INTRODUCTORY NOTICE.

THE appended minute describes the origin, scope, and objects of the Exhibition.

The collection for this, the first year's exhibition, commences with some of the earliest known English Portraits. They have been selected chiefly from depositories where they have been long known, and have acquired a claim to authenticity; and they have been multiplied by copies, and by engravings, for the illustration of historical and biographical works.

These first portraits, or painted memorials, rarely possess the character of representations taken from the individual; nor can many of them be said to be even contemporary works. They are mostly reproductions of a very early period from the carved figures on tombs, limnings in manuscripts and missals, and paintings on glass, which have been accepted as true resemblances of the persons represented. They have little claim to rank as works of art; but in most cases are rudely drawn by a skilled hand, in the conventional manner of the herald painters and illuminators, and the dresses, jewels, and other ornaments are, like the heraldic decorations of the time, enriched with gilding; while the colour is in crude masses, without any attempt to give roundness to the forms, or effect by light and shade.

Some such representations, chiefly those of a later period, are, however, purely imaginary: groups of portraits have been produced in order to decorate our public halls and other edifices, or to gratify the tastes of individuals. Their origin is at once apparent. Few can be misled by them, and, to any who believe in them, the illusion is harmless. Granger, a reliable authority, says, of a portrait of "Johannes Balliol—Fundator Coll. Balliolensis anno Dom. 1263: I have heard it asserted, that this Portrait of John Balliol was drawn from a Blacksmith, who lived at Oxford; but of this I have no direct proof," and he adds that, "Devorgillia, his wife, was drawn from Jenny Reeks, an apothecary's daughter at Oxford, who was esteemed a beauty." There would, indeed, be no difficulty in filling a gallery with notables of this quality, commencing with a dramatic full-length of Alfred the Great.

Of these latter works, none possess any claim to a place in the Exhibition, but in the former class are many of high interest; the earlier of them, though rude, are full of character, and impress us with their truth: the persons themselves are before us, wearing the very dress and ornaments of their time; and as we advance, we trace the steps by which, with these first qualities, an art was combined, that has not yet been excelled in some of the essential qualities of portraiture. Then the interesting question arises, who were the painters of these great works?

Though portraiture, imitating the features and expressions from the life, was known on the continent in the beginning of the sixteenth, and even in the middle of the fifteenth century, such art appears to have been little practised in England before the reigns of Richard III. and Henry VII. It is said, though it is very questionable, that Jan de Mabuse came to England at this time, and the small picture usually called "The Children of Henry VII." fulfilling all the conditions of true portraiture, is ascribed to his hand. It has a place (No. 58) in the Exhibition. In the following reign, Holbein was induced to settle in England, and from this visit, and the great pre-eminence to which he attained, nearly the whole art of the reign has been attributed to him.

We have, however, the names of other foreigners who were then in England. Sotto Cleeve spent a short time in our metropolis, though the only accounts we know of him are very meagre and conflicting—in Her Majesty's collection at Windsor are two fine portraits from his pencil. Lucas Cornelius was another painter of whose works we know little, but who is said to have taught Holbein to paint in miniature, and must have been an artist of merit ; and there is a portrait in the Exhibition by Lucas Penni, who was also in England during Henry's reign.

The date of Holbein's death has become an important consideration in determining by whom many very fine portraits of this period were painted. It had been almost universally stated to have taken place in 1554, when, in 1862, a will was discovered, which is concluded to be Holbein's. This will would prove his death to have happened in 1543, a date which has been supported by many collateral facts very learnedly brought to bear upon the question. There is yet, we venture to think, just sufficient absence of absolute proof of the identity of the Testator with the Painter to allow of that further examination of a question of so great interest which the present collection very opportunely offers.

The distinguished antiquaries who have come to the conclusion that Holbein died eleven years earlier than the date hitherto accepted, have felt the difficulty as to the painters to whom must be attributed the portraits of the latter end of the reign of Henry VIII, and during the reign of Edward VI. ; and they name, chiefly from the household books of the former sovereign, some painters, also mentioned by Walpole, who, they think, might have been the painters of these works, and whose reputation has been merged in the fame of Holbein. But it would not be difficult to show that these were mere craftsmen, employed in painting the heraldic devices of the time, whose art had nothing in common with the art of Holbein.

Up to this time the question has been left in the hands of the antiquary. No distinguished painter has expressed any opinion ; yet it is one on which the artist is well qualified to judge. He would hardly admit that it is possible there could be a second Holbein, and his professional knowledge would enable him to trace the technical manner of painting, and the characteristics which constitute the originality of all true genius ; and thus determine, with as much certainty as with regard to hand-writing, whether the earlier and the later works which have been usually attributed to Holbein, are the productions of the same mind and the same hand.

In Queen Mary's short reign, Sir Antonio More painted in England ; he was brought here by Philip II. ; and on the death of Mary, returned with him to Spain. He is reputed to have been an imitator of Holbein, but his originality is well maintained, and there are some very fine portraits by him in the Exhibition. Of Queen Elizabeth, we have many portraits, some of them apparently contemporary works, by different hands. Lucas de Heere, a Fleming, was her Court Painter, and his careful drawing and delicate manner may be readily traced in the portraits of the time. Federigo Zuccherò also came to England in her reign, it is said in 1574, and was employed both by the Queen and her Court. But it is difficult in the dissimilar works which bear his name to identify satisfactorily his manner. There is also in the Exhibition a remarkable portrait of Elizabeth as princess, which has always borne the name of Holbein in the Royal Catalogue, though this is quite inconsistent with the earlier date now assumed for his death (No. 247). To these may be added the name of Cornelius Ketel, with others of less note.

We have not yet mentioned one native artist, but the Exhibition contains a careful portrait, in oil, by Nicholas Hilliard, Queen Elizabeth's own painter and the founder of the great school of English Miniaturists; and in the reign of James I. Sir Nathaniel Bacon, the brother to the Lord Chancellor, is distinguished as an amateur. His portrait by himself shows none of the timidity of the amateur, and proves him to have been an excellent artist (No. 411). James, though with little taste for art, was fortunate in the great painters who came to England in his time, and by whose art, himself, his family, and the notables of his reign, are perpetuated. Of the works of these men—Paul Van Somer, Cornelius Jansen, and Daniel Mytens, the Exhibition contains many noble examples.

In the reign of Charles I., notwithstanding the calamities of the time, Art flourished in England. Sir Anthony Vandyke settled in England under the patronage of the King, and died here. His King Charles and his Queen Henrietta Maria, with the groups of their children, and the distinguished men of the time, are among the great ornaments of the Exhibition, unequalled for beauty of colour and refined grace of drawing and composition. At the same time, his fellow-pupil in the studio of Rubens, George Jamesone (b. 1586, d. 1644), flourished in Scotland; and a school of painters, their pupils and followers, grew up, giving rise to a succession of native artists, of whom William Dobson (b. 1610, d. 1646) was the first who became distinguished. During the Commonwealth, Robert Walker, called 'Cromwell's Painter,' produced some fine portraits, rarely exceeding a head-size, which are marked by a simple, truthful originality of manner: but so little is known of him, that we are unable to state with accuracy the year even of his birth or death (see No. 809).

Sir Peter Lely, who came to England in 1641, succeeded Vandyke in favour and patronage, and was the first painter of the Restoration, but quitting the grand manner of the painters of James's reign, and the truthful graces of Vandyke, he ran into a gaudy extravagance, which has little either of truth or nature. The works of the native artists of the time, though cast into shade by his glaring extravagance, were not without sterling merits; and the portraits in the Exhibition by John Riley (b. 1646, d. 1691), John Greenhill (b. 1649, d. 1676) Michael Wright (b. circa 1655, d. c. 1700), and some others, possess more truth and careful finish, with none of Lely's bravura of false art. But Sir Godfrey Kneller, another foreigner, to the exclusion of these men, monopolised the great patronage which Lely had enjoyed; and in his hands portrait-art suffered a positive degradation in the senseless allegory which became the fashion. With his works the present Exhibition, extending no further than the Revolution of 1688, concludes. The works of our native painters, which occupy little space in this year's Exhibition, will fill a conspicuous place in the next.

We have noticed the harmless inventions of the likenesses of men who were distinguished long before portrait-art was known in England; but the inventions of later days are far more mischievous. Old portraits are now vamped up, and christened with great names; spurious copies are manufactured, and passed off as originals, while numerous fine works, that can never be replaced, have been utterly destroyed by so-called restorations and repairs. In family collections, even, the identity of portraits has been lost—the names changed. In the present collection instances will be found of this, as well as of portraits of the same person contributed from different collections—and collections of note too—under different names.

It has not, however, been thought right towards those who have graciously lent their portraits, to presume to make any alterations in such cases ; and the rule adopted has, therefore, been to exhibit every portrait accepted under the title, and with the name of the painter, given by the possessor, and probably long so traditionally known. For this reason it must not be assumed that the Catalogue adds any authority on these points.

SAMUEL REDGRAVE.

N.B. The Exhibition for the next year will commence with the portraits of the Reign of William and Mary ; and will include portraits of the reign of George III. down to the year 1800.

Offers of portraits for exhibition next year may be addressed to The Secretary, Department of Science and Art, South Kensington.

The Galleries in which the present Collection is shown are the only remaining portions of the buildings of the Exhibition of 1862, and were then occupied as the refreshment-rooms. The existence of these Galleries rendered the present Exhibition a possibility.

NATIONAL PORTRAIT EXHIBITION IN 1866.

THE Lords of the Committee of Council on Education have determined to hold a National Portrait Exhibition at South Kensington in the Arcades overlooking the Royal Horticultural Society's Gardens, which will be opened in April 1866.

This Exhibition is based upon the suggestions made by the Earl of Derby in a letter dated 6th May, 1865, from which the following extracts are made :—

"I have long thought that a National Portrait Exhibition, chronologically arranged, might not only possess great historical interest by bringing together portraits of all the most eminent contemporaries of their respective eras, but might also serve to illustrate the progress and condition, at various periods, of British Art. My idea, therefore, would be to admit either portraits of eminent men, though by inferior or unknown artists, or portraits by eminent artists, though of obscure or unknown individuals. I have, of course, no means of knowing, or estimating, the number of such portraits which may exist in the country; but I am persuaded that, exclusive of the large collections in many great houses, there are very many scattered about by ones and twos and threes in private families, the owners of which, though they could not be persuaded to part with them, would willingly spare them for a few months for a public object."

"The question of one, two, or three exhibitions in consecutive years, would, I apprehend, be mainly decided by the result of future inquiries as to the probable number of pictures which could be obtained, and the space which could be found for their exhibition. But whether the period over which each exhibition (if more than one) should range, be longer or shorter, the point on which I should set the greatest value, in an historical, if not in an artistic point of view, would be the strict maintenance of the chronological series. I shall be very happy if any suggestions of mine should lead the Committee of Council to take up seriously, and carry out, with such alterations of detail as experience might suggest, a scheme which I think could hardly fail of being generally interesting: and I should have much pleasure in placing temporarily at their disposal any portraits from my collection at Knowsley which they might think suitable for their purpose."

My Lords have constituted a Committee of Advice, consisting of the Trustees of the National Portrait Gallery, and other noblemen and gentlemen as follows :—

ARRANGEMENTS APPROVED FOR THE EXHIBITION.

1. The exhibition is specially designed to illustrate English history, and the progress of art in England. It may be divided into two or three sections representing distinct historic periods exhibited in successive years, depending upon the number of the portraits received and the space available for their proper exhibition.

2. It will comprise the portraits of persons of every class who have in any way attained eminence or distinction in England, from the date of the earliest authentic portraits to the present time; but will not include the portraits of living persons, or portraits of a miniature character.

3. In regard to art, the works of inferior painters representing distinguished persons will be admitted; while the acknowledged works of eminent artists will be received, though the portrait is unknown or does not represent a distinguished person.

4. The portraits of foreigners who have attained eminence or distinction in England will also be included, with portraits by foreign artists which represent persons so distinguished.

5. The exhibition will be held at South Kensington in the spacious brick building used for the Refreshment Rooms of the International Exhibition in 1862; and these galleries, which are perfectly dry, will be fitted up especially for the exhibition, and patrolled day and night by the police.

6. All charges for the conveyance of pictures accepted for exhibition by the Committee will be defrayed by the Department of Science and Art.

7. The exhibition will be opened early in April 1866. The portraits, for the purpose of proper arranging and cataloguing, will be received not later than the second week in February; and will be returned at the end of August at the latest; but though the exhibition will continue open to that time, any owner who requires the return of his contributions at the end of July will have them forwarded to him at once.

8. In accordance with the usual practice, the Science and Art Department, unless the owner objects, will take photographs of such portraits as may be useful for instruction in the Schools of Art, and allow them to be sold in the Museum; but no permission will be granted to any private person to photograph, without the owner's express sanction. Two copies of each photograph taken will be presented to the owner of the picture photographed.

9. As was the case at the Exhibitions of 1851 and 1862, (and as is usual at the Royal Academy and other exhibitions), the Department cannot be responsible for loss or damage, but every possible care will be taken of works lent; and it may be added that the numerous paintings lent for exhibition in 1862 were collected and returned by the same agency as will be now employed, free from any injury or damage of any kind.

10. All correspondence marked on the cover "National Portrait Exhibition," should be addressed to the Secretary of the Science and Art Department, South Kensington Museum, London, W.

CATALOGUE.

N.B. In the compilation of the Catalogue the rule adopted has been to describe every portrait under the title, and with the name of the painter, given by the possessor; for this reason, it must not be assumed that the Catalogue adds any authority on these points.

EASTERN CORRIDOR. (Nos. 1 to 39.)

PLANTAGENET REIGNS—1154-1485.

I ROSAMOND CLIFFORD.

LENT BY HER MAJESTY (Hampton Court).

PAINTER.

The "Fair Rosamond," mistress of Henry II., daughter of Walter de Clifford, a Baron of Herefordshire; commonly said to have been poisoned through jealousy by Queen Eleanor; shortly after Henry's marriage she retired to the Convent of Godstow, where she seems to have d. about 1173. Her two sons by Henry were William "Long Espée," afterwards E. of Salisbury, and Geoffrey, nominated Bishop of Lincoln.

To waist, profile to l., dress and tippet edged with fur, open ruff. Canvas, 29 × 24 in.

2 SIR WILLIAM WALLACE, KT.

MR. ROBERT VANS AGNEW.

Scottish warrior and patriot: 2nd son of Sir Malcolm Wallace, of Elderslie; b. about 1270; brought up at Dunipace in Stirlingshire, and afterwards at Dundee; in 1297 outlawed for killing the son of the Sheriff of Clydesdale in a skirmish; carried on a guerilla war against the English, who had then possession of Scotland; won a victory at Stirling, and expelled them from his country; elected Governor of Scotland; defeated by Edward I. at Falkirk; betrayed by Sir John Monteith; carried to London and executed as a traitor, 1305.

Bust in armour, with tartan scarf fastened by a brooch, inscribed "Libertas." Canvas, 2 ft. 6 in. × 2 ft. Stated to have been formerly the property of the Abbacy of Glenluce, Wigtonshire: on the suppression of the monasteries passed to the family of Hay of Park, whose representative, in 1810, gave it to the uncle of the present possessor. Canvas, 30 × 25 in.

3 EDWARD III.

HER MAJESTY (Hampton Court).

Son of Edward II.; b. at Windsor, 13th Nov. 1312; suc. 1327; married Philippa, daughter of the Count of Holland and Hainault; d. at Shene (Richmond), 21st June, 1377, aged 64; bu. at Westminster.

Bust, ermine tippet over gold-edged robe, crowned. Panel, 1 ft. 6 in. × 10 in.

4 JOHN OF GAUNT, DUKE OF LANCASTER.

DUKE OF BEAUFORT.

PAINTER,
LUCA CORNELLI.

4th son of Edward III., by his Queen Philippa; b. 1340; married, 1st, Blanche, daughter of Henry D. of Lancaster, his son by whom was Henry E. of Hereford, afterwards Henry IV.; 2nd, Constance, daughter of Pedro, King of Castile and Leon, through whom he claimed to be heir to that title; 3rd, Katharine, daughter of Sir Payne Roelt and widow of Sir Hugh Swynford; d. 1399.

Three-quarter size, in armour, helmeted, with emblazoned surcoat, sceptre in r. hand, l. resting on sword: s. of arms, showing in a shield of pretence the arms of his 2nd wife, and inscription on background. Canvas, having been, in 1840, removed from panel, 3 ft. 7 in. \times 3 ft. 8½ in.

5 WILLIAM OF WYKEHAM, BISHOP OF WINCHESTER.

MR. BALDWIN J. P. BASTARD.

Architect and Statesman; b. at Wykeham in Hampshire, 1324; went to school at Winchester in 1356; surveyor of Edward III.'s works at Windsor; ordained, 1362; Keeper of the Privy Seal and secretary to the King, 1364; Bishop of Winchester and Lord Chancellor, 1367; founded Winchester School and New College, Oxford; rebuilt, employing William Wynford, most of Winchester Cathedral; d. 27th Sept. 1404.

Three-quarter to r., nearly full face, hands gloved, r. raised in benediction, rich crozier in l., jewelled cope, morse and mitre; in background, Winchester College and Cathedral. Panel, 3 ft. 1 in. \times 2 ft. 7 in. Inscription with date of birth and death.

6 JOHN WYCLIFFE (1324-1384).
EARL OF DENBIGH.

Divine and Reformer; probably b. near Richmond in Yorkshire, 1324; entered at Queen's College, and afterwards at Merton College, Oxford; distinguished in scholastic philosophy and divinity; in 1360 or 61 Master of Balliol Hall; about 1375 became Rector of Lutterworth, Leicestershire; translated the Bible from Latin into English; protected by John of Gaunt from the hostility of the Romish Church, whose discipline and doctrine he attacked; d. 31st Dec. 1384.

Half-length, three-quarter-face to r., black cap and gown, book in r. hand, staff in l., gloved. Panel, 2 ft. 3 in. \times 1 ft. 5½ in.

7 RICHARD II.

DEAN AND CHAPTER OF WESTMINSTER.

Son of Edward the Black Prince, grandson of Edward III.; b. at Bordeaux, 1366; succeeded his grandfather, 1377; married, 1st, Anne, daughter of the Emperor Charles IV.; 2nd, in 1396, Isabel, 2nd daughter of Charles VI. of France; deposed by Henry of Bolingbroke, 1399; murdered 14th Feb. 1400.

Large life-size, seated, in royal robes, diapered with a crowned R.; globe in r. hand, sceptre in l. Panel, 7 ft. \times 3 ft. 7 in.

This portrait used to hang in Westminster Abbey, above the Lord Chancellor's pew, on the south side of the choir, next to the pulpit; it was removed in 1775 to the Jerusalem Chamber, where it has hung ever since: it is supposed to represent the King in the coronation chair on the Feast of the Translation of King Edward the Confessor.

GEOFFREY CHAUCER.

BODLEIAN LIBRARY, OXFORD.

PAINTER.

Poet; b. in London; believed to have been partly educated at Cambridge; was in the service of King Edward III.; patronised by John of Gaunt; married Philippa Rouet, daughter of a Knight of Hainault; imprisoned on occasion of the persecution of the Lollards; d. 25th Oct. 1400; bu. in Westminster Abbey.

Three-quarter miniature, looking to r., white head-covering and dress; inscribed "Caucer, 1400." Panel, 1 ft. 2 in. \times 10½ in.

APPENDIX.

THE principle of exhibiting every portrait accepted, under the title and with the name of the painter given by the possessor, as fully stated at page 8 of the Introductory Notice, has been strictly adhered to in the compilation of the Catalogue. Whilst the following brief extracts of the opinions expressed by writers in the publications of the day may be interesting and useful; it is not intended in their selection to infringe in any way the principle adhered to in compiling the Catalogue, and it is obvious that, in these extracts, the writers alone are responsible for the opinions expressed.

No. 1. ROSAMOND CLIFFORD. "The picture of a female in a high standing ruff, and an indescribable head-dress of no period whatever, entitled 'Rosamond Clifford,' the celebrated 'Rosa Munda,' mistress of King Henry II, who lived in the twelfth century."—J. R. Planché, in the Builder, May 5th, 1866.

"Might as well have been called 'Helen of Greece.'"—The Pall Mall Gazette, April 16th, 1866.

No. 2. SIR WILLIAM WALLACE, Kt. "Looks like a Highland cattle-stealer, instead of a Lowland gentleman, and his tartan scarf is a ridiculous anachronism, and worse."—The Pall Mall Gazette, April 16th, 1866.

No. 3. EDWARD III. "Probably copied at the close of the fifteenth century from an illuminated manuscript."—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, May 5th, 1866.

No. 5. WILLIAM OF WYKEHAM, BISHOP OF WINCHESTER. "Has no pretensions to be a contemporary work; he died in 1404, and here is a crozier of metal work at least a hundred years after that period, with some imaginative flourishes besides, a mitre painted incorrectly, and jewels of the sixteenth century."—The Saturday Review, May 26th, 1866.

No. 6. JOHN WYCLIFFE. "Died 31st December, 1384. Very suspicious. The black cap looks just about one hundred years later. It is a copy of the picture in the Vicarage House, Wycliffe."—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, May 5th, 1866.

"Must be, Dr. Waagen believes, altogether spurious. The costume looks to be about 1500; and if it preserves a traditionary likeness, the painting is certainly later than that."—The Illustrated London News, April 21st, 1866.

Nos. 8 & 9. GEOFFREY CHAUCER. "In the two portraits of Chaucer we see reproductions of that which Occleve painted from memory (Harleian MSS., 4866), treated by different hands, of which those which produced No. 9 were by far the more skilful."—The Athenæum, April 14th, 1866.

No. 11. THOMAS ARUNDEL, OR FITZALAN, ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY. "The Archbishop died in the reign of Henry IV. This picture was painted in the reign of Henry VIII, and, like that of John of Gaunt, most probably designed from an effigy."—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, May 5th, 1866.

No. 12. JAMES, EARL OF DOUGLAS. "The Douglas of Chevy Chase, killed at Otterbourne, the 19th of August, 1388, is here seen with the collar of the order of St. Michael round his neck, instituted by Louis XI, of France, at Amboise, on the 1st of August, 1469. The whole costume is also of the latest portion of the fifteenth century."—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, May 5th, 1866.

"The Douglas of Chevy Chase is absurdly modern."—The Illustrated London News, April 21st, 1866.

No. 16. MARRIAGE OF HENRY VI. "Though this is nothing more than an example of the marriage of St. Joseph and the Blessed Virgin, termed by connoisseurs a Sposalizio, Walpole discovered in it the portraits of King Henry and His Queen, Margaret, Archbishop Kempe, Cardinal Beaufort, Humphrey, Duke of Gloucester, and others."—J. Gough Nichols, in The Builder, May 30th, 1866.

"The picture appears to us not English at all, but Flemish; the ceremony may be that of King Henry's marriage, but it must have been painted long after that event took place."—The Athenæum, April 14th, 1866.

"The subject it represents is the Betrothal of the Holy Virgin."—Dr. A. Woltmann, in The Fortnightly Review, Sept. 1866.

No. 18. SIR JOHN DONNE AND LADY DONNE.—Van Eyck or Hans Memling.—"It is painted by neither of the Van Eycks, but by Memling."—Dr. A. Woltmann, in The Fortnightly Review, Sept. 1st, 1866.

No. 23. RICHARD NEVILL, EARL OF WARWICK, K.G. "We have here the most ludicrous example of misappropriation I have almost ever met with. A portly old gentleman in the peascod-bellied doublet and bombasted hose of quite the end of the reign of Elizabeth, or beginning of that of James I. (say circa 1600), is presented to us as the famous King-maker, killed at the battle of Barnet, in 1471."—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, May 5th, 1866.

No. 25. GEORGE PLANTAGENET, DUKE OF CLARENCE, K.G. "Is a comparatively modern imitation, possibly of one of such originals as No. 4, by Cornelisz."—The Saturday Review, May 26th, 1866.

No. 26. ISABEL NEVILL, DUCHESS OF CLARENCE. "Isabel Nevill died after the birth of her second child, in 1476, a year previous to the murder of her husband. She never could have seen the costume in which she is here represented."—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, May 5th, 1866.

"It is in fact a duplicate of the portrait of Mary, Queen Dowager of France, and Duchess of Suffolk, the work of Johannes Corvus Flandrus, in 1532."—J. Gough Nichols, in Notes and Queries, April 21st, 1866.

No. 27. HUMPHREY PLANTAGENET, DUKE OF GLOUCESTER, AND JOHN KEMPE, ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY. "This, again, is merely a religious picture, originally representing the Adoration of the Three Kings, but from which the centre panel, that contained the Virgin and her child, happens to be lost. Walpole's 'Duke of Gloucester' is one of the three kings kneeling to the Holy Infant. * * * This also appears to be a Flemish painting, which was probably bought in the picture market of that day by Sir Robert Tate, and has, therefore, nothing else to do with English history but the shield of arms which he directed to be added, as a memorial of his offering."—J. Gough Nichols, in The Builder, May 30th. See also Notes and Queries, July 28th, 1866.

No. 33. JANE SHORE. "The picture was certainly not painted within half a century of the received date of the poor creature's death, and, therefore, if not misnamed, it must be a purely imaginative portrait by a painter of the seventeenth century."—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, May 5th, 1866.

"The portraits of Jane Shore are very doubtful; that lent by Her Majesty (No. 33) looks more authentic, but has no pretensions to beauty."—H. O'Neil, A.R.A., in The Gentleman's Magazine, Nov. 1866.

"A more pretentious portrait of her (No. 33) represents the 'baker's wife' as a comely dame, but unfortunately in a ruff of the later time of Queen Elizabeth, the period when the picture—by no means a bad one—was manufactured."—The Saturday Review, May 26th, 1866.

No. 42. THOMAS STANLEY, 1st EARL OF DERBY. "But, query, is this Sir Thomas Stanley, who turned the Battle of Bosworth Field into a victory for Henry VII.? He certainly never wore the costume he is painted in."—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, May 19th, 1866.

"Not only is the costume that of a later date, but the earl himself is the 'double' of a Duke of Somerset of Elizabeth's reign, who figures elsewhere in the collection (No. 386)."—The Cornhill Magazine, June, 1866.

No. 54. HENRY VIII. and FERDINAND OF ARRAGON.—Hans Holbein.—"This picture, which is not by Holbein, possesses, however, great merit, and the accessories are most carefully and beautifully delineated. Charles V. wears the collar of the Golden Fleece. His brother Ferdinand, a collar of jewels of the most elaborate description, but not of any particular order that I recognise."—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, May 19th, 1866.

"Not HENRY and FERDINAND, but the EMPEROR CHARLES V. and FRANCIS I. OF FRANCE."—George Scharf, in "List of the most note-worthy pictures," &c., July, 1866.

"It is evidently not by Holbein, and it represents, as evidently, Charles V. at about the age when he paid his first visit to this country in 1522, and his brother and successor Ferdinand of Austria."—The Times, April 19th, 1866.

"Represents two German princes, one of whom is Charles V. (born 1500), the other, probably his brother Ferdinand, who was three years younger, and made Vicar of the Empire in 1522, on which occasion this curious picture may have been painted."—The Athenæum, June 16th, 1866.

No. 58. THREE CHILDREN OF HENRY VII.—Jan de Mabuse.—"The catalogue in which this picture is positively stated to represent 'The three children of the King of Denmark,' was compiled in 1542 during the life of Christian, who died in 1559; and all the other descriptions of it, or the copies from it, are as late as the 18th century, and do not agree with each other."—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, May 19th, 1866.

Stated to be the children of King Christian of Denmark. See paper by Geo. Scharf, Archæologia, vol. xxxix.

No. 69. GEORGE, LORD STRANGE, and No. 70. THOMAS, 2nd EARL OF DERBY, K.G. "They are evidently not contemporary, and they even look as if they were imitations of each other."—The Pall Mall Gazette, April 16th, 1866.

No. 72. NICHOLAS KRATZER.—Hans Holbein.—"The original is in the Louvre."—Dr. A. Woltmann, in The Fortnightly Review, Sept. 1st, 1866.

No. 73. HANS HOLBEIN.—Hans Holbein.—"The picture from Hampton Court, which is said to be Holbein's likeness by himself, neither shows his features, nor is it painted by him. It bears the monogram H. B., A.D. 1539. Holbein never made use of this monogram."—Dr. A. Woltmann, in The Fortnightly Review, Sept. 1st, 1866.

No. 74. QUEEN KATHARINE OF ARRAGON.—Hans Holbein.—“An excellent half-length portrait is that of Lady Rich, the wife of the chancellor (No. 74 belonging to Mr. Moseley). The drawing of this portrait in the collection at Windsor Castle made it possible to determine the correct name of the likeness, which in the Catalogue is marked as the portrait of Queen Katharine of Arragon.”—Dr. A. Woltmann, in The Fortnightly Review, Sept. 1st, 1866.

“Mr. Moseley’s so-called Katharine of Arragon, a damaged picture of the person described as Lady Rich in the well-known series of Holbein’s crayon drawings discovered at Kensington Palace.”—The Times, April 19th, 1866.

No. 75. KING HENRY VIII.—Hans Holbein.—“The King’s portrait, from the collection of the Duke of Manchester, which is ascribed to Holbein, is only an old copy from the last picture” (No. 99).—Dr. A. Woltmann, in The Fortnightly Review, Sept. 1st, 1866.

No. 78. QUEEN KATHARINE OF ARRAGON.—Hans Holbein.—“There is a ‘Queen Katharine of Arragon,’ who is evidently only our friend Mrs. Margaret Roper, in queenly masquerade.”—The Pall Mall Gazette, April 16th, 1866.

“In No. 78, named by the owner Katharine of Arragon, we have, as may be seen by comparing it with this large picture (No. 163), a portrait of Margaret Roper, the eldest daughter of Sir Thos. More.”—The Illustrated London News, April 21st, 1866.

See also Dr. A. Woltmann in The Fortnightly Review, Sept. 1st, 1866.

No. 96. THOMAS LINACRE, M.D.—Hans Holbein or Quentin Matsys.—“Probably by Quentin Matsys, an admirably painted head, but certainly not Linacre’s, who died in 1524, whereas this person holds a letter dated 1527 in figures unmistakably contemporary with the picture.”—The Times, April 19th, 1866.

“A Flemish head by a good Flemish painter. It is mortifying to be obliged to admit that it does not represent the excellent scholar and worthy friend of Erasmus; he died in 1524, and the portrait is dated 1527.”—The Saturday Review, June 9th, 1866.

No. 97. QUEEN ANNE BOLEYN. “(Mrs. Greville Howard’s.) A head apparently of the time of Rubens.”—The Times, April 19th, 1866.

No. 100. SIR ANTHONY FITZHERBERT, KT. “The long hair, the fashion of beard and moustache, the broad falling bands, and the costume altogether, render it impossible for this picture to have been painted earlier than the time of Charles I.”—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, May 19th, 1866.

No. 101. SIR THOMAS BOLEYN, EARL OF WILTSHIRE AND ORMONDE, K.G.—Hans Holbein.—“It must be obvious from the armorial ensigns painted on this picture, that the portrait is that of some master or member of the company of merchant adventurers, and has no claim whatever to be considered a likeness of Sir Thomas Boleyn, K.G.”—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, May 19th, 1866.

“His portrait, by Holbein, differs greatly in an artistic point of view from his brass at Hever, in Kent, and yet the noble canvas declares that the engraver of the monumental plate was faithful according to his power.”—Charles Boutell, M.A., in The Gentleman’s Magazine, October, 1866.

No. 102. HENRY HOWARD, EARL OF SURREY.—Hans Holbein.—“One of these full-lengths with red habit and hose, is, however, not Surrey, and it is far too weak and poor to be, as Walpole thought, by ‘Holbein.’”—The Illustrated London News, April 21st, 1866.

No. 107. QUEEN ANNE BOLEYN.—Hans Holbein.—“The so-called portrait of Anne Boleyn, in the same chamber, is Anne of Hungary, sister-in-law of the Emperor Charles V.”—The Illustrated London News, April 21st, 1866.

No. 108. SIR RICHARD SOUTHWELL.—Hans Holbein.—“The original is in Florence.”—Dr. A. Woltmann, in The Fortnightly Review, Sept. 1st, 1866.

No. 114. QUEEN ANNE BOLEYN.—Hans Holbein.—“Not possessing the least character of the age, as regards either painting or costume.”—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, May 19th, 1866.

“There is nothing of his” (Holbein’s) “distinctive character in such a picture as the pretty girlish ‘Anne Boleyn.’”—The Pall Mall Gazette, April 16th, 1866.

No. 116. ANNE ASKEW, or ASCOUGH. “The costume in the portrait numbered 116, dates about the end of Elizabeth’s reign; it is therefore wrongly named ‘Anne Askew, the Protestant Martyr.’”—The Illustrated London News, June 30th, 1866.

No. 121. HENRY HOWARD, EARL OF SURREY.—Hans Holbein.—“It is dated 1546, three years after Holbein’s death. The traditional name attributing it to him is, therefore, incorrect. The conception, however, of the whole work and its method of execution, do not need this evidence of chronology; they are of a school wholly unlike that of Holbein. * * * Accordingly, it has been suggested that Girolamo da Trevigi was the painter; but he was killed by a cannon-shot at the siege of Boulogne, two years before the date of this portrait. * * * Guillim Stretes, a Fleming, has also been named as a possible artist.”—The Saturday Review, June 9th, 1866.

“The whole-length portrait of Howard, Earl of Surrey, (a very fine picture,) seems painted at a later period” (than No. 104), “and is more like the work of Sir A. More.”—H. O’Neil, A.R.A., in The Gentleman’s Magazine, November, 1866.

“The portrait of Surrey must have been painted by the best of the eminent Italian painters who are known to have visited the English Court about this period, and therefore not, as also supposed, by Guillim Stretes.”—The Illustrated London News, June 30th, 1866.

“The superb picture here from Knoke (No. 121), and absurdly ascribed to Holbein.”—The Athenæum, August 11th, 1866.

No. 124. HENRY VIII.—Hans Holbein.—“Representing him when a handsome young man—certainly much under forty—the age suggested in the catalogue, painted according to King Charles’ catalogue, by François Janet or Sotto Cleef.”—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, May 19th, 1866.

“This half-length is beautifully and delicately painted, and we should be inclined to give it to an Italian hand, influenced by Flemish practice. It may possibly be Toto’s or Penni’s work, clearly it is not Holbein’s; date and style concur to satisfy us on that point.”—The Times, April 19th, 1866.

“We have no doubt whatever that the splendid head, styled Henry VIII, from Hampton Court (124), is by the master. The age of the subject, which is not more than thirty-eight, brings us to about the year 1529, at which period Holbein entered the service of the King.”—The Athenæum, June 16th, 1866.

No. 129. SIR HENRY GUILDFORD.—Hans Holbein.—“There is another picture (No. 129) which passes for a portrait of Sir Henry Guildford painted by Holbein, which, however, neither represents the former nor is executed by the latter.”—Dr. A. Woltmann, in The Fortnightly Review, Sept. 1st, 1866.

No. 145. JAMES V. OF SCOTLAND. "Here we have him shown us 'as a child,' in the dress of the reign of Elizabeth, or James I. If any James, King of Scotland at all, it must be his grandson, James VI. and I. of England."—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, May 26th, 1866.

No. 148. CARDINAL THOMAS WOLSEY. "Unhappily the Cardinal Wolsey (148) sent from Wolsey's Foundation (Christ Church College, Oxford) is a repainted portrait, though the best we possess of the Cardinal Archbishop of York."—The Builder, April 21st, 1866.

No. 161. SIR JOHN THYNNE.—Hans Holbein.—"Signed 1566: Holbein died, 1543."—Dr. A. Woltmann, in The Fortnightly Review, Sept. 1st, 1866.

No. 162. SIR NICHOLAS CAREW, K.G.—F. Pourbus.—"This portrait as it is dated 1549, so the Catalogue says, cannot be the work of Francis Pourbus the elder, who was born in 1540, nor of Pourbus the younger, who was born in 1570; the inscription on the frame errs accordingly."—The Athenæum, April 14th, 1866.

No. 170. HENRY VIII. AND HIS FAMILY.—Hans Holbein.—"The portraits of the Princess Mary and her sister Elizabeth, are to be seen in the picture of 'Henry VIII. and his Family,' (No. 170) but their names have been transposed (on the frame)."—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, May 26th, 1866.

"Holbein is entirely innocent of this picture; which was painted after his time."—Dr. A. Woltmann, in The Fortnightly Review, Sept. 1st, 1866.

No. 176. EDWARD VI.—Hans Holbein.—"This picture is a very good copy, and, perhaps, I should have taken it for an original, had I not recently seen the true original in the Guelph Museum at Hanover."—Dr. A. Woltmann, in The Fortnightly Review, Sept. 1st, 1866.

No. 177. EDWARD VI.—Hans Holbein.—"There is a drawing of the Prince exactly resembling it among the Holbein drawings found at Kensington, though the style forbids our assigning this picture to him."—The Times, April 25th, 1866.

No. 183. LADY JANE GREY.—Lucas de Heere.—"I entertain no doubt that this was intended to represent Saint Mary Magdalene; which intention the painter considered he sufficiently implied by his symbol of the cup or box of spikenard, placed beside her."—J. Gough Nichols, in Notes and Queries, July 28th, 1866.

No. 192. EDWARD VI. PRESENTING CHARTERS.—Hans Holbein.—"The picture has always been called Holbein's, and the painter's portrait used even to be pointed out in the right background. These fond illusions must henceforth be abandoned. Holbein had been dead nine years in 1552, when the presentation took place."—The Times, April 25th, 1866.

"The picture which shows an act taking place nine years after Holbein's death, and which we think is painted even at a later period, is a very mediocre production."—Dr. A. Woltmann, in The Fortnightly Review, Sept. 1st, 1866.

No. 198. LADY ELEANOR BRANDON.—Lucas de Heere.—"It is certain that this cannot be the portrait of Eleanor Brandon, daughter of Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk, and niece of Henry VIII, who died in 1547; nor could Lucas de Heere, to whom the picture is attributed, have painted Eleanor Brandon, as he was born in 1534, and would, therefore, have been only thirteen at the date of her death."—J. R. Planché in The Builder, May 26th, 1866.

"A portrait pretended to represent Lady Eleanor Brandon, though dated nearly twenty years after her death, and attributed to Lucas de Heere, who would have been only thirteen, may be instanced as exemplifying in the arms, which, according to Mr. Planché, correspond to those of Lady Brandon when wife of her first husband, a not uncommon practice of subsequently painting armorial bearings, which has led to a great deal of hopeless mystification."—The Illustrated London News, June 30, 1866.

No. 203. WILLIAM POWLETT, FIRST MARQUIS OF WINCHESTER. "Sir William Powlett was born, we are told, in 1475, and not made Knight of the Garter till 1541, when he would be sixty-six. Now, the portrait is that of a man in the prime of manhood, certainly not more than forty."—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, May 26th, 1866.

No. 208. PRINCESS MARY TUDOR, AFTERWARDS QUEEN MARY.—Hans Holbein.—"We can hardly believe the portrait to be one of Mary at all."—The Times, April 25th, 1866.

"Is not by Holbein, and does not represent that lady. Dated on the back, as the catalogue says, '1544.' We know this must have been painted a year after Holbein's death."—The Athenæum, June 16th, 1866.

"The miniature of her when Princess, is assuredly not a portrait of Mary at all, though engraved as such in Lodge's series."—The Illustrated London News, June 30th, 1866.

No. 226. QUEEN ELIZABETH.—Nicholas Hilliard.—"No. 226, called Queen Elizabeth, is certainly a misnomer. At the time the costume in which this personage is represented was introduced, Elizabeth was an old ugly woman. We have here a good-looking lady, bearing no resemblance to Elizabeth, apparently under thirty."—J. R. Planché in The Builder, June 2nd, 1866.

No. 229. QUEEN ELIZABETH.—F. Zuccherro.—"The ascription of No. 229 (Queen Elizabeth) to Zuccherro, is ridiculous."—The Athenæum, June 16th, 1866.

No. 236. "MARGARET DOUGLAS, COUNTESS OF LENOX.—Hans Holbein.—"Painted 1572."—Dr. A. Woltmann, in The Fortnightly Review, Sept. 1st, 1866.

No. 247. QUEEN ELIZABETH.—Hans Holbein.—"No. 247, attributed to Holbein, was certainly not painted by him, as it is now proved that he died in 1543, six years before the date assigned to this portrait, and when Elizabeth was only ten years old."—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, May 26th, 1866.

No. 256. QUEEN ELIZABETH CARRIED IN STATE TO HUNSDON HOUSE, 18th Sept., 1571.—Mark Garrard.—"Instead of representing—as Vertue, in defiance of an earlier and well-grounded tradition, chose to conjecture—a royal visit to Hunsdon-house, Hertfordshire, in 1571, it relates to a marriage that took place at Blackfriars, some twenty-nine years later."—G. Scharf in Times, June 20th, 1866.

"I shall reserve for the Society of Antiquaries, to whom Vertue's large engraving of that picture belongs, the further details which confirm the subject to be the Marriage of Lord Herbert and Mistress Anne Russell, at Blackfriars, in the years 1600."—J. Gough Nichols, in The Builder, May 30th, 1866.

No. 263. WALTER DEVEREUX, FIRST EARL OF ESSEX.—Sir Antonio More.—"The portrait represents a man of about thirty; but as Essex was born 1540, and created Earl 1572, he could only have been about eighteen, when in all probability More left this country."—The Illustrated London News, June 30th, 1866.

"The Earl of Yarborough's Walter Devereux (263) first Earl of Essex, though a good picture, is not genuine."—The Builder, April 21st, 1866.

No. 275. SIR PHILIP SIDNEY.—F. Zuccherro.—"It is difficult to believe in the Marquis of Lothian's so-called picture of Sidney in armour."—The Times, May 1st, 1866.

No. 282. FRANCES WALSHINGHAM AS LADY SIDNEY. "What evidence is there that this portrait does represent Frances Walsingham, wife of Sir Philip Sidney, of the Earl of Essex, and subsequently of the Earl of Clanricarde? The very plain woman therein depicted could indeed hardly have been under twenty-two (she looks fifty-two); but I would fain learn whether the traditions of Penshurst furnish any other ground than the dates on this painting, for believing that Frances Walsingham was in truth born as early as 1550?"—Noell Radecliffe in Notes and Queries, August 18th, 1866.

No. 300. SIR PHILIP SIDNEY, KT.—Sir Antonio More.—"Mr. F. V. Wentworth's effective full-length, ascribed to More, but evidently by Mytens, which represents a young man in a costume of forty years after Sidney's death."—The Times, May 1st, 1866.

No. 302. AMBROSE DUDLEY, EARL OF WARWICK.—Hans Holbein.—"Who was born in 1530, and only thirteen years of age at the date when Holbein died, is represented as an old gentleman with grey hair."—Dr. A. Woltmann, in The Fortnightly Review, Sept. 1st, 1866.

No. 310. MARY STUART, QUEEN OF SCOTS. "It is equally evident to me that No. 310 does not represent Mary Queen of Scots. The sinister side of an escutcheon of arms is visible on the right of this picture, and displays, amongst others, the quarterings of Montacute and Monthermer, Bohun and Holland, Earl of Kent, which could not have been borne by Mary."—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, June 2nd, 1866.

No. 316. MARY STUART, QUEEN OF SCOTS. "Is more likely to be Anne of Denmark, wife of the said James, with her son, Henry, Prince of Wales. At all events, it has no pretensions to the name it bears, and it is a pity so genuine a painting of its age should be deprived of the interest which may really attach to it."—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, June 2, 1866.

No. 317. DAVID RIZZIO. "Of David Rizzio, the Piedmontese musician, there is an excellent portrait dated 1565."—The London Review, April 14th, 1866.

"Equally apocryphal," (as No. 326) "probably, is the so-called Rizzio (317), the costume of which is too late by many years."—The Times, May 1st, 1866.

No. 326. HENRY STUART, EARL OF DARNLEY. "This unfortunate husband of Mary, Queen of Scots, who was murdered on the 9th of February, 1567, at the age of twenty-one, is here stated to be portrayed 'as a boy,' in a costume of the time of Charles I!"—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, June 2nd, 1866.

"The so-called Darnley of the Earl of Home has no resemblance whatever to these (Nos. 322 and 323), and wears a dress of the time of Louis XIII."—The Times, May 1st, 1866.

No. 346. SIR FRANCIS DRAKE. "Of the Drakes one (346, Lord Houghton's) seems, as far as we can judge, a portrait of the time of the Commonwealth."—The Times, May 1st, 1866.

No. 373. ADMIRAL SIR JOHN WALLOP, K.G.—Hans Holbein.—"The ascription of Admiral Wallop to Holbein, is one of the most daring flights of fancy we know."—The Athenæum, June 30th, 1866.

No. 386. HENRY DE BEAUFORT, THIRD DUKE OF SOMERSET, K.G. "Was beheaded in 1463, after the battle of Hexham; and we have here a Knight of the Garter wearing the collar of his Order and George appendant, as first worn in the reign of Henry VIII, in a costume certainly as late as Philip and Mary."—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, June 2nd, 1866.

No. 430. WILLIAM HERBERT, 3rd EARL OF PEMBROKE. "Who died suddenly in the reign of Charles I. 10th April, 1630, in the fiftieth year of his age, is here represented just as old, if not older, in a dress of the reign of Queen Elizabeth, in fashion about the time he was born."—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, June 9th, 1866.

No. 499. JAMES HAY, EARL OF CARLISLE, K.G.—Vandyck.—"Said to have died in 1636 (see No. 538). The hair and general costume in this portrait are of the time of Charles II."—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, June 9th, 1866.

No. 525. SIR FRANCIS VERNEY.—Velasquez.—"He is depicted, according to the Catalogue, by Velasquez: a fine portrait of that school, but none of the great Spaniard's making."—The Athenæum, July 7th, 1866.

No. 541. SIR JOHN FINETT.—Cornelius Jansen.—"The so-called Sir J. Finett (541), which was amazingly attributed to Jansen, but is, doubtless, a Tintoretto, and very probably represents a Venetian gentleman, no Finett at all."—The Athenæum, August 11th, 1866.

No. 542. THOMAS WENTWORTH, EARL OF CLEVELAND.—Vandyck.—"Thomas Wentworth, Earl of Cleveland, is but a tolerable copy from Vandyke."—The Athenæum, July 14th, 1866.

No. 610. SIR JOHN ELIOT.—P. Van Somer.—"Not at all like the man one would fancy, said to be by Van Somer, but surely, not truly so."—The Athenæum, July 7th, 1866.

No. 619. LUCIUS CARY, 2nd VISCOUNT FALKLAND.—Vandyck.—"The fine and grave portrait of Lord Falkland, the property of Lord Arundell of Wardour, one of the best works here, has not a touch of Vandyke's hand."—The Athenæum, July 14th, 1866.

No. 624. EARL OF STRAFFORD, and his Secretary SIR PHILIP MAINWARING, KT.—Vandyck.—"If the portrait of the same and his Secretary Sir P. Mainwaring, was ever produced by Vandyke, it is the worst executed of his works known to us."—The Athenæum, June 23rd, 1866.

"The 'Strafford and his Secretary,' whether a copy or not, is a noble picture."—Fraser's Magazine, July, 1866.

No. 645. HENRY SPENCER, 1st EARL OF SUNDERLAND.—R. Walker.—"The first Earl of Sunderland was never a Walker."—The Athenæum, August 11th, 1866.

No. 663. SIR JOHN MINNES, KT.—Vandyck.—"A copy of this fine portrait is exhibited No. 782, as the Cromwellian leader Henry Ireton, but the misnomer is hinted at in the Catalogue. The veritable portrait of Ireton is surely that lent by Mr. Charles Polhill, No. 789."—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, June 9th, 1866.

No. 705. COLONEL THOMAS SANDERS.—R. Walker.—"Col. T. Sanders (No. 705) is not by that admirable painter R. Walker, but, we are inclined to think, by J. Sadler, and at a comparatively recent date, painted on and spoilt."—The Athenæum, August 11th, 1866.

No. 709. RICHARD GIBSON.—Cuyp.—"The ascription of Richard Gibson (No. 709) to Cuyp, is nearly equal in absurdity to that which told us Jansen painted Sir J. Finett (No. 541), or Vandyke the second Lord Falkland (No. 619)."—The Athenæum, August 11th, 1866.

No. 716. JAMES COMPTON, 3rd EARL OF NORTHAMPTON.—Vandyck.—"We believe Lady Delawarr's Earl of Northampton (No. 716) to be Sir Thomas Chicheley, and a Dobson spoilt."—The Athenæum, August 11th, 1866.

"The third Earl of Northampton is absurdly ascribed to Vandyke; it may have been a Dobson severely repainted."—The Athenæum, August 11th, 1866.

No. 746. WILLIAM SEYMOUR, MARQUIS OF HERTFORD, K.G. "Marquis of Hertford, belonging to the Duke of Beaufort, is but an indifferent copy from Vandyke."—The Athenæum, July, 1866.

Nos. 761 and 762. LADY and SIR GEORGE CHUTE.—Cornelius Jansen.—"Two capital portraits, but certainly not the work of Jansen as stated here, they suggest the work of Cleyne."—The Athenæum, August 11th, 1866.

No. 778. ADMIRAL SIR FRANCIS BASSET.—Vandyck.—"In Admiral Sir Francis Basset (No. 778) we have no Vandyke, despite the assertion of the Catalogue."—The Athenæum, August 11th, 1866.

No. 780. PHILIP SIDNEY LORD LISLE, ALGERNON and ROBERT SIDNEY.—Vandyck.—"Philip Sidney Lord Lisle, Algernon and Robert Sidney, three boys, if it ever had a touch of Vandyke's hand, has long ago lost it under a deluge of paint."—The Athenæum, August 18th, 1866.

No. 782. HENRY IRETON, LORD DEPUTY OF IRELAND.—William Dobson.—"It is worthy of note that this work" (No. 663 portrait of Sir John Minnes) "and the so-called portrait of Henry Ireton (No. 782), are undoubtedly representations of the same person, that is, of Sir John Minnes."—The Athenæum, July 14th, 1866.

No. 789. HENRY IRETON.—Robert Walker.—(See No. 663.)

No. 821. ELIZABETH CROMWELL, Mrs. CLAYPOLE.—Robert Walker.—"Mrs. Claypole's singularly pleasant face (No. 821) the work of some very clever miniaturist, not Walker."—The Athenæum, August 18th, 1866.

No. 897. JOHN GRAHAM, OF CLAVERHOUSE, VISCOUNT DUNDEE. "It is, however, a genuine portrait, but of a totally different person, viz.: John Scrimgeour, 3rd Viscount Dudhope, created Earl of Dundee in 1660."—George Vere Irving, in Notes and Queries, June 16th, 1866.

No. 902. MARY FAIRFAX, DUCHESS OF BUCKINGHAM.—Vandyck.—"This portrait of Mary Fairfax, Duchess of Buckingham (No. 902), is certainly by Lely."—The Athenæum, August 18th, 1866.

No. 906. THE "CABAL" MINISTRY.—Sir John B. Medina.—"It is in fact nothing more nor less than a composition of portraits of musicians—doubtless those attached to the Royal court—in their customary uniform dress. In the first case, if it were conceivable that this picture represents the 'Cabal,'—Clifford, Ashley, Buckingham, Arlington, and Lauderdale—it cannot possibly be the work of Sir J. Medina, who was but eleven years of age when that congress was formed, about 1670, and did not come to England until 1686."—The Athenæum, June 30th, 1866.

No. 963. JUDGE MORTON.—Vandyck.—"There is a fine portrait of another judge in his robes, which is most outrageously ascribed to Vandyke. It is that of Morton, who was made a Justice of the King's Bench in 1665, while his supposed painter died in 1641."—Fraser's Magazine, July, 1866.

No. 992. REV. JOHN FLAMSTEED, F.R.S.—R. Gibson.—"There is here a good portrait of Flamsteed, the astronomer, an engraving of which has been made to do duty for Bloomfield, the historian of Norfolk, as none existed of him, and he was reported to have been very like Flamsteed."—J. R. Planché, in The Builder, June 9th, 1866.
