CONSTABLE (1776-1837)

"Salisbury Cathedral and Archdeacon Fisher's House (sketch)."

Constable had a lifelong friendship with the Fisher family, in particular with Archdeacon (later Bishop) Fisher's son, John. He first visited Salisbury at their invitation in the autumn of 1811. The beauty of the cathedral and its surroundings impressed him greatly and he made many sketches of the cathedral precincts, of which this one is an example. He also produced several finished paintings, which proved very popular in London on his return.

TRIPTAFEN-DA

"... superior to amitriptyline alone in the treatment of depression."

Brit. J. Psychiat., (1967) 113, 201

"... significantly more effective than imipramine 25 mg in relieving most of the key symptoms of the M.R.C. rating scale."

Brit. J. Psychiat., (1967) 115, 693

Triptafen-DA combines the established antidepressant effect of amitriptyline hydrochloride with the tranquillising action of perphenazine. This combination has been shown to be more effective than either drug used alone. Triptafen-DA simplifies the treatment of depression and other psychoneurotic conditions, especially when anxiety is present.
