Swiss Institute of Public Health and Health Services

INVITATION

The organizing committee takes pleasure in inviting you to participate in the International Conference ASSESSING AIDS PREVENTION, which will be held in Montreux, Switzerland, from October 29 to November 1, 1990.

This conference will bring together researchers and public health practitioners involved in the development, the implementation and especially the assessment of AIDS prevention among different populations and sub-populations throughout the world.

The conference will address issues and methods related to the assessment of prevention campaigns and strategies, and the social impact of different facets of the epidemic. It will consist of invited speakers, workshops and submitted presentations (oral and poster).

PROGRAMME CONTENT

- assessing campaigns addressed to general populations and to specific groups such as male homosexuals, drug injectors, male and female prostitutes and their clients, migrants, travellers, etc.
- assessment tools for prevention campaigns, uses of direct and indirect measures
- current issues in interpretation of results
- dissemination, uses and impact of assessment results
- specific problems of assessment in developing countries
- methodological issues in assessment

Language: English
