CHEAPSIDE AND BOW CHURCH. The view is taken from Poultry, looking west up Cheapside, with the tower and spire of St. Mary le Bow—"Bow Church"—dominating the scene. In the right foreground are the Atlas Insurance Office, designed by Hopper in 1836, and the Mercers' Hall, the facade of which was later removed by the demolition contractor, John Mowlem, to Swanage in Dorset when the Hall was rebuilt in the 1880's. The street of Bucklersbury enters Cheapside behind the shops on the left.
