PREFACE.

THE Transactions of the Royal Society of London have now been for more than a century and a half the Repository of Medical Papers, many of which possess considerable interest, whether considered with respect to the extraordinary facts or discoveries related in them, or with relation to the state of Medicine at the time in which they were written. The multiplicity of these papers, and the extent of the work, which has now exceeded one hundred volumes, render the facts, insulated as they are, almost useless, and the examination of such papers a task of no small difficulty.

The General Index, printed in 1780, however valuable in other respects, has become defective from the increased bulk of the Transactions; and besides containing no connected view of this subject, is, perhaps, too general in the distribution of the articles. A Selection of these Papers has, indeed, been published by Dr. Mihles, under the title of MEDICAL ESSAYS; but as this collection does not extend beyond the forty-second volume, it necessarily includes but a very inconsiderable part of them.

The following sheets originally drawn up for the editor's private use, not so much with the design of forming an index to these papers, as of collecting and arranging all the material facts contained in them, will be found, it is believed, in a great degree to supply this deficiency; not only as they present a compendious abstract of the medical matter of the Transactions, but exhibit at the same time something like an historical sketch of the state and progress of Medicine in this country, during a period of its greatest advancement.

The First Part of the Index contains a list of the titles of all the papers, arranged in the order in which they appear in the Transactions, accompanied with short remarks, printed in italics, explanatory of such matters as are either entirely omitted in the title, or are expressed only in general terms.

In the Alphabetical Part of the Index the references have been made as concise, but as copious, as possible, and include some facts not enumerated in the preceding list.

p. 184.

On the mode of breeding of the oviviparous shark, and on the æration of blood in different classes of animals (with PLATES),
Mr. E. Home, p. 205.

On cystic oxide, a new species of urinary calculus, Dr. W. H. Wollaston, p. 223.

Observations and experiments on pus, Dr. Pearson, p. 294.

ANNO 1811. VOL. 101.

Croonian lecture (influence of the brain on the action of the heart, &c.), Mr. Brodie, p. 36.

Case of nervous affection cured by the pressure of the carotids, &c. Dr. Parry, p. 89.

On the non-existence of sugar in the blood of persons labouring under diabetes mellitus, Dr. W. H. Wollaston, with Dr. Marcel's reply, p. 96.

Experiments to prove that fluids pass directly from the stomach to the circulation of the blood, &c. without going through the thoracic duct, Mr. E. Home, p. 165.

Experiments, &c. on the different modes in which death is produced by certain vegetable poisons, Mr. Brodie, p. 178, and Vol. 102, p. 205, 378.

Account of an appendix to the small intestines of birds, Mr. Cartwright, p. 257.

Observations and experiments on vision, Dr. Wells, p. 378.

ANNO 1812. VOL. 102.

Account of some peculiarities in the structure of the organ of hearing in the balena mysticetus of Linnæus (with PLATES), Mr. E. Home, p. 83.

Chemical researches on the blood, and some other animal fluids, Mr. Brande, p. 90.

On the solvent glands in birds (with PLATES), Mr. E. Home, p. 394.

ANNO 1813. VOL. 103.

Observations relative to the near and distant sight of different persons, Mr. Ware, p. 31, and appendix, Sir C. Blagden, p. 110.

Description of the solvent glands and gizzards of the ardea argola, the casuarius emu, and the long-legged casowary from New South Wales (with PLATES), Sir E. Home, Bart. p. 77.

Experiments to ascertain the coagulating power of the secretion of the gastric glands, Sir E. Home, Bart. p. 96.

On the tusks of the narwhale (with a PLATE), Sir E. Home, Bart. p. 126.

On the formation of fat in the intestines of living animals, Sir E. Home, Bart. p. 146.

Account of some organic remains found near Brentford, Middlesex (with PLATES,) Mr. Trimmer, p. 131.

On the colouring matter of the black bronchial glands, and of the black spots of the lungs, Dr. Pearson, p. 159.

ANNO 1814.

- An account of a family having hands and feet with supernumerary fingers and toes, A. Carlisle, p. 94.
- Experiments and observations on the influence of the nerves of the 8th pair, on the secretions of the stomach, B. C. Brodie, p. 102.
- On a fossil human skeleton from Guadaloupe, C. Konig, p. 107.
- Observations on the functions of the brain, Sir E. Home, p. 469.
- Some account of the fossil remains of an animal more nearly allied to fishes than any other classes of animals, Sir E. Home, p. 571.
- On the influence of the nerves upon the action of the arteries, Sir E. Home, p. 583.
- An account of some experiments on arterial heat, J. Davy, p. 590.

ANNO 1815.

- Experiments made with a view to ascertain the principle on which the action of the heart depends, and the relation which subsists between that organ and the nervous system, A. P. Wilson, M. D. p. 65.
- Experiments to ascertain the influence of the spinal marrow on the action of the heart in fishes, W. Clift, p. 91.
- On the structure of the organs of respiration in animals, which appear to hold an intermediate place between those of the class pisces and the class vermes, and in two genera of the last mentioned class, Sir E. Home, p. 256.

On the mode of generation of the lamprey and myxine, Sir E. Home, p. 265.

Some additional experiments and observations on the relation which subsists between the nervous and sanguiferous systems, A. P. Wilson, M. D. p. 424.

ANNO 1816.

Some observations and experiments made on the torpedo of the Cape of Good Hope in the year 1812, I. T. Todd, p. 120.

Some account of the feet of those animals whose progressive motion can be carried on in opposition to gravity, Sir E. Home, p. 149.

Experiments and observations to prove that the beneficial effects of many medicines are produced through the medium of the circulating blood, more particularly that of the colchicum autumnale upon the gout, Sir E. Home, p. 257, 262.

On the manufacture of the sulphate of magnesia at Monte della Guardia, near Geneva, Dr. Holland, p. 294.

On the formation of fat in the intestines of the tadpole, and on the use of the yelk in the formation of the embryo in the egg, Sir E. Home, p. 301.

On the structure of the crystalline lens in fishes and quadrupeds, as ascertained by its action on polarised light, Dr. Brewster, p. 311.

Some further account of the fossil remains of an animal of which a description was given to the society in 1814, Sir E. Home, p. 318.

Further observations on the feet of animals whose progressive motion can be carried on against gravity, Sir E. Home, p. 322.

ANNO 1817.

- An account of the circulation of the blood in the class vermes, &c., Sir E. Home, p. 1.
- On the effects of galvanism in restoring the due action of the lungs, A. P. Wilson, M. D. p. 22.
- An account of some experiments on the torpedo electricus at La Rochella, I. T. Todd, p. 32.
- An account of some fossil remains of the Rhinoceros, discovered by Mr. Whitby, in a cavern inclosed in the limestone rock at Plymouth, Sir E. Home, p. 176.
- On the passage of the ovum from the ovarium to the uterus in women, Sir E. Home, p. 252.
- Some further observations on the use of colchicum autumnale in gout, Sir E. Home, p. 262.
- The distinguishing characters between the ova of the sepia, and those of the vermes testacea that live in water, explained, Sir E. Home, p. 297.
- Some account of the nests of the Java swallow, and of the glands that secrete the mucus of which they are composed, Sir E. Home, p. 332.
- Observations on the hirudo, and hirudo stagnalis, &c. Dr. Johnson, p. 339.
- Observations on the gastric glands of the human stomach, and its contraction, Sir E. Home, p. 347.

ANNO 1817.

An account of the circulation of the blood in the class arthropods.

See, Sir E. Home, p. 3. and also the account of the circulation of the blood in the class arthropods.

On the effects of galvanism in restoring the true action of the lungs, A. P. Wilson, M. D. p. 22.

An account of some experiments on the torpedo electricus in the Stockholm, A. T. Ford, p. 22.

An account of some fossil remains of the Rhinoceros, discovered by Mr. W. Smith, in a cavern in the island of Jersey, p. 176.

On the passage of the ovum from the ovary to the uterus in women, Sir E. Home, p. 252.

Some further observations on the use of colchicum autumnale in gout, Sir E. Home, p. 262.

The distinguishing characters between the ova of the sepiæ, and those of the various testacea that live in water, explained. Sir E. Home, p. 297.

Some account of the nests of the Java swallow, and of the glands that secrete the mucus of which they are composed. Sir E. Home, p. 332.

Observations on the hirudo, and hirudo stagnalis, &c. D. Johnson, p. 339.

Observations on the gastric glands of the human stomach, and the contraction, Sir E. Home, p. 347.
