

[Leaflet advertising appearances by Sampson ("beats all records for strength") at the Royal Aquarium, London].

Publication/Creation

[1889?]

Persistent URL

<https://wellcomecollection.org/works/z7z2uzna>

License and attribution

This work has been identified as being free of known restrictions under copyright law, including all related and neighbouring rights and is being made available under the Creative Commons, Public Domain Mark.

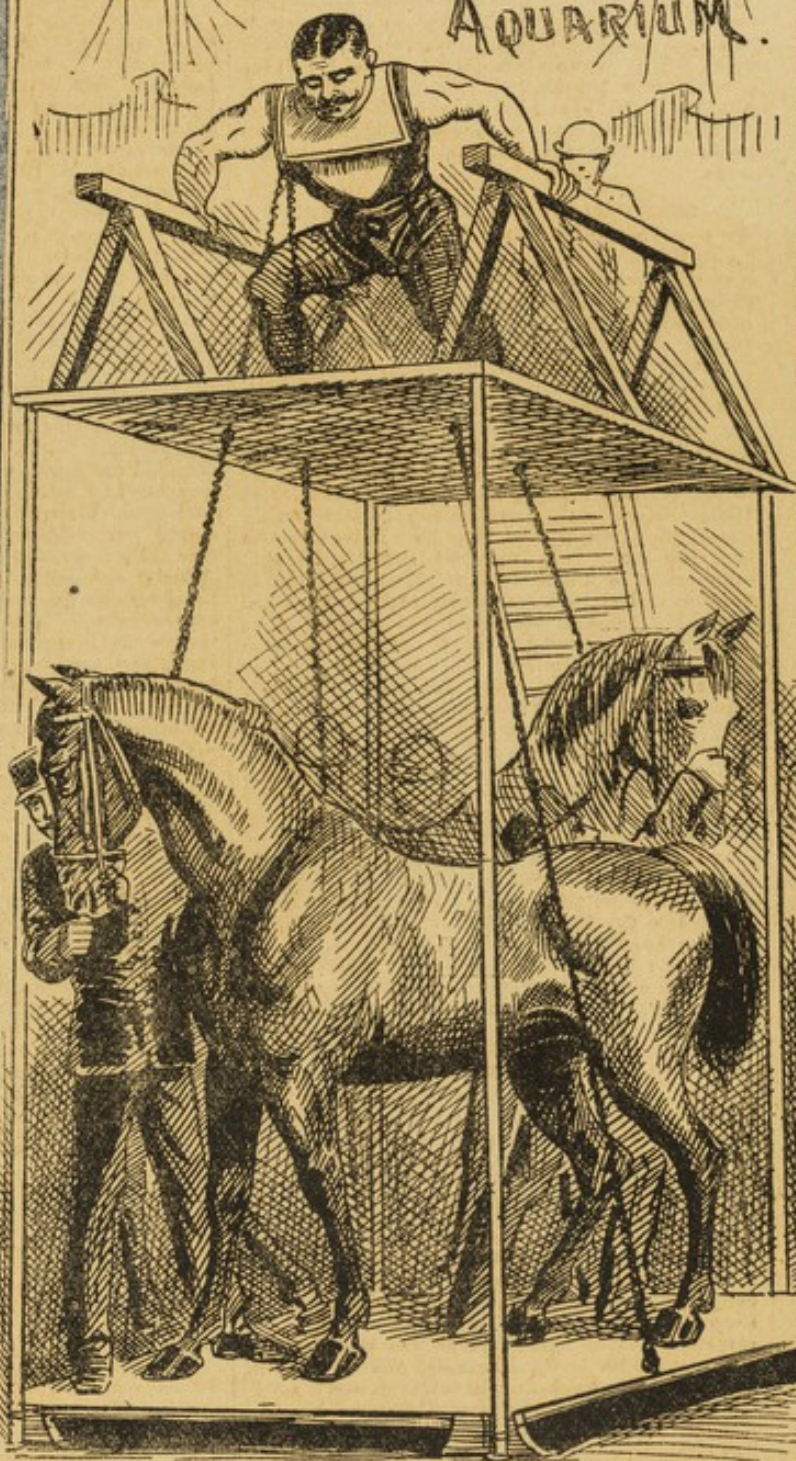

You can copy, modify, distribute and perform the work, even for commercial purposes, without asking permission.

Wellcome Collection
183 Euston Road
London NW1 2BE UK
T +44 (0)20 7611 8722
E library@wellcomecollection.org
<https://wellcomecollection.org>

SAMPSON

BEATS ALL RECORDS
FOR STRENGTH AT THE AQUARIUM.

KEEP THE HORSES QUIET! - READY!

... The inspector deposed that when the disorder was at its height and whilst he was endeavouring to reach Young, who was speaking, Dinney struck him on the hip and kicked at him. Cross-examined: Since the police had interfered with the meetings they had increased Sunday after Sunday. A large number of other police witnesses gave evidence, completing the case for the prosecution. Harding said he got locked up for "answering" a police-officer who pushed him face downwards in the road, and some of the other defendants made allegations of police violence, though in reply to the statutory caution they said that they would reserve their defence and call no witnesses at this court. Mr. Sheil said he would commit the prisoners to take their trial at the sessions. Mr. Thompson: Surely, sir, it is a most unusual proceeding to commit off-hand like this. Mr. Wentner: It is most desirable, for all the other Socialist prisoners will be tried at this session. Mr. Sheil said, if necessary for the defence of any of the prisoners, no doubt the judge would grant a postponement. The same bail was taken as in previous cases.

THE FEMALE PRISON BREAKER.

At the Westminster Police-court, Alice Rogier, the young Belgian woman, who was charged with stealing marked money and jewellery from Miss Helen Clarke, of Lowndes street, in whose service she was as lady's-maid, was brought up on remand to answer the further charge of escaping from the female prisoners' waiting-room at the court on the 14th November. Denis Hegan, thirty, butler, of Summersham, Maidenhead, was charged with aiding and abetting her escape. Abraham Lapper, a constable of the Berks Constabulary, said shortly before eleven on the night of Saturday, the 14th ult., he saw the prisoners in the carriage drive of Summersham House, Ray Park. Subsequently Hegan was apprehended in the house, when he said Rogier had gone in the direction of Maidenhead. Superintendent Dorrell said in consequence of a telegram he went on the night in question to Ray Park and saw Hegan, who was asked where the prisoner was who had escaped from London. He answered, "She is not here; she has gone back to Maidenhead. I left her at the gate, and she must have gone down the road." Witness searched, and found Rogier concealed in some shrubbery near Hegan's bedroom. Both the prisoners were then taken into custody, and conveyed to London. Mr. Sheil said the man did not actually assist Rogier to escape. Of course he might be charged with harbouring her after she had committed felony, but there was really no evidence that he knew she had done so. He thought it was a case of a weak-minded man and a strong-minded woman, and he should not send the man for trial. Detective-sergeant Maguire said before the flight to Maidenhead an officer told Hegan the charge of felony against the woman. Mr. Sheil: Well, I don't think a jury would convict him. He acted very imprudently, and is much to blame. Mr. H. L. Lilley, solicitor, who appeared for Hegan, said he had witnesses who would prove that he did his utmost to dissuade the girl from going to Maidenhead, and that it was much against his wish that she went. She insisted on it. Mr. Sheil discharged the male prisoner, and further remanded the young woman in custody for an additional charge of forgery to be preferred against her.

A SINGULAR application for a summons for an assault was made in the Second Court of Police on Tuesday. A woman named Louisa Carney explained that she lived at the back of 19, Lower Brearley-street, and early on Sunday morning she was aroused from her sleep by her infant crying. To her unutterable surprise she found that a strange man was one side of her, while her husband occupied the other. The latter promptly awakened the intruder, and a somewhat desperate encounter ensued between the two men, during which the woman says she was injured. The stranger is said to be William Scott, who once lived in the neighbourhood, and the explanation is that he sought a night's shelter at Carney's house. A summons was granted.

know, came up and he then kissed her twice until he kissed her when he took Harris help it. It's a man's address whatever. I that he had been given a "touch" of the sun allowed to handle the for it. He could not the prisoner he should matter being a "pair" fourteen days.

A. J.

FREDERICK WALTERS at the Anchor Lodging smith, and William Longford, Middlesex London Police-court, ing an Indian silk to umbrella, the property who resided in Tal. The articles were pro she had missed proper prisoners were in her 11th, Baylis being the who was with her a Walters said he was but he was on the 11th there. The prosecutor had some also. The (the prisoners): I did considerable length. in the Broadway on him, saying, "Willie, d Oh, no, I beg your pardon way, but I did not go in with him. I never take ginger beer. Prisoner Cow. Prosecutrix: No. Asked if she did not house for him, she said supposed she wrote it they went to another Bush; and rode together house, and had a bottle denied going into pub but said she might have riding in a cab, but denied. She said she did not of you remember sitting dining-room? The pro on the sofa with him, a of a justice of the peace that way. She denied suffered from indigestion unfastening her dress. the prosecutrix said she prisoner to pledge, nor shop. Mr. Haynes said cutrix, and asked permission the way in which questions. The prisoner charged, the magistrate could be placed on the ev

THE SHOOTING OF A MASON, a widow, who is attempting to murder George steamer Mongolian, of the the Liverpool stipendiary prisoner and the purser said weeks ago, when the vessel Ireland, on the 14th ult., the purser and fired two shots of the shots took effect, from Stewart's back in the a patient. No complaint official report of the outr. Detective-inspector Irvine chester over a week ago, and admitted to bail.

£20.—TOBACCONISTS' traded Guide, 24. How to on Tobaccoists' Outfitting Co. (L NORR.—A Pamphlet on various Henry Myers. Established 18