AIDS: A CHALLENGE IN EDUCATION

WEDNESDAY 29 NOVEMBER 1989

at

Logan Hall
Institute of Education
Bedford Way, London

There is an urgent need for professionals and volunteers to be trained to cope with the impact of HIV infection, especially with the new demands on schools, teachers and parents. This symposium will: provide the latest information on HIV, and AIDS education; give guidance concerning the care of individuals, particularly children, who are infected with HIV; dispel the myths and cut through the confusion surrounding the disease; deal with HIV transmission and practical procedures in schools; consider the issues raised by the new National Curriculum.

This event is of immediate relevance to: Biologists, Teachers, Social Workers, Educationalists, Nurses, Counsellors, Health and Education Administrators and Volunteer Workers.

There will also be a trade fair exhibiting the latest educational resources available.

All delegates will be provided with a free pack of AIDS information/teaching materials.
