PREFACE.

These pages do not pretend to be more than the jotting down of a few notes on some of the diseases of the Rectum and Anus. They are written, primarily, for the use of the Members of the Society of Medical Phonographers, in the hope that they may help to improve their knowledge of Shorthand, and perhaps, here and there, present old matters in a new light. To Dr. Spooner, as Editor, the Society and I owe our thanks for his excellent work.

W. THOMSON.

Handwritten text in Arabic script, consisting of approximately 20 lines of cursive script. The text is enclosed in a rectangular border. The script is dense and appears to be a medical or scientific treatise related to the page header. The characters are fluid and connected, typical of classical Arabic calligraphy. There are some small marks and symbols interspersed within the lines of text, possibly indicating specific points or measurements. The overall appearance is that of a manuscript page from an old book.
