THIS most astonishing Part of the Human Species, hath already been inspected by great Numbers of the Nobility Gentry, by several of the Royal Society, and by many Gentlemen and Ladies, who are fond of Natural Curiosity, who allow him to be of a stupendous Heighth; his Form affords a pleasing surprize, and his admirable Symetry and Proportion engages the Attention; he is possessed of a great deal of Vivacity and Spirit, and gives the inquisitive Mind an agreeable Entertainment. He infinitely excels the Sweedish Giant in Heighth, in Symetry of Body, and regularity of Features, and is much higher than Maximillian Miller, the Saxon: in thort, he is the most extraordinary Curiosity ever known, or ever heard of in History; and the Curious in all Countries where he has been shewn, pronounce him to be the finest Display of Human Nature they ever saw.
