The Terrence Higgins Trust

When Terrence Higgins died with AIDS in 1982, some of his friends were horrified at the lack of relevant support available. They resolved to do something to ensure that people whose lives were affected by HIV and AIDS should be given all the care they need. Established in 1983, The Terrence Higgins Trust is the oldest UK charity working in the field of HIV and AIDS.

It coordinates the efforts of over 1,500 people, the vast majority of whom are volunteers.

From health education for safer sex to prevent the spread of the HIV virus to providing practical, legal and welfare care and counselling support for people living with AIDS - and their families and friends - the Trust is involved in all aspects of the problem.

The Trust also campaigns on behalf of all those whose lives are affected.

When you buy from this leaflet you will be helping the Trust to answer the ever increasing demands on its services.

If you possibly can, please top up your order with a donation. There is a need waiting for every extra pound.
