P R E F A C E.

THE Medical Society of Edinburgh was instituted in the year 1737 for the purpose of reading and discussing Essays on Medicine and the collateral Sciences.

The zeal of its earlier members having soon raised the Society to a position which admitted of an extension of its views to other objects, the formation of a library was undertaken, and with such success, that this has since become one of the most prominent advantages afforded by the Institution.

The Society has existed for one hundred years, during which period, the extension of its reputation as an arena for discussion, and the increase of its Library have raised it to its present prosperous condition.

The collection of books now consists of upwards of 12000 volumes, embracing the most approved works in Medicine, Science, and Literature. Of these a catalogue has long existed, arranged according to the authors' names in alphabetical order, with references to the position of the books on the shelves of the Society. But though perfectly adapted to facilitate the labours of the Librarian, it is obvious that to the Student, such a catalogue does not afford any means of ascertaining what sources of information the Society has to offer him, or what are the standard works on any subject to which he may wish particularly to direct his attention.

To supply this deficiency, the formation of a Catalogue Raisonné has been attempted on various occasions since the commencement of the present century, by members of the Society, but from causes which it is difficult to trace, and which it would be useless to particularize if known, the undertaking hitherto has always been unsuccessful.

In the winter of 1835 a few members of the Society renewed the attempt, and the Society, anxious to render its Library as much as possible available to the Students of the Medical School, strenuously encouraged the design, and at length resolved that the Catalogue Raisonné should be printed at the expense of the Society.

Though the Society trust that the arrangements adopted have insured for the Catalogue Raisonné a very considerable degree of accuracy, still they cannot doubt that many deficiencies may be found in a work of this kind, completed for the first time; it is therefore to be desired that inaccuracies may be pointed out, and alterations that may seem advisable suggested, with a view to its improvement in a future edition. It is then proposed to extend the present plan of the Catalogue, by incorporating with it many valuable papers on subjects connected with Medicine and the collateral Sciences, which are to be found scattered through the various British and Foreign periodical works in the possession of the Society.

With a view to facilitate reference to particular subjects, the general plan of the Catalogue has been printed at the commencement, which will show the system of classification adopted. It seems, therefore, unnecessary here to enter further into detail, than to state that the books have been arranged under four great divisions, Medicine, Science, Literature, and Miscellanies.

Under Part I. MEDICINE, are arranged works on Anatomy,

Human and Comparative ; Physiology ; Materia Medica and Pharmacy, including Hygiène and Therapeutics ; General Pathology and Practice of Physic ; Surgery ; Midwifery, and Diseases of Women and Children ; Medical Jurisprudence and Medical Police ; and Medical Literature.

Under Part II. SCIENCE, are arranged works on Natural Philosophy, including Mechanical Philosophy and Chemistry ; Natural History, including Zoology, Botany, Geology, Mineralogy, and Mineral Waters ; and the Science of the Mind, including Metaphysics and Moral Philosophy, Political Economy, and General Education.

Under Part III. LITERATURE, are arranged works on General Literature ; Classical Literature ; General Biography ; History ; Antiquities ; Geography ; Voyages and Travels ; and the Arts.

Under Part IV. MISCELLANIES, are arranged works on Veterinary Medicine and Agriculture ; Dictionaries and Cyclopædias ; Transactions of Societies, &c. ; Catalogues and Valuable Lists, &c. ; and Journals, Reviews, &c.

In conclusion, the Society hopes, that from the extent and character of its Library, this Catalogue may prove useful, not only to its members, but to the medical profession generally.
