49.

Lamb's Heart, Sweetbreads, and French Beans.

Lard twelve lamb's sweetbreads and blanch them off; cover the bottom of a stewpan with fat bacon, lay the sweetbreads in, and put a little stock; cover them over with bacon and paper; when done, glaze them; put the French beans on the dish first, and the sweetbreads on them: garnish with paste.

N.B. They will take about fifteen minutes doing.

Fillets of Rabbit larded, and Asparagus Peas.

Fillet two rabbits, by leaving the fillet of the back to the leg; lard them, and blanch them off; put the bones, &c. into a stewpan, the same as for the fillets of fowls; they will take about half an hour; finish the same as the fillets of fowls.

Asparagus Peas.—See page 53.

Fillet of Pork (see page 13) and Spanish Sauce.—See Appendix.

A Roulard of Mutton (see page 15) and Cucumber Sauce.

-See Appendix.

Boiled Fowl and Oysters.—See page 22. Ham braised.—See page 14.

Turtle Steaks, riblette.

Cut the turtle in the shape of cutlets, dip them in clarified butter, that they should not stick to the gridiron, season them with pepper and salt; a few minutes will do them; put no gravy in the dish; put them round the dish: they should go to table as hot as possible.

A Souties of Liver of a Turtle.

Butter a soutiespan, sprinkle it with fine herbs, chopped truffles, and put a glass of Madeira wine on it; cut the liver in slices, and lay them on the soutiespan; sprinkle them with pepper and salt, turn them, and the liver will do in a very short time; put it round the dish; put the kidney and hearts in the middle, and piquant sauce over them; scrape the herbs from the soutiespan into the sauce.

A Chine of Mutton.-See page 16.

SECOND COURSE.

Blanc Mange.

Put an ounce of isinglass into a stewpan, with half a pint of water, let it simmer very gently until the isinglass is quite dissolved; then strain it into a pint of cream, and a pint of milk, mixed; put the peel of a lemon in, and a little cinnamon and sugar; let it boil for fifteen minutes, blanch two ounces of sweet almonds, and half an ounce of bitter almonds; pound them until they are fine enough to go through a tammy; then mix them with the milk and cream, &c. let all boil for a few minutes, then rub it through a tammy, so as to get all the almonds through; then put a glass of white brandy to it; when getting cold, put it in a mould.

N.B. When a larger quantity is wanted, use almonds and isinglass accordingly.

Ham and Toast.

Cut some ham in the shape of cutlets; (ham that has been dressed will do;) cut bread the same shape, and fry it of a nice gold colour; the ham should only be made hot; lay the ham and toast round the dish, one between the other; put a little coulis in the middle of the dish.

Mushrooms.—See page 17.
Mince Pies.—See page 8.
Small Puddings.—See Appendix.

Asparagus and Eggs.

Cut the asparagus (that has been left from last dinner,) the same as for peas; break eight eggs into a bason, beat them up, put a little pepper and salt, and the asparagus; put it into a stewpan, with two ounces of butter, and keep stirring it all the time it is on the fire; when it becomes thick, it is done; then put a toast on the dish, and the eggs and asparagus upon the toast.

N.B. This should not be done until the second course is

French Beans and White Sauce.—See page 9.

Potted Hare.—See page 10.

Brawn is had from the fishmongers.

Mushrooms broiled.

Trim, pepper, and salt them, and put them on a soutiespan, with a little butter over them; put them in the oven, and then on the gridiron, for a few minutes; put the liquor that eomes from the mushrooms on the dish when sent to table.

Cederata Cream.—See page 33.

China Orange Jelly.

Rub the bloom of six China oranges upon half a pound of sugar; peel three Seville oranges and three lemons very thin; put them into a stewpan, with a pint of water, one ounce of isinglass, a little cinnamon, a few coriander seeds, and a few cloves; boil all together until the isinglass is dissolved; then strain it in a bason; put one pint of white wine, and a glass of brandy to it, the juice of the Seville and China oranges and lemons, and the sugar that was rubbed to the China oranges; keep stirring it until near cold, then put it into a mould; garnish with China orange sliced.

N.B. If you should have clear jelly to spare, that will answer the purpose better than making it from the isinglass; rub the bloom of six China oranges upon a quarter of a pound of sugar, squeeze the oranges, strain the juice, and put that and the sugar to a quart of clear jelly; keep stir-

Petit Pâtés.—See Appendix.
Fillet of Veal à la Flamond.—See page 20.

Chine of Lamb and Cucumber Sause.

Tie the lamb on the spit; butter, salt, and paper it; put it to the fire, and baste it well; it will take an hour and a half; put the sauce on the dish, and the lamb upon it.

Fricassee of Chicken.—See page 37.

A Souties of Mutton.—See page 38.

Calf's Head, hashed and grilled.—See page 3.

Chump of Veal à la Daube.

Cut the chump of veal from the loin; cut the eitch bone out; daube it in the same manner as a rump of beef; then tie it up tight; put the bones and other trimmings into a stewpan, with a pint of stock; put the veal in, and slice lemon on it, cover it with fat bacon and paper; set it on a slow stove to simmer for two hours, then take it up and glaze it; put the sauce on the dish, and then the veal.

Turtle.-See Appendix.

A raised Pigeon Pie.

Raise a pie which will hold eight pigeons; season them with pepper and salt and fine herbs; put a few beef steaks at the bottom of the pie, then a layer of force-meat, and then put in the pigeons, with half a dozen hard eggs, or more; it will take two hours to bake; when done, put a little coulis in.

A Pâté à la François. - See page 38.

A Fillet of Mutton and Haricot Beans.—See page 22.

A Brisket of Beef (see page 13) and Roots.—See Appendix.

A Souties of Veal.

Cut the veal in the shape of cutlets; butter a soutiespan and sprinkle it with chopped mushrooms, shalots, parsley, thyme, pepper, and salt; lay the veal on, pour a little clarified butter over it, and sprinkle with the above herbs, &c. the veal should be put on the soutiespan at least two hours before wanted, to absorb the flavour of the herbs: lay the veal round the dish, and put the cucumber sauce in the middle.

Fricassee of Rabbits, and Onion Sauce.

Cut one or two rabbits up in the same manner as you would a chicken, by cutting off the legs and wings; the back will make three neat pieces; put them on to blanch: when they come to a boil take them off, and wash them in several waters; there is a skin that gives it a dirty look, which must be taken off; then trim the ragged parts of it; cover the bottom of a stewpan with fat bacon; peel two lemons, and cut them in slices; put the rabbits in the stewpan, and the lemon over it; put in about a pint or better of second stock; cover the rabbits with bacon, and put paper over the bacon, set it on a stove to do very gently for half an hour or better; then peel about twelve or fourteen large onions, and put them on to boil; when they come to a boil change the water, and put some cold to the onions; put them on to boil again, and when they begin to boil take them off the fire, and throw them into cold water; then pull off the outside of them, and put the onions into cold water; set them on a stove to boil until they are quite tender; when done, rub the onions through a hair sieve, first squeezing the water from them; put them into a stewpan, with about two ounces of butter, a table spoonful of flour, half a pint of good cream, and a little salt; set the stewpan on the fire, keep stirring it until it boils, then take the rabbits up, and put them on a cloth to dry the fat from them; put them on the dish, and the sauce over them.

A Neck of Venison roasted.—See page 36. A Leg of Pork à la Boisseau.—See page 47.

Petit Pâtés of Oysters.

Put the oysters on to blanch, then beard them, and cut each oyster in about six pieces; put a bit of butter into a stewpan; when melted, put as much flour as will dry it up; then put in the liquor of the oysters and a little cream; squeeze a lemon, and put a little pepper and salt; then put in the oysters, make them hot, and fill the pâtés.

FIRST COURSE.

SOUP and Boulie.—See page 30. Chine of Mutton.—See page 16. Chatreuse.—See page 61.

A Grenade.

Sheet a mould, (that will match the chatreuse,) with bars of bacon; put force-meat round the sides, and at the bottom; fill it with any kind of poultry that has been left from the last dinner: put the mould into a stewpan of water, then put it in the oven for one hour, turn it out, and put coulis round the sides of the dish.

N. B. Put paste on the top before it is put in the oven, the same as the chatreuse.

Neck of Pork, roasted.—See page 20. Two Chickens à la Reine.—See page 42.

Blanquet of Fowl.

Cut the breasts of two cold fowls into collops; have some beshemel quite hot, and seasoned; put the fowl in, but do not let it boil: put it in the middle of the dish, and garnish with paste.

Two Woodcocks à la Tartar.

Cut up two woodcocks that have been roasted; put the wings, breast, and legs, into a stewpan; the back and inside into another, with six shalots, half a pint of red wine, half a pint of stock, and a couple of bay leaves, (if there are any odd bits of snipe, put them in); set the stewpan on the fire to boil very slow, for half an hour, and then strain it off;

put a small piece of butter into a stewpan, when melted, put a little flour, (the sauce should be rather thinner than coulis,) and the liquor the bones of the woodcock was boiled in: let it boil for a few minutes, keep stirring it all the while, then take it from the fire, and squeeze a Seville orange in; put a little Cayenne pepper and salt, if wanted; then put the sauce to the woodcock, and put it to the side of a stove for a few minutes; be careful that it does not boil.— Garnish with paste or croutons.

Blanquet of Veal.

A blanquet of veal is done the same as a blanquet of fowl.

N. B. Cut the veal either from a fillet or a neck, if there is a cold one.

Cut a piece out of the top of a Savoy cake, and scoop out the inside; put it on the dish that is to be sent to table, pour Lisbon wine into the cake, and as the wine soaks out, pour it over the cake with a spoon; when the cake has absorbed as much wine as it can, pour the remainder off the dish, and pour custard down the sides, and put some in the middle; whip up some cream, the same as for a trifle, and put it in the middle of the cake: blanch a few sweet almonds, cut them in quarters, and stick them round the edges, and on the sides of the cake.

Rice Fritters.

Boil the rice in milk, put a little cinnamon, and the peel of a lemon; sweeten it with sifted sugar; when the rice is done, take out the lemon-peel and cinnamon, and stir a piece of butter in, and four eggs, a glass of brandy, and a little nutmeg; butter a pewter dish and spread the rice on it; when cold, cut it out with a cutter of what shape you think proper; then dip the rice in egg, and then in bread crumbs; do them over twice; have some hot lard, or clarified butter, and put them in to fry; when done of a nice light brown, put them on white kitchen paper, and sift some fine sugar over them, and hold a salamander over to glaze them.

Anchovy Toast.

Cut thin toast, and cut it out with a cutter in what shape you think proper; fry it in clarified butter, wash the anchovies, and pound them in a mortar, with a little fresh butter; then take them out, rub them through a sieve, and spread them on the toast; wash a few anchovies, cut them in quarters, and lay them on the toast: garnish with picked parsley.

A dressed Crab, hot or cold.

Pick a crab and put the fish into a stewpan, with a bit of butter, a little anchovy essence, mustard, oil, and vinegar, a little elder vinegar, and a few bread crumbs; mix it well; if for hot, put it over the stove, and return it into the shell; put bread crumbs over it, and a little clarified butter dropped on with a paste-brush; put it in the oven, and brown it with a salamander: if for cold, put no bread crumbs over it; garnish it with the small claws, made into a ring; when only picked, put the fish that is in the shell on one side, and what is in the claws on the other: garnish with picked parsley round the shell, and the small claws round the dish.

Carmel and Gum Paste Baskets.—Sec Appendix.

Blanc Mange.—See page 65.

A dressed Lobster, hot or cold.

Take the fish from the tail and claws as whole as possible; the tail should be split: lay it on a dish. If for cold, make the sauce as follows: bruise the yelks of two eggs (that have been boiled) with the back of a spoen, put a few drops of water to them, as it will help to soften the eggs; when they are rubbed quite fine, put a little mustard, oil, and vinegar, and a little anchovy essence, a little pepper, and a little elder vinegar; put it over the lobster: garnish with parsley. If for hot, put the lobster into a stewpan, with a little Italian sauce, and a little anchovy essence; dish it, and garnish with croutons.

FIRST COURSE.

VERMICELLI Soup.—See page 16. Fish.—See Appendix. Loin of Veal à la Beshemell.—See page 14.

Cutlets of Salmon and Caper Sauce.

Split a middle piece of salmon, take the skin off, and cut the salmon into cutlets; put some butter into a stewpan, and a few chopped shalots, mushrooms, parsley, and thyme, and a little pepper and salt; when melted, put it to get about half cold; in the mean time, put a little clarified butter on a soutiespan; dip the salmon into the butter and herbs, and then in bread crumbs, put them on a soutiespan, and finish them the same as any other cutlets; put them round the dish, and the sauce in the middle; put a few capers into a little coulis, a few drops of anchovy essence, squeeze a lemon, and put a little dust of sugar: if for meagre, make the sauce from fish stock.

Fillets of Turbot, with Sauce à l'Italienne.

Cut the remainder of a turbot, that has been left from the day before, into fillets, (or rather like collops,) make the sauce hot, and put the fish on the dish, and the sauce over it; the sauce will heat the turbot without putting it on the fire.

Chickens à la Reine.—See page 42. Leg of Lamb and Spinage.—See page 26.

Beef Olives, and scooped Potatoes.

The potatoes should be scooped with a turnip scoop, and fried of a nice brown in clarified butter, and put into some coulis: they should not boil in the sauce.—See Beef Olives, page 36.

Currie of Rabbits.—See page 16.

Goose.—See page 15.

Neck of Venison stewed, and Roots. - See page 15.

Rump of Beef à la Mantua.

Tie up a rump of beef and put it into a brown braise to stew for four hours, (it should barely simmer); when it has been in the braise three hours, then put in the savoys that have been blanched, squeezed very dry, and tied up in bundles; when the beef is done, take it up and glaze it; put sauce Allemande on the dish, the cabbage round, and the beef in the middle.

FIRST COURSE.

SOUP à la Reine.—See page 2. Haunch of Venison.—See page 2. Fillets of Fowl, larded.—See page 63.

An Emince of Fowl, Veal, and Sweetbread.

Mince the white part of a cold fowl that has been either boiled or roasted, have some beshemell in a stewpan; when hot, put the fowl in, squeeze a lemon, and put a few drops of shalot vinegar, and a dust of sugar; put the mince on the dish, and the fillets on the mince: this will do for pâtés, risoles, and crockets, or for a dish: garnish with sippets of bread.

Sweetbreads larded, and Sorrel Sauce.

Lard two heart sweetbreads, and finish the same as lamb sweetbreads.

Petit Pâtés.—See Appendix.

Crockets.—See page 49.

Ham braised.—See page 14.

Two Necks of Lamb à la Chevaux de Frieze.—See page 48. Souties of Hare.—See page 52.

Souties of Fowl and Mushrooms.

Cut the breast of two fowls into collops, flat them, butter a soutiespan, sprinkle it with chopped mushrooms, lay on the fowl, and squeeze a lemon over the souties, by way of keeping the fowl white; when done, put them round the dish, and mushrooms in the middle.

Raised Maccaroni Pie.

Raise the pie according to fancy, and fill it with bran; bake it, and take out the bran very clean; then fill the pie with maccaroni, put grated Parmasan cheese on the top of the maccaroni; send no cover to the pie, and be careful not to have the maccaroni thin: the sauce should hang to the maccaroni when taken up with a spoon.

A raised Pie à la François.—See page 38.

Souties of Rabbit.—See Souties of Fowl, as above.

Fillet of Veal à la Beshemell.

A fillet of veal that has been roasted the day before will do for this; cut the middle out, and if there should be any cracks, put a little force-meat to fill them up; either cut the veal into collops, or mince it, and put it into beshemell; (if the veal is cold, put it into the oven for about an hour before the emince is put in,) put the emince in the place where it was taken out; put a few bread crumbs over it, drop a little clarified butter over the bread crumbs, and put it in the oven for a quarter of an hour; if not brown, hold a salamander over it. If the veal is cut in collops, put no bread crumbs over them: put beshemell round the sides of the dish.

Risoles .- See page 47.

Petit Pâtés of Mutton.

Fill the pâtés with an emince of mutton, done as follows: take the fillet from the under part of a chine of mutton, mince it, and put a little coulis to it; squeeze a lemon, put a few drops of shalot vinegar, and a dust of sugar.

N.B. Have the coulis hot, put the mince in, do not set it on the fire.

Grenedines of Veal.

Grenedines of veal are cut in the shape of a cutlet, and larded, and finished the same as a fricandeau; put the endive on the dish, the grenedines round the sides, and one in the middle; garnish with paste or croutons.

Beef Collops.

Beef collops are cut either from the inside of the sirloin, or from the rump, the same size as veal collops, flat them, and put them on a soutiespan to pass off; sprinkle the pan with 2 few fine herbs and a little basil; have some coulis in a stewpan, put the collops into the coulis, scrape all the herbs from the soutiespan into the stewpan, squeeze a Seville orange, and put a little sugar.

N.B. Cut about half a pound of truffles into slices, and put them to the collops.

Salmie of Woodcocks.

Cut up the woodcocks, and put the legs, wings, and breast into a stewpan; put the trimmings into another stewpan with a little stock, a few shalots, and about a gill of port wine; set the stewpan on the fire to boil slowly for half an hour, then strain it through a tammy sieve into the stewpan that has the woodcocks in; do not put it on the fire; make the dish quite hot before you put the salmie on: squeeze an orange in before you put it on the dish.

Brisket of Beef stewed, and Roots .- See page 13.

Breast of Veal à l'Italienne.

Braise a breast of veal until quite tender; when done, take it up, and dry it with a cloth; put the sauce over it: the sauce should consist of coulis, sliced truffles, a few small girkins, a few mushrooms, and a glass of Madeira wine: squeeze an orange in it.

A Neck of Mutton with a Purée of Potatoes.—See page 4.

Ox Cheek.—See page 29.

Hodge Podge.

Hodge podge is made as follows: bone two fowls, and cut them in quarters; cut half a dozen thick steaks from a loin of mutton, and take all the bone out; cut an equal quantity of brisket of beef that has been stewed, and about a pound of the brisket part of a breast of yeal, cut in thin slices; put all into a stewpan, with about a pound of lean ham cut the same as the yeal; put the ham at the bottom of the pot, then the veal and mutton, and the fowl and beef at the top; put a pint of water, and set the stewpan on the fire to boil very gently for two hours; then fill it up with clear second stock, or broth; skim it very clean, and let it boil gently by the side of a stove for about half an hour; have scooped turnips, carrots, and button onions, peeled, and three heads of celery cut in small pieces; put all into a stewpan, with about half a pint of stock, and set it on a stove to boil very slowly until the stock is reduced; then fill up the stewpan with stock, and let it boil for a few minutes; then put the roots to the meat, and let it boil for a few minutes; put it in the tureen, season it with a little salt, if wanted, and a little sugar.

Apple Fritters.

Peel the apples and cut them in thick slices; put them in white wine and sugar to soak for two hours, then make a batter with four eggs, flour, cream, and the wine and sugar from the apples; when well beat up, put the apples in, then put some clean lard in a stewpan; and, when hot, put the apples in, one piece at a time; when of a nice brown, take them up, and put them on the back of a sieve to drain the fat from them; then lay them on a sheet of white paper, and sift some fine sugar over them; hold a salamander over the fritters until the sugar is melted, then dish them on a napkin: if for meagre, fry in butter.

N. B. Take the core out.

Spanish Fritters.

Grate two lemons with a fine grater; put it into a stewpan, with a little water, a bit of cinnamon, and four or five cloves; set the stewpan on the stove to boil for a few minutes, then take out the spice, and put about two ounces of butter; when melted, put in about four spoonsful of flour, and one of sifted sugar; keep stirring it over the fire for a few minutes, then take it off, and break in six eggs, one at a time; keep beating it up until all the eggs are in, then beat it up for a few minutes, until it becomes a nice smooth batter, and then put in a glass of brandy; put some lard into a stewpan, make it hot, and drop the batter in with a teaspoon; when they are of a nice brown, take them up, and put them on the back of a sieve; sift sugar over them, and dish them on a napkin.

N. B. The batter should be very thick.

FIRST COURSE.

Pork Cutlets and mashed Potatoes.

Cut the cutlets either from the neck or loin; if from a neck, scrape the bone, and cut the rind and part of the fat; put them on the gridiron, season them with pepper and salt; put the mashed potatoes on the dish first, and the cutlets round the potatoes.

Chickens à la Reine.—See page 42. Bacon Chine, and Greens.—See page 30.

Lamb Cutlets larded, Breast rolled, and French Beans.

Lard eight lamb cutlets, blanch them off, and lay bacon on the bottom of a stewpan; put the cutlets in, and about half a pint of stock; cover them with sheets of bacon, and paper over the bacon; set them on a slow stove; put a little lighted charcoal on the cover of the stewpan to raise the bacon; bone the breast of lamb, and beat it with the flatter; brush it over with egg, sprinkle a little pepper and salt over it; and spread some good force-meat over it; roll it up, and tie it up with packthread; put it into a white braise; it will take about two hours; then take it up and dry it with a cloth, and glaze it; take the cutlets up and put them in the oven for a few minutes, then glaze them, and put the French beans on the dish, the cutlets round the dish, and the breast of lamb in the middle. For preparing the French beans, see page 9.

Three Sweetbreads larded, and an Emince.

Lard the sweetbreads and blanch them off; put the trimmings of any meat, that is convenient, into a stewpan, and about a pint of stock; lay sheets of bacon over the meat; put in the sweetbreads and cover them with bacon and paper; set them on a slow stove, put a little fire on the cover of the stewpan; they will take about half an hour; when done, finish the same as other lardings; put the emince on the dish, and the sweetbreads on the emince: garnish with either croutons, or paste. The emince may be either fowl, yeal, or sweetbread.

Two Ducks braised, and olives .- See page 27.

N.B. The olives should be pared as close to the stone as possible, and let the paring be all in one piece, so that when it is boiled, it will come into the shape of an olive; boil them in water for a few minutes, strain them, and put Italian sauce to them; put the olives round the dish.

FIRST COURSE.

SOUP à la Flamond.—See page 12. Chine of Mutton.—See page 16.

Pigeons à la Craupaudine, and Piquant Sauce.

Split the pigeons at the belly, and turn the breast over; put four ounces of butter into a stewpan, with chopped shalot, parsley, thyme, mushrooms, and pepper and salt; set the stewpan on the fire to melt the butter, put the pigeons on a dish, but not too near each other; pour the butter, &c. over the pigeons, and when the butter begins to get cold, roll the pigeons in bread crumbs, and put them on a soutiespan that has been buttered (with clarified butter); do not turn them until the under side is brown; when of a nice brown, lay them on a cloth to soke the butter from them; lay them round the dish, and the sauce in the middle.

N.B. Six pigeons will make a dish; the breast bone should be taken out, and the leg and thigh bone; the pinions cut off, the wing bone taken out, and the pigeon flatted with a flatter: they may be broiled on the gridiron over a clear stove.

Poulet à la Duchesse.—See page 12. Neck of Pork, roasted.—See page 20.

FIRST COURSE.

SOUP à la Reine.—See page 2. Fish.—See Appendix. Fillet of Veal à la Beshemell.—See page 85. Oyster Pâtés.—See page 69.

A Volevent of Eel.

Bone an eel and flat it, cut it in pieces of about an inch long, and put it on to blanch in cold water; when it comes to a boil, take it off the fire, put the eel in cold water, wash it very clean, and scrape the fat off; then put it in a stewpan, with a little stock, and set it on a stove to simmer very slow for a quarter of an hour, or till the stock is quite reduced, (but not for the eel to stick to the bottom); put a little beshemell to it; put in about six yelks of eggs, boiled hard, and about a dozen button onions, nicely boiled; put a little anchovy essence, squeeze a little lemon juice, fill the volevent, first putting it on a napkin, and then on the dish. If for meagre, use meagre stock,

Neck of Venison, roast.—See page 36. Partridges, and Cabbage.—See page 41.

Ox Rumps, and Cabbage — See page 5.

Ox Rumps, and Cabbage.—See page 5. Leg of Lamb, roast.—See page 37.

A Small Turkey.

A small turkey will take an hour to roast; put gravy in the dish, and bread sauce in a boat.

A Volevent, with a Souties of Pike.

Cut a volevent and bake it; split a middling size pike down the back, skin it, and bone it; cut it into collops; butter a soutiespan, and sprinkle it with herbs, pepper, and salt; put the pike on, and set the pan on a stove; let it do gently for a few minutes before you turn the pike; when done, put it into some hot beshemell; put a little anchovy essence, squeeze a little lemon juice, and put a dust of sugar; put a napkin on the dish, and the volevent on the napkin: if for meagre, make the sauce from the bones of the pike.

Lobster Pâtés, the same as Oyster Pâtés, page 69.

N. B. Cut the lobster as small as the oysters, and put beshemell to it.

Soup Santé.—See page 38. Chine of Mutton.—See page 16.

SECOND COURSE.

Grouse.

Grouse are trussed the same as partridge, and will take the same time in roasting: send bread sauce in a boat.

No. 21. BILL OF FARE.

FIRST COURSE.

Pea Soup.

PEA soup is made the same as cressy, only leave out the grated carrot; use peas instead of lentels, and put fried bread in the tureen, instead of rice.

Fish.—See Appendix.

Tenderones of Veal and Truffles .- See page 12.

A raised Pie à la François.—See page 38.

Brisket of Beef stewed, (see page 13) and Roots.—See Appendix.

Fillet of Sturgeon, and Sauce Royal.

Take the skin off a piece of sturgeon of about a pound or better; cut it in long slices, (the same as you would salmon for rolling) flat them, and make a farce with a part of the sturgeon and scraped fat bacon, a few sweet herbs, a roll soaked in cream, and the white of an egg beat up to a froth; mix all together in a mortar, the egg last; season with pepper and salt, and put a very little bit of garlic to the farce; spread the farce on the sturgeon, roll it up, and finish it the same as fillet of sole; put the sauce on the dish, and then the sturgeon: if for meagre, do not use bacon, and make the sauce with fish stock.

Neck of Venison, roast.—See page 36.

Leg of Lamb, roast, and Cucumbers .- See page 21.

Calves' Feet, with Asparagus Peas.

Bone four calves' feet, and put them on to boil for jelly stock: take them out when quite tender, and put them in cold water; when cold, trim them, and put them in a stewpan, with a few spoonsful of stock; put them by the side of a stove; when warm, take them up, and lay them on a cloth to dry, then put them on a dish, and sauce over them. For sauce, see page 52.

Legs of Fowl au Gratin.

Cut the legs and wings from two or three cold fowls that have been left from last dinner, or supper, (either boiled, or roast fowls will do;) put a quarter of a pound of butter in a stewpan, and chopped parsley, thyme, shalots, mushrooms, and pepper and salt; when the butter is melted, break in two eggs, and beat them up well with the butter and herbs; dip the legs of the fowl in, and then roll them in bread crumbs, do them twice over; then have some clean lard in a stewpan, when hot, put the fowl to fry of a nice gold colour; when the fowls are taken up, put in some parsley (that has been well dried) in to fry; put the parsley in the middle of the dish, and the legs and wings of the fowl round the parsley.

Giblet Soup.—See page 6. Chine of Mutton.—See page 16.

SECOND COURSE,

Wild Ducks.—See page 16. Larks.—See page 9. Snipes.—See page 24. Harc.—See page 18.

A Souffle of Ginger.

Put a pint of milk and cream on to boil; put the peel of two lemons, a little cinnamon, and lump sugar sufficient to make it sweet; let it boil for half an hour, then put it to cool, and put a quarter of a pound of butter in a stewpan, (that will hold two quarts,) and set it on the fire to melt; when melted, put in as much flour as will dry up the butter, keep stirring it over the fire until it leaves the bottom of the stewpan; then take it off, and break in ten eggs, one at a time; keep stirring it, until the egg is mixed well with the flour and butter, and mix all the eggs the same way, until it becomes a thick batter; then put a sufficient quantity of the milk and cream that has been boiled, beat it up well together, (otherwise the eggs would separate in the boiling); when well mixed, put half a pound of West India preserved ginger, cut in small pieces, a large glass of brandy, and a little nutmeg; butter a savoy cake-mould very thick with butter, not with the hand, but with a paste-brush; stick dried cherries on the mould, in any manner your fancy directs; put the souffle in, and put the mould into a stewpan that has boiling water that will come better than half way up the mould; cover the stewpan, and put lighted charcoal on the cover; keep it boiling very slow for an hour, or better; take the mould out of the stewpan about ten minutes before it is wanted, by which means the souffle will keep firmer; before it is turned out of the mould, run the knife round it, by way of loosening it; pour white wine sauce over it; the wine sauce is made as follows: put about an ounce of butter into a stewpan, when melted, put about half a table spoonful of flour, stir it until it is mixed with the butter, then white wine to it, to make it the thickness of melted butter; grate a little nutmeg in it, and put about half a glass of brandy in the sauce: pour the sauce over the souffle.

A Ratifie Pudding.

Put a pint of milk, and a pint of cream into a stewpan, with the peel of two lemons, a little cinnamon, and sugar; set it on the fire, and let it boil for half an hour; then strain it into a basin, and put the crumb of two French rolls in it; then butter a savoy cake-mould very well, and stick dried cherries according to fancy; then put in half a pound of ratifies in the mould; break ten eggs in a bason, and beat them up well; then put the eggs to the boiled milk, cream, and rolls; stir it well, so as to blend the rolls, eggs, and milk together; then put it in the mould that has the ratifies in: finish it the same as the ginger souffle; pour wine sauce over it.

Almond and Curd Pudding to match the Ratifie or Souffle,
—See Appendix.

A Souffle of Apples and Rice.

Blanch the rice in water, then put it on to boil in milk, and put a little cinnamon and the peel of a lemon; let it boil until it becomes quite dry; then take it from the fire, and put it to cool; when cold, raise a rim of rice round the dish, about three inches high, egg the outside of the rim, and likewise the dish, by way of making the rice stick to the dish; then fill the dish half way up the rim with marmalade of apples; then beat up the whites of four eggs, and put them over the marmalade; then sift fine sugar over them, and put the dish in the oven; if the oven is not hot enough, brown it with a salamander.

Broiled Mushrooms.

Peel them, and put them in water for a few minutes to soak the grit from them; then put them on a soutiespan, sprinkle pepper and salt over each mushroom, and put a little oiled butter over them; put them in the oven about ten minutes, and then on the gridiron for a few minutes; pour the liquor that comes from them over the mushrooms.

A Souties of Wild Duck.

Cut the breasts of two wild ducks into thin slices; butter a soutiespan; sprinkle a little shalot; put a glass of port wine in, and lay the wild duck on it: put the legs, and other parts of the wild ducks, into a stewpan, with a pint of stock, a few blades of mace, a few shalots, and half a pint of port wine; set the stewpan on a stove to boil very slowly for two hours, or until half the liquor is reduced; then strain it off into another stewpan, and skim the fat off; then set the soutiespan on a stove for a few minutes, and turn the souties; when done, put it to the liquor that the bones were stewed in; squeeze a Seville orange in it; dish it, and garnish with paste.

N. B. Do not put the stewpan on the fire after the souties has been put in the liquor: add a little cayenne pepper.

Partridge Soup.

Braise four partridges until quite tender, then take them up, and cut off the legs, wings, and breast; put them into a small soup pot; then put the backs and other trimmings into the braise again; and if you have any pieces of partridge or pheasant, put them in the braise with the other; put about three pints more stock to it, and set it to boil very slowly for one hour; then strain it through a tammy sieve, and skim the fat off as clean as possible; then put the liquid to the partridges, give it one boil, and skim it again, to have it quite clear; put a small lump of sugar; cut a few carrots into any shape your fancy may lead you, and turnips the same, with a few button onions; boil them in about a pint of good stock; when quite tender, put them to the partridges; and then put all into the tureen.

Mutton and Broth, with Roots.

CUT a neck of mutton into cutlets; then put the scrag, and other trimmings into a stewpan with a few onions, a faggot of thyme and parsley, and trimmings of celery; put half a pint of water to the meat, and set it on a stove to draw down, but not to catch; then put about two quarts of water to it, skim it, and keep it very clear, by letting it boil very slow by the side of a stove; then put the cutlets into a small soup pot that will hold three quarts; put half a pint of water, some scooped turnips, and carrots, button onions, and four heads of celery cut in small pieces; put it on the stove to draw down, when boiled quite dry, then fill up with the mutton broth, being first strained through a tammy sieve; let it boil very slow by the side of the fire for half an hour; keep skimming the broth as fast as the scum rises; if it should not be strong enough, put about a pint of good stock, season it with a little salt, and a small lump of sugar.

Compote of Pigeons, with Truffles.

Draw the legs of four pigeons, (in the same manner as chickens for boiling) singe them, and fill them with forcemeat, and put a small raw truffle in each pigeon; put the necks and gizzards in a stewpan, and any other giblets that are at hand; about a quarter of a pound of lean ham, a few onions, a few blades of mace, a faggot of thyme and parsley, two or three bay leaves, half a pint of sherry, and a pint of stock; wrap the pigeons up in sheets of bacon, put them in the stewpan, and set the stewpan over a slow fire to do very gently for an hour; then strain the liquor, skim the fat very clean from it, and put a little butter into a stewpan to melt; when melted, put as much flour as will make it of a proper thickness; stir it for a few minutes over the fire before the liquor is put in; then put the liquor in, keep stirring it all the while; let it boil for a few minutes, slice a few truffles, and put them in the sauce; take the pigeons up, and lay them on a cloth to dry; then put them on the dish, and the truffles and sauce over them: there may be a few fat livers and force-meat balls added.

FIRST COURSE.

Flemish Soup.

SLICE six onions, cut six heads of celery into small pieces, and slice about twelve potatoes: put about a quarter of a pound of butter into a stewpan, and half a pint of water; set it on a stove to boil very slow for an hour; then fill up the stewpan with stock; let it boil an hour, or until the potatoes, &c. are dissolved; then rub it through a tammy, and put a pint of cream; put it into a small soup pot to keep hot; the cream should be boiled before it is put to the soup.

N.B. If for meagre, use water instead of stock.

Beef Steaks.

Beef steaks should be cut from the rump and broiled over a clear charcoal fire; put a little shalot on the dish, a bit of cold butter, and a table spoonful of etchup, and be very particular in sending them hot to table; all the other part of the dinner should be dished before the beef steaks are put on the fire; season them with pepper and salt.

Minced and broiled Turkey.

The minced is done the same as an emince of fowl; see page 84. Part the legs and score them, and pepper and salt them; make three pieces of the back, split the rump-piece, score them, and pepper and salt them; put a little oiled butter in a tart pan, and lay the bones of the turkey in; put the tart pan in the oven to warm the turkey through, then put it on the gridiron to brown; lay it round the emince.

Salmie of Partridges.

Salmie of partridges is made from what is left of the day before. The process is the same as a salmie of wild duck, only put a glass of sherry instead of port.

Put some common stuffing in the flap, skewer the veal up, so as to make it round; put it on a spit, butter it very well, sprinkle salt on it, put two sheets of white kitchen paper over it, and tie it on with twine; two hours will roast it; put gravy and butter on the dish; when the paper is taken off the veal, baste it with butter, and sprinkle it with salt and flour, the last thing,

FIRST COURSE.

Turnip Soup.

PUT about a quarter of a pound of butter into a stewpan, and half a pint of stock; slice eight or ten turnips very thin, and six onions, and put them in the stewpan, and then set it over a slow fire to do gently for an hour; then put two quarts of good stock, and let it boil gently for an hour; then rub it through a tammy; return it into the stewpan to keep hot, but do not let it boil.

Fish.—See Appendix.

Haricot of Beef.

Cut about sixteen or eighteen slices of brisket of beef (that has been stewed) in the shape of cutlets, lay them round the bottom of a stewpan, the same way as cutlets on a dish; put about three spoonsful of stock and a piece of glaze in the stewpan, and set the stewpan by the side of the fire, so as to warm the beef; then lay the beef round the dish, and put haricot sauce in the middle: the roots should be piled up rather high.

Sausages, and Red Cabbage.

Sausages are generally had of the poulterer, when in London. Red cabbage should be stewed in the following manner: cut the cabbage very thin, and put it into a stewpan, with a slice of ham, and a piece of butter at the bottom, about half a pint of good stock, and about a gill of vinegar; set it on a slow fire to stew for three or four hours; when very tender, put a little more good stock, a table spoonful of sifted sugar, and a little pepper and salt; let it boil until all the liquid is reduced; then put the cabbage on the dish, and the sausages on the cabbage; the sausages should be pricked with a fork before they are fried, to hinder them from bursting.

N.B. The best way is to boil them in a stock-pot for a few minutes.

Crayfish Soup.

PICK the fish from a hundred of crayfish; put the fish between two plates until they are wanted; put the shells into a mortar, with half a pound of butter, and about a dozen anchovies; let all be well pounded, then put it into a stewpan with a quart of stock, (if for meagre, use fish stock); set it on the fire to boil for an hour, then strain it through a hair sieve, and put it back into the stewpan, with three pints more of stock to it, and the crumb of two French rolls; give it a boil, then take it from the fire and rub it through a tammy; have a little lobster-spawn pounded, and rub it through with the soup; return it into the stewpan, or souppot, to keep hot; but be careful that it does not boil after it has been rubbed through the tammy; taste it, to know if it wants any seasoning.

Tureen of Lambs Tails.

THE lambs tails are had from the butcher, ready scalded. They should be blanched off, and then put into a white braise; when very tender, take them up, and cut them into lengths of about two inches, and put them into a small soup pot until you want them; lay the bottom of a stewpan with lean ham, cut up two old fowls, and put them to the ham, with four large onions, a faggot, and a few blades of mace; put in half a pint of water, put the stewpan on the fire to draw down very slow for an hour, (be careful that it does not catch to the bottom); then put two quarts of stock, let it boil for an hour, but very slow, so that it does not waste by boiling; strain it, and skim the fat off quite clean; boil one point of asparagus peas in some of the stock that the old fowls were boiled in; when done, put the asparagus peas, and the remainder of the stock to the lambs tails; and set the soup pot at the side of a stove to boil for a few minutes; make a liaison of four yelks of eggs, and one pint of cream that has boiled; when strained, put a pint of beshemell to the liaison, take the soup from the fire, and put the liaison in; keep stirring it all the while; then put it on the fire, until it begins to come to a boil, be sure to keep stirring the soup during the time it is on the fire; if it should be ready before it is wanted, put the soup pot into a stewpan of hot water, and set it at the side of a stove.

Fowl à la Daube, ornamented and garnished with Aspic.

Bone a fowl, and fill it with farce, (see Appendix). Lay the bottom of a stewpan with fat of ham, or bacon, and half a pint of stock; put the fowl in, and cover it with bacon and paper, let it do very gently for two hours; then set it to cool in the liquor and fat; when cold, ornament it with different coloured fat, as fancy and abilities enable you; put chopped aspic round the edge of the dish, and on the top part of the fowl. The aspic is made as follows: lay the bottom of a soup pot with lean ham, cut up a knuckle of veal, two old fowls, the bones and giblet of the fowl that was daubed, and any other trimmings that are at hand; the shanks that are cut from shoulders, or legs of mutton that are going to be dressed, are very useful articles; put in a dozen onions, a faggot of thyme and parsley, a little mace, and two or three heads of celery; put four quarts of second stock, and set it on a stove to boil; when it comes to a boil, take the pot off, and put it to the side to boil very slow for four or five hours; it is not requisite to skim it, as it does not matter about its being clear: when it has boiled a sufficient time, strain it off, and let it stand until next morning; then take the fat very clean from the stock, put a pint of it into a stewpan, with half a pound of lean ham, cut very small, about twelve shalots, one small single clove of garlic. a few taragon leaves, and three or four bay leaves; set the stewpan on the stove to boil for about half an hour; then put all the stock into a stewpan, and strain what the shalots, &c. were boiled in, and put it to the other; add a little tarragon vinegar, and set it on a stove to melt; when melted, break in twelve eggs and shells, whisk all up together, set it on a brisk stove; keep whisking it until it boils; let it boil for a few minutes, then run it through a jelly bag, and clear it, as you would calves foot jelly.

N. B. If the stock is not strong enough, put a little isinglass .- Twelve eggs will clear two quarts of aspic.

A Wax Basket .- See Appendix.

A Truffle Pie, hot.

Raise a pie according to the size of the dish, in length and breadth, but not more than three inches deep; make a good truffle farce, (see page 154); fill the pie with the farce; then lay in a pound of truffles that have been braised and peeled; cover the truffles with sheets of fat ham, then cover the pie, and ornament it as you think proper; put it into rather a slow oven; half an hour will bake it; when done, cut the top off, and take the fat ham away; pour a glass of Madeira wine in, put the top on the pie again, and send it up to table quite hot.

Aspic of Brawn.

Put a little aspic in the mould, so as to cover the bottom; when cold, ornament it either with flowers or different coloured omelets; then put a little more aspic, (but be very careful how you put it in, for if not done with care, you will disturb the work); when cold, put a little more; then put in the brawn, cut in neat pieces; and fill up the mould with aspic; when cold, turn it out; (dip the mould in milk warm water) garnish with sliced lemon.

A Green Goose.

A green goose will take about twenty minutes to roast; the fire should be very quick, so as to make the goose eat crisp; baste it well with butter, salt and flour it before it is taken from the fire, send it to table as soon as possible after it is taken from the fire; put good gravy in the dish; make it a general rule never to pour gravy over any thing that is roasted, for by so doing, the flour and salt is washed off it, and makes it eat insipid.

FIRST COURSE.

Soup Julien, different from page 55.

CUT turnips and carrots into neat pieces of about an inch long and rounded off at the ends; cut three heads of celery in pieces of about an inch long, and about two dozen of button onions peeled very even, (but be careful not to cut the root of the onions; put all on to boil in a little stock; when tender, put as much stock as will fill the tureen, and give it one boil; put a lump of sugar in it.

N. B. The carrots should be boiled in water for ten minutes before they are put to the other roots.

Broiled Fowl, and Mushroom Sauce.

Cut a large fowl in quarters, put it on a lark-spit, tie it on a spit, and put it down to roast until the fowl is three parts done, (keep it well basted with butter while at the fire); then take the fowl up, finish it on a gridiron, and season it with pepper and salt while there; the mushrooms should be put in a stewpan, and a small piece of butter a little pepper and salt, and a slice of lean ham; set the stewpan on a slow stove to stew gently for half an hour; then put some coulis to the mushrooms, squeeze a lemon, and put a dust of sugar; put the fowl on the dish, and the mushrooms over the fowl. It is a custom at most inns, only to split the fowl down the back, and broil it entirely on a gridiron; in my opinion, it looks awkward on the dish, and is generally burnt.

Veal Olives.—See page 3. Chine of Mutton.—See page 16.

SECOND COURSE.

Pigeons roasted.

Scald some parsley, and chop it, mix it with about two ounces' of cold butter, a little pepper and salt, and put it in the pigeons; put them on a lark-spit, not through the middle of them, but through the side, instead of a skewer; they will take about fifteen minutes; baste them frequently with butter, salt and flour them before they are taken from the fire; put parsley and butter on the dish, and then the pigeons.

Capilotade of Fowl.

This is made from the remainder of roast fowls that is left from either dinner or supper: cut the fowls up in neat pieces, the same as for a fricassee, put the trimmings into a stewpan, with a few shalots, a faggot, a blade or two of mace, about a quarter of a pound of lean ham, and about a pint of stock; let it boil slowly for half an hour, strain it off, and put a bit of butter into a stewpan; when melted, put as much flour as will dry up the butter, and stir it over the fire; then put the liquor that the bones of the fowl were boiled in, set the stewpan on the fire to boil for a few minutes, strain it through a tammy sieve, and put it to the fowl; squeeze a little lemon-juice, put a little sugar, and pepper and salt; lay the fowl neatly on the dish, and garnish with eroutons.

FIRST COURSE.

SOUP à la Reine.—See page 2. Fish.—See Appendix. Turkey, and Truffles.—See page 4. Two Ducklings, and Turnips.—See page 27.

Three Sweetbreads, and Asparagus Peas.

The sweetbreads are not to be larded: blanch off three neart sweetbreads, lay the bottom of a stewpan with sheets of bacon, and the sweetbreads on the bacon, put in half a pint of stock, and cover the sweetbreads over with sheets of bacon; set the stewpan on the fire to do very gently for half an hour, then take them, and put beshemell over them; cut. French beans into leaves and stalks, make a rim round each sweetbread, and a sprig in the middle, and put them into a stewpan to keep hot; when they are wanted, put the asparagus peas on the dish, and the sweetbreads on them; garaish with paste or croutous.

Fillets of Sole à l'Italienne.—See page 43. A Souties of Fowl, and Truffle.—See page 84. Petit Pâtés of Chicken.—See Appendix.

Crayfish Pudding.

Boil a hundred of crayfish, (put a little salt and vinegar in the water), pick the fish from the tails and claws, put them into a mortar, with a quarter of a pound of butter, twelve anchovies, without washing, and the spawn of a lobster; let it be well pounded and rubbed through a tammysieve, then put it into a basin, and break in twelve eggs, only one at a time, and mix that one with the crayfish before you put in another, and so on, until all the eggs are broken in; then put in the crumb of two French rolls that have been soaked in cream, beat them all well together; butter the mould with butter that has been clarified, and is three parts cold; put the butter on the mould with a paste-brush, put the crayfish into the mould, and the mould into a stewpan of boiling water, (the water should come half way up the mould): set the stewpan on a stove to boil slowly, put the cover on, and some lighted charcoal on the cover: it will take an hour to finish it; turn it out on the dish, and put red Italian sauce round the edge of the dish : garnish with paste.

N. B. The sauce should be white, and made red with the spawn of a lobster pounded and rubbed through a tammy-sieve: squeeze a little lemon-juice.

Lambs' Sweetbreads, larded (see page 64), and a Purée of Sorrel.—See Appendix.

Fillets of Hare, larded, and a Purée of the same, under them.

The fillets of hare are cut the same as fillets of rabbit (see page 64): the remaining part of the hare is put into a stew-pan, with a few shalots, about a quarter of a pound of lean ham, a faggot, a few blades of mace, half a pint of port wine, and half a pint of good stock; set the stewpan on a stove to boil very slowly for two hours; then strain the liquor from the hare, and pick all the meat off the bones; put the meat to the liquor and the lean ham; put it into a tammy, rub it through, and put it into a stewpan to keep hot: put the purée on the dish, and the fillets on the purée.

Giblet Soup.—See page 6.
- Fish.—See Appendix.

Chine of Lamb, larded, and Chervil Sauce.

Cut the fat from the fillet of a chine of lamb, and lard it thick and strong; either roast it, or do it in the oven; if done in the oven, put a pint of second stock on the bottom of the dish; slice a few onions, a head of celery, and a carrot; put half a pint of vinegar, and pour half a pint of salad oil over the lamb, then cover it with sheets of bacon and white paper, being first buttered; when done, glaze it, and put the chervil sauce on the dish, and the lamb afterwards; if the lamb be roasted, put a lark-spit up the back bone, and tie it on a spit; put plenty of bacon over it, and paper over the bacon, but do not press it tight, as the larding should not be flattened; an hour will roast it, and about the same time will bake it, but that depends upon the size of the lamb. Glaze it, put the sauce on the dish, and then the lamb.

Partridge Soup.—See page 115.

Fish.—See Appendix.

Fillet of Veal à la Daube.-See page 20.

Fillets of Rabbit larded (see page 64) and Mushrooms.—See page 17.

Grenadines (see page 85) and Sorrel Sauce. - See Appendix.

Raised Pigeon Pie.

Raise a pie, and prepare six pigeons the same as for a compote, see page 119; put beef steaks in the bottom of the pie, and the pigeons on the steaks; cover the pie in, and prnament it, (all raised pies should be made the day before they are wanted, but not baked); it will take two hours to bake it; when done, take the top off, and put in six hard yelks of eggs, and fill it up with coulis.

N. B. Cover the pigeons over with bacon before you put the top on the pie.

A Charlotte.

Butter the mould very well, and line it with bread cut thin, and about two inches wide, and in length the same depth as the mould; dip the bread in warm clarified butter, lay the bread one piece half over the other; then cut a piece the size of the bottom of the mould, dip it in butter, and put it in the mould; then brush the bread over with egg to make it stick together when baked; then fill up the mould with a marmalade of apples, and cover it in with tart paste: put it in a slow oven for three quarters of an hour; then turn it out of the mould into a dish.

N. B. The marmalade of apples is made as follows: peel the apples, and cut out the cores, put them on to boil in a little water, with a little cinnamon, a few cloves, and the peel of two lemons; when they are sufficiently broke, rub them through a hair sieve; put the apples into a small preserving pan, with as much sifted lump-sugar as will make them sweet; give the apples about ten minutes boiling; keep a spoon in the preserving pan to stir them, and to keep the apples from sticking to the bottom; when the apples begin to get flat, squeeze lemon-juice in to make them sharp.

A Truffle Pie.—See page 156.

A Fowl à la Daube, ornamented, &c.—See page 3.

Atlets of Oysters.

Blanch the oysters, and beard them, put them on a skewer that is for that purpose, do them over with egg, sprinkle a little pepper and salt over them, and then put bread crumbs over; do the oysters over twice with egg and bread crumbs, drop some clarified butter over them with a paste-brush, broil them on a slow fire; the gridiron should be brushed over with oiled butter, that the oysters may not stick to the bars; send the oysters on the skewers to table.

Ragout of Cocks' Combs.

Blanch the combs, and then put them on in a little stock; when the combs are tender, put a little sauce tourney, give the ragout one boil, and dish it up; garnish with croutons.

Carmel Basket.—See Appendix.

Fish Pie, with Tench and Eels, and hard Eggs.

Clean a brace of tench, and skin two eels, bone the tench and eels, and cut the eels in pieces of two inches long; leave the sides of the tench whole, put the bones of the tench and eels into a stewpan, with a few onions, a faggot of thyme and parsley, a few blades of mace, half a dozen anchovies, and a pint of stock, if not for meagre; but if for meagre, put water: set the stewpan on the fire to boil very slowly for an hour, then strain it off, skim the fat from it, and put it to cool; then put the eel and tench into the dish, season it with pepper and salt, and chopped parsley; put a few whole mushrooms in, and six or eight hard yelks of eggs; put part of the liquor that the fish bones were boiled in, put puff paste round the edge of the dish, and cover it in; about half an hour will bake it; the oven should be rather quick, otherwise the paste will not rise; when the paste begins to colour, put some liquor over it; when done, put the remainder of the liquor on the fire to make hot, and pour it in the pie.

N. B. The top of the pie should be done over with egg before it goes in the oven.

Stewed Oysters.

Oysters for stewing should be the largest that are to be had; put the oysters on to blanch, when they come to a boil, take them off the fire, and strain the liquor through a tammy sieve; throw the oysters into cold water, beard them, and lay them on a cloth to dry; then put a small bit of butter into a stewpan, and put it on the fire to melt; when melted, put a little flour, and the liquor of the oysters; set it on the fire, and keep stirring it with a wooden spoon, (as the other spoons wear the tin off the stewpan); when it comes to a boil, put about half a glass of white wine in, and a little coulis, if they are not intended as a meagre dish; let it boil for a few minutes, then put in the oysters, and let them simmer for a minute or two, but not more, (when oysters boil longer, they become hard); when you have dished them, put croutons round.

N.B. Season with pepper and salt; a pint will make a dish.

Raspberry Tourte, see Apricot Tourte, page 17.

Rice Souffle.

Line a mould (to answer the size of the dish) with tart paste, put a piece of bread in it to keep it from falling, and put it in the oven to bake; when done, take it out, and put it to cool; then put about a quarter of a pound of Carolina rice on to blanch in cold water; when it comes to a boil, take it off, and wash it in two or three waters, then put the rice into about three pints of new milk, put it on to boil, keep stirring it with a spoon, otherwise it will stick to the bottom; while the rice is boiling, put a little cinnamon and lemon peel into about half a pint of milk, and let it boil some time, so as to get the flavour of the cinnamon and lemon peel; when you think it is boiled enough, strain it into the rice; when the rice is done, put a quarter of a pound of butter, as much sifted lump sugar as will sweeten it, and a glass of brandy; then whisk up the whites of four eggs, and put them to the rice; mix the whites of eggs well together, put it into the paste, and then in the oven to bake: first sift a little sugar over it: about fifteen minutes will bake it.

FIRST COURSE.

. Tureen of Calves Feet, and Asparagus Peas.

BONE the calves feet and put them on for jelly stock; when the feet are quite tender, take them up, and put them in cold water; when cold, trim them, and cut them in small pieces, and put them on a cloth to dry; put a quart of asparagus peas on to boil in about a pint of stock, set them on a slow stove; when the peas are quite tender, put them and the stock that they were boiled in, into a small soup pot, and three pints of stock; give it a boil up, and then put in the calves feet, and set the soup pot by the side of the fire to keep hot, but not to boil; make a liaison of four eggs, and put about a pint of beshemell in the liaison; put the liaison in the soup, and set the soup over the fire until it begins to come to a boil; keep stirring it all the time, otherwise it will curdle; if the soup is ready too soon, put the soup pot into a stewpan of hot water to keep it hot: season it with a little salt, if wanted, and a lump of sugar.

Sheet a tartpan with puff paste, put marmalade of apple, and cross-bar it.

Pancakes.

Boil a quart of milk and cream mixed, put a little cinnamon, and the peel of a lemon in it; let it boil gently for an hour, then break six eggs into a bason, beat them up for five or six minutes, put about six table spoonsful of flour, and mix that very well with the eggs; then put in some fine moist, or sifted sugar, and then the milk and cream, first being strained, and put a glass of brandy; mix all well together, have a little clarified butter, or lard; make the pan hot, put a little butter in it, and give the pan a wipe out with a clean rubber; then put a little more butter; when the pan is hot, put in a large spoonful of the batter, turn it with your knife, have sifted sugar in a box of the same make as a dredging box, and dust the pancakes over as they are taken out of the pan.

N.B. They should be sent up a few at a time, as when they get cold they become tough: send up Seville oranges and lemons on a plate.

Mr. Bailley, brazier, High Holborn, makes a pan for pancakes on a new principle, and of no use but for this purpose, or for an omelet. It is of small expense, and very useful in all families.

Chartreuse of Roots and Sausages, and a Ragout Mellé.

Boil about a dozen carrots, and put them in cold water; peel them and make them all of a thickness, then cut them into slices of about half an inch thick; get two pounds of sausages, and boil them on a very slow fire, prick them with a fork to hinder them from bursting; when the sausages are done and cold, cut them the same as the carrots, sheet a savoy cake mould (of the size of the dish that the chartreuse is to go on) with sheets of fat bacon, put carrots round the edge of the bottom of the mould, then sausages inside the carrots, and so on till the bottom is quite covered; then lay the sides, beginning at the bottom and come up to the top. not straight, but oblong; first a line of carrots, then a line of sausages, until the sides are covered; then brush the inside well with egg, to bind the carrot and sausages together, put a thin layer of forced meat at the bottom of the mould, and the same round the sides; put in the ragout, and cover it with paste, and egg it well; put the mould into a stewpan of hot water, let the water come half way up the mould, put the stewpan in the oven for an hour and a half; turn the chartreuse out, and take the bacon from the top and sides; soak the fat that comes from the chartreuse (on the dish) with a clean cloth, put a little beshemell round the chartreuse: zarnish the top with a few carrot roses, turnips, &c.

Round of Beef, and Greens.

Skewer a round of beef very tight, and put a fillet round put it in to boil for four hours, or longer, (but that deads on the size); it should be rather over than under done, if it is under done, it does not eat so well when cold: the of should be ten days or a fortnight in salt.

Stewed Tench.—See page 76.

Ham and Greens.

Boil the ham three hours in the copper with the beef, skin I glaze it.

Leg of Lamb boiled, Loin fried, &c.—See page 26. Semels of Veal, and Poivrade Sauce.—See page 92.

Beef Steak Pie in a Dish.

Cut the beef steaks from the rump, rather thinner and smaller than for broiling; mix pepper and salt, chopped parsley, thyme, and shalot; lay the beef steaks in the dish, first put a little of the seasoning on the bottom of the dish, then put in as much steak as will cover the bottom of the dish, sprinkle some of the seasoning over the steaks, and put a little stock; then put another layer of steaks, season them, and put a little stock, and so on until all the beef steaks are in the dish; put puff paste round the edge of the dish, have a dish the same size of the one as the beef steaks are in, and cut the top out by it; brush it over with egg, put it in a quick oven; as soon as the paste begins to colour, cover it over with a few sheets of paper; an hour will bake it: put a little more gravy in it when it is taken out of the oven, if wanted.

Venison Fry.

Cut the liver in thin slices, and put it between two plates while the other parts are preparing; cut the fat gut into lengths of about an inch, put that and the other white part with the velvet from the horns in to blanch for about fifteen minutes; peel the hair from the velvet, and trim the other parts; split the sweetbreads, cut as many slices off the belly part of bacon, as you have liver; fry the bacon first, and pour the greater part of the liquor that comes from the bacon into a small stewpan, or any thing that is handy; then put the liver in the frying pan, season both sides with a little pepper and salt, (the liver takes very little time in doing); when it is done, take it up and put it on the back of a wire sieve, (not brass wire, but iron wire) then put the other part of the liquor that came from the bacon into the pan; when hot, put in the white part of the fry, sprinkle it with pepper and salt, and turn it over with a slice; when of a nice brown, take it up, and put it on the wire sieve, then put some lard into a stewpan, have some picked parsley (of the curly sort) that has been dried before the fire, put it into the parsley fryer, and put that into the hot lard; about ninute will be sufficient; dish the liver and bacon (one ce after the other) round the dish; put the parsley in the Idle, and lay the white part of the fry upon the parsley: d poivrade sauce in a boat.

The venisor of the Dish.

Bubble and Squeak, or fried Beef and Cabbage.

Cut slices of cold boiled beef that has been corned; cut many pieces of fat as lean, boil some white cabbage, eeze it very dry, and chop it quite fine; then fry the f, sprinkle a little pepper over it; a very few minutes will it; for if it is fried too much, it becomes dry and hard; nly wants to be made hot: take up the beef, and put it the back of a sieve, then put in the cabbage, sprinkle a te pepper and salt on it, keep stirring it while on the fire; nould be kept on the fire until it has soaked up all the fat, I becomes quite dry: then put the cabbage in the middle the dish, and the beef round it, a piece of fat and a piece dean, one after the other.

N.B. The cabbage should be raised as high as the quanwill admit of: garnish with carrot cut in what shape cy directs: put a carrot rose on the middle of the bbage.

A Neck of Veal, braised, and Oyster Sauce.

Trim a neck of veal, and put it on to blanch in cold rater; when it comes to a boil, take it off the fire, and put into cold water; put some trimmings of veal, or any ther meat into a stewpan, with a few onions, a taggot of nyme and parsley, a few bay leaves, a little mace, and bout one quart of second stock; put the neck of veal-in, and a few slices of lemon on it; cover it over with sheets of acon, and white paper over that; set the stewpan on a ove to simmer for two hours. Make the sauce as follows: danch one quart of large oysters, take the beards off, strain he liquor, and put the oysters to it; then put about one nance of butter into a stewpan, and put it on the fire to melt; when melted, put as much flour as will dry it up; ten put it on the fire for a few minutes, and keep stirring with a wooden spoon; put the liquor from the oysters, ith a little stock, and a quarter of a pint of cream; give it boil up, and stir it during the time it is on the fire: make thicker than beshemell (as the oysters, when they are ut in, will discharge some liquor that will thin the sauce); at the oysters in, and set the stewpan on a stove to make lite hot, but not to boil; as oysters then become hard and steless: squeeze a little lemon juice, and put some pepper and salt, and a very little sugar; take the veal up, and put on a cloth to dry the fat from it: put it on the dish, and ae oyster sauce over it: let as many oysters lie on the yeal possible.

Hare Cake.

Bone two hares, and cut them in dice, with about two pounds of lean mutton, and one pound of lean ham; mix them all together, with some pepper and salt and fine spice: line a mould with sheets of fat bacon; lay the bacon on double; put in the hare, &c. but first mix six yelks of eggs with it, and the other meat, by way of making it bind; put it in a slow oven for four hours, or longer; when done, put it to cool in the mould it was baked in; this should be done the day before wanted; put the mould in warm water for a few minutes, then the cake will turn out; take the bacon off, and ornament it; put it on the dish, and chopped aspic round it.

Lobster Cake.

Take the fish out of six lobsters; cut it in small pieces, and pound it very fine in a mortar; they should be all hen lobsters, to give the cake a good colour: pound two dozen of anchovies, first washing them and taking the bones out; season it with pepper and salt, fine spice, and a little Cayenne pepper; put the yelks of twelve raw eggs in; sheet a mould with fat bacon, the same as for the hare, and finish it the same way.

Ham Cake, garnished.

Cut the remains of a ham that has been left from a former inner; put it into a mortar, and pound it very fine; put all me fat in; season it with pepper, fine spice, and Cayenne; at it into a mould, and put the mould into an oven for bout half an hour; put half a pound of clarified butter to before it is put in the oven; when done, set it to cool, and leave it in the mould (it should be done the day before is wanted); put the mould into warm water for a few linutes, when the cake will turn out. Ornament it as fancy, rects.

Leg of Lamb forced and garnished.

Bone and braise it; put it by in the braise, but not in the stewpan: ornament it, the next day, as fancy guides.

Veal Cake.

It is done in the same manner as ham cake. Cut part of a ld fillet of veal, in small pieces; put it in a mortar, and und it very fine; put one-third of the fat of a ham to it; ason with pepper and salt, and fine spice; pour in half point of clarified butter, and mix all well together; then it it in a mould, and put the mould in an oven for half an our; when done, put it to cool in the mould: finish, in her respects, the same as ham cake.

Woodcocks.—See page 24.

APPENDIX.

Broth for filling up a Stock Pot.

I HE quantity of meat depends upon how much stock you want to make. Suppose you want to make twenty quarts of broth, you must get four legs of beef, and cut them in small pieces; break the bones in several pieces; put all into a pot that will hold about thirty quarts; fill it up with cold water; be careful to watch it; skim it several times before it comes to a boil, and stir the meat well up with a strong spoon, so as to raise the scum from the bottom; every time you skim it, add a little cold water, to stop its boiling, until it becomes quite clear; then take it off the trivet, and put the pot by the side of the fire, so that it may boil very gently; it should boil very slow, so as not to waste the broth, as well as to keep it clear; it should boil for eight or ten hours; then strain it through a hair sieve, to be ready to fill up the stock pot. If it is winter, you might make it the day before you want it, as there would be no danger of its turning sour; but, in summer, cooks must be very careful in seeing that the pans are remarkably clean and dry before they have their broth strained in them, and likewise not to have more than four quarts in one pan; for, when there is a large body of it together, it is very apt to foment.

N. B. There should not be any roots put to this broth.

A General Stock for all Kinds of Soups.

Cover the bottom of your pot with lean ham, cut in thin broad slices: the quantity of ham depends upon the size of the pot; it is better to put too much than too little; be very careful to cut all the rusty fat from the lean; then cut up what veal you think requisite (as the quantity must depend upon your judgement), and put it in the stock pot, with the trimmings of any other meat you may have by you; throw in all your trimmings of poultry, such as necks, gizzards, feet, &c. a few onions, a faggot of thyme and parsley, six heads of celery, a few blades of mace, two or three carrots, and a turnip, or two in winter (but not any in summer, as they are sure to make it foment); put about a pint of water in the pot, and set it on a stove (not very hot) to draw it down; be careful not to let it catch at the bottom, as your stock should be light coloured. When drawn down enough, fill it up with the beef broth; be careful in skimming it, and do not let it boil over; but as soon as you see it coming to a boil take it off, and put it at the side; let it boil very slow, for two reasons, one is, to keep it clear, and the other, that it should not reduce too much: when it has boiled for four hours, strain it off, and fill up the pot again with water; let it boil all the evening, and strain it off the last thing; this is called second stock; it serves for gravy for the roasts, to fill up braises, and makes very good glaze for the larded and daubed dishes, &c.

Coulis.

Cut veal and ham, of an equal quantity, and two old fowls (according to how much coulis you intend to make); put it into a stewpan, with a few shalots, a faggot of thyme, parsley, and sweet marjorum; a few bay leaves, a few blades of mace, and some mushrooms; lay the bottom of a stewpan with sheets of fat bacon, if very good, otherwise the fat of ham, indeed that is always the best, when to be had; set it on a stove, with about half a pint of stock, and let it draw down gently, until it comes to a glaze at the bottom of the stewpan, which you will easily know by the smell; when down, put about half a pint more of stock, and when that is down fill up your stewpan with the best stock, and let it boil about an hour; strain it off (boil the meat again in some of the second stock, and it will make it equal to the first, for several uses); then take a stewpan, and put some butter in it (at the rate of two ounces to a quart of coulis); let it melt, then put as much flour as will dry it up; keep stirring it over a stove, with a wooden spoon (as a copper spoon would take the tin off the stewpan); then add the coulis stock, by a little at a time, to bring it to a proper thickness; let it boil a few minutes, and then strain it through a tammy into a bason; when strained, put a spoon in the sauce, and stir it several times, to keep it smooth.

N.B. In winter, or cold weather, it will keep good for a week; in hot weather, it will not be good more than three or four days.

Sauce Tourney and Beshemell.

Lay the bottom of a stewpan with ham; cut up two old fowls, and put it to the ham, and as much veal as you think proper to the quantity you intend making, with a few onions, a faggot of thyme and parsley, a few blades of mace, and about half a pint of white stock, to draw it down; be sure and do not let it catch the bottom of the stewpan: when drawn down, fill it up with first stock, and let it boil about an hour or better; then strain it off, and fill up pour stewpan with water, and it will make good broth for many uses; then put some butter into a stewpan (about the same quantity as for the coulis); add a few mushrooms, shalots, a few slices of ham cut in small dice, and about a spoonful of stock; set it on a stove for about half an hour, so as to get all the goodness from the ham, &c. put flour, sufficient to thicken it; then add the stock that you have just strained off, let it boil a few minutes, and strain it through a tammy; to make beshemell, put as much cream as will make it of a good white; it should have a little tinge of yellow, which is done by adding a small piece of light-coloured glaze.

N.B. Beshemell should not boil more than one or two minutes, as boiling is very apt to spoil the colour.—Those three sauces are the ground-work of all made dishes.

White Braise.

Take the udder of a leg of veal that you have cut a fricandeau out of: put it into a stewpan, with cold water, and let it come to a boil; then put it into cold water for a few minutes, and cut it in small pieces; put them into a stewpan, with a small bit of butter, onions, a faggot of thyme and parsley, a few blades of mace, a lemon that is pared to the pulp, cut in thin slices, and a spoonful of water; put it over a slow stove, and keep stirring it for a few minutes; then add a little white stock; as to quantity, it must be according to what you want to braise. It is generally used for tenderones of lamb, chickens, pigeons, tenderones of veal, or any thing you want to make look white:

Brown Braise.

Cut some beef suet, trimmings of mutton cutlets, or any other trimmings; put them into a stewpan, with four onions, a faggot of thyme and parsley, basil, marjorum, mace, and a carrot cut in slices; put it over the fire; put a bit of butter, a little stock, a few bay leaves, and six heads of celery, in the stewpan; let it draw down for about half an hour; then fill it up with second stock, or weak broth, and add a little white wine to it. This braise is used for beef, mutton, veal, ham, or any thing that you want to extended.

Dry Braise.

Put the trimmings of beef, mutton, or veal, into a stewpan (the size according to what is intended to be braised), and a few onions, a faggot of sweet herbs, a few blades of mace, and a few bay leaves; put as much second stock as will come about three-parts up to the meat; then cover the meat, &c. with sheets of bacon or the fat of ham, if convenient; then lay on that which is intended to be braised: it is the best method for doing all larded things; they take rather longer in doing, but eat much better, and the bacon looks better by not letting any liquid come near it.

Mutton Tea.

Cut the scrag end of a neck of mutton from the bone, and then cut it into very thin slices; put it into a stewpan of sufficient size to hold the quantity you want to make, with a little water; put it over a slow stove, to draw down, for a quarter of an hour, and then fill it up with water; keep it as clear as possible, by skimming it; let it boil slow for about an hour, and then strain it through a tammy.

Beef Tea.

The beef for this purpose should be cut from the mouse, round, or leg, in very thin slices, and put into a stewpan, with boiling water over it; let it boil for a few minutes. It will take, at least, two pounds to make a quart.

N.B. Veal tea is made the same as the beef. The veal should be cut from the fillet or knuckle.

Chicken Broth.

Cut up a fowl, and put it into a stewpan, with about three pints of water, and let it boil very slow; when well skimmed, put in a few blades of mace. It will take two hours to make it good.

N. B. An old fowl will do for this purpose.

Jelly Stock.

Bone four or more calves feet, and put them into a stewpoan that will hold about six quarts (if more than four, a larger, in proportion to the number of calves feet); let them boil gently for four hours, then take out the meat poart, and put it into cold water; when cold, trim it for any use it is intended; throw the trimmings back into the stock, and let it boil until you think it is come to its proper strength. It is no matter how long it boils. From four feet you should have two quarts of stock.

A general Meagre Stock, for Soups, Sauces, and other Uses.

Cut two large carp in thin pieces; two tench, and two cels, in the same manner; put about half a pound of butter into a soup pot, that will hold about eight quarts; put in the fish and bones, eighteen large onions, a large faggot of thyme and parsley, eight heads of celery, two carrots, a few blades of mace, six bay leaves, two dozen anchovies without washing, and about a pint of water; set it on a slow stove, and let it draw down gently for two hours; it should be quite dry at the bottom before you fill it up; then fill it up with hot water, and let it boil for three hours: be sure that it does not boil fast (the slower all soups boil the better). Strain it through a tammy sieve.

N.B. Sea fish are equally as good for this use, and some are better. Throw all the bones from the fillets into your stock.

Hot forced Meat, commonly called Farce.

Cut veal (according to the quantity you want of forced meat, without any sinews) into small pieces, and as much fat bacon, or fat of ham, which is better; half as much marrow, or beef suet; put it into a stewpan, with a little bit of butter at the bottom; serson it with chopped parsley, thyme, mushrooms, (truffles if you have any,) shalot, pepper, and salt, a little Cayenne pepper, and a little pounded spice; put it over the fire, and keep stirring it with a wooden spoon until the juice of the meat begins to run; let it simmer about ten minutes, then put it to cool; when cold, put it into a mortar; gravy, fat, and all, and let it be well pounded until it is quite fine; then take it out, and use it for what it is wanting.

N.B. Use half as much lean ham as yeal; in either hot or cold forced meat.

Cold forced Meat for Balls and other Uses.

The veal should be either scraped or chopped very fine, and to be very particular about leaving any sinews in the veal; the same quantity of scraped bacon, or fat of ham; a little marrow, or suet; put it into the mortar, and let it be well pounded; season it with chopped parsley, thyme, shallot, mushrooms, pepper and salt, a little bayenne pepper, and pounded spice, when sufficiently beaten, put an egg, a few bread crumbs, and stir it about to mix it; take it out of the mortar, and make it up into balls, or for any other use.

N. B. You must use more or less egg and bread crumbs, according to the quantity of forced meat: when you make it up in balls, it should be rolled up in flour; and when boiled, let the stock be boiling before you put the balls in.

Egg Balls for Turtle, Mock Turtle, &c.

Boil the eggs (that are wanted) hard, and put them in cold water; take out the yelks, and put them in a mortar, and pound them very fine; wet them with raw yelks, (at the rate of three raw yelks to eight hard ones); season them with white pepper and salt; dry them with flour, and roll them into balls, rather small, as they swell very much in boiling: boil them in stock for a few minutes.

Piquant Sauce.

Put a little chopped shalot into a small stewpan, with a few spoonsful of stock; let it boil until the stock is boiled away, but not burnt to the bottom, add as much coulis as you want sauce; let it boil a few minutes; squeeze a lemon in it; season it with a little pepper and salt, a little sugar, and two drops of garlic vinegar.

Poivrade Sauce.

Rub the bottom of a small stewpan with a clove of garlic; put a small piece of butter, a few slices of onion, a little stock and vinegar, and about twelve grains of whole pepper; let it boil down; add a little flour to thicken it, and a little coulis; strain it through a tammy: squeeze in a lemon.

Carrot Sauce.

Cut the red part of a large carrot into small dice, very neat; boil them in a little best stock until it comes to a glaze; then add coulis according to the quantity of sauce that is wanted.

Sauce Hachis.

Cut a few mushrooms, onions, pickled cucumber, walnut, (first scraping the black coat off), and carrots, into dice; boil them in a little stock until it comes to a glaze; then add coulis, and let it boil.

Alemand Sauce.

Put a little minced ham into a stewpan, and a few trimmings of poultry, either dressed or undressed; three or four shalots, one very small clove of garlic, a bay leaf, two tarragon leaves, and a few spoonsful of stock; let them simmer for half an hour; strain it off, and add coulis; squeeze in a lemon; season with pepper and salt, a little Cayenne pepper, and sugar.

Italian Sauce, Brown.

Chop a few mushrooms, shalots, and truffles; put them into a stewpan, with a little stock, and a glass of Madeira; boil it a few minutes, then add a little coulis; squeeze a Seville orange, if you have one, or a lemon; put a little bit of sugar.

Italian Sauce, White.

Put a few chopped truffles and shalots into a stewpan, with a slice of ham, minced very fine, and a little stock; let it simmer a quarter of an hour; put beshemell to it according to the quantity of sauce that is wanting; let it boil about a minute; if it should lose its colour, put a little cream to it, and strain it through a tammy; season it with a little salt, a few drops of garlic vinegar, a squeeze of a lemon, and a little sugar.

Sorrel Sauce.

Chop about four large handsful of sorrel; put it into a stewpan, with a small piece of butter, a slice of ham, and two onions chopped fine; put them on the fire to simmer for half an hour; then rub it through a tammy, and add a little coulis to it; squeeze a lemon and a Seville orange, if to be had; if not, two lemons; a little pepper and salt, and sugar, to make it palatable.

Chervil Sauce.

Pick a large handful of chervil leaf by leaf; put it into a small stewpan, with a spoonful of the best stock; simmer it until the stewpan becomes dry; then add as much coulis as is requisite; squeeze a lemon, and put a little sugar to make it palatable: add a little Madeira.

Royal Sauce, either White or Brown.

Cut a chicken to pieces, and about half a pound of lean Westphalia ham, six or eight shalots, a faggot of thyme and parsley, and a few blades of mace; put all into a stewpan, with a little stock to draw it down; when down, add coulis to it, and strain it through a tammy; season it with lemon, &c. if for white, use beshemell instead of coulis.

Flemish Sauce.

Boil a sprig of thyme, two shalots, and a bit of lemon peel, a few minutes, in a small quantity of the best stock; strain it off, and add a little coulis; season with pepper and salt, squeeze a lemon, and put a little sugar.

N.B. When you want it white, use beshemell instead of coulis.

Ravigot Sauce.

Put into a stewpan a very small clove of garlic, a little chervil, burnet, a few leaves of tarragon, a little chopped shalot, chopped mushrooms, truffles, parsley, and thyme; let them simmer a few minutes in a little very good stock, add as much coulis as is requisite for the quantity of sauce wanting; let it boil about a quarter of an hour, then rub it all through a tammy, put it into a stewpan, squeeze a lemon, add a little sugar, pepper, and salt.

Spanish Sauce.

Slice four or five large onions, put them into a stewpan with a little vinegar and half a pint of sherry, a small clove of garlic, a chopped truffle, a little shalot, some ham cut very fine, a bay leaf, a few blades of mace, and as much coulis as is requisite; boil all together very slow for a quarter of an hour, rub it through a tammy, squeeze a lemon or orange, if to be had: season with pepper and salt, and a little sugar.

Shalot Sauce.

Chop six shalots, put them into a stewpan with a little stock, let it simmer for a quarter of an hour, add a little coulis, squeeze in a lemon, and put a little sugar, &c.

Sauce à la Reine.

Cut up a fowl, half a pound of lean ham, six or eight shalots, and a few blades of mace; put them all into a stewpan with a little best stock, set it on a stove to summer about a quarter of an hour, then add three pints of sock and boil it for half an hour, strain it off; put about two ounces of butter into a stewpan; when melted, add as much flour as will dry it up, then add what you have just strained off, and about half a pint of cream, boil it for a few minutes, and strain it through a tammy.

Cucumber Sauce.

Cut the cucumbers, after peeling them, into quarters, then cut all the seed out, cut each quarter into three pieces, pare them round, peel as many small onions as pieces of cucumber, put them all into a little vinegar and water, and a little pepper and salt; let them lay in it for two hours; pour off the vinegar and water, and put as much stock as will barely cover them; boil them down to a glaze; add as much coulis as you think proper; let it boil for a few minutes, squeeze a lemon, and put a little sugar.

Brown Celery Sauce.

Cut a dozen heads of celery about two inches long; put them on in about a pint of good stock; let it reduce down to a glaze; then add coulis according to what quantity of sauce is wanted.

Rober Sauce.

Slice one large Spanish onion, and cut it into dice; put them in a frying-pan with a little clarified butter; fry the onion of a nice gold colour, and put it on a cloth to dry the fat up; then put it into half a pint of coulis; add two tea spoonsful of mustard, a little pepper and salt, if wanted, and the juice of a Seville orange.

Lobster Sauce.

Cut up a hen lobster in small pieces about the size of dice; put spawn in a mortar, with a bit of butter, and about four anchovies; pound them together and rub it through a hair seive; put the lobster that is cut into a stewpan with about half a pint of stock, a quarter of a pound of butter, and a little flour; set it over a stove and keep stirring it until it boils; if not thick enough put a little flour and water and boil it again, to take off the rawness of the flour; then put the spawn in and give it a simmer; if the spawn boils it is apt to spoil the colour of the sauce; put a little lemon pickle and corach, and squeeze in half a lemon.— Crab sauce is made exactly the same way.

N. B. If for meagre use water instead of stock.

Oyster Sauce.

Put the oysters on to blanch, but do not let them boil; take the beards off and strain the liquor: put butter into a stewpan (the quantity must depend upon how much sauce is wanted); let the butter melt, put flour to it, and stir i about; then pour the liquor from the oysters and a little stock; boil it and put in the oysters; add a little anchovy essence, and squeeze in a lemon. If for meagre, use no stock.

Shrimp Sauce.

Put the shrimps into a stewpan with a little stock; when bot, pour in melted butter and a little anchovy essence: squeeze a lemon, and put a little lemon pickle and corach.

Dutch Sauce.

Slice an onion, put it into a stewpan with a little scraped horse radish, two anchovies, a little elder vinegar, and some second stock; boil it for ten minutes, strain it through a hair sieve, return it into the stewpan, and make a liaison of two eggs; put it to the sauce, and set it on the fire to come to a boil.

Anchovy Butter.

Put anchovy essence into a boat with a little lemon pickle and corach; put melted butter to it.

Mackarel Sauce.

Tie parsley, fennel, and mint together; put them into a saucepan to boil; when done, chop them quite fine, put them in a boat and add melted butter. Scald a few gooseberries, and put them in another boat, with melted butter.

Haricot Roots.

Scoop an equal quantity of turnips, carrots, and peel as many button onions: put the carrots on to boil in a little stock a quarter of an hour before the onions and turnips; let them boil to a glaze; add coulis equal to the sauce you want.

Collared Beef.

It is made from the flat ribs boned, and sprinkled with saltpetre and coarse brown sugar, and left so for two days; then make about two pounds of salt quite hot in a fryingpan, and rub it well into the beef; let it lie in salt for ten days, wash it over with the pickle every second day, and turn it; put a few bay leaves in the pickle, and sprinkle the beef over with a little fine spice about a week before it is boiled; before it is tied up in the cloth to boil, beat it for about five minutes upon the chopping-block, with the flat part of the heaviest cleaver you have; this makes it tender and roll up better, and when boiled will keep its shape. It should be boiled until very tender and then taken up, and the ends of the cloth wrung quite hard and tied up tighter, then put into a press and a heavy weight put on it: if you have no press put it on a dish, and prop it up as well as you can, and put the weight on it.

N.B. Two ounces of saltpetre, and two ounces of sugar are quite sufficient.

Bouf de Chasse.

Rub two ounces of pounded saltpetre well into a round of beef, put the beef into a large pan or wooden bowl that will just hold it; let it lie so for two days, then make two pounds of salt very hot, and rub it on the beef; put about four ounces of coarse moist sugar to the salt; when done, put the beef back in the pan or bowl, turn it every third day, and rub the brine over it every time it is turned; it should remain in salt three weeks; then skewer it up very fight, and bind it with a broad fillet; either bake it or braise it in a braising-pan that will just hold it; put water sufficient to cover it, and about two dozen onions and six heads of celery, a large faggot of thyme, parsley, and other sweet herbs, and about three pounds of beef suet cut fine; put it over the fire to boil very slow for eight hours; put a heavy weight on the lid of the braising-pan, otherwise the beef will raise the cover off when it begins to swell; it will take equal time in an oven; let it remain in the liquor until quite cold, then take it out and trim it for the table.

N.B. This is more a Christmas dish than any other time of the year, not but it may be done any time, and is equally good.

A Goose and Turkey Pie.

Bone two geese and two turkeys, season the inside with mixed pepper, salt, and a little fine spice, and put them by for three days, then draw the geese one within the other, put some good farce in the middle, and about six raw truffles, but first being peeled; then tie the geese up into what shape you think proper; do the turkeys the same, and put farce in the turkeys, and truffles, and about three pounds of the prime part of a Westphalia ham that has been braised for about two hours, then make the turkeys the same shape as the geese; put about one pint of good stock into a braising-pan (or any thing of that kind) that will barely hold them, as by that means they will keep their shape; put them on a slow stove to simmer very gently for half an hour, by way of setting them: put them to cool in the pan they, are done in; while they are cooling, raise the pie; let them be thoroughly cold before they are put in the pie; lay either slices of a fillet of veal, or rump steaks, at the bottom of the pie, then put in a layer of farce, and then the turkeys and geese; put farce between them and all round the sides of the pie, and about two pounds of raw truffles, first being peeled, and cover them with sheets of bacon; then coverthe pie with paste, and ornament it according to fancy; observe to ornament it strong, for if done fine, it will not look well by being so long in the oven; it should not be put in the oven the same evening as made, but next morning or evening; the best oven for it, is just when the bread is drawn out, and leave it in about eight hours; when you take it out of the oven, be careful that you do not spill any of the fat that rises to the top, as that soaks into the geese and turkeys, and makes them mellow; this pie will take twenty-four hours to get thoroughly cold, therefore you must prepare accordingly. It ought to be began four days before the day that it is wanted. Before the pie is sent up to table, there should be chopped aspic put on it, and the sheets of bacon taken off. This is the genera' rule, but not the rule that I either recommend or follow; for this reason, by taking the bacon off the geese, &c. &c. you let the air into the pie, and then the aspic will get sour and mouldy in a few days, therefore I recommend the following method; put the bones of the turkeys and geese, two old fowls, and two pounds of lean ham, into a proper sized stewpan, with twelve onions, six heads of celery, a faggot of thyme, parsley, and other sweet herbs; put one pint of water to them, and put the stewpan on a stove to simmer very slow for two hours, but be sure that it does not catch at the bottom; fill it up with stock, let it boil very slow for three hours, then strain it off, and fill the stewpan again with water, and let it boil all the evening; the liquor that was first strained off put into a stewpan (first skimming the fat off) to reduce to the quantity that you think will fill up the pie after it is baked, and should be put in about half an hour after it is taken out of the oven, just as much as will barely cover the bacon; this will make the pie eat far better, and will keep good for two months, or longer; send the aspic in a boat, by which means you will save aspic, and the pie will keep double the time.

N.B. Small pies for ball-suppers should have the aspic put over them before they are sent to table; in every other respect all cold pies should be made in this manner, only varying as to different meats, &c. I have invented a tin case for large pies, which is made use of in the following manner: make paste the same as for a raised pie, brush the inside of the mould with egg, (be sure and put plenty on) roll out the paste about two inches larger than the bottoms, that it may turn up on the sides; then roll paste out to cover the inside; let it turn over about an inch; roll a piece of paste two inches larger than the bottom, egg four sheets of large kitchen paper, lay the paste on, then put plenty of egg on the paste, and put on the fin case; the egg will make it stick to the tin; then roll paste out for the sides, roll it in two pieces, egg the sides, and put the paste on; rub it smooth with the palm of the hand, to hinder it from gathering wind, which, if it does, the paste will blister and break off when a few days baked; the paste that goes round the sides should be about two inches broader than the side of the pie, so as to lap over the top and fasten to the bottom paste, so as to make it a proper thickness to enable you to pinch the bottom, and the same at the top; when the case is properly covered, then fill the pie as before directed, cover it in, and ornament it; as to size and shape, that must depend on those who are to make or order the pie; the tin cases are made by Mr. Bailis, in Cockspur-street, Charing-cross, who will give a proper direction how to use them, by lining it with paper, to give a clear idea to those who may not comprehend what I have said upon that subject. By using those tins you are sure of all the liquor remaining in the pie: for instance, make a large pie without a tin case; an accident may happen to it so as to crack in the oven, which lets all the gravy and goodness out, and of course the true flavour of the pie is lost, and the cook blamed by his employer for what he could not avoid; for at times the flour will not stand the oven without cracking, and it certainly does not take half the flour, which is a great consideration; the tin case will last a number of years. There is another advantage, which is, there is no occasion to set the meat; for if the meat is not set when the crust is raised it would burst the pie, and of course let out all the essence of the inside, which cannot be retrieved without double expense,

A Christmas Pie.

It is made in the same manner as the last, with the addition of partridges, hares, and pheasants, all boned. As to the number, it depends on the size the pie is to be,

Small Collars.

They are made of the feet and ears of bacon hogs that have been scalded (not singed); the feet should be cut above the first joint, then boned, and seasoned with pepper, salt, a little saltpetre, and fine spice; the ears seasoned in the same manner; leave them in that state four or five days, then roll them up, put a foot first, then an ear, then a foot; roll them up very tight, and put them in cloth's provided for the purpose; boil them in a good brown braise; let there be plenty of onions, and a faggot of thyme, parsley, marjorum, and sage; the collars should boil until quite tender, then taken up, and the cloths made quite tight; then put the collars to cool; when quite cold, take the cloths from them; either send them up whole or slice them; they both eat and look as well as brawn. Calves feet will answer the same purpose. When they are collared, cut fat and lean ham about the same thickness as for daubing, lay it the crossways of the feet: season the same as pigs feet.

A Cold Partridge Pie.

Bone partridges, the number according to the size the pie is wanted; make some good farce, and fill the partridges with it, put a whole raw truffle in each partridge, (let the truffle be peeled) raise the pie, lay a few slices of veal in the bottom of the pie, and a thick layer of farce; then the partridges, and four raw truffles to each partridge; then cover the partridges and truffles over with sheets of bacon, cover the pie in and finish it; it will take four hours baking; cut two pounds of lean ham (if eight partridges are in the pie) in very thin slices, put it in a stewpan, and the bones and giblets of the partridges, and any other loose giblets that are at hand, an old fowl, a faggot of thyme and parsley, a little mace, and about twenty-four shalots; put about half a pint of stock, set the stewpan on a stove to draw down for half an hour, then put three quarts of good stock, let it boil for two hours, then strain it off, and reduce the liquid to one quart, or until it nearly becomes glaze; then put one pint of sherry wine to it, and put away until the pie is baked: when the pie has been out of the oven for half an hour, boil what was strained from the bones, &c. of the partridges, and put it into the pie; let it stand for twenty-four hours before it is cut.

N.B. Do not take any of the fat from the pie, as that is what preserves it; a pie made in this manner will be fit for eating three months after it is cut; in short, it cannot spoil in any reasonable time; all cold pies are made in this manner: either poultry or game that is put in a raised crust, and intended not to be eaten until cold, should be boned, and the liquid that is to fill up the pie made from the bones, &c.

A Galentine.

Bone a breast of veal and beat it for five minutes with the flat part of a heavy chopper, to make it roll up the better, then spread it on a table, and brush the inside with egg; it will take two eggs; then lay a piece of lean ham cut in long square pieces the length of the cross way of the breast of veal, one piece of omelet of yelk of egg, one of white of egg, then a thick row of chopped parsley, lean ham, and omelet, &c. when well covered, put egg over it, and sprinkle it well with chopped mushrooms, truffles, shalot, thyme, parsley, pepper, salt, and fine spice, then roll it up very tight, and roll the collar up in a cloth, and put it into a brown braise; set it on a stove to boil very slow for six hours, or until very tender; then take it up and put it on a pewter dish, another of the same size over it, and a heavy weight on the top dish, to press it flat; it should be done two days before it is wanted; then slice it out for supper; it is generally used for ball suppers; when dished, put chopped aspic in the middle, and some round the galentine.

N.B. A breast of mutton may be done the same way.

Haricot Beans.

Put the haricot beans on to blanch; when they come to a boil, take them off, and put them into cold water, and take off the outside skin, (the same as is done to almonds); then put them on in some good stock; when boiled down, put some coulis to them.

Endive.

Take some white endive, what is generally called blanched, put it into a stewpan of cold water; let it come to a boil; take it off, and put it into cold water for an hour; the hot and cold water is to take the bitter from it; take it out of the water, and squeeze it very dry; lay it in a stewpan longways, and put stock sufficient to cover it; let it boil until the stock is reduced; then add coulis to it if for brown, and if for white, beshemell; this way is for a second course dish; when it is to put under any meat, it should be chopped quite fine.

A Purée of Potatoes.

Boil what potatoes you want for the purée in some very good stock, (the potatoes should be peeled, and of the mealy kind); rub them through a tammy, and add a little sauce tourney, and season with a little salt.

Marmalade of Apples.

They are done as follows: they should be peeled and cut in quarters, and the cores taken out; then put the apples in a preserving pan or stewpan with a little water, just as much as will keep them from burning; set them on a slow fire to stew until quite soft: when done, rub them through a hair sieve, then put lump sugar into a preserving pan, half a pound to one pound of apples, or thereabouts, three half pints of water to two pounds of sugar; let it boil until it comes nearly to caramel; then put in the apples, and the juice of two lemons to a pound of sugar; put the preserving pan on the fire, keep stirring it during the time it is on the fire; it should boil about ten minutes.

N.B. Put the rind of a lemon grated very fine to a pound of apples, (there is no occasion to weigh the apples after the first time of making) as it is easily judged by weighing a pound, and put it in a large spoon.

Quince Marmalade.

Peel the quinces and put them on to boil in water, cut them in slices, but do not take the cores or the seeds out, boil them in as little water as you can, and let them be quite dry; when soft, rub them through a hair sieve, then put as many pounds of lump sugar into a preserving-pan as there are of quince, and water according to the quantity of sugar; a pint and a half to two pounds of sugar; let it boil until it hangs to the spoon, then put the quinces in, and boil it for ten minutes; keep stirring it during the time it is on the fire; when done, put it in pots; when cold, put paper over it, first wetting the paper in brandy.

Seville or China Orange Marmalade.

The peel should be in spring water four days before they are boiled. Scoop the pulp from the oranges into a hair sieve, put a bason under it to catch the juice, then cut the rind in pieces, and put them on to boil in spring water; when they come to a boil change the water, and put more water to them; boil the orange peel until very tender, then strain the water from them, (save some of the water) put the oranges into a mortar, and beat them until fine enough to go through a sieve; when they are beaten sufficient, rub them through a sieve, then put as many pounds of sugar as there are of orange into a preserving-pan, and half a pint of the water the oranges were boiled in to each pound of sugar, and let the juice of the oranges and the sugar boil until it hangs to the spoon; then put in the oranges, boil it about ten minutes, keep stirring it while on the fire, then put it in pots, and paper over it, first being wetted with brandy.

N.B. Seville oranges are to be had from the latter end of January to the middle of March; they may be had later, but they are not in perfection longer.

Puff Paste.

Take three-quarters of a pound of flour and an egg and wet it with water, be careful not to put too much water at first, mix it up rather stiff, then work it well with the heel of your hand until it becomes pliable, so that it will draw in strings, then take a pound of butter and work it together until it becomes tough; roll the paste out rather thick, put all the butter in at once, and fold the paste up quite even; then roll it out again, and fold it up in regular folds; repeat this three times, then roll it out for use; be careful to let it all be of a thickness, otherwise it will not bake upright, but fall aside in the oven; if for pates, it should be nearly a quarter of an inch, cut out with cutters according to your own fancy; put them on a baking sheet, brush them over with a small paste brush dipped in yelk of egg, and a little water; be careful not to let the egg touch the sides; then take a cutter three sizes smaller than what you cut out the pâtés with, and cut them in the middle about half through; put them in a quick oven immediately; be particularly attentive to the oven, as they will not take many minutes in baking; if the oven is too quick, cover them with paper to keep them from being too high coloured; when done, take off the tops, and scoop out the soft paste from the inside, and put them on white kitchen paper to soak the butter from them; they should not be filled many minutes before they are wanted; this kind of paste is used for all kinds of tartlets, and what is called small pastry, meat pies made in dishes, volevents, pâtés, goodveaux, &c.

N. B. All meat pies should be egged.

Another way to make Puff Paste, particularly in Hot Weather.

Cut the butter in three equal pieces, have flower of equal weight, roll the butter in, and make as much stick to it as you can, wet the remainder with water and an egg, the same as before; when well worked, roll the paste out, and put one third of the butter in, fold it up, dust it with flower, and roll it out; then put half the butter that is left, fold it up, and roll it out again; then put in the remainder of the butter, fold it up, and put it between two dishes, and leave it for half an hour, or until wanted; then roll it out, and fold it up; then roll it out for use.

N. B. Dust the paste board with flour before you roll out the paste, but not too much, as it will impoverish the paste.

Tart Paste, commonly called Short Paste.

To one pound of flour rub in a quarter of a pound of butter, wet it with water and two eggs, work it up to a proper stiffness, and roll it out for use.

N. B. There should be about two table spoonsful of sugar to it when it is for tart, or any thing sweet; this is the proper paste for meat puddings, dumplings, &c. only remember to make it without sugar.

Common Paste for Family Pies, &c.

To one pound and a half of flour, break in half a pound of butter, wet it with water, work it up, and roll it out twice, the second time for use; there is no occasion for weighing the flour for this paste, as it is of no consequence whether there is an ounce over or under; young beginners had better weigh the flour and butter for the puff and tart paste, until they get used to their work.

Hot Paste for raised Pies, &c.

To one quart of water put two ounces of butter, set it on the fire to boil, take what flour you think is requisite, break two eggs into it, and stir the butter and water in with a spoon, so as to mix the egg with the liquid; then work it up well; it should be worked at least fifteen minutes, and made quite stiff, then put it in a stewpan before the fire to sweat for about half an hour, then raise your pie to any shape you please; it is the better way to raise your pie and finish it for baking the day before you want it, as it will stand the oven the better, particularly if it is a large one; but as for small ones, or cases, they may be made and baked directly: as for garnishing, your own fancy must direct you.

Almond Paste, for Second Course Dishes.

Take a pound of sweet and four ounces of bitter almonds, blanch them and make them as dry as you can, put them into a mortar and pound them well, beat up the whites of three eggs, and wet the almonds with it by a little at a time; when pounded enough, rub it through a tammy sieve, then get a small preserving pan, set it over a stove, not very fierce) and put the almonds in the pan, stir in a pound of very fine sitted treble refined sugar, or as much as will bring it to a paste consistence; take it out of the preserving pan and put it between two plates to sweat; when cold, make it into what shapes you think proper; there are shells of different sorts for almond paste. Mr. Buhl, in St. Martin's Lane, has the greatest variety of almond paste shapes. Make some into cups, like coffee cups and cream jugs, or any thing your fancy may lead you, for that must be the guide for all these kind of things.

Meringues.

Beat up the whites of four new laid eggs with half a pound of double refined sugar very finely sifted, beat it up with a silver spoon until it becomes thick, like paste, put about a tea-spoonful of Cederata in it; if you have not that, grate a lemon in it; when finished, get a sheet of writing paper, and put it upon a baking sheet, and drop the batter on the paper; drop it rather of an oval; sift some fine sugar over them, and put them in the oven for a few minutes; the oven should be rather slow, be careful not to let them burn; when done, take them off the paper by running a knife under them, but very gently, for fear of breaking them, put a little sweetmeat in them, and stick two together; they are very proper to fill carmel baskets, or gum paste ditto, or on a dish, for second course, or supper.

Gum Paste, for Ornaments.

Take what quantity of gum dragon you think proper, put it into a small deep sweet meat pot, put as much warm water as will cover it, and cover it over with paper; when it has stood about six hours, take it out of the pot and turn it upside down, and put it in the pot again with as much more water; let it stand all night, next day strain it through a cloth, then put it in a mortar with a little treble refined sugar sifted through a fine drum sieve; it will take at least one hour's pounding; when it is pounded enough it will draw into strings and crack against the mortar; put a little fine hair powder in it before you take it out of the mortar; when taken out of the mortar, work it up with treble refined sugar, sifted as before mentioned, and one third hair powder; you make as many colours as you please; then make what ornaments are wanted.

Whole Rice Pudding, baked.

A quarter of a pound of rice will make about a quart of pudding; wash it very well in several waters, then put it on to boil in a pint of new milk, put about half a pint of milk in another stewpan with a little cinnamon, and the peel of a lemon; let it boil for a quarter of an hour, then strain it off, put it to the rice, and let it boil until nearly dry; then take it off the fire and put it into a bason with a quarter of a pound of fresh butter, stir it until the butter is melted, then break eight eggs into another bason, (leave out two whites) beat them up very well, put sugar sufficient to sweeten it, a little nutmeg, and a small glass of brandy; then mix it with the rice, and put it into the dish that you intend to bake it in; the dish should be buttered, and put puff paste round the rim; it will bake in about half an hour.

N. B. A little saffron boiled with the cinnamon will give it a pretty colour; there may be a few currants added.

A Ground Rice Pudding, either baked or boiled.

It is made the same way as the whole rice, except in one point, which is, when you put the rice and milk on the fire it must be stirred with a spoon all the time, to keep it from sticking to the bottom of the stewpan.

N.B. Butter the mould you boil it in.

A Vermicelli Pudding, either baked or boiled.

Boil a quarter of a pound of vermicelli in a quart of new milk until the vermicelli has soaked up all the milk; then put it into a bason with about two ounces of butter, and break eight eggs, leave out three whites, beat the eggs up well; add sugar and brandy to them; mix it with the vermicelli, then either bake or boil it; if baked, put puff paste on the edge of the dish.

N. B. Boil a little cinnamon, lemon peel, and nutmeg, in a little milk by itself, then strain it to the vermicelli; if the nutmeg were to be grated in the pudding, if boiled, it would appear like dirt, and by boiling it in the milk it gives it the flavour, which is all that is wanted.

A Tapioca Pudding, either baked or boiled.

Put half a pound of tapioca in a stewpan with cold water, set it on the fire till it comes to a boil, then strain it coff, and boil it in a quart of new milk, let it boil slow until it has soaked up all the milk; then put it into a bason to cool; break ten eggs, leave out four whites, beat them up, and sweeten it with moist sugar; add a glass of brandy, two ounces of oiled butter, and a little nutmeg; either bake or boil it.

A Bread Pudding, either baked or boiled.

Boil a quart of milk with lemon peel and cinnamon, for a few minutes; put the crumb of four French rolls into a bason, pour the milk over the rolls, and cover the bason quite close for about half an hour; break eight eggs into another bason, beat them up, and sweeten it with moist sugar; add a glass of brandy, a little nutmeg, and a few currants, if you think proper: if baked, put puff paste on the rim of the dish, and butter the dish; if for boiling, butter the mould.

N. B. All boiled puddings should have wine sauce.

A best Sort of Plum Pudding.

A pound of raisins, stoned, a pound of currants, well washed and picked, a pound of suet, chopped very fine, about a pound of flour, and as much bread crumbs, a little pounded spice, an ounce of preserved lemon peel, an ounce of orange peel, an ounce of citron, about half a nutmeg grated, and a quarter of a pound of moist sugar, mix all together by rubbing it between your hands, then put it into a bason, break eight eggs into it, put about half a pint of new milk, and two glasses of brandy; stir it up well with a wooden spoon; be careful not to wet it too much, for if it is not very thick the fruit will settle at the bottom; it will take four hours to boil.

A Family Plum Pudding.

It is made the same way as the best sort, but not so rich, the lemon and orange peel, and citron, is left out, and use all flour instead of bread crumbs, by which means it will take two hours more boiling.

A Marrow Pudding.

Boil a pint of milk, put a little cinnamon and lemon peel in it, and let it boil for half an hour; strain it into a bason, and put it to cool, break six eggs into a bason, (leave out three whites) beat them up, then add the milk that you strained; put a little brandy and nutmeg, put puff paste round the rim of the dish that you intend to bake the pudding in, butter the bottom, then cut the crust of three French rolls, and cut the crumb in slices; lay the bottom of the dish with the slices of roll, then cut marrow in thin slices and lay it on the roll, sprinkle a few currants over the marrow; then lay another layer of bread, marrow, and currants, and repeat it until the dish is full; about a quarter of an hour before you put it into the oven pour some of the custard over it, and the remainder just before you put it into the oven; it will take about half an hour.

N.B. A bread and butter pudding is made the same way, only using butter instead of marrow.

A Sagoe Pudding, either baked or boiled.

Boil four ounces of sagoe in water a few minutes, then strain it off, put it into about a quart of milk, and boil it until tender; boil lemon peel and cinnamon in a little milk, and strain it to the sagoe, put the sagoe into a bason, break eight eggs, mix it well together, and sweeten it with moist sugar; add a glasss of brandy and a little nutmeg; if for baking, put puff paste round the rim of the dish, and butter the bottom; about three quarters of an hour will bake it: if for boiling, butter the mould well that you boil it in, that it may turn out clean; make wine sauce for it; it will take an hour and a half to boil.

A Saroy Pudding, either boiled or baked.

Pare the outside of a savoy cake, cut it in slices, and put it in a bason, pour a little milk over it that has boiled, and cover it up close to steam it; when cold, put six eggs to it, (leaving out two whites) beat it up, and add a glass of brandy; it will want no sugar; if for baking, put puff paste round the dish, and butter the bottom; about twenty minutes will bake it; if for boiling, butter the mould well: pour wine sauce over it.

A Custard Pudding, either baked or boiled.

Boil a pint of milk and a pint of cream together, with cinnamon, lemon-peel, and nutmeg, for half an hour; strain it and put it to cool; break eight eggs, (leaving out four whites); add about a table spoonful of flour: beat them well; then add the milk and cream that has been boiled, and a glass of brandy; if for baking, put thin puff paste at the bottom of the dish (first buttering it) and round the rim; then strain the custard into the dish; it will take about twenty minutes; if for boiling, butter the mould, and let it boil about half an hour; garnish the dish you send it up in with currant jelly, and pour wine sauce over it.

Small Curd and Almond Puddings, baked.

Get some cheese curd; put it on a hair sieve to drain the whey from it; put a pewter plate over it, and a weight of eight or ten pounds to press it quite dry; then rub the curd through a hair sieve, (and put about a quarter of a pound of butter to about a pound of curd, to be rubbed through with the curd); put it into a bason, and break eight eggs, (leave out six whites); sweeten it with sifted lump sugar; grate two lemons in it, some nutmeg, and a glass of brandy; add about two ounces of sweet almonds, about eight or ten bitter almonds, and a few currants; butter the moulds well with a paste brush; then throw in some fine bread crumbs, so as to stick to the sides; fill the moulds, and let them bake for half an hour in a quick oven: then turn them out, and pour wine sauce over them: the same preparation will do for a large mould, if you want to match any thing similar to it.

N.B. Crumble six sponge biscuits in, or an equal quantity of savoy cake, or French roll, if the latter is not convenient.

Sugar for Carmel Baskets.

Put two pounds of sugar in a preserving pan, with about a pint of water, and the white of an egg; whisk it up until it boils; take off the black scum as it rises: when it has boiled a few minutes, strain it through a tammy, or lawn sieve, into a small sugar-pan; put it on a stove not very brisk; let it boil until it comes to a proper degree for spinning the baskets. The way to know when the sugar is fit, is to dip your finger in the sugar, and immediately into cold water; if the sugar becomes crisp in the water it will do; the baskets should not be spun more than an hour before they are wanted; the mould should be oiled before using. This belongs more to the confectioner than to the cook.

Preparation of Wax for Baskets and other Ornaments.

To one pound of wax put half a pound of spermaceti, and about one ounce of flake white, mixed up with half that quantity of hog's lard, and melt it all together; have the moulds that are intended for use ready; they should be remarkably clean in the inside, that the wax may not be discoloured; oil the moulds a little with a clean cloth; mind that the wax is not too hot when you begin to cast; if it is it will be troublesome to get out; they may be ornamented with coloured wax, or gum paste, cut out from boards for that purpose; the wax baskets are generally painted in oil colours; sometimes they are done with fat flowers. Mr. Hickson, of Duke-street, Grosvenor-square, is remarkably clever at that, and all other cold work, such as ornamenting tongues, hams, &c.

Savoy Cakes.

To one pound of fine sifted sugar put the yelks of ten eggs, (the whites are to be put in a separate pan), beat the yelks and sugar up well with a wooden spoon for half an hour; then whisk the whites up until they become quite stiff and white; stir them into the batter by a little at a time; when all is in, then add three-quarters of a pound of flour that has been dried before the fire, and the rind of a lemon grated; then put the mixture into two moulds; they should be baked in a very slow oven; when you think they are done run a knife down the middle; if the knife comes out quite clean, the cakes are done; the moulds should be prepared, before you begin the cakes, in the following manner: have some clarified fresh butter, and butter the moulds with a small brush, (what the painters call a tool); mix about three ounces of very fine sifted sugar with about one ounce of flour; then throw it all into one mould, and shake it about well; then turn it out into the other mould, and knock the mould upon the table, so as to leave no more sugar than sticks to the mould; be very particular with the moulds, for there is as much art in preparing the mould, as in mixing the batter for the cake. When for second course, or suppers, they are ornamented with gum paste.

Cucumbers for Sauce.

Peel the cucumbers and cut them in quarters; if the cucumbers are large, make three pieces of each quarter, and trim them the same as for sauce; then put them in a hair sieve, and shake a handful of salt over them, and leave them in the sieve until next day, (by doing so the salt draws the watery substance from the cucumbers); then put them into small jars, so as to fill the jars three parts full; then put salt and water to them, (the same as to French beans,) and salad oil about one inch deep; cover them over with bladders.

N.B. Before using, put them in several waters, to extract the salt from them.

Peas for Winter Use.

The peas for this use should be gathered when they are come to their full growth (but not old); they should be shelled and put in bottles, and the bottles filled up with salt and water, as high as the neck, and the remainder filled up with salad oil; tie a bladder over the necks of the bottles, instead of putting a cork in. They require a good deal of soaking to extract the salt from them.

N.B. They are preserved another way, which is by putting them into bottles: fill the bottles as full as you can; cork them quite close, and dip the heads of the bottles in hot resin; then bury the bottles under ground. This is the best way when they turn out good; but the salt and water is the surest way. As they are not attended with much expense, it would be adviseable to do some both ways.

Sour Crout.

When the large white cabbages are full grown, cut all the green leaves from them; slice the white part in thin slices, and sprinkle it over with salt; put the cabbage into a tub for that purpose; put in a layer of cabbage, and then a few juniper berries, and then cabbage, and so on until the tub is quite full; (the size of the tub depends upon the quantity wanted); then put a round sheet of lead, cast to the size of the top of the tub: the lead should weigh at least one hundred and fifty pounds; for the heavier the weight is, the more it will press the liquor from the cabbage; as the liquor rises, pour it off; it should be done at least three months before using. When any is wanted for use, wash it in several warm waters, and pick all the juniper berries from the cabbage. The best way of dressing it is as follows: put one pint of good stock, one pint of hock, or vin de grave, and a piece of pickled pork on the top; put it on a slow stoye to stew at least five hours; put the cabbage on the dish, and the pork on the top. It may be used for many other things, such as stewed beef, ox and sheeps rumps, roulard of veal, or mutton, &c.

Potatoes.

By mentioning these it may appear to many, that I do it to add to the number of pages, but quite the contrary; there certainly is an art in boiling this most valuable of all vegetables: the size of the saucepan, or whatever they are boiled in, should depend on the quantity of potatoes that are wanted; the saucepan should be filled with potatoes first, and then barely covered with water; put a little salt in the water; when the potatoes come to a boil, put a little cold water just to stop the boil; when the potatoes begin to crack, strain the water from them; and if they are not thoroughly done, by letting them stand upon a trivet, over a slow fire, the steam will do them, and make them mealy besides. Potatoes should not be peeled before boiled, and they should be sent to table as hot as possible.

Parsnips and Carrots.

Neither parsnips or carrots should be scraped before they are boiled, but pealed afterwards; by so doing, they look neat and clean.

Greens.

The water should boil quite strong, for all kinds of greens before they are put in, and kept boiling very fast while they are on the fire; put salt in the water before the greens are put in, and make them quite dry before they are sent to table.

Garden Beans.

Garden beans, while young, should be sent to table with the white skin on; but when they become old, the skin should be peeled off, either before or after they are boiled; by so doing they eat like young beans: parsley and butter should be served up in a boat.

To Cure Bacon and Hams.

Lay the bacon hog on the block, back upwards, cut the head off, then cut a chine out all the way down; next cut out the ham, then the spareribs and griskins; take the blade bones from the flitches with as much lean meat as you can; sprinkle the spareribs, griskins, and blade bones, and hang them up until wanted; pound a quarter of a pound of saltpetre very fine, and put two ounces on each ham, and lay the hams on a dish, the rind side down; lay the bacon on a salting bench, and put two ounces of saltpetre on each flitch; next day, make about four pounds of salt and one pound of coarse sugar very hot in a frying-pan, and rub one half on one ham, and the other half on the other; be sure and rub it well in with the hand; then put the hams in the salt bin, but do not put any brine to them, they will make a sufficient quantity; lay them on the rind side; be sure and put as much salt as you can where the hock is cut off, and likewise take out any kernels that can be got at, and cut out all the veins; when the hams have lain one week, then rub them over with the brine that they have made, and turn them on the other side; they should lie a month or five weeks in the salt, and rubbed over and turned every weeks, then hang them up in the chimney to dry. The chimney they are hung in should have a slow but constant fire every day while they are there; they will take about three weeks or a month; if convenient, there may be a few juniper berries rubbed in the hams before the saltpetre is put on, about one pound for two hams; there are other methods for curing hams, but this has answered well with me.

N.B. Hang the hams and bacon as high in the chimney as you can: put about six pounds of salt, and one pound of coarse sugar in a frying-pan to make hot, when very hot rub one half on each flitch, and lay the flitches one on the other; put a pan under the spout of the bench to catch the brine; the bacon should be turned once a week; that is, put the bottom flitch at the top; and if you think it wants any more salt, put it to it; but too much salt spoils the bacon, as well as too little; mind to put as much salt where the hocks were cut off as you can; do not make a hole in the flitch to hang it up by, but tie a string very tight round the hock, and hang it up by that, and dry it the same as the hams; it is not required generally for cooks to cure the bacon and hams; but I think it right to give young men; who served their times at taverns in London, and women cooks the same, an idea how to manage bacon, if required of them to cure it. After the bacon is well dried, it is a good method to pack it up in a chest for that purpose; put very dry malt dust at the bottom of the chest, and plenty between each flitch; the hams are best by themselves, packed up the same way.

Sausages.

The trimmings from the hams, and part of the griskin, fat and lean, equal quantity, should be first cut very fine with a knife, (be careful to take all the sinews out); then chop it very fine with chopping knives; season it (when done chopping) with pepper and salt, and a little fine spice; put a little sage chopped very fine, and mix it well after seasoning; then put it either in skins, or a pot; if in a pot, press it down very hard, and put a little pepper and salt on the top; a pot is the handlest for family use, as it will keep longer. When wanted, roll them up, and fry them in clarified butter.

Truffles for keeping a Year, or longer.

Brush the dirt very clean from them after washing them in several waters, and put them into a stewpan; put as much very strong stock, and half the quantity of fat from a brown braise, a quart of sherry to about six pounds of truffles, one dozen of onions, a faggot of sweet herbs, and a few blades of mace tied up in the faggot; put the stewpan on a slow stove to boil for one hour; then take them out, and divide those which you wish to send for second course, which should be the largest and roundest; peel the others, and put them in sweetment pots, the unpeeled the same; skim the fat from the braise, and clarify it; boil the other part to a glaze, pour it over the truffles, and then the fat while quite hot; the truffles should be entirely covered.

N. B. The reason for peeling the truffles that are wanted for entres, &c. is that they are ready at a short notice, take up less room, and do not waste the glaze that they are preserved in, which is very valuable for giving the proper flavour to the sauce.

Mushrooms, either for First or Second Course.

Pare the mushrooms the same as an apple, put them into water, and squeeze a lemon in the water; then put about two ounces of butter into a stewpan that will hold a quart of mushrooms; put in the mushrooms with a little pepper and salt, and the juice of two lemons; put them over a slow fire to draw down; they discharge a great deal of liquor, and should remain on the fire until the liquor is boiled away and becomes quite dry, but be careful not to let them stick to the bottom of the stewpan; when done, put them into sweetmeat pots, fill them three parts full, and fill the pot up to the top with clarified butter while quite hot,

N.B. The pots will not require to be covered over when they are wanted for use; put the mushrooms into a stewpan to warm, strain the butter from them, and put them into either brown or white sauce, according to what they are wanted for; by following this method you may have mushrooms the year round.

Peas for Winter Use.

I have mentioned them in another part of this work, by preserving them in salt and water; but I have tried the following method this year, and find it to answer better; they are done as follows: put about two ounces of butter into a stewpan, a few spoonsful of good stock, a little chopped onion, one quart of peas, and a table spoonful of sifted sugar; put them over a slow stove to stew until the peas become quite dry, then put them into a preserving-pot deep enough to be only three parts full, then fill the other part up with clarified butter.

N.B. Put it over the peas as hot as possible, without burning the butter; by putting the butter over them hot it will stick to the peas, and keep the air out better; when wanted, warm and strain the butter from them, and scald them in a little good stock; pour the stock from them, and put a little sauce either white or brown, and about a table spoonful of sifted sugar, and a little pepper and salt; when you are dishing the peas, you should take them up with a callender spoon, by way of draining the sauce from them.

Artichoke Bottoms.

Cut the leaves from the artichokes within an inch of the bottom, by way of their taking up less room in the saucepan they are boiled in; when done sufficiently for the choke to pull out, take them up and pull out the choke, and trim the under part of the bottoms, and put them on earthen or pewter dishes to dry, either in a very slow oven or a hot closet; the slower they are dried the better; when dried, put them in paper bags, and hang them up in a dry place; they will keep good for several years: when they are wanted for use, soak them in warm water until quite soft.

French Beans.

They should be gathered when full grown, but not to have any seed in them; it is immaterial what sort; the scarlet runners are as good as any for the purpose; make the brine as follows: put water (according to the quantity of beans you intend to preserve) into a pot, and as much salt as will be the means of bearing an egg to about the middle of the water; then put it on to boil for at least three hours, but it should not boil quick, as by so doing it would waste too much; put the French beans into stone jars about three parts full; when the brine is quite cold, fill the jars within about an inch, and the remainder part with salad oil; tie a bladder over them; they will keep good the year round; before using soak them in warm water, and change it several times; when they are put to boil, be particular that the water boils very fast before the beans are put in, and kept boiling until they are done.

N.B. There is not the smallest doubt but French beans would be a very good and wholesome vegetable to take to sea on long voyages, as the salt is very easily extracted by putting them in warm water for about two hours before using: the expense of trying them would be very trifling. The early part of September is the time they are very plentiful, and generally cheaper or as cheap as any vegetable.

Sorrel for Winter Use.

The sorrel should be picked so as to be very free from the stalk, and washed in several waters as it is very apt to be gritty; chop it very fine and squeeze the water from it; then put a bit of butter into a stewpan, a slice of lean ham, and one large onion chopped very fine; about two table spoonsful of good stock, and then the sorrel; put the stewpan on a slow stove to simmer until it becomes quite dry; then put it into a deep sweet meat pot, and cover it over with hot clarified butter.

N. B. The butter, ham, and stock, mentioned is intended for one dish of sorrel; season it as described in sorrel sauce.

Turtle Herbs, dried.

Take basil, pot marjorum, sweet marjorum, orange thyme, lemon thyme, and common thyme, parsley four times the quantity of the other herbs; put them to dry gradually (so as to take four or five days to dry) when quite dry, rub them with the hand through a hair sieve; then put them in a cannister, or a bottle, and keep them in a dry place; they will be found very useful for seasoning forced meat and many other purposes; and not the smallest expense. They will keep good for years.

Turtle Herbs in glaze.

Take marjorum of both sorts an equal quantity, half the quantity of basil, four times as much of parsley; lemon, orange, and common thyme the same quantity as marjorum, all picked from the stalks; to a large handful of each herb put one pound of shalot, two pottles of mushrooms, chopped very fine, two pounds of lean ham, a few truffles, if to be had, as they help the flavour; put into a stewpan one pound of butter, one quart of the best stock, and then the herbs, ham, &c. put the stewpan on a slow stove to stew very gently for three or four hours, or until the stock is quite reduced, and the herbs and ham quite tender; then rub them through a tammy; then put them into a stewpan, and one quart of glaze made from the best stock, or the bottom of braises, put them on a quick stove, and keep stirring them while on the fire, which should be until the glaze is reduced one quarter, or until the herbs become quite thick, and begin to stick to the bottom of the stewpan: then put it into oval or round potting pots, as they are more handy than deep preserving pots for cutting out small quantities; those herbs will retain their flavour for six years, or longer. I have had them by me for that length of time, and found them equal in goodness to the first day. Turtle herbs done in this manner will be found very useful for mock turtle, calves head hash, matelot of different kinds of fish; it takes but a small quantity to give the proper flavour to the abovementioned uses, about a quarter of an ounce to a pint of sauce, and so on to a larger quantity.

N. B. They would be found very useful to take to the East or West Indies; if they should happen to be mouldy, a little hot water will take it off, the mouldy taste will not penetrate.

Portable Santé Herbs to take to Sea or for Summer Use.

What is meant by santé herbs is as follows:

Shred turnips, the red part of the carrot, green onions when in season, at other times, Spanish onions, if to be had, if not, common onions, celery, picked chervil, cabbagelettuce; as to quantity, that must depend upon how much soup is wanted (about a pint of herbs when stewed down will do for two quarts of soup santé) when the herbs are all cut and washed particularly clean (as the lettuce and chervil are very likely to be gritty if not well washed) put them into a soup pot or stewpan, and if asparagus is in season, add one pint of asparagus peas to the quantity of herbs that will be sufficient for two quarts of soup) put about one pint of good stock to them, and put them on a slow stove to draw down until quite dry; then put about half a pint of good glaze to them, and let them simmer in that for a few minutes; then put them into oval or round potting pots; fill the pots three parts full, with the herbs, and the next day fill them up with boiling hot glaze; each pot should hold about one pint; when wanted for use, put two quarts of water into a small soup pot or stewpan; when it boils, put the santé herbs in ; perhaps it may want a little salt, and one small lump of sugar, will be a great advantage to the soup.

N.B. The herbs done in this manner will be as good in six months as they were the day they were first done; if kept in a damp place they will be apt to get mouldy, but the mouldy taste will not penetrate; pour a little hot water over the herbs and the mould will come off, and leave no taste behind. Tayern-keepers and those who sell soups would had a great advantage by having santé herbs by them for summer use.

Glaze for Lardings, &c. &c.

Let the stock that is intended for this use, be as clear as possible, and of a pale colour; (if the stock is not clear, it should be cleared with eggs, and run through a jelly bag) will it over the fire, until it hangs to the spoon; when done, put it into a glaze kettle. The glaze kettle is made similar to a milk kettle, and of the best double block tin. When the glaze is wanted for use, put the kettle into a stewpan of water by the side of a stove.

Partridges or Pheasants, preserved for Entres and Pies, for Dinners and large Entertainments, when Game is out of season.

Those for pies should be boned and filled with farce, and two raw truffles put in them. The bones of the partridges or pheasants to be put in a stewpan, and two old fowls, a nuckle of veal, about three pounds of lean ham, cut in slices, half a pound of shalots, a faggot of sweet herbs, a few blades of mace, a pint of good stock, and a pint of sherry; then cover the bones, &c. with sheets of bacon, and the partridges on the bacon, and cover them over with bacon and a sheet of paper cut to the size of the stewpan, by way of keeping in all the steam; put the stewpan over a slow stove, to simmer very gently, until the partridges are tender, but not so as to break: be careful that the liquid does not come to the partridges, as they should be done by the steam. When they are done, take them out, and put them in baking dishes or what you intend to put them by in; then fill the stewpan up with the best stock, and let it boil very gently for three or four hours, then strain it off, skim the fat from it, and boil it down to a glaze (but not quite so low as for glazing) pour the glaze while hot over the partridges, then clarify the fat that you skimmed off the liquid, and the fat from any other braise that may be at hand, pour it over the partridges while hot. The fat should be at least one inch deep, and the birds entirely covered.

Pheasants are done in the same manner. Those that are intended to be served up hot, for the first course, either with cabbage or truffles, should not be boned, but filled with farce, and a truffle put in them; the legs should be drawn in the same as chickens for boiling. Those that are intended for a cold pie should be done as follows: raise a pie according to the number of birds you intend to put in, lay a thick layer of good farce at the bottom; then take the fat off the partridges, and put them in the pye, (but not the glaze) cover them with farce and then sheets of bacon or the fat of a cutling ham, which is what I generally use for all things that require to be covered with fat; in the first place, it generally has a finer flavour than bacon, and in the next, the fat of ham cannot be used in any other way, therefore it would be wasted if not so used; it answers two good purposes, which are, by giving a better flavour, and being economical; cover the pye in, ornament it, put it into a slow oven, and let it stay until it has baked about half an hour; then take it out, make the glaze hot that the partridges were taken from, and put a little good stock to it, to weaken it, and when hot, put into the pie (if truffles are to be had, about one pound to six partridges would be a great advantage to the flavour of the pie.) The same rule should be followed in making a pheasant pie, either put aspic over it, or send some in a butter boat, which is the best way if the pie is for a side table, and to be used at dinner time: for ball suppers, put aspic over the birds by all means.

The partridges or pheasants that are intended for entres, should be warmed by the side of a slow stove; the sauce to be made from part of the glaze that belongs to the birds, and good stock; or by putting some of the glaze into coulis. Braise the cabbage in a brown braise, or with a ham, or any thing else of that kind.

For dishing and other particulars, see partridges and cab

Woodcock Pie, cold.

Pass the woodcock off in a little butter and good stock, raise a pie, put some farce in the bottom, and a few slices of veal from the fillet, and upon that some more farce, and then the woodcocks, season them with chopped parsley, shalots, thyme, mushrooms chopped very fine, pepper and salt, a very little fine spice and cayenne pepper. Cover the woodcocks over with farce, and then with sheets of bacon, finish the pie, and put it in the oven: it will take three hours to bake. When done, have some stock of the very best sort, and about a pint of sherry to a pie that contains twelve woodcocks; and three parts stock to one of wine; put it in the pie while hot; be careful not to let any of the fat spill over the sides of the pie, for this reason, it soaks into the woodcocks and makes them mellow, and helps the flavour.

N.B. Snipes will answer the same as woodcocks, only they will take less doing, of course.

Chicken Panado.

Boil a chicken in a little very good and clear stock, until quite tender; when done, take it up, and take the skin off the breast and legs, mince the breast and legs very fine, then pound it in a mortar, put the bones in the liquor the chickens were boiled in, and put them on the stove to boil, while the chicken is pounding; when pounded very fine, put it in a bason and a little of the stock the chicken was boiled in, mix it up with a spoon; when well mixed, rub it through a tammy sieve; while that is doing, reduce the remainder of the liquid the chicken was boiled in, nearly to a glaze: when the chicken is rubbed through the sieve, then put it into the stewpan that has the liquid belonging to it; put it by the side of a stove to make hot, but be careful that it does not boil; season it with a little salt, so as to make it palatable.

Mutton Panado.

Mince either the fillet of the inside of a chine of mutton when roasted, or the lean part of a neck or loin, then pound it in a mortar, mix it up with a spoon, then rub it through a sieve; when done, put it in a stewpan to warm very gently; be careful that it does not boil; season it with a very little salt.

N. B. Beef or veal panado, should be done the same way; it is not intended as a dish for the table, but for a person in ill health.

FISH.

A Turbot.

It should be put on in cold water, with a little salt and vinegar; when it comes to a boil, put cold water to it, take some of the hot out, and put more cold in; when it comes to a boil, take it off the fire, for fish should not boil up strong.

Salmon.

It requires rather more boiling than turbot, therefore it may boil by the side of a stove for a few minutes; the water should boil for crimped salmon before the salmon is put in.

A Cod's Head, either crimped or not.

It should be put on in cold water, and when it comes to a boil, put a little cold water, so as to stop the boil; serve it so twice, take it off the fire, but let it boil for a few minutes by the side of a stove.

Crimped Cod in Slices.

They should be put on in boiling water, when the fish is put in it will of course stop the boil: when it begins to boil again put a little cold water and let it simmer, by the side of a stove, for a few minutes; put salt in the water you boil it in, and a little vinegar. This should be a general rule for all boiled fish.

Soles boiled.

The same as crimped cod.

John Dorcy.

It should be put on in cold water; when it comes to a boil put in cold water and take it off the fire; let it boil slow by the side of a stove for a few minutes.

Haddock, Whiting, or Small Codlings.

They are all taken the same method with in boiling. Put them in cold water and stop the boil; take them off the fire, and put them by the side, but do not let them boil.

N. B. All fish will take more boiling in winter than in summer.

A Brill.

It is dressed the same as a turbot.

Skait.

It should be put on in boiling water; a few minutes will do it.

Mackerel.

They should be put in boiling water.

Soles, fried.

They should be dipped in egg and then bread crumbs, and done twice over; fry them in lard; if for meagre, in clarified butter.

N. B. All fried fish should be done this way. Sole fillets, done with egg and bread crumbs and fried, look neat, besides being handy for the lady or gentleman who helps the fish; whiting and small haddocks may be done the same way.

Smelts are a good garnish, they are done the same as soles.

Broiled salmon is also a good garnish, it is peppered and salted and put on a tart pan, and put in the oven with oiled butter over it, then put it on the gridiron for a few minutes.

Fried Skait.

It should either be dipped in batter or done with bread crumbs; if dipped in batter it requires more lard or butter to fry it.

Roasted Sturgeon.

Put it on a lark spit and tie it on the roasting spit; baste it well with butter, make a good sauce of coulis, Madeira wine, anchovies, a squeeze of Seville orange, and a little sugar.

N. B. If for meagre use meagre stock to make the sauce.

Boiled Sturgeon.

- Send anchovy sauce in a boat.

Baked Sturgeon.

Put in a marinade made of vinegar, white wine, six onions shreded, sweet herbs and celery cut in pieces; pour the liquid part over it, and the other some under and some over; put the marinade to the sturgeon over night; before it is put in the oven cover it well with bacon, put a pint of good stock, and put it in a slow oven; the time it will take depends on the size of the piece of sturgeon; when the sturgeon is done, take it out of what it was baked in, strain the liquor, and skim it quite free from fat; then put about two ounces of butter into a stewpan; let it melt; then add as much flour as will dry it up; put the liquor that the storgeon was done in and a little coulis; boil it for a few minutes, strain it through a tammy sieve into another stewpan, season it with a little Cayenne pepper, put a little anchovy essence, squeeze a Seville orange, and put a little sugar; put the sturgeon on the dish, and the sauce over it. When for meagre use no stock or coulis made from meat.

Broiled Sturgeon.

Cut it as cutlets, broil it over a very clear stove; it will not take many minutes; season it with pepper and salt on both sides; dish it round the dish and put piquant sauce in the middle.

For collops of sturgeon, do them the same as white collops, only put a little anchovy essence in the sauce.

Mackerel à la Maitre d'Hotel.

They are cut down the back, seasoned with pepper and salt, and chopped mackarel herbs; put them on the gridiron to broil.

Fillets of Mackerel.

Fillet two mackarel, put about an ounce of butter into a stewpan, with mackarel herbs that have been chopped and boiled, and about two spoonsful of stock; put the fillets of mackarel in a stewpan, let them do gently for about ten minutes, then take them out and put them on the dish; put a little flour to the herbs and butter, and add a little beshemell; give it a gentle simmer, squeeze a lemon, put a little anchovy essence, put it over the mackarel.

Red Mullet.

They should be folded up in oiled paper, put in a tart pan, and put in the oven. Make the sauce from the liquid they discharge; put a bit of butter into a stewpan; when melted, stir a little flour in, and put what is come from the mullets, with a little Madeira, and essence of anchovy; send them up in the paper cases.

Pipers.

They are best baked with a pudding in them; put a little stock in the dish they are baked in; make the sauce from that; put essence of anchovy, and squeeze a lemon. Gurnets are done the same way: they are sometimes boiled.

Turtle.

The one that I am giving direction for dressing was between 90 and a 100lb, weight. The a cord to the hind fins of the turtle and hang it up; then the another cord to the fore fins, by way of pinioning it, (that it should not beat itself and be troublesome to the person who cuts off the head) then cut off the head, (this do the evening before you intend dressing it). Lay the turtle on a block, on the back shell, then loose the shell round the edge by cutting it; then raise the shell off clean from the flesh. Next take out the gall with great care, then cut the fore fins off; all the flesh will come with them; then cut the hind fins off; take the liver (as whole as you can) from the entrails; likewise the heart and kidney: then cut the entrails from the back bone and put them in a bucket, wash the shell in several waters to clean it from the blood, and turn it down to drain; in the mean time, cut the fins from the lean meat, and cut the white, or belly, shell into about twelve or fourteen pieces; turn up the back shell and take all the fat from it, (take it out the same as if you were skinning any thing) and put it into a stewpan: saw a rim of the back shell about six inches deep, (a strong lock saw is what should be used) cut it into about ten or twelve pieces, set a large stewpan on the fire full of water; when it comes to a boil, dip a fin in it for a minute or two, then take it out and peel it very clean; when that is done, take another; and so on, until all are done; then the head; next the shell, piece by piece; be careful to take off all the outside peel and shell; then put the shell into a stewpan, about eighteen large onions, and a faggot of turtle herbs; fill it up with water and set it on the fire to boil: when it comes to a boil, set it at the fireside to boil slow until it becomes quite tender. Next cut the fore fins into four pieces each, the hind fins into two each, and put them into a stewpan that will just hold them: put twelve onions and a faggot of turtle herbs; put as much water as will cover the fins, and set them on a stove; when it comes to a boil, take it off and set the stewpan by the side of the fire to boil until the fins become tender, so that all the bones will draw out. Take up the fins and draw out all the bones with great care, then take up the other parts and do the same: do not mix them; lay them on different dishes, strain the liquor that both were boiled in into one pan; cut off the lean meat for entres, such as for fricandean, grenadines, collops, for roasting; boiling, as chickens, patés, cutlets, and semels; then put about a pound of fresh butter into a soup pot, and all the lean meat that is left, three fowls, a faggot of turtle herbs, a dozen onions, two pounds of lean ham, (this should be put at the bottom of the pot) and a bottle of Madeira wine; set the pot on a stove to draw down; be careful in not having too fierce a fire; when it has steamed for an hour, fill up the pot with the liquor that the fins and shell were boiled in; when it comes to a boil take the pot from the trivet, and set it at the side to boil very slow for two hours; then strain it off, pick what lean meat you want for the tureens, and put it in a stewpan with a little of the stock to keep it hot; while the stock is boiling set a person to scour and scald the entrails, you must be particular in seeing that they are very clean;

then cut them in pieces about two inches long, put them on to blanch in cold water, then wash them out, and cover the bottom of a stewpan with fat bacon, put in the entrails, about a quart of stock, a few onions, and cover them over with sheets of bacon, and over that a sheet of white paper; let them stew very gently for three hours, put in two lemons that have been peeled and cut in slices before they are covered with the bacon; the liver is best as a souties; the head belongs to the fins; put two pounds of butter into a large stewpan, with a pound of the prime part of a Westphalia ham, cut very fine, some chopped mushrooms, truffles, shalot, parsley, (double the quantity of any other herbs) sweet marjorum, knotted ditto, lemon and orange thyme, common thyme, basil, (about half as much as of the other herbs) a spanish onion, and a pint of good stock; set the stewpan over a slow stove to simmer for an hour, then put a plate full of flour, keep stirring it about for a few minutes over the fire, then put in the turtle stock, (by a little at a time, as were it all put in at once, you could not mix the flour so well) and four or five quarts of good stock, or as much as you think will be wanting, and one bottle of Madeira; let it boil for a few minutes, then rub it through a taminy, return it into a soup pot, and callipée and callipash with it, cut in pieces of about two inches square, or thereabouts; put the fins into another soup pot, and some of the turtle soup with them; put force meat and egg balls to both; the green fat should be boiled by itself in stock and a little Madeira wine; when done, cut it in small pieces and put it to the soup; season the soup with Cayenne pepper, and a little fine spice; be careful in using Cavenne pepper, it is easier for the company to add a little than to take it out: squeeze four lemons and three Seville oranges into a bason, and put a pint of Madeira wine, a table spoonful of sifted sugar, and a little salt, if wanted; put three parts to the soup, and the other to the fins; this should not be put in until a few minutes before dishing time: be careful that it does not boil after the lemon is put in; if the shell is sent up to table, put a rim of hot paste round it, ornament it as fancy directs; put it in the oven with a little of the turtle stock; when sent to table fill it as you would a tureen; put what lean meat you have in the tureens before the soup; if the lean meat is put to the soup it is apt to boil to pieces and spoil the look of the turtle: if the turtle is for meagre, use either fowl, veal, or ham; but none of the lean meat can be spared for made dishes, as it will all be wanted for the soup.

CONFECTIONARY.

Raspberry Jam.

The raspberries should be gathered in a dry day, otherwise they lose their flavour; and if not used immediately, they are very apt to get mouldy. To one quart of raspberries, put one pound of lump sugar, first being pounded, (but not sifted) then put the sugar and raspberries into a preserving pan, and put it on a slow stove, to draw the juice; when the juice is drawn out, put the pan on a quick stove to boil for fifteen minutes, (it should be kept stiring during the time it boils, otherwise it will stick to the bottom and burn) then take the raspberries up with a spoon that has holes in it; (there are spoons for that purpose, which are sold at all the braziers;) and put them into pots. Boil the sirup about ten minutes longer, or until it comes to a jelly, which may be known, by dropping a drop on an earthen plate; when the jam is about half cold, put the sirup over it; next day, put paper diped in brandy, (silver paper is the best for that purpose) then cover the pots over, first with bladder and then with paper.

N. B. Preserving pans, spoons, and slices, should be either planished copper or silver.

Barberries, for Deserts, or for Second Course Pastry, &c.

They should not be pulled until quite ripe. If for deserts, tie several banches together, so as to make them look like a bunch of grapes; weigh the barberries against an equal quantity of lump sugar; (the sugar should be pounded, but not sifted) then put them both into a preserving pan, and put the pan on a slow stove, to draw the juice from the barberries; when the juice is drawn out, put the pan on a quicker stove, to boil for about fifteen minutes; then take the bunches up with a slice, and lay them on a hair sieve laid on a dish; when they are quite dry, lay them in the pots, which should be long; put what sirup drained from them into the preserving pan, and put the pan on the fire to boil for about ten minutes, or until the sirup becomes a jelly; then pour it over the barberries; next day cover them over the same as raspberry jam.

Barberries for the kitchen use, should be stripped from the stalks; in all other points do the same as the bunches.

Raspberry Jelly.

Pick the raspberries the same as for jam, and put one pound of sifted 'ump sugar to one quart of raspberries; put both into a preserving pan, and put the pan over a very slow stove to draw the juice; let it simmer for an hour; then strain it through a hair sieve; boil the juice for fifteen minutes, or until it comes to a jelly; put it into pots or glasses; next day, cover it over, as before-mentioned. It will be found very useful for ises, creams, for second course, or supper, and many other uses. The raspberries will do to mix with currants, for tarts, puddings, &c. &c.

Barberry Jelly.

Pick the barberries from the stalks, and weigh them against an equal quantity of sugar; put both into a preserving pan; put the pan on a very slow stove, and let it simmer for an hour; then strain the juice through a hair sieve; return it into a pan and put it on a quick stove; boil it for fifteen minutes, or until it comes to a jelly; which will be known by dropping a little in the bottom of one of the sweetmeat pots; when cold, cover it over as other sweetmeats. Barberry jelly will be found very useful, either for creams, ices, or to put on small pastry for second course.

N.B. It would be useful in all families to have barberries by them, as they answer every purpose equal to the tamarinds; indeed they have a much finer acid belonging to them.

Apricot Jam.

Peel the apricots, and cut them in quarters; take out the stones, but do not throw them away, crack the stones and take out the kernels, blanch them the same way as almonds, and put the kernels in a bottle, and fill it up with white brandy, and it will be found very useful to both cook and confectioner, as it makes one of the finest bitters that is known, and gives a particular fine flavour to all kinds of creams; weigh the apricots, and put half the quantity of sugar as of apricot into a preserving pan, and at the rate of one pint of water to one pound of sugar, and put it on a brisk fire to boil; when it comes to a boil, skim it very clean, and let it boil until the sugar begins to hang to the spoon, then put in the apricots, and let them boil for fifteen minutes; keep stirring them with a silver or wooden spoon; when done, put them in pots for the purpose; next day put paper, and cover them the same as other sweetmeats. Some put the kernels among the jam, but the kernels are of better use by putting them in brandy.

Apricots whole.

Pare them very thin and even, split them on one side so as to take out the stone without dividing the apricot; weigh the apricots, and put half the weight of sugar, and one pint of water to one pound of sugar; put it into a preserving pan, and put it on to boil, skim it clean as the scum rises. It should boil until the sugar hangs to the spoon; then put in the apricots, and let them simmer very gently for about ten minutes, then take them up with a slice, and lay them in the pots; put the sirup on the fire, to reduce it to the quantity wanted to cover the apricots.

Apricots in Brandy.

Make a very weak sirup, at the rate of half a pound of sugar to two quarts of water, boil it for half an hour, and be careful to skim it until quite clear; take it off the fire, and put in the apricots one at a time, for fear of brusing them; then put them on a very slow fire, to simmer very gently for about five minutes, have a bunch of feathers, and wet them in the sirup, and turn the apricots with them; a spoon or any thing of that sort would bruise them or crack the skin, which would spoil the look of them, for they should look as blooming as if they were fresh gathered; when done, take them up with a cullendar spoon, and lay them on a cloth to dry, and soak up any sirup that they may discharge; when cold, put them in glass jars, one by one, fill the jars up with white brandy, put the kernels with them, first blanching them, and a quarter of a pound of white sugar candy, pounded, to one bottle of brandy. Put a bladder on the jar, and paper over that,

N.B. Do not put any of the sirup with the apricots; as to their being sweet is of no consequence, as there is always sugar on the table with the desert; the apricots should be of the very finest growth and colour.

N.B. Peaches and nectarines are done exactly the same way.

Brandy Cherries.

Cut part of the stalk from the cherries, and put them in glass or any other jars; put about half a pound of white sugar candy to every quart of brandy, and about one dozen of cloves; fill the jar up with white brandy if convenient, if not, the best to be had; a few peach or apricot kernels will add much to the flavour of them; if neither can be conveniently procured, put a few bitter almonds, first blanching them; tie a bladder on the jar, and paper over that; be careful the cherries are not over ripe; if too great a quantity of sugar is put to the cherries, it shrivels them up and makes them tough. They will keep good for ten years.

Red Currant Jelly.

Pick the currants from the stalk, and put them into a broad pan, similar to a milk-pan: to about four quarts of currents, put about one pound of sifted lump sugar; put it to them the day before you make the jelly; (by putting the sugar to the currants it draws the juice out) put the currants into a preserving-pan over a very slow stove to simmer gently for about twenty minutes; the slower they simmer the better they will discharge the juice; when you think they have discharged all the juice, strain it first through a hair sieve, and then through a jelly-bag, while quite hot, as it will run the faster; to each quart of juice put one pound of lump sugar, pounded; put it in a preserving-pan over a quick stove to boil for twenty minutes; you will know when it is boiled enough by dropping a little on a plate; when done, put it into either pots or glasses, and cover it the same as other sweetments. If you wish to have it of a light colour, put one half white currants.

N. B. The currants should be thoroughly ripe.

on has more Oranges preserved whole.

Out a piece out of the top of the orange (where the stalk grows), big enough to admit a tea-spoon; scoop the pulp out, put the oranges in water, and let them remain there three or four days; change the water every day; strain the juice, and put it by until wanted; put the oranges on to boil, and when they come to a boil change the water and put them on again; boil them until tender, but not so as to lose their shape. For one dozen of oranges make a sirup as follows:-put two quarts of the water the oranges were boiled in, and four pounds of single refined sugar, into a preserving-pan; put it on the fire to boil until the sugar begins to hang to the spoon, then put in the oranges and the juice; put the pan over the fire to boil slow for about ten minutes, then take them up with a spoon and put them into a large bason, pour the sirup over them, and set them by till the next day; then put them on to boil very slow for about ten minutes, take them up with either a slice or a jar up with white brandy if convenient, spoon, and put them into either glass or yellow jars; boil the sirup about five minutes longer, then pour it over the oranges; when cold, cover them over the same as other things of the kind.

N.B. Lemons may be done the same way. The month of,

March is the best time for getting Seville oranges.

Apple Jelly.

The apples should be gathered when full grown, but not the least ripe; it is immaterial what sort they are; cut them in quarters without peeling them; to about a peck of apples put one gallon of water; put them on to boil for four hours; they should not boil very fast; strain the water from the apples, and put it by until the next day; then strain it through a lawn or tammy sieve into a preserving-pan, and to each quart of the liquid put a pound and a half of lump sugar; put it over the fire to boil quick, take the scum off, and boil it for twenty minutes; then put it into pots or glasses, and next day paper them, &c. the same as before directed. Apple Jelly will be found very useful either for second course, pastry, or deserts.

Dried Apples, for Desert, &c.

The best apples for this purpose are the stone pippin, they should be free from blemishes, and not over ripe; put them on baking sheets, and put them in an oven that has been heated and used in the course of the day, and let them stay all night; take them out next morning, and if not done enough, put them in the next night, and so on until they are quite soft; then pinch them between your finger and thumb, by way of making them flat; lay them regular, on a board for the purpose, and put a piece of the same size over them, and a weight heavy enough to press them quite flat, but not to burst them.

N. B. The slower they are dried the tougher the skins will get, and bear more pressing, without bursting.

Damsons for Pics, Tarts, &c.

They should be quite ripe, and gathered on a dry day; pull the stalks out, and put the damsons in jars, fill them three parts full, and put moist sugar, at the rate of one pound to three pounds of damsons; cover the jars over with pastermade with flour and water; put them in a very slow oven the last thing in the evening, and let them stay all night; take them out next morning, and strain the sirup from them through a hair sieve; let the damsons remain on the sieve to drain; put the sirup in a preserving pan, and put it on the fire to boil for about ten minutes; return the damsons into the jar, and put just enough sirup to cover them; next day, put clarified mutton suet about one inch deep over the damsons; the day following paper them over.

Damson Cheese.

It is made from the sirup of damsons, by boiling it down very low. so as to become a thick substance; it is very apt to burn if not paid particular attention to, by stirring it now and then with a slice or spoon; when done, put it in round or oval potting pots, the shallower the better, as it will be more handy for cutting out; crack the stones, and take out the kernels, blanch them the same as almonds, and put the kernels to the cheese while hot.

N. B. The kernels should be prepared before you put the sirup over the fire.

Bottled Gooseberries.

The gooseberries for this purpose should be the hairy kind, and full grown, but not the least appearance of being ripe; they should be gathered on a dry day; top and tail them, and put them in wide mouth bottles that are made for the purpose; put the bottles into a fish-kettle, or something of that kind, and fill it up with cold water; put it over the stove to boil, when the gooseberries change colour all through, take them out and put them by until the next day; put some gooseberries into a stewpan, and fill it up with water at the rate of half a pint of gooseberries to three pints of water; put it over the fire to boil for about one hour; then strain the liquor from the gooseberries, and when quite cold, fill up the bottles with the water, only leaving room for about one inch of salad oil, then cork the bottles, have bees wax and resin, of each an equal quantity, made very hot in an iron ladle, or any thing that will answer the purpose; dip the top of the bottle in so as to cover the cork and the rim of the neck of the bottle; when done, put them either in the cellar or store room.

Gingerbread in Cakes and Nuts.

Six pounds of treacle, one pound of fresh butter, two pounds of flour, one pound of coarse moist sugar, a quarter of a pound of citron, a quarter of a pound of dried lemon peel, a quarter of a pound of orange peel, all to be cut very fine; half a pound of ground ginger, four lemons grated, and four Seville oranges (if to be had) rub the butter and flour together so as not to leave any lumps; then rub in the ginger, sweetmeats, sugar, and the grated lemon and orange peel; then make a hole in the middle of the flour, &c. then pour in the treacle, and mix it up with two spoons; when well mixed, then prepare the baking sheets in the following manner (sheet iron is best for this purpose); make the sheets very clean; then put them in the oven to warm; then dip a paste-brush into warm clarified butter, and brush the sneets lightly all over; then drop the gingerbread on the sheets in regular rows, and leave about two inches between each drop, otherwise they will run together, and will not look so neat; about a tea spoonful in each drop will be quite sufficient; a very few minutes will bake them; the oven should be about the heat after the drawing of bread; when taken out of the oven put them to cool before taken off the sheets. If you want to make nuts, mix one pound more of flour to what is left from the cakes.

N. B. When baked, the gingerbread should be put either in covered glasses, or covered yellow jars, and kept in a dry place; then it will keep crisp for several weeks or months.

Pound Cake.

Weigh one pound of flour, one pound of sifted lump sugar, one pound of currants, and grate the rind of two lemons, mix all together by rubbing them between your hands; then put one pound of butter into a wooden bowl (for that is best for the purpose); put it before the fire to soften if the weather is cold; in summer there will be no occasion; when the butter is a little soft beat it up with your hand until it becomes like cream; then break ten eggs into a proper sized pan of the deep kind; whisk them up until they become quite frothy; then put about one-third of them to the butter, and beat them up with the hand until well mixed, then put in half what is left, and mix that until it sticks to the bowl; then put in the remainder, and mix it up well; when it sticks to the bowl you may be sure it is well mixed, (and certain of its being light); then put in the flour, &c. and mix all well together; have cake-hoops or moulds papered, and put them in the oven; the proper heat the oven should be is about the same as when the bread is just drawn; if a larger cake, of course the oven must be. rather hotter; if the oven is too hot, the cakes will be burnt before half done. The way to know when they are done, is by putting a knife down the middle; if the knife comes out quite dry, then the cake is done. Cakes of this description should be well soaked.

A Rich Plumb Cake.

Take one pound of flour, one pound of sugar, two pounds and an half of currants, two ounces of citron, two ounces of dried lemon peel, two ounces of dried orange peel, all cut very fine, two ounces of sweet almonds cut in quarters, about a tea spoonful of pounded spice, such as nutmegs, cloves, cinnamon, and mace (not a tea spoonful of each, but when mixed); mix all well together the same as for a pound cake, and follow exactly the same directions; for finishing add one glass of brandy after the flour, &c. is put in.

N.B. If for a large cake, use double or treble the quantity of every thing according to the size the cake is wanted.

Iceing for Rich Cakes.

Put one pound of very fine sifted treble refined sugar into a bason, and the whites of three new-laid eggs; beat the sugar and eggs up well with a spoon until it becomes very white and quite thick; the more it is beat up the whiter and thicker it will get; when done put it over the cake with a spoon, smooth it with a knife, and garnish it according to fancy.

N.B. Put the ornaments on before the iceing becomes dry.

Queen Cakes

Are made exactly the same as pound cakes; there are tin moulds on purpose to bake them in; the moulds should be well buttered, and when done with wiped while hot, and not washed.

A Plain Cake

Is made the same as a pound cake, only leave out the currents.

N.B. A few caraway seeds give it a pleasant taste.

Sponge Biscuits, or Cakes.

Take fourteen ounces of very fine flour dried and sifted, one pound of lump sugar sifted through a lawn sieve, and the rind of two lemons grated; put a deep pan either over a very slow stove or before the fire, so as to make the pan quite hot; (be very careful that the pan is free from grease, if the pan has been used for any thing else, rub the inside with a little flour) break twelve eggs into a bason, then put them into the pan, and whisk them up until the eggs become quite thick, then put in the sugar, and whisk it up for about five minutes over a very slow stove, then let it stand while you are buttering the pans, which require very great attention; the butter should be worked about the pans until it becomes like cream, and very thick; then beat up the eggs again for about five minutes; then take the whisk out, and knock it on the sides of the pan to get the batter from it; then put in the flour and lemon peel, and mix it up with a spoon; then fill the pans, put them on a baking sheet, and sift a little sugar over them through a lawn sieve, and put them in the oven; the oven should be very quick, they will not take many minutes; when done take them out of the pans, and lay them on a dish bottom upwards; wipe the pans very clean while hot.

N.B. This batter will do for Naples biscuits, and different kinds of drops. Naples biscuit moulds are different from the sponge cake moulds; they are to be had at any tinshop.

Lemon Cake.

Is made the same as the sponge biscuit, only baked in one large mould instead of small ones; the mould should be well buttered, and dusted with flour and sifted sugar mixed; for a change, you may put a few currants in, and the same in the bottom of the sponge biscuit pans.

Shrewsbury Cakes.

To one pound of flour rub in six ounces of fresh butter, four onnces of currants, and four ounces of sifted sugar, wet it with water, and a little cream or new milk; be careful not to make it too wet, as it would oblige you to use more flour, which would make the cakes too poor of the butter; roll them out and cut them in what shape you think proper; put them on baking sheets, being first buttered over a little and dusted with flour; a slow oven is best for them.

Small Tea Cakes.

Rub a quarter of a pound of butter into one pound of flour, mix a quarter of a pound of sifted lump sugar, and wet it with water; when made up, divide it in two equal pieces; put one ounce of caraway seeds to one piece, by way of having two sorts; then rub the paste out very thin, and cut it out with a small round paste cutter, butter a baking sheet very little, and dust it over with flour; lay them regularly on baking sheets, and bake them in a very slow oven; they should be of a very light brown.

N.B. They should be kept in a dry place, either in a covered glass such as the pastry-cooks use, or a covered pan. Small cakes of all descriptions should be kept this way.

Apricot Ice.

Mix half a pound of apricot jam in one quart of cream, when well mixed put a little more sugar if wanted, and a small glass of ratifie or brandy that has kernels in it (which is nearly the same thing); rub it through a tammy sieve, or a very close hair sieve; then put it into the freezing-pot, and put that into the ice-tub, work it well round until it sticks to the sides, then scrape it off with a slice for that purpose, and go on working it round in the ice until it is all froze and come to a thick body; then leave it covered up in the ice for half an hour; then take it out with a spoon and put it into the moulds; put paper at each end of the mould by way of keeping the ice from sticking to the lids; bury the moulds in the ice; when wanted, dip the moulds in cold water to make them turn out the ice smooth; the turning out of ices should be left to the last minute.

N.B. Ice for freezing should be pounded into small pieces, and mixed with salt.

Raspberry Ice.

Rub one quart of raspberries through a tammy, put one quart of cream, and sweeten with sifted lump sugar; finish the same as the apricot.

N.B. If the ice is made when the fresh raspberries are out, use raspberry jam; mix half a pound of jam to one quart of cream, and rub it through a tammy sieve, or a tammy.

Strawberry Ice

Is made the same as raspberry, either fresh fruit or jam.—All ices made from the juice of fruit are called water ices.

N. B. They are mostly used in hot weather.

Orange Ice.

To make one quart squeeze one dozen of China oranges, and strain the juice through a hair sieve, put a sufficient quantity of cold water that has boiled to make up the quart, sweeten it with lump sugar, add a small glass of brandy, and finish it the same as other ices.

Lemon Ice.

Lemon ice is made the same as orange; all water ices should be made very rich, with fruit and sugar.

Barberry Ice.

Mix half a pint of barberry jelly (see barberry jelly) with one quart of cream.

N.B. The jelly should be warmed before put in the cream; finish as other ices. If you wish to have it of a higher colour than the barberries make it, use a little cochineal.

Barberry Water Ice.

Warm one pint of barberry jelly, when warm, make it up a quart with water that has boiled, add a little sugar and a glass of brandy; finish as other ices. Peach ice is made the same way as apricot and nectarine.

Lemonade.

To make four quarts, peel twenty-four lemons as thin as possible, so as not to have any of the white part to what you peel off (as that would make the lemonade bitter) put the peel into four quarts of water, and put the water, &c. into a stewpan, and put it on the stove to boil very slow; while that is boiling, squeeze the lemons, and strain the juice into a jug that is intended for the lemonade; put a sufficient quantity of lump sugar, and cover it over until wanted; the lemon peel should boil at least two hours; when done, strain it off through a tammy sieve, and put the water the peel was boiled in to the lemon juice and sugar; taste it that you may know whether it is sweet enough; put it to cool, when cold, put it in a decanter, and keep it in a cool place.

N. B. Orangeade should be made and managed the same way as lemonade.

Use half China and half Seville oranges when to be had.

Orgeat.

To make four quarts blanch one pound of sweet almonds, and two ounces of bitter almonds; put them into a mortar, and pound them until fine enough to go through a tammy; wet them with a little water while pounding them, by way of keeping them white; when rubbed through the tammy put them into a bason, and sifted sugar sufficient to sweeten the quantity wanted; put a little water that has boiled, and stood to be cold, to blend the almonds and sugar; when they become quite smooth, then put more, by little at a time, until there is a sufficient quantity; then put it into decanters to be ready for use.
