PREFACE.

IN the preface to the Dictionary of Classical Quotations it was stated that a volume of quotations from European sources was in progress, and would shortly be published. As the work progressed, however, the mass of material was found to be too great to include in one volume ; it was therefore decided to issue first the present volume, containing quotations from French and Italian sources only, to be followed in due course by a further volume from German, Spanish and other sources.

Qui n'aime livre ne ne croit."

PIERRE DE ST. CLOUD. Roman du Renart, line 39.

"He justly earns inglorious death
Who hath in books nor love nor faith."

"(L'on dit bien qu') à grand peine
Vit-on jamais femme belle Qui aussi ne fust rebelle."

RABELAIS. Pantagruel, II., 21.

"'Tis well said that
Fair woman ne'er we see
Who'll brook authority."

"A l'amour on résiste en vain :
Qui n'aima jamais aimera demain."

DE BENSERADE. L'Amour. (Ed. 1690, p. 234.)

"In vain we strive against love's sway,
Who ne'er has loved will love one day."

"A l'amour satisfait tout son charme est ôté."

THOMAS CORNEILLE. Le Festin de Pierre, Act I., Sc. II.
—(Don Juan.)

"Love that is satisfied no longer charms."

"A l'œuvre on connaît l'artisan."

LA FONTAINE. Fables, I., 21.—"Les Frelons et les Mouches à miel."

VOLTAIRE. Le Triumvirat, Act I., Sc. I.—(Fulvie.)

“ Ye gods ! what masters set ye o'er the world ! ”

“ A quoy me sert la vie en butte à la fortune ?

Il vaut mieux, il vaut mieux en arrester le cours,
Et mourir une fois que mourir tous les jours.”

RACAN. Les Bergeries, Act II., Sc. V.—(Alcidor.)

“ What worth is life, when I am fortune's butt ?

'Tis better, better far its course to stay,
And die once only, than die every day.”

“ A soixante ans on ne doit pas remettre
L'instant heureux qui promet un plaisir.”

DÉSAUGIERS. Le Dîner de Madelon, Sc. II.—(Benoît.)

“ At sixty years 'tis foolish to postpone
The happy hour that promises a pleasure.”

“ If you'd cope with a rogue be a rogue and a half.”

“ A vaincre sans péril, on triomphe sans gloire.”
PIERRE CORNEILLE. Le Cid, Act II., Sc. II.—(Le Comte.)

“ Et vaincre sans péril serait vaincre sans gloire.”
GEORGES DE SCUDÉRY. Arminius, Act I., Sc. III.
—(Germanicus.)

“ Who without danger triumphs earns no fame.”

“ A vaincre tant de fois mes forces s'affoiblissent :
L'état est florissant, mais les peuples gémissent :
Leurs membres décharnés courbent sous mes hauts faits,
Et la gloire du trône accable les sujets.”
PIERRE CORNEILLE. La Toison d'Or, Prologue.—(La France.)

“ By dint of victories all my strength is flown :
Though the state flourishes, the people groan :
Their fleshless limbs beneath my exploits bow,
And the throne's glory lays the subject low.”

“ (Tacite, qui) abrégéait tout parce qu'il voyait tout.”
MONTESQUIEU. De l'Esprit des Lois, XXX., 2.

“ Tacitus abridged everything, because he saw everything.”

“ Accordez-vous si votre affaire est bonne ;
Si votre cause est mauvaise, plaidez.”
J. B. ROUSSEAU. Epigrammes, II., 19.

“ If you've a good case, try to compromise ;
If you've a bad one, take it into court.”

“ Adieu, charmant pays de France
Que je dois tant chérir !
Berceau de mon heureux enfance,
Adieu ! te quitter c'est mourir.”
BÉRANGER. Adieu de Marie Stuart.

“ Farewell, farewell, sweet land of France,
Enshrined in my heart !
Home of my childhood's happy hours,
Farewell ! 'tis death from thee to part.”

“ Adieu, paniers, vendanges sont faictes.”

RABELAIS. Gargantua, I., 27.

“ A Dieu, pagnier, vendanges sont faictes.”

MONTLUC. La Comédie de Proverbes, Act III., Sc. III.
—(Florinde.)

Que fait un empereur ! ”

VICTOR HUGO. Hernani, Act IV., Sc. II.—(Don Carlos.)

“ Covet an empire, and behold the dust
An emperor makes.”

“ Ah ! crocodile, qui flatte les gens pour les étrangler.”

MOLIÈRE. Georges Dandin, Act III., Sc. VIII.
—(Georges Dandin.)

“ You crocodile ! you flatter people in order to strangle them.”

“ Ah ! frappe-toi le cœur, c'est là qu'est le génie.”

DE MUSSET. A Mon Ami Edouard B. (Premières Poésies, p. 220.)

“ Knock at thy heart, 'tis there that genius dwells.”

“ Ah ! il n'y a plus d'enfants.”

MOLIÈRE. Le Malade Imaginaire, Act II., Sc. XI.—(Argan.)

“ There are no children any more.”

“ Ah ! le peuple ! océan ! onde sans cesse émue,
Où l'on ne jette rien sans que tout ne remue !
Vague qui broie un trône et qui berce un tombeau !
Miroir où rarement un roi se voit en beau ! ”

VICTOR HUGO. Hernani, Act IV., Sc. II.—(Don Carlos.)

“ The people ! ocean ! wave that never sleeps,
Where nought ye throw but stirs its lowest deeps !
Billow that rocks a tomb and shakes a throne !
Glass that reflects a king's worst self alone ! ”

“ Ah ! n'insultez jamais la femme qui tombe,
Qui sait sous quel fardeau la pauvre âme succombe ? ”

VICTOR HUGO. Chants du Crépuscule, XIV.

“ Mock not the fallen woman ; who can tell
Beneath what heavy load the poor soul fell ? ”

“ Ah ! pour être dévot, je n'en suis pas moins homme.”

MOLIÈRE. Tartuffe, Act III., Sc. III.—(Tartuffe.)

“ Although devout, I'm none the less a man.”

“ Ah ! qu'un grand nom est un bien dangereux :

Un sort caché fut toujours plus heureux.”

GRESSET. Vert-Vert, Chant II.

“ Ah ! what a dangerous gift is a great name !

How happier far a lot unknown to fame ! ”

“ Ah ! que j'ai de dépit que la loi n'autorise

A changer de mari comme on fait de chemise.”

MOLIÈRE. Sganarelle, Act I., Sc. V.—(La Femme de Sganarelle.)

“ 'Tis most annoying that the law should frown

If we change husbands as we change a gown.”

“ Ah ! que plutôt l'injure échappe à ma vengeance,

Qu'un si rare bienfait à ma reconnaissance.”

RACINE. Esther, Act II., Sc. III.—(Assuérus.)

“ Sooner the injury go unavenged

Than so rare favour should be unrequited.”

“ Ah ! que sous de beaux noms cette gloire est cruelle !

Combien mes tristes yeux la trouveraient plus belle,

S'il ne fallait encore qu'affronter le trépas ! ”

RACINE. Bérénice, Act II., Sc. II.—(Titus.)

“ Glory, thou'rt cruel, though in fair disguise ;

How fairer far thou'dst seem to my sad eyes,

If it were death alone that I must meet ! ”

“ Ah ! qui sert son pays sert souvent un ingrat.”

VOLTAIRE. Rome Sauvée, Act I., Sc. VI.—(Caton.)

“ Who serves his country oft an ingrate serves.”

“ Ah ! si l'on ôtait les chimères aux hommes, quel plaisir leur resterait ? ”

FONTENELLE. Dialogues des Morts, Modernes, III.

—(Elizabeth d'Angleterre.)

“ Ah ! if men were robbed of their chimæras, what pleasure would be left to them ? ”

“ Le pays des chimères est en ce monde le seul digne d'être habité.”

J. J. ROUSSEAU. La Nouvelle Héloïse, Part IV.,
Lettre VIII.

“ The land of chimæras is, in this world, the only land worth living in.”

“ Ce qu'il y a de plus beau dans la vie, c'est les illusions de la vie.”

HONORÉ DE BALZAC. Physiologie du Mariage,
Méditation IV. (p. 65).

“ The finest things on earth are life's illusions.”

“ Ah ! si vous opposiez au glaive des Français
Le plus beau bouclier, l’amour de vos sujets.”

VOLTAIRE. Don Pèdre, Act III., Sc. II.—(Léonore.)

“ If ’gainst the Frenchman’s sword thy might thou’dst prove, Oppose that fairest shield, thy subjects’ love.”

“ Ah ! si vous saviez comme on pleure
De vivre seul et sans foyers,
Quelquefois devant ma demeure
Vous passeriez.”

SULLY-PRUDHOMME. Les Vaines Tendresses. Prière.

“ Ah ! did you know how sad my lot
To live alone without a friend,
Some day perhaps before my cot
Your steps you’d bend.”

“ Aime la vérité mais pardonne à l’erreur.”

VOLTAIRE. Deuxième Discours sur l’Homme.

“ Aimez qu’on vous conseille, et non pas qu’on vous loue.”

BOILEAU. L’Art Poétique, I., 192.

“ Seek to be counselled, seek not to be praised.”

“ Ainsi que la vertu, le crime a ses degrés ;
Et jamais on n’a vu la timide innocence
Passer subitement à l’extrême licence.”

RACINE. Phèdre, Act IV., Sc. II.—(Hippolyte.)

“ Like unto virtue crime hath its degrees ;
And ne’er one seeth shrinking innocence
Leap at a bound to licence unrestrained.”

“ Ainsi que le héros brille par ses exploits,
La grandeur des bienfaits doit signaler les rois.”

CRÉBILLON. Electre, Act II., Sc. IV.—(Egisthe.)

“ As all the world the hero’s exploits sings,
So should good deeds the glory be of kings.”

“ Alfana vient d’equus sans doute,
Mais il faut avouer aussi
Qu’en venant de là jusqu’ici
Il a bien changé en route.”

DE CAILLY. Epigrammes. Sur l’étymologie du mot italien

“ Alfana,” que M. Ménage faisait venir du mot latin “ Equus ”.

“ Alfana no doubt comes from equus,
But I think you’ll agree when I say,
That in making that somewhat long journey
It has changed very much on the way.”

“ Allez faire blanchir votre linge noirci ! ”

SCARRON. Don Japhet d’Arménie, Act II., Sc. I.—(Marine.)

“ Go send your dirty linen to the wash ! ”

"Allons, saute, Marquis!"

REGNARD. Le Joueur, Act V., Sc. IV.—(Le Marquis.)

"Come, skip, Marquis!"

"Amer sanz paine rien ne vault."

ANON. Un Miracle de Nostre Dame, de l'Empereris de Romme.
1839, p. 375.)

"Worthless the love that knows not pain."

"Ami de la vertu plutôt que vertueux." BOILEAU. Epître X., 92.

"Not so much virtuous, as a friend of virtue."

"Amis, de mauvais vers ne chargez pas ma tombe!"

PASSERAT. Epitaphe.

"Friends, burden not my tomb with feeble verse!"

"Amis, plus souvent qu'on ne croit,
La tache est tout juste à l'endroit
Où l'on voit briller la paillette."

ARNAULT. Fables, III., 7.—"Les Taches et les Paillettes."

"Friends, oftener than you think, upon the spot Where gleams the spangle, you will find the blot."

"Amitié que les rois, ces illustres ingrats,
Sont assez malheureux pour ne connaître pas."

VOLTAIRE. La Henriade, Chant VIII.

"Friendship that kings, of gratitude devoid, Unhappy that they are, have ne'er enjoyed."

"Amour à la plus belle!
Honneur au plus vaillant!"

DE LABORDE. *Le Beau Dunois.*¹

"Here's to the fairest, love!
And to the bravest, fame!"

"Amour! amour! quand tu nous tiens,
On peut bien dire: Adieu, prudence!"

LA FONTAINE. Fables, IV., 1.—"Le Lion Amoureux."

"Love! love! when we are in thy thralls,
We well may say: Prudence, farewell!"

"Amour, dont les amants savent seuls le mystère, Tu fais plus: ton regard met leur ciel sur la terre."

LAMARTINE. Jocelyn. Quatrième Epoque, 16 Mars, 1795.

"Oh! Love, whose mystery only lovers know,
Thy glance brings down their heaven to earth below."

"Amour est un enfant sans prudence et sans yeux.
Trop d'avis et d'esgard sied mal à sa jeunesse."

DESPORTES. Cléonice, LXXIII.

"Love is a child that lacks both sense and sight.
Keen wit, keen vision ill befit his youth."

"Amour et les fleurs ne durent qu'un printemps."

RONSARD. Sonnets pour Hélène, Livre I., 44 (Vol. I., p. 305).

"Love, like the flowers, endureth but a spring."

¹ Set to music by Hortense Beauharnais, Queen of Holland.

“Amour! tous les autres plaisirs
Ne valent pas tes peines.”

CHARLEVAL. Poésies. (Ed. St. Marc, p. 133.)

“Love! all the pleasures in the world Cannot outweigh thy pains.”

“Apollon travesti devint un Tabarin.”

BOILEAU. L'Art Poétique, I., 68.

“Apollo when disguised is a buffoon.”

“Apprenez, enfin, qu'un gentilhomme qui vit mal est un monstre dans la nature; que la vertu est le premier titre de noblesse; que je regarde bien moins au nom qu'on signe, qu'aux actions qu'on fait, et que je ferais plus d'état du fils d'un crocheteur qui serait honnête homme, que du fils d'un monarque qui vivrait comme vous.”

MOLIÈRE. Le Festin de Pierre, Act IV., Sc. VI.

—(Don Louis.)

“Learn, then, that a gentleman who lives an evil life is a monster of nature; that virtue is nobility's highest distinction; that I look far less at the name a man signs than at the line of conduct he pursues, and should have more consideration for the son of a porter who was an honest man than for the son of a monarch who lived as you do.”

“Apprens qu'il n'est rien
Qui ne doive céder aux soins d'avoir du bien;
Que l'or donne aux plus laids certain charme pour plaire,
Et que sans lui le reste est une triste affaire.”

MOLIÈRE. Sganarelle, Act I., Sc. I.—(Gorgibus.)

“There is nought, I say,
But to our care for riches should give way;
Wealth on the ugliest doth some charm bestow;
All else without it makes a sorry show.”

“Après l'heur on sent le malheur
Après la joye la douleur,
Et la pluye après le beau temps.”

JODELLE. L'Eugène, Act III., Sc. II.—(Messire Jean.)

“After fortune comes mischance,
After gladness follows sorrow;
Fine to-day, 'twill rain to-morrow.”

“Après nous le déluge.”

MME. DE POMPADOUR. (Desprez, Essai sur la Marquise de Pompadour, prefacing the Mémoires of Mme. du Hausset, p. xix.)

“After us the deluge.”

“Après tout, ne dédaignons pas trop la gloire; rien n'est plus beau qu'elle, si ce n'est la vertu.”

CHATEAUBRIAND. L'Itinéraire de Paris à Jérusalem, Part I. (Vol. II., p. 239.)

“After all, let us not think too slightly of glory; there is nothing nobler unless it be virtue.”

"Argent fait avoir bénéfices,
Et fait des drois venir les tors
Et des tors les drois au retors."

FROISSART. Le Dit dou Florin, line 56.

"Money ever brings us gain,
Money from the right brings wrong,
And from the wrong brings right again."

"Aristote là-dessus dit — de fort belles choses."

MOLIÈRE. Le Médecin malgré lui, Act II., Sc. VI.—(Sganarelle.)

"Aristotle, on that subject, says — some excellent things."

"Armes jamais au besoin ne faillirent, quand bon cœur est associé de bon bras."

RABELAIS. Pantagruel, V., 36.

"Arms never failed man in his need, when a good heart was allied with a strong arm."

"Arrière ceux dont la bouche Souffle le chaud et le froid!"

LA FONTAINE. Fables, V., 7.—"Le Satyre et le Passant."

"Avaunt, all ye whose mouth
Can blow both hot and cold!"

"Assommer un garde-champêtre, ce n'est pas assommer un homme! — c'est écraser un principe."

SARDOU. Rabagas, Act II., Sc. IV.—(Rabagas.)

"Knocking over a gamekeeper is not knocking over a man—it is crushing a principle."

"Au banquet de la vie, infortuné convive,

J'apparus un jour, et je meurs:

Je meurs, et sur ma tombe, où lentement j'arrive,

Nul ne viendra verser des pleurs."

GILBERT. Ode IX.

"Life's banquet one short day I grace,
A luckless guest: now death is near,
And toward my tomb I slowly pace
Where none shall come to drop a tear."

"Au demourant, le meilleur filz du monde."

CLÉMENT MAROT. Epîtres, XXIX. Au Roy pour avoir esté desrobbé. (Vol. I., p. 195.)

RABELAIS. Pantagruel, II., 16.

"For all that, the best boy in the world."

"Au moment où l'artiste pense à l'argent, il perd le sentiment du beau."

DIDEROT. Pensées Détachées sur la Peinture.—"De la Beauté."

"The moment an artist thinks about money, he loses his feeling for the beautiful."

"Au terme où je suis parvenu,
Quel mortel est le moins à plaindre?
C'est celui qui sait ne rien craindre,
Qui vit et qui meurt inconnu."

VOLTAIRE. Adieux à la vie.—A Paris, 1778.

"Of men who reach my tale of years
Who least has cause to make his moan?
He who has learnt to banish fears,
Who lives and dies unknown."

“ Au travers des périls un grand cœur se fait jour.
Que ne peut l'amitié, conduite par l'amour ! ”

RACINE. Andromaque, Act III., Sc. I.—(Pylade.)

“ Great hearts shall find a way, though danger lower.
When love doth lead, boundless is friendship's power.”

“ Aucun chemin de fleurs ne conduit à la gloire.”

LA FONTAINE. Fables, X., 14.—“ Les deux Aventuriers et le Talisman.”

“ No flowers strew the path that leads to fame.”

“ Aucun n'est prophète chez soi.”

LA FONTAINE. Fables, VIII., 26.—“ Démocrite et les Abdéritains.”

“ No man is a prophet in his own country.”

“ Aujourd'hui, ce qui ne vaut pas la peine d'être dit, on le chante.”

BEAUMARCHAIS. Le Barbier de Séville, Act I., Sc. II.—(Figaro.)

“ Nowadays, whatever is not worth saying is sung.”

“ Aujourd'hui est à nous, mais demain
Est à Dieu.”

DE MUSSET. Les Marrons du Feu, Sc. VI.—(Camargo.)

“ To-day is ours, but to-morrow God's.”

“ Aujourd'hui nous prenons un livre bien plus pour la façon que pour l'étoffe.”

HONORÉ DE BALZAC. Physiologie du Mariage, Introduction (p. 13).

“ Nowadays we are attracted to a book much more by the style than by the material.”

“ Aujourd'hui on travaille pour vivre, et les arts deviennent des métiers.”

DE MUSSET. André del Sarto, Act I., Sc. IV.—(Lionel.)

“ Nowadays we work for a livelihood, and the arts have become trades.”

“ (Car) ausine bien sunt amoretes
Sous buriaus comme sous brunetes.”

JEAN DE MEUNG. Le Roman de la Rose, line 4569.

“ For full as oft is Cupid's wound
'Neath fustian as 'neath velvet found.”

“ Aussitôt qu'un sujet s'est rendu trop puissant,
Encore qu'il soit sans crime, il n'est pas innocent :
On n'attend point alors qu'il s'ose tout permettre ;
C'est un crime d'état que d'en pouvoir commettre.”

PIERRE CORNEILLE. Nicomède, Act II., Sc. I.—(Araspe.)

“ A subject, if perchance too high he climb,
Is no more innocent, though free from crime :
Till he shall dare to act no king will wait ;
His very power 's a crime against the state.”

" Aussitôt que la Parque
Ote l'âme du corps
L'âge s'évanouit en deça de la barque,
Et ne suit point les morts."

F. DE MALHERBE. Consolation à M. du Périer sur la Mort de sa Fille.

" Soon as the body, by Death's hand,
From soul is severed,
Age vanishes upon the hither strand
And follows not the dead."

" Autant vaut l'homme comme il s'estime."

RABELAIS. Pantagruel, II., 29.

" A man's value is that which he sets upon himself."

" Aux âmes bien nées
La valeur n'attend pas le nombre des années."

PIERRE CORNEILLE. Le Cid, Act II., Sc. II.—(Don Rodrigue.)

" To noble souls
Worth hangeth not upon the tale of years."

" Aux grands périls tel a pu se soustraire,
Qui périt pour la moindre affaire."

LA FONTAINE. Fables, II., 9.—"Le Lion et le Moucheron."

" Who through the bloodiest battles safe has passed,
In some small skirmish oft is killed at last."

" Aux plus savants auteurs comme aux plus grands guerriers, Apollon ne promet qu'un nom et des lauriers."

BOILEAU. L'Art Poétique, IV., 177.

" To the most learned author, to the warrior of renown, Nought promises Apollo save a name and laurel crown."

Qui fait son mal des sottises d'autrui.”

VOLTAIRE. La Prude, Act IV., Sc. V.—(Mme. Burlet.)

“ He 's a fool who sees
In others' follies his own miseries.”

“ C'est un grand défaut
Que de s'embarrasser des sottises des autres.”

NÉRICAULT-DESTOUCHES. Le Dissipateur, Act III., Sc. II.
—(Finette.)

“ To make a burden for oneself
Of others' follies is a huge mistake.”

“ Bienheureux Scudéri, dont la fertile plume
Peut tous les mois sans peine enfanter un volume.”

BOILEAU. Satires, II., 77.

“ Thrice happy Scudéri, whose fruitful quill Brings forth each month with ease another volume still.”

“ Boire sans soif et faire l'amour à tout temps, madame ; il n'y a que ça qui nous distingue des autres bêtes.”

BEAUMARCHAIS. Le Mariage de Figaro, Act II., Sc. XXI.

“ We drink without being thirsty, and make love at any moment ; that is the only distinction between us and the other animals.”

“ Bon sang ne peut mentir.”

LESAGE. Gil Blas, X., 1.

“ Good blood cannot lie.”

“ Bonne ou mauvaise santé
Fait notre philosophie.”

CHAULIEU. Sur la première attaque de goutte.

“ Good health or bad makes our philosophy.”

“ Borné dans sa nature, infini dans ses vœux,
L'homme est un Dieu tombé qui se souvient des cieux.”

LAMARTINE. Méditations Poétiques, II.—“ L'Homme.”

“ In nature limited, unfettered in desire,
Men are but fallen gods, that still to Heaven aspire.”

“ Boutons serrez, roses ouvertes,
Se passent trop légèrement ;
Mais du rosier les feuilles vertes
Durent beaucoup plus longuement.”

CLÉMENT MAROT. Epigrammes, CCXIV.

“ Closéd bud, or rose full blown,
All too soon thy beauty's flown ;
But the rose-tree's leaves of green
Longer on their stalk are seen.”

“Brebis comptés, le loup les mange.”

HONORÉ DE BALZAC. Les Chouans, p. 61.

“If you count your sheep, the wolf will eat them.”

“ (L'on dit bien vrai que) brebis galeux le loup le mange.”

J. J. ROUSSEAU. Lettre à Madame de Worms, 31 Août, 1733.

“It is a true saying that a mangy sheep the wolf will eat.”

“Brebis sont la plupart des personnes :

Qu'il en passe un, il en passera cent ;

Tant sur les gens est l'exemple puissant.”

LA FONTAINE. Contes et Nouvelles.—“L'Abbesse Malade.”

“Folks as a rule are very much like sheep :

Where one has passed a hundred pass along,

The power of example is so strong.”

“ (Entre tous les héros qui, présents à nos yeux,
Provoquaient la douleur et la reconnaissance,
Brutus et Cassius) brillaient par leur absence.”

JOSEPH CHÉNIER. Tibère, Act I., Sc. I.—(Cnéius.)

“'Mongst all the great who, as we on them gaze,

Cause gratitude with sorrow to combine,

Brutus and Cassius by their absence shine.”

“Brûler la chandelle par les deux bouts.”

LESAGE. Gil Blas, VII., 15.

“To burn the candle at both ends.”

“Brutal pour qui fait résistance,
Honnête à ceux qui sont soumis ;
Servir le roi, servir les Dames,
Voilà l'esprit du Régiment.”

FAVART. Tambour Battant.

“Brutal to those who still resist,
Kindly to those who fight no more,
Slaves of the king, the ladies' slaves,
That is the temper of our corps.”

“C'est à mes défauts que je dois mes vertus.”

LA FARE. Odes, II.—“Sur la Paresse.”

“'Tis to my faults that I my virtues owe.”

“C'est aimer froidement que n'être point jaloux.”

MOLIÈRE. Les Fâcheux, Act II., Sc. IV.—(Climène.)

“'Tis a cold love that feels no jealousy.”

“C'est ainsi qu'un amant dont l'amour est extrême,
Aime jusqu'aux défauts des personnes qu'il aime.”

MOLIÈRE. Le Misanthrope, Act II., Sc. V.—(Eliante.)

“Thus lovers who endure the fiercest flame,
Love e'en the faults of those whose hearts they claim.”

“ C'est après la victoire, un peuple qui se venge.
Le siècle en a menti ; jamais l'homme ne change :
Toujours ou victime ou bourreau.”

LAMARTINE. Contre la Peine de Mort.

“ The victory gained, the people vengeance claim.
The age has lied ; mankind is aye the same :
Victim or headsman ever.”

“ C'est avoir bien peu d'esprit que de trouver des réponses à ce qui n'en a point.”

FONTENELLE. La Pluralité des Mondes, Cinquième Soir.

“ It shows a great lack of intelligence to find answers to questions which are unanswerable.”

“ C'est aux rois, c'est aux grands, c'est aux esprits bien faits
A voir la vertu pleine en ses moindres effets ;
C'est d'eux seuls qu'on reçoit la véritable gloire,
Eux seuls des vrais héros assurent la mémoire.”

PIERRE CORNEILLE. Horace, Act V., Sc. III.—(Le Vieil Horace.)

“ The king, the noble, the well-balanced mind
True virtue, e'en when least displayed, can find ;
They only can unquestioned glory give,
Through them alone doth the true hero live.”

“ C'est ce petit rimeur, de tant de prix enflé,
Qui sifflé pour ses vers, pour sa prose sifflé,
Tout meurtri des faux pas de sa muse tragique
Tomba, de chute en chute, au trône académique.”

GILBERT. Satire II. (Ed. 1823, p. 66.)

“ This rhymester small, puffed up with many a prize,
Hissed for his prose, hissed for his poesies
(So oft his tragic muse has tripped and stumbled),
Into the academic chair has tumbled.”

“ C'est dans les grands malheurs que paroist le courage.”

GUÉRIN DE BOUSCAL. Don Quixot, Act I., Sc. I.—(Don Lope.)

“ In great misfortunes 'tis that valour 's shown.”

REGNARD. Le Légataire, Act IV., Sc. I.—(Eraste.)

“ 'Tis in great perils that great valour 's shown.”

“ C'est dans l'adversité qu'un grand courage brille.”

NÉRICAULT DESTOUCHES. L'Ambitieux, Act V., Sc. II.
—(Don Fernand.)

“ 'Tis in adversity great courage shines.”

“ Le moment du péril est celui du courage.”

LA HARPE. Coriolan, Act I., Sc. I.—(Coriolan.)

“ The hour of danger is the hour of courage.”

" C'est de luy que nous vient cet art ingénieux
De peindre la parole et de parler aux yeux,
Et par les traits divers des figures tracées
Donner de la couleur et du corps aux pensées."

BRÉBEUF. La Pharsale de Lucain, Livre III.

" In him we first th' ingenious art descry
Of painting speech, and speaking to the eye ;
With figures, each of diverse feature wrought,
He first gave form and colour to our thought."

" C'est de tout temps que le peuple a cette coustume, de haïr en autrui les mesmes qualitez qu'il y admire. Tout ce qui est hors de sa règle l'offense."

VOITURE. Lettre I. A M. de Balzac. (Ed. Roux, p. 83.)

" From all time it has been the custom of the people to hate the very qualities which compel their admiration. Everything which transcends their own rule of life offends them."

" (Car) c'est double plaisir de tromper le trompeur."

LA FONTAINE. Fables, II., 15.—" Le Coq et le Renard."

" For 'tis double delight to deceive the deceiver."

" C'est du Nord aujourd'hui que nous vient la lumière."

VOLTAIRE. Épître XCVII.—A l'Impératrice de Russie.

" 'Tis from the North to-day that comes our light."

" C'est elle, Dieu que je suis aise !
Oui, c'est la bonne édition ;
Voilà bien, pages douze et seize,
Les deux fautes d'impression
Qui ne sont pas dans la mauvaise."

PONS DE VERDUN. Contes et Poésies. (Ed. 1807, p. 9.)

" That 's it ! I've really lucky been !
The good edition, I'll be bound !
Yes, look ! page twelve and page sixteen,
The two misprints are to be seen
Which are not in the bad one found."

" Les belles pages ! comme elles sont noires et moisies par le temps ! Je défierais toute l'université d'en déchiffrer une lettre !"

SCRIBE. Le Savant, Act I., Sc. II.—(Reynolds.)

" The lovely pages ! how black they are and mildewed with age !
I defy the whole university to decipher a single word !"

" C'est en vain qu'au Parnasse un téméraire auteur
Pense de l'art des vers atteindre la hauteur :
S'il ne sent point du ciel l'influence secrète,
Si son astre en naissant ne l'a formé poète,
Dans son génie étroit il est toujours captif ;
Pour lui Phébus est sourd, et Pégase est rétif."

BOILEAU. L'Art Poétique, I., 1.

" The daring author who Parnassus' height would climb,
In vain shall hope to learn the art of verse sublime :
If upon him from Heaven no secret influence came,
If at his birth his star lit no poetic flame,
Within the narrow limits of his genius stayed,
For him is Phœbus deaf and Pegasus a jade."

“ C'est faire justement comme le chien du jardinier.”

MOLIÈRE. La Princesse d'Elide, Act IV., Sc. VI.—(Moron.)

“ You are playing the part of the gardener's dog.”

“ C'est fort peu de chose
Qu'un demy-dieu, quand il est mort.”

VOITURE. Épître à M. le Prince, sur son retour d'Allemagne.
(Ed. Roux, p. 571.)

“ Once he is dead
A demigod's of very small account.”

“ C'est l'époux, non l'hymen, qui plaît ou qui déplaît, Quand on hait le mari, le mariage est laid.”

IMBERT. Le Jaloux sans Amour, Act II., Sc. V.—(Le Chevalier.)

“ The spouse, not marriage, brings content or strife;
Your husband hate, you'll hate your married life.”

“ C'est l'étoffe de la nature, que l'imagination a brodée.”

VOLTAIRE. Dictionnaire Philosophique, Art. “ Amour ”.
(Vol. VII., p. 199.)

“ Love is Nature's material embroidered by imagination.”

“ C'est l'imperfection de la nature qui est l'origine de l'art.”

VAUVENARGUES. Réflexions sur Divers Sujets, XII.—“ Ne point sortir de son caractère.”

“ It is the imperfection of nature which is the origin of art.”

“ C'est l'insuffisance de notre être qui fait naître l'amitié, et c'est l'insuffisance de l'amitié même qui la fait périr.”

VAUVENARGUES. L'Esprit Humain, Livre I., § 35.

“ It is the insufficiency of our being which gives birth to friendship, and the insufficiency of friendship itself which is its death-warrant.”

“ C'est l'opinion qui perd les batailles, et c'est l'opinion qui les gagne.”

JOSEPH DE MAISTRE. Soirées de St. Pétersbourg, Septième Entretien.

“ It is opinion that loses battles, and it is opinion that wins them.”

“ C'est la force et le droit qui règlent toutes choses dans le monde ; la force en attendant le droit.”

JOUBERT. Pensées, Maximes et Essais, Titre XV., 2.

“ C'est la paix que je veux, il n'importe à quel prix.”

VOLTAIRE. Les Pélopidès, Act II., Sc. II.—(Hippodamie.)

“ It is peace I demand, be the price what it may.”

“ Les partisans de la paix à tout prix.”

CHATEAUBRIAND. Discours sur l'Emprunt de Cent Millions,
Chambre des Députés, 25 Février, 1823.

“ The partisans of peace at any price.”

"C'est la plus grande de toutes les foiblesses que de craindre trop de paroître foible."

(Vol. X., p. 355.)

"The greatest of all weaknesses is the excessive dread of appearing weak."

"C'est la profonde ignorance qui inspire le ton dogmatique."

LA BRUYÈRE. Caractères, De la Société, LXXVI.

"It is profound ignorance that inspires the dogmatic tone."

"C'est la source des combats des philosophes, dont les uns ont pris à tâche d'élever l'homme en découvrant ses grandeurs, et les autres de l'abaisser en représentant ses misères."

PASCAL. Pensées, Part II., Art. I., 5.

"We have here the origin of the disputes of the philosophers, whereof one party has set itself the task of elevating humanity by exhibiting its greatness, the other that of degrading it by exposing its pettiness."

"C'est le bonheur de vivre Qui fait la gloire de mourir." VICTOR HUGO. Le Dévouement.

"'Tis the delight in life
That makes it glorious to die."

"C'est le Coq Gaulois qui réveille le monde."

VICTOR HUGO. Ode à la Colonne de la Place Vendôme.

"The Gallic Cock it is that wakes the world."

"C'est magnifique, mais ce n'est pas la guerre."

GENERAL BOSQUET. (On the Charge of the Light Brigade at Balaclava.)

"It is magnificent, but it is not war."

"C'est notre père Tournemine, Qui croit tout ce qu'il imagine."

ANON. Quoted by Voltaire, Lettre à M. Duclos, 7 Juin, 1762.
(Vol. X., p. 545.)

"'Tis Father Tournemine, in sooth,
Who always takes his dreams for truth."

"C'est par la gloire que les peuples libres sont menés à l'esclavage."

CHATEAUBRIAND. Opinion sur la loi de recrutement, Chambre des Pairs, 2 Mars, 1818.

"It is through glory that free peoples are led into slavery."

"C'est peu d'être agréable et charmant dans un livre ;
Il faut savoir encore et converser et vivre."

BOILEAU. L'Art Poétique, IV., 123.

"Be bright and charming in a book, yet few will heed ;
Knowledge of life and intercourse is what we need."

"C'est pire qu'un crime, c'est une faute."

Generally attributed to FOUCHÉ, but really said by BOULAY DE LA MEURTHE. (Vide Sainte-Beuve, M. de Talleyrand, Chap. II., Ed. 1870, p. 79.)

"It is worse than a crime, it is a blunder."

"C'est pour les malheureux un homme de ressource :
Il leur prête sa plume et leur ferme sa bourse."

C. G. ÉTIENNE. Les Deux Gendres, Act I., Sc. I.—(Comtois.)

"He 's most useful to those to whom fortune 's perverse :
He lends them his pen, though he shuts up his purse."

"C'est pourtant une chose bien commode que les livres ! On y trouve de l'esprit tout fait."

C. G. ÉTIENNE. Le Chaudronnier Homme d'Etat, Act III., Sc. II.
—(Boudard.)

"What convenient things books are ! You find your wit in them all ready made."

"C'est souvent du hasard que naît l'opinion ;
Et c'est l'opinion qui fait toujours la vogue."

LA FONTAINE. Fables, VII., 15.—" Les Devineresses."

"Opinion often is the child of chance ;
And 'tis opinion always sets the fashion."

"C'est toujours accord ou querelle :
(O misérable que je suis !)

Je ne saurais vivre avec elle,

Et sans elle aussi je ne puis."

JEAN DESMARETS. Stances.

"First we make up, and than we fight :
(A miserable wretch am I !)
To live with her 's beyond me quite,
And yet without her I should die."

"C'est toujours un autre cœur qui nous fait sentir le nôtre."

SAURIN. Les Mœurs du Temps, Sc. II.—(Cidalise.)

"It is always another's heart that makes us feel our own."

"C'est trop contre un mari d'être coquette et dévote ; une femme de-vrait opter. LA BRUYÈRE. Caractères, Les Femmes, XLI.

"It is too severe on a husband for a woman to be given both to flirtation and devotion ; she should make her choice."

"C'est un brave à trois poils."

MOLIÈRE. Les Précieuses Ridicules, Act I., Sc. XII.—(Mascarille.)

"He is a hero of the first water."

"C'est un étrange rétrécissement de l'esprit que d'aimer une science pour haïr toutes les autres."

VOLTAIRE. Lettres en vers et en prose, LXI.—" A M. Formont."

"It shows a curious narrowness of mind to love one science, only to hate all the others."

"C'est un foible roseau que la prospérité."

D'ANCHÈRES. Tyr et Sidon, Act V.—(Phulter.)

"Prosperity is but a feeble reed."

"C'est un grand signe de médiocrité de louer toujours modérément."

VAUVENARGUES. Réflexions et Maximes, XII.

"It is a great sign of mediocrity to vouchsafe moderate approval to everything."

" C'est un homme d'honneur, de piété profonde, Et qui veut rendre à Dieu ce qu'il a pris au monde."

BOILEAU. Satires, IX., 163.

" A man of honour he, of piety unshaken,
Who would give back to God what he from man has taken."

" (Mais) c'est un jeune fou qui se croit tout permis, Et qui pour un bon mot, va perdre vingt amis."

BOILEAU. Satires, IX., 22.

" Young fool, who thinks that all he does is right,
And for one quip a score of friends will spite! "

" C'est une dangereuse épargne D'amasser trésor de regrets."

CHARLES D'ORLÉANS. Rondel CLXXV.

" A dangerous parsimony 'tis
To store up treasure of regrets."

" C'est une erreur de penser que le sang soit nécessaire à la conservation de la vie ; on ne peut trop saigner un malade."

LESAGE. Gil Blas, II., 2.—(Doctor Sangrado.)

" It is quite a mistake to suppose that the blood is necessary for the preservation of life ; a patient cannot be bled too much."

" C'est une étrange chose de vous autres Messieurs les poètes, que vous condamniez toujours les pièces où tout le monde court, et ne disiez jamais du bien que de celles où personne ne va."

MOLIÈRE. Critique de l'Ecole des Femmes, Sc. VII.—(Uranie.)

" It is a curious characteristic of you poetical gentlemen, that you always condemn the plays which are drawing full houses, and never have a good word but for those which no one goes to see."

" (Et) c'est une folie à nulle autre seconde
De vouloir se mêler de corriger le monde."

MOLIÈRE. Le Misanthrope, Act I., Sc. I.—(Philinte.)

" He 's the most foolish of all foolish wights,
Who goes to work to set the world to rights."

" C'est une grande déformité de la nature qu'un vieillard amoureux."

LA BRUYÈRE. Caractères, De l'Homme, CXI.

" An old man in love is a monstrosity of nature."

" C'est une grande folie de vouloir être sage tout seul."

LA ROCHEFOUCAULD. Maximes, 231.

" It is the height of folly to wish to be wise by oneself."

" C'est une grande habileté que de savoir cacher son habileté."

LA ROCHEFOUCAULD. Maximes, 245.

" It is a great talent to be able to conceal one's talents."

" C'est une nécessité absolue pour l'homme de génie de sacrifier à la sottise."

CHATEAUBRIAND. Révolutions Anciennes, Livre I., Part. II.,
Chap. IX.

" It is an absolute necessity for the man of genius to sacrifice to folly."

"C'est une occasion qu'il faut prendre vite aux cheveux."

"This happiness is mine, for I bestowed it."

"Ce corps malade."

MONTESQUIEU. Lettres Persanes, XIX.—(Of the Ottoman Empire.)

"This sickly body."

"Ce courage brillant, qu'en vous on voit paraître, Sera maître de tout quand vous en serez maître."

VOLTAIRE. Adélaïde du Guesclin, Act II., Sc. I.—(De Coucy.)

"This brilliant courage that in you we see
Will master all if you its master be."

"Ce docteur est si expéditif, qu'il ne donne pas le temps à ses malades d'appeler des notaires."

LESAGE. Gil Blas, II., 2.

"The doctor is so expeditious that he does not even give his patients time to send for their solicitor."

"Ce fer au pied du trône en vain m'a su conduire ;
C'est encor peu de vaincre, il faut savoir séduire,
Flatter l'hydre du peuple, au frein l'accoutumer,
Et pousser l'art enfin jusqu'à m'en faire aimer."

VOLTAIRE. Méropé, Act I., Sc. IV.—(Polyphonte.)

"To the throne's steps all vainly with this sword a path I made ;
It little boots to vanquish ; I must claim seduction's aid,
Flatter the hydra-headed, make them docile to the rein,
And every art employ that I may their affection gain."

"(Mais encor) ce grand tout, ce grand tout que tu vois, Qui ne sait où tomber, tombera quelquefois."

JEAN BERTAUT. Sur le Trépas de M. de Ronsard.
(Ed. 1891, p. 124.)

"Yet this great all that heaven and earth display,
Which hath not where to fall, shall fall one day."

“Ce monde-ci n'est qu'une œuvre comique
Où chacun fait ses rôles différens.”

J. B. ROUSSEAU. Epigrammes, Livre I., 18.

“This world is but a comedy
Where each one plays a different rôle.”

“Ce n'est pas ce qui est criminel qui coûte le plus à dire, c'est ce qui est ridicule et honteux.”

J. J. ROUSSEAU. Les Confessions, Part. I., Bk. I.

“It is not what is criminal that is the hardest to confess, but what is ridiculous and shameful.”

“Ce n'est pas la rareté de l'argent, mais celle des hommes et des talents, qui rend un empire faible.”

VOLTAIRE. Charles XII., Livre I. (Vol. V., p. 220.)

“It is not the scarcity of money, but the scarcity of men and talents which makes a state weak.”

“Ce n'est pas sur leurs mœurs que je veux qu'on en cause,
Un vice, un déshonneur, font assez peu de chose ;
Tout cela dans le monde est oublié bientôt ;
Un ridicule reste, et c'est ce qu'il leur faut.”

GRESSET. Le Méchant, Act II., Sc. III.—(Cléon.)

“Not of their morals would I have men chatter ;
A vice or a disgrace is no great matter ;
All this is by the world forgotten quick ;
Throw ridicule upon them, that will stick.”

“Ce n'est point par effort qu'on aime,
L'amour est jaloux de ses droits ;
Il ne dépend que de lui-même,
On ne l'obtient que par son choix.
Tout reconnaît sa loi suprême :
Lui seul ne connaît point les lois.”

J. B. ROUSSEAU. Cantates, VII.—“Circé.”

“Love does not come by our endeavour ;
He aye to waive his rights refuses ;
Of others independent ever,
He only visits where he chooses.
All men his law supreme obey :
Him only does no law dismay.”

“Ce n'est rien,
C'est une femme qui se noye.”

LA FONTAINE. Fables, III., 16.—“La Femme Noyée.”

“'Tis nought,
'Tis but a woman who has drowned herself.”

“Ce pendant que le fer est chault, il le fault battre.”

“Strike while the iron 's hot.”

“(Et que) ce qu'on diffère est à demi rompu.”

PIERRE CORNEILLE. Polyeucte, Act I., Sc. I.—(Néarque.)

“Postponed is half abandoned.”

"Ce qu'on donne aux méchants, toujours on le regrette :
Pour tirer d'eux ce qu'on leur prête,
Il faut que l'on vienne aux coups ;
Il faut plaider, il faut combattre.
Laissez leur prendre un pied chez vous,
Ils en auront bientôt pris quatre."

LA FONTAINE. Fables, II., 7.—"La Lice et sa Compagne."

"Gifts to the wicked aye are cause of sorrow :
Try to get back the sums they borrow,
They'll go for you with tooth and claw ;
You have to fight, or go to law.
Give them one foot inside your door
And soon you'll find they've taken four."

"Ce qu'on nomme libéralité, n'est le plus souvent que la vanité de donner, que nous aimons mieux que ce que nous donnons."

LA ROCHEFOUCAULD. Maximes, 263.

 Not e'en a member of th' Academy."

¹ This epigram is often quoted " Eglé, belle et poète," etc.

“Cicéron, qui d'un traître a puni l'insolence,
Ne sert la liberté que par son éloquence :
Hardi dans le sénat, faible dans le danger,
Fait pour haranguer Rome, et non pour la venger.”

VOLTAIRE. La Mort de César, Act II., Sc. IV.—(Brutus.)

“Tully, who hath chastised a traitor's insolence,
Serveth not liberty but by his eloquence :
Bold in the senate house ; feeble when danger shows ;
Made to harangue Rome, not to lead her 'gainst her foes.”

“Cil due vassals, ki tant cunquistrent,
Tant orent terres, è tant pristrent ;
Emprès la mort, de lor enor,
N'ont cescuns fors sa lunguor.”

Chap. XXXI. (Vol. IV., p. 249.)

“How all things change among men ! How what was false becomes true with the flight of time !”

“(Mais), comme c'est le sort qui nous donne une femme,
Je dis que l'on doit faire ainsi qu'au jeu de dés,
Où, s'il ne vous vient pas ce que vous demandez,
Il faut jouer d'adresse, et, d'une âme réduite,
Corriger le hasard par la bonne conduite.”

MOLIÈRE. Ecole des Femmes, Act IV., Sc. VIII.—(Chrysalde.)

“But since 'tis chance that doth our wives bestow,
Methinks we should a hint from dicing take,
Where, if the throw you want you cannot make,
You use your skill, and, with a chastened mind,
Correct, by careful conduct, fate unkind.”

Rien n'est si beau que d'aimer.”

MOLIÈRE. La Princesse d'Elide, Prologue, Sc. I.—(L'Aurore.)

“ At the age when one may still be loved,
There 's nothing better than to love.”

“ Dans l'art dangereux de rimer et d'écrire,
Il n'est point de degrés du médiocre au pire.”

BOILEAU. L'Art Poétique, IV., 31.

“ In rhyming and in writing, art accurst,
There are no steps 'twixt passable and worst.”

“ Dans la bouche d'une femme non n'est que le frère aîné de oui.”

VICTOR HUGO. Lucrèce Borgia, Act III., Sc. I.—(Gubetia.)

“ In the mouth of a woman 'No' is only the elder brother of 'Yes'.”

“ Dans la corruption le luxe prend racine ;
Du luxe l'intérêt tire son origine ;
De l'intérêt provient la dureté du cœur.”

FABRE D'EGLANTINE. Le Philinte de Molière, Act I., Sc. IV.—
(Eliante.)

“ 'Tis in corruption luxury takes root ;
Self-interest is of luxury the fruit,
And the hard heart doth from self-interest spring.”

“ Dans la grange tout semble paille ; le bon grain est mêlé et caché dedans.”

BOSSUET. Pensées Chrétiennes et Morales, XXIX. (Vol. IV.,
p. 788.)

“ In the barn all seems straw ; the good grain is mixed with it and hidden under it.”

“ Dans la naissance des sociétés ce sont les chefs des républiques qui font l'institution ; et c'est ensuite l'institution qui forme les chefs des républiques.”

MONTESQUIEU. Grandeur et Décadence des Romains, Chap. I.

“ In the infancy of societies it is the chiefs of the state who shape its institutions, and later it is the institutions that form the chiefs of the state.”

“ Dans la voix du mourant c'est Dieu que l'on écoute.”

LAMARTINE. Jocelyn, Cinquième Epoque, 6 Août, 1795, au soir.

“ In the voice of the dying 'tis God that we hear.”

“ Dans le monde il n'est rien de beau que l'équité :
Sans elle la valeur, la force, la bonté,
Et toutes les vertus dont s'éblouit la terre,
Ne sont que faux brillants, et que morceaux de verre.”

BOILEAU. Satires, XI., 71.

“ Save justice there is nothing fair on earth :
Without her, kindness and strength and worth
And all things else which men as virtues class,
Are but false diamonds and bits of glass.”

" Dans le royaume des aveugles les borgnes sont rois."

J. J. ROUSSEAU. Les Confessions, Part I., Book V.

Sc. IX.—(Damon.)

" In virtuous hearts love is of duty born."

" Dans les espaces immenses de l'erreur, la vérité n'est qu'un point.
Qui l'a saisi, ce point unique ? "

MARMONTEL. Bélisaire, Chap. XV. (Ed. 1819, Vol. VII., p. 165.)

" In the immeasurable realms of error truth is but a point. Who has seized this single point ? "

" Dans les grandes actions il faut uniquement songer à bien faire, et laisser venir la gloire après la vertu."

BOSSUET. Oraison Funèbre de Louis de Bourbon.
(Vol V., p. 355.)

" In all great actions we should think solely of doing right, and let glory follow after virtue."

LA ROCHEFOUCAULD. Maximes, 471.

“ In her first passion woman loves her lover,
In all the others all she loves is love.”

—(Byron, Don Juan, III., 3.)

“ Dans un petit couvent, loin de toute pratique,
Je la fis élever selon ma politique ;
C'est-à-dire, ordonnant quels soins on emploiroit
Pour la rendre idiote autant qu'il se pourroit.”

MOLIÈRE. L'Ecole des Femmes, Act I., Sc. I.—(Arnolphe.)

“ In a small convent, far from haunts of man,
She was brought up according to my plan ;
That is, I showed them what their course should be
To make her stupid to the last degree.”

“ Dans un poète il y a, je crois, une jolie femme de la pire espèce.”

HONORÉ DE BALZAC. Illusions perdues, Vol. III., p. 144.

—Chascun le dit à la vollée—
Pour ung plaisir mille doulours.”

VILLON. Le Grant Testament, st. LIV., line 622.

“ With hound and hawk, in love and fight,
—From lip to lip the dictum flies,—
A thousand griefs for each delight.”

MONTAIGNE. Essais, III., 9. (P. 241.)

“ To conclude, from capacity in a private station, a certain capacity for public life, is to draw a wrong conclusion.”

“ De jeune hermite viell diable.” RABELAIS. Pantagruel, IV., 64.

“ A young monk makes an old devil.”

“ (Pour les vaincre il nous faut) de l'audace, encore de l'audace, toujours de l'audace, et la France est sauvée.”

DANTON. Discours dans l'Assemblée Législative, 2 Septembre, 1792.

“ To overcome them we need audacity, and again audacity and always audacity, and France will be saved.”

“ De l'homme qui doute à celui qui renie, il n'y a guère de distance.”

DE MUSSET. Confession d'un Enfant du Siècle, IV., 6. (P. 249.)

“ From the man who doubts to the man who denies there is only a step.”

"De la panse vient la danse et où faim règne force exule."

RABELAIS. Gargantua, I., 32.

"After the dinner comes the dance, and where hunger reigns vigour is banished."

"(Mais) de tous les plaisirs, le plaisir le plus doux C'est de se voir loué de ceux que chacun loue."

LA FONTAINE. Madrigaux, III.

"The sweetest of all joys that can befall
Is praise from one that earneth praise from all."

"De toutes choses ne m'est demeuré que l'honneur et la vie qui est saulve."

“ Of Japhet's sons one half will e'er be found Arming the other half.”

“ Des états la sombre origine,
Les progrès, l'éclat, la ruine
Repassent encore sous nos yeux ;
Et, présents à tout, nous y sommes ¹
Contemporains de tous les hommes,
Et citoyens de tous les lieux.”

HOUDART DE LA MOTTE. Ode à Messieurs de l'Académie Française.

“ The birth obscure of every nation,
Its progress, glory, degradation
Before our eyes thou dost unfold,
And, recking nought of time, we stand
Coeval with the great of old,
And citizens of every land.”

“ Des grandes amitiés naissent les grandes inimitiés ; des santés vigoureuses les mortelles maladies.”

CHARRON. Sur la Sagesse, Livre I., Chap. XIV.

“ From firm friendships spring strong antipathies ; from vigorous health incurable diseases.”

“ Des jugements d'autrui nous tremblons follement ;
Et chacun l'un de l'autre adorant les caprices,
Nous cherchons hors de nous nos vertus et nos vices.”

BOILEAU. Épître III., 28.

“ Of others' judgments we betray unreasoning fear ;
And each of other worshipping the fond devices,
We seek outside ourselves our virtues and our vices.”

“ Dès le premier rayon du soleil qui nous luit,
Nous courons au trépas, et la Parque nous suit.”

HARDY. Panthée, Act V., Sc. II.—(Cirus.)

“ Since the first ray of sunlight on us shone, Fate following, towards death we hurry on.”

“ Tous tes pas sont faux pas, tu ne fais pas de pas
Que ces pas, pas à pas, ne mènent au trépas.”

BRÉBEUF. Vers Retournés. (Ed. 1658, p. 137.)

“ All thy steps are false steps, not a step dost thou take
But these steps, step by step, do thy death nearer make.”

CHATEAUBRIAND. Pensées, Réflexions et Maximes.

“ It is good to prostrate oneself in the dust when one has committed a fault, but it is not good to remain there.”

“ Il est bon quelquefois de s'aveugler soi-même,
Et bien souvent l'erreur est un bonheur suprême.”

NÉRICAULT-DESTOUCHES. Le Glorieux, Act II., Sc. IV.
—(Lisette.)

“ 'Tis sometimes good that we should bind our eyes ;
Oft highest happiness in error lies.”

“ Il est de faux dévots, ainsi que de faux braves ;
Et comme on ne voit pas qu'où l'honneur les conduit
Les vrais braves soient ceux qui font beaucoup de bruit,
Les bons et vrais dévots, qu'on doit suivre à la trace,
Ne sont pas ceux aussi qui font tant de grimace.”

MOLIÈRE. Tartuffe, Act I., Sc. VI.—(Cléante.)

“ There is sham courage and sham piety,
And as 'tis certain that, where honour leads,
True heroes are not those who vaunt their deeds,
So, too, the truly pious, whom we own
Our models, by no sour looks are known.”

“ Il est des circonstances où, si vous prêtez votre argent, vous vous faites un ennemi secret ; refusez-le, vous avez un ennemi ouvert.”

VOLTAIRE. Fragmens Historiques, Art. XIV. (Vol. V., p. 1083.)

“ There are circumstances in which, if you lend your money, you make a secret enemy, and, if you refuse it, an open one.”

vivre.” J. J. ROUSSEAU. Les Confessions, Part II., Livre IX.

“ It is too difficult to have noble thoughts when we only think in order to live.”

“ Il était un roi d'Yvetot,
Peu connu dans l'histoire,
Se levant tard, se couchant tôt,
Dormant très bien sans gloire,
Et couronné par Jeanneton
D'un simple bonnet de coton.”

BÉRANGER. Le Roi d'Yvetot.

“ In Yvetot there reigned a king
But little known in story,
Who always thought his bed the thing,
And slept well without glory,
Crowned by Jeannette, ere going to bed,
With cotton nightcap on his head.”

“ (C'était une de ses maximes qu'il fallait craindre les ennemis de loin, pour ne les plus craindre de près, et se réjouir à leur approche.”

BOSSUET. Oraison Funèbre de Louis de Bourbon. (Vol. V., p. 338.)

“ It was one of his maxims that one must fear one's enemies from afar, so as not to fear them when near, and to rejoice at their approach.”

“ Il faut commencer par connaître pour apprendre à juger.”

“ Il faut des hochets pour tout âge.”

FONTENELLE. Lettre à Voltaire, Septembre, 1720.

“ Every age wants its playthings.”

“ Il faut des raisons pour parler, mais il n'en faut point pour se taire.”

NICOLE. De la Paix avec les Hommes, Part II., Chap. I.

“ We must have reasons for speech, but we need none for silence.”

“ Il faut distinguer entre parler pour tromper, et se taire pour être impénétrable.”

VOLTAIRE. Essai sur les Mœurs et l'Esprit des Nations, Chap.

CLXIII. (Vol. IV., p. 765.)

“ We must distinguish between speaking with intent to deceive, and keeping silence with intent to be inscrutable.”

“ Il faut donc toujours partir d'une vérité pour enseigner une erreur.”

JOSEPH DE MAISTRE. Eclaircissement sur les Sacrifices, Livre II.

“ It is always necessary to start from a truth in order to teach an error.”

“ Il faut donner, donner, donner.”

FRANÇOIS COPPÉE. Poésies Diverses. Aux Femmes de Lyon.

“ You must give, give, give.”

“ Il faut du haut et du bas dans la vie; et les difficultés qui se mêlent aux choses réveillent les ardeurs, augmentent les plaisirs.”

MOLIÈRE. Les Fourberies de Scapin, Act III., Sc. I.—(Scapin.)

“ We want ups and downs in life; and the difficulties we encounter in the course of it arouse our energies and augment our pleasures.”

“ Il faut être bien héros pour l'être aux yeux de son valet de chambre.”

MARÉCHAL DE CATINAT. (Pierre Coste, footnote to Montaigne's Essais, III., 2, p. 25.)

“ A man must be indeed a hero, to appear so to his valet.”

“ Peu d'hommes ont esté admirez par leurs domestiques.”

MONTAIGNE. Essais, III., 2. (P. 25.)

“ Few men have won the admiration of their servants.”

“ Je vous renvoie à ce que disoit Mme. Cornuel, qu'il n'y avoit point de héros pour les valets de chambre, et point de pères de l'église parmi ses contemporains.”

MME. CORNUEL. (Mademoiselle Aissé, Lettres, XII., 13 Août, 1728.)

“ I refer you to the saying of Mme. Cornuel that no man is a hero to his valet, and no one a father of the Church among his contemporaries.”

“ Il faut être juste avant d'être généreux, comme on a des chemises avant d'avoir des dentelles.”

CHAMFORT. Maximes et Pensées, Chap. II. (Vol. I., p. 369.)

“ We must be just before we are generous, just as we have shirts before having ruffles.”

“ Il faut être sévère pour être juste.”

J. J. ROUSSEAU. De l'Economie Politique.

“ It is necessary to be severe in order to be just.”

“ Il faut gouverner la fortune comme la santé : en jouir quand elle est bonne, prendre patience quand elle est mauvaise, et ne faire jamais de grands remèdes sans un extrême besoin.”

LA ROCHEFOUCAULD. Maximes, 392.

“ We must treat fortune as we do health : enjoy it when it is good, be patient when it is bad, and never have recourse to violent remedies except in extreme cases.”

“ Il faut glisser sur bien des pensées, et ne pas faire semblant de les voir.”

MME. DE SÉVIGNÉ. Lettre 160, à Mme. de Grignan,
12 Juillet, 1671.

“ We must glide over many of our thoughts, and make as though we did not perceive them.”

“ Il faut jouir des plaisirs présents, sans intéresser les voluptés à venir.”

ST. EVREMOND. Sur les Plaisirs. (Ed. Amsterdam, 1739.
Vol. I., p. 148.)

“ We should enjoy the pleasures of the present without compromising the joys of the future.”

“ Il faut laver son linge sale en famille.”

NAPOLÉON. (Balzac, Eugénie Grandet, p. 184.)

“ We ought to wash our dirty linen in private.”

“ Il faut manger pour vivre, et non pas vivre pour manger.”

MOLIÈRE. L'Avare, Act III., Sc. V.—(Valère.)

“ We should eat to live, and not live to eat.”

“ Il faut, néanmoins, se défier des maximes générales, parce qu'il y a peu de vérités générales.”

NICOLE. Le Procès Injuste. Premier Ecrit, II.

“ We must nevertheless beware of general maxims, because there are but few general truths.”

“ Il faut parler aux rois avec des paroles de soye.”

CARDINAL RICHELIEU. Testament Politique, Part I., Chap. VIII.,
Sec. V.

“ We must speak to kings with silken words.”

“ Il faut penser, sans quoi l'homme devient,
Malgré son âme, un vrai cheval de somme :
Il faut aimer, c'est ce qui nous soutient ;
Sans rien aimer il est triste d'être homme.”

VOLTAIRE. Stances, XIV. Impromptu fait à un souper dans une cour d'Allemagne.

“ A man must think, else he becomes straightway,
Despite his soul, a very beast of burden :
A man must love, there lies our only stay ;
If we love not, life has for man no guerdon.”

“ Il faut permettre aux hommes de faire de grandes fautes contre eux-mêmes, pour éviter un plus grand mal, la servitude.”

VAUVENARGUES. Réflexions et Maximes, 162.

“ Men must be allowed to commit great crimes against themselves, in order to avoid a still greater evil, servitude.”

“ Il faut pleurer les hommes à leur naissance, et non pas à leur mort.”

MONTESQUIEU. Lettres Persanes, XL.

“ We should weep for men at their birth, not at their death.”

“ Il faut prandre le temps si comme il est.”

EUSTACHE DESCHAMPS. Balades de Moralitez, LIV.

“ We must take the times as they are.”

“ Il faut prier sur une tombe,
Il faut veiller sur un berceau.”

VICTOR HUGO. Naissance du Duc de Bordeaux, IV.

“ We must pray before a grave,
We must watch before a cradle.”

“ Il faut qu'il ait tué bien des gens, pour s'être fait si riche.”

MOLIÈRE. Le Malade Imaginaire, Act I., Sc. V.—(Toinette.)

“ He must have killed a number of people, to have got so rich.”

“ Il faut qu'il y ait de tout dans le monde.”

CHAMFORT. Maximes et Pensées, Chap. I. (Ed. 1824, Vol. I., p. 345.)

“ It takes all sorts to make a world.”

“ Il faut que cet homme-là soit un grand ignorant, car il répond à tout ce qu'on lui demande.”

VOLTAIRE. Dictionnaire Philosophique, Art. “Annales”. (Vol. VII., p. 260.)

“ That man must be a tremendous ignoramus, for he answers every question that is put to him.”

“ Il faut que les âmes pensantes se frottent l'une contre l'autre, pour faire jaillir de la lumière.”

VOLTAIRE. Lettre au Duc d'Uzès, 4 Déc., 1751. (Vol. IX., p. 710.)

“ It is necessary for thinking souls to rub one against the other, in order that the light may flash forth.”

“ Il faut raisonner avec les sages, et jamais avec le public.”

J. J. ROUSSEAU. Lettre à M. l'Abbé Raynal, Juillet, 1755.

“ We must argue with the wise, never with the public.”

“ Il faut rire avant d'être heureux, de peur de mourir sans avoir ri.”

LA BRUYÈRE. Caractères, Le Cœur, LXIII.

“ We must laugh before we are happy, lest we should die without having laughed.”

"Je me presse de rire de tout, de peur d'être obligé d'en pleurer."

BEAUMARCHAIS. Le Barbier de Séville, Act I., Sc. II.
—(Figaro.)

"I hasten to laugh at everything, for fear of being obliged to weep over it."

"Il faut sçavoir hayr, pour sçavoir bien aimer."

VAUQUELIN DES YVETAUX. Institution du Prince.

"Who knows not how to hate will never learn to love."

"Il faut se croire aimé pour se croire infidèle."

RACINE. Andromaque, Act IV., Sc. V.—(Pyrrhus.)

VAUVENARGUES. Réflexions et Maximes, 102.

"Everything is to be expected and feared from time and from men."

"Il faut un terme au crime, et non à la vengeance."

CRÉBILLON. Atrée et Thyeste, Act V., Sc. IV.—(Atrée.)

"'Tis crime that must be ended, and not vengeance."

"Il leur faut pour témoin, dans les heures de l'étude,
Une âme qu'autour d'eux ils sentent se poser.

Il leur faut une solitude

Où voltige un baiser."

SULLY-PRUDHOMME. Les Vaines Tendresses. Conseil.

"They need as witness, when in studious mood,

A kindred soul that doth their own enlance.

They need a solitude

Where hovers an embrace."

"Il lit au front de ceux qu'un vain luxe environne Que Fortune vend tout ce qu'on croit qu'elle donne."

LA FONTAINE. Philémon et Baucis.

"'Tis written on their brows who in vain luxury live

That Fortune only sells them what she seems to give."

"Il m'est permis de reprendre mon bien où je le trouve."

MOLIÈRE. (De Grimarest, Vie de Molière, Ed. 1705, p. 14.)

"Il n'est homme qui ait point de demain."

EUSTACHE DESCHAMPS. Balades de Moralitez, CXCIX.

"There is no man but hath a morrow."

"Il n'est ni livre ni raison

Qui soit toujours de saison :

Mais quand Bacchus nous ennyvre,

Il passe raison et livre." DE BENSERADE. Air. (Ed. 1690, p. 187.)

"There is neither book nor reason
Which at all times is in season ;
But when Bacchus' crown is worn,
Both book and reason are forsworn."

“ Il n'est pas de ces médecins qui marchandent les maladies ; c'est un homme expéditif, qui aime à dépêcher ses malades ; et quand on a à mourir, cela se fait avec lui le plus vite du monde.”

MOLIÈRE. M. de Pourceaugnac, Act I., Sc. VII.—(L'Apothicaire.)

“ He is not one of those doctors who haggle about diseases, but an expeditious gentleman, who likes to hurry his patients along ; and if one has to die, it is accomplished in his hands with the utmost rapidity.”

“ Il n'est pas défendu en littérature de ramasser une arme rouillée ; l'important est de savoir aiguïser la lame et d'en reforger la poignée à la mesure de sa main.”

DAUDET. Trente Ans de Paris.—“ Henri Rochefort.”

“ It is not forbidden in literature to pick up a rusty sword ; but it is important to be able to sharpen the blade and alter the hilt to fit one's hand.”

“ Il n'est pas donné au crime lui-même de dégrader la vérité ; elle survit à tout, même à ses victimes.”

LAMARTINE. Histoire des Girondins, Livre I., Chap. XXIII.

“ It is not given to crime itself to degrade truth ; truth outlives everything, even her victims.”

“ Il n'est pas si diable qu'il est noir.”

MONTLUC. Comédie de Proverbes, Act I., Sc. V.—(Bertrand.)

“ The devil is not so black as he is painted.”

“ Il n'est pas si facile qu'on pense
D'être fort honnête homme et de jouer gros jeu.”

MME. DESHOULIÈRES. Réflexions Diverses.

GARNIER. Marc Antoine, Act I.—(Cléopâtre.) (Ed. 1585, p. 83.)

“ Nought is impossible to him who strives.”

“ Il n'est si homme de bien, qu'il mette à l'examen des lois toutes ses actions et pensées, qui ne soit pendable dix fois en sa vie.”

MONTAIGNE. Essais, III., 9. (P. 239.)

“ There is no man so good, but that, were he to submit all his actions and thoughts to the arbitrament of the laws, he would be found worthy of hanging ten times in his life.”

“ Il n'est si riche qui quelquefois ne doibve. Il n'est si pauvre de qui quelquefois on ne puisse emprunter.”

RABELAIS. Pantagruel, III., 5.

“ None is so rich but sometimes owes. None is so poor but one may sometimes borrow from him.”

“ Il n'est trésor que de vivre à son aise.”

VILLON. Le Grand Testament, line 1482.—Les contredits de Franc-Goutin.

“ No treasure's greater than to live at ease.”

“ Il n'est vie que d'amer.”

EUSTACHE DESCHAMPS. Balades Amoureuses, DVIII.

“ There is no life but love.”

“ Il n'y a d'homme complet que celui qui a beaucoup voyagé, qui a changé vingt fois la forme de sa pensée et de sa vie.”

LAMARTINE. Voyage en Orient, 1er Avril, 1833.

“ No man is complete but he who has travelled much, who has changed twenty times his mode of thought and of life.”

“ Il n'y a guère moins de tourment au gouvernement d'une famille que d'un estat entier.”

MONTAIGNE. Essais, I., 38. (P. 241.)

“ There is but little less torment in the government of a family than in that of a whole state.”

“ Il n'y a jamais eu de royaume où il y ait eu tant de guerres civiles que dans celui du Christ.”

MONTESQUIEU. Lettres Persanes, XXIX.

“ There has never been a kingdom in which there have been so many civil wars as in that of Christ.”

“ (On dit bien vrai qu')il n'y a pas de pires sourds que ceux qui ne veulent pas entendre.”

MOLIÈRE. L'Amour Médecin, Act I., Sc. IV.—(Lisette.)

“ It is a true saying that none are so deaf as those who will not hear.”

“ Il n'y a personne qui soit tenu d'être habile ; mais il n'y en a point qui ne soit obligé d'être bon.”

J. L. GUEZ BALZAC. Aristippe, Discours VII.

“ No one is bound to be clever, but every one is under an obligation to be good.”

“ Il n'est pas permis à tous les hommes d'être grands, mais ils peuvent tous être bons.”

MARMONTEL. Lettre à Voltaire, 20 Oct., 1769.

“ It is not permitted to all men to be great, but all can be good.”

“ Il n'y a point au monde un si pénible métier que celui de se faire un grand nom ; la vie s'achève que l'on a à peine ébauché son ouvrage.”

LA BRUYÈRE. Caractères.—Du Mérite Personnel, IX.

“ There is no more heartbreaking task in the world than that of carving a great name for oneself ; our life comes to an end when we have hardly roughed out our work.”

“ Il n'y a point d'enfants que nous aimions davantage que ceux qui naissent de notre esprit, et desquels nous sommes père et mère tout ensemble.”

J. L. GUEZ BALZAC. Socrate Chrétien, Discours VI.

“ There are no children of whom we are fonder than those that are born of our brains, to whom we are father and mother in one.”

“ Il n'y a qu'une sorte d'amour, mais il y en a mille différentes copies.”

LA ROCHEFOUCAULD. Maximes, 74.

“ There is only one kind of love, but there are a thousand different imitations.”

“ Il n'y a que deux sortes de guerres justes : les unes qui se font pour repousser un ennemi qui attaque, les autres pour secourir un allié qui est attaqué.”

MONTESQUIEU. Lettres Persanes, XCV.

“ There are only two sorts of just wars : those which are undertaken to repel an enemy who attacks, and those to aid an ally who is attacked.”

“ Il n'y a que le premier obstacle qui coûte à vaincre, la pudeur : on avale après la honte.”

BOSSUET. Pensées Chrétiennes et Morales, IX. (Vol. IV., p. 779.)

“ It is only the first step that is difficult to surmount, modesty : after that we readily swallow shame.”

“ Il n'y a que le premier pas qui coûte.”

MADAME DU DEFFAND. Lettre à d'Alembert, 7 Juillet, 1763.

“ It is only the first step that costs.”

“ Le premier pas, mon fils, que l'on fait dans le monde, Est celui dont dépend le reste de nos jours.”

VOLTAIRE. L'Indiscret, Act I., Sc. I.—(Euphémie.)

“ 'Tis the first step that in the world we take Whereon depends the whole of our career.”

“ C'est des premiers pas que dépend la carrière.”

GRESSET. Le Méchant, Act IV., Sc. IV.—(Ariste.)

“ On our first step depends our whole career.”

“ Il n'y a que les morts qui ne reviennent pas.”

BARÈRE DE VIEUZAC. Rapport sur les crimes de l'Angleterre. (Convention Nationale, 7 Prairial, 1794.)

“ It is only the dead who never come back.”

"Il n'y a rien de si dangereux pour l'Etat, que ceux qui veulent gouverner les royaumes par les maximes qu'ils tirent de leurs livres."

CARDINAL RICHELIEU. Testament Politique, Part I., Chap. VIII., Sec. II.

"There is nothing so dangerous to the State as men who seek to govern a kingdom with the aid of maxims taken from their books."

"Il n'y a rien de si puissant qu'une république où l'on observe les lois, non pas par crainte, non pas par raison, mais par passion."

MONTESQUIEU. Grandeur et Décadence des Romains, Chap. IV.

"There is nothing more powerful than a republic where the laws are obeyed, not from fear, not from reason, but from inclination."

"Il n'y a rien en ce monde qui ne laisse quelque chose à désirer."

“ Il ne faut pas tant de beurre pour faire un quarteron.”

MOLIÈRE. Georges Dandin, Act II., Sc. I.—(Lubin.)

“ It doesn't take all that butter to make a pound.”

CHATEAUBRIAND. Génie du Christianisme, Part II., Livre III., Chap. I.

“ It does not do to be always casting the lead into the deep places of the heart ; the truths which lie hidden there are of those which must be viewed in a half-light and in perspective.”

“ Il ne faut point faire par les lois ce qu'on peut faire par les mœurs.”

MONTESQUIEU. Pensées Diverses.

“ We should not call upon the law to do what can be done by morality.”

“ Il ne faut point tout voir, tout sentir, tout entendre ;

Quittons les voluptés pour pouvoir les reprendre.”

VOLTAIRE. Quatrième Discours sur l'Homme.

“ Not all things should we hear, or feel, or view ;
Leave we our joys, to take them up anew.”

“ Il ne semble né que pour la digestion.”

LA BRUYÈRE. Caractères. De l'Homme, CXXII.

“ He seems to have been born only for digestion.”

“ (On dit quand quelqu'un ment qu'il revient de Poitiers.”

“ Il rit assez qui rit le dernier.”

MONTLUC. La Comédie de Proverbes, Act I., Sc. VII.—(Alaigre.)

“ He laughs best who laughs last.”

“ Il semble que toute superstition ait une chose naturelle pour principe, et que bien des erreurs soient nées d'une vérité dont on abuse.”

VOLTAIRE. Essai sur les Mœurs et l'Esprit des Nations, Introduction. (Vol. IV., p. 112.)

“ It appears that every superstition has its foundation in a fact of nature, and that very many errors are the offspring of a distorted truth.”

“ Il sert encore un dieu qu'il n'ose plus nommer.”

CHAULIEU. A M. le Marquis de la Fare.

“ He worships still a god he dares no longer name.”

“ Il suit toujours le grand chemin, le grand chemin, et ne va pas chercher midi à quatorze heures ; et pour tout l'or du monde il ne voudroit pas avoir guéri une personne avec d'autres remèdes que ceux que la Faculté permet.”

MOLIÈRE. M. de Pourceaugnac, Act I., Sc. VII.—(L'Apothicaire.)

“ He always follows the beaten track, the beaten track, and never goes out of his way to look for noon at fourteen o'clock ; not for all the gold in the world would he have it said that he had cured a patient by the use of remedies other than those permitted by the Faculty.”

“ Our intelligence is better employed in bearing the misfortunes which have come upon us than in foreseeing those which may befall us in the future.”

“ Il vaut mieux hasarder de sauver un coupable que de condamner un innocent.” VOLTAIRE. Zadig, Chap. VI. (Vol. VIII., p. 11.)

“ It is better to run the risk of saving a guilty man, than of condemning an innocent one.”

“ Il vaut mieux subsister par ses propres forces que par les faiblesses d'autrui.”

ABBÉ FLEURY. Pensées Politiques.

VOLTAIRE. Mémoires. (Vol. I., p. 100.)—(Of Frederick the Great.)

“ He wished to attain to fame by every road and as cheaply as possible.”

“ Ils vous opposeront de vastes solitudes,
Des déserts que le ciel refuse d'éclairer,
Où la nature semble elle-même expirer.”

RACINE. Alexandre, Act V., Sc. I.—(Cléofile.)

“ They'll to your march vast solitudes oppose,
Deserts to which the heavens refuse their fire,
Where even nature seemeth to expire.”

“ Il y a beaucoup moins d'ingrats qu'on ne croit ; car il y a bien moins de généreux qu'on ne pense.”

ST. EVREMOND. Sur les Ingrats. (Ed. Amsterdam, 1739. Vol. III., p. 124.)

“ There is much less ingratitude than we think, for there is far less generosity than we imagine.”

“ Il y a bien un droit du plus sage, mais non pas un droit du plus fort.”

JOUBERT. Pensées, Titre XV., 4.

“ There is indeed a right of the wisest, but there is no right of the strongest.”

"Il y a de mauvais exemples qui sont pires que les crimes : et plus d'états ont péri parce qu'on a violé les mœurs que parce qu'on a violé les lois."

MONTESQUIEU. Grandeur et Décadence des Romains, Chap. VIII.

"There are bad examples which are worse than crimes, and more states owe their fall to violations of morality than to violations of the laws."

"Il y a des gens dont il ne faut pas dire qu'ils craignent Dieu, mais bien qu'ils en ont peur."

DIDEROT. Pensées Philosophiques, VIII.

"There are some people of whom we should not say that they fear God, but rather that they are afraid of Him."

"Il y a des gens qui commencent à vivre lorsqu'il faut cesser de vivre ; ou, plutôt, qui ont cessé de vivre avant de commencer."

BOSSUET. Pensées Chrétiennes et Morales, XXXII. (Vol. IV., p. 789.)

"There are people who begin to live when it is time to cease living ; or, rather, have ceased to live before they have fairly begun."

"Il y a des reproches qui louent et des louanges qui médisent."

"There are reproaches which praise and praises which disparage."

"Il y a fagots et fagots."

MOLIÈRE. Le Médecin malgré lui, Act I., Sc. VI.—(Sganarelle.)

"There are faggots and faggots."

"Il y a moins d'obligés ingrats que de bienfaiteurs intéressés."

J. J. ROUSSEAU. Emile, Livre IV.

"There are fewer ungrateful recipients of kindness than there are interested benefactors."

"Il y a peu d'honnêtes femmes qui ne soient lasses de leur métier."

"There are few honest women who are not tired of their trade."

"Il y a plus affaire à interpréter les interprétations, qu'à interpréter les choses : et plus de livres sur les livres, que sur autre sujet."

MONTAIGNE. Essais, III., 13. (P. 327.)

"It is harder work interpreting interpretations than interpreting the things themselves, and there are more books about books than about any other subject."

"Il y a plus de politique dans une vertu de Fénelon que dans toutes les maximes de Machiavel."

LAMARTINE. Histoire des Girondins, Livre XXV., Chap. XXIII.

"There is more statesmanship in one of Fenelon's virtues than in all the maxims of Macchiavelli."

"Il y a plus de quarante ans que je dis de la prose, sans que j'en susse rien."

MOLIÈRE. Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme, Act II., Sc. VI.
—(M. Jourdain.)

"For more than forty years I have been talking prose, and I never knew it."

“Il y a toujours dans les grandes affaires un prétexte qu'on met en avant, et une cause véritable qu'on dissimule.”

VOLTAIRE. Le Siècle de Louis XV., Chap. XXXVIII.
(Vol. V., p. 174.)

“In all business of state there is always a pretext which is put forward, and a real reason which is kept in the background.”

“Ils commencent ici par faire pendre un homme, et puis ils lui font son procès.”

MOLIÈRE. M. de Pourceaugnac, Act III., Sc. II.—(Sbrigani).

“In this part of the world they begin by hanging a man, and then they put him on his trial.”

“Ils ne se servent de la pensée que pour autoriser leurs injustices, et n'emploient les paroles que pour déguiser leurs pensées.”

VOLTAIRE. Le Chapon et la Poularde. (Vol. VI., p. 1422.)

“Their only use for thought is to authorise their injustice, and they employ words only to conceal their thoughts.”

“Ils se sont seulement reculés pour mieux sauter.”

MONTAIGNE. Essais, I., 38. (P. 251.)

“They have only drawn back in order to leap farther.”

“Ils sont passés ces jours de fête,
Ils sont passés, ils ne reviendront plus.”

ANSEAUME. Le Tableau Parlant, Sc. V.—(Colombine.)

“Gone are those days of festival,
Gone are they, never to return.”

“Ils sont trop verts, dit-il, et bons pour des goujats.”

LA FONTAINE. Fables, III., 2.—“Le Renard et les Raisins.”

“The grapes are sour, said he, and good for fools.”

“Impossible est un mot que je ne dis jamais.”

COLLIN D'HARLEVILLE. Malice pour Malice, Act I., Sc. VIII.
—(Raimond.)

“Impossible 's a word I never utter.”

“Ce n'est pas possible, m'écrivez-vous : cela n'est pas Français.”
NAPOLÉON. Lettre à Lemarois, 9 Juillet, 1813.

“It is not possible, you write : that is not French.”

“Impuissant à trahir
Il hait à cœur ouvert, ou cesse de haïr.”

RACINE. Britannicus, Act V., Sc. I.—(Britannicus.)

Unversed in treason's lore
He hates with open heart, or hates no more.”

“(Belles personnes),
Inspirez-nous des vers—mais ne les jugez pas.”

ROSTAND. Cyrano de Bergerac, Act I., Sc. IV.—(Cyrano.)

“Ladies fair,
Inspire our verse—but do not criticise.”

“ J'admire comme notre esprit est véritablement la dupe de notre cœur.”

MME. DE SÉVIGNÉ. Lettre 498, à Mme. de Grignan, 24 Mai, 1676.

“ I marvel to see how truly the mind is the dupe of the heart.”

“ J'ai bien peur que cette nature ne soit elle-même qu'une première coutume, comme la coutume est une seconde nature.”

PASCAL. Pensées, Part I., Art. VI., 19.

“ I am very much afraid that what we call nature is only a first habit, just as habit is a second nature.”

“ J'ai des serviteurs et ne suis point servi.”

MOLIÈRE. Les Femmes Savantes, Act II., Sc. VII.—(Chrysale.)

“ Servants I have, but still I am not served.”

“ J'ai eu pour principe de ne jamais faire par autrui ce que je pouvois faire par moi-même.”

MONTESQUIEU. Pensées Diverses, Portrait de Montesquieu par lui-même.

“ I have made it a principle never to let another do for me what I could do for myself.”

“ J'ai pour moi la justice, et je perds mon procès.”

MOLIÈRE. Le Misanthrope, Act V., Sc. I.—(Alceste.)

“ I've justice on my side, yet lose my case.”

“ J'ai promis ; il suffit : il n'importe à quel dieu.”

VOLTAIRE. Alzire, Act IV., Sc. IV.—(Alzire.)

“ 'Tis enough ; I have vowed ; it boots not to what god.”

“ J'ai quelque pressentiment qu'un jour cette petite île¹ étonnera l'Europe.”

J. J. ROUSSEAU. Du Contrat Social, Livre II., Chap. X.

“ I have a sort of presentiment that one day this little island will astonish Europe.”

“ J'ai remarqué une chose de ces messieurs-là ; c'est que ceux qui parlent le plus des règles, et qui les savent mieux que les autres, font des comédies que personne ne trouve belles.”

MOLIÈRE. La Critique de l'Ecole de Femmes, Sc. VII.—(Uranie.)

“ I have noticed one thing about those gentlemen ; it is that those who talk most about the rules, and know them better than any one else, write comedies that nobody cares about.”

“ J'ai toujours vu que, pour réussir dans le monde, il fallait avoir l'air fou, et être sage.”

“ I have always noticed that to get on in the world it was necessary to appear a fool and be wise.”

“ J'ai trouvé cela trop beau pour être véritable.”

MOLIÈRE. Les Amants Magnifiques, Act III., Sc. I.—(Sostrate.)

¹ Corsica.

“ J'ai voulu te paraître odieuse, inhumaine ;
 Pour mieux te résister, j'ai recherché ta haine.
 De quoi m'ont profité mes inutiles soins ?
 Tu me haïssais plus, je ne t'aimais pas moins.”

RACINE. Phèdre, Act II., Sc. V.—(Phèdre.)

“ A monster inhuman I longed to be thought ;
 To resist thee the better thy hatred I sought.
 Yet my efforts were profitless all, I confess ;
 Thou didst hate me the more and I loved thee no less.”

“ J'aimais, je soupirais dans une paix profonde,
 Un autre était chargé de l'empire du monde.
 Maître de mon destin, libre dans mes soupirs,
 Je ne rendais qu'à moi compte de mes désirs.”

RACINE. Bérénice, Act II., Sc. II.—(Titus.)

“ Wrapped in profoundest peace I loved, I sighed,
 Another o'er the empire did preside.
 Lord of my fate, in my affections free,
 Count of my plans I owed to none but me.”

“ J'aime assez mon amant pour renoncer à lui.”

RACINE. Bajazet, Act III., Sc. I.—(Atalide.)

“ I love my love so well that I renounce him.”

“ J'aime mieux, n'en déplaie à la gloire,
 Vivre au monde deux jours que mille ans dans l'histoire.”

MOLIÈRE. La Princesse d'Elide, Act I., Sc. II.—(Moron.)

I rather choose, forgive me, Glory,
 To live two days on earth than centuries in story.”

“ J'aime mieux un franc ennemi
 Qu'un bon ami qui m'égratigne.”

ARNAULT. Fables, I., 5.—“ Le Chien et le Chat.”

“ An open foe I much prefer
 To a dear friend that scratches.”

“ J'aime qu'un Russe soit Russe,
 Et qu'un Anglais soit Anglais.
 Si l'on est Prussien en Prusse,
 En France soyons Français.”

BÉRANGER. Le bon Français.

“ I'd have a Russian be a Russian,
 A Briton British I would see,
 And if in Prussia one is Prussian,
 Why then in France let 's Frenchmen be.”

“ J'aime! voilà le mot que la nature entière
 Crie au vent qui l'emporte, à l'oiseau qui le suit !
 Sombre et dernier soupir que poussera la terre
 Quand elle tombera dans l'éternelle nuit !”

DE MUSSET. Rolla, V.—(Poésies Nouvelles, p. 26.)

“ I love ! 'tis the word that all nature doth cry
 To the wind as it blows, to the bird in its flight !
 I love ! 'twill be heard as earth's last gloomy sigh,
 E'er creation is whelmed in the unending night !”

“(Mais) j'aimerais mieux être aux rangs des ignorants,
Que de me voir savant comme certaines gens.”

MOLIÈRE. Les Femmes Savantes, Act IV., Sc. III.—(Clitandre.)

“Rather amongst the ignorant I'd be set,
Than learned be like some folk I have met.”

“J'appelle un chat un chat, et Rolet un fripon.”

BOILEAU. Satires, I., 52.

“I call a cat a cat, and Rolet an impostor.”

“J'approchai par degrés à l'oreille des rois,
Et bientôt en oracle on érigea ma voix.
J'étudiai leur cœur, je flattai leurs caprices,
Je leur semai de fleurs le bord des précipices.”

RACINE. Athalie, Act III., Sc. III.—(Mathan.)

“I by degrees the royal ear assailed,
And soon as oracles my words were hailed.
Their hearts I studied, flattered each caprice,
And flowers strewed on th' edge of the abyss.”

“J'aurais mieux fait, je crois, d'épouser Célimène.”

NÉRICAULT-DESTOUCHES. L'Irrésolu. Act V., Sc. XVII.
—(Dorante.)

“I had done best, methinks, to marry Célimène.”

“J'en passe, et des meilleurs.”

VICTOR HUGO. Hernani, Act III., Sc. VI.

“I pass some by, and of the best.”

“J'éprouve que, pour gagner les hommes, il n'est point de meilleure voie que de se parer à leurs yeux de leurs inclinations, que de donner dans leurs maximes, encenser leurs défauts, et applaudir
ce qu'ils font.” MOLIÈRE. L'Avare, Act I., Sc. I.—(Valère.)

“I find that, to gain men over, there is no better course than to clothe oneself before them with their inclinations, to fall in with their maxims, to burn incense to their defects and to applaud all their actions.”

“J'évite d'être long, et je deviens obscur.”

BOILEAU. L'Art Poétique, I., 66.

“Prolixity I shun and straight become obscure.”

“J'y suis, j'y reste.”

MARSHAL MACMAHON. (In the trenches before the Malakoff, 9th Sept., 1855.)

“Here I am, here I stop.”

“Jamais ! c'est long, Comtesse, et ce mot à la cour
Nous trompe en politique aussi bien qu'en amour.”

DELAUVIGNE. La Princesse Aurélie, Act I., Sc. I.—(Policastro.)

“Never 's a long time, and this word will prove A snare in statecraft even as in love.”

Never's a long day

“Jamais contre un pécheur ils n'ont d'acharnement,
Ils attachent leur haine au péché seulement,
Et ne veulent point prendre, avec un zèle extrême,
Les intérêts du ciel plus qu'il ne veut lui-même.”

MOLIÈRE. Tartuffe, Act I., Sc. VI.—(Cléante.)

“Against the sinner ne'er inveterate,
'Tis only on the sin they vent their hate,
Nor do they show themselves, unduly zealous,
Of heaven's own interests than heaven more jealous.”

“Jamais en rien d'un ignorant l'estime
Ne fut honneur ny gloire légitime.”

LA BOËTIE. A Marguerite de Carle. (Ed. 1846, p. 476.)

“Never th' esteem of them that do not know
Can in aught honour or true fame bestow.”

“Jamais la nature humaine n'est si avilie que quand l'ignorance superstitieuse est armée du pouvoir.”

VOLTAIRE. Essai sur les Mœurs et l'Esprit des Nations, Chap. CXL.
(Vol. IV., p. 682.)

“Human nature is never so degraded as when superstitious ignorance is armed with the supreme power.”

“(Et) jamais le prix du grand homme
N'est bien connu qu'après sa mort.”

LE FRANC DE POMPIGNAN. Odes, III., 1.—“La Mort de Rousseau.”

“Ne'er is a great man's worth
Well known till he be dead.”

“Jamais pays ne troverunt,
N'en celle terre ne venrunt
K'il puissent estre sanz pour,
Ou sanz traveil, ou sanz dolour.”

MARIE DE FRANCE. Fables, XXX.

“Never country shall they see,
Land shall ever seek in vain
Where they without fear shall be,
Or without toil, or without pain.”

“Jamais un heur parfait n'est sans quelque aventure,
Et telle fut la loy de la sage Nature,
Que par les grands dangers les grands biens sont cogneuz.”

AGRIPPA D'AUBIGNÉ. Le Printemps. Stances, XVII.

“There is no happiness without a flaw,
And this hath ever been wise Nature's law,
That through great perils are great blessings known.”

“Jamais un vrai bienfait ne fit d'ingrat.”

J. J. ROUSSEAU. Emile, Livre IV.

“A real benefaction never yet made an ingrate.”

“Je chéris la vertu, mais j'embrasse le crime.”

VOLTAIRE. Brutus, Act IV., Sc. III.—(Titus.)

“Virtue I love, yet tread the path of crime.”

“(Mais) je connais le sort, il peut se démentir :
De la nuit du silence un secret peut sortir ;
Et des dieux quelquefois la longue patience
Fait sur nous à pas lents descendre la vengeance.”

VOLTAIRE. Mérope, Act I., Sc. IV.—(Polyphonte.)

“But destiny, full well I know, may be forsworn :
A secret from the night of silence may be born ;
And the long patience of the gods may in the end
Cause on our heads slow-footed vengeance to descend.”

“Je crains tout désormais . . . je suis heureux !”

DELAVIGNE. Le Paria, Act III., Sc. IV.—(Zarès.)

“I've all to fear henceforth . . . for I am happy !”

“Je crois pouvoir dire d'un poste éminent et délicat, qu'on y monte plus aisément qu'on ne s'y conserve.”

LA BRUYÈRE. Caractères. De la Cour, XXXIII.

“I think I can say of a post of eminence and responsibility, that it is more easily attained than retained.”

“Aux postes éclatantes c'est peu de parvenir,
Mon frère : le grand art est de s'y maintenir.”

NÉRICAULT-DESTOUCHES. L'Ambitieux, Act II., Sc. VI.
—(Don Fernand.)

“To lofty stations 'tis not hard to climb :
'Tis keeping them that shows the art sublime.”

“Je crois, si je me l'étais mis en tête, que je marierais le Grand Turc avec la République de Venise.”

MOLIÈRE. L'Avare, Act II., Sc. VI.—(Frosine.)

“I believe, if I set my mind to it, that I could bring about a marriage between the Grand Turk and the Republic of Venice.”

“Je crois que vous voyez tous deux combien l'art des vers et l'art de juger sont difficiles ; plus on connaît l'art, plus on en sent les épines.”

VOLTAIRE. Lettre à M. Thiriot, 10 Déc., 1738. (Vol. IX., p. 355.)

“I think you must both see how difficult is the art of versification and the art of criticism ; the more we know of the art the more we feel its thorns.”

“Je crois qu'il feroit d'une cerise trois morceaux.”

RABELAIS. Pantagruel, V., 28.

“I think he would make three bites at a cherry.”

“Je disois vérité.

Quand un menteur la dit,
En passant par sa bouche elle perd son crédit.”

PIERRE CORNEILLE. Le Menteur, Act III., Sc. VI.—(Dorante et Cliton.)

“I spoke the truth.

When 'tis a liar speaks,
Dropped from his lips truth vainly credence seeks.”

“(Et) je dois d'autant moins oublier la vertu,
Qu'elle-même s'oublie.”

RACINE. Esther, Act II., Sc. III.—(Assuérus.)

“And virtue all the less should I forget,
That virtue is unmindful of herself.”

“Je lis des livres du vieux tems
Et sers des beautés du nôtre.”

DE BONNARD. A Monsieur B. (Ed. 1791, p. 153.)

“I read the books of ancient times
And serve the beauties of our own.”

“Je n'ai pas l'esprit, comme toi, de me brouiller avec la Justice.”
MOLIÈRE. Les Fourberies de Scapin, Act I., Sc. II.—(Sylvestre.)

“I haven't the wit, like you, to come to loggerheads with Justice.”

“Je n'ai point étudié, et j'ai fait cela tout du premier coup.”
MOLIÈRE. Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme, Act II., Sc. VI.
—(M. Jourdain.)

“I've never studied, and yet I did that at the first attempt.”

“Je n'en vois pas la nécessité.”
COMTE D'ARGENSON. (To the Abbé Desfontaines, who in extenuation of a scurrilous pamphlet had exclaimed: “A man must live”.)

“I do not see the necessity.”

“Je n'entends point le Latin.”
MOLIÈRE. Les Précieuses Ridicules, Sc. VII.—(Marotte.)

“I don't understand Latin.”

“Je ne boy qu'à mes heures, comme la mule du pape.”
RABELAIS. Gargantua, I., 5.

“I only drink at my own times, like the Pope's mule.”

“Je ne me soucie ni de Don Thomas, ni de Don Martin.”
MOLIÈRE. L'Avare, Act V., Sc. V.—(Harpagon.)

“I don't care a fig for Don Thomas or for Don Martin.”

“Je ne sais d'assurés dans le chaos du sort Que deux points seulement, la Souffrance et la Mort.”
ALFRED DE VIGNY. Paris.

“From Fortune's chaos nought assured I bring Save two things only, Death and Suffering.”

“Je ne sais pas si cela se peut, mais je sais bien que cela est.”
MOLIÈRE. L'Amour Médecin, Act II., Sc. II.—(Lisette.)

“I don't know whether that is possible, but I know that it is.”

“ Je ne sais qui je suis, et crains de le savoir ;
Je veux ce que je dois, et cherche mon devoir :
Je crains de le haïr, si j'en tiens la naissance ;
Je le plains de m'aimer, si je m'en dois vengeance.”

PIERRE CORNEILLE. Héraclius, Act V., Sc. II.—(Héraclius.)

“ I know not who I am, and fear to know ;
I seek to learn where I my duty owe :
I fear to hate him, if he be my sire :
I mourn his love, if he have roused my ire.”

“ Je ne suis point battant, de peur d'être battu.”

MOLIÈRE. Sganarelle, Sc. XVII.—(Sganarelle.)

“ I am not striking, for fear of being struck.”

“ Je ne suis point d'humeur à payer les violons pour faire danser les autres.”

MOLIÈRE. La Comtesse d'Escarbagnas, Sc. XXI.—(M. Harpin.)

“ I'm not in the mood to pay the fiddlers for other people to dance.”

“ Je ne veux point ici m'affliger par avance ;
L'évènement souvent confond la prévoyance.”

REGNARD. Le Joueur, Act IV., Sc. I.—(Angélique.)

“ I grieve not over troubles till they're sent ;
Foresight is oft confounded by th' event.”

“ Je ne vous aime point, Hylas,
Je n'en saurais dire la cause :
Je sais seulement une chose ;
C'est que je ne vous aime pas.”

BUSSY RABUTIN. Histoire Amoureuse des Gaules. Epigrammes.
(Ed. Cologne, 1716, p. 246.)

“ I do not love thee, Doctor Fell,
The reason why I cannot tell ;
But this alone I know full well,
I do not love thee, Doctor Fell.”—(Tom Brown.)

“ Je ne weil que nulz face jamez bien pour le guerredon de paradis avoir, ne pour la pour d'enfer ; mèz proprement pour l'amour de Dieu avoir, qui tant vaut et qui tout le bien nous peut faire.”

JOINVILLE. Histoire de Saint Louis, LXXXVII. (Ed. Paris, 1761, p. 93.)

“ I would not have any do good to gain the reward of paradise, or from fear of hell ; but solely to gain the love of God, that is worth all else and that can bestow on us every good thing.”

“ Je parle à mon bonnet.”

MOLIÈRE. L'Avare, Act I., Sc. III.—(La Flèche.)

“ I am speaking to my cap.”

“ Je pense, donc je suis.”

DESCARTES. Principes de la Philosophie. Première Partie, § 7.

“ I think, therefore I am.”

“ Je perdrai mes états, et garderai mon rang ;
Et ces vastes malheurs où mon orgueil me jette
Me feront votre esclave, et non votre sujette :
Ma vie est en vos mains, mais non ma dignité.”

PIERRE CORNEILLE. Nicomède, Act III., Sc. I.—(Laodice.)

“ My states are forfeit but I keep my rank ;
Misfortunes, which through my own pride befall me,
Make me your slave ; subject ye ne'er shall call me :
My life is yours, my dignity is mine.”

“ Je perds le plus beau droit, celui de faire grâce.”

VOLTAIRE. Les Guèbres, Act IV., Sc. II.—(Iradan.)

“ I lose my fairest right, the gift of mercy.”

“ Je refuse d'un cœur la vaste complaisance
Qui ne fait du mérite aucune différence :
Je veux qu'on me distingue ; et pour le trancher net,
L'ami du genre humain n'est pas du tout mon fait.”

MOLIÈRE. Le Misanthrope, Act I., Sc. I.—(Alceste.)

“ I hate that vast complaisance of some minds
Which in degrees of worth no difference finds :
I claim to be distinguished, and, in fine,
The friend of all men is no friend of mine.”

“ Je rends grâces aux dieux de n'être pas Romain, Pour conserver encore quelque chose d'humain.”

PIERRE CORNEILLE. Horace, Act II., Sc. III.—(Curiace.)

“ I thank the gods that Rome I do not serve ;
Thus something human I may still preserve.”

“ Je sçay ce que je fus, je sçay ce que je suis,
Je veux ce que je doy, je fay ce que je puis.”

GUÉRIN DE BOUSCAL. Cléomène, Act I., Sc. IV.—(Cléomène.)

“ What I was know I well, what I am know I too ;
What I should, that I will ; what I can, that I do.”

“ Je sens l'impatience en mon âme accroistre
De cognoistre le mal que j'ay peur de cognoistre.”

RACAN. Les Bergeries, Act II., Sc. III.—(Artenice.)

“ The impatient longing in my soul doth grow
To know the evil that I fear to know.”

“ Je sirote mon vin, quel qu'il soit, vieux, nouveau :
Je fais rubis sur l'ongle, et n'y mets jamais d'eau.”

REGNARD. Les Folies Amoureuses, Act II., Sc. II.—(Agathe.)

“ I keep sipping my wine, old or new, good or bad :
I drink the last drop, and no water I add.”

“ Je soutiendrai mon opinion jusqu'à la dernière goutte de mon encre.”

MOLIÈRE. Le Mariage Forcé, Sc. VI.—(Pancrace.)

“ I will maintain my opinion with the very last drop of my ink.”

“Je suis assez semblable aux girouettes qui ne se fixent que quand elles sont rouillées.”

VOLTAIRE. Lettre à M. le Comte d'Albaret, 10 Avril, 1760.

“I am somewhat like the weathercocks, which only become stationary when they are rusty.”

“Je suis content et je suis heureux, puisque je crois l'être.”

LESAGE. Gil Blas, VIII., 13.

“I am contented and I am happy, because I think myself so.”

“Je suis descendu au puitz ténébreux, auquel disoit Héraclitus estre vérité cachée.

RABELAIS. Pantagruel, III., 36.

“I went down into the gloomy well where, as Heraclitus says, Truth is hidden.”

“(Car) je suis homme et je me fais honneur
D'avoir ma part aux humaines faiblesses.”

VOLTAIRE. La Pucelle, Chant VII.

“For I'm a man, and think it no disgrace
To have my share of human weaknesses.”

“Je suis las des musées,—cimetières des arts.”

LAMARTINE. Voyage en Orient.—“Athènes.”

“I am weary of museums, those cemeteries of the arts.”

“Je suis né et ay esté nourry jeune au jardin de France, c'est Touraine.”

RABELAIS. Pantagruel, II., 9.

“I was born and spent my youth in the garden of France, Touraine.”

“Je t'aimais inconstant, qu'aurais-je fait fidèle?”

RACINE. Andromaque, Act IV., Sc. V.—(Hermione.)

“I loved thee faithless; what an hadst been true?”

“Je te défie en vers, prose, Grec et Latin.”

MOLIÈRE. Les Femmes Savantes, Act III., Sc. V.—(Vadius.)

“I challenge you in verse, prose, Greek and Latin.”

“(Mais) je tiens qu'il est mal, sur quoi que l'on se fonde,
De fuir obstinément ce que suit tout le monde,
Et qu'il vaut mieux souffrir d'être au nombre des fous,
Que du sage parti se voir seul contre tous.”

MOLIÈRE. L'Ecole des Maris, Act I., Sc. I.—(Ariste.)

“I hold we're wrong, whate'er our motive be,
If what the world approves we blindly flee;
And much prefer amongst the fools to hide,
Than to take arms alone on wisdom's side.”

“Je tiens sans cesse
Qu'il nous faut en riant instruire la jeunesse,
Reprendre ses défauts avec grande douceur,
Et du nom de vertu ne lui point faire peur.”

MOLIÈRE. L'Ecole des Maris, Act I., Sc. II.—(Ariste.)

“I always preach
That 'tis with smiles we should our children teach,
With extreme gentleness their errors blame,
Nor give them cause to shrink from virtue's name.”

"Je tombe par malheur de la poesle en la braise."

MATHURIN REGNIER. Satyres, X. (Ed. 1617, p. 51.)

"From the frying-pan into the embers I fall."

"Je trouve bien plus de distance

De l'amour à l'indifférence

Que de la haine à l'amour."

BUSSY RABUTIN. Histoire Amoureuse des Gaules, Maximes d'Amour.
(Cologne Ed., 1716, p. 224.)

"Far greater will the distance prove Between indifference and love
Than between love and hate."

"Je vais chercher ailleurs (pardonne, ombre Romaine!)

Des hommes, et non pas de la poussière humaine."

LAMARTINE. Dernier Chant du Pèlerinage d'Harold, XIII.

"Pardon, great Roman shade, yet seek I must Elsewhere for men, and not for human dust."

"Je vais où va toute chose,

Où va la feuille de rose

Et la feuille de laurier." ARNAULT. Fables, V., 16.—"La Feuille."

"I go where all nature goes,
Where goes the leaf of the rose,
And eke the leaf of the bay."

"Je vais quérir un grand peut-être."

RABELAIS. (Pierre Dupont, Esquisse sur Rabelais, prefacing edition of 1858.)

"I am going in search of a great perhaps."

"Je veux qu'il me batte, moi."

MOLIÈRE. Le Médecin malgré lui, Act I., Sc. II.—(Martine.)

"Well, I want him to beat me."

"Je veux qu'on ait de très-grands égards pour le précepteur de mes enfans; mais je ne veux point du tout qu'il ait la moindre autorité dans ma maison."

VOLTAIRE. La Voix du Sage et du Peuple. (Vol. VI., p. 2.)

"I wish that great consideration be shown to the preceptor of my children, but I have no desire that he should have the least authority in my house."

"Je vis de bonne soupe et non de beau langage, Vaugelas n'apprend pas à bien faire un potage."

MOLIÈRE. Les Femmes Savantes, Act II., Sc. VII.—(Chrysale.)

DE MUSSET. On ne badine pas avec l'Amour, Act I., Sc. II.
—(Camille.)

"Neither friendship nor love should accept what they cannot return."

"L'amour aux jeunes cœurs
Se présente toujours entouré de douceurs ;
D'abord il n'offre aux yeux que choses agréables :
Mais il traîne après lui des troubles effroyables ;

Et si tu veux passer tes jours dans quelque paix,
Toujours, comme d'un mal, défends-toi de ses traits."

MOLIÈRE. Mélicerte, Act II., Sc. II.—(Mélicerte.)

"Love, to the youthful mind,
Doth ever seem to be in joys enshrined ;
At first it shows us nought but charming things
But later woes unspeakable it brings ;
So if thou 'dst bring thy days to peaceful end,
From love, as from the plague, thyself defend."

" L'amour chez les vieillards a d'étranges racines,
Et trouve, comme un lierre aux fentes des ruines,
Dans ces cœurs ravagés par le temps et les maux,
Cent brèches où pousser ses tenaces rameaux."

EMILE AUGIER. L'Aventurière, Act I., Sc. V.—(Fabrice.)

"From strangest roots love in old men doth grow ;
Like ivy on a ruin it doth show,
And in these hearts laid waste by grief and time,
By myriad clefts its clinging branches climb."

And no one knows himself that hath not suffered."

" L'homme intrépide et ferme en ses vastes desseins
Tient toujours, quand il veut, sa fortune en ses mains,
Et des événements il sait se rendre maître ;
Le foible les attend ; un grand cœur les fait naître."

BLIN DE SAINMORE. Orphenis, Act IV., Sc. I.—(Orphenis.)

" Who by his schemes unmoved and fearless stands,
Holds when he will his fortune in his hands ;
He is the lord of all that haps on earth,
The weak awaits, the strong heart gives them birth."

" L'homme n'écrit rien sur le sable
A l'heure où passe l'aquilon."

DE MUSSET. La Nuit de Mai. (Poésies Nouvelles, p. 58.)

" Man writeth nothing on the sand
What time the tempest passeth by."

"L'homme n'est ni ange ni bête; et le malheur veut que qui veut faire l'ange fait la bête."

PASCAL. Pensées, Part I., Art. X., 13.

"Man is neither angel nor brute; but it is his misfortune that he who would play the angel plays the brute."

L'intrépide voit mieux, et le fantôme fuit."

CRÉBILLON. Catilina, Act III., Sc. V.—(Catilina.)

"By shadows frightened, too much caution sees;
Courage sees clearer, and the phantom flees."

"L'homme qui a le plus vécu n'est pas celui qui a compté le plus d'années, mais celui qui a le plus senti la vie."

J. J. ROUSSEAU. Emile, Livre I.

"The man who has lived the most is not he who can count the most years, but he who has most appreciated life."

"L'homme sensé qu'au monde attache sa naissance,
Sans quitter ses devoirs, sans changer de séjour,
Peut vivre solitaire au milieu de la cour."

GRESSET. Sidnei, Act II., Sc. II.—(Hamilton.)

"The man of sense who of the world is born,
E'en though nor home nor duty he shall flee,
May 'midst the courtly throng a hermit be."

" L'homme seul, l'homme seul, en sa fureur extrême Met un brutal honneur à s'égorger soi-même."

BOILEAU. Satires, VIII., 147.

" Man, man alone, with madness all aflame,
Will cut his throat in ruthless honour's name."

" (L'on dit que) l'homme surpris est à demy battu, et au contraire un adverty en vaut deux."

CHARRON. Sur la Sagesse, Livre II., Chap. VII.

" It is said that a man surprised is half-beaten, and on the other hand that a man warned is worth two."

✓ “ Le style est l'homme même.”

BUFFON. Discours Académiques. Discours de Réception.

“ The style is the man himself.”

“ Le style n'est que l'ordre et le mouvement qu'on met dans ses pensées.”

BUFFON. Discours Académiques. Discours de Réception.

“ Style is only the method we employ of ordering and animating our thoughts.”

“ Le sublime en tout genre est le don le plus rare :

C'est là le vrai phénix ; et, sagement avare,

La nature a prévu qu'en nos faibles esprits

Le beau, s'il est commun, doit perdre de son prix.”

VOLTAIRE. Epîtres, LXXXIV.—A Mademoiselle Clairon.

“ In all styles the sublime's our rarest gift :

'Tis the true phoenix ; and, with prudent thrift,

Nature foresaw that, in our purblind eyes,

The beautiful, if common, is no prize.”

“ (Ainsi) le suffrage d'un sot

Fait plus de mal que sa critique.”

FLORIAN. Fables, IV., 10.—“ La Fauvette et le Rossignol.”

On rentre, on dine, on soupe, on se couche et l'on dort."

PIIS. L'Harmonie Imitative de la Langue Française, Chant I.

"We wake, rise, dress, then out of doors we creep ;
Return, dine, sup, then go to bed and sleep."

"On se fait toujours aimer, pourvu qu'on se rende aimable ; mais on ne se fait pas toujours estimer, quelque mérite qu'on ait."

MALEBRANCHE. Traité de la Morale, Chap. XIII., § 1.

"We can always make sure of affection if we make ourselves amiable, but we cannot always be sure of esteem, whatever may be our merits."

"On tire plus de services par les promesses que par les présents ; car les hommes se mettent en état de mériter ce qu'ils espèrent de nous : mais ils ne savent gré qu'à eux-mêmes de ce qu'ils reçoivent."

ST. EVREMOND. L'Intérêt. (Vol. III., p. 60.)

"We more readily secure the services of others by promises than by presents, for men set themselves to deserve what they hope to get from us, but thank none but themselves for what they receive."

"On tourne une pensée comme un habit, pour s'en servir plusieurs fois."

VAUVENARGUES. Réflexions et Maximes, 482.

"We turn a thought as we turn a coat, in order to use it several times."

"On va bien loin sitôt qu'on se fourvoie."

HONORÉ DE BALZAC. La Peau de Chagrin, p. 64.

“ Yes and no, that is the history of every controversy, whether religious, political or literary.”

“ Oui, ma Muse est trop libertine,
Elle a trop changé d'horizon ;
Elle a voyagé sans raison
Du Pérou jusques à la Chine.”¹

VOLTAIRE. Lettres en Vers et en Prose. A M. de Cideville, 1755.

“ Why, yes, my Muse is far too free,
Too oft has changed her point of view ;
For she has wandered aimlessly
From China even to Peru.”

“ Ouvrez toujours à vos ennemis toutes les portes et chemins, et plus tost leur faites un pont d'argent afin de les renvoyer.”

RABELAIS. Gargantua, I., 43.

“ Open ever to your enemies every gate and every road ; nay, rather build them a golden bridge to be the sooner quit of them.”

“ Par faire mal n'aprivois'on pas chien.”

EUSTACHE DESCHAMPS. Balades, MXV.

“ You cannot train a dog by cruelty.”

“ Par les mêmes voies on ne va pas toujours aux mêmes fins.”

ABBÉ DE SAINT-RÉAL. Observations sur la Fortune.

“ The same roads do not always lead to the same goals.”

“ Par quel destin faut-il, par quelle étrange loi,
Qu'à tous ceux qui sont nés pour porter la couronne
Ce soit l'usurpateur qui donne
L'exemple des vertus que doit avoir le roi ? ”

PAVILLON. Épithaphe de Cromwell.

“ What destiny commands, what law decrees
That, for those born to occupy the throne,
'Tis in the usurper that one sees
Those virtues mirrored that the king should own ? ”

“ Pardieu, les plus grands clercs ne sont pas les plus fins.”

MATHURIN REGNIER. Satyres, III. (Ed. 1517, p. 15.)

“ The greatest scholars, sure, are not the most acute.”

" Parfait Anglais, voyageant sans dessein,
Achetant cher de modernes antiques
Regardant tout avec un air hautain,
Et méprisant les saints et leurs reliques."

VOLTAIRE. La Pucelle, Chant VIII.

" A perfect Briton, wandering here and there,
Modern antiques at fancy prices buying,
Surveying all things with disdainful air,
And saints and relics scornfully decriing."

" Parfois dans un coin triste et noir pousse une fleur."

FRANÇOIS COPPÉE. L'Enfant de la Balle, I.

" Oft in some dull dark corner blooms a flower."

" Parler latin devant les Cordeliers."

" To speak Latin before the Cordeliers." (To discuss before experts a subject with which one is only partially acquainted.)

" (N'importe) parlons en et d'estoc et de taille,
Comme oculaire témoin.
Combien de gens font-ils des récits de bataille
Dont ils se sont tenus loin ! "

MOLIÈRE. Amphitryon, Act I., Sc. I.—(Sosie.)

" I'll reel it off, no matter wrongs or rights,
As if I all had seen.
How many people tell us tales of fights
Where they have never been ! "

" Parmi tous ces grands éloges, il n'y en a guère qui lui fasse plus d'honneur que celui qui se rapporte à l'exactitude de citer.
C'est un talent beaucoup plus rare que l'on ne pense."

PIERRE BAYLE. Dictionnaire Historique et Critique, Art. " Sanchez (Thomas)."

" Among all the praises that have been lavished on him, none does him more honour than that which refers to his accuracy in quotation, a talent which is much rarer than we think."

" Parole douce et main au bonnet
Ne coûte rien et bon est."

HENRI IV.

" Gentle speech and courteous mood
Cost nothing and are always good."

" Partout la jalousie est un monstre odieux
Rien n'en peut adoucir les traits injurieux ;
Et plus l'amour est cher qui lui donne naissance,
Plus on doit ressentir les coups de cette offense."

MOLIÈRE. Don Garcie de Navarre, Act I., Sc. I.—(Done Elvire.)

" Where jealousy its odious form displays
No balm the torture of its wounds allays ;
When most we love the source from which it springs,
'Tis then its poisoned dart most suffering brings."

VOLTAIRE. Entretiens d'A.B.C., VI. (Vol. VI., p. 1488.)

"The nearer conventional laws approach to natural law, the more bearable life becomes."

"Plus on aime quelqu'un, moins il faut qu'on le flatte ;

A ne rien pardonner le pur amour éclate."

MOLIÈRE. Le Misanthrope, Act II., Sc. V.—(Alceste.)

"Where most we love, we least should praise bestow ;

In nothing pardoning pure love we show."

"Plus on est élevé, plus on court de dangers ;

Les grands pins sont en butte aux coups de la tempeste

Et la rage des vents brise plutôt la faïste

Des maisons de nos roys, que les toits des bergers."

RACAN. Stances sur la Retraite.

"As we rise higher, so less safe our lot ;

No lofty pine is 'gainst the tempest proof,

And sooner the wind's rage o'erwhelms the roof

Of the king's palace, than the shepherd's cot."

Est l'Amphitryon où l'on dîne.”

MOLIÈRE. Amphitryon, Act III., Sc. V.—(Sosie.)

“ The true Amphitryon
Is the Amphitryon at whose board we dine.”

“ Por ce di je qu'amors ne vaut nient,
De nient vient et à nient retourne.”

QUÈNE DE BETHUNE. Chanson VII., 39. (Scheler, Trouvères Belges, 1876.)

“ Therefore I say that love is nothing worth,
From nothing comes, to nothing shall return.”

“ Por remembrer des ancessours
Li fez è li diz è li mours,
Deit l'en li livres è li gestes
E li estoires lire as festes.”

ROBERT WACE. Roman de Rou, line 1.

“ Who would remember his forbears,
What deeds, what words, what life was theirs,
Must chronicles and annals read
And histories written for his need.”

“ Pour aller à Corinthe
Le désir seul ne suffit pas.” J. B. ROUSSEAU. Odes, Livre II., 5.

“ The wish alone sufficeth not
To him who would to Corinth go.”

“ Pour bien exprimer ses caprices heureux
C'est peu d'être poète, il faut être amoureux.”
BOILEAU. L'Art Poétique, II., 43.

“ Who would his happy fancies well convey Need not be poet, must have felt love's sway.”

“ Pour embraser une âme
L'amour ne veut qu'un moment,
Mais on souffre un long tourment
Lorsqu'il faut éteindre sa flamme.”
MME. D'AULNOY. Contes des Fées.—“ Ponce de Léon.”

“ To set a soul on fire
Love need but a moment spend,
Yet our torment seems ne'er to end
Would we see that flame expire.”

✓ “ (Il est bon de tuer de temps en temps un amiral) pour encourager les autres.”

VOLTAIRE. Candide, Chap. XXIII. (Vol. VIII., p. 142.)

“ It is good from time to time to kill an admiral, in order to encourage the others.”

“ Quand votre sanglant ministère

Fusille un de vos amiraux
Afin d'encourager les autres.”

DORAT. Mes Fantaisies.—A M. Hume.

“ When your bloodthirsty ministry
Just shoots an admiral, to give Encouragement to all the rest.”

“ Pour être vertueux, il suffit de vouloir l'être.”

J. J. ROUSSEAU. Lettre à un Jeune Homme, 1758.

“ In order to be virtuous, it is enough to wish to be so.”

“ Pour exécuter de grandes choses, il faut vivre comme si on ne devait jamais mourir.” VAUVENARGUES. Réflexions et Maximes, 142.

“ For the execution of great enterprises one must live as though one would never die.”

“ Pour grands que sont les rois, ils sont ce que nous sommes ;
Ils peuvent se tromper comme les autres hommes.”

PIERRE CORNEILLE. Le Cid, Act I., Sc. VI.—(Le Comte.)

“ For all their greatness, kings are like the rest ;
They too full oft of error stand confessed.”

“ Pour juger de la beauté d'un ouvrage, il suffit donc de le considérer en lui-même ; mais pour juger du mérite de l'auteur, il faut le comparer à son siècle.”

FONTENELLE. Vie de M. de Corneille.

“ To judge of the beauty of a work it is sufficient to consider it by itself, but to judge of the merit of its author, it is necessary to compare him with his century.”

“ Pour la bien pleurer c'est trop peu de deux yeux.”

DESPORTES. Amours d'Hippolyte. Elégie. (Ed. 1600, p. 170.)

“ Two eyes shall not suffice to weep for her.”

“ Pour le bien de l'état tout est juste en un roi.”

PIERRE CORNEILLE. Pompée, Act II., Sc. III.—(Ptolomée.)

“ For the good of the state all is just in a king.”

“ Pour les hommes d'état comme pour les acteurs, il est des choses de métier que le génie ne révèle pas, il faut les apprendre.”

HONORÉ DE BALZAC. Le Lys dans la Vallée, p. 193.

“ For statesmen, as for actors, there are things in the profession which genius does not reveal but which have to be learnt.”

“ Pour les malheureux la mort a ses plaisirs.”

LA FONTAINE. Contes et Nouvelles.—“ La Cruche.”

“ For the unhappy death hath many charms.”

“ Pour obtenir un bien si grand, si précieux,
J'ay fait la guerre aux rois, je l'eusse faite aux Dieux.”

DU RYER. Alcionée, Act III., Sc. V.—(Alcionée.)

“ To gain so great, so precious a reward,
I've warred with kings, I would with gods have warred.”

“ Pour peu qu'un père de famille ait été absent de chez lui, il doit promener son esprit sur tous les fâcheux incidents que son retour peut rencontrer : se figurer sa maison brûlée, son argent dérobé, sa femme morte, son fils estropié, sa fille subornée ; et ce qu'il trouve qui ne lui est point arrivé, l'imputer à bonne fortune.”

MOLIÈRE. Les Fourberies de Scapin, Act II., Sc. VIII.—(Scapin.)

“ However short the absence from his home of the head of a family, he should turn over in his mind all the unpleasant incidents that may greet him on his return : imagine that his house is burnt down, his valuables stolen, his wife dead, his son crippled for life, his daughter dishonoured ; and whatever of these things has not happened, put it down to his good fortune.”

“ Pour punir une offense

La générosité peut plus que la vengeance.”

LA HARPE. Le Comte de Warwick, Act III., Sc. V.—(Elizabeth.)

“ To requite a wrong,
Sure, clemency than vengeance is more strong.”

“ Pour qui ne les craint point il n'est point de prodiges.”

VOLTAIRE. Sémiramis, Act II., Sc. VII.—(Assur.)

“ For those that fear them not there are no prodigies.”

"Prenez le temps comme il vient, le vent comme il souffle, la femme comme elle est."

DE MUSSET. Confession d'un Enfant du Siècle, I., 5.

"Take the weather as it comes, the wind as it blows, woman as she is."

"Presque tous les hommes meurent de leurs remèdes, et non pas de leurs maladies."

MOLIÈRE. Le Malade Imaginaire, Act III., Sc. III.—(Béralde.)

"Almost all men die of their medicines and not of their maladies."

"Promettre c'est donner ; espérer c'est jouir."

ABBÉ DELILLE. Les Jardins, Chant II.

"To promise is to give ; to hope is to enjoy."

Le Peux chevalier et sans reproche see p. 30

"Prouver l'Evangile par un miracle, c'est prouver une absurdité par une chose contre nature."

DIDEROT. Addition aux Pensées Philosophiques, XXI.

"To prove the Gospel by means of a miracle, is to prove an absurdity by something which is contrary to nature."

"Puis fiez-vous à Messieurs les savans !"

VOLTAIRE. La Pucelle, Chant X.

"After that trust these scientific men !"

"Puisqu'ici tous les hommes sont fous,
Ce n'est pas un grand mal, hurlons avec les loups."

REGNARD. *Epître à M. le Marquis de * * . (Ed. 1790, Vol. IV., p. 389.)

"Since on earth all men are mad,
Howl with the wolves, for things are not so bad."

"Puisque tu sais quel moyen il faut suivre
Pour vivre bien, pourquoi ne vis-tu pas
Pour bien mourir aussi, qu'à ton trépas
Tu voudrais bien avoir su toujours vivre ?"

ANTOINE FAURE. Quatrain XLVIII.

"Since thou well knowest what thy course should be
To live well, let thy life be ordered so
That thou may'st die well : thus, when thou must go,
Thou wouldst have wished to live eternally."

"Qu'en savantes leçons votre muse fertile Partout joigne au plaisant le solide et l'utile."

BOILEAU. L'Art Poétique, IV., 87.

"In learned lessons always let your fertile muse
To the amusing join what 's solid and of use."

"Qu'est-ce donc oublier, si ce n'est pas mourir ?
Ah ! c'est plus que mourir, c'est survivre à soi-même.
L'âme remonte au ciel, quand on perd ce qu'on aime.
Il ne reste de nous qu'un cadavre vivant,
Le désespoir l'habite, et le néant l'attend."

DE MUSSET. Lettre à Lamartine.

"What is forgetting if it be not death ?
'Tis self-survival, which is worse than death.
The soul mounts heavenward when our loved we lose,
And nought is left us save a living corpse,
Its guest despair, and nothingness its goal."

"Qu'heureux est le mortel qui, du monde ignoré,
Vit content de soi-même en un coin retiré ;
Que l'amour de ce rien qu'on nomme renommée
N'a jamais enivré d'une vaine fumée.
Qui de sa liberté forme tout son plaisir,
Et ne rend qu'à lui seul compte de son loisir."

BOILEAU. Epîtres, VI., 99.

"Happy the mortal, by the world forgot,
Who lives contented in some lonely cot ;
Who, from ambition free, has never quaffed
Empty renown's intoxicating draught.
Who in his liberty finds all his pleasure,
And renders count to no one of his leisure."

“Qu'il y ait un seul moment où rien ne soit, éternellement rien ne sera.”

(Vol. X., p. 82.)

“Let there be but one moment when nothing exists, and nothing will exist for eternity.”

L'anés dounc plus traire de ramo :

Arrapas un barroun, e 'm' acò 'nsucas-lou !”

MISTRAL. Mireille, Chant VII. (Ed. 1891, p. 217.)

“When brays the ass,
Put not thyself about to get him grass,
But take thy stick in hand, and thrash him well.”

“ Quand l'aveugle destin aurait fait une loi
 Pour me faire vivre sans cesse,
 J'y renoncerais par tendresse
 Si mes amis n'étaient immortels comme moi.”
 MADELEINE DE SCUDÉRI. Réponse à un Madrigal où on la traitait d'immortelle.

“ E'en if it were blind Destiny's decree
 That I should live on earth for aye,
 For love's sake I should say her nay,
 Unless my friends immortal were with me.”

“ Quand l'ennemi nous craint, il faut tout hasarder.”
 LA HARPE. Coriolan, Act III., Sc. IV.—(Coriolan.)
 “ When the foe fears us we must all things dare.”

“ Quand l'hiver a glacé nos guérets,
 Le printemps vient à reprendre sa place,
 Et ramène à nos champs leurs attraits.
 Mais, hélas ! quand l'âge nous glace,
 Nos beaux jours ne reviennent jamais.”
 MOLIÈRE. Pastorale Comique, Sc. XV.—(L'Egyptienne.)

“ Beneath the snows our pastures lay ;
 Then as the spring doth backward steal,
 Our fields once more their charms display.
 But when Time's icy hand we feel,
 Our happy days are gone for aye.”

“ (C'est que) quand l'homme commence à raisonner, il cesse de sentir.”
 J. J. ROUSSEAU. Réponse à Bernardin de Saint-Pierre, Etudes de la Nature, Etude Première.

“ The truth is, that when man begins to reason he ceases to feel.”

“ Quand la jeunesse aime une fois, elle croit être capable d'aimer éternellement.”

GUYOT DE MERVILLE. Le Consentement Forcé, Sc. XVII.—(Orgon.)

Vivre est un mal. C'est un secret de tous connu.”

BAUDELAIRE. Les Fleurs du Mal, XL.—“ Semper Eadem.”

“ Once we the vintage of the heart have gathered,
Life is an ill. This secret all men know.”

“ Quand on a besoin des hommes, il faut bien s'ajuster à eux, et puisqu'on ne saurait les gagner que par là, ce n'est pas la faute de ceux qui flattent, mais de ceux qui veulent être flattés.”

MOLIÈRE. L'Avare, Act I., Sc. I.—(Valère.)

“ When men are necessary to us we must try to make ourselves agreeable to them, and as that is the only way to win them over, the fault lies, not with the flatterers, but with those who wish to be flattered.”

“ Quand on a tout perdu, quand on n'as plus d'espoir,
La vie est un opprobre, et la mort un devoir.”

VOLTAIRE. Méropé, Act II., Sc. VII.—(Méropé.)

“ When all is lost, when our last hope doth fly,
Life is but shame; our duty is to die.”

“ Quand on aime trop, on ne sait ce qu'on fait,
On suit sa passion : la raison vient, tracasse,
Et d'un cœur tout en feu fait un cœur tout de glace.”

NÉRICHAULT-DESTOUCHES. L'Irrésolu, Act V., Sc. XI.—(Frontin.)

“ Who loves too fiercely knows not what he does;
His passion sways him : reason comes, and lo !
A heart of fire becomes a heart of snow.”

 Pourrait, en voyant sa beauté,
 Préférer les lis de Lucrèce,
 Et les paleurs de la sagesse,
 Aux roses de la volupté ? ”

CARDINAL DE BERNIS. Le Matin.

“ What gloomy student of old Greece,
 As on her charms his gaze reposes,
 Would choose the lilies of Lucrece,
 Or virtue's garland colourless,
 In place of passion's roses ? ”

“ Quelle vanité que la peinture, qui attire l'admiration par la ressemblance des choses dont on n'admire pas les originaux ! ”

PASCAL. Pensées, Part I., Art. X., 31.

 On trouve à l'avouer toujours un peu de honte.”

MOLIÈRE. Tartuffe, Act IV., Sc. V.—(Elmire.)

“ How wise soe'er the love by which we're tamed,
 Yet to avow it we are aye ashamed.”

“ Quelque sujet qu'on traite, ou plaisant ou sublime,
 Que toujours le bon sens s'accorde avec la rime ;
 L'un l'autre vainement ils semblent se haïr :
 La rime est une esclave, et ne doit qu'obéir.”

BOILEAU. L'Art Poétique, I., 27.

“ With every subject, trifling or sublime,
 Aye let good sense be wedded to the rhyme ;
 Let not their seeming hatred you dismay :
 Rhyme is a slave and has but to obey.”

“ He who would drown his dog first calls him mad.”

“ Qui va plus tost que la fumée,
Si ce n'est la flamme allumée ?
Plus tost que la flamme ? le vent :
Plus tost que le vent ? c'est la femme :
Quoi plus ? rien, elle va devant
Le vent, la fumée et la flamme.”

AGRIPPA D'AUBIGNÉ. Pièces Epigrammatiques, II.

“ Than smoke what swifter can ye name,
Unless it be the lighted flame ?
What swifter than the flame ? The wind.
Swifter than that ? 'Tis womankind.
What swifter ? Nothing ; she with ease
Outstrips alike flame, smoke and breeze.”

“ He who lives without folly is not so wise as he thinks.”

“ Qui volontiers jure, volontiers se parjure.”

JOINVILLE. Histoire de St. Louis, CX. (Ed. Paris, 1761, p. 57.)

“ Whoso readily swears is readily forsworn.”

“ Quiconque aima jamais porte une cicatrice ;
Chacun l'a dans son sein, toujours prête à s'ouvrir ;
Chacun la garde en soi, cher et secret supplice,
Et mieux il est frappé, moins il en veut guérir.”

DE MUSSET. Lettre à Lamartine.

“ Whoso hath loved bears ever in his breast
A wound that at a touch will bleed again,
Sweet sorrow to himself alone confessed,
Nor, when sore stricken, would he heal his pain.”

"Quiconque aime à honorer les monuments du salut des hommes n'en devrait approcher qu'à genoux."

J. J. ROUSSEAU. Les Confessions, Part. I., Livre II.

"Whoever loves to honour the monuments of man's salvation should only approach them on his knees."

"Quiconque aime à se cacher a, tôt ou tard, raison de se cacher."

J. J. ROUSSEAU. La Nouvelle Héloïse, Part. IV., Lettre VII.

"Whoever loves to hide himself has, sooner or later, a reason for hiding."

"Quiconque croit quelque chose, estime que c'est ouvrage de charité de la persuader à un autre."

MONTAIGNE. Essais, III., 11. (P. 280.) (Cf. Charron, La Sagesse, Livre I., Chap. XLI.)

"Whoever believes anything thinks it an act of charity to persuade others of its truth."

"Quiconque est riche est tout : sans sagesse il est sage ;

Il a, sans rien savoir, la science en partage."

BOILEAU. Satires, VIII., 199.

"Wise without wisdom he who wealth doth own ;
His is all knowledge though he nought hath known."

"Quiconque sait aimer peut devenir aimable." SEGRAIS. Climène.

"Whoso can love may lovable become."

"Quoi que fasse le grand homme,
Il n'est grand homme qu'à sa mort."

LEFRANC DE POMPIGNAN. Sur la Mort de J. B. Rousseau.

"Whate'er the great man do,
He is not great till he be dead."

"Quoi que puisse dire Aristote et toute la philosophie, il n'est rien égal au tabac ; c'est la passion des honnêtes gens, et qui vit sans tabac n'est pas digne de vivre."

MOLIÈRE. Le Festin de Pierre, Act I., Sc. I.—(Sganarelle.)

"Whatever Aristotle and all the other philosophers may say, there is nothing like tobacco ; it is a passion with all decent folk, and the man who lives without tobacco is not fit to live."

"Quoi qu'en dise Aristote et sa docte cabale, Le tabac est divin, il n'est rien qui l'égale."

THOMAS CORNEILLE. Le Festin de Pierre, Act I., Sc. I.
—(Sganarelle.)

"Let Aristotle vapour, and his learned clique, Divine tobacco's equal you will vainly seek."

"Rappelez les plaisirs, ils fuiront votre voix, Et leurs chaînes de fleurs se rompront sous vos doigts."

ALFRED DE VIGNY. Le Bal.

"Recall your pleasures, they will flee your call :
Their garlands will beneath your fingers fall."

"Rarement à courir le monde
On devient plus homme de bien."

REGNIER DESMARAIS. Le Voyage de Munik. (Ed. 1753, p. 179.)

"'Tis rare that wandering through the world
Doth make of one a better man."

"Dans mainte auteur de science profonde
J'ai lu que l'on perd à trop courir le monde ;
Très rarement en devient-on meilleur :
Un sort errant ne conduit qu'à l'erreur."

GRESSET. Vert-Vert, Chant I.

"In the pages of many an author I read
That to travel too much is an error indeed ;
We rarely become any better, they say,
For a wandering life only leads us astray."

"Rarement un esprit ose être ce qu'il est."

BOILEAU. Epîtres, IX., 74.

"Rarely a mind dares show itself unveiled."

"Renommée
Vaut mieux que ceinture dorée."

"Rien, afin que tout dure,
Ne dure éternellement."

F. DE MALHERBE. Sur la Prise de Marseille.

"Nothing, that everything may last,
Can last to all eternity."

" Rien au monde ne dure
Qu'un éternel changement."

RACAN. Odes. La Venue du Printemps.

" Nothing in this world lasts
But an eternal change."

" (Et) rien, comme tu le sais bien, Veut dire rien, ou peu de chose."

MOLIÈRE. Amphitryon, Act II., Sc. III.—(Sosie.)

" And nothing, as no doubt you know,
Means nothing, or but little more."

" Rien dans la vie n'exige plus d'attention que les choses qui paraissent naturelles ; on se défie toujours assez de l'extraordinaire."

HONORÉ DE BALZAC. Un Ménage de Garçon, p. 15.

" Nothing demands more attention than things which seem natural ; we are always suspicious enough of the extraordinary."

" Rien n'apaise un lecteur toujours tremblant d'effroi, Qui voit peindre en autrui ce qu'il remarque en soi."

BOILEAU. Satires, IX., 141.

" Nothing to the affrighted reader can bring peace,
When what 's portrayed in others in himself he sees."

" Rien n'empêche tant d'être naturel que l'envie de le paraître."

" Nothing prevents our being natural so much as the desire to appear so."

" Rien n'est beau que le vrai : le vrai seul est aimable."

BOILEAU. Épîtres, IX., 43.

" Nought but the true is fair : nought else is lovable."

" Rien n'est beau que le vrai, dit un vers respecté ;

Et moi je lui réponds, sans crainte d'un blasphème :

Rien n'est vrai que le beau, rien n'est vrai sans beauté."

DE MUSSET. *Après une Lecture, VIII. (Poésies Nouvelles,
p. 240.)*

" Nought but the true is fair, so says a verse of fame ;

But I would answer make, nor fear that I blaspheme,

Nought but the fair is true, all truth can beauty claim."

" Rien n'est plus périlleux
Que de quitter le bien pour être mieux."

VOLTAIRE. Contes en vers.—La Bègueule.

" There's nought more dangerous
Than to desert the good to seek the better."

" Rien n'est plus sot, Domergue, qu'un sot rire."

ECOUCARD LEBRUN. Epigrammes, V., 64.

" Nothing more foolish is than foolish laughter."

" Rien n'est si dangereux qu'un ignorant ami ;
Mieux vaudrait un sage ennemi."

LA FONTAINE. Fables, VIII., 10.—" L'Ours et l'Amateur des Jardins."

" Nought is more dangerous than a foolish friend ;
A prudent foe is better in the end."

" Rien n'est si doux que ce qui est fort."

LAMARTINE. Voyage en Orient.—" Souvenirs, Impressions, Pensées et Paysages," 14 Juillet, 1832.

" Nothing is so gentle as that which is strong."

" Rien n'est si voisin du haut style que le galimatias : le ridicule est une des extrémités du subtil."

L. J. GUEZ BALZAC. Socrate Chrétien, Discours X.

" Nothing so closely approaches a grand style as turgid nonsense : the ridiculous is one of the extremes of the subtle."

" Le magnifique et le ridicule sont si voisins qu'ils se touchent."

FONTENELLE. Dialogues des Morts. Anciens et Modernes, I.—(Scarron.)

" The magnificent and the ridiculous are such near neighbours that they touch one another."

" En général le ridicule touche au sublime, et pour marcher sur la limite qui les sépare, sans la passer jamais, il faut bien prendre garde à soi."

MARMONTEL. Eléments de Littérature, Vol. I., Art. " Ampoulé".

" As a rule the ridiculous touches the sublime, and to follow the line of demarcation between them without ever overstepping it requires constant watchfulness."

" Du sublime au ridicule il n'y a qu'un pas."

NAPOLÉON. (De Pradt, Histoire de l'Ambassade dans le Grand-Duché de Varsovie en 1812. Ed. 1815, p. 215.)

" (Ecartez ce fâcheux qui vers vous s'achemine ;)

Rien ne doit déranger l'honnête homme qui dîne."

BERCHOUX. La Gastronomie, Chant III.

" Please stop that bore this way his steps inclining ;
Nought should disturb the honest man who's dining."

¹ This phrase was attributed to the Comte d'Artois, afterwards Charles X., in an article in the Moniteur, April, 1814. The story is told by Beugnot in his Mémoires, loc. cit.

" Rien ne fait oublier l'absence d'un plaisir, Comme la présence d'un autre."

SENECÉ. Moralité.

" Nought helps us to forget a pleasure vanished,
As does the presence of another."

" Rien ne pèse tant qu'un secret :
Le porter loin est difficile aux dames ;
Et je sais même sur ce fait
Bon nombre d'hommes qui sont femmes."

LA FONTAINE. Fables, VIII., 6.—" Les Femmes et le Secret."

" Can aught than secrets heavier be ?
The ladies find them hard to bear ;
And many men in this I see
Who must be counted 'mongst the fair."

LA BRUYÈRE. Caractères. Du Mérite Personnel, XI.

"We must base our claim to distinction on those things which depend not on others but on ourselves, or else renounce our claim."

"Se pare qui voudra des noms de ses aïeux :
Moi, je ne veux porter que moi-même en tous lieux ;
Je ne veux rien devoir à ceux qui m'ont fait naître,
Et suis assez connu sans les faire connaître.

Ma valeur est ma race, et mon bras est mon père."

PIERRE CORNEILLE. Don Sanche, Act I., Sc. III.—(Carlos.)

"Let who will drape him in his father's name,
I on myself alone will build my fame ;
To those who gave me birth I'll nothing owe,
I need not make them known, for me ye know,
My valour is my race, my arm's my sire."

Et t'en garde comme d'un traistre.”

Quoted by MONTAIGNE. Essais, III., 5. (P. 77.)

“ Thy husband as thy lord obey,
And keep good watch lest he betray.”

“ Si c'est un crime de l'aimer,
On ne doit justement blâmer
Que les beautés qui sont en elle :
La faute en est aux dieux
Qui la firent si belle,
Et non pas à mes yeux.”

JEAN DE LINGENDES. Chanson.

“ If 'tis a crime to love her,
I justly may reprove her
For that she is so fair.
Nay, all the blame on heaven lies
That gave her charms so rare,
And not upon my eyes.”

“ La faute en est aux dieux qui la firent si bête.”

GRESSET. Le Méchant, Act II., Sc. VII.

“ 'Tis the gods' fault that made her such a fool.”

" Inflated diction wearies and disgusts ;

The sated mind refuses it at sight.

Who learns not reticence can never write."

" Tout ce qui est naturel est varié."

MME. DE STAËL. Corinne, Livre I., Chap. IV.

" Whatever is natural possesses variety."

" Tout ce qui n'est point prose est vers ; et tout ce qui n'est point vers est prose."

MOLIÈRE. Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme, Act II., Sc. VI.—(Le Maître de Philosophie.)

" All that is not prose is verse, and all that is not verse is prose."

" Tout ce qui sort de l'homme est rapide et fragile, Mais le vers est de bronze et la prose est d'argile."

LAMARTINE. Réponse aux Adieux de Sir Walter Scott.

" All that man utters swift doth pass away,

But poetry is bronze, and prose is clay."

" Tout ce qui vit n'est fait que pour nous réjouir, Et se moquer du monde est tout l'art d'en jouir."

GRESSET. Le Méchant, Act II., Sc. III.—(Cléon.)

" All living things are made to be our toys ;

Who mocks the world, alone the world enjoys."

"Tout cherche son bien-être et chacun vit pour soi :
Des êtres animés c'est l'immuable loi."

MOLIÈRE. Les Femmes Savantes, Act IV., Sc. II.—(Armande.)

"A heart unfaithful is a moral monster."

"Tout comprendre rend très indulgent."

MME. DE STAËL. Corinne, Chap. V.

"Full understanding makes us most indulgent."

"Tout est dit, et l'on vient trop tard depuis plus de sept mille ans qu'il y a des hommes et qui pensent."

LA BRUYÈRE. Caractères, Des Ouvrages de l'Esprit, I.

"Everything has been said, and we come too late by more than seven thousand years, since when there have been men, and men who thought."

"Tout est dit, tout devient commun.

Les Conquérans voudroient un nouveau monde ;

C'est aux Rimeurs qu'il en faut un."

HOUDART DE LA MOTTE. Fables Nouvelles, II., 5, 13.

"All's commonplace, all has been said before.
Great conquerors have cried for a new world,
But, as I think, the Rhymesters need one more."

1737. (Voltaire, Vol. XII., p. 89.)*

"All the good things have been said by others before me."

"On a tout dit."

JOSEPH CHÉNIER. Le Public et l'Anonyme.

"Everything has been said."

"Rien de nouveau dans la nature et dans les arts. Tout ce qu'on fait a été fait ; tout ce qu'on dit a été dit ; tout ce qu'on rêve a été rêvé."

LAMARTINE. Voyage en Orient.—"Souvenirs, Impressions, Pensées et Paysages, 24 Juillet, 1832."

"There is nothing new in nature or the arts. Whatever we do has been done ; whatever we say has been said ; whatever we dream has been dreamed."

"Je suis venu trop tard dans un siècle trop vieux."

DE MUSSET. Rolla, I.

"Too late I came into too old a world."

“ Il faut être ignorant comme un maître d'école
 Pour se flatter de dire une seule parole
 Que personne ici-bas n'ait pu dire avant nous,
 C'est imiter quelqu'un que de planter des choux.”

DE MUSSET. Namouna, Chant II., 9.

“ As simple as a schoolmaster are they
 Who fancy they a single word can say
 Which is not from some other a quotation.
 E'en planting cabbages is imitation.”

“ Tout est donc hasard ? Oui, pourvu qu'on donne ce nom à un ordre que l'on ne connaît pas.”

FONTENELLE. Dialogues des Morts. Modernes, II.—(Erasme et Charles V.)

“ All is then chance ? Yes, provided that we give the name of chance to a sequence which is entirely unknown to us.”

GRESSET. Le Méchant, Act IV., Sc. VII.—(Cléon.)

“ All is wrong, all is right, all the world is content.”

“ Tout faiseur de journaux doit tribut au malin.”

LA FONTAINE. Lettre à M. Simon de Troyes, Février, 1686.

“ All journalists owe tribute to the devil.”

“ Tout franc, vous vous levez tous les jours trop matin.

Qui veut voyager loin ménage sa monture ;

Buvez, mangez, dormez, et faisons feu qui dure.”

RACINE. Les Plaideurs, Act I., Sc. I.—(Petit-Jean.)

“ Frankly, you get up every day too soon.

He who would travel far rides not too fast ;

Eat, drink and sleep, and build a fire to last.”

“ Tout homme à ses bienfaits a droit également ;

Aucun dans l'univers n'est né pour son tourment.”

DE LATOUCHE. Iphigénie en Tauride, Act I., Sc. V.—(Iphigénie.)

“ All men to happiness have equal right ;
 None for his torment only saw the light.”

“ Tout homme a une bête féroce en soi ; peu savent l'enchaîner, la plupart lui lâche le frein, lorsque la terreur des lois ne les retient pas.”

FREDERICK THE GREAT. Lettre à M. de Voltaire, 31 Oct., 1760.
 (Voltaire, Vol. XII., p. 458.)

“ Every man has a wild beast within him ; a few can keep it in subjection, but the majority let it loose whenever they are not restrained by the laws.”

“ Tout homme a vu le mur qui borne son esprit.”

ALFRED DE VIGNY. La Flûte.

“ Each man has seen the wall which bounds his mind.”

“ Tout homme doit être soldat pour la défense de sa liberté ; nul ne doit l'être pour envahir celle d'autrui.”

J. J. ROUSSEAU. Dernière Réponse à M. Bordes.

"Un vin d'Aï, dont la mousse pressée,
De la bouteille avec force élançée,
Comme un éclair fait voler son bouchon :
Il part, on rit, il frappe le plafond.
De ce vin frais l'écume pétillante
De nos Français est l'image brillante."

VOLTAIRE. Satires.—"Le Mondain."

"Like to the prisoned vintage of Champagne,
That, from the bottle bursting forth amain,
Drives out the cork, swift as the lightning flashes,
Which, 'midst loud laughter, 'gainst the ceiling dashes ;
This foaming wine, wherein the sparklets dance,
A picture gives us of the sons of France."

"Un voyageur vaut bien pour le moins un Gascon."

COLLIN D'HARLEVILLE. Monsieur de Crac, Act I., Sc. I.—(Saint-Brice.)

"Not e'en
A Gascon can outvie a traveller's tales."

Non si giova la storia.”

GIUSTI. La Terra dei Morti, St. III.

“Ah! in a nation dead
History takes no delight.”

“Ahi crudo Amor! ch' egualmente n'ancide
L'assenzio e 'l mel che tu fra noi dispensi,
E d'ogni tempo egualmente mortali
Vengon da te le medicine e i mali.”

TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata, IV., 92.

“Ah cruel Love! that men alike dost slay
Dispensing now thy honey, now thy gall.
In all thou giv'st we equal danger see,
Be it thy medicine or thy malady.”

“Ahi lasso! che li buoni e li malvagi,
Uomini tutti hanno preso accordanza
Di mettere le donne in dispregianza.”

GUITONE D'AREZZO. Canzoni, XLIII.

“Alas! how sad that men,
The good and bad alike, should all agree
To treat the female sex with contumely.”

“Ahi nova gente oltra misura altera,
Irreverente a tanta, ed a tal madre!”

PETRARCA. Canzoni Sopra vari Argomenti, II.—A Cola da Rienzo.

“Lo! a new race, whose overweening pride
So good and great a mother doth deride.”

“Ahi! sugli estinti
Non sorge fiore, ove non sia d'umane
Lodi onorato, e d'amoroso pianto.”

FOSCOLO. Dei Sepolcri, 88.

“Where the dead are laid
No flower will spring, unless it watered be
With loving tears, and sunn'd with generous praise.”

“Ahime! che de tutti gli humani effetti solo è amore insatiabile.”

ARIOSTO. Gli Spositi, Act I.—(Dulipo.)

“Alas! that of human appetites love alone is insatiable!”

“Al fin tanto sospetto meco vive,
Ch' io temo ogn' altro, ed odio chi la mira:
Foss' io senza occhi, o tutto il mondo cieco.”

GUIDICIONI. Sonetto C.

“So great suspicion lodges in my breast,
That all who gaze on her I fear and hate:
Would I were sightless, or the whole world blind!”

“Al gatto vecchio,
Dice il proverbio, dagli topo tenero.”

CECCHI. Il Diamante, Act I., Sc. I.

“To the old cat,
So says the proverb, give a tender mouse.”

"Al magnanimo spirto non bisogna
La vista altrui, per arrossir di scorno :
Ma di se si vergogna talhor, ch' erra,
Se ben no 'l vede altro che cielo e terra."

TANSILLO. Le Lagrime di San Pietro, V., St. IV.

"The noble spirit doth not need the gaze
Of others to bring blushes to his cheek :
But swift his error doth to shame give birth,
Though he be seen of none save heaven and earth."

"Al mio tempo non si trovavano virtù e costumi se non in corte."

ARETINO. La Cortigiana, Act II., Sc. VI.—(Sempronio.)

"In my time it was only at court that virtue and good manners were to be found."¹

"The proverb says
That men turn ever to the rising sun,
Because the setting sun is lost too soon."

"Al tempo farò ben delle magliate, Quando le micce saran cavriuoli."

BRUNETTO LATINI. Pataffio, Cap. III.

"All in good time a warrior's fame I'll earn,
So soon as donkeys into goats do turn."

"Al vincitor tutte soccorrono."

SANNAZARO. Arcadia, Ecloga I.—(Selvaggio.)

"The ladies all help to the victor bring."

"Alcun non può saper da chi sia amato
Quando felice in su la ruota siede ;
Pero c' ha i veri e finti amici a lato,
Che mostran tutti una medesima fede.
Se poi si cangia in tristo il liete stato,
Volta la turba adulatrice il piede ;
E quel che de cor ama, riman forte,
Ed ama il suo signor dopo la morte."

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XIX., 1.

"None see the heart, while placed in prosperous state
On Fortune's wheel, such numbers round them wait
Of true and seeming friends ; when these no less
By looks declare that faith, which those possess.
But should to fair succeed tempestuous skies,
Behold how soon each fawning suppliant flies !
While he who truly loved, unmoved remains,
And to his patron dead his love maintains."—(Hoole.)

¹ Cf. Shakespeare. As You Like It, Act III. Sc. II.—"Wast ever at court, shepherd," etc.

“L'unico ben, ma grande,
Che rimane fra' disastri agl' infelici,
È di distinguer da' finti i veri amici.”

METASTASIO. Alessandro, Act II., Sc. I.—(Poro.)

“One blessing, but a priceless one, remains
To the unfortunate, 'midst all their woes;
'Tis that they know their false friends from the true.”

“Alfin che mai
Esser può questa morte? Un ben? s'affretti.
Un mal? fuggasi presto
Dal timor d'aspettarlo,
Che è mal peggior.”

METASTASIO. Temistocle, Act III., Sc. II.—(Temistocle.)

“What, after all,
Is death? A good? Then let it come with speed.
An ill? Then swiftly flee
From the expectant fear
Which is an ill more dire.”

“Alfin s'invecchia amore
Senza quest' arti, e devien pigro e lento,
Quasi destrier che men veloce corra
Se non ha chi lui segua o chi 'l precorra.”

TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata, V., 70.

“Love in the end grows old,
Without these arts, and spiritless and slow,
Like courser that ne'er shows his highest speed,
Unless some rival follow or precede.”

“Love, that ill-mannered boy,
Of every heart makes game,
And most delights to toy
With him who most resists and shuns his flame.”

“Amor ch' al cor gentil ratto s'apprende,
Prese costui de la bella persona
Che mi fu tolta, e 'l modo ancor m' offende.
Amor ch' a nullo amato amar perdona,
Mi prese del costui piacer sì forte
Che come vedi ancor non m' abbandona.”

DANTE. Inferno, V., 100.

“Love, to which gentle heart so quickly tends,
Made captive this one of my form so fair
Snatcht from me in a way that still offends.
Love that each loved one makes the passion share
For him inspired me a delight so sweet,
That, as thou seest, he has not left me here.”—(J. I. Minchin.)

“Amor che nella mente mi ragiona,
Comincio egli allor sì dolcemente
Che la dolcezza ancor dentro mi suona.”

DANTE. Purgatorio, II., 112. (Cf. Convito, Trat. III.)

“‘Love that now parleys with me in my mind,’
So sweetly then did he begin the strain,
That lingers yet the dulcet sound behind.”—(J. I. Minchin.)

“ Even sensible people, when they attempt to penetrate the secrets of the Divinity, become as little children.”

“ Ancorachè usare la fraude in ogni azione sia detestabile, non dimeno nel maneggiar la guerra è cosa laudabile e gloriosa, e parimente è laudato colui che con fraude supera il nimico, come quello che lo supera con le forze.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Discorsi sopra la prima Deca di Tito Livio, II.
—Introduzione.

“ Although it be detestable in every thing to employ fraud, nevertheless in the conduct of war it is praiseworthy and admirable, and he is commended who overcomes the foe by stratagem, equally with him who overcomes by force.”

“ Sempre il vincere è bel, sempre si loda,
O per sorte si vinca, ovver per froda.”

MARINI. L'Adone, XV., 98.

Whether by luck he wins, or stratagem.”

“ Vincasi per virtude, ovver per frode,
 È sempre vincitor degno di lode.”

CASTI. Gli Animali Parlanti, XI., 4.—(La Volpe.)

“ By valour gain he victory, or by fraud,
 Ever the victor is deserving laud.”

“ Già non è male usare ingegni, e fraudi
 Contra il nimico suo, pur che si vinca;
 Che più la fraude il vincitor onora
 Che non onora la fortezza il vinto.”

TRISSINO. L'Italia Liberata da' Goti, Lib. IV. (Ed. Parigi, 1729, Vol. I., p. 149.)

“ There is no harm in stratagem and fraud
 Against the foe, so we but overcome;
 The victor by his fraud more honour gains
 Than doth the conquered by his bravery.”

“ I blame not him who for love's sake doth sin.”

“ Chi pecora si fa, la mangia il lupo.”

GOZZI. Sermoni, V.

“ Who shows himself a sheep, the wolf will eat.”

“ (Ma) chi pensa da saggio, e opra da prode
Della forza trionfa e della frode.”

CASTI. Gli Animali Parlanti, XI., 38.—(Il Cane.)

“ Whoso in thought is wise, in deed upright,
Triumphantly 'gainst force and fraud shall fight.”

“ Chi per l'altrui mani
S'imbocca, tardi si satolla.”

CECCHI. Le Rappresentazion di Tobia, Act I., Sc. III.—(Samuella.)

“ Who trusts to others for his food,
Waits long e'er he be satisfied.”

“ Chi per se raguna, per altri sparpaglia.”

SACCHETTI. Novella CLXXXVIII.

“ He who hoards in his own person, squanders through others.”

“ Chi piglia una tirannide, e non ammazza Bruto, e chi fa un stato libero, e non ammazza i figliuoli di Bruto, si mantiene poco tempo.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Discorsi sopra la prima Deca di Tito Livio, III., 3.

“ He who seeks to become a despot, and does not kill Brutus, and he who establishes a free state, and does not kill the sons of Brutus, will not maintain his position for long.”

PULCI. Morgante Maggiore, XXI., 4.

“Who threatens most is he who most doth fear.”

“Chi pon leggi agli amanti?” POLIZIANO. Orfeo, Act IV.—(Orfeo.)

“Who can make laws for lovers?”

(Ed. Colonia, 1704, p. 51.)

“He who can live without eating may safely embark on a campaign without the necessary commissariat.”

“Chi pur vuole attendere a trattati, si ricordi, che nessuna cosa lo rovina piu che il desiderio di volerli condurre troppo securi.”

GUICCIARDINI. Piu Consigli et Avvertimenti, XXXIX.

“He who desires to make a treaty must remember that nothing is more disastrous than the attempt to render it too secure.”

“Chi rompe paga.”

FERRARI. La Satira e Parini, Act I., Sc. IV.—(Il Governatore.)

“Who breaks, pays.”

“Chi qui morto mi piange indarno spera,

Bagnando l'ossa e 'l mio sepulcro, tutto

Ritornarmi com' arbor secco al frutto ;

C' uom morto non risurge a primavera.”

BUONAROTTI. Epitaffi, XIX.

“Who weeps me lying dead, doth hope in vain,

Bathing my ashes and my tomb, that I

To fruitage shall return, like tree once dry ;

To no new spring the dead may rise again.”

“(Che) chi ragiona del voler Divino
Tanto n'intende men, quanto più parla.”
TRISSINO. L'Italia Liberata da' Goti, Lib. X. (Ed. Parigi, 1729, Vol. II., p. 8.)

“For he who reasons on the will Divine,
The more he talks, the less he understands.”

“Chi ruba un corno, un cavallo, un anello,
E simil cose, ha qualche discrezione,
E potrebbe chiamarsi ladroncello;
Ma quel che ruba la riputazione,
E de l'altrui fatiche si fa bello,
Si può chiamare assassino e ladrone.”
BERNI. Orlando Innamorato, LI., 1.

“He who conveys a ring, a horse, a hat,
And things like these, shows some discrimination;
Mere petty pilfering 's the name for that.
But him who steals another's reputation,
And on the fruits of others' toil grows fat,
Hail thief and murderer by acclamation.”

“Chi s'affoga suol gridare, ancora che non sia udito.”
CARO. Lettere Burlevoli, VI.—A Apollonio Filarete.

“The drowning man will always scream, though there be none to hear him.”

DIVIZIO DA BIBBIENA. La Calandria, Act IV., Sc. IV.—(Fannio.)

“Who flies from one danger escapes a hundred.”

“Chi scrive in una lingua abbondante, è come un uomo che ha molti habiti, altri per usi domestici, altri per prodursi in pubblico, altri per le feste solenni.”
ZANOTTI. Paradossi, XI.

“He who writes in a rich language is like a man with many suits of clothes, some for home wear, others in which to appear in public, and others for state occasions.”

“Chi semina del male, e poi si crede
Raccor del bene, e temerario e stolto.”

“Foolish and rash is he who, sowing ill,
Doth think to gather in a crop of good.”

"(Che) chi serve a' monarchi, o presto o tardi, Scopo si rende dell' invidia altrui."

GOLDONI. Belisario, Act V., Sc. IV.—(Belisario.)

"Whoso a monarch serves, or soon or late Becomes the butt of others' envious shafts."

"(Che) chi si trova in degno laccio preso,
Se ben di se vede sua donna schiva,
E in tutto aversa al suo desire acceso,
Se bene amor d'ogni mercede il priva;
Poscia che 'l tempo, e la fatica ha speso,
Pur ch' altamente abbia locato il core,
Pianger non de', se ben languisce e muore."

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XVI., 2.

"Though from her lover's sight the fair one flies,
Frowns on his sorrows and his suit denies;
Compels him still unrecompensed to waste
The tedious moments; if his heart be placed
On virtuous beauty, let him cease to mourn,
Nor deem his state of every hope forlorn."—(Hoole.)

"Chi sovra l'alta mente il cor sublima,
Meglio sè stesso e i sacri ingegni estima."

PARINI. Odi.—"La Gratitude."

"Whoso good heart than lofty mind sets higher,
Better esteems himself and genius' fire."

"Chi stampa un libro, par che sia obbligato
A saper, quasi fosse Angiol celeste,
Quanto è mai stato scritto, oppur sognato."

PASSERONI. Rime, Capitolo VII.

"Who prints a book, 'tis by the critics deemed,
Should know, as might an angel come from heaven,
All that has e'er been writ, or even dreamed."

"Chi studia di superar più efficacemente trapassando un fosso, accatta tal volta l'empito sì ritirando otto o dieci passi a dietro."

That Fortune is a woman, and has wings.”
- “Chi va lecca, e chi sta si secca.” SACCHETTI. Novella LI.
“Who goes gets a sup, and who stays goes dry.”
- “Chi va lontan da la sua patria, vede
Cose da quel, che già credea, lontane;
Che narrandole poi, non se gli crede,
E stimato bugiardo ne rimane.” ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, VII., 1.
“Who travels into foreign climes, shall find
What ne’er before was imaged to his mind;
Which, when he tells, the hearers shall despise,
And deem his strange adventures empty lies.”—(Hoole.)
- “Chi va piano va sano e va lontano.”
GOLDONI. I Volponi, Act I., Sc. II.—(La Contessa).
“Who goes slowly goes safely, and goes far.”
- “Chi vede il periglio
Nè cerca salvarsi
Ragion di lagnarsi,
Del fato non ha.”

“Chi vive sperando, muore penando.”

GOLDONI. La Calamità de' Cuori, Act II., Sc. X.—(Bellarosa and Armidoro.)

“Chi vuol che una piaga sfoglie bene, paghi bene il medico: n'è vero, Maestro? e chi vuol guarir lo paghi male.”

FIRENZUOLA. I Lucidi, Act V., Sc. II.—(Cornelio.)

“He who would ease the pain of his wound, should pay his doctor well. Isn't it so, Doctor? And he who would be cured should pay him badly.”

“Chi vuol goder degli agi,
Soffra prima i disagi.
Nè da riposo infruttuoso e vile,
Che 'l fatica abborre,
Ma da fatica che virtù precorre
Nasce il vero riposo.”

GUARINI. Il Pastor Fido, Act IV., Sc. VI.—(Coro di Pastori.)

“Whoso would ease secure,
First let him toil endure;
Not from that fruitless vile repose
That work despises,
But from the work that out of virtue rises
True rest is born.”

“Chi vuol guadagnar, spender conviene.”

GOLDONI. La Bella Verità, Act II., Sc. IV.—(Lorano.)

“Who would make money must begin by spending.”

“Chi vuol pace in amor, vi vuol coraggio
Alma fida, cuor pronto, e labbio saggio.”

GOLDONI. I Bagni d'Albano, Act I., Sc. XI.—(Violante.)

“He who love's nectar peacefully would sip,
Needs courage, faithful soul and prudent lip.”

“(Che) chi vuol quelle gente pigliar tosto,
Come le pecchie gli pigli col mosto.”

PULCI. Morgante Maggiore, XXV., 103.

“Whoso without delay such folk would seize,
Must bait with honey, as he would for bees.”

“ Chi vuol toccare a l'uno e l'altro polo
Si trova ruinato in sul terreno.”

MACCHIAVELLI. L'Asino d'Oro, Cap. V.

“ Who striveth heaven's opposing poles to gain,
Doth find himself on earth a ruined man.”

“ Chi vuol, vada, e chi non vuol mandi.”

ARETINO. La Talanta, Act I., Sc. XIII.—(Talanta.)

“ Chi vuol far, vadia, e chi non vuol far, mandi.”

CECCHI. La Dote, Act I., Sc. II.—(Ippolito.)

“ If you want a thing done, go yourself ; if not, send.”

“ Chi vuole aver bene in corte bisogna che ci venga sordo, cieco, muto, asino, bue e capretto.”

ARETINO. La Cortigiana, Act I., Sc. IX.—(Valeria.)

“ He who would be successful at court, must start by being blind, deaf, dumb, an ass, an ox, and a goat.”

“ Chi vuole aver soggetti che obbediscano,
Convien che prima sappia comandare.”

BOIARDO. Timone, Act IV., Sc. I.—(Ricchezza.)

“ Whoso obedience from his subjects seeks,
'Tis fitting that he first should learn to rule.”

“ Chi vuole che la quaresima gli paia corta, si faccia debito per pagare a Pasqua.” BRUNO. Candelaio, Act IV., Sc. XVII.—(Lucia.)

“ He who wants Lent to seem short, should contract a debt to be repaid at Easter.”

“ Chiamo principio della morte tutto il corso della vita cominciando al nostro nascimento, dal quale cominciamo a morire, e per momenti di tempo andiamo ogni giorno al nostro fine.”

STEFANO GUAZZO. *Dialoghi Piacevoli. Della Morte. (Ed.
Piacenza, 1587, p. 529.)*

“ I call the beginning of death the whole course of life, beginning with our birth, from which point we commence to die, and each moment of every day brings us nearer to our end.”

“ Chiunque sa amare è virtuoso : chiunque è virtuoso amar sa e deve.”

BETTINELLI. Saggio sull' Eloquenza, Cap. III.

“ Whoever is capable of love is virtuous : whoever is virtuous both can and ought to love.”

“ Ciascun si stima di gran senno, e crede
Dovizia aver di ciò ch' ei più mendica ;
E dà del matto e del malenso altrui.”

FORTIGUERRA. Rime Piacevoli, Cap. V.

“ Men count them wondrous wise, and think themselves
Wealthy in that wherein they are but beggars,
Calling all others fools and simpletons.”

"Ciascuna cosa è virtuosa in sua natura, che fa quello a che ella è ordinata."

DANTE. Convito, I., Cap. V.

"Everything is in its nature virtuous which accomplishes that for which it was ordained."

"Cicisbei e damerini, vita da facchini."

MASSIMO D'AZEGLIO. I Miei Ricordi, Cap. XXIII. (Ed., 1867, Vol. II., p. 135.)

"The squire of dames leads a galley-slave's life."

"Cieco a dargline impresa, e non por mente,
Che 'l foco arde la paglia facilmente."

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXIV., 39.

"Blind as I was so vast a trust to yield,
Yet know how flame can catch a stubble field."—(Hoole.)

"Ciurma sdraiata in vil prosopopea,
Che il suo beato non far nulla ostenta."

GIUSTI. Gingillino, Prologo.

"Vile herd, in senseless arrogance outstretched,
That make their boast of blessed idleness."

"Cima di giudicio non s' avvalla,
Perchè fuoco d'amor compia in un punto
Ciò che dee sodisfar chi qui s' astalla."

DANTE. Purgatorio, VI., 37.

"The Top of Judgment cannot seek the vale,
Because the fire of love at once would do
That which would satisfy these souls in bale."

—(J. I. Minchin.)

"Ciò che di meglio or rimane a fare
È sperare, sperare, e poi sperare."

FUSINATO. Un Programma Politico.

"There is naught better left for us to do
Than just to hope and hope and hope anew."

"Ciò che è il componimento d'ogni delizia, in nave inglese il cuoco francese."

ALGAROTTI. Lettere sulla Russia. Helsingor,
10 Giugno, 1739.

"That combination of delightful things, a French cook on board an English ship."

"Ciò che mal si compra sempre dole." TANSILLO. Il Podere, I., 57.

"What is ill bought is aye a source of trouble."

"Città scinta di mura È chi fede à in sè stesso, e Dio non cura." FILICAJA. Canzone II.

"That city is bereft of every wall
That trusteth in herself, nor e'er on God doth call."

"Tal dara esempio ad ogni età futura
Chi sol Dio fa sè stesso, e Dio non cura."

FILICAJA. Canzone VIII.

"Example he shall give to future ages all
Who deifies himself, and ne'er on God doth call."

“Cogli allor tu pe' tuoi biondi capelli
 I fiori nati dal mio cor: son quelli:
 I canti che pensai ma che non scrissi,
 Le parole d'amor che non ti dissi.”

GUERRINI (STECCHETTI). Postuma, XV.

“Pluck then, and 'midst thy golden tresses bind
 The flowers, born of my heart, which here thou'lt find:
 The songs that only in my dreams I've made,
 The words of love that ne'er to thee I've said.”

“Col piacere
 Nacque ad un parto la fatica, e mai
 L'un poi dall'altra non andò disgiunto.”

PINDEMONTE. Sermoni. In Lode dell'Oscurità nella Poesia.

“Into the world
 Pleasure and toil came at one birth, and since
 The one from other ne'er has severed been.”

FRA BARTOLOMMEO DA SAN CONCORDIO. Giunta agli Ammaestramenti degli Antichi, 13.

“In a friend's company everything is finer and more delightful, and every evil is smaller and less annoying.”

“Colui che lascia quello che si fa per quello che si doveria fare, impara piuttosto la rovina, che la preservazione sua.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Il Principe, Cap. XV.

“He who deserts what is usually done for what ought to be done, more often brings about his ruin than his preservation.”

“Colui è beato che non a paura di perdere grande stato.”

SACCHETTI. Novella CXCI.

“He is blessed who has no fear of losing a great position.”

“Come a comprar in piazza le poponi,
 Ne tagliarete cento e fra cotanti
 A pena due ne troverete buone,
 Così hoggidì, fra lingue tante e tante
 Che fanno bel veder di fuori via Due per cento rispondeno al sembiante.”

NELLI. Satire, II., IX.—“A Benedetto Barbarigo.”

“As when you melons in the market buy,
 You'll cut a hundred, and, amongst the pile,
 'Tis hard if you two good ones shall espy,
 So, in our day, of all the tongues we deem,
 From outward showing, free from every guile,
 But two per cent. are really what they seem.”

“(Perciò che) come a l'uom, ch' al sol camina
 Seguita l'ombra, così sempre siegue
 L'invidia a quel, ch' a vera gloria aspira.”

TRISSINO. L'Italia Liberata da' Goti, Lib. XIV. (Ed. Parigi, 1729, Vol. II., p. 256.)

“E'en as his shadow followeth the man
 That walketh toward the sun, so envy aye
 Doth follow him that to true fame aspires.”

“(Ma) come
 A poco a poco lontananza estingua
 Un ardor giovanil creduto eterno
 Egli stesso ignorava.”

ZANELLA. Edvige, II.

“Yet knew he not
 How distance doth by slow degrees cool down
 The youthful ardour we eternal deemed.”

“Come alla sustentazione di un corpo, non basta solamente il ben essere del capo, ma è necessario che gli altri membri facciano l'uffizio suo, così non basta che il Principe sia senza colpa delle cose, se nei ministri suoi non è proporzionatamente la debita diligenza e virtù.”

GUICCIARDINI. Istoria d'Italia, Lib. VI. (Ed. Milano, 1803, Vol. III., p. 211.)

“Even as for the sustenance of the body, the well-being of the head only is not sufficient, but the other members must also perform their functions, so it is not enough that the prince be faultless in the conduct of affairs, unless his ministers display in due proportion the necessary diligence and devotion.”

“Come amore
 In canuti pensier si disconviene,
 Così la gioventù d'amor nemica
 Contrasta al Ciel, e la Natura offende.”

GUARINI. Il Pastor Fido, Act I., Sc. I.—(Linco.)

“As love
 But ill befits the thoughts of hoary heads,
 So youth that is of love the enemy
 Slight's Heaven's decrees, and Nature doth offend.”

“Come buon sartore
 Che com' egli ha del panno fa la gonna.”

DANTE. Paradiso, XXXII., 140.

“Like tailor who doth prove
 His skill as cloth is given to make the gown.”—(J. I. Minchin.)

“(Che) come cosa buona non si trova
 Che duri sempre così ancor nè ria.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXXVIII., 6.

“For learn this truth, by just experience found,
 Nor good nor ill has one eternal round.”—(Hoole.)

“ Come dell' oro il fuoco
Scopre le masse impure,
Scoprono le sventure
De' falsi amici il cor.”

METASTASIO. Olimpiade, Act III., Sc. III.—(Megacle.)

“ E'en as the fire lays bare
The gold's impurities,
So our adversities
Our false friends' hearts disclose.”

“ Come il gelo a le piante, a i fior l'arsura,
Le grandine a le spiche, a i semi il verme,
Le reti a i cervi, ed a gli augelli il visco,
Così nemico a l'huom fù sempre amore.”

GUARINI. Il Pastor Fido, Act I., Sc. V.—(Satiro.)

“ As frost to plants, as burning heat to flowers,
Hail to the ear and to the seed the worm,
Nets to the deer and birdlime to the birds,
So to mankind was ever Love a foe.”

“ Come l'oro nel foco,
Così la fede nel dolor s'affina.”

GUARINI. Il Pastor Fido, Act III., Sc. VI.—(Mirtilla.)

“ As gold by fire, so faith
By suffering is refined.”

“ Come la copia delle cose genera fastidio, così l'esser le desiderate negate moltiplica l'appetito.”

BOCCACCIO. Decameron, Giornata IV., Novella III.

“ As a plethora of good things generates satiety, so does the denial of our wants increase our appetite.”

“ Come ordine era dato il tutto avvenne,
Che 'l consiglio del mal va raro in vano.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXI., 48.

“ All to her impious hopes in course befell ;
'Tis rare but evil deeds succeed too well.”—(Hoole.)

“ Come raggio del sol che illeso fende
La nebbia, e illeso sovra il fango passa,
Nulla di questa valle, oscura e bassa,
All' alma pura di costei s'apprende.”

PINDEMONTE. Sermoni. Gli Incomodi della Bellezza.

“ As the sun-ray the clouds, untainted, cleaves,
And shines upon the mud, yet still is pure,
So from this valley, sordid and obscure,
My lady's spotless soul no stain receives.”

“ Come strale o raggio,
A pena spunta un ben, che si disperde.”

BEMBO. Sonetto LV.

“ Like arrow, or like ray,
Blessings but come in sight to disappear.”

“Commanda chi può e ubbedisce chi vuole.”

MANZONI. I Promessi Sposi, Cap. XIV.—(Renzo.)

“He who can, commands, and he who will, obeys.”

“Commetti al savio, e lascia fare a lui.”

PULCI. Morgante Maggiore, XXV., 3.

“In the wise man confide, and let him act.”

“War is waged under great disadvantages against an enemy who has nothing to lose.”

“Con l'idee Donna Prassede si regolava come dicono che si deve far con gli amici; n'aveva poche; ma a quelle poche era molto affezionata.” MANZONI. I Promessi Sposi, Cap. XXV.

“As to ideas, Donna Prassede followed the rule which they say should apply to friends: she had very few, but to those few she was deeply attached.”

“(Che) con la diligenza e col consiglio
E col non risparmiar fatiche e sangue
Il soccorso divin sempre s'acquista,
Che ha in odio i pigri e neghittosi e lenti.”

TRISSINO. L'Italia Liberata da' Goti, Lib. XXVII. (Ed. Parigi, 1729, Vol. III., p. 229.)

“For 'tis by diligence and counsel sage,
Which seeketh not to stint or blood or toil,
That man may count upon the help of heaven
That hateth sloth, delay and carelessness.”

“Con la morte a lato
Cerco del viver mio novo consiglio;
E veggio il meglio, ed al peggior m'appiglio.”

“Gli è teco cortesìa esser villano.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXVII., 77.

“Corvi con corvi non si cavano gli occhi.”

STEFANO GUAZZO. Dialoghi Piacevoli. Del Giudice. (Ed. Piacenza, 1587, p. 95.)

“Crows do not pick out other crows' eyes.”

“Così al egro fanciul porgiamo aspersi
Di soave licor gli orli del vaso:
Socchi amari ingannato intanto ei beve,
E dall' inganno suo vita riceve.”

TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata, I., 3.

“So when the draught we give to the sick child,
The vessel's edge we touch with syrup sweet;
Cheated, he swift drinks down the bitter brew,
And from the cheat receives his life anew.”

“(Perchè) così come gli buoni costumi, per mantenersi, hanno bisogno delle leggi, così le leggi, per osservarsi, hanno bisogno dei buoni costumi.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Discorsi sopra la prima Deca di Tito Livio, I., XVIII.

“Even as, for the maintenance of a lofty morality, there is need of the laws, so for the observing of the laws there is need of a lofty morality.”

“Invan s'arma la legge
Se privata virtù non la sorregge.”

ZANELLA. Il Piccolo Calabrese, III.

“In vain the laws are made,
If private virtue come not to their aid.”

“Così da sempre ogni capo canuto
Più volentieri consilio ch' ajuto.”

BERNI. Orlando Innamorato, XXX., 61.

“So those whose heads with snowy locks are crowned,
More ready to advise than aid are found.”

“Così fa ch' ella un poco il duol raffrena;
Ch' avendo ove sfogarlo, è meno acerbo.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XLII., 28.

“These friendly words awhile consoled the fair,
For grief imparted oft alleviates care.”—(Hoole.)

“Così lo infirmo de la febre colto
Perde il sentire e lo usitato gusto
E quel che dolce è altrui gli par amaro.”

BOIARDO. Sonetti e Canzone, Lib. II.

“So the sick man, that lies in fever's grip,
Loses the sense of taste that erst was his,
And bitter finds what is to others sweet.”

“Così Natura, grande ancor se giuoca,
Spesso gode accoppiar l'orrido e il bello,
Somma pittrice in contrapposti.”

PINDEMONTI. La Fata Morgana.

“So Nature, great e'en when she jests, delights
Ofttimes to link the hideous with the fair,
Artist unrivalled in antithesis.”

“Così nella tua scuola, Amor, si face
Sempre il contrario di quel ch' egli è degno;
L'umil si sprezza, e l'empio si compiace.”

GASPARA STAMPA. Rime, Sonetto XLIII.

“So in thy school, O Love, do we descry
That each one gains the mead he least deserves;
The humble scorned, the wicked raised on high.”

“ (Ma) così sono tutte le ragazze;
Le più savie al di fuor son le più pazze.”

FORTIGUERRA. Ricciardetto, XXII., 60.

“But this is aye the nature of a maid:
The wildest is the one that seems most staid.”

“Così trapassa al trapassar d'un giorno
Della vita mortale il fiore e 'l verde:
Nè perchè faccia indietro April ritorno,
Si rinfiora ella mai nè si rinverde.”

TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata, XVI., 15.

“Thus passeth, in the passing of a day,
The flower and verdure of this life of ours,
Nor because April cometh back, and May,
Shall life put forth again her buds and flowers.”

“Così vidi adunar la bella scuola
Di quel signor dell' altissimo canto,
Che sovra gli altri com' aquila vola.” DANTE. Inferno, IV., 97.

“So did I see approach the troop so fair
Of that old master of divinest song,
Who like an eagle soars o'er all in air.”—(J. I. Minchin.)

“Costoro hanno un animo in piazza, e uno in palazzo.”
MACCHIAVELLI. Discorsi sopra la prima Deca di Tito Livio, I., XLVII.

“They have one mind in the street and another in the palace.”

“Creda altri ciò che vuole, a me sol basta
Che sia la fede mia nota a me stesso.”
GOLDONI. Belisario, Act I., Sc. V.—(Belisario.)

“Believe men what they will, it doth suffice
To me to know my own fidelity.”

“ (Che talor) cresce una beltà un bel manto.”
ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXVIII., 12.

“Oft the grace
Of costly vest improves a beauteous face.”—(Hoole.)

“D'esigir l'altrui fede
Qual dritto ha un traditore?”
METASTASIO. Alessandro, Act III., Sc. IV.—(Alessandro.)

“Where is the traitor's right
To claim good faith from others?”

“Non merta fè chi non la serba altrui.”
METASTASIO. Didone Abbandonata, Act I., Sc. VII.—(Jarba.)
“Faithless to others, he no faith deserves.”

“D'ogni malizia ch' odio in cielo acquista
Ingiuria è il fine ; ed ogni fin cotale
O con forza o con frode altrui contrista.”

DANTE. Inferno, XI., 22.

“Of every malice that in heaven wins hate
The end is injury, and each such plan
By force or fraud on some wrecks woful fate.”—(J. I. Minchin.)

“D'uomo è il fallir ; ma dal malvagio il buono
Scerne il dolor del fallo.”

ALFIERI. Rosmunda, Act III., Sc. I.—(Almachilde.)

“All men must err, but sorrow for the fault
The good man from the wicked doth divide.”

“Da gran tempo
I gladiatori sono un po' svogliati
Nell' arte del morir.”

COSSA. Messalina, Act I., Sc. VIII.—(Claudio.)

“The gladiators, for a long time past,
Seem to have lost their appetite for dying.”

“(Che) da principe a nume è breve passo.”

CASTI. Gli Animali Parlanti, XXII., 154.

“Short is the step from prince to deity.”

“(Che) da quel giorno m'era messo in core
D'imitar, come fo, l'ape sagace,
Che va volando da quel fiore a questo,
Vi sugge il buono e lascia stare il resto.” FUSINATO. Tre Ritratti.

“For, from that day, I set myself the task
To copy, as I do, the prudent bee,
That from this flower to that goes flitting on,
Sucks all the sweets, and leaves the rest alone.”

“Da quel punto
Dipende il cielo e tutta la natura.” DANTE. Paradiso, XXVIII., 41.

“Hangs the heaven
From that one point, and nature's self entire.”—(J. I. Minchin.)

“Da te convien che ciascun ben si mova,
Per lo qual si travaglia il mondo tutto.”

DANTE. Canzone XIII.—(Of Love.)

“'Tis fitting that all should thy impulse feel,
For that the whole world moveth at thy word.”

“Dai grandi si ricavano più beni
Coltivando i lor vizi che i terreni.”

PANANTI. Epigrammi.—“I Ricchi.”

“He higher guerdon from the great commands
Who cultivates their vices, than their lands.”

"Dal letame nasce il bel frumento: dalla corruzione si sprigiona la scintilla della vita."

MASSIMO D'AZEGLIO. I Miei Ricordi, Cap. XXVI. (Ed. 1867, Vol. II., p. 200.)

"From good manure springs the finest grain: from the prison of corruption bursts forth the spark of life."

"Dalla cuna alla tomba è un breve passo."

MARINI. Sonetti. "Delle Miserie Umane."

"But one short step from cradle 'tis to grave."

"(Che) dar si denno gli uomini a gli uffici,
E non gli uffici a gli uomini."

TRISSINO. L'Italia Liberata da' Goti, Lib. XIV. (Ed. Parigi, 1729, Vol. II., p. 276.)

"We should find men to fill the offices,
Not create offices to suit the men."

"(Che vi sia) dato il pan con le balestre."

TASSONI. La Secchia Rapita, VI., 38.

"Your bread shall be served out to you from guns."

"Quando picchiavan poi, dalla finestra
Favea lor dare il pan colla balestra."

ZIPOLI. Malmantile Racquistato, II., 3.

"So, when they knocked, he from the casement cried
That from the guns their bread should be supplied."

"De' gusti disputar cosa è fallace,
Non è bel quel ch'è bel, ma quel che piace."

GOLDONI. De Gustibus non est Disputandum, Act I., Sc. I.—(Chorus.)

"'Tis waste of breath our tastes and fancies to discuss;
Not what is fair is fair, but that which pleases us."

"De la necessità virtù facendo."

BERNI. Orlando Innamorato, III., 86.

"Making a virtue of necessity."

"Facendomi della necessità virtù."

CELLINI. Vita, Lib. I., Cap. LXVII.

"Making a virtue of necessity."

"De le spine ancor nascon le rose,
E d'una fetida erba nasce il giglio."

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXVII., 121.

"On prickly thorns appears the blooming rose,
And from a fetid herb the lily grows."—(Hoole.)

"Debilissimo è l'argomento ab humana auctoritate."

BRUNO. Cabala del Cavallo Pegaseo, Dialogo II., 3.—(Coribante.)

"Very weak is the argument from human authority."

“ Debitamente muore una crudele,
Non chi da vita al suo amator fedele.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, IV., 63.

“ Let cruel virgins rather cease to live,
Not those who life to faithful lovers give.”—(Hoole.)

“ Dee buon pilota
Da ogni scoglio lontan tener sua via,
Nè per tema del mar radere il lido.”

ALGAROTTI. Epistola XII.—“ A Cesare Gorani.”

“ 'Tis the good pilot's task
Far from each rock to set his course, and ne'er,
From terror of the sea, to hug the shore.”

“ Degnamente la Penitenza è messa tra le virtùdi, perchè, quantunque sia figlia de padre Errore e de l'Iniquitade madre, è nulla di meno come la vermiglia rosa, che da l'adre e pungenti spine si caccia.”

BRUNO. Spaccio della Bestia Trionfante, Dialogo II., 3.—(Sofia.)

“ Right worthily is Repentance counted amongst the virtues, for, though she be the child of Error, her father, and Iniquity, her mother, yet is she like the crimson rose that covers herself with sharp and poisonous thorns.”

“ Dei mali il sommo è non far fede al vero.”

FILICAJA. Sonetto VIII.

“ Not to believe the truth is of all ills the worst.”

“ Del demonio la farina
Tutta in crusca suole andar.”

GOLDONI. La Donna di Governo, Act I., Sc. X.—(Corallina.)

“ The devil's flour doth mostly turn to bran.”

“ (Che) del tiranno la vendetta sempre
Suol prevenir l'offesa.”

ALFIERI. Filippo, Act IV., Sc. V.—(Carlo.)

“ The tyrant's vengeance aye forestalls the crime.”

“ Del vomere non è per cui risuona
Alta la fama degli antichi Padri;
È settentrional spada di ladri

Torta in corona.”

GIUSTI. L'Incoronazione.

“ Not from the ploughshare the world-wide renown
Of our great ancestors is brazened forth:
Nay, see the sword of robbers from the north
New-wrought into a crown.”

“ (Che) della rotta fè si lagna a torto
Chi in se l'arcano custodir non seppe.”

GOLDONI. Artemisia, Act III., Sc. I.—(Pisistrato.)

“ Of broken faith he wrongly doth complain
Who could not keep the secret to himself.”

- “Di buon seme mal frutto Mieto; e tal merito ha chi 'ngrato serve.”
PETRARCA. Canzone in Morte de M. Laura, VII., 108.
- “From good seed evil crop I reap;
Such guerdon hath he who an ingrate serves.”
- “Di cento buoni consigli spontaneamente dati, appena uno è ricevuto con pazienza e con gratitudine.”
BARETTI. La Frusta Letteraria, Vol. I., p. 374. (Ed. Milan, 1838.)
- “Of a hundred good counsels given unasked, scarcely one is received with patience and gratitude.”
- “Di che non è capace un vil soggetto
Che cerca a rio padron rendersi accetto!”
CASTI. Gli Animali Parlanti, XI., 89.
- “A subject base will stoop to any sin
Who a bad master's favour seeks to win.”
- “Di cosa nasce cosa.”
GUICCIARDINI. Piu Consigli et Avvertimenti, CXII.
- “From one thing springs another.”
- “Di cosa nasce cosa, e il tempo la governa.”
DONI. I Marmi, Part I., Ragionamento VII.—(Alfonso.)
- “From one thing springs another, and time is its ruler.”
- “Di danari, di senno, e di fede,
Ce' ne manco che non credi.”
PROVERB. Quoted by Bacon, Advancement of Learning, Book II.
- “There is commonly less money, less wisdom and less good faith than men do account upon.”—(Bacon.)
- “Di far satire anonime a Vienna non si ardisce.
O le fanno in tedesco e allor chi le capisce?”
FERRARI. La Satira e Parini, Act II., Sc. IV.—(Il Governatore and Colombi.)
- “In Vienna anonymous satires are banned.
Or they're written in German which none understand.”
- “Di gioja
Quand' ella è troppa, anco l'incarco opprime
Quanto il dolore.”
ALFIERI. Agamennone, Act II., Sc. IV.—(Elettra.)
- “Of joy that is too great, the burden weighs
As heavily as grief.”
- “Di libri basta uno per volta, quando non è d'avanzo.”
MANZONI. I Promessi Sposi. Introduzione.
- “One book at a time is sufficient, when there are no more to be had.”

“ (Così) di mese in mese e d'anno in anno,
 Amandosi e vivendo lemme lemme
 È certo, cara mia, che camperanno
 A dieci doppi di Matusalemme.”

GIUSTI. L'Amor Pacifico.

“ And so from month to month and year to year,
 Loving and living peaceful and untroubled,
 They will survive, my dear one, never fear,
 Until ten times Methuselah they've doubled.”

“ Di metalli dicono che il più grave è l'oro: e tuttavia nulla cosa fa andar l'uomo più sciolto, leggiere, e isnello che questo.”

BRUNO. Candelaio, Act IV., Sc. IV.—(Bartolomeo.)

“ They say that the heaviest of the metals is gold; and yet there is no burden under which man moves more easily, lightly and briskly.”

“ Di morte
 Punisco io quei che in un pavento e abborro;
 Te, cui non temo, io vo punir di vita.”

ALFIERI. Rosmunda, Act I., Sc. I.—(Rosmunda.)

“ With death
 I punish those whom I both fear and hate;
 I fear thee not, so punish thee with life.”

“ Di natura, d' amor, de' cieli amici
 Le negligenze sue sono artifici.”

TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata, II., 18.

“ The gift of nature, love or kindly skies,
 Her negligence is nought but artifice.”

“ Di regnar l'arte entro tuo regno apprendi, Regnando.”

ALFIERI. Maria Stuarda, Act II., Sc. III.—(Maria.)

“ The art of reigning learn within thy realm,
 By reigning.”

“ Di tre cose fa il diavolo insalata,
 Di lingue d'Avvocati, e delle dite
 De' Notari, la terza è riservata.”

NELLI. Satire, I., IX.—“ Peccadigli degli Avvocati.”

“ When he mixes a salad, the Devil, I've heard,
 Three ingredients uses; first advocates' tongues,
 Next notaries' fingers; I'll not name the third.”

“ (Che) di un muto è peggior chi parla oscuro.”

MARTELLO. Satire, IV.

“ Worse than a mute is he who speaks not clearly.”

“ Dicerò di lei, piangendo pui,
 Che se n' è ita in ciel subitamente
 E ha lasciato Amor meco dolente.”

DANTE. Canzone IV.

“ So will I say of her, the while I weep,
 That swiftly she to heaven her flight hath ta'en,
 And left me here, with Love to share my pain.”

“Dicevi il paternostro della scimia.”

PULCI. Morgante Maggiore, XVI., 89.

“Thou didst the monkey's paternoster say.”

“Dicon sette i Sacramenti? Sei,

Del Papa con licenza,

Piuttosto li direi.

Sono un sol matrimonio, e penitenza.” PANANTI. Epigrammi.

“The number of the Sacraments they fix
At seven, but, with the Pope's permission,
I should prefer to call them six,
For only one are marriage and contrition.”

“Difesa miglior ch' usbergo e scudo

È la santa innocenza al petto ignudo.”

TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata, VIII., 41.

“Than hauberk or than shield, more sure defence
To unarmed breast is holy innocence.”

“Ma dove appar dell' innocenza il volto,
Lo spin perde il rigor, la serpe il toscò.”

ZANELLA. La Fragoletta.

“Where'er the face of innocence is seen,
The bramble hath no thorn, the snake no fang.”

“Dispietata pietate

Fu la tua veramente, O Dafne, allora

Che retenesti il dardo.”

TASSO. Aminta, Act III., Sc. II.—(Aminta.)

“Pitiless indeed
The pity thou didst show, O Daphne, when Thou didst hold back the dart.”

“È pieta con Didone esser crudele.”

METASTASIO. Didone Abbandonata, Act II., Sc. XI.
—(Didone.)

“To Dido cruelty is truest pity.”

“Dispreza talor chi vuol comprare.”

GOLDONI. Il Mercato di Malmantile, Act II., Sc. IV.—(Berto.)

“The would-be buyer aye depreciates.”

“Dite ai regi
Che mal si compra co' delitti il soglio.”

MONTI. Aristodemo, Act V., Sc. IV.—(Aristodemo.)

“To the princes say
That 'tis ill done to buy the throne with crimes.”

“(Che) dolce cosa era la patria.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXXIX., 63.

“Sweet is his country to a patriot mind.”—(Hoole.)

"Dolce è l' ira d' un padre; eppur, qual figlio Può non tremarne?"

ALFIERI. Filippo, Act II., Sc. II.—(Isabella.)

"Gentle a father's wrath; yet where the son
But shall before it tremble?"

"Domandando l' impossibile si ottiene il meglio."

G. B. NICCOLINI. (Vannucci, Ricordi della Vita di G. B. Niccolini,
Vol. I., p. 386.)

"By asking for the impossible we obtain the best possible."

"Domeneddio manda il freddo secondo i panni; ed i panni si fanno ancora secondo il freddo."

CARO. Lettere Burlevoli, IV.—"A Marc' Antonio Piccolomini."

"God sends the cold according to the clothes; and on the other hand the clothes are made according to the cold."

"Dominedio ci salvi

Da i libri troppo lunghi e da i poemi!"

GUERRINI. (STECCHETTI.) Nova Polemica. A Felice Cavallotti.

"Good Lord, deliver us
From books too long and poems that never end!"

"(Che) dona e tolle ogn' altro ben fortuna,
Sol in virtù non ha possanza alcuna."

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, III., 37.

"All else can Fortune give and take away, Alone o'er virtue's self she hath no sway."

"Donna adorata un Nume è dell' Inferno."

GUARINI. Il Pastor Fido, Act I., Sc. V.—(Satiro.)

"The loved one is a Goddess from below."

"Donna che sia pregata non sta forte."

FORTIGUERRA. Ricciardetto, XIII., 107.

"She stands not firm that giveth ear to prayers."

"Donna mirar non so, che non mi accenda,
Fiamma accender non so, che non si spegna."

GOLDONI. Don Giovanni Tenorio, Act V., Sc. I.—(Don Giovanni.)

"No woman's glance but lights in me a flame;
No flame is lit but quickly doth expire."

"Donne, che siate d'ogni mal radice
E vede ognuno, e non vi si disdice."

GIOVANNI FIORENTINO. Il Pecorone, Giornata IX., Novella II.

"That woman is of every ill the root
All see, and none so bold that dare dispute."

“ (Perchè) dopo le rotte de inimici,
Chi vuole aver di lor vittoria a pieno,
Non gli dia spazio mai da ristorarsi.”

TRISSINO. L'Italia Liberata da' Goti, Lib. XXII. (Ed. Parigi, 1729, Vol. III., p. 153.)

“ When once the foeman's serried ranks are broke,
Whoso would use his victory to the full,
Must never give them time to form again.”

“ (Ma) dove Ambizione e Invidia regna, Difficil è che mai Pace si tegna.” FOLENGO. Orlandino, I., 41.

“ But when Ambition doth with Envy reign,
Not easily shall Peace her place maintain.”

“ Dove che venga l'Esule, Sempre ha la patria in cor.” BERCHET. Le Fantasia, I.

“ The exile, though he wander far,
Aye bears his country in his heart.”

“ Dove è un ben certo e un mal incerto, non si debbe mai lasciare quel bene per paura di quel male.”

MACCHIAVELLI. La Mandragola, Act III.—(Fra Timoteo.)

“ Where the good is certain and the evil uncertain, we should never relinquish the good from fear of the evil.”

“ Dove forza non val, giunga l'inganno.”

METASTASIO. Didone Abbandonata, Act I., Sc. XIII.—(Jarba.)

“ Where force serves not let artifice be joined.”

“ (Che) dove l'argomento della mente
S'aggiunge al mal volere ed alla possa,
Nessun riparo vi può far le gente.”

DANTE. Inferno, XXXI., 55.

“ For where the assistance of the intellect
Is added unto evil will and power,
'Gainst it no refuge could mankind erect.”—(J. I. Minchin.)

“ Dove la materia non è corrotta, i tumulti ed altri scandali non nuocono; dove la materia è corrotta, le leggi ben ordinate non giovano.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Discorsi sopra la prima Deca di Tito Livio, I., XVII.

“ Where the material is not corrupted, tumults and other scandals do no harm; where the material is corrupted, well-considered laws do no good.”

“ Dove non è gelosia non è amore.”

ARETINO. La Talanta, Act V., Sc. XIII.—(Pizio.)

“ Where there is no jealousy, there is no love.”

“ Due cose belle ha il mondo;
Amore e morte.”

LEOPARDI. Consalvo.

“ The world hath two fair things:
One, love; the other, death.”

“Due gioie concesse Iddio agli uomini liberi sulla terra; il plauso dei buoni, e la bestemmia dei tristi.”

MAZZINI. La Voce della Verità. (Scritti Editi, Vol. I., p. 168.)

“Two joys are granted by God to free men upon the earth; the applause of the good, and the curses of the wicked.”

“Due lacrimette
Formano al cuor del uomo un grand' incanto.”

GOLDONI. L'Ippocondriaco, Part II., Sc. I.—(Melinda.)

“Two little tears
Act like enchantment on the heart of man.”

“Due volte nella polvere,
Due volte sull' altar.”

MANZONI. Il Cinque Maggio.

“Twice trampled in the dust,
Twice as a god enthroned.”

“Dunque Amor sempre rio non si ritrova;
Se spesso nuoce, anco tal volta giova.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXV., 2.

“Condemn not Love—if oft he merits blame,
His generous influence oft our praise may claim.”—(Hoole.)

“Dunque se le mie rime avran difetto,
Ch'entraron nella loda di costei;
Di ciò si biasmi il debole intelletto,
E 'l parlar nostro, che non ha valore
Di ritrar tutto ciò che dice Amore.”

DANTE. Canzone VII.

“So if thou wouldst of these my rhymes complain,
Wherein I seek my lady's praise to sing,
Let the blame fall upon my feeble brain,
And on my halting speech, which vainly tries
To picture all the charms that Love describes.”

“Dura virago ell' è, dure domanda
Di perigli e d'amor pruove famose:
In mezzo al sangue de la sua ghirlanda
Crescon le rose.”

CARDUCCI. Giambi ed Epodi, Lib. I., IV.—(Of Liberty.)

“Stern amazon is she, sternly demands
Full proof of love poured out, of lives laid down;
And rooted all in blood the rose-tree stands
Whose blossoms form her crown.”

CASTIGLIONE. Del Cortigiano. (Ed. Milan, 1803, Vol. I., p. 165.)

“The safest course, therefore, in living and mixing with men, is to conduct oneself always on the lines of respectable mediocrity, for therein, truly, lies our best and strongest defence against envy.”

“È assai migliore
Quando costa un piacer qualche dolore.”

GOLDONI. La Scuola Moderna, Act III., Sc. I.—(Doralba.)

“Far sweeter tastes the joy that costs us pain.”

“È certo, che non si tiene conto de servitii fatti alli Popoli in universale, come di quelli, chi si fanno in particolare.”

GUICCIARDINI. Piu Consigli et Avvertimenti, XXXI.

“It is certain that services rendered to nations are held of far less account than those rendered to individuals.”

“(Ch’) è consiglio migliore
Con grazia dar ciò che negar non lice.”

FIACCHI. Favole, XLIII.—“I due Noci.”

“’Tis far the wisest plan
To give with grace what may not be refused.”

“È del poeta il fin la meraviglia,
Parlo del eccellente, non del goffo,
Chi non sà far stupir vada alla striglia.”

MARINI. Il Murtoleide, Fischiata XXXIII.

“’Twas ever to astound that poets sang,
(I speak of poets, not of poetasters),
Who cannot cause amazement may go hang.”

“E gli stati ben ordinati, e gli principi savi hanno con ogni diligenza pensati di non far cadere in disperazione i grandi e di soddisfare al popolo, e tenerlo contento.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Il Principe, Cap. XIX.

“Both well-ordered states and wise princes have always taken the utmost care not to drive the great to desperation, and to keep the populace satisfied and contented.”

“È la fede degli amanti
Come l’Araba fenice:
Che vi sia, ciascun lo dice,
Dove sia, nessun lo sa.”

METASTASIO. Demetrio, Act II., Sc. III.—(Olinto.)

“Fidelity by lovers shown
Like phoenix is of Araby:
That it exists, all know full well,
But where it is can no man tell.”

“È la lancia la regina dell’ armi a cavallo.”

MONTECUCCOLI. Memorie, Lib. III., XVI. (Ed. Colonia, 1704, p. 364.)

“The lance is the queen of cavalry weapons.”

“È maggior gloria, ov’ è maggior periglio.”

MARINI. L’Adone, IV., 182.

“’Midst greatest perils greatest glory lies.”

“ È meglio che si dica : qui fuggi il Tinca, che : qui mori il Tinca.”

ARETINO. La Talanta, Act III., Sc. XIII.—(Branca.)

“ It is better that men should say ‘ Here Tinca fled ’ than ‘ Here Tinca died ’.”

“ Un po di vergogna passa presto :
Meglio è dire : Un poltron qui si fuggì,
Che qui fermossi un bravo e si morì.”

ZIPOLI. Malmantile Racquistato, X., 2.

“ A little shame doth quickly pass :
Better to say ‘ A coward here did flee ’
Than ‘ Here a brave man stood his ground and died ’.”

STEFANO GUAZZO. Dialoghi Piacevoli. Dell' Honore. (Ed. Piacenza, 1587, p. 313.)

“ It is better to give away the wool than the sheep.”

“ È meglio essere capo di Lucerta che coda di Dracone.”

STEFANO GUAZZO. Dialoghi Piacevoli. Dell' Honore. (Ed. Piacenza, 1587, p. 297.)

“ It is better to be the head of a lizard than the tail of a dragon.”

“ È meglio vestir cencio con leanza, che broccato con disonoranza.”

GIGLI. La Sorellina di Pilone, Act II., Sc. V.—(Credenza.)

“ It is better to wear rags in honesty than brocade in dishonour.”

“ È minestra senza sale
Nobiltà senza il poter.”

GOLDONI. Il Re alla Caccia, Act III., Sc. IV.—(Giannina.)

“ Nobility without its power
Is like to soup without its salt.”

“ È miseria ogni età. Tremiam fanciulli,
D'un guardo al minacciar ; siam giuoco adulti
Di fortuna e d'amor ; gemiam canuti
Sotto il peso degli anni.”

METASTASIO. Demofonte, Act III., Sc. II.—(Timante.)

“ Each age its trouble has : children, we quail
At threatening looks ; grown men, we are the sport
Of fortune and of love ; grey-haired, we groan
Beneath the weight of years.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Discorsi sopra la prima Deca di Tito Livio, I., III.

“ In ordering a state and establishing its laws, it is necessary to act on the supposition that all men are bad, and are always ready to indulge their evil propensities whenever the occasion offers.”

“È necessario ad un principe, volendoli mantenere, imparare a potere essere non buono, ed usarlo o non usarlo secondo la necessità.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Il Principe, Cap. XV.

“It is necessary for a prince who desires to maintain his position, to acquire the power of not being good, and to use that power, or not, according to circumstances.”

“È necessario di conoscere il forte ed il debole del suo nemico, prima di venir con esso a cimento.”

ALBERTI. Favole.—“Il Cane ed il Toro.”

“It is necessary to know the strong and the weak points of one's adversary, before coming to close quarters with him.”

“E' non ci ha maggiore inganno, che quello di se medesimo.”

SACCHETTI. Novella VIII.

“There is no greater deception than self-deception.”

“E notte e dì rammenti

Che se al sonno mal vigili la testa

Inchinano i viventi,

L'universo non dorme e non si arresta.”

ZANELLA. La Veglia.

“This in thy memory keep,
That if weak men, their vigil holding ill,
Bow down their heads in sleep,
The universe nor slumbers, nor stands still.”

“È pazzia farsi inimici senza proposito. E vi lo ricordo; perchè quasi ogn' uno erra in questa leggerezza.”

GUICCIARDINI. Piu Consigli et Avvertimenti, XCVI.

“It is madness to make enemies without good cause. And I insist on this because almost every one is guilty of this childish folly.”

“È più difficile il saper tacere che parlare.”

CAPACELLI. Il Ciarlatore Maldicente, Act II., Sc. II.—(Stunkle.)

“It is a harder task to hold your tongue than to talk.”

“È più salute, o per guerra o per giuoco,

Saper perder assai, che vincer poco.”

BUONAROTTI. Madrigali, LXIII.

“Whether in war or play, more safety lies
In great defeats than in small victories.”

“È puoco male
Quel fallo poi che al fin in ben riesse.”

MARCO GUAZZO. Errori d'Amore, Act V.—(Filarco.)

“But little harm
That error does that turns to good at last.”

To loose at once whate’er we cannot hold.”

“E se la vita fu un bene, perchè mai ci vien tolta? E se la vita fu un male, perchè mai n’è stata concessa?”

GUERRAZZI. La Battaglia di Benevento, Cap. V.

“And if life be a blessing, why is it ever taken from us? And if life be an evil, why has it ever been given to us?”

“È senza dubbio molto pericoloso il governarsi con gl’ esempi, se non concorrono, non solo in generale, ma in tutti i particolari le medesime ragioni.”

GUICCIARDINI. Istoria d’Italia, Lib. I. (Ed. Milano, 1803, Vol. I., p. 137.)

“It is without doubt most dangerous to be guided by precedent, unless the circumstances are in exact agreement, not only generally, but in every particular.”

“E’ si conosce facilmente per chi considera le cose presenti e l’antiche, come in tutte le città, e in tutti i popoli sono quelli medesimi disiderii, e quelli medesimi umori, e come vi furono sempre.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Discorsi sopra la prima Deca di Tito Livio, I., XXXIX.

“He who makes a study of times present and times past, will have no difficulty in coming to the conclusion that in every city and in every nation are to be found the same desires and the same caprices, and that so it has always been.”

“È un gran paccier la morte.”

MANZONI. Il Conte di Carmagnola, Act V., Sc. V.—(Il Conte.)

“A wondrous peacemaker is death.”

“È un misero schiavo colui
Che del dolore fa la sua veste.”

D’ANNUNZIO. Canto Novo. Canto dell’ Ospite, XI.

“A miserable slave is he Who makes himself a garment of his pain.”

“È una regola fondatissima per ben giudicar ancor de’ grandi uomini, il non credere perfetto tutto ciò che essi han detto.”

MURATORI. La Perfetta Poesia, Lib. II., Cap. XI.

“It is a fundamental rule, in forming a correct judgment even of great men, not to look upon everything they have said as perfect.”

“È uno de’ vantaggi di questo mondo, quello di poter odiare e esser odiati, senza conoscersi.”

MANZONI. I Promessi Sposi, Cap. IV.

“It is one of the great advantages of this world, that men can hate and be hated, without being acquainted.”

“ È ver : con lui felice
Non sono io mai : ma nè senz' esso il sono.”

ALFIERI. Oreste, Act III., Sc. I.—(Clitennestra.)

“ 'Tis true : with him
I know no joy : yet know I none without him.”

“ È vera virtude
Il sapersi astener da quel che piace,
Se quel che piace offendi.”

GUARINI. Il Pastor Fido, Act III., Sc. III.—(Amarilli.)

“ True virtue lies
In learning to abstain from what we like,
If what we like offends.”

“ Egghi è ben ver, chi nasce poverello,
Ch' egghi ha poca virtù, e men cervello.”

GOZZI. Ecloga.—“ La Ghita e il Piovano.”

“ Whoso is born poor, all the world maintains
That he has little virtue and less brains.”

“ Egli è da forte
Il supportar le avversità ; ma fora
Vil stupidizza il non sentirne il carico.”

ALFIERI. Sofonisba, Act II., Sc. III.—(Sofonisba.)

“ 'Tis the brave man's part to bear
The burden of adversity, but not
To feel its weight were sheer stupidity.”

“ Egli è di miseri conforto
Di veder, come lor, qualche altro afflitto.”

PULCI. Morgante Maggiore, XXV., 209.

“ 'Tis to the wretched aye some consolation
To see, as they do, others suffering.”

“ È proverbio vulgar che aver consorti
Nelle miserie ai miseri pur giova.”

MARINI. L'Adone, XIV., 34.

“ The wretched find, so says the vulgar saw,
Solace in having partners in their pain.”

“ Nel tormento
Spesso è gran refrigerio aver compagni.”

MARINI. L'Adone, XIX., 23.

“ In torment oft
To have companions consolation brings.”

“ (Ben dice il proverbio ch') egli è meglio abitare colle fiere in le spilonche, che avere in casa una femmina litigiosa e perversa.”

FIRENZUOLA. I Lucidi, Act I., Sc. II.—(Lucido Tolto.)

“ Well says the proverb, that it is better to live with wild beasts in caves, than in the same house with a cross-grained and quarrelsome woman.”

“ Egli è meglio perdere, dicendo il vero, che vincere con le bugie.”
DIVIZIO DA BIBBIENA. La Calandria, Act I., Sc. II.—(Polinico.)

“ It is better to speak the truth, and lose, than to win by lying.”

“ Egli è vero oro potabile,
Che mandar suole in esilio
Ogni male inrimediabile.” REDI. Bacco in Toscana.—(Of Wine.)

“ Potable gold is this, be sure,
That ever into exile sends
All evil that we cannot cure.”

“ Egli tocca di ridere a chi ode, e non a chi dice.”
CASA. Galateo. (Opere, Milano, 1806, Vol. I., p. 260.)

“ The question of laughter lies with the hearer, not with the narrator.”

“ Egualemente apprestato in ogni sorte
Si prometta vittoria e sprezzì morte.”
TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata, X., 38.

“ Prepared to meet his fate, whate'er arise,
Let him on victory count, and death despise.”

“ Eh! uomini, siate giusti. Prima soccorrete, e poi consigliate.”
FEDERICI. Il Delatore, Act III., Sc. I.—(Lucia.)

“ O men! be just. Give aid first and counsel afterwards.”

“ Ei sa che 'l vero parlo,
Che legno vecchio mai non rose tarlo.”
PETRARCA. Canzone in Morte di M. Laura, VII., 68.

“ He knows 'tis truth indeed
That never worm did on dry branches feed.”

“ Ei si fa contro a i mali
De la costanza sua scudo e usbergo.”
PARINI. Odi.—“ La Caduta.”

“ He maketh 'gainst the evils that befall
Hauberk and shield of his own constancy.”

“ (Ed) enne dolce così fatto scemo;
Perchè 'l ben nostro in questo ben s'affina,
Che quel che vuole Iddio e noi volemo.”
DANTE. Paradiso, XX., 136.

“ And sweetness doth such lack of knowledge hold;
Since in that Good our own good doth refine,
And as God willeth, so our wills we mould.”—(J. I. Minchin.)

“ Eppur si muove!”
Attributed to GALILEO. (Vide Del Lungo, Galileo, Cap. VIII., in

TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata, X., 59.

“ E'en little fault the heart did shrewdly wound.”

“Era già l' ora che volge 'l disio
 A' naviganti e 'ntenerisce il cuore
 Lo di ch' han detto a' dolci amici addio;
 E che lo nuovo peregrin d' amore
 Punge, se ode squilla di lontano
 Che paja 'l giorno pianger che si muore.”

DANTE. Purgatorio, VIII., 1.

“'Twas now the hour when longings rise anew
 To voyagers, and the heart grown tender sighs,
 The day they've said, to well-loved friends, adieu,
 When the new pilgrim thrills with love's soft ties,
 If from afar he hear the vesper bell,
 That seems to mourn above the day that dies.”—(J. I. Minchin.)

“Era già nato innanzi all' Amore, l'amore di noi medesimi.”

ALGAROTTI. Il Congresso di Citera.

“Before the birth of Love, love of ourselves was born.”

“Era la vita vostra il suo splendore;
 Di Cecchino Bracci, che qui morto giace.
 Chi nol vide nol perde, e vive in pace;
 La vita perde chi 'l vide, e non muore.”

BUONAROTTI. Epitaffi, XXXIV.

“'Twas in his glory that your life did lie,
 Cecchino Bracci, whom this stone doth hide.
 Who knew him not lose naught, in peace abide;
 Their life they lose who knew and cannot die.”

“Esca primiera ad ogni eccesso l'oro.”

ALFIERI. Timoleone, Act IV., Sc. I.—(Timoleone.)

“Gold is the bait that lures to all excess.”

“(E donde nascon le rivoluzioni?)

... tutto si riduce, al parer mio
 Al dire) esci di lì, ci vuo star io.”

PANANTI. Il Poeta di Teatro, Part II., Canto XIV., 2.

“And whence do revolutions take their rise?
 One phrase will sum it up, it seems to me:
 Come down from there, that 's where I want to be.”

“Essere la natura de' motti cotale, che essi come la pecora morde, deono così mordere l'uditore, e non come 'l cane: perciò che, se come cane mordesse il motto, non sarebbe motto, ma villania.”

BOCCACCIO. Decameron, Giornata VI., Novella III.

“The nature of a witticism is this, that it nips the hearer like a sheep, does not bite him like a dog: for if a witticism were to bite like a dog, it would no longer be witty, but malicious.”

“Fa che 'l carcer di vita, ov' io son chiuso,
 Con chiave di pietate apra la Morte.”

FILICAJA. Sonetto XXXVII.

“Grant me that Death with pitying key may ope
 The prison of life wherein I am confined.”

"Fa di esser amabile, se vuoi esser amato; piace e avrai persuaso."

ALGAROTTI. Il Congresso di Citera.

"Seek to be lovable if you would be loved; please, and you will have persuaded."

"Fa manto del vero alla menzogna."

TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata, IV., 25.

"Make for thy lies a mantle of the truth."

"Facci adunque un Principe conto di vivere e mantenere lo Stato: i mezzi saranno sempre giudicati onorevoli, e da ciascuno lodati."

MACCHIAVELLI. Il Principe, Cap. XVII.

"Let a prince then make it his concern to live and to maintain the State: whatever his methods, they will always be accounted honourable and be universally praised."

"Facil riesce a chi dolor non sente
Suggerire agli afflitti il darsi pace."

GOLDONI. Don Giovanni Tenorio, Act IV., Sc. IX.

—(Donna Anna.)

"Suggesting to the afflicted resignation
Comes easily to those who feel no pain."

"Facile è oprar gran danno, e chi riparo
Por sappia a tempo al mal ch' ei fece, è raro."

CASTI. Gli Animali Parlanti, XI., 72.

"Great mischief is soon wrought, but to repair
In time the evil we have done is rare."

"(Perciò fra lor proverbio era usuale)
Falso come una nuova ufficiale."

CASTI. Gli Animali Parlanti, XIV., 37.

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXI., 43.

"Void is the bond that is by fear extorted."

"Felice è cotal morte e scempio,
Via più ch' acquisto di province e d'oro."

TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata, VIII., 44.

"Happy indeed such torture and such death,
Yea more than gain of provinces and gold."

“ Felici, e ancor per molta età, se i grati,
Tropo grati piacer, se il guasto e insano
Costume, e di lung’ ozio infausta calma
Tutto il vigor non vi torrà de l’alma.”

PINDEMONTE. Ottave.—“ All’ Inghilterra.”

“ Happy, for ages still, if the pursuit
Of pleasure, the decay of moral sense,
And the ill-omened calm of endless peace
Sap not the pristine vigour of your souls.”

“ Femina è cosa mobil per natura :
Ond’ io so ben, ch’ un amoroso stato
In cor di donna picciol tempo dura.”

PETRARCA. Sonetto in Vita di M. Laura, CXXXI.

“ A woman’s mind to lightest breath doth turn :
So know I well that true affection’s flame
Within her heart but little time will burn.”

“ Sia maladetto chi si fidò mai,
O vuol fidarsi di donna che sia ;
Che false sono e maladette tutte ;
E più anche le belle che le brutte.”

BERNI. Orlando Innamorato, XXII., 49.

“ Cursèd be he who e’er has put his trust
Or who henceforth shall trust in woman’s heart ;
False are they all, and to mankind a curse ;
The plain are bad enough, the fair are worse.”

“ Femmina è cosa garrula e fallace ;
Vuole e disvuole : è folle uom, che sen fida.”

TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata, XIX., 84.

“ A garrulous, deceitful thing is woman ;
She will, she will not : fool who trusts in her.”

“ Femmina cosa mobil per natura,
Più che fraschetta al vento, e più che cima
Di pieghevole spica.”

TASSO. Aminta, Act I., Sc. II.—(Tirsi.)

“ Woman by nature is a fickle thing,
Lighter than wind-blown bough, lighter than ear
Of waving corn.”

“ L’onda che mormora
Tra sponda e sponda,
L’aura che tremola
Tra fronda e fronda
È meno instabile
Del vostro cor.”

METASTASIO. Siroe, Act I., Sc. IX.—(Arasse.)

“ The wave that is murmuring
’Tween reef and reef,
The breeze that is whispering
’Tween leaf and leaf
Are less unstable,
Love, than thy heart.”

“ Fere lo sol lo fango tutto 'l giorno ;
Vil riman, nè il sol perde colore.”

GUINICELLI. Canzone. (Poeti del Primo Secolo, Firenze, 1816, p. 92.)

“ Though the sun beat all day upon the mud,
Still foul the mud remains and bright the sun.”

“ Figlie son del dolor le gioie estreme,
E del frutto del riso il pianto è seme.”

MARINI. L'Adone, XIV., 315.

“ Our keenest joys the daughters are of pain ;
Tears must he sow who laughter's fruit would gain.”

“ Tutto quanto v'è di buono, di grande, di bello al mondo, è figlio del dolore.”

MASSIMO D'AZEGLIO. I Miei Ricordi, Cap. VIII. (Ed. 1867, Vol. I., p. 165.)

“ Whatever of good, of great, of beautiful, there is in the world, is the offspring of pain.”

“ Filocalia, che veramente può dirsi figliuola del giudizio.”

MURATORI. La Perfetta Poesia, Lib. II., Cap. X.

“ Love of beauty, which may, in truth, be called the daughter of judgment.”

“ Fin che vita riman vi è ancor speranza.”

GOLDONI. La Buona Figliuola Maritata, Act II., Sc. III. —(Marianna.)

“ Till life be ended, there is always hope.”

“ Forse a popol ben servo è assai più a grado
Chi lo sforza a obbedir, che chi nel prega.”

ALFIERI. La Congiura de' Pazzi, Act IV., Sc. III.—(Guglielmo.)

“ Perchance a slavish people him prefers
Who forces, not who prays it, to obey.”

“ Fortuna ed ardir van spesso insieme.”

È figlio del dovere.”

METASTASIO. Romolo ed Ersilia, Act I., Sc. VII.—(Ersilia.)

“ Love, with us,
Is duty's child.”

“ Fra tutti i martir, donne mie care,
Nessun ve n'è maggior che 'l pentimento,
Poi che 'l passato non si può disfare.”

TANSILLO. Il Vendemmiatore, St. VII.

“ 'Mongst all our martyrdoms, there is not one,
Fair ladies mine, more dire than penitence,
For what is past can never be undone.”

“ Fratelli, a un tempo stesso, Amore e Morte
Ingenerò la sorte.
Cose quaggiù si belle
Altre il mondo non ha, non han le stelle.”

LEOPARDI. Amore e Morte.

“ Friends, in the self-same hour, did fate give birth
To Love and Death.
Nowhere upon the earth
Or in the stars does aught so fair draw breath.”

“ Fuga per sempre il giorno! Occulto è il vero
Sole nel cor profondo, ed è sì forte
Che crea pur fiori da gli abissi. O Morte!
Fuga per sempre il giorno menzognero!”

D'ANNUNZIO. Intermezzo. Le Adultere.—“Isolda.”

“ Fly thou the day! for hid is the true sun
In the heart's depths, and yet so great his power
That from the abyss he raiseth many a flower.
O Death! the lying day for ever shun!”

“ Fuggite i libri; questi
Son la vergogna dell' umano gente,
Son gli assassini della vita umana.
Credete a me: la vera
Filosofia è quella d'ingrassare.”

LORENZI. Socrate Immaginario, Act I., Sc. XIII.—(Tammaro.)

“ All books avoid, for they
Are the disgrace of our humanity,
And the assassins of the human race.
Mark well my words: the true
Philosophy consists in growing fat.”

“ Fummo in due corpi un' alma sola in vita,
Sola una fiamma anco le morte nostre
Spoglie consumi, e in una polve unisca.”

ALFIERI. Antigone, Act I., Sc. III.—(Antigone.)

“ Living we were two bodies with one soul,
So let one flame our mortal spoils consume,
That in one dust we may united be.”

"Gabrina tenne sempre gli occhi bassi,
Perchè non ben risposta al vero dassi."

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXI., 69.

"Gabrina silent stood with downcast eye,
For truth confirmed admits not a reply."—(Hoole.)

"Galeotto fu il libro e chi lo scrisse:
Quel giorno più non vi leggemmo avanti."

DANTE. Inferno, V., 137.

"For us our Galeotto was that book:
That day we did not read it any more."—(J. I. Minchin.)

"Gentil Madonna, mentre ho della vita,
Per tal ch' io mora consolato in pace,
Vi piaccia agli occhi miei non esser cara."

DANTE. Sonetto XXXIV.

"Fair Lady, for the days I still must live,
That I may die contented and in peace,
I pray thee seem not charming to my eyes."

"Già questo è quel che vedesi usare in nostra dì, Comandami, comandami, e poi; voglio così."

GOLDONI. Zoroastro, Act V., Sc. III.—(Corina.)

"This is to-day the common use with us,
'Pray you, command me'; then, 'I'd have it thus'."

"Giammai, signore, è una parola snella:
Un dì la nota e l'altro la cancella."

DALL' ONGARO. Stornelli Politici.—"Giammai."

"Never's a word, sir, that is lightning-paced,
By one day noted, by the next erased."

"Giova poi la memoria, ed è soave
A rimembrar quel che a soffrir fu grave."

MARINI. L'Adone, IV., 183.

"Then memory brings delights beyond compare,
Recalling sufferings that were hard to bear."

"Giudicar l'arbor da' frutti maturi,
Non d'ombre, frondi e radici se avvezza."

CAMPANELLA. Poesie Filosofiche.—"Della Nobiltà."

"'Tis by its ripened fruit we judge the tree,
Not by its shade, its foliage or its roots."

"Giudico il mondo sempre esser stato ad un medesimo modo, ed in quello esser stato tanto di buono, quanto di triste, ma variare questo buono e questo triste di provincia in provincia."

MACCHIAVELLI. Discorsi sopra il prima Deca di Tito Livio, II.,
Introduzione.

"The world, in my judgment, has always been constituted in the same way, and has contained as much good as evil, but the distribution of the said good and evil varies from province to province."

“Giunta è la tua gloria al sommo; e per l'innanzi
Fuggir le dubie guerre a te conviene:
Ch'ove tu vinca, sol di stato avanzi,
Nè tua gloria maggior quinci diviene;
Ma l'imperio acquistato è preso dianzi,
E l'onor perdi, se 'l contrario avviene.”

TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata, II., 67.

“Thy fame has reached its height, and from this hour
’Tis fitting thou shouldst shun all doubtful war;
For conquering thou but addest to thy power,
Nor is thy glory greater than before,
While, if thou own’st defeat, thy foes devour
Thy empire, and lost honour thou’lt deplore.”

“Gl'Inglesi, . . . se nel commercio essi hanno la sottigliezza Cartaginese, non mancano in guerra della Romana virtù.”

ALGAROTTI. Saggio sopra il Commercio.

“The English, if they possess, in commerce, the astuteness of the Carthaginian, are not lacking, in war, in the valour of the Roman.”

“Gli amanti legano la borsa con un filo di ragnatelo.”

ARETINO. Lo Ipocrito, Act I., Sc. V.—(Zefiro.)

“Lovers tie up their purses with a thread from a spider’s web.”

SANSOVINO. Concetti Politici, CCLXXVI.

“Ambassadors are the eyes and ears of States.”

“Gli è ben vero che si dice: Tu imparerai per un'altra volta, questo non vale, perchè la vien sempre con modi diversi, e non mai immaginati.”

CELLINI. Vita, Lib. II., Cap. XVII.

“It is very true that one says to oneself: ‘You will have had a lesson for next time’. But that is not the case; for fortune always comes upon us in new ways, quite unforeseen by our imagination.”

—(J. A. Symonds.)

“Gli è molto meglio un tordo, il poterselo mangiare in pace, che non è un grassissimo cappone, sebbene un sia certo di averlo, ed averlo in tanta guerra.”

CELLINI. Vita, Lib. II., Cap. CIX.

“It was far better to eat a thrush in peace than to bring a fat capon to one’s table, even though one were quite sure to get it, after a hot fight.”—(J. A. Symonds.)

“Gli estinti, Ansberga,
Talor dei vivi son più forti assai.”

MANZONI. Adelchi, Act IV., Sc. I.—(Ermengarda.)

“The dead, Ansberga,
Have oftentimes than the living far more power.”

“(Perchè) gli occhi dell’uom cercan morendo

Il sole; e tutti l’ultimo sospiro

Mandano i petti alla fuggente luce.” FOSCOLO. Dei Sepolcri, 121.

“Wherefore, when men lie dying, ’tis the sun
That their eyes seek, and every heart breathes forth
Unto the fading light its latest sigh.”

“ Gli officii
Non le discretioni darsi dicono.”

ARIOSTO. La Lena, Act II., Sc. III.—(Corbola.)

“ Appointments may be given,
Not the capacity to fill them well.”

“ Gli scrittori maledici sono con molta più attenzione letti, che non sono quelli che vanno adulandi.”

LOTTINI. Arvedimenti Civili, 402.

“ Writers who depreciate are much more attentively read than those who flatter.”

“ Gli spropositi
Presto si fanno, ma poi spesso costano
Il pentimento di tutta la vita.”

MAFFEI. Le Cerimonie, Act III., Sc. I.—(Leandro.)

“ Mistakes are made
In one brief moment, and the cost we pay
By a life long repentance.”

“ (Disse che) gli uomini che volevano fare a lor modo, bisognava che si faccessino un mondo a lor modo, perchè in questo non si usava così.”

CELLINI. Vita, Vol. I., Cap. LXXIX.

“ I said that men who wanted to do everything their own way must make a world to suit them, for it could not be done in this.”

“ Gli uomini letterati, per pompa di parlare, fanno ben spesso che il torto vince, e che la ragione perde.”

CASA. Galateo. (Opere, Milano, 1806, Vol. I., p. 256.)

“ Men of letters, with their parade of high-flown language, very often make the wrong to prevail and the right to succumb.”

“ Gli uomini nelle cose generali s'ingannano assai, nelle particolari non tanto.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Il Principe, Cap. XLVII.

“ Men are very apt to deceive themselves in generals, less so in particulars.”

“ Gli uomini non sanno essere nè al tutto tristi, nè al tutto buoni.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Discorsi sopra la prima Deca di Tito Livio, I., 30.

“ Men cannot be either altogether bad or altogether good.”

“ Gli uomini possono secondare la fortuna e non opporsegli; possono tessere gli orditi suoi, e non rompergli.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Discorsi sopra la prima Deca di Tito Livio, II., 29.

“ Men can assist fortune, but cannot set themselves up against her; they may weave threads into her fabric, but cannot break them.”

“ Gli uomini prudenti si fanno grado sempre delle cose in ogni loro azione, ancorachè la necessità gli costringesse a farle in ogni modo.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Discorsi sopra la prima Deca di Tito Livio, I., 51.

“ Wise men always claim credit for what is good in everything they do, even when they have only acted under the compulsion of necessity.”

“Gli uomini, quando sono governati bene, non cercano, nè vogliono altra libertà.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Discorsi sopra la prima Deca di Tito Livio, III., 5.

“Men, when they are well governed, neither seek nor desire any other liberty.”

“Gli uomini sono miseri per necessità, e risoluti di credersi miseri per accidente.”

LEOPARDI. Pensieri, XXXI.

“Men are miserable by necessity, and resolved to consider themselves miserable by accident.”

“Gran duolo il Fabbro istesso
Già punse, e duolo punge or più profondo
D'aver l'uom fatto, che à disfatto il mondo.”

FILICAJA. Canzone XXXI.

“Greatly th' eternal Architect hath grieved,
And greater grief is now upon Him laid,
That He made man, who hath the world unmade.”

“Gran fiamma secondar breve favilla
Suole, e fiume talor succede a stilla.”

MARINI. L'Adone, XI., 6.

“From tiny sparks great conflagrations grow ;
Oft from a drop doth mighty river flow.”

“Grazioso il Re dice agli afflitti Eroi, Un'altra volta vincerete voi.”

MARI. La Giasoneide, II., 50.

“With kindly tact
The king did to the downcast heroes say,
'Twill be your turn to win another day.”

“(Che) guardar dee ciascun d'esser ben netto,
Prima ch' altri riprenda di difetto.”

BERNI. Orlando Innamorato, XXVI., 34.

“Each should be sure of an untarnished name,
Before he ventures others' faults to blame.”

“Guardisi, che qual cosa e' si sia, la quale sia sottoposta al mal destino, che un la cerchi scampare da qualche evidente male, gli avviene che la cade in molto peggio.”

CELLINI. Vita, Lib. II., Cap. XCIX.

“Observe, by the way, that everything, whatever it be, which is subject to an evil destiny, although one tries to save it from some manifest ill, falls at once into a far worse plight.”—(J. A. Symonds.)

“Guerra non vo'; ma giova
Più certa pace ad ottener la forza.”

ALFIERI. Polinice, Act II., Sc. IV.—(Polinice.)

“I desire not war,
But force will oft secure more lasting peace.”

“Ha ben ella gran forza, e non la chiama
 Possente Dia senza ragione il mondo :
 Ma bisogna incontrarla, e farle vezzi,
 Spianandole il sentiero ; i neghittosi
 Saran di rado fortunati mai.”

GUARINI. Il Pastor Fido, Act II., Sc. IV.—(Corisca.)

“Great is the power of Fortune ; whom the world,
 Not without reason, mighty Goddess calls :
 But we must go to meet her, flatter her,
 And smooth her path, and those who this neglect
 Shall never bear the name of fortunate.”

“Ha due ali la vita : il gaudio e il duolo ;
 L'amor la impenna, e Dio dirige il volo.”

DALL' ONGARO. Stornelli.—“Una Vedova ad una Sposa.”

“Life has two wings : one, sorrow ; one, delight ;
 Love gives it pinions, God directs its flight.”

“Ha qualche volta un ortolan parlato
 Cose molte a proposito a la gente ;
 E da un mantel rotto e sporco è stato
 Molte volte coperto un uom prudente.”

“Ere now a simple tiller of the soil
 Hath spoken words of wisdom to mankind ;
 A cloak all tattered and besmirched with toil
 Hath ofttimes clothed a man of prudent mind.”

“Ha sue tempeste il core,
 Elena, come il mar.”

ZANELLA. Sopra un Anello.

“The heart its tempests hath,
 Helen, as hath the sea.”

“Han gli stessi delitti un vario fato :
 Quegli diventa Re, questi è impiccato.”

PIGNOTTI. Favola XLII.—“Il Cavallo e il Bue.”

“The same misdeeds a varying fate attends :
 This on the throne, that on the scaffold ends.”

MASSIMO D'AZEGLIO. I Miei Ricordi, Cap. I. (Ed. 1867, Vol. I., p. 24.)

“Have I the right to rob the son that is born to me of the most precious part of his inheritance, noble and virtuous examples?”

“(Però che) i ben della fortuna, se non si conoscono
Da quei che li posseggono, beni chiamar non possono.”

ALAMANNI. La Flora, Act IV., Sc. IV.—(Geri.)

“Because the gifts of fortune, if unknown
To those who have them, cannot be called gifts.”

“I cittadini sono
Di un giusto re figli primieri.”

ALFIERI. Agide, Act V., Sc. II.—(Agide.)

“The subjects
Of a just monarch are his eldest sons.”

“(Nè può essere più falsa quella comune opinione che dice che) i danari sono il nervo della guerra.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Discorsi sopra la prima Deca di Tito Livio, II., 10.

“And quite as incorrect is the commonly received opinion that money is the sinews of war.”

“Qual meraviglia . . . richiesto tal uno delle cose necessarie alla guerra, egli rispondesse, tre esser quelle: Danaro, danaro, danaro!”

MONTECUCCOLI. Memorie, Lib. I., XIV. (Ed. Colonia, 1704, p. 54.)

“What wonder that a certain person, being asked what were the things necessary for war, should reply that there were three,
to wit, money, money and money.”

“(Che) i giuramenti de i cattivi sono
Scritti ne l'onde, e in marmo quei de i buoni.”

attendere e considerare si debbe.”

VARCHI. L'Ercolano. (Opere, Milano, 1804, Vol. VI., p. 17.)

“ It is the end which is at stake, and which should receive the attention and consideration of men in all that they undertake.”

“ Il forte si mesce col vinto nemico;
Col nuovo signore rimane l'antico;
L' un popolo e l'altro sul collo vi sta.”

MANZONI. Adelchi, Act III., Sc. IX.—(Coro.)

“ The conquering mingles with the conquered foe;
With the new tyrant still the old ye know;
Both nations lay their yoke upon your neck.”

“ Il giudicare l'uomo d' un età secondo le idee d' un' altra, è il più fallace ed ingiusto dei sistemi.”

MASSIMO D'AZEGLIO. I Miei Ricordi, Cap. III. (Ed. 1867, Vol. I., p. 75.)

“ To judge a man of one age according to the ideas of another is of all methods the most misleading and unjust.”

Di serbare il silenzio, è quello di tacere.”

FERRARI. La Satira e Parini, Act I., Sc. VI.—(Colombi.)

“The surest way, I've held since I was young,
Of keeping silence is to hold your tongue.”

“Il mondo è a punto come un gagliardo cavallo, il quale molto ben conosce quando è montato da uno che non lo può strenuamente maneggiare; lo spregia, e tenta di toglierselo della schiena, e gittato che l'ha in terra, lo viene a pagar di calci.”

BRUNO. Spaccio della Bestia Trionfante Dialogo I., 1.—(Sofia.)

“The world is exactly like a vicious horse, which knows perfectly well when it is ridden by one who cannot manage it properly; it despises him, tries to get him out of the saddle, and when it has succeeded in throwing him, begins kicking him.”

“Il mondo è il libro, dove il senno eterno
Scrisse i propri concetti.”

CAMPANELLA. Poesie Filosofiche,—“Modo di Filosofare.”

“This world 's the book wherein th' eternal brain
Did his own thoughts inscribe.”

 Vagliono più, che i prieghi, e le ragioni."

CASTI. Gli Animali Parlanti, XXII., 75.

"Gifts on this earth
 Have, more than prayers, and more than reasons, worth."

"In questo mondo,
 Non v'è impossibil cosa a quel cui nulla
 Preme se la sua fama illustra o sporca,
 E se muor nel suo letto o sulla forca."

CASTI. Il Re Teodoro in Venezia, Act II., Sc. II.—(Teodoro.)

"In this world of ours
 There's naught he cannot do who nothing cares
 If he his name defiles or glorifies,
 And if by rope or in his bed he dies."

"In questo mondo, quante cose sono e non sembrano! e quante poi sembrano e non sono!"

PEPOLI. La Scommessa, Act I., Sc. III.—(Il Marchese.)

"How many things there are in this world which do not seem to be, and how many which seem to be and are not."

"In questo secolo
Vano e banchiere
Che più del essere
Conta il parere."

GIUSTI. Le Memorie di Pisa.

"In this age, which is teeming
With greed and banality,
We think much more of seeming
Than we do of reality."

“Di sciocchi il mondo è pieno, ed agli sciocchi

Convien gettar la polvere negli occhi.”

CASTI. Gli Animali Parlanti, XVIII., 38.

“The world is full of fools, and so the wise

Whene'er they can throw dust into their eyes.”

“Che stolti sono i più, spesso chi avea

Nome di saggio in pria, stolto divenne.”

PINDEMONTI. Sermoni. L'Utile Avvertimento.

“Most men are fools, and he who has at first Repute of wisdom, oft a fool becomes.”

“Infinite sono le varietà delle nature, e de' pensieri degl' uomini.

Però non si può imaginar cosa sì stravagante, ne sì contra ragione, che non sia secondo il cervello d'alcuno.”

GUICCIARDINI. Più Consigli et Avvertimenti, LXXXV.

“Infinite in their variety are the natures and the thoughts of men. Therefore it is impossible to imagine anything so extravagant or so unreasonable that it will not fall in with the humour of some one.”

“Ingiustissimo amor, perchè sì raro

Corrispondenti fai nostri disiri ?

Onde, perfido, avvien che t'è sì caro

Il discorde voler, ch' in due cor miri ? ”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, II., 1.

“Ah, why so rare does cruel Love inspire

Two tender bosoms with a mutual fire ?

Say, whence, perfidious, dost thou pleasure find

To sow dissension in the human mind ? ”—(Hoole.)

“(Che) ingrandisce le cose la paura.”

FORTIGUERRA. Ricciardetto, XXII., 13.

“For fear doth all things magnify.”

“Innalza un grido

Lacerator di ben costrutti orecchi.”

PARINI. Il Mattino.

“A cry goes up

That lacerates all well-constructed ears.”

E nel figliuolo suo detto Zecchino." GIUSTI. Gingillino, Pt. III.

"In the omnipotent Penny I believe,
And in his little son, called Halfpenny."

"(Et) io daltro non tengo fantasia
Che uscir de servitù, de povertate;
Niuna altra cosa credo al mondo ria."

MARCO GUAZZO. Errori d' Amore, Act II.—(Filoro.)

"And I no other fancy have but this,
To 'scape from servitude and poverty;
Naught else in all the world is bad, I wis."

"Io giudico ben questo, che sia meglio essere impetuoso che rispettivo, perchè la Fortuna è donna, ed è necessario, volendola tener sotto, batterla ed urtarla."

MACCHIAVELLI. Il Principe, Cap. XXV.

"Impetuosity, in my judgment, is superior to caution, for Fortune is a woman, and he who would keep her in subjection must treat her roughly and brutally."

“Io giuro per colui
Ch’ Amor si chiama, ed è pien di salute,
Che senza ovrar vertute
Nessun puote acquistar verace loda.” DANTE. Canzone XXIII.

“I swear by him
That Love is hight, and is my refuge sure,
That none can ere secure
True praise, save he that doeth virtuous deeds.”

“Io mi volsi a man destra e posi mente
All’ altro polo, e vidi quattro stelle
Non viste mai fuor ch’ alla prima gente.”
DANTE. Purgatorio, I., 22.

“Unto the right I turned, I gazed awhile
On the other Pole, and saw four glorious stars, Ne’er seen since Eden’s vale was lost by guile.”
—(J. I. Minchin.)

“Io miro i crespi e gli biondi capegli
De’ quali ha fatto per me rete Amore,
D’un fil di perle, e quando d’un bel fiore
Per me pigliare ; e trovo ch’ egli adescà.”
DANTE. Canzone XXIII.

“I gaze upon thy crisp, thy golden curls,
Whereof a net hath Love devised, entwined
Now with a flower, now with a string of pearls,
To capture me ; and sweet the lure I find.”

“Io non ho ancor mai trovato uomo alcuno, che non abbia saputo qualche cosa che non so io.”

GELLI. Capricci del Bottai, Ragionamento VIII.—(Giusto.)

Non per odio d’altrui nè per disprezzo.”
PETRARCA. Canzoni sopra vari Argomenti, IV.—“A’ grandi d’ Italia.”

“I speak to tell the truth,
And not in hatred or contempt of others.”

“Io per mi pensava che in un giovine l’esser innamorato fusse il condimento di tutte le sue virtù, e che se ben alcun fusse una profonda sentina di vitii, Amor fusse bastante a sollevarlo in un momento fino a le stelle.”

PICCOLOMINI. L’Alessandro, Act I., Sc. I.—(Fabritio.)

“I always used to think that the falling in love of a young man gave a savour to all his virtues, and that, even if he were a perfect sink of iniquity, Love would suffice in an instant to raise him to the stars.”

“(Nè l'un nè l'altro, amico; perchè) io per ordinario
Fra questi sì e no son di parer contrario.”

FERRARI. La Satira e Parini, Act I., Sc. IV.—(Colombi.)

“Neither, my friend; for, as I mostly do,
'Mongst all these yeas and nays I hold the other view.”

“Io son colei che sì importuna e fera
Chiamata son di voi, e sorda e cieca,
Gente a cui si fa notte innanzi sera.”

PETRARCA. Trionfo della Morte, 37.

“I am that one whom ye do ruthless call,
Importunate, of ears and eyes bereft,
Ye unto whom night comes ere evening fall.”

“Io son colei, chi ti diè tanta guerra,
E compie' mia giornata innanzi sera.”

PETRARCA. Sonetto in Morte di M. Laura, XXXIV.

“I am that one who fought so fierce a fight
With thee, and closed my day ere it was night.”

“E innanzi vespro gli parve di notte.”

PULCI. Morgante Maggiore, XXVII., 11.

“And before evening fell he thought it night.”

“Se lo spirito infermo e travagliato
Compirà sua giornata innanzi sera,
Non sia dimenticato
Il tuo misero amante.”

GIUSTI. All' Anima Lontana.

“If that the spirit weak and overwrought
Finish its day or ere the evening fall,
Let not thy love distraught
Be banished from thy mind.”

“Io son per pratica
Pur troppo istrutto,
Che in questo secolo
L'abito e tutto.”

GUADAGNOLI. Il mio Abito.

“By long experience
I know full well,
In this our century,
How dress will tell.”

“Ira è breve furor, e chi no 'l frena
È furor lungo, che 'l suo possessore
Spesso a vergogna, e talor mena a morte.”

PETRARCA. Sonetti sopra Vari Argomenti, XIX.

“Short madness is man's anger, and, to him
Who checks it not, long madness, so that he Full oft to shame, mayhap to death is brought.”

"Italia, Italia, o tu cui feo la sorte
 Dono infelice di bellezza, onde ai
 Funesta dote d'infiniti guai
 Che in fronte scritti per gran doglia porti."

FILICAJA. Sonetto LXXXVII.—(All' Italia, I.)

"Italia! O Italia! thou who hast
 The fatal gift of beauty, which became
 A funeral dower of present woes and past,
 On thy sweet brow is sorrow ploughed by shame."
 —(Byron, Childe Harold, IV., 42.)

"L'abito fa il monaco."

GIUSTI. Gingillino, Pt. III.

"The habit makes the monk."

"L'abito non fa il monaco—e i cartoni
 Signori miei, non fanno i libri buoni."

FUSINATO. Tre Ritratti.

"The habit doth not make the monk, nor e'er,
 My friends, are books made good by bindings rare."

"L'acque parlan d'Amore, e l'aure e i rami,
 E gli augelletti, e i pesci, e i fiori, e l'erba;
 Tutti insieme pregando ch' io sempr' ami.
 Ma tu, ben nata, che dal ciel mi chiami;
 Per la memoria di tua morte acerba
 Preghi ch' i' sprezzì il mondo e suoi dolci ami."

PETRARCA. Sonetto in Morte di M. Laura, XII.

"The streams, the boughs, the breezes prate of love;
 The tiny birds, the fish, the flowers, the moss
 Unite in prayer that I may loving prove.
 But, noble dame, that call'st me from the skies,
 Oh! by the memory of my bitter loss,
 Pray that I may the world's false lures despise."

"L'affanno sempre vien con prontitudine,
 Lesto e improvviso con corso di cervo,
 E poi si parte a passo di testudine."

BOIARDO. Timone, Act IV., Sc. II.—(Timone.)

"Sudden misfortune comes adown our track,
 Swift and all unforeseen, like course of stag,
 And then at tortoise-pace she hies her back."

"(Che) l'alma sciolta dal mondano errore
 Tanto più sente, quanto è più felice;
 E tant' ha più d'amor, quanto più intende."

GIUSTO DE' CONTI. La Bella Mano. (Ed. Vinegia, 1531, p. 19.)

"The soul that is from mundane error free
 More deeply feels as happier it grows,
 And loves the more, the more it understands."

" L'alta beltà, ch' al mondo non ha pare
Noja te, se non quando il bel tesoro
Di castità par ch' ella adorni, e fregi."

PETRARCA. Sonetto in Vita di M. Laura, CCV.

" Beauty, that in the world hath no compeer,
But harms thee, if it be not aye adorned
With that all priceless treasure, chastity."

" Che aver può donna al mondo più di buono,
A cui la castità levata sia ? "

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, VIII., 42.

" What has that wretched damsel left to boast,
What good on earth, whose virtuous praise is lost ?"—(Hoole.)

" A donna, nè bellezza
Nè nobiltà, nè gran fortuna basta ;
Sì che di vero onor monti in altezza,
Se per nome, e per opre non è casta."

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XLIII., 84.

" Not beauty, wealth or lineage e'er could raise
A woman's name (he said) to height of praise,
If not in action chaste."—(Hoole.)

" L'amante, per aver quel che desia,
Senza guardar che Dio tutto ode e vede,
Avviluppa promesse e giuramenti,
Che tutti spargon poi per l'aria i venti."

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, X., 5.

" The youth who pants to gain the amorous prize,
Forgets that Heaven, with all-discerning eyes,
Surveys the secret heart ; and when desire
Has, in possession, quenched its short-lived fire,
The devious winds aside each promise bear,
And scatter all his solemn vows in air."—(Hoole.)

" (Che) l'amar senza speme è sogno e ciancia."

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXV., 49.

" For hopeless love is but a foolish dream."

" L'amicizia, le leggi e le promesse
Tutte son rotte alfin dall' Interesse."

MARINI. L'Adone, XIII., 223.

CASTI. La Grotta di Trofonio, Act I., Sc. IX.—(Artemidoro.)

"The soul of the great universe is joy."

"L'anima dell' uomo apprendendo si nutrisce, siccome il corpo per lo cibo."

FRA BARTOLOMMEO DA SAN CONCORDIO. Giunta agli Ammaestramenti degli Antichi, XXX.

"The soul of man is nourished by learning, as the body is by food."

"(Ma) l'animo gentil sempre pon mente
Al buon cuor di chi dà, non al presente."

FORTIGUERRA. Ricciardetto, XXX., 107.

"The noble soul aye to the gift far less Gives heed, than to the giver's kindliness."

"Picciolo, è vero, il dono
Ma non è scarso il cor."

GOLDONI. Lo Speziale, Act III., Sc. V.—(Mengone.)

"The gift is small 'tis true,
But large the heart that gives."

"L'arido legno
Facilmente s'accende,
E più che i verdi rami avvampa e splende."

METASTASIO. L'Asilo d' Amore.—(Amore.)

"Far easier than the green
Does the dry branch take fire,
And brighter glows the flame, and rises higher."

"L'arte che imita la natura, opera per gradi, e non a salti."
MONTECUCCOLI. Memorie, Lib. III., 8. (Ed. Colonia, 1704, p. 344.)

"Art, which imitates nature, works by steps, and not by leaps."

"L'arte, che tutto fa, nulla si scopre."
TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata, XVI., 9.

"Art, that does all things, ne'er herself displays."

"L'arte non imita, interpreta. Essa cerca l'idea che dorme nel simbolo, e presenta il simbolo in modo che gli uomini veggano, attraverso, l'idea."

MAZZINI. Scritti Editi ed Inediti. Preface to Vol. II.

"Art does not imitate, it interprets. It seeks the idea which sleeps within the symbol, and presents the symbol in such a form, that men may, through it, perceive the idea."

"L'arte ritrova quello che la natura guastata ha perduto."
G. B. NICCOLINI. (Vannucci, Ricordi della Vita di G. B. Niccolini, Vol. I., p. 384.)

"Art rediscovers what corrupted nature has lost."

"(Che) l'arte vostra quella, quanto puote
Segue, come 'l maestro fa il discente,
Sì che vostr' arte a Dio quasi è nipote."

DANTE. Inferno, XI., 103.

"Your art follows nature as it can,
Like the disciple goes his lord behind,
So that God's grandchild is the art of man."

—(J. I. Minchin.)

"L'articolo è indeciso, se han più di vita privi
Gli uomini i loro mali, o i medici cattivi."

GOLDONI. La Metempsicosi, Act I., Sc. II.—(Momo.)

"I know not from which cause more join the saints, Unskilful doctors, or their own complaints."

"(E) l'aspettar del male è mal peggiore
Forse, che non parebbe il mal presente."

TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata, I., 82.

"Worse ill it is, perchance, to wait for ill,
Than that ill seems when it upon us falls."

"Peggior del danno è l'aspettarlo."

ALFIERI. Bruto Primo, Act IV., Sc. II.—(Bruto.)

"Worse than the evil is the anticipation."

"L'aspra necessità, l'usanza, e 'l tempo
Partorir di dì in dì l'astuzia, e l'arte."

ALAMANNI. Della Coltivazione, III., 363.

"For stern necessity and use and time
From day to day do bring forth art and skill."

"L'avaro è un animale
Che a nessuno fa bene, e a se fa male."

GOLDONI. Arcifanfano, Act I., Sc. I.—(Arcifanfano.)

"The miser is a sort of beast
Who no one benefits, himself the least."

"L'avaro molto spesso spende più che 'l largo."

SACCHETTI. Novella CLXXXV.

"The miser oftentimes spends more than the spendthrift."

"L'esperienza è il paragon del vero."

TANSILLO. Il Vendemmiatore, Stanza XXXIV.

"Experience the touchstone is of truth."

"L'esser d' un' avvocato, chi ben pensa,
È un molino, ove a macinar concorre
D'ogni sorte di genti copia immensa."

NELLI. Satire, I., IX.—"Peccadigli degli Avvocati."

"A lawyer's office is, I'm sure you'll find,
Just like a mill, whereto for grinding come
A crowd of folk of every sort and kind."

"L'esser uomo dabbene, Mariana mia, è 'l maggior capitale del mondo."

GIGLI. Don Pilone, Act I., Sc. IX.

"The best capital in the world, Mariana, is honesty."

"(Un gran proverbio,
Caro al Potere,
Dice che) l'Essere
Sta nel Avere."

GIUSTI. Gingillino, Pt. I.

"A proverb that
The mighty prize
Says: Being aye
In Having lies."

STEFANO GUAZZO. Dialoghi Piacevoli. Dell' Honore. (Ed. Piacenza, 1587, p. 238.)

“Man, in a word, is a world in miniature, and the most perfect and most finished work of God.”

“L'ignoranza è madre de la felicità e beatitudine sensuale.”

BRUNO. Gli Eroi Furori, Part I., Dialogo II.—(Cicada.)

“Ignorance is mother of the sensual kind of happiness and contentment.”

“ (Deh, come è vero
Che) l'ignoranza fà le menti audaci,
E la ragion le fà dubbiose e lenti.”

TRISSINO. L'Italia Liberata da' Goti, Lib. XXI. (Ed. Parigi, 1729, Vol. III., p. 95.)

“ Ah, how true it is
That ignorance instils audacity,
While reason caution inculcates, and doubt.”

“L'imitazione del male supera sempre l'esempio, come per il contrario l'imitazione del bene e sempre inferiore.”

GUICCIARDINI. Istoria d' Italia, Lib. VI. (Ed. Milano, 1803, Vol. III., p. 232.)

“The imitation of evil always goes further than the example, just as, on the contrary, the imitation of good always lags behind.”

“L'impresa de' teatri al nostro tempo
Non è un occupazione, ma un martiro.”

RANIERI DE' CALSABIGI. L'Opera Seria, Act II., Sc. III.—(Delirio.)

“The management of theatres, in our time,
Is no profession, but a martyrdom.”

“L'inerzia chiamasi rassegnazione, e poichè non si sente più l'amor di patria, si parla di umanità.”

G. B. NICCOLINI. (Vannucci. Ricordi della Vita di G. B. Niccolini, Vol. I., p. 389.)

“Laziness calls itself resignation, and when a man ceases to feel a love for his country, he begins to prate about humanity.”

“ (Gino mio,) l'ingegno umano
Partorì cose stupende,
Quando l'uomo ebbe tra mano
Meno libri e più faccende.”

GIUSTI. Epigramma.—“A Gino Capponi.”

“Gino, my friend, the human mind
Stupendous things did carry through,
In those past ages when mankind
Had fewer books and more to do.”

"(Che) l'injuria in colui che tempo aspetta, Cresce col differir della vendetta." MARINI. L'Adone, IV., 21.

"In him who bides his time, the sense of wrong Grows, as his vengeance is deferred, more strong."

"'Tis opportunity that makes men rogues."

"L'odio ci è dato per odiare il malo:
Per temerlo ci è data la paura."

BERNI. Orlando Innamorato, LX., 4.

"Hatred is given us to hate the ill,
And fear is given us that we may fear it."

"L'onda del mar divisa
Bagna la valle e 'l monte,
Va passegiera
In fiume,
Va prigionera
In fonte,
Mormora sempre, e geme
Fin che non torna in mar."

METASTASIO. Artaserse, Act III., Sc. I.—(Arbace.)

"The wave that from the sea is severed
Bathes the mountain and the vale,
In the river passeth by,
In the fount doth prisoned lie,
Ever murmuring, ever sighing,
Till to the sea it come again."

“L'onestà della madre sempre fu parte di dote alla figliuola.”

PANDOLFINI. Del Governo della Famiglia. (Ed. Milan, 1802, p. 141.)

“ (Che) l'un Diavol ben l'altro conosce.”

PULCI. Morgante Maggiore, XXI., 66

“One devil doth the other recognise.”

“ (Che) l'uom ch' offende scrive entr' a la polve
L'offesa, e in marmo quel che la riceve.”

TRISSINO. L'Italia Liberata da' Goti, Lib. XXII. (Ed. Parigi, 1729, Vol. III., p. 131.)

“For the offender traces in the dust
Th' offence: th' offended graves it upon stone.”

“ L'uom mostra dove nacque,
Ma quali terre od acque
Avranno la sua polve,
Profondo notte involve.”

ZANELLA. Le Palme Fossili.

“ Thou show'st thy place of birth,
But where, on sea or earth,
Thy dust at last shall light
Is wrapped in darkest night.”

“ L'uomo crede quello che può e non quello che vuole! E Dio, chi lo sa, non vorrà l'impossibile come vogliono gli uomini, nè sarà crudele come loro.”

MASSIMO D'AZEGLIO. I Miei Ricordi, Cap. I. (Ed. 1867, Vol. I., p. 22.)

“ Man believes what he can and not what he would! And God, who knows this, will not ask for the impossible, as do men, nor will He be cruel as they are.”

“ L'uomo insigne non è mai apprezzato nè in vita, nè in patria.”

FEDERICI. I Pregiudizi dei Paesi Piccoli, Act II., Sc. V. —(L'Ufficiale.)

“ The man of mark is never appreciated, either in his lifetime or in his own country.”

“ L'uomo mai un disegno non fa, che la fortuna un altro non ne faccia.”

DIVIZIO DA BIBBIENA. La Calandria, Act I., Sc. I.—(Fessenio.)

“ Man never makes a plan but fortune makes another.”

“ L'uomo saggio sopra del suo dosso
Non deve portar peso che lo sfianchi,
Onde dica piangendo: io non lo posso.”

FORTIGUERRA. Rime Piacevoli, Cap. XI.

“ Let no man on his back, if he be wise,
A burden bind that is beyond his strength,
Whence, weeping, he 'I cannot bear it' cries.”

“ L'uso de' mortali è come fronda
In ramo, che sen va, ed altra viene.”

DANTE. Paradiso, XXVII., 137.

“ For use of mortals is like leaf on bough,
Which goes, and other cometh whence it fell.”

—(J. I. Minchin.)

VARCHI. L'Ercolano, Quesito IX. (Opere, Milano, 1804, Vol. VII., p. 347.)

“ True and proper brevity consists not in saying less, but in not saying more than is necessary.”

“ La cagione della trista o della buona fortuna degli uomini è riscontrare il modo del procedere suo coi tempi.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Discorsi sopra la prima Deca di Tito Livio, III., 9.

“ The secret of a man's success or failure lies in his power to regulate his proceedings in conformity with the times.”

“ La chiara fama tua, la gloria bella
Nel ciel eterno ti dà il merto degno,
Ch' uman tesoro non paga opre divine.”

VITTORIA COLONNA. Sonetto III.

“ Thy world-wide fame, thy glory unsurpassed,
Give thee due guerdon in th' eternal skies,
For works divine no human treasure pays.”

“ (Che) la colluvion de le persone
Non suol dar la vittoria de le guerre ;
Ma i pochi e buoni, con consiglio, ed arte,
Più volte han vinto innumerabil gente.”

TRISSINO. L'Italia Liberata da' Goti, Lib. I. (Ed. Parigi, 1729, Vol. I., p. 23.)

“ 'Tis not by overwhelming floods of men
That victory in our wars may be secured ;
Few men and good, with skilful strategy,
Have oft innumerable hosts o'ercome.”

“ La contingenza, che fuor del quaderno
 Della vostra materia non si stende,
 Tutta è dipinta nel cospetto eterno.
 Necessità però quindi non prende,
 Se non come dal viso in che si specchia
 Nave che per corrente giù discende.”

DANTE. Paradiso, XVII., 37.

“ Contingency, which ne'er beyond the tide
 Of your material world can ever reach,
 On the eternal sight is wholly dyed.
 Not that from hence necessity I teach,
 More than from sight a vessel glideth fair
 Adown the current, gazed on from the land.”

—(J. I. Minchin.)

“ La critica, per ciò che spetta agli scrittori, avvia, non conduce: preludia, non eseguisce.”

MAZZINI. Della Fatalità considerata com' Elemento Drammatico.
(Scritti Editi, Milan, 1861, Vol. II., p. 311.)

“ Criticism, so far as it concerns writers, points the way, but does not lead; preludes, but does not execute.”

“ La domanda onesta
 Si dee seguir con l'opere tacendo.” DANTE. Inferno, XXIV., 77.

“ In silence with the deed
 'Tis fit to carry out a fair demand.”—(J. I. Minchin.)

ALGAROTTI. Saggio sopra la Pittura.—“Della Simmetria.”

“The energy of nature is displayed in the smallest things, and in the smallest things lies excellence of art.”

“La fama che invaghisce a un dolce suono
Voi superbi mortali, e par si bella,
È un eco, un sogno, anzi del sogno un’ ombra
Ch’ ad ogni vento si dilegua e sgombra.”

TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata, XIV., 63.

“Fame which inveigles with its dulcet sound
Ye mortals proud, and seems to ye so fair,
An echo is, the shadow of a dream,
That at a breath dissolves and vanishes.”

“(Che) la natura umana è fatta in guisa
Che si mantien di lagrime e di risa.”

FORTIGUERRA. Ricciardetto, XXVI., 80.

“For human nature so is fashionèd,
That upon tears and laughter it is fed.”

“(E) la necessità gran cose insegna.
Per lei fra l'armi dorme il guerriero,
Per lei fra l'onde canta il nocchiero
Per lei la morte terror non ha.”

METASTASIO. Demofonte, Act I., Sc. III.—(Demofonte.)

“Great are the lessons of necessity.
She teaches soldiers 'midst their arms to sleep,
And mariners to sing upon the deep,
And from all men the fear of death she takes.”

“La noia è in qualche modo il più sublime dei sentimenti umani.”

LEOPARDI. Pensieri, LXVIII.

“Discontent is in some sort the noblest of human sentiments.”

“La notte che tu vedi in sì dolci atti
 Dormir, fu da un Angelo scolpita
 In questo sasso, e perchè dorme ha vita:
 Destala, se nol credi, e parlaratti.”

GIOVANNI STROZZI. On a statue of Night, by Michael Angelo.

“Night that in graceful pose thou here dost see
 Asleep, was fashioned by an Angel's skill
 In stone, and, since she sleeps, can wake at will;
 Dost doubt? Arouse her, she will speak to thee.”

“Caro m'è 'l sonno, e più l'esser di sasso,
 Mentre che 'l danno e la vergogna dura;
 Non veder, non sentir, m'è gran ventura;
 Però non mi destar, deh! parla basso!”

BUONAROTTI. Epigrammi, I. (Reply to the Epigram of Strozzi, quoted above.)

“Dear is my sleep, dearer that I am stone,
 While that this shame doth last, and this distress;
 To see not, hear not, is my happiness;
 Wake me not therefore, speak in whispered tone!”

“La notte è la madre de' pensieri.”

GOLDONI. Bertoldo, Bertoldino e Cacasenno, Act II., Sc. XIV.
 —(Bertoldo.)

TRISSINO. L'Italia Liberata da' Goti, Lib. XXII. (Ed. Parigi, 1729, Vol. III., p. 150.)

“Revenge with warriors takes the place of tears.”

“La verginella è simile alla rosa
Ch' in bel giardin, su la nativa spina,
Mentre sola e sicura si riposa,
Nè gregge, nè pastor se le avvicina.

Ma non si tosto dal materno stelo
Rimossa viene, e dal suo ceppe verde,
Che quanto avea da gli uomini, e dal cielo
Favor, grazia e bellezza, tutto perde.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, I., 42.

“The spotless maid is like the blooming rose
Which on its native stem unsullied grows;
Where fencing walls the garden space surround,
Nor swains nor browsing cattle tread the ground.
But if some hand the tender stalk invades,
Lost is its beauty, and its colour fades:
No more the care of heaven, the garden's boast,
And all its praise with youths and maidens lost.”—(Hoole.)

“La verecondia delle donzelle è come l'acquavite. È perfetto sino a tanto che si tiene ben chiusa, ma se prende l'aria, vola subito via.”

SOGRAFI. Olivo e Pasquale, Act I., Sc. VII.—(Pasquale.)

“Maidenly modesty is like aquavitæ, which keeps in perfect condition as long as it is tightly stoppered, but, if the air gets to it, evaporates at once.”

“La vergogna ritien debile amore,
Ma debil freno è di potente amore.”

TASSO. Aminta, Act V., Sc. I.—(Elpino.)

Employ in a just cause.”

“ (E) mi guardo nel core, e mi domando,
Sono un poeta, o sono un imbecille?”

GUERRINI (STECCHETTI). Postumi, VII.

“ I look within my heart, and ask myself,
Am I a poet or an imbecile?”

“ Mi han detto che alla corte
Tre chiavi apron le porte:
L'oro, l'adulazione e la bellezza.”

GOLDONI. Il Re alla Caccia, Act II., Sc. II.—(Giannina.)

“ 'Tis said that 'mongst those who to court do flock,
There are three keys that every door unlock:
Gold, flattery, and beauty.”

“ Mi mentirà così, Vincenzo, quella
Che in molti uomini lessi e in pochi libri,
(Poichè io cultor di pochi libri vivo)
Aurea sentenza: Amico unico è l'oro.”

FOSCOLO. A Vincenzo Monti.

“ So shall I give the lie to what I've read
In men a many and in books a few
(For of few books a worshipper am I),
That golden phrase: Our only friend is gold.”

“ (Così) miglior dietro a' pensieri e all' opre

D'instabil fortuna è stabil arte.”

TESTI. A Raimondo Montecuccoli.

“In changing moods and fancies lies
Unstable fortune's only stable art.”

“Nata ed elevata io in grembo
Di nascente tirannide, i sostegni
Io ne so tutti. A mille, a mille i servi
Tu troverai, nel lor parlar feroci,
Vili ad oprar, nulli al periglio; adatti
Solo a tradirti.”

ALFIERI. La Congiura de' Pazzi, Act I., Sc. III.—(Bianca.)

“In the bosom born and bred
Of new born tyranny, full well I know
The props whereon it leans; a thousand slaves
Thou'lt find, in speech with courage brimming o'er,
In action worthless, and in perilous times
Mere cyphers, only skilled in treachery.”

“ Natura il fece e poi roppé la stampa.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, X., 84.

“ Nature created him, then broke the mould.”

“ La Natura

Dopo che questa giovine ha prodotto,
Per disgrazia del mondo il stampo ha rotto.”

GOLDONI. Filosofia ed Amore, Act III., Sc. IV.—(Esopo.)

“ Nature, when she had formed this maiden fair,
Destroyed the model, to the world’s despair.”

“ Natura inchina al male, e viene a farsi
L’abito poi difficile a mutarsi.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXXVI., 1.

“ Nature inclines to ill, and ’tis not strange
That habits thus acquired are hard to change.”

“ (E) Natura, onde legge ebbe ogni cosa,
Che pietra e moto in un congiunti vede,
Per un istante si riman pensosa.”

PINDEMONTE. Poesie Varie, Sonetto VII.—“ Per l’Ebe di Canova.”

“ Nature, whose laws o’er everything hold sway,
When stone and movement thus conjoined she saw,
For one brief moment did all pensive stay.”

“ Natural ragione è di ciascuno che si nasce, la sua vita, quanto può ajutare e conservare e difendere.”

BOCCACCIO. Il Decameron, Giornata I., Introduzione.

“ It is the natural instinct of every creature that is born, to foster, preserve and defend his own life.”

“ Nè consiglio d’ uom sano Amor riceve.”

TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata, V., 78.

“ Ne’er from a man of sense love takes advice.”

“ Nè contra Dio nè contra i Santi, nè daddovero nè motteggiando si dee mai dire alcuna cosa.”

CASA. Galateo. (Opere, Milano, 1806, Vol. I., p. 169.)

“ Neither against God nor against the saints should anything ever be said, whether in earnest or in jest.”

“ Nè cosa alcuna è che adombri più la verità, quanto fa la autorità.”

ALBERTI. Del Principe, Lib. III.

“ Nothing overshadows truth more completely than authority.”

“ Nè creda mai alcuno stato poter pigliare partiti sicuri; . . . la prudenza consiste in saper cognoscere la qualità degli incon-venienti, e prendere il manco tristo per buono.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Il Principe, Cap. XXI.

“ Do not imagine that any State can hope to conclude a treaty entirely in its favour; prudence is shown by estimating correctly its unfavourable provisions, and by accepting the least adverse as satisfactory.”

“ Nè credo che un sonetto a masticare,
 Quand’ anche fusse di quei del Petrarca,
 Servisse un pover’ uomo a sdigiunare.”

FAGIUOLI. Capitolo IV.—“ Dialogo tra un Poeta ed Apollo.”

“ Nor do I think a sonnet as repast,
 E’en though it be of those that Petrarch penned,
 Will help a needy wretch to break his fast.”

“ Nè del volgo mi cal nè di Fortuna.”

PETRARCA. Sonetto in Vita di M. Laura, LXXVIII.

“ Naught care I for the people, or for fate.”

“ Nè frate fan cocolle e capo raso.”

CAMPANELLA. Poesie Filosofiche.—“ Non è Re chi ha Regno.”

ALGAROTTI. Lettere sopra la Pittura. A Luigi Crespi, 8 Settembre, 1756.

“ It is impossible to improvise either good poetry or fine pictures.”

“ Nè il corpo nè l’anima è l’uomo, ma il composto, che risultà da tutt’ e due.”

GELLI. Capricci del Bottai, Ragionamento I.—(L’Anima.)

“ Neither the body nor the soul is man, but the compound which results from the union of the two.”

“ Nè il saper troppo, come alcun dir suole,
 Ma il poco senno degli assai ignoranti
 Fa noi meschini e tutto il mondo tristo.”

CAMPANELLA. Poesie Filosofiche.—“ A certi Amici.”

“ ’Tis not excess of learning, as some say,
 But the weak wits of those who nothing know
 Make us unhappy, and the whole world bad.”

“ Nè in prosa è detto nè in rima
 Cosa, che non sia stata detta prima.”

BERNI. Orlando Innamorato, LIX., 1.

“ Neither in prose nor verse we aught can say,
 But some one said it long before our day.”

“ Nè la grandezza giova nè ’l diletto,
 Che s’acquista o si tenga con sospetto.”

BERNI. Orlando Innamorato, XXXVII., 29.

“ Nor power nor pleasure e’er can be enjoyed,
 What time they with suspicion are alloyed.”

“ Nè natura può star contro al costume.”

PETRARCA. Canzoni sopra vari Argomenti, V., 111.

“ Nature herself ’gainst custom cannot stand.”

“ Nè, perchè la religione, male intesa e peggio usata, ha partorito disordine in un regno, se ne ha da inferire che per sè sia dannosa.”

ALGAROTTI. Saggio sopra il Gentilesimo.

“ Nor, because religion, ill understood and worse employed, has produced disorder in a State, is it to be inferred that it is of itself injurious.”

“Ne' petti umani
Il timore e la speme
Nascono in compagnia, muojono insieme.”
METASTASIO. Didone Abbandonata, Act III., Sc. XIV.—(Didone.)

“Hope and fear
Are born in human breast
Together, and together sink to rest.”

“Ne' piccioli soggetti è gran fatica,
Ma qualunque gli esprime ornati, e chiari,
Non picciol frutto del su' ingegno coglie.”

RUCELLAI. Le Api, 39.

“Great toil is oft by trifling theme entailed,
But whoso clearly sets it forth and well,
No trifling fruit he from his skill doth cull.”

“Nè sai tu che se l'ira in giusto petto
Lungamente si coce,
Quanto più tarda fù, tanto più noce?”

GUARINI. Il Pastor Fido, Act V., Sc. V.—(Montano.)

“Knowest thou not that when in righteous breast
Wrath simmers long,
When it breaks forth at last, 'tis far more strong?”

“Nè sillaba di Dio mai si cancella.”

MONTI. Sonetti sulla Morte di Giuda, III.

“No syllable of God is e'er annulled.”

“Nè un verso v'ha, per quanto suoni e splenda,
Che bello sia, se il fabro non l' emenda.”

BETTINELLI. Le Raccolte, III., 21.

“Though brilliant and sonorous, verses ne'er
Are fine, unless the craftsman polish them.”

“Necessità, che è la maggiore maestra delle lingue.”

GIANNONE. Autobiografia, Lib. II., XII.

“Necessity, which is the greatest teacher of languages.”

“Necessità d'amor legge non have.”

GUARINI. Il Pastor Fido, Act III., Sc. III.—(Mirtillo.)

“Love's need no laws doth recognise.”

“Nei partiti che si pigliano per necessità essere superfluo il fare scusazione.”

GUICCIARDINI. Istoria d' Italia, Lib. XVII. (Ed. Milano, 1803, Vol. VIII., p. 62.)

“It is superfluous to offer excuses for decisions which are arrived at under compulsion of necessity.”

“Nel materno amore

Più crescon gli anni e meno invecchia il core.”

FUSINATO. Ad una Madre.

“With a mother's love,
As the years grow, the heart doth younger prove.”

“ Nel mezzo del cammin di nostra vita
Mi ritrovai per una selva oscura,
Che la diritta via era smarrita.”

DANTE. Inferno, I., 1.

“ Upon the journey of my life midway,
I found myself within a darkling wood,
Where from the straight path I had gone astray.”

—(J. I. Minchin.)

“ Nel militare, il superiore ha sempre ragione, ma specialissimamente poi quando ha torto. Là è una massima però di cui l'inferiore deve ricordarsi sempre, e il superiore mai.”

FAMBRI. Il Caporale di Settimana, Act III., Sc. XIII.

—(Capitano Terremoto.)

“ In the army the superior is always right, but especially in those cases where he is wrong. This, however, is a maxim which the inferior should always remember, and the superior always forget.”

“ Nel mondo

O virtù non si trova,
O è sol virtù quel che diletta e giova.”

METASTASIO. Didone Abbandonata, Act I., Sc. VII.—(Jarba.)

“ Virtue is, in the world,
An undiscovered treasure,
Or that alone is virtue which gives pleasure.”

“ (Così) nel mondo

Sua ventura ha ciascun dal dì che nasce.”

PETRARCA. Sonetto in Morte di M. Laura, XXXV.

“ So in the world to each is meted out
His fortune from the day that he is born.”

“ È ver quel che si dice
Il ben e 'l mal comincia nelle fasce.”

RUCELLAI. L'Oreste, Act IV.—(Coro.)

“ Truly the proverb says
That in the cradle good and ill begin.”

“ O forse erra del vero,
Mirando all' altrui sorte, il mio pensiero :
Forse in qual forma, in quale
Stato che sia, dentro covile o cuna,
E funesto a chi nasce il dì natale.”

LEOPARDI. Canto Notturmo di un Pastor.

“ My thought, it may be, strays
From truth, as I on others' fortunes gaze :
Perchance, whate'er its state,
Whate'er its form, in cradle or in lair,
The day of birth to each brings evil fate.”

“ Nel terren morvido

Ogni ferraccio vi si ficca dentro.”

CECCHI. Le Pellegrine, Act III., Sc. VII.

“ When the ground is soft
It may be worked with any kind of tool.”

"Nell' onde solca, e nell' arene semina
E 'l vago vento spera in rete accogliere
Chi sue speranze fonda in cor di femina."

SANNAZARO. Arcadia, Ecloga VIII.—(Eugenio.)

"He ploughs the waves and sows on sandy ground,
And strives the wandering breeze in nets to bind,
Who on a woman's heart his hopes doth found."

"Nella camera de' suoi pensieri sè medesimo riprendere dee e piangere li suoi difetti, e non palese." DANTE. Convito, I., Cap. II.

"It is within the chamber of our thoughts that we should administer reproof to ourselves and deplore our failings, and not openly."

"Nella chiesa
Co' santi, ed in taverna co' ghiottoni."

DANTE. Inferno, XXII., 14.

"To the church
Saints only, and to taverns sots belong."—(J. I. Minchin.)

"Nella fine il mondo paga ciascuno della sua fatica."

SACCHETTI. Novella CXCI.

"In the end the world pays every one for his toil."

"Nella massa de' sudditi consiste
Regio poter, nè rè sanz' essi esiste."

CASTI. Gli Animali Parlanti, XVI., 16.

"In host of subjects lies the kingly power ;
Without them, never throne can last an hour."

"Nelle facoltà operative, si morali come fisiche, ognuno ha una misura.
. . . Gli sforzi di fatica son cattivo negozio."

MASSIMO D'AZEGLIO. I Miei Ricordi, Cap. XXII. (Ed. 1867, Vol. II., p. 74.)

"In the operative faculties, moral as well as physical, every man has his measure. Any overstraining of them is unsound business."

"Nelle rivoluzioni, più che in ogni altra cosa, l'armonia è condizione essenziale del moto."

MAZZINI. Della Libertà in Italia, Art. I., Cap. III. (Scritti Editi, Vol. I., p. 185.)

"In revolutions, more than in anything else, harmony is an essential condition of movement."

"Nello stato sociale nessun bisogno è più grande che quello di chiacchierare, mezzo principalissimo di passare il tempo, ch' è una delle prime necessità della vita." LEOPARDI. Pensieri, VIII.

"In the social state there is no more imperious need than that of gossiping, the principal means of passing the time, which is one of the first necessities of life."

"Nessun bene si può avere al mondo, che non sia accompagnato da mali della stessa misura." LEOPARDI. Pensieri, II.

"There can be no good thing in this world which is not accompanied by an equal measure of evil."

“Nessun maggior dolore
Che ricordarsi de tempo felice
Nella miseria.”

DANTE. Inferno, V., 121.

“There is no greater grief
Than to remember us of happy time
In misery.”—(J. I. Minchin.)

“Oh che gentile
Scongiuro ha ritrovato questo sciocco
Di rammentarmi la mia giovinezza,
Il ben passato e la presente noia!”

TASSO. Aminta, Act II., Sc. II.—(Dafne.)

“Oh what sweet
Enchantment hath this foolish person found
To bring back to my mind my youthful days,
The good long vanished and the present pain!”

“Che non ha doglia il misero maggiore
Che ricordar la gioia entro il dolore.”

MARINI. L'Adone, XIV., 192.

“No greater pain can the unhappy know
Than thought of pleasure past 'midst present woe.”

“(E) fa ch' io perda, pria che 'l duol m'uccida,
La memoria del ben, se il ben perdei.”

FILICAJA. Sonetto XXXIV.

“Grant that I lose, e'er sorrow on me fall,
The memory of the blessings I have lost.”

“Rimembrar il ben perduto
Fa più meschino lo presente stato.”

FORTIGUERRA. Ricciardetto, XI., 83.

“The memory of the blessings we have lost
Doth make our present state more pitiful.”

“Stette e dei dì che furono
L' assalse il sovvenir.”

MANZONI. Il Cinque Maggio.

“So stood he, by the memory assailed
Of days gone by.”

“Nessuna arte e nessuna scienza considera i particolari, perciocchè, essendo infiniti, non si possono sapere.”

VARCHI. L'Ercolano, Quesito VII. (Opere, Milano, 1804, Vol. VII., p. 85.)

“No art and no science condescends to particulars, because, being infinite, it is impossible that they should be known.”

CAPACELLI. Il Ciarlatore Maldicente, Act II., Sc. VI.—(Clorinda.)

“No woman is ever entirely her own mistress. As a girl she is subject to her parents. As a wife she is subject to her husband. As a widow she is subject to the opinions and the conventions of society.”

“ Nessuna potenza et appulso naturale è senza gran ragione.”

BRUNO. Gli Eroi Furori, Part II., Dialogo IV.—(Severino.)

“ No natural faculty or impulse exists without excellent reason.”

“ Nessuna professione è sì sterile come quella delle lettere.”

LEOPARDI. Pensieri, XXIX.

“ No profession is so barren as that of letters.”

“ Nessuna qualità umana è più intollerabile nella vita ordinaria, nè in fatti tollerata meno, che l' intolleranza.”

LEOPARDI. Pensieri, XXXVIII.

“ No human failing is more intolerable in ordinary life, or is in fact less tolerated, than intolerance.”

“ (Che) nessuna scienza
Senz' ammaestratura
Non saglie in grande altura
Per proprio sentimento.”

GUINICELLI. Canzone. (Poeti del Primo Secolo, Firenze, 1816, Vol. I., p. 83.)

“ For naught that we call science,
If there be none to teach,
Can by its own endeavours
The highest summit reach.”

“ Nessuno conosce peggio i servitori suoi, che 'l padrone.”

GUICCIARDINI. Più Consigli et Avvertimenti, CXLVI.

“ No one knows less about his servants than their master.”

“ Nessuno è più ch' un uom, sia chi si vuole :
Ognun può dire a suo modo parole.”

BERNI. Orlando Innamorato, XVII., 22.

“ Whoe'er he be, none more than human deem,
And each may speak as good to him doth seem.”

“ Nessuno sa quel sia, che termin abbia
La divina pietà verso di noi ;
Perchè ella è immensa, e men si può peccare
Di quello ch' ella possa perdonare.”

FORTIGUERRA. Ricciardetto, XX., 107.

“ None knows how deep, how far beyond all bounds
The pity that by God on man is showered ;
For 'tis immeasurable, and its power
To pardon far exceeds our power to sin.”

“ Niega agli afflitti aita
Chi dubbiosa la porge.”

METASTASIO. Ezio, Act II., Sc. VII.—(Fulvia.)

“ He to th' afflicted aid denies
Who renders doubtful aid.”

“Niente è più pericoloso quanto il darci a uno studio contrario alla naturale disposizione del nostro ingegno.”

BETTINELLI. Saggio sull' Eloquenza, Cap. VI.

“There is nothing more dangerous than giving oneself up to a study which is in opposition to the natural inclination of the mind.”

“Nissuno stato pubblico può godersi la quietà, nè ribattere l'injurie, nè diffendere le leggi, la religione e la libertà senza arme.”

MONTECUCCOLI. Memorie, Lib. I., XLIV. (Ed. Colonia, 1704, p. 55.)

“No State can enjoy tranquillity, nor repel hostile attacks, nor defend its laws, its religion and its liberty, unless it be armed.”

“Niun giammai fuggir debbe il consiglio.”

MARCO GUAZZO. Errori d'Amore, Act I.—(Filarco.)

“None ever has the right to flee advice.”

“Niuno dee essere in una medesima cosa avvocato e giudice.”

FRA BARTOLOMMEO DA SAN CONCORDIO. Giunta agli Ammaestramenti degli Antichi, CLXV.

“It is not right that any one should be advocate and judge in the same case.”

“Niuno più facilmente inganna gli altri che chi è solito, e ha fama di mai non gli ingannare.”

GUICCIARDINI. Istoria d'Italia, Lib. VI. (Ed. Milano, 1803, Vol. III., p. 181.)

“No one finds it easier to deceive others than he who has neither the habit nor the reputation of deceiving.”

“Nobiltà poco si prezza,
E men virtù, s' è non v' ancor ricchezza.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XLIV., 36.

“The boast of blood but little can avail,
And virtue less, when large possessions fail.”—(Hoole.)

“(Che) nodo mai si forte non si stringe
Che sciolto e rotto a lungo andar non sia.”

FORTIGUERRA. Ricciardetto, XX., 25.

“For never shall so firm a knot be tied
But at the last shall burst and broken be.”

“Noi morirem, nè invidia avremo ai vivi;
Noi morirem, ma non morremo inulti.”

TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata, II., 86.

“We die, yet should not envy those that live;
We die, yet should we not die unavenged.”

“Noi non abbiamo potere di mutar le usanze a nostro senno, ma il tempo le crea, e consumale altresì il tempo.”

CASA. Galateo. (Opere, Milano, 1806, Vol. I., p. 249.)

“We have no power to change the usages of the world according to our fancy. Time creates them, and time in like manner destroys them.”

"Noi sarem, veggo, in un sacco due volpe."

PULCI. Morgante Maggiore, XXV., 61.

"We shall be like two foxes in one sack."

"Noi soli a noi stessi

Fabbri siam pur de le miserie nostre."

GUARINI. Il Pastor Fido, Act IV., Sc. V.—(Nicandro.)

"We only for ourselves

Are of our sorrows the artificers."

"Non ha il maggior inimico l'huomo, che se stesso: per che quasi tutti i mali, pericoli e travagli superflui che ha, non procedono da altro che dalla sua troppa cupidità."

GUICCIARDINI. Più Consigli et Avvertimenti, CII.

"Man has no greater enemy than himself; for almost all the misfortunes, dangers and unnecessary labours which fall to his lot have no other origin than his own excessive greed."

"Noi vogliamo ch' egli perfezioni la natura, e parli come meglio devrebbero e potrebbero le genti."

MURATORI. La Perfetta Poesia, Lib. II., Cap. VI.

"We look to the poet to put the finishing touch to nature, and to speak to us with all the eloquence of which humanity is capable."

"Nol tel credo. Convincer ti potrei.

Scommetteresti? Nò, ma giurerei."

PANANTI. Epigrammi.

"We don't believe you. I'll convince you both.

You'll bet about it? No, I'll take my oath."

"Non ancora uman pensiero

Nel futuro il vol portò:

Per interpreti del fato

Sol gli eventi il ciel donò."

METASTASIO. Giustino, Act III., Sc. VI.—(Coro.)

"Not yet can man's intelligence

Into the future wing its flight;

Th' event alone doth Heaven permit

On Fate's intentions to throw light."

"Non bisogna la morte,

Ch' a stringer nobil core

Prima basta la fede, e poi l'amore."

TASSO. Aminta, Act III.—(Coro.)

"There is no need of death

The noble heart to move,

For faith suffices first, and after, love."

"Non c'è di noi qualcuno ai lupi eguale,

Cui non mancan pretesti ed argomenti

Per molestare e deboli e innocenti?"

MELI. Favole.—"Il Lupo e l'Agnello."

"Is none amongst us like the wolves, who ne'er

Pretexts and arguments in vain shall seek

For harassing the innocent and weak?"

“Non c'è scusa, il fatto accusa.” GUADAGNOLI. Il Cadetto Militare.

“Please no excuses, the fact accuses.”

“Non combattete mai con la religione . . . perchè questo obbietto ha troppo forza nella mente de gl' huomini.”

GUICCIARDINI. Più Consigli et Avvertimenti, XCVIII.

“Never attempt to combat the religious sentiment, for it is too strong a force in men's minds.”

“Non conosce la pace, e non l'estima,
Chi provato non ha la guerra prima.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXXI., 2.

“And he who never war's destruction knows,
Can prize not peace, or aught that peace bestows.”—(Hoole.)

“Non conoscendo Dio, come mai puoi
Vantarti di dottrina? essendo cieco,

De' colori esser giudice tu vuoi.” PASSERONI. Rime, Capitolo III.

“Thou know'st not God; how, then, canst reason find
To vaunt thy doctrine? 'tis as though thou 'dst claim
To be a judge of colours, being blind.”

“Non copre abito vil la nobil luce,
E quanto è in lei d'altero e di gentile;
E fuor la maestà regia traluce
Per gli atti ancor dell' esercizio umile.”

TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata, VII., 18.

“Her bearing proud, that speaks the royal line
Of ancestors, no sordid garb can mask;
And aye the queenly majesty doth shine
Through the performance of her humble task.”

“Non crediate che sia maggiore sdegno,
Che quel di donna quando è dispreggiata.”

BERNI. Orlando Innamorato, IX., 23.

“Think not that aught the fury can surpass
Of woman, when she feels that she is scorned.”

“Non crepa un asino
Che sià padrone
D'andare al Diavolo
Senza iscrizione.”

GIUSTI. Mementomo, St. II.

“There dies not an ass
But is forced, willy nilly,
To the devil to go
With some epitaph silly.”

“Non d'amistà congiunto, nè di sangue
A persona del mondo; a infami schiavi
Non libero signor; primo di tutti
E minor di ciascuno.”

ALFIERI. Timoleone, Act III., Sc. IV.—(Timoleone.)

“Bound by no ties of friendship or of blood
To any in the world; to shameful slaves
A fettered lord; of all mankind the first,
Yet less than each.”

“Non dee guerra co' morti aver chi vive.”

TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata, XIII., 39.

SALVIATI. La Spina, Act III., Sc. III.—(Bernabò.)

“There is no animal more difficult to understand than man.”

“(Che) non è ben se da ben non è nato.”

GUITTONE D'AREZZO. Canzone II.

“There is no good that is not born of good.”

“Non è cor sì superbo o sì rubello,
Che non si pieghi e non s'inchini al bello.”

MARINI. L'Adone, XI., 38.

“A heart so proud, so wilful ne'er we see,
But to the beautiful will bow the knee.”

“Non è cosa alcuna che impedisca più la ragione e 'l discorso dell'uomo, che fa l'ira.”

GELLI. Capricci del Bottaiolo, Ragionamento I.—(L'Anima.)

“There is no greater impediment to the reasoning powers and the speech of man, than anger.”

“Non è cosa alcuna in questo mondo, la quale sia stata divisa più giustamente dalla Natura che il cervello.”

GELLI. La Circe, Dialogo IX.—(Ulisse.)

“There is nothing in this world which Nature has distributed more equitably than brains.”

“Non è cosa che voglia tutta la diligenza dell'uomo e che meno patisca gli errori, etiamdico piccoli, quanto fa la guerra.”

LOTTINI. Avvedimenti Civili, 498.

“There is nothing which so calls for men's closest attention, and so seldom pardons a mistake, however small, as war.”

“Non è di chi comanda
Tutto l'onor della vittoria.”

GOLDONI. Gustavo Vasa, Act I., Sc. VI.—(Learco.)

“Not to the chief alone
Falls all the glory of the victory.”

“ Non è differenza da i grandi, a gli uomini privati, mentre che dormono.”
 LOTTINI. Avvedimenti Civili, 18.

“ There is no difference between the noble and the shopkeeper, while they are asleep.”

“ Non è furto d'Amor tanto sicuro,
 Nè di tanta finezza,
 Quanto quel che s'asconde
 Sotto 'l vel d'honestate.”

GUARINI. Il Pastor Fido, Act III., Sc. V.—(Corisca.)

“ None of Love's thefts is more securely hid,
 Nor wrought so cunningly,
 As that which hides itself
 Beneath the veil of honour.”

“ Non è il mele senza le mosche.”

MACCHIAVELLI. La Mandragola, Act III.—(Fra Timoteo.)

“ You cannot have the honey without the flies.”

“ Non è il mondan rumore altro ch' un fiato
 Di vento ch' or vien quinci ed or vien quindi,
 E muta nome per chè muta lato.”

DANTE. Purgatorio, XI., 100.

“ Mundane renown is but a breath forlorn
 Of wind that cometh now from here, now there,
 Named various from the quarter whence 'tis born.”

—(J. I. Minchin.)

“ Non è in corpo storto animo dritto.”

ZIPOLI. Malmantile Racquistato, III., 66.

“ In crooked body ne'er right mind is seen.”

“ Non è la via di dominar, se vuoi
 Por l'arme in mano a chi può più di noi.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XX., 52.

“ 'Tis not the path of empire thus to arm
 The hand that hath more power than we to harm.”

“ Non è mai alcuna cosa si disperata, che non vi sia qualche via di poterne sperare.”

MACCHIAVELLI. La Mandragola, Act I.—(Callimaco.)

“ Nothing is ever so desperate but we may find therein some ground for hope.”

“ Non è mai di conforto,
 A chi oppresso è da mali, un mal di meno.”

ZENO. Scipione, Act I., Sc. VIII.—(Lucejo.)

“ An ill the less
 Brings no relief to one crushed down with ills.”

“ Non è nato l'uomo per vivere dormendo, ma per vivere faccendo.”

PANDOLFINI. Del Governo della Famiglia. (Ed. Milano, 1802, p. 92.)

“ Man is not born to live sleeping, but to live working.”

“ Non è nel mondo cosa alcuna eterna ;
Fortuna vuol così, che se ne abbella,
Acciochè il suo poter più si discerna.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Capitolo di Fortuna.

“ Naught is eternal on the earth below ;
And Fortune doth in constant change delight,
So that her power she may more plainly show.”

“ Non è sana ogni gioia ;
Nè mal ciò che v'annoia.
Quello è vero gioire,
Che nasce da virtù dopo il soffrire.”

GUARINI. Il Pastor Fido, Act V.—(Coro.)

“ Not all that gives us joy is just,
Nor all things evil that disgust.
That only true enjoyment brings
Which, after pain, from virtue springs.”

“ Non è sempre d'accordo il labbro e il core.”

METASTASIO. Siroe, Act I., Sc. VI.—(Siroe.)

“ Not always do the lips and heart accord.”

“ Non è sì duro cor che lagrimando,
Pregando, amando talor non si smova ;
Nè sì freddo voler, che non si scalde.”

PETRARCA. Sonetto in Vita di M. Laura, CCVI.

“ There is no heart so hard but that by tears
And prayers and love it may at last be moved ;
Nor will so cold but may at last take fire.”

“ Non è ver che sia contento
Il veder nel suo tormento
Più d'un ciglio lagrimar ;
Che l'esempio del dolore
E un stimulo maggiore
Che richiama a sospirar.”

METASTASIO. Artaserse, Act III., Sc. VI.—(Semira.)

“ 'Tis false that we can happy be
In others' torment, when we see
The tears that stream from countless eyes ;
For from the sight of others' sorrow
Only a sharper spur we borrow
To blend with theirs our tears and sighs.”

“ Non far altrui quel, che patir non vuoi.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXVIII., 82.

“ Do not to others what ye would not suffer.”

“ Non fu malattia mai senza ricetta :
La Natura l'ha fatte tutte due ;
Ella imbratta le cose, ella le netta.”

BERNI. Capitolo secondo della Peste.

“ Ne'er sickness without remedy was seen :
Nature both one and th' other hath produced ;
'Tis she that soileth, she that maketh clean.”

“ Non ha grado amor superlativo,
Ed infinito è quel che fin ci pare :
Non è principio ancor del cominciare.”

BERNI. Orlando Innamorato, XII., 10.

“ For love hath no superlative degree,
And infinite is that which end we think :
'Tis not of the beginning e'en the brink.”

“ Non hanno gli huomini maggior nimico che la troppa prosperità, perchè gli fa impotenti di se medesimi, licentiosi et arditi al male, e cupidi di turbare il ben proprio con cose nuove.”

SANSOVINO. Concetti Politici, CCLXI.

“ Men have no greater enemy than excessive prosperity, for it destroys their mastery over themselves and makes them licentious and vicious, with a hankering after novelties destructive of their own well-being.”

“ Non i titoli illustrano gli uomini, ma gli uomini i titoli.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Discorsi sopra la prima Deca di Tito Livio, III., 38.

“ It is not titles that make men illustrious, but men titles.”

“ Non il bene particolare ma il bene comune è quello che fa grandi le città.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Discorsi sopra la prima Deca di Tito Livio, II., 2.

“ It is not the well-being of the individual, but the well-being of the community which makes States great.”

“ Non isperati mai veder lo cielo :
I' vengo per menarvi all' altra riva,
Nelle tenebre eterne in caldo e 'n gielo.”

DANTE. Inferno, III., 85.

“ Hope not again to see the sky so fair.
I come to take ye to the other side,
To shade eterne of heat and freezing there.”—(J. I. Minchin.)

“ (Ma) non l'istessa han sempre i falli stessi
Velenosa sorgente.”

METASTASIO. Nitteti, Act III., Sc. I.—(Nitteti.)

“ Not always from the self-same poisonous source
The self-same faults arise.”

A femmina leggiera
La ragion d'esser folle.”

GOLDONI. Oronte, Act II., Sc. XII.—(Oronte.)

“ A frivolous woman never fails to find
Good reason for her folly.”

“ Non mente il cielo, è ver, quando favella,
Ma a chi capire il suo linguaggio è dato ? ”

GOLDONI. Artemisia, Act III., Sc. X.—(Talete.)

“ The heavens, when they speak, lie not, 'tis true,
But who is he can understand their speech ? ”

“Non perde chi perde, perde chi vuol rifare.”

MASSIMO D'AZEGLIO. I Miei Ricordi, Cap. XXVIII. (Ed. 1867, Vol. II., p. 281.)

“He does not lose who loses, he loses who wishes to win back.”

“Non perde e non vince uom che non giostra.”

GASPARA STAMPA. Rime, Sonetto CCX.

“He loses not, nor wins, who never jousts.”

“Non falla chi non fa, dice il dettato.”

FAGIUOLI. Capitolo III.—“L'Autore al suo Figliuolo.”

“He fails not who attempts not, says the saw.”

“Non perder tempo chi cerca aver fama,

O voglia acquistar grazia di sua dama.”

GIOVANNI FIORENTINO. Il Pecorone, Giornata X., Novella II.

“Lose thou no time that seek'st to garner fame,
Or wouldst deserve the favour of thy dame.”

DIVIZIO DA BIBBIENA. La Calandria, Act I., Sc. II.—(Fesserio.)

“He cannot manage the calf, and wants to carry the ox.”

“Non può sempre
L'arco teso tenersi, e talor fiacca.”

GOZZI. Sermoni, XI.

“Keep not the bow
For ever strung, or, in the end, 'twill break.”

“(Che) non pur per cittadi, e per castella,

Ma per tuguri ancora, e per fenili

Spesso si trovan gl' uomini gentili.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XIV., 62.

“For not alone
In towns and courts are courteous manners known;
Full oft in wilds, beneath the lonely shed,
Of Nature's sons are social virtues bred.”—(Hoole.)

“(Fama di loro il mondo esser non lassa :

Misericordia e giustizia gli sdegna.)

Non ragioniam di lor, ma guarda e passa.”

DANTE. Inferno, III., 49.

“Report of them the world can never know,

Mercy and justice only can despise.

Speak not about them; look, and onwards go.”

—(J. I. Minchin.)

“Non ritrova un' alma forte
Che temer nell' ore estreme ;
La viltà di chi lo teme
Fa terribile il morir.”

METASTASIO. Adriano, Act III., Sc. VI.—(Osroa.)

“The noble soul doth nothing find
To fear when his last hour draws nigh ;
The baseness of the coward's heart
Doth make it terrible to die.”

“(Che) non s'acquista libertà per piangere ;
E tanto è miser l'uom, quant' ei si reputa.”

SANNAZARO. Arcadia, Ecloga VIII.—(Eugenio.)

“For liberty may not be bought by tears ;
And as he deems himself, so man is wretched.”

“Non s' esce illesi mai dalle battaglie tra il core e la volontà.”

MASSIMO D'AZEGLIO. *I Miei Ricordi, Cap. II. (Ed. 1867,
Vol. I., p. 37.)*

“None ever come unscathed out of a conflict between the heart and the will.”

“Non sempre gli uomini savi discernono o giudicano perfettamente ; bisogna che spesso si dimostrino segni della debolezza dall' intelletto umano.”

GUICCIARDINI. *Istoria d'Italia, Lib. I. (Milan, 1803, Vol. I.,
p. 19.)*

“Even the wisest of men do not always show perfect discernment or judgment ; they are bound often to show signs of the infirmity of the human intellect.”

“Non sempre la pace è da reputare utile e salutare, ma solo quella che reca seco lunghissima quiete e senza radice d'inganno.”

POGGIO. Istoria Fiorentina, Lib. VI. (Ed. Firenze, 1598, p. 174.)

“Not every peace is to be reputed useful and salutary, but that only which brings with it prolonged tranquillity, without any root of deception.”

“Non sempre per il rimuovere delle cagioni si rimuovono gli effetti, i quali da quelle hanno avuto la prima origine.”

GUICCIARDINI. *Istoria d'Italia, Lib. I. (Ed. Milan, 1803,
Vol. I., p. 29.)*

“Not always by the removal of the causes do we remove the effects which sprung in the first instance from those causes.”

“Non si appartiene al cieco il dar giudizio de' colori.”

GELLI. La Circe, Dialogo X.—(Ulisse.)

“It is not the province of the blind to venture an opinion on colours.”

“Non si commetta al mar chi teme il vento.”

METASTASIO. Siroe, Act I., Sc. XVII.—(Medarse.)

“Trust not the ocean, ye who fear the wind.”

"Non si conosce la virtù perfetta,
Se non quando fortuna ne saetta."

BERNI. Orlando Innamorato, XXXI., 32.

"Never a man unblemished virtue shows,
Save when he is the butt of fortune's blows."

"Non si dice quattro, se non è nel sacco."

SOGRAFI. Olivo e Pasquale, Act II., Sc. VI.—(Campagnola.)

"We won't say four, till we have them in the bag."

"Non si vince amor, se non fuggendo."

BEMBO. Sonetto LIX.

"Love, save by flight, may not be overcome."

"Ne le guerre d'Amor (proverbio è trito), Vince chi fugge, e non chi si cimenta."

FORTIGUERRA. Ricciardetto, XXVIII., 27.

"In love's engagements (sure the proverb's trite)
He wins who flies, not he who stays to fight."

"Non sien le genti ancor troppo sicure
A giudicar, si come quei chi stima
Le biade in campo pria che sien mature."

DANTE. Paradiso, XIII., 130.

"Let not the people think themselves elected
To judge like one who counteth on the corn
Within his field ere it be ripe."—(J. I. Minchin.)

"Non so a ch' effetto
L'uom si metta a periglio, e si tormenti
Per riportarne una vittoria poi,
Che giovi al vinto, e il vincitore annoi."

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XX., 124.

"I know not who, Zerbino made reply,
For such a conquest would the combat try,
Where, courting danger with unfruitful pains,
The victor loses while the vanquished gains."—(Hoole.)

"Non son meno fratelli e il buono e il rio;
E il padre commun di tutti è Dio."

FIACCHI. Favole, XIX.—"La Pesce, la Lontra, la Tortora e il Falcone."

And God our common Father we confess."

“Non spegnerà il suo seme
Chi fa crescer altrui.”

GUARINI. Il Pastor Fido, Act I., Sc. IV.—(Montano.)

“His own crops he shall not uproot
That maketh others' crops to grow.”

“(Che) non torri superbi e forti mura,
Non larghe fosse, non fiumi vicini
Fan da' nimici una città sicura,
Ma la fede e il valor de' cittadini.”

FORTIGUERRA. Ricciardetto, VIII., 17.

“Not frowning battlement nor lofty tower,
Not trenches wide nor river running by
Shall save a city from her foeman's power,
But her sons' valour and fidelity.”

“Non v' accorgete voi, che noi siam vermi
Nati a formar l'angelica farfalla,
Che vola alla giustizia senza schermi?”

DANTE. Purgatorio, X., 124.

“That we are worms have ye not yet perceived,
Born but to form the angelic butterfly
That soareth up to judgment unreprieved?”

—(J. I. Minchin.)

“Non v' ha sì sciocco sonator di lira,
Che un più sciocco non trovi, che l'ammira.”

BETTINELLI. Le Raccolte, II., 6.

“There's not so big a fool that twangs the lyre,
But he shall find a bigger to admire.”

“Non ver legnaggio fa sangue, ma core,
Nè vero pregio poder, ma virtute.”

GUITONE D'AREZZO. Canzone XXII.

“Not blood but heart doth noble lineage make;
True worth in virtue lies and not in power.”

“Non vi ha cosa che rechi maggior ornamento al Prencipe, che l'haver buoni ufficiali.”

“There is nothing that adds more lustre to a prince than having efficient officers.”

“Non vi vieto per questo (ch' avrei torto)
Che vi lasciate amar; che senza amante
Sareste come inculta vite in orto,
Che non ha palo, ove s'appoggi, o piante.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, X., 9.

“Yet think not that my verse forbids to love;
Such thoughts far distant from your bard remove!
The lonely maid is like the vine that knows
No friendly elm with tendrils to enclose,
But creeps neglected.”—(Hoole.)

"Non vien si tardì il mal che non sia presto."

BERNI. Orlando Innamorato, XLIII., 5.

"Mishaps

How late soe'er they come, come aye too soon."

LEOPARDI. Pensieri, LXXVI.

"There is nothing rarer in the world than a person who is never insupportable."

"Nulla in sue carte uom saggio antica o nova

Medicina ave, che d'Amor n'affide,

Ver cui sol lontananza ed obbligo giova." CASA. Sonetto LIII.

"Ne'er in his books did sage a charm discover,
Or new or old, 'gainst Love's assaults; alone
Forgetfulness and distance cure the lover."

"(Conciosia cosa che) nulla si truovi sì santo e sì perfetto, che disputando non si possa tirarlo in mala parte, ne niuna cosa si giusta e si laudabile, che possa fuggire le calunnie de tristi, la malignità de cattivi interpreti."

POGGIO. Istoria Fiorentina, Lib. VI. (Ed. Fiorenza, 1598, p. 177.)

"Seeing that there is nothing so holy and so perfect, but may in discussion be given an appearance of evil, nor anything so just and so praiseworthy as to escape the slanders of the wicked, or the malignity of hostile interpreters."

"Nuovo augelletto due o tre aspetta;
Ma dinanzi dagli occhi de' pennuti
Rete si spiega indarno o si saetta."

DANTE. Purgatorio, XXXI., 61.

"The new fledged birdling twice or thrice delayed;
But in the eyes of the full-feathered bird
In vain the net is cast, in vain 'tis laid."—(J. I. Minchin.)

Signor, di sempre accrescere ha in usanza."

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXXVIII., 42.

"When fame, O monarch! good or evil tells,
Evil or good beyond the truth she swells."—(Hoole.)

"O che lieve è ingannar chi s' assecura!"

PETRARCA. Sonetto in Vita di M. Laura, XLIII.

"Who naught suspects is easily deceived."

"O ciechi, il tanto affaticar che giova?
Tutti tornate alla gran madre antica,
E 'l nome vostro appena si ritrova."

PETRARCA. Trionfo della Morte, I., 88.

"Ye blind, what boots it thus to toil and slave?
Ye all must to great Mother Earth return,
And e'en your names shall scarce survive the grave."

"O coronate teste,
Chi per Dio sorge, di cader non tema."

CHIABRERA. Sonetti, LXVI.

"O ye crownèd heads,
Who rises by God's help, need fear no fall."

"O de gli uomini inferma e instabil mente,
Come siam presti a variar disegno!
Tutti i pensier mutiamo facilmente;
Più quei, che nascon d'amoroso sdegno."

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXIX., 1.

"Behold the state of man's unstable mind,
Still prone to change with every changing wind!
All our resolves are weak, but weakest prove
Where sprung from sense of disappointed love."—(Hoole.)

"O del latino
Stipite trionfal figli maggiori,
Non de' vinti è peggior sempre il destino."

ZANELLA. Per le lapidi poste in Parigi sulle case già abitate da Goldoni e da Manin.

"O ye, the first
Offshoot of the victorious Latin stock,
Not always is the vanquished's fate the worst."

"O dignitosa coscienza et netta,
Come t'è picciol fallo amaro morso!"

DANTE. Purgatorio, III., 8.

"O conscience honourably pure, to thee
How is a little fault most bitterly shrived!"—(J. I. Minchin.)

"O donne, donne, cervelli di vento,
Se l'uom per voi non vigilasse attento!"

ZANELLA. Il Piccolo Calabrese.

"O woman, woman, brains as light as air,
Watched not man for you with unceasing care!"

“O gran contrasto in giovenil pensiero
Desir di laude, ed impeto d'Amore.
Nè chi più vaglia, ancor si trova il vero ;
Che resta or questa or quel superiore.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXV., 1.

“The thirst of honour and the force of love
Eternal strife in youthful bosom move :
Nor yet is known which most inclines the scales,
Since this or that alike in turn prevails.”—(Hoole.)

“O insensata cura de' mortali,
Quanto son diffetivi sillogismi,
Quei che ti fanno in basso batter l' ali !”

DANTE. Paradiso, XI., 1.

“O idle objects for which mortals care,
How are defective all the syllogisms
Which ever down to earth thy pinions bear !”
—(J. I. Minchin.)

“O mille volte fortunato e mille
Chi sà por meta a suoi pensieri in tanto,
Che per vana speranza immoderata,
Di moderato ben non perde il frutto !”

GUARINI. Il Pastor Fido, Act V., Sc. I.—(Uranio.)

“Happy a thousand and a thousand times
Is he who can so far his thoughts control,
That never, in vain hope of boundless gain,
He shall let slip the fruit of moderate good.”

“O miseri, o codardi,
Figliuoli avrai. Miseri eleggi.”

LEOPARDI. Nelle Nozze della Sorella Paolina.

“Wretched or cowardly
Thy sons shall be. Be wretchedness thy choice.”

 La menzogna, e il poeta, e ciò ti basti,
 Che sotto il vel della bugiarda scena
 Dicano il vero altrui le gazze e l'ombre." GOZZI. Sermoni, X.

"O censor strict, falsehood and poetry
 Were ever friends; suffice it that, beneath
 The curtain of the lying stage, the lights
 And shades to others do the truth proclaim."

"O sol che sani ogni vista turbata,
 Tu mi contenti sì quando tu solvi,
 Che non men che saver dubbiar m' aggrata."

 Have led both these into this dolorous pass!”—(J. I. Minchin.)

“ Oh! le vecchie, le vecchie, amico mio,
 Portano chi le porta, e lo so io.”

GIUSTI. Gingillino, Part III.

“ Old women, my good friend, I know 'tis true,
 If you put up with them, put up with you.”

“ Oh meraviglia! Amor ch' appena è nato
 Già grande vola e già trionfa armato.”

TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata, I., 47.

“ Oh marvel! Love, though born but yesterday,
 Spreads wide his wings and triumphs in the fray.”

“ Oh quanto riesce

Difficil cosa il maneggiar sul trono
 Le bilance d'Astrea! Spogliar si deve
 D'ogni passion chi regna, e a sposi e a figli
 E ad amanti e nemici esser eguale.”

GOLDONI. Belisario, Act III., Sc. I.—(Giustiniano.)

“ How hard a thing
 It proves to handle rightly on the throne
 The balance of Astrea! Whoso reigns
 Must of all passions strip himself, and be
 The same to spouse and children, friends and foes.”

“ La bilancia d'Astrea spesso di mano
 Cade, a chi armato è del poter sovrano.”

CASTI. Gli Animali Parlanti, VIII., 11.

“ Whoso hath armed his hand with sovereign power
 Lets fall Astrea's balance from that hour.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XLIII., 120.

“Where women are, quarrels arise, and strife.”

“Ovunque io mi sia, io sono Amore;
Nei pastori non men che negli eroi;
E la disuguaglianza de' soggetti
Come a mi piace agguaglio.”

TASSO. Aminta, Prologo.

“Love am I, wheresoever I may be;
In shepherds' hide I, as in heroes' hearts,
And all my subjects' inequalities
I equal make, as seemeth good to me.”

“Ozio circonda
I monumenti vostri; e di viltade
Siam fatti esempi alla futura etade.” LEOPARDI. Ad Angelo Mai.

“In a sea of sloth
Your monuments are hid, and naught are we
But types of vileness for posterity.”

“Pace a tutta la terra,
A chi non compra, guerra.”

GIUSTI. La Guerra.

“Peace to all the earth, ye cry,
But war to him that will not buy.”

“Pace domandi? De tuoi sensi, o figlio, Chiudi la porta.”

PETRARCA. Canzoni sopra Vari Argomenti, II.—" A Cola da Rienzo."

" Man through report doth fall in love."

" Per ingannar la sua mortal natura,
Crede invano chi regna, o creder finge,
Che sovrumana sia di re la possa:
Sta nel voler di chi obbedisce; e in trono
Trema chi fa tremar."

ALFIERI. Antigone, Act V., Sc. V.—(Creonte.)

" In hope his mortal nature to deceive,
He vainly thinks who reigns, or feigns to think,
That superhuman is the kingly power:
That power is vested in the subjects' will,
And, seated on the throne, he trembles aye
Who maketh others tremble."

Dimoro tuttavia aspettando peggio,
Non so come io mi deggio
Mai consolar, se non m’ajuta Iddio,
Per la morte ch’ io cheggio
A lui, che vegna nel soccorso mio.”

DANTE. Canzone XXV.

“Since in my grief I stay
Aye looking for worse ills from day to day,
I know not how I may Find consolation, if God aid me not
By death, for which I pray,
That it may free me from my wretched lot.”

“Perchè una gente impera e l’ altra langue,

Seguendo lo giudicio di costei,
Che è occulta come in erba l’ angue.” DANTE. Inferno, VII., 82.

Poor she who in deserter faith doth show :
Never shall flowers on withered branches grow."

“ (Ma) prego, ove 'l gioire è men che 'ntero,
Sia dolce il dubbio a chi nuoce più il vero.”

BUONAROTTI. Madrigali, XXIX.

“ I pray thee, when the joy is not complete,
To whom the truth harms may the doubt be sweet.”

“ Prendiam il dolce ognihor che torlo accade,
Se ben d'amar alquanto ivi gustiamo ;
Ch' al mondo huom mai non è beato a pieno.”

PICCOLOMINI. Sonetti, LXVIII.

“ Seize we the sweets of life whene'er we may,
E'en though some bitter taste therein we find,
For ne'er on earth can man know perfect joy.”

“ Prima l'annunzio e poi 'l malanno.”

SALVIATI. La Spina, Act III., Sc. III.—(Agata.)

“ First the foreboding and then the disaster.”

A voi perdonar sempre a chi si pente.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXXIII., 114.

“ 'Tis man's to fall
In error still, but Thine to pardon all.”—(Hoole.)

“ Prova è non dubbia
D'alta innocenza, esser di morte afflitte
Dove Creonte è il re.”

ALFIERI. Antigone, Act II., Sc. II.—(Antigone.)

“ 'Tis a proof most clear
Of purest innocence, to suffer death
Where Creon reigns.”

“ Qual mortale ignaro
Di sventura esser può, se a lui già scorsa
Quella vaga stagion, se il suo buon tempo,
Se giovanezza, ah! giovanezza, è spenta ?”

LEOPARDI. Le Ricordanze.

“ What man can shut his eyes
To his misfortunes, if for him be past
That fleeting season, if his happy days,
If youth, alas ! if youth be fled away ?”

“ Qual uomo si diletta in troppo dire,
Tenuto è dalla gente in fallaggio.
Spesse fiate giova lo tacire :
Chi troppo tace tenuto è selvaggio.”

GUITTONE D'AREZZO. Sonetti, CCXXX.

“ Whoso in too much talking takes delight
A liar by his neighbours is esteemed,
And though to hold one's tongue is often right,
Yet who too little says is boorish deemed.”

“ Qualche volta è virtù tacere il vero.”

“ Quale è di pazzia segno più espresso,
Che per altri voler, perder se stesso?”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXIV., 1.

“ What more our folly shows
Than, while we others seek, ourselves to lose?”—(Hoole.)

“ Qualunque volta è tolto agli uomini il combattere per necessità, combattono per ambizione: la quale è tanto potente ne' petti umani, che mai a qualunque grado si salgono, gli abbandona.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Il Principe, Cap. XXXVII.

“ Whenever men are relieved from the necessity of fighting, they fight for ambition, which is so strong a force in the human breast that it never abandons them, however high they rise.”

“ Quand' utile e piacer non van d'accordo,
L'utile ascolto e col piacer fo il sordo.”

MELI. Favole. “ Cane Avaneese e Cane di Mandra.”

“ When pleasant doth to good opposed appear,
To good I hark, to pleasant turn deaf ear.”

“ (Così) quando adirati i grandi sono,
Tosto conviene che l'uom picciol taccia.”

GOZZI. Favole Esopiane.—“ Della Trombetta e del Eco.”

“ So when the great their rising wrath betray,
The little man at once should hold his tongue.”

“ Ch' ove del ciel la voce irata tuona,
Natura tace, ed innocenza il grido
Innalza invan: solo s'ascolta il cielo.”

ALFIERI. Agamennone, Act III., Sc. I.—(Agamennone.)

“ For when heaven's angry voice doth thunder forth,
Nature is still, and innocence in vain
Doth cry aloud, for naught but heaven is heard.”

“ Quando il povero dona al ricco, il Diavolo se ne ride.”

CELLINI. Vita, Lib. I., Cap. XX.

“ When the poor give to the rich, the devil laughs.”

“ Quando la gente non avea farina,
Lo re diceva: Mangiate pollame.”

DALL' ONGARO. Stornelli Politici.—“ C'era una volta.”

“ When that the people cried they had no flour,
Eat poultry, was the answer of the king.”

“ Quando mi vidi giunto in quella parte
 Di mia età dove ciascun dovrebbe
 Calar le vele e raccogliere le sarte,
 Ciò che pria mi piaceva allor m'incerebbe,
 E pentuto e confesso mi rendei,
 Ah, miser lasso ! e giovato sarebbe.”

DANTE. Inferno, XXVII., 79.

“ When I beheld that I had reached that part
 Of human life when everyone should strike
 His sails, and his worn rigging set apart ;
 That which had pleased me erst then caused dislike,
 And penitent confession did I use,
 Ah, weary wretch ! and had been saved belike.”

—(J. I. Minchin.)

“ Quando novellamente
 Nasce nel cor profondo
 Un amoroso affetto,
 Languido e stanco insiem con esso in petto
 Un desiderio di morir si sente.”

LEOPARDI. Amore e Morte.

“ When newly from the deep
 Recesses of the heart
 Passion of love doth spring,
 Ever therewith a faint and languishing
 Desire of death into the breast doth creep.”

“ Quando si dice l'uomo vivere, si dee intendere, l'uomo usare la ragione ; ch' è sua spezial vita, ed atto della sua più nobile parte.”

DANTE. Convito, II., Cap. VIII.

“ When we say that man lives, it should be understood thereby that he uses his reason, for it is that which is the special characteristic of his life, and the function of his noblest part.”

 Non son altro che polve anche gli eroi.”

FIACCHI. Favole, LXIII. “ Il Topo e la Civetta.”

“ When of their last day they have reached the eve,
 E'en heroes naught but dust behind them leave.”

“ Quando un danno vegna
 Da ogni discorso uman lontano assai,
 A quel fallir par che sia scusa degna.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXXVIII., 38.

“ If we err, when fate unkind
 Afflicts us with some scourge unknown before,
 Methinks 'tis easy good excuse to find.”

“(E) quando vien il mal, che viene ognora,
 Mandalo giù come una medicina,
 Che pazzo è chi la gusta o l'assapora.”

MACCHIAVELLI. L'Asino d'Oro, Cap. IV.

“ When evil comes, as come it must, in haste
 It should be swallowed, like a nauseous dose ;
 He is a fool who lingers o'er the taste.”

“Quante cose andrebbero meglio al mondo, se la vanità si mutasse in orgoglio? Questo basta a sè stesso. La vanità vuol l'applauso.”

MASSIMO D'AZEGLIO. I Miei Ricordi, Cap. XI. (Ed. 1867, Vol. I., p. 233.)

“How many things in this world would go better, if pride were to take the place of vanity. Pride is self-sufficing. Vanity demands applause.”

“Quanti felici son già morti in fasce!
Quanti miseri in ultima vecchiezza!
Alcun dice: ‘Beato è chi non nasce’.”

PETRARCA. Trionfo del Tempo, 46.

“How happy they by death from cradle torn!
How wretched they who reach extremest age!
Says someone: ‘Blest is he who ne’er is born.’”

“Quanti son già felici morti in fasce
Pe’ casi avversi, che posson venire!”

PULCI. Morgante Maggiore, XXV., 276.

“How happy those that in their cradle die,
And thus escape the ills that must befall!”

“Quanti talenti restansi sepolti
Entre i tuguri nell’ obbligo profondo,
Sol perchè lor la Sorte i mezzi ha tolti
Di figurar e di brillar nel mondo?”

CASTI. Gli Animali Parlanti, IV., 106.

“How many a lofty genius hidden lies
In hamlet lone, ’neath deep oblivion hurled,
For this alone, that envious Fate denies
The means to pose and shine before the world.”

“Quanto dolce cosa e necessaria all’ uomo in qualunque condizione di vita non è mai lo studio delle buone lettere!”

ALGAROTTI. Lettere sopra Omero. 12 Gennaio, 1747.

“What a delightful thing and how necessary to a man in every condition of life is the study of good literature!”

“Quanto è felice quei, ch’ alberga in cielo,
S’egli ha gioja maggior del pianto mio!”

FIAMMA. Sonnetto XVI.

“How great his happiness that dwells in heaven,
If he know gladness gladder than my tears.”

“Quanto errando, oh quanto va,
Nel cercar la verità,
Chi dal vin lungo si sta!”

REDI. Bacco in Toscana.

“Though seeking truth with might and main,
Yet wandering shall he seek in vain,
Who doth from Bacchus’ gift abstain.”

“ Quanto il vinto è di più pregio, tanto
Più glorioso è di chi che vince il vanto.”

GUARINI. Il Pastor Fido, Act III.—(Coro.)

“ The greater is the vanquished hero's fame,
The greater is his boast who overcame.”

“ Quanto la cosa è più perfetta,
Più senta 'l bene e così la doglienza.” DANTE. Inferno, VI., 107.

“ More a thing is perfect nursed
The more it feels both good and evil sway.”
—(J. I. Minchin.)

“ Quanto più i luoghi son forti, tanto dee il principe esser più accurato in guardargli, perciocchè non si sta da parte alcuna in maggior pericolo, che da quella, d'onde gli par esser sicuro.”

LOTTINI. Avvedimenti Civili, 27.

“ The stronger his fortresses, the more assiduous must the prince be in protecting them, for on no side does he incur greater risk than on that where he seems most secure.”

“ Quanto più l'huomo invecchia, tanto più gli par fatica il morire, e, sempre più con le attioni e con li pensieri vive, come se sapesse non havere mai a morire.”

GUICCIARDINI. Avvertimenti, XXXVI.

“ The older a man grows, the more terrible death seems to him, and the more, in act and thought, he lives as though he knew that he should never die.”

“ Quanto più su l'instabil rota vedi
Di fortuna vie in alto il miser uomo,
Tanto più tosto hai da vedergli i piedi
Ove ora ha il capo, e far cadendo il tomo.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XLV., 1.

“ When highest placed on giddy Fortune's wheel,
Unhappy man must soon expect to feel
A sad reverse, and, in the changing round,
With rapid whirl as sudden touch the ground.”—(Hoole.)

“ Quanto vede un amante ! e l'ingannarlo
Quanto è difficil cosa ! ”

ZENO. Andromaca, Act II., Sc. IV.—(Eleno.)

“ How keen a lover's sight ! how hard a thing
'Tis to deceive him ! ”

“ Quantunque le forze della natura sieno grandi, nondimeno ella pure è assai spesso vinta e corretta dall' usanza.”

CASA. Galateo. (Opere, Milano, 1806, Vol. I., p. 237.)

“ Great as is the power of nature, yet notwithstanding she is very often overcome and corrected by custom.”

“(Che) quasi di licor, che dall’ un vaso
Passi nell’ altro, dell’ arguto motto,
Ove dall’ una varchi all’ altra bocca,
Il volatile spirto esala e sfuma.”

PINDEMONTI. Sermoni—“L’Utile Avvertimento.”

“For as it is with liquor, that from vase
To vase is poured, e’en so with witty talk,
When it from one to other mouth doth flit,
Its subtle essence fades and vanishes.”

“(Che) quegli è tra gli stolti bene abbasso
Che senza distinzione afferma o nega,
Così nell’ un come nell’ altro passo.”

DANTE. Paradiso, XIII., 115.

“For he amongst the fools is very low
Who without thought affirmeth, or denies,
Whether to one or other step he go.”—(J. I. Minchin.)

GOLDONI. La Metempsicosi, Act II., Sc. III.—(Il Poeta.)

“ That pleasant occupation, doing nothing.”

“ Quel modesto rossor che parla e tace.”
GOLDONI. Enea nel Lazio, Act V., Sc. III.—(Lavinia.)

“ The modest blush that speaks, yet says no word.”

“ Quel Principe che abbonda d'uomini e manca di soldati, debbe solamente, non della viltà degli uomini, ma della sua pigrizia e poca prudenza dolersi.”

MACCHIAVELLI. *Discorsi sopra la prima Deca di Tito
Livio*, III., 38.

“ The Prince with many subjects and few soldiers, must blame, not the cowardice of his subjects, but his own inertness and want of foresight.”

“ Quel sommo
D'occhi cieco, e divin raggio di mente,
Che per la Grecia mendico cantando.”
MANZONI. La Morte di Carlo Imbonati.

“ That king of bards,
With sightless eyes and mind by heaven illumed,
That, singing, begged his bread through Grecian land.”

“Quell' odore di che il nuovo vaso è imbevuto una volta, quello conservera di poi.”

ALGAROTTI. Saggio sopra la Pittura. Dell' Educazione prima del Pittore.

“The odour with which a new vessel is once impregnated will cling to it for long afterwards.”

“(Che) quella, che da l'oro, e da l'argento
Difende il cor di pudicizia armato,
Tra mille spade via più facilmente
Difenderalo, e in mezzo al fuoco ardente.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XLIII., 68.

“Since she who holds her heart from gold secure,
May safely guard her chastity from harms
With flames surrounded, and begirt with arms.”—(Hoole.)

“Quella guerra è giusta ch' è necessaria : e quelle armi sono pie, nelle quali non resta altra speranza che nelle dette armi.”

SANSOVINO. Concetti Politici, XLI.

“That war is just which is necessary, and those arms are righteous wherein reposes no other hope save in the arms themselves.”

“Quella invidia lode
Che sol per odio a' vivi i morti esalta.”

ALGAROTTI. Epistola VI. All' Abbate Metastasio.

“'Tis envy praises when the dead
Are glorified from hatred of the living.”

“Quest' oltraggio è fatto ai Dei,
I quai, se non han cura di se stessi,
Non vi curate voi di vendicarli.”

RUCELLAI. L'Oreste, Act V.—(Coro.)

“This is an insult offered to the Gods,
And if the Gods themselves make light of it,
It is not in your hands that vengeance lies.”

“Questa del tuo cor fiamma immortale
Senza Cerere e Bacco è fredda e frale.”

MARINI. L'Adone, VII., 118.

“This deathless flame that on your heart doth feed
Is cold and weak if wine and bread you need.”

“Questa vita terrena è quasi un prato
Che 'l serpente trai fiori, e l'erba giace,
E s' alcuna sua vista agli occhi piace,
È per lassar più l'animo invescato.”

PETRARCA. Sonetto in Vita di M. Laura, LXVIII.

“Like to a mead this earthly life I find,
Where 'midst the grass and flowers doth lurk a snake,
And if in aught our eyes should pleasure take,
'Tis but to weary more th' imprisoned mind.”

“ Queste simili morti, le quali seguitano per deliberazione de un animo deliberato et ostinato, non si possono da' Principi evitare, perchè ciascuno che non si curi di morire lo può fare.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Il Principe, Cap. XIX.

“ From a death of this nature, deliberately planned by a deliberate and determined man, no Prince can protect himself, for whoever is indifferent to his own life, can always take the life of another.”

“ Questo criterio, il più facile ed il più semplice del mondo, ed altrettanto il meno usato, è unicamente il bien degli uomini.”

MASSIMO D'AZEGLIO. I Miei Ricordi, Cap. XX. (Ed. 1867, Vol. II., p. 23.)

“ The true criterion, the easiest and simplest in the world, and at the same time the least used, is solely the good of mankind.”

“ Questo è jus antico inviolato,
Che possa un Messagier dir ciò che vuole,
Senza render ragion di sue parole.”

TASSONI. La Secchia Rapita, II., 12.

“ There is an ancient law inviolate
Which bids a Herald say whate'er he chooses,
And give no reason for the words he uses.”

“ Qui giace il prestantissimo
Ranocchio infelicissimo
Che ucciso fu per suo destin maledico,
Non so ben se dal male, over dal medico.”

GOLDONI. L'Ippocondriaco, Part II., Sc. I. (Ranocchio.)

“ Here lyeth one of world-wide fame,
Unhappy man, Ranocchio by name,
Who, ah! accursed fate! his end did reach,
I know not if by sickness or by leech.”

“ Qui giace l'Aretin poeta toscò,
Che disse mal d'ognun fuor che di Dio
Scusandosi col dir, non lo conosco.”

Epitaph on Aretino, attributed to PAOLO GIOVIO.

“ The poet Aretino lies below
Who evil spoke of everyone, save God,
And for excuse said: Him I do not know.”

“ Qui giace un cardinale
Che fe' più mal che bene,
Il ben lo fece male,
Il mal lo fece bene.”

PANANTI. Epigrammi.

“ A prelate here doth buried lie
Who did on earth more harm than good;
The good he did most scurvily,
Ill-doing well he understood.”

DANTE. Inferno, XXXIV., 139.

“ And issued thence to see the stars once more.”—(J. I. Minchin.)

“ Quivi il crudo tiranno Amor, che sempre
D’ogni promessa sua fu disleale ;
E sempre guarda, come involva, e stempere
Ogni nostro disegno razionale.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XIII., 20.

“ Here dwells that cruel tyrant, Love, whose use
It ever is his promises to break,
And who aye seeks to thwart and to confuse
All plans that we, by reason led, may make.”

“ Rade volte e consigli degli uomini seguitano la fortuna.”

POGGIO. Istoria Fiorentina, Lib. VII. (Ed. Fiorenza, 1598, p. 230.)

“ But rarely do the counsels of men follow Fortune’s path.”

“ Rade volte risurge per li rami
L’umana probitate ; e questo vuole
Quei che la dà, perchè da lui si chiami.”

DANTE. Purgatorio, VII., 121.

“ But rarely in the branch again is grown
Our human excellence, so willeth He Who gives it, that the boon be called his own.”

—(J. I. Minchin.)

“ (Ma) ragion contra forza non ha loco.”

PETRARCA. Trionfo d’Amore, II., 111.

“ But reason hath no place opposed to force.”

“ Ragionevole e onesto è, non le cose, ma le malizie delle cose odiare, e procurare da far partire.” DANTE. Il Convito, IV., Cap. I.

È perigliosa e vana
Se da lor non comincia ogni opra umana.”

METASTASIO. Issipile, Act III., Sc. IX.—(Toante.)

“ Thank ye the Gods, my children, for the course
Of every enterprise is perilous
And vain, unless it have in them its source.”

“ Renditi vinto, e per tua gloria basti
Che dir potrai che contra me pugnasti.”

TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata, VI., 32.

“ Lay down thine arms,
And let it for thy fame sufficient be
That thou canst boast of having fought with me.”

“ Repubblica e disordine è sinonimo.”

CASTI. Gli Animali Parlanti, I., 21.

“ Republic and disorder are synonymous.”

“ Restar in danno tien miglior consiglio
Che tutti i denar perder, e la vesta.
Meglio è ritrarsi, e salvar qualche schiera,
Che stando, esser cagion che 'l tutto pera.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XVIII., 156.

“ 'Tis wiser counsel far to face our loss,
Than to lose all we have in gear and gold.
'Tis better to retreat, though great the cost,
Than stand our ground till all the host is lost.”

“ Retorica è ne la lingua di chi ama, di chi inganna e di chi ha
bisogno.” ARETINO. La Talanta, Act I., Sc. XIII.—(Pizio.)

“ Rhetoric is upon the tongue of him who loves, of him who beguiles, and of him who is in need.”

“ Ricco per voi di novo mondo il mondo.”

MARINI. Sonetti.—“ A Cristoforo Colombo.”

“ The world through thee is by a new world richer.”

“ (Che) rilevare un che Fortuna rote
Talora al fondo, e consolar l'afflitto,
Mai non fu biasmo, ma gloria sovente.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, X., 14.

“ To succour one that turn of Fortune's wheel
Drags downward, and the afflicted to console
Ne'er blame did merit, oft doth glory bring.”

“ Rinfacciare il peccato
Altrui mai non conviene,
Ma rinfacciarlo a chi ti fa del bene,
E da solenne ingrato.”

FIACCHI. Favola XIX.—“ Il Pellegrino ed il Platano.”

“ The faults of others to reprove
Is by the world considered rude,
But to reprove the friend who shows his love
Is dastardly ingratitude.”

“(Che) rinsanisce alcun pazzo talora,
Ma il cervel de l'amante ognor peggiora.”

FORTIGUERRA. Ricciardetto, XXVIII., 3.

“A madman now and then his wits regains
But aye from bad to worse go lovers' brains.”

“Risguardiami; se sa legger d'amore,
Ch' io porto morte scritta nella faccia.”

GUINICELLI. Sonetto. (Poeti del Primo Secolo, Firenze, 1816,
Vol. I., p. 105.)

“Look on me! if canst read the signs of love,
Thou'lt see that death is written in my face.”

“Risorgerò nemico ognor più crudo,
Cenere anco sepolto, e spirto ignudo.”

TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata, IX., 99.

“Though in the grave my body buried lies,
Still fiercer foeman shall my spirit rise.”

“Roma

Non sta fra quelle mura. Ella è per tutto
Dove ancor non è spento
Di gloria e libertà l'amor natio:
Son Roma i fidi miei, Roma son io.”

METASTASIO. Catone in Utica, Act II., Sc. II.—(Catone.)

“Not within

Her walls stands Rome, for she is everywhere
Where still unfading blooms
The inborn love of fame and liberty:
My faithful friends are Rome, and Rome am I.”

“Rompe il coperchio ogni soperchio.”

GOZZI. Sermoni, IV.

“All excess in the vessel breaks the lid.”

“S' amor non è; che dunque è quel ch' io sento?

Ma s' egli è amor; per Dio che cosa, e quale?

Se buona; ond' è l' effetto aspro e mortale?

Se ria; ond' è sì dolce ogni tormento.”

PETRARCA. Sonetto in Vita di M. Laura, LXXXVIII.

“If 'tis not love, what is't that moves my heart?

If love, then of what nature is the thing?

If good, whence comes its sharp and deadly sting?

If evil, tell me why so sweet the smart?”

“(Che) sacro manto indegnamente veste
Chi per publico ben del suo privato
Comodo non si spoglia.”

GUARINI. Il Pastor Fido, Act V., Sc. IV.—(Montano.)

Che non è come si dipinge nero.”

POLIZIANO. Alla Dama.

“ That proverb's true with which you're all acquainted ;
The devil's not so black as he is painted.”

“ Sappiamo non consistere la poesia in parole ed in suono che quanto son le parole espressioni d'imagini, ovver d'affetti.”

BETTINELLI. Lettere di Virgilio, Lettera I.

“ We know that poetry does not consist of words and sounds, except in so far as the words are the expression of images, or of passions.”

“ Sarai buon Re, se buon pastor sarai.”

METASTASIO. Il Re Pastore, Act II., Sc. IV. — (Alessandro.)

“ Be thou good shepherd, so thou'lt be good king.”

“ (E) sarebbe il volertela insegnare,
Portar acqua alla fonte, e legno al bosco.”

GIUSTI. Gingillino, Part III.

“ To wish to teach thee that, would be to bring Wood to the forest, water to the spring.”

“(Che) sarebbe pensier non troppo accorto
Perder due vivi per salvare un morto.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XVIII., 189.

“’Twere far unmeet, while from the deathful plain
We bear one corpse, two living should be slain.”—(Hoole.)

“Sarò qual fui, vivrò com’ io son visso.”

PETRARCA. Sonetto in Vita di M. Laura, XCV.

“I will be what I was, will live as I have lived.”

“Savio è chi d’or in or, non d’anno in anno,
Scudi, remedi, antidoti raguna
Contra i colpi di morte e di fortuna.”

BERNI. Orlando Innamorato, XXXI., 2.

“Wise is he who this hour, not year by year,
Makes himself safeguards, antidotes and shields
Against the weapons death or fortune wields.”

“Scema la cura
Quando cresce la speme.”

METASTASIO. Ciro, Act II., Sc. VII.—(Arpago.)

“Less grows our care
When hope increases.”

“Schiavo, se giusto è il rè, non è lo stato.”

PINDEMONTE. Poesie Varie, Sonetto II.—“In Morte di Luigi XVI.”

“No State’s enslaved, if but the king be just.”

“Scritto ampio e insipido non lode ottiene :
È più stimabile far poco e bene.”

FIACCHI. Favola XXVII.—“La Querce e la Pianta di Fragola.”

“Small praise awaits a long and prosy book ;
Short screed and good for higher meed may look.”

“Se a corpo a corpo i prenci della terra
Dovran pagnar, non vi sarà più guerra.”

CASTI. Gli Animali Parlanti, XXI., 56.

“If ruler fought with ruler hand to hand,
Full soon would war be banished from the land.”

“Se amore è cieco, non può il vero scorgere :
Chi prende il cieco in guida, mal consigliasi :
Se ignudo : uom che non ha, come puo porgere ?”

SANNAZARO. Arcadia, Ecloga VIII.—(Eugenio.)

“If love be blind how follows he truth’s path ?
Who takes the blind as guide is ill-advised :
If naked : who can give, save he who hath ?”

“ Se dell' uve il sangue amabile
Non rinfranca ognor le vene,
Questa vita è troppo labile,
Tropo breve, e sempre in pene.” REDI. Bacco in Toscana.

“ If of the grape the crimson flow
Renew not in our veins the life,
Too brief our sojourn here below,
Too fleeting and with sorrows rife.”

“ Se è amor per noi, chi contra noi vuol essere? ”
FOLENGO. Orlandino, V., 46.

“ If love be for us, who will be against us? ”

“ Se e' si considera bene como procedono le cose umane, si vedrà molte volte nascere cose, e venire accidenti, a' quali i cieli al tutto non hanno voluto che si provegga.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Discorsi sopra la prima Deca di Tito Livio, II., 29.

“ If we study closely the course of human events, we shall see that circumstances often arise, and accidents happen, which Heaven never intended us to foresee.”

“ Se è teco amor, di che temer più dei? ”
MARINI. L'Adone, Canto II.

“ If love be with thee, what hast more to fear? ”

“ Se fedele vuol la sposa,
Sia fedel lo sposo ancor.”
GOLDONI. Le Nozze, Act I., Sc. VII.—(Livietta.)

“ If their wives they would have faithful,
Husbands must be faithful too.”

“ Se frutti amari fino a qui vestiva,
Maledite i cultori, e non la pianta.”
PINDEMONTE. Poesie Varie. Sonetto I.—“ Per l'Albero della Libertà.”

“ If to this day naught but sour fruit ye see,
Curse ye the husbandmen and not the tree.”

“ Se gli sta ben, la prenda.”
FIACCHI. Favole, LXXVIII.—“ La Merla e il Passerotto.”
“ If the cap fits, let him wear it.”

“ Se gran tempo celato un mal si tiene,
Peggiorando, incurabile deviene.”
CASTI. Gli Animali Parlanti, VIII., 60.

“ An ill that long in secret we endure
Grows more malignant aye, till naught can cure.”

“ Se il fil di canapa è marcio, non s' avrà mai corda buona.”
MASSIMO D'AZEGLIO. I Miei Ricordi, Cap. XXIV. (Ed. 1867, Vol. II., p. 167.)

“ If the fibre of the hemp is rotten, you will never make a good rope of it.”

“ Se in lupi si trasformano i Pastori,
 Gli agnelli diverran cani arrabbiati;
 Che fra gli oltraggi quei sono i peggiori
 Che ci fanno color, ch' abbiamo amati.”

TASSONI. La Secchia Rapita, XII., 30.

“ If shepherds take on wolfish guise,
 The lambs like rabid curs will prove;
 For aye the deadliest injuries
 Are wrought us by the ones we love.”

“ Se insultasse al pudor, pera la piuma,
 E l'ingegno con lei.”

ZANELLA. Passeggio Solitario, VI.

“ Perish the pen that modesty affronts,
 Perish the brain that guides it.”

“ Se 'l cielo è degli amanti
 Amico, e 'l mondo ingrato,
 Amando, a che son nato?
 A viver molto? E questo mi spaventa;
 Che 'l poco è troppo a chi ben serve e stenta.”

BUONAROTTI. Madrigali, XV.

“ If lovers heaven befriends
 While the world spiteful proves,
 Loving, why was I born?
 Is't for long life? Nay, for that were a hell;
 Short is too long for him that serveth well.”

“ Se 'l peccar è sì dolce
 E 'l non peccar sì necessario, è troppo
 Imperfetta natura,
 Che repugni a la legge;
 O troppo dura legge
 Che la natura offendi.”

GUARINI. Il Pastor Fido, Act III., Sc. IV.—(Amarilli.)

“ If sinning is so sweet
 And it is needful not to sin, then far
 Is nature from perfection,
 That wars against the law;
 O law! thou art too stern
 That nature dost offend.”

“ Se la natura producesse tutte le cose perfette, non bisognerebbe l'arte, e se l'arte potesse farle perfette da se stessa, non bisognerebbe
 la natura.”

GELLI. Capricci del Bottai, Ragionamento V.—(L'Anima.)

“ If nature could produce all her works in perfection, there would be no need of art, and if art could make them perfect by herself, there would be no need of nature.”

“ Se la propria salute suole a ciascuno esser cara, quanto la libertà debba esser più accetta, e più grata, senza la quale da gli huomini buoni, e prestanti non è ragionevolmente da desiderare la vita.”

POGGIO. Istoria Fiorentina, Lib. II. (Ed. Fiorenza, 1598, p. 43.)

“ If one's own preservation is dear to each of us, how much more should liberty be valued and loved, since without it no upright and honourable man can reasonably desire to live.”

“Se la vita amar si suole
Per consiglio di natura,
Ama l'uom nella sua prole
Della vita una metà.”

GOLDONI. L'Unzione di David, Part I., Sc. II.—(Isai.)

“If, in accord with nature's plan,
Life is to all men dear,
'Tis in his offspring that the man
Half of his life doth love.”

“Se non è vero, egli è stato un bel trovato.”

DONI. I Marmi, Part I., Ragionamento IV.—(Rudolfo.)

“Se non è vero, è molto ben trovato.”

BRUNO. *Gli Eroi Furori, Part II., Dialogo III.—
(Laodonio.)*

“If it be not true it is marvellous well invented.”

“Son ciance e be' trovati
Di romanzieri pazzi e spiritati.”

FORTIGUERRA. Ricciardetto, X., 34.

“These tales as nonsense stand confessed,
And fond imaginings of scribes possessed.”

“Se non si può, non si debbe volere.”

PULCI. Morgante Maggiore, XXV., 285.

“We should not wish for what we may not have.”

“Se più che crini avesse occhi il marito,
Non potria far, che non fosse tradito.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXVIII., 72.

“Were numerous as his hairs a husband's eyes,
A wife's deceit would every watch surprise.”—(Hoole.)

“(Che) se t' assale a la canuta etate
Amoroso talento,
Havrai doppio tormento,
E di quel che potendo non volesti,
E di quel che volendo non potrai.”

GUARINI. Il Pastor Fido, Act I., Sc. I.—(Linco.)

“If when grey hairs thy head do crown
Love's passion thee should trouble,
Then is thy torment double,
For that thou wouldst not when thou hadst the power,
And that thou canst not now thou hast the will.”

“(Or) se tu se' vil serva, è il tuo servaggio
(Non ti lagnar) giustizia, e non oltraggio.”

TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata, I., 51.

“If thou art abject slave, thy servile state
Is justice and not wrong : curse not thy fate.”

“ Se un don ti porge una nemica mano,
È dono infausto, e frodo in esso annida.”

FIACCHI. Favole, LXXV.—“ Il Lupo.”

“ If gift be brought thee by a foeman's hand,
Ill-omened is the gift ; fraud nests therein.”

“ Se uno non sa tenere segreto una cosa sua, manco un altro si potrà tenere.”

DONI. I Marmi, Part I., Ragionamento VI.—(Lorenzo.)

“ If one cannot keep silent about one's own affairs, still less can one expect others to do so.”

“ Se volete che la notte vi paja un soffio, dormitela tutta.”

ARETINO. La Talanta, Act II., Sc. III.—(Pizio.)

“ If you want the night to seem a moment to you, sleep all night.”

“ Seconda avversità, pietoso sdegno

Con leve sferza di lassù flagella

Tua folle colpe, e fa di tua salute

Te medesimo ministro.” TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata, XII., 87.

“ Helpful misfortune, wrath most pitiful
With mildest scourge doth from on high chastise
Thy foolish error, and doth make thyself
Of thy salvation minister.”

“ Seggendo in piuma
In fama non si vien, nè sotto coltre.”

DANTE. Inferno, XXIV., 47.

“ Idly lapt in down
'Neath coverlets, for him fame never groweth.”—(J. I. Minchin.)

“ Sembra gentile

Nel verno un fiore

Che in sen d'Aprile

Si disprezzò.

Fra l'ombra è bella

L'istessa stella

Che in faccia al sole

Non si mirò.”

METASTASIO. L'Asilo d'Amore.—(Mercurio.)

“ Fair seemeth the flower
In December's dark days
That in April's bright hour
None deigneth to praise.
Full bright the star beameth
In shadow of night
That when the sun gleameth
Is hid from our sight.”

“ Seme presuntuoso, che a' peccati
Corre sempre che più gli son vietati.”

BERNI. Orlando Innamorato, LXIV., 3.

“ Presumptuous seed, that ever is most prone
To trespasses that we may least condone.”

“Le cose vietate fan crescere la voglia.”

ALAMANNI. La Flora, Act I., Sc. II.—(Tonchio.)

“Forbidding but adds flame to our desire.”

“Sempre quel ch' è vietato, e quel ch' è raro
Più n'invaglia il desire, e più n' è caro.”

MARINI. L'Adone, V., 109.

“Ever what is forbidden, what is rare,
Doth more delight us, more our thoughts ensnare.”

“Sempre a quel ver ch' ha faccia di menzogna
De' l'uom chiuder le labbre quant' ei puote,
Però che senza colpa fa vergogna.” DANTE. Inferno, XVI., 124.

“Of that truth always which like falsehood seems,
Man should keep closed his lips whene'er he can,
Since without fault of his it bringeth shames.”

—(J. I. Minchin.)

“Mi bisogna
Allegar forte il verso del Poeta :
Sempre a quel ver, ch' ha faccia di menzogna,
È più senno tener la lingua cheta.”

PULCI. Morgante Maggiore, XXIV., 104.

“Needs must I
Support the poet's words with all my force :
Towards truth that wears the semblance of a lie,
Aye to keep silence is the wisest course.”

“Sempre al pensier tornavano
Gli irrevocati dì.” MANZONI. Adelchi, Act IV., Sc. I.—(Chorus.)

“And ever to the thought returned
The days beyond recall.”

“Sempre avviene
Che dove men si sa, più si sospetta.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Capitolo dell' Ingratitudine.

“It happens aye
That where men least do know, they most suspect.”

“Sempre che l'inimico è più possente,
Più chi perde accettabile ha la scusa.”
ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXIV., 32.

“If overwhelming be the foeman's might,
'Tis easier to forgive the man that fails.”

“Sempre chi piglia i lioni in assenza
Vedrai, che teme d'un topo in presenza.”
PULCI. Morgante Maggiore, XXII., 121.

“He who would lions tame when none are by,
Will faint, you'll see, should he a mouse espy.”

“ Sempre color che ne i terri ostili
Fan guerra, denno aver le menti audaci,
Ma star con l'opre timide e sicure.”

TRISSINO. L'Italia Liberata da' Goti, Lib. VI. (Ed. Parigi, 1729, Vol. I., p. 229.)

“ They who within the foeman's boundaries
Wage war, must ever be of courage high,
But cautious aye and timid in their acts.”

“ Sempre di verità non è convinto
Chi di parole e vinto.”

GUARINI. Il Pastor Fido, Act V., Sc. V.—(Carino.)

“ Not always is he of the truth convinced
Who is o'ercome in argument.”

“ (Perocchè) sempre dolce al mondo è rara.”

POLIZIANO. Stanze, II., 27.—(Of Fortune.)

“ On few in this world fortune always smiles.”

“ (Che) sempre è più leggier ch' al vento foglia,
E mille volte il dì vuole e disvuole :
Segue chi fugge, e chi la vuol s'asconde,
E vanne e vien, come alla riva l'onde.”

POLIZIANO. Stanze, I., 14.

“ Lighter is she than leaflet in the breeze,
Changes her moods a thousand times a day,
Follows who flees, from him who seeks her hides,
And comes and goes as on the beach the tides.”

“ Sempre il peggior consiglio
È il non prender alcun.”

METASTASIO. Demofonte, Act III., Sc. VII.—(Creusa.)

“ 'Tis the worst counsel aye
To take no counsel.”

“ Sempre, ma più quando è nuova,
Seco ogni signoria sospetto porta.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, IX., 61.

“ Always, but most when it is newly won,
Doth lordship bring suspicion in its train.”

“ (Che) sempre mai ne l'opre de la guerra
Più la prestezza val che la virtute.”

TRISSINO. L'Italia Liberata da Goti, Lib. VII. (Ed. Parigi, 1729, Vol. I., p. 246.)

“ For in war's operations aye we find
Swift movement, more than valour, gain the day.”

“ Sempre non può l'uomo un cibo, ma talvolta desidera di variare.”

BOCCACCIO. Il Decameron. Giornata VII., Novella VI.

“ A man cannot always live on the same food, but must from time to time vary his diet.”

“Sendo delle cose humane, e massime delle guerre signore la fortuna.”
POGGIO. Istoria Fiorentina, Lib. VI. (Ed. Fiorenza, 1598, p. 175.)

“Fortune being the mistress of all human affairs, and especially of war.”

“Sendo la natura de’ popoli sempre mobile, e volta al peggio, e desiderosa di veder cose nuove.”

POGGIO. Istoria Fiorentina, Lib. VIII. (Ed. Fiorenza, 1598, p. 232.)

“The nature of mobs being always fickle, and prone to evil, and hankering after some new thing.”

“Sendo più da temere un nimico vicino, che sperare nel favore d’uno amico di lunge.”

POGGIO. Istoria Fiorentina, Lib. V. (Ed. Fiorenza, 1598, p. 146.)

“There being more to fear from a hostile neighbour, than to hope for from the goodwill of a distant friend.”

“Sendo più facil cosa estirpare un male, quando comincia, che quando ha generato la barbe.”

POGGIO. Istoria Fiorentina, Lib. V. (Ed. Fiorenza, 1598, p. 143.)

“It being easier to root out an evil in its youth, than when it has grown a beard.”

“(Uomo sapiente e vero
La cui parola approva ognunque saggio)
Sentina d’ogni vizio l’ozio conta.”

GUITTONE D’AREZZO, Canzoni, XXI.

“One of the wise and true,
Whose dictum is approved by every sage,
Counts idleness the sink of every vice.”

“Senza cuor contento, non c’è bene che valga, come col cuor contento non c’è male che nuoca in questo mondo.”

MASSIMO D’AZEGLIO. I Mieì Ricordi, Cap. XXIV. (Ed. 1867, Vol. II., p. 150.)

“Without a contented heart there is no blessing worth having, just as with a contented heart there is no evil that harms us in this world.”

“Senza soldi e senza regno
Brutta cosa è l’esser re.”

CASTI. Il Re Teodoro in Venezia, Act I., Sc. I.—(Teodoro.)

“Without a penny and without a throne,
A king’s position is an ugly one.”

“Serba ogni pianta della sua radice
Benchè sia tralignato il frutto poi.”

PULCI. Morgante Maggiore, XXVI., 83.

“A plant doth somewhat of its root preserve,
E’en though its fruit be all degenerate.”

“(Ma pur) si aspre vie, nè sì selvagge
Cercar non so, ch’ Amor non venga sempre
Ragionando con meco, ed io con lui.”

PETRARCA. Sonetto in Vita di M. Laura, XXII.

“Yet never path so stony nor so wild
I travel, but Love fareth by my side,
And reasoneth with me and I with him.”

“Si crede, et anco spesso si vede per esperienza, che le ricchezze male acquistate non passano la terza generazione.”

GUICCIARDINI. Avvertimenti, XXXVII.

“We believe, and moreover we often see by experience, that ill-gotten wealth does not pass beyond the third generation.”

“Si credono
Mal volentier le cose che dispiacciono.”

ARIOSTO. Il Negromante, Act III., Sc. II.—(Fisico.)

“With an ill-grace
Do men believe those things that please them not.”

“Si deve notare che l'odio si acquista così mediante le buone opere come le triste; e però, come dissi di sopra, volendo un Principe mantenere lo stato, è spesso forzato a non esser buono.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Il Principe, Cap. XVIII.

“It must be remarked that we incur men's hatred as well by good as by bad actions; therefore, as I said before, if a prince desires to maintain his authority, he is often forced to quit the path of virtue.”

“Si deve segnar sette e tagliar uno.”

CELLINI. Vita, Lib. I., Cap. LXXI.

“We must mark seven times and cut once.”—(J. A. Symonds.)

“Si fermano anche i lupi quando hanno afferrato la preda.”

PEPOLI. La Scommessa, Act I., Sc. I.—(Il Marchese.)

“Even the wolves cease their depredations, when they have secured all the prey.”

“Si giova e il vuol politica, si faccia;
Quando ella parla, la moral si taccia.”

CASTI. Gli Animali Parlanti, XIV., 81.

“Expediency demands, no more delay;
Morals, in such a case, have naught to say.”

“Si sa che d'un istante
Un secolo formar suol chi ben ama.”

GOLDONI. Statira, Act I., Sc. III.—(Arbace.)

“Of one short moment, well we know,
Who truly loves will make a century.”

“(Ma) sì secreto alcuno esser non puote,
Ch' al lungo andar non sia chi 'l veggia e note.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXII., 39.

“None may his secret thought so well conceal
But one at last shall note it, and reveal.”

“ Si spiega assai chi s'arrosisce e tace.”

METASTASIO. L'Amor Prigionero.—(Amore.)

“ She all betrays who blushes and says naught.”

“ Si tema in corte la virtù, non s'ama.”

CASTI. Gli Animali Parlanti, IV., 67.

“ Virtue is feared at court, and is not loved.”

“ Si trovano più santi che uomini da bene.”

DATI. Lepidezze di Spiriti Bizarri. (Ed. Firenze, 1829, p. 41.)

“ There are more saints in the world than good men.”

“ (Perchè) si vive in questa umana vita

Come si puote, e non come si vuole.”

TRISSINO. L'Italia Liberata da' Goti, Lib. XV. (Ed. Parigi, 1729, Vol. II., p. 236.)

“ For in this earthly life
We live not as we would, but as we can.”

“ Sia modesto l'autor; che sien le carte

Men pudiche talor, curar non deve.”

MARINI. L'Adone, VIII., 6.

“ If modest be the scribe, he need not care
If in his writings he less prudish seem.”

“ (E) sia più tosto a lei, per le man vostre

Tolta la vita, e 'l sangue, che l'onore,

Che senza dubbio, se la donna il perde,

Non la resta vivendo altro di buono.”

TRISSINO. L'Italia Liberata da' Goti, Lib. XVII. (Ed. Parigi, 1729, Vol. II., p. 315.)

“ And rather let thine own hand strike the blow
That sheds thy life blood, than thine honour lose,
For surely, if she be of that bereft,
A woman's life naught else of worth doth hold.”

“ Sia tosto o tardi, ha da morir chi nasce,

Ma vita neghittosa è ignobil morte,

E visse assai chi può morir con gloria.”

ZENO. Ifigenia, Act I., Sc. VI.—(Achille.)

“ Or soon or late, whoso is born must die,
But shiftless life leads to ignoble death,
And he who nobly dies lived not in vain.”

“ Siam poi alla terra (ch' è un grande animale Dentro al massimo) noi, come pidocchi

Al corpo nostro.”

CAMPANELLA. Poesie Filosofiche.—“ Del Mondo e sue Parti.”

“ We to the earth (which is a mighty beast
Within the mightiest) are then like fleas
To our own bodies.”

“Sicchè vegga il mondo, quando la Fortuna vuol torre a assassinare un uomo, quante diverse vie la piglia.”

CELLINI. Vita, Lib. I., Cap. CXIII.

“Let the world then take notice, when Fortune has the will to ruin a man, how many divers ways she takes!”—(J. A. Symonds.)

“Siccome al cane in guardia posto all' orto,
Che non mangia i poconi, e non consente
Che altri ne mangi, ogni uomo gli da torto.”

BOIARDO. Timone, Act II., Sc. I.—(Giovè.)

“Like dog that in the garden keepeth ward,
Eating no melons, but allowing none
To eat thereof, he is of all abhorred.”

“Voi siete come il can del Ortolano;
Non mangia, e non ne vuol lasciar mangiare.”

GOLDONI. Il Festino, Act I., Sc. II.—(Il Conte.)

“Ye may be likened to the gardener's dog,
That eateth not, nor letteth others eat.”

“Siccome il non poter avere le cose desiderate moltiplica l'appetito, così lo averne poi copia suole generare fastidio.”

TASSO. Dei Casi d'Amore. (Ed. 1894, p. 106.)

“Just as being unable to have the things we desire multiplies our appetite, so the having them in abundance generates satiety.”

“Simile è la ragione a un lento foco,
Che con attività senza fracasso
Tutto purge e depura appoco, appoco.”

CASTI. Gli Animali Parlanti, VII., 108.

“Like a slow fire that worketh quietly,
Yet all unceasing, so by slow degrees
Doth reason all things cleanse and purify.”

“So ben, ch' in tutto il gran femmineo stuolo
Una non è, che stia contenta a un solo.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXVIII., 50.

“Of all the sex, this certain truth is known,
No woman yet was e'er content with one.”—(Hoole.)

“So com' Amor saetta, e come vola;
E so com' or minaccia, ed or percote;
Come ruba per forza, e com' invola;
E come sono instabili sue rote;
Le speranze dubbiose, e 'l dolor certo
Sue promesse di fè come son vote.”

PETRARCA. Trionfo d'Amore, III., 175.

“I know full well how swift Love's arrows fly,
How now he threatens, now pierces through and through,
Now steals by force, and now by strategy.
Full soon he turns our gladness into rue,
Fleeting his joys, naught lasting but the pain,
And vain his promise of fidelity.”

“Sol beato è chi gode in ore liete
Tra i modesti piacer bella quiete.” MARINI. L'Adone, IX., 91.

“He who in happy hour enjoys his rest,
With modest pleasures crowned, alone is blest.”

“Sol l'audace
Ha fortuna in amor.”
GOLDONI. Belisario, Act I., Sc. IX.—(Teodora.)

“None but the brave deserve the fair.”

“Sol se stessa e nul altra somiglia.”
PETRARCA. Sonetto in Vita di M. Laura, CIX.

“Herself alone, none other she resembles.”

“Sola la miseria è senza invidia nelle cose presente.”
BOCCACCIO. Il Decameron, Giornata IV., Intermezzo.

“As things are now, only absolute misery is free from envy.”

“Solo chi non fa niente è certo di non errare, di non far dire, e non far pur ridere talvolta.”

MASSIMO D'AZEGLIO. I Miei Ricordi, Cap. XVI. (Ed. 1867,
Vol. I., p. 321.)

“It is only the man who never does anything who can be sure of making no mistakes, and of never being the subject of gossip, or even occasionally of ridicule.”

“Solo è senza virtù chi non la vuole.”
PANDOLFINI. Del Governo della Famiglia. (Ed. Milan,
1802, p. 93.)

“He only is without virtue who does not desire it.”

“Solo il buono è amabile veramente.”
SALVIATI. Dialogo d'Amicizia. (Ed. Milan, 1809, p. 55.)

“Only the good man is really loveable.”

“(Ma) solo una salute
Al disperato è 'l disperar salute.”
GUARINI. Il Pastor Fido, Act II., Sc. I.—(Ergasto.)

“The desperate shall only safety find
Who doth despair of safety.”

“Che per disperazion l'uom s'assicura.”
PULCI. Morgante Maggiore, XXV., 69.

“'Tis in despair man's greatest safety lies.”

“Son degli Dei ministri
I terreni monarchi e non son Dei.”
GOLDONI. Giustino, Act V., Sc. VII.—(Ergasto.)

“God's ministers
All earthly monarchs are ; they are not gods.”

“Son due consiglieri
Possenti e sinceri,
Natura ed amor.”

GOLDONI. Il Talismano, Act III., Sc. XII.—(Coro.)

“Advisers have we two,
Both powerful and true,
In nature and in love.”

“Son pittore anch' io.”

CORREGGIO. (Pungileone, Memorie Istoriche di Antonio Allegri,
Vol. I., p. 61.)

“I, too, am a painter.”

“Son più stupende di natura l'opre
Che 'l finger vostro, e più dolci a cantarsi.”

CAMPANELLA. Poesie Filosofiche.—“A' Poeti.”

“Dame Nature's works are more stupendous far
Than your inventions, and more sweet to sing.”

“Son un di quei cervelli che al mondo oggi si vedono,
Che criticando gl' altri alzar se stesso credono.”

GOLDONI. La Metempsicosi, Act I., Sc. I.—(Momo.)

“One of those brains that in the world to-day we oft descry,
Who by criticising others think to raise themselves on high.”

“Son vari i gusti,
Ma poi il più bello è che ciascun pretende
Essere il gusto suo miglior d'ogni altro.”

CASTI. Prima la Musica e poi le Parole, Sc. VI.—(Il Poeta.)

“Tastes are various,
But most amusing 'tis that each pretends
That 'tis his taste that is the best of all.”

“Son veramente i sogni
De le nostre speranze,
Più che de l'avenir, vane sembianze,
Imagini del dì, guaste e corrotte
Da l'ombre de la notte.”

GUARINI. Il Pastor Fido, Act I., Sc. IV.—(Titiro.)

“We rather, in our dreams,
Do the vain semblance see
Of what we hope, than of what is to be ;
The images that greet our waking sight,
Distorted by the shadows of the night.”

“I sogni non son altro, che van' ombre
Immaginate dal pensier del giorno.”

RUCELLAI. L'Oreste, Act I.—(Olimpia.)

“Naught else but empty shadows are our dreams,
Reflected from the day's imaginings.”

“Sono di tre generazioni cervelli; l'uno intende per sè, l'altro intende quanto da gli altri è mostro, il terzo non intende, nè per se stesso, nè per dimostrazione d'altri. Quello primo è eccellentissimo, il secondo eccellente, il terzo inutile.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Il Principe, Cap. XXII.

“There are three classes of brains; the first understands of itself, the second understands whatever is explained to it by others, the third understands neither of itself, nor by others' explanations. The first is super-excellent, the second excellent, the third useless.”

“Sono i vecchi come mente e anima di tutto il corpo della famiglia.”

PANDOLFINI. Del Governo della Famiglia. (Ed. Milan, 1802, p. 59.)

“The old people are the brain and the heart of the whole body of the family.”

“Sono inutili i consigli diligenti e prudenti, quando l'esecuzione procede con negligenza, e imprudenza.”

GUICCIARDINI. Istoria d'Italia, Lib. IV. (Ed. Milan, 1803, Vol. II., p. 194.)

“Prudent and well-devised plans are useless if they are carried out carelessly and imprudently.”

“Sono maggiori gli spaventi che i mali.”

MACCHIAVELLI. La Mandragola, Act III.—(Frate Timoteo.)

“Our terrors are in excess of the evils that cause them.”

“Sono tanto semplici gli uomini, e tanto ubbidiscono alle necessità presenti, che colui che inganna troverà sempre chi si lascerà ingannare.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Il Principe, Cap. XVIII.

“Men are so simple, and so subservient to present necessities, that whoever wishes to deceive will always find some who are ready to be deceived.”

“(Ma) sopra tutto nel buon vino ho fede,
E credo che sia salvo chi gli crede.”

PULCI. Morgante Maggiore, XVIII., 115.

“But most of all good wine my faith receives;
He finds salvation who in this believes.”

“Sospetto licenzia fede.”

Proverb quoted by Bacon, Essays, XXXI.

“Suspicion bids fidelity begone.”

“Sovra il mio capo il giuro; ove non basti,
Su l'onor mio; di cui nè il re, nè il cielo,
Arbitri d'ogni cosa, arbitri sono.”

ALFIERI. Filippo, Act III., Sc. V.—(Perez.)

“I stake my life; if that suffice thee not,
Mine honour, over which nor king nor heaven
Hath sway, though they have sway o'er all things else.”

“Speranza è la nutrice di pensieri.”

FOLENGO. Orlandino, IV., 32.

“Hope is the nurse of all our thoughts.”

“Speranza lusinghiera,
Fosti la prima a nascere,
Sei l'ultima a morir.”

“O hope, thou flatterer !
Thou wast the earliest born,
And art the last to die.”

“Sperar ben si de' sempre.”

GUARINI. Il Pastor Fido, Act I., Sc. IV.—(Montano.)

“Hope ne'er must be abandoned.”

“Speriam, che 'l sol caduto anco rinasce,
E 'l ciel quando men luce
L'aspettato seren spesso n'adduce.”

GUARINI. Il Pastor Fido, Act IV.—(Coro.)

“Hope ever, for the sun that sets shall rise,
And oft the sky, when it doth darkest seem,
Is but the herald of the expected gleam.”

“(Che) spesso avvien che ne' maggior perigli
Sono i più audaci gli ottimi consigli.”

TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata.

“When man by direst peril is oppressed,
Ofttimes the boldest counsels are the best.”

“Che nei grossi pericoli, le pronte
E le arrischiate risoluzioni
Son per salvarti unici mezzi e buoni.”

MELI. Favole.—“La Tribu dei Becchi.”

“For 'tis in prompt resolves
And hazardous, when perils great arise,
That thy sole pathway to salvation lies.”

“(E) spesso d'un gran mal nasce un gran bene,
Ch' ogni giudicio pel peccato viene.”

PULCI. Morgante Maggiore, IV., 100.

“Oft a great evil some great blessing brings,
For 'tis from error that ripe judgment springs.”

“Ed è, e sempre fu, e sempre fia
Che 'l mal succede al bene, e il bene al male,
E l'un sempre cagion dell' altro sia.”

MACCHIAVELLI. L'Asino d'Oro, Cap. V.

“It is, and aye has been, and aye shall be,
That evil follows good, good follows evil,
And one the other causing aye we see.”

“I gran mali son figliuoli di gran beni, e i gran beni prole di i gran mali.”

ARETINO. Lo Ipocrito, Act V., Sc. IX.—(Porfirio.)

“Great evils are the children of great blessings, and great blessings the offspring of great evils.”

“Spesso d'un gran male esce qualche bene.”

GELLI. Capricci del Bottai, Ragionamento VI.—(Giusto.)

“Often from great evil issues somewhat of good.”

“Spesso sono così nocivi i timori vani, come sia nociva la troppa confidenza.”

GUICCIARDINI. Istoria d'Italia, Lib. VII. (Ed. Milano, 1803, Vol. IV., p. 102.)

“Unfounded fears are often as hurtful as over-confidence.”

“Stampano i dotti e stampan gli ignoranti

Libri diversi; e peggiorando invecchia

Il mondo, in mezzo di tanti libri e tanti.”

PASSERONI. Rime, Capitolo VI.

“Wise men and fools alike, in varying style,
Rush into print, and still, midst books galore,
The world grows ever older and more vile.”

“(Tutti sanno che il nome di) studente

Vuol dire: Un tale che non studia niente.”

FUSINATO. Lo Studente di Padova, Part I.

“As you all know, he whom we student call
Is one who thinks of study last of all.”

“Studia prima la scienza, e poi seguita la pratica nata da essa scienza.”

LIONARDO DA VINCI. Trattato della Pittura, Cap. VII.

“First study the science, and then practise the art which is born of that science.”

“(Deh! come è ver che) subito trovato

Il bello piace a chi non è malato.”

BRACCIOLINI. Lo Scherno degli Dei, XII., 6.

“True 'tis, when unexpectedly we find
The beautiful, it charms the healthy mind.”

“Suole il dardo prima preveduto meno nuocere, e con minore piaga ferire.”

PANDOLFINI. Del Governo della Famiglia. (Ed. Milano, 1802, p. 81.)

“The shaft that is foreseen harms less, and strikes with less force.”

“Superbo al pare

Di chi troppo richiede

È colui chi ricusa ogni mercede.”

METASTASIO. Ezio, Act I., Sc. IX.—(Valentiniano.)

“Full as arrogant
As he who asks too much,
Is he who every recompense declines.”

“Taceano il vento, e l'onda, e da l'erbosa
Piaggia non si sentia mover bis-biglio;
L'aria, l'acqua e la terra in varie forme
Parean tacendo dire: Ecco Amor dorme.”

TASSONI. La Secchia Rapita, VIII., 49.

“Stilled be the breezes and the waves, and let
No murmur from the grass-clad slopes be heard;
Let earth and air and water silence keep,
Yet seem to whisper: Here lies Love, asleep.”

“Tacendo
Un gran piacer, non è piacer intero.”

MACCHIAVELLI. L'Asino d'Oro, Cap. IV.

“Pleasure keen, enjoyed
In silence, is not pleasure unalloyed.”

“Tal come il mal, il ben muore e rinasce,
Che altro il mal poi non è, che un bene in fasce.”

FILICAJA. Canzone XXXI.

“Like unto evil, good doth ebb and flow;
An ill is naught but good in embryo.”

“Tal di me schiavo e d'altri e della sorte,
Conosco il meglio ed al peggior m' appiglio,
E so invocare e non darmi la morte.”

FOSCOLO. Sonetto.—“Di sè stesso.”

“Of fortune, of myself, of others slave,
I know the better course and choose the worst,
And call on death, yet ne'er her coming brave.”

“Tal l'aspro saettare, e tanto dura,
Che per l'ombra de' dardi il ciel s'oscura.”

BERNI. Orlando Innamorato, LXIV., 61.

“And still the arrows flew so thick and fast,
That, as by clouds, the heavens were overcast.”

“Tal par gran meraviglia e poi si sprezza.”

PETRARCA. Canzone in Vita di M. Laura, IX.

“What first seems wondrous, after is despised.”

“Tal persona, tal pasta.”

GIGLI. La Sorellina di Pilone, Act V., Sc. XVI.—(Burino.)

“Different men are made of different stuff.”

“(Che) tal vantaggio ha il vivo ognor sul morto,
Che chi vive ha ragion, chi muore ha torto.”

CASTI. Gli Animali Parlanti, X., 117.

“Living o'er dead have aye this vantage strong,
That he who lives is right, who dies is wrong.”

“Talvolta ha più forze uno sguardo pietoso che mille preghi.”

TASSO. Dei Casi d'Amor. (Ed. 1894, p. 177.)

“Ofttimes a piteous look has more power than a thousand prayers.”

“Tanto buon che val niente.”

Proverb quoted by Bacon, Essays, XIII.

“So very good that he is worth nothing.”

“Tanto nuoce il voler pigliare occasione troppo acerba, quanto lasciarla maturar troppo.”

LOTTINI. Arvedimenti Civili, 266.

“It is just as harmful to pluck an opportunity too green, as to leave it till it is over-ripe.”

“(Ma) tanto più maligno e più silvestro
Si fa il terren col mal seme e non colto,
Quant' egli ha più di buon vigor terrestre.”

DANTE. Purgatorio, XXX., 118.

“But so much more malign and tangled groweth,
With poisonous wilding seeds, the uncultured sward,
As of terrestrial strength the more it showeth.”

—(J. I. Minchin.)

“Tanto un legno il gran mar solca per prora,
Ch' a qualche scoglio si conduce o porto.”

PULCI. Morgante Maggiore, XXVII., 189.

“The ship that long doth plough the angry main,
Must strike a rock or come to port at last.”

“Tardi, dico, gravi, e pesati denno essere i proponimenti; maturo, secreto, e cauto deve essere il consiglio; ma l'esecuzione bisogna che sia alata, veloce e presta.”

BRUNO. Spaccio della Bestia Trionfante, Dialogo I., 1.—(Saulino.)

“Deliberate, serious and well weighed should be our proposals; secret, cautious and matured our decision; but the execution must be prompt and rapid as flight of bird.”

“Tema di traboccar chiunque stà.” FOLENGO. Orlandino, III., 43.

“Let whoso standeth fear lest he should fall.”

“Temer dell' antico oste nuovo inganno.”

VITTORIA COLONNA. Rime Spirituali, LXXVI.

“From th' ancient foe aye fear some new deceit.”

“Temer si dee di sole quelle cose
Ch' hanno potenza di far altrui male :
Dell' altre no, che non son paurose.”

DANTE. Inferno, II., 88.

“Those things alone one ever ought to fear
That have the power to wreak on others ill ;
Naught else can ever cause of dread appear.”

—(J. I. Minchin.)

“Temiamo i vivi, insidiosi, avari,
Che gettan l'esca del sorriso, e poi
Succiano il sangue e il core;
Non i defunti che, pietosi e cari,
Vengon ne' sogni a favellar con noi
D' un' armonia migliore.”

PRATI. Canti per il Popolo.—“Viaggio Notturmo.”

“The living, greedy, treacherous, let us fear,
Who bait the hook for us with friendly smile,
Then drain our life-blood dry,
And not the dead, compassionate and dear,
Who come in dreams to talk with us awhile
Of nobler harmony.”

“Temo i miei falli; e se di lor non t'armi,
Il braccio ai tu di gagliardia sì scemo
Che non puoi senza me misero farmi.”

FILICAJA. Sonetto X.—“Alla Fortuna.”

“I fear my failings; and unless thou arm
Thy hand with these, so little power thou hast,
Without my aid thou canst not do me harm.”

“Tempo da travagliare è quanto è 'l giorno.”

PETRARCA. Sestina in Vita di M. Laura, I.

“'Tis time to work so long as it is day.”

“Tempo è da travagliar mentre il sol dura,
Ma nella notte ogni animale ha pace.”

TASSO. Gerusalemme Liberata, VI., 52.

“'Tis time to labour while the sun doth shine,
But in the night hath every creature peace.”

“Timidezza sul trono è ognor tiranna.”

CASTI. Gli Animali Parlanti, XV., 106.

“Timidity enthroned is aye tyrannical.”

“(E) tirannide, in ciò più ria di tanto,
Che a se di leggi fea mendace velo.”

ALFIERI. Agide, Act IV., Sc. III.—(Anfare.)

“And tyranny, but to be feared the more
When of the laws it makes a lying veil.”

“Tosto

Il fonte de le lagrime si secca;
Ma il fiume de la gioia abonda sempre.”

GUARINI. Il Pastor Fido, Act V., Sc. VIII.—(Corisca.)

“Swiftly the fountain of our tears runs dry,
But aye flows full the river of our joy.”

“(Che) tosto, o buona, o ria, che la fama esce
Fuor d'una bocca, in infinito cresce.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXXII., 32.

“For rumour, good or evil, that doth rise
From human lips, swift grows to monstrous size.”

“Tra i benefizi che ci ha fatto Iddio,
Non è mica il minor quello del vino.”

FORTIGUERRA. Ricciardetto, XVII., 1.

“’Mongst the good things by God on man bestowed,
By no means least I count the gift of wine.”

“Tra i sanguinosi tratti
Che a criticar le mie
Povere poesie
Hai mille volte fatti,
Il più sicura, il più crudel fu poi
Quello d’attribuirmi i versi suoi.”

BETTINELLI. Epigrammi, II.

“Oft from your bow the murderous arrow flies,
When you my humble lays would criticise,
But you aimed best, and smote most shrewdly when
You hinted that your verse was from my pen.”

“Trasumanar significar per verba
Non si potrà.”

DANTE. Paradiso, I., 70.

“By words cannot be told how one doth pass
From human thus.”—(J. I. Minchin.)

Il fumo, il foco, e la moglie malvasa.”

FOLINGO. Orlandino, V., 69.

“Three things will drive a man to leave his house:
A smoky chimney, fire and a scolding spouse.”

“Troppi taglian la pianta per i frutti,
E traggono lor pro dal mal di tutti.”

DALL’ONGARO. Stornelli Politici. “Gaetano Semenza,” II.

“Too many for the fruit cut down the tree,
And find their gain in world-wide misery.”

“Tropo e poco saper la vita attrista,
Che ’l troppo e poco egual dal mezzo dista.”

LORENZO DE’ MEDICI. Stanze, CXLIII.

“Excess and lack of knowledge sadden life,
For both are with the happy mean at strife.”

“Tropo sarebbe felice il mondo se la maggior parte degli uomini volessero o conoscere il migliore, o non appigliarsi al peggiore.”

VARCHI. L’Ercolano, Quesito VIII. (Opere, Milano, 1804, Vol. VII., p. 217.)

“The world would be too happy if the majority of mankind were willing either to recognise the better course, or to refrain from pursuing the worse.”

“ Tu non sai
 Che i morti al mondo non ritornan mai?
 Tornano al vaso i fiorellini miei,
 Tornan le stelle . . . tornera anche lei.”

PRATI. Canti per il Popolo.—“Tutto Ritorna.”

“ Will'st not learn
 That ne'er the dead can to this world return?
 Back in their vase my little flowers I see,
 The stars return, she too will come to me.”

“ Tu passasti il punto
 Al qual si traggon d'ogni parte i pesi.”

DANTE. Inferno, XXXIV., 110.

“ The centre thou didst clear,
 To which from all parts bodies gravitate.”—(J. I. Minchin.)

“ Tu proverai siccome sa di sale
 La pane altrui, e com' è dura calle
 Lo scendere e 'l salir per l'altrui scale.”

DANTE. Paradiso, XVII., 58.

“ Thyself will prove what bitter taste there bears
 The alien bread, and what a weary road
 Is climbing and descending alien stairs.”—(J. I. Minchin.)

“For one whole day it is not possible
To keep that hidden which one woman knows.”

“Ugualmente nella milizia e nello amore è necessario il segreto, la fede, e l'animo: sono i pericoli uguali, e il fine il più delle volte è simile. Il soldato muore in una fossa, lo amante muore disperato.”

MACCHIAVELLI. Clizia, Act I., Sc. II.—(Cleandro.)

“Alike in war and in love secrecy, fidelity and courage are required: the dangers are equal, and the end is generally similar. The soldier dies in a ditch, the lover dies in despair.”

“Umano ufficio è veramente il pianto,
E più proprio del uom forse che il riso,
Poichè appena vestito il fragil manto,
In aprir gli occhi al sol, ne bagna il viso.”

MARINI. L'Adone, XIX., 1.

“The appanage of man is tears and sighs,
Which, more than smiles, befit the human race;
When, in life's garb new clad, he opes his eyes
To gaze upon the sun, tears bathe his face.”

“(O che altro sia che la lieve aura mossa)

Una voce pennuta, un suon volante?

E vestito di penne in vivo fiato

Una piuma canora, un canto alato?” MARINI. L’Adone, VII., 35.

“What on its bosom bears the gentle breeze,
If not a plumèd voice, a flying sound,
Where in the little feathered ball we see
A living breath of wingèd melody?”

“Uniamoci, amiamoci!

L’unione e l’amore

Rivelano ai popoli

Le vie del Signore.”

MAMELI. Inno d’Italia.

“Let us love, be united!
For love and accord
Reveal to the nations
The way of the Lord.”

“Uno scherzo di natura,

Un uom senza architettura.” GUADAGNOLI. Il Cadetto Militare.

“He ’s but a sketch by Nature’s hand,
All without architecture planned.”

“Uno si smarrisce pensando troppo, come pensando poco.”

G. B. NICCOLINI. (Vannucci, Ricordi della Vita di G. B. Niccolini, Vol. I., p. 385.)

“We go astray from too much thought, as well as from too little.”

“Uom ch’ ha più possa, più dee obedire.”

URBICIANI. Sonetto. (Parnaso Italiano, Vol. II., p. 181.)

“Who hath most power, most strictly must obey.”

“Uom di paglia.”

PULCI. Morgante Maggiore, XXI., 142.

“A man of straw.”

“Usanza è di Natura, ove ella manchi

In una cosa, di supplir coll’ altra.”

FIRENZUOLA. Satira.—“A S. Pandolfo Pucci.”

“’Tis Nature’s use, when in one point she fails,
Aye in some other to make good the loss.”

“Usanza sola è quella

Che infinite pazzie copre e difende.”

NELLI. Satire, I., V.—“A Sansedonio.”

“Custom ’tis alone
That countless follies covers and defends.”

“Va per negletta via,
 Ognor l'util cercando,
 La calda fantasia,
 Che sol felice è quando
 L'utile unir può al vanto
 Di lusinghevol canto.”

PARINI. Odi.—“La Salubrità dell' Aria.”

“Along untrodden ways,
 Aye seeking what is good,
 The eager fancy strays,
 Nor e'er in happy mood,
 Till it the good convey
 In guise of tuneful lay.”

“Val più senza nessun' arte piacere,
 Che di piacere l'arte possedere.”

PANANTI. Epigrammi.—“L'Arte.”

“All artlessly to please is worth no less Than the whole art of pleasing to possess.”

“Vale più un pane et un aglio che si mangi al suo desco, che mille vivande ne lo altrui.”

ARETINO. Lo Ipocrito, Act II., Sc. X.—(Artico.)

“Better is a slice of bread and garlic eaten at one's own table, than a thousand dishes under another's roof.”

“(Che) vana è la ruina
 D'un nemico impotente, util l'acquisto
 D'un amico fedel.”

METASTASIO. Temistocle, Act I., Sc. IX.—(Temistocle.)

“Vain is it to o'erwhelm
 A powerless foe, and useful 'tis to gain
 A faithful friend.”

“Varianno i saggi
 A seconda de' casi i lor pensieri.”

METASTASIO. Didone Abbandonata, Act I., Sc. V.—(Didone.)

“As sails the wise do trim
 Their thoughts to meet the breeze of circumstance.”

“Ve ne sono molti che scrivono i beneficii nella polvere, e l'ingiurie nel marmo.”

STEFANO GUAZZO. Dialoghi Piacevoli. Del Prencipe de Valacchia.
 (Ed. Piacenza, 1587, p. 79.)

“There are many who write good deeds in the dust, and injuries on marble.”

“(E) vede poi, morendo in tempo breve,
 Ch'è ver, che chi più beve, manco beve.”

“And, dying in short space, he will confess
 That 'tis most true that who drinks more, drinks less.”

"Vederti, udirti, e non amarti—umana
Cosa non è."

PELLICO. Francesca da Rimini, Act I., Sc. V.—(Lanciotto.)

"To see thee, hear thee, and not love—'twere task Beyond man's power."

"Vedrai che imperio disunito posa
Sempre in falso; e che parte indarno spera
Salvar, chi tutto di salvar non osa."

FILICAJA. Sonetto LXXXIX. All' Italia, III.

"So shalt thou see that aye divided rule
Stands on false base, and vainly he doth hope
To keep a part, that dares not keep the whole."

"Veggio ch' una volubil ruota move
L'instabil Dea, che per vie lunghe, o corte,
Chi più lusinga, a maggior mal riserba."

VITTORIA COLONNA. Sonetto LXXXV.

"See how the fickle goddess doth impel
A rolling wheel, and soon or late reserves
The direst ill for him whom most she charms."

"Venerabile Impostura."
"Venerable Imposture."

PARINI. Odi.—"L'Impostura."

"Veramente il secol d'oro è questo,
Poichè sol vince l'oro e regna l'oro."

TASSO. Aminta, Act II., Sc. I.—(Satiro.)

"This is in very truth the golden age,
For gold alone doth conquer and doth reign."

"Veramente siam noi polvere, ed ombra;
Veramente la voglia è cieca, e 'ngorda;
Veramente fallace è la speranza."

PETRARCA. Sonetto in Morte di M. Laura, XXVI.

"In very truth we are but dust and shadow,
Greedy, in very truth, and blind our will;
In very truth fallacious all our hopes."

"Vergin di servo encomio
E di codardo oltraggio,
Sorge or commosso al subito
Sparir di tanto raggio;
E scoglie all' urna un cantico
Che forse non morrà."

MANZONI. Il Cinque Maggio.

"Unstained by slavish flattery,
And eke by coward contumely,
Moved by the sudden darkening
Of world-illuming ray,
Carve on his tomb an elegy,
To live, mayhap, for aye."

“ Vi sono in questo mondo

Tante pazzie da donna: attienti a quelle:
Degli uomini le pazzie lasciale agli uomini.”

CASTI. I Dormienti, Act I., Sc. XII.—(Sempronio.)

“ Full many in this world
Are woman's follies: be content with these,
And leave to men the follies of the man.”

“ Vi sono momenti nella vita che bastarebbero a pagare, a compensare
i tormenti d'un' eternità.”

MASSIMO D'AZEGLIO. I Miei Ricordi, Cap. II. (Ed. 1867,
Vol. I., p. 59.)

“ There are moments in life which would be sufficient to pay us, to compensate us for an eternity of torment.”

“ Vie più che 'ndarno da riva se parte
Perchè non torna tal qual ei si muove,
Chi pesca per lo vero e non ha l'arte.”

DANTE. Paradiso, XIII., 121.

“ Far worse than idly from the shore doth start,
Since he returns not such as erst he went,
Who fishes for the truth, and wants the art.”

—(J. I. Minchin.)

“ Vile del uomo è pregio
Non esser reo.”

PARINI. Odi.—“ La Magistratura.”

“ Small merit can he claim that is not guilty.”

“ (Ma) vince amor di padre ogni altro amore.”

FORTIGUERRA. Ricciardetto, XVIII., 64.

“ A father's love all other love outshines.”

“ Vincer non devea Roma altri che Roma.”

MARINI. Sonetti.—“ A Roma.”

“ To none but Rome 'twas given to conquer Rome.”

“ Vinse Annibal, e non seppe usar poi
Ben la vittoriosa sua ventura.”

PETRARCA. Sonetti sopra Vari Argomenti, XI.

“ Hannibal conquered, and then could not use
The happy chance that gave him victory.”

“ A cui non è noto come non basta vincere, ma conviene ancora sapere usar della vittoria?”

ALGAROTTI. Il Congresso di Citera.

“ Who does not know that it is not sufficient to conquer, but that it is needful also to know how to utilise the victory?”

“ Virtù è nel prence ciò che in altri è vizio.”

CASTI. Gli Animali Parlanti, XXII., 64.

“ What's vice in others is in princes virtue.”

“ (Che) virtù negli affanni più s'accende
Come l'oro nel foco più risplende.”

POLIZIANO. Stanze, II., 14.

“ For virtue in misfortune nobler shows,
As in the fire the gold more brightly glows.”

“ (Ma) virtù per se stessa ha l' ali corte.”

POLIZIANO. Stanze, II., 44.

“ But virtue by herself hath pinions short.”

“ Virtù viva sprezziam, lodiamo estinta.”

LEOPARDI. Nelle Nozze della Sorella Paolina.

“ Virtue we spurn when living, dead we praise.”

“ (Dirò solo ch' ei) visse e lasciò vivere.”

CASTI. Gli Animali Parlanti, VII., 38.

“ ‘ Live and let live ’ his rule ; no more I'll say.”

“ Vive e lascia vivere.”

GIUSTI. Il Papato di Prete Pero, St. V.

“ He lives and lets live.”

“ Viver non può senza pensier d'amore ;
E pensando anco alla sua donna muore.”

LORENZO DE' MEDICI. Stanze, CLIII.

“ Life without thought of love doth he despise,
And thinking ever of his lady, dies.”

“ Vo' fare un lascito
Nel testamento
D'andar tra cavoli
Senza il qui giace.
Lasciate il prossimo
Marcire in pace.”

GIUSTI. Il Mementomo.

“ I'll make it a sine
Qua non with my heirs,
That the grave where they lay me
No epitaph bears.
Sure our neighbour 's entitled
To moulder in peace.”

“ Voce dal sen fuggita
Poi richiamar non vale ;
Non si trattien lo strale
Quando dall' arco uscì.”

METASTASIO. Ipermestra, Act II., Sc. I.—(Adrasto.)

“ Vainly we seek to stay
Word that from lip doth fall ;
None may the shaft recall
That from the bow hath flown.”

“ Vogliono tutti gli ordini e le leggi
Che chi dà morte altrui, debba esser morto.”

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso, XXXVI., 33.

“ By every law and ordinance 'tis plain
That whoso dealeth death, himself shall die.”

“Voi che ad amar per grazia siete eletti,
Non vi dolete dunque di patire,
Perchè i martir d'amor son benedetti.”

GASPARA STAMPA. Rime. Sonetto XXIV.

“Ye who by grace are chosen from the rest
To love, mourn not your suffering, for they
Who know love's martyrdom are ever blest.”

“Voi dunque, se cercate aver la mente
Anzi l'estremo di queta giammai,
Seguite i pochi, e non la volgar gente.”

PETRARCA. Sonetto in Vita di M. Laura, LXVI.

“Ye then, if ye would keep a peaceful mind
Until the last day of your life be come,
Follow the few, and not the vulgar kind.”

“Voi fate
Come il medico saggio,
Che il vino buono proibisce altrui,
Ed il vino miglior cerca per lui.”

GOLDONI. Filosofia ed Amore, Act II., Sc. VIII.—(Esopo.)

“You do as does the wise physician,
By whom the drinking of good wine's forbidden,
While better wine is in his cellar hidden.”

“Voi siete bravo come un Paladino.”

TASSONI. La Secchia Rapita, II., 11.

“Brave are you as a Paladin.”

“(Che) volontà se non vuol non s'ammorza,
Ma fa come Natura face in foco
Se mille volte violenza il torza.”

DANTE. Paradiso, IV., 76.

“For will, unless it chooses, does not die,
But acts like Nature in the flame, although
A thousand times should force its purpose try.”

—(J. I. Minchin.)

“Volsi con quel pensier che reca speme
Di vero ben, che non si cangia mai,
Il bel lume cercar della virtute.”

GUIDICIONI. Sonetto LXIII.

“So turned I, with the thought that bringeth hope
Of that true good which never knoweth change,
To seek the light that shines in virtue's eyes.”

“Vuol fare il mestiere di molestar le femmine: il più pazzo, il più ladro, il più arrabbiato mestiere di questo mondo.”

MANZONI. I Promessi Sposi, Cap. XXIII.—(Don Abbondio.)

“He makes a profession of molesting women, the most foolish, the most cowardly, the most insensate profession in the world.”
