Billingsgate, The view and humours of.

Billingsgate, The Wonders of y^e Deep, often attempted and never perform'd but by Arnold Vanhaecken, 1736.

“ Where Great Belinus held his court of old,
Oysters are now obstreperously sold ;
Where bows were made to Ministers of State,
The populace now purchase ling and skate.

And where the courtier's smiling face portended
Deceit to those who thought they were befriended,
You may, if prudence is your cautious guide,
Procure the produce of the ocean's pride.

But ah ! beware, when you your board would grace,
To rouse the elocution of that place ;
For else, while bargaining for prawns and shrimps,
You'll hear yourself proclaimed a thousand pimps.

Consider likewise, when you ere resort
To this famed market that was once a court,
Our gracious Court, with a propitious hand,
Diffuses plenteous markets through the land.”

Billingsgate, A Cornish Hug, J. Nixon del.; published by Wells, 1781.

“A beau the other day made a monkey-like spring,
And at once overset all the fish of Sal Ling;
Enraged Sal pursued, and caught him so snug,
And gave for his frolick a rib-squeezing hug.”

Newgate, A view of.

"New-gate, the City Gaol for malefactors, and common Prison for Middlesex both for criminals and debtors. It is a strong and large building, and was first erected about the year 1100, at which time the Cathedral of St. Paul's was rebuilding and its Cæmtery greatly enlarged, which occasioned ye crossing and stopping up of ye passages in those parts, to remedy which inconvenience this New-gate was erected. The devouring flames in '66 quite consumed this gate, but since then it is rebuilt much more commodious and strong."

He also appointed masters, a chaplain, &c, under the government of the Worshipful Company of Mercers of London. The original building was destroyed by the great fire in 1666, and rebuilt soon after that event, in nearly the same form. In 1783 it was repaired and beautified, and in 1823 it was taken down for the purpose of erecting a splendid structure on its site.”

ST. JAMES'S PALACE (Exterior):

St. James's Palace, and part of the City of Westminster. Taken from the north side of Pall Mall, as they appeared about the year 1660.

"St. James's Palace was built on the site of the dissolved Hospital of St. James, by Henry VIII., in 1531, who enclosed and drained the Park. James I. bestowed it upon his son, Henry Prince of Wales, who resided in it until his death in 1612. It was improved by and furnished by Charles I.; and Charles II., on his restoration, caused the wall of the Park, towards Pall Mall, to be removed further back, the Canal and Aviary to be made, and the whole Park laid out and planted by the celebrated French gardener Le Notre."

Few share her smiles, while multitudes are lost :
All own her power, the lowly and the great ;
But to conduct the slighted orphan's fate,
See where the pious guardians publick care
Protects the babe and calms the mother's fear,
Inspir'd by bounty, raises blest retreats,
Which fortune dooms, but charity compleats."

Throng to thy altars and obey thy laws ;
From hence, fair Venus, spring those sweet supplies
To fill the mansions which to thee arise.
These mansions rais'd by patrons kind and great,
Where babes deserted find a safe retreat.
Tho' Frenchmen sneer ; their boasted first design,
Brittish benevolence shall far outshine."

Parsons, Humphrey, in a hunting dress, the heading to the Grub-street Journal of December 3d, 1730, No. 48, containing (inter alia), the character of a good lord mayor, by Bishop Atterbury.

The following anecdote will account for his being exhibited in a hunting dress : "One of the most considerable brewers of the last reign was Humphrey Parsons, esq., twice lord mayor ; this gentleman, upon a hunting party with Lewis XV., being mounted upon a spirited English courser, contrary to the politesse of the then French court, outstripped the rest of the company, and was first in at the death. His Majesty enquiring who that gentleman was, one of his adulating attendants indignantly answered that he was Un Chevalier de Malte. The king, however, entering into conversation with Mr. Parsons, asked the price of his horse, which the Chevalier, with true politeness, answered was beyond any price otherwise than His Majesty's acceptance. The horse was delivered, and ever afterwards Chevalier Parsons had the honour of serving the French nation with his extract of Malte, exclusively of any other."
