Taking the time to talk about how you feel

Looking for love?

There are times when most gay men get a bit depressed about not having met the right guy or not having had sex for what seems like ages. This can make us all feel a little bit desperate so it can sometimes be a bit tempting to have unprotected sex with boyfriends to try and hang on to them. This just doesn't work. Someone will have a lot more respect for you if you show that you care about yourself and even more about them. A few minutes of pleasure could be outweighed by a lot of worrying. If you are getting depressed about your sex life, and the sex you end up having, you could talk this over with a health adviser at Axis or a counsellor at an agency such as Red Admiral Project T: 0171 835 1495. There are also several helplines available. Try calling London Lesbian and Gay Switchboard T: 0171 837 7324 or The Terrence Higgins Trust Helpline T: 0171 242 1010 between 12 noon and 10pm.
