

This is to acquaint the curious in general, that there is to be seen, from two in the afternoon, till nine in the evening, without loss of time : at the Crown in High-Street, Canterbury, the surprising Warwickshire young lady, Miss Hawtin, from Coventry ...

Publication/Creation

[1776?]

Persistent URL

<https://wellcomecollection.org/works/hnc9pwdh>

License and attribution

This work has been identified as being free of known restrictions under copyright law, including all related and neighbouring rights and is being made available under the Creative Commons, Public Domain Mark.

You can copy, modify, distribute and perform the work, even for commercial purposes, without asking permission.

Wellcome Collection
183 Euston Road
London NW1 2BE UK
T +44 (0)20 7611 8722
E library@wellcomecollection.org
<https://wellcomecollection.org>

This is to acquaint the Curious in General,
That there is to be seen, from Two in the Afternoon, till Nine in the Evening, without loss of Time.

At the CROWN in HIGH-STREET, CANTERBURY,
The SURPRISING

WARWICKSHIRE YOUNG LADY,
Miss Hawtin, from Coventry.

SHE is perfectly agreeable in her countenance, of a fine presence, and amazingly ready and sensible in her discourse. This little artist, or phenomenon of human nature, by the help of her toes and feet only, is capable of many curious performances. She threads a needle, sews, picks pins or needles out of a pin-cushion, and sticks them in again; uses the scissars dexterously, in cutting out devices in paper; picks up money, puts it into her pocket, and takes it out again; feeds herself, drinks out of a glass with ease, and exhibits fundry other fancies too tedious to mention. Several eminent Physicians, Surgeons, and Men Midwives have accurately examined this young Lady; particularly Francis de Valangin, M. D. and Member of the Royal College of Physicians; Thomas Umfreville, M. D.—Mr. Horsley, Surgeon and Man-Midwife; as also that investigator of nature, Thomas Eisler, Gent. who all agree that she is NATURÆ LUSUS QUAM MAXIME MIRABILIS, or A MOST WONDERFUL SPORT OF NATURE, and a convincing proof that the Divine Being can supply any defects he permits in the animal formation; and unanimously recommend this human rarity (as remarkable for its ripe understanding, as its make) to the serious attention and observation of the Public in general, and the Anatomists and Virtuosi in particular.

Any of the Nobility, Gentry, &c. willing to be satisfied of the merits of this young Lady, by giving an hour's notice will be waited on.

Ladies and Gentlemen are left to their own generosity; children and servants threepence each.—Miss HAWTIN makes a curious blue and white Ink.

* * She begs leave to solicit the Company of Ladies and Gentlemen early, as her stay in this town will be short.

N. B. FANS mounted and mended in the neatest manner, by the person who attends on Miss HAWTIN. Likewise buys old Fan-sticks.

The Brother of the above young Lady, who has had the Honour of performing before his Majesty, and most of the Nobility in this kingdom, will perform

HEAVY and LIGHT BALANCES.

Time and place will be given by Public Notice.

Verfes Extempore, by a celebrated Virtuoso,

Written on seeing the above astonishing and curious Wonder of Nature, Jan. 1, 1774.

Instead of having either hands or arms,	Than hundreds with their finger's e'er could do.
Nature supply'd her with ten thousand charms.	She feeds herself, can drink whene'er she please,
The little artist threads her needle well,	And every action does with so much ease,
And does all wonders of the age excel.	That hundreds flock to see her every day,
She with her toes exhibits more to view,	And every one goes satisfied away.

* * Miss HAWTIN is just fourteen years of age, she being born Jan. 9, 1762.

Swanton