If you're going to fuck make sure you have your rubberstuffer pack to hand and remove all pets and ex-boyfriends from the area. Getting down to the business is really up to you and your partner(s) and maybe you'll have a truly orgasmic time without fucking - like we've said before, fucking is not compulsory. If you don't want to fuck, say so. But, if you're going to fuck or get fucked decide who's going to do what first, (it often helps). Tear open the lube tube and place some lube on a finger or two and start to gently work it up his arse. Make sure you spread it up and around. The more relaxed his arsehole, the more pleasure he'll get and the less likely your rubber is to split. When he just can't wait no more for your dick, get that rubber out of its wrapper. A torn rubber is a useless rubber, so be careful with your finger nails and teeth and spiked cock rings, etc. Squeeze the teat end of the rubber with your fingers to get rid of the air, before you roll it down the shaft. This'll make room for the spunk. The harder your dick, the easier this is to do - and it can be more fun if you get him to do it for you. If you find you're dick goes soft at this point - work up some steam and put it on later. Try practising alone - wanking with a rubber - developing your technique and getting into the idea. Rubbers do make a difference. You can't feel as much, they can be awkward to use and get in the way of fucking. But used properly every time with plenty of waterbased lube, rubbers significantly reduce the risk of you getting gonorrhoea, syphilis, herpes, hepatitis, NSU and HIV. Once you've done your stuff, hold the rubber at the base of your dick when disengaging. You don't want to lose it up their arse do you?! Don't leave the rubber lying around for pets or children to find as there is a risk of suffocation. Tie a knot in it to stop anything dribbling out. Putting it down the toilet can be very boring as it bobs defiantly to the surface after the seventh flush. Wrap it up in some tissue or loo roll and put in a rubbish bin. Stick on the kettle and/or throw him out, unless you want more. See you next time, love rubberstuffers.

rubberstuffers are pissed off at not being able to get cheap condoms and lube in pubs and clubs 10 years into the HIV/AIDS epidemic. We have independently produced this pack at the lowest price possible so that this situation will change with the support of you and your local.

rubberstuffers: we're in nobody's pocket but yours.
