MALLARD

To the Medical Profession

the choice of an iron is important but only

FERRODIC

tablets... provide the oral iron which IS taken, gives a good haemoglobin response, and has the lowest toxicity.

FERRODIC Tablets

- are well utilized to give a good haemoglobin response
- are better tolerated than ferrous sulphate or ferrous gluconate
- are pleasant to take and so gain the patient's co-operation
- contain the safest oral iron

INDICATIONS

Treatment or prevention of iron-deficiency anaemia, e.g. in pregnancy, menorrhagia, restricted diets (especially in the elderly), and chronic blood loss. Ferrodic is also suitable for iron-deficiency anaemia in children.

DOSAGE

FERRODIC Tablets are specially prepared to eliminate the astringent taste of iron and are so palatable that they may be sucked or chewed if the patient prefers.

Adults: Two tablets, twice a day after meals.

Children: One tablet daily after a meal; increase if necessary to two tablets daily.

PRESENTATION

FERRODIC Tablets are available in bottles of 100.

Basic NHS cost of 100 tablets is 4/6d.

FERRODIC TABLETS each contain:

Ferrous iron (as ferrous carbonate) 50 mg

Ascorbic acid 12.5 mg
