PREFACE.

SINCE the publication of the Rev. Herbert Haines' Manual of Monumental Brasses in 1861, many works dealing with the subject generally have been published, but no attempt has been made to bring up to date the valuable list he made and printed in Part II of that work. The want of such a list, not only as a work of general reference, but also to those more especially interested in the subject, has long been felt. This new list is based upon that of Haines, but has been much enlarged, and many sixteenth and seventeenth century inscriptions added as they are valuable for the genealogical information given by them. A complete index of names and places is also added. Every effort has been made to bring the list up to date, but the present position of many of the brasses cannot be guaranteed, as owing to restorations, erecting of war memorials, etc., brasses are being constantly shifted or buried under organs or wooden platforms. Theft is also rife, small details such as shields and groups of children frequently disappear. Whenever pieces of a brass become loose they should immediately be fastened down again; if this cannot be done they should at all events be placed under lock and key until they can be. A word may also be said about the over cleaning of brass plates; patent cleaners in a few years cause more destruction than centuries of wear. Whenever it is necessary to clean a brass the use of an old paraffin rag is quite sufficient.

My thanks are due to many friends for much assistance in various counties, especially to Mr. H. O. Clark for his complete revision of the Norfolk list, and to Mr. A. B. Connor for Somersetshire. To Mr. Ralph Griffin, Secretary of the Society of Antiquaries, I must record my most hearty thanks not only for visiting a large number of out of the way places and recording results, but more especially for the patient labour he has bestowed on reading and criticising the proofs, even including the index.

Words or dates enclosed in rectangular brackets contain information which cannot be ascertained from the present state of the brass, but which has been supplied from authentic sources, generally wills or inquisitions.

The dates in Clarendon type are those of the engraving of the brasses, usually the date of death.

Figures less than 18 inches in length are described as small, above 42 inches as large.

When nothing is said about the inscription, but names and dates are given, it may be presumed the inscription is in existence.

The titles of works in which illustrations of brasses are to be found are printed in italics.

MINSTER, ISLE OF SHEPPEY. I. Man in arm. of the Northwood family, in cyclas with sh. on thigh, c. 1330; crossed legs and lion at feet a 17th cent. restoration and palimp., cut out of the lower portion of the eff. of a lady of English workmanship, c. 1380, now fastened down. II. Lady, c. 1335, with plaited hair, large gorget, sleeveless cote-hardie, and curious hood, head on cushion. Cf. the fig. of Marguerite de Beaujeu, 1336, in Montfaucon's "Monuments de la Monarchie Françoise", II, p. 290, fig. 4. The two figures, although now relaid in one stone on C. floor, belonged to two separate monuments. They are usually assigned to Sir John de Northwood who died in 1320, and his w.

Joan, dau. of Barth. de Badlesmere, who also died in 1320. The knight may possibly be Sir John, but the style of armour seems to be a little later. The lady may be Elizth., 2nd w. of Roger de Northwood. She was dau. of Sir John Segrave, and widow of Rich. Foliot, and died 11 Dec. 1335, see her inscr. in "Arch. Cant." II, 17, and also see XXXVI, 43. Both effs. show traces of foreign influence and probably came from a French workshop. At some time, probably when the crossed legs were added, the eff. of the knight was reduced by about 5 inches to make it correspond with the lady, but in 1881 the piece was renewed by Mr. J. G. Waller and the eff. restored to its original size. Ashdown, Armour, 145 (upper hf. of man), and Costume, 105 (lady); *Arch. Page of Shorne, gent., 1550, who at the time of his death had 5 sons and 2 daus., Thos., Elizth., Wm., Geo., Lionell, John, and Agnes, by Eleanor his w., then living, formerly in N. This was palimp. and made up of 2 pieces of an English br. somewhat earlier in date. The larger is a portion of a rect. pl. in the upper part of which was a figure of Our Lord in Majesty seated on a rainbow with a sword pointing towards his head. The background representing the sky powdered with stars and estoiles and a crescent moon. In the foreground on a mound or grassy hill is a large portion of a recumbent figure in shroud with part of a scroll above, and below is a sh. apparently of the Staple of Calais. In the right hand lower corner is the kng. fig. of a lady with scroll from hands. Above the lady's head appears the hand of another fig., and in the top corner a portion of a sh., the 1st quarter of which is Hall, with a quartering of Mortimer. The smaller piece bears a portion of a rhyming inscr. in Eng. vv. to John Hall and his w. Kath., who were the parents of Edw. Hall, the chronicler, who died in 1547. By will, proved in 1529, John Hall desired to be buried in the hospital of St. Thos. of Acres, London, and leaves bequests to his w. Kath. and his sons Wm. and Edw. His w. died in 1557, having outlived both her sons. There is no doubt the plate was spoil from the dissolved hospital of St.

Thos. which was granted to the Mercer's Co. in 1541. The larger piece is engr. in Gent. Mag., 1801, i, 497, and M.B.S. Trans., IV, 155, but both inaccurate in detail.

Oxfordshire The inscriptions to Jane dau. of Sir Hugh Annesly and wife of Wm. Lynde, c. 1476 and that to Rich. Samborne 1506 both described as in Maple Durham church in the proceedings of the Oxford Univ. Brass-rubbing Soc. p. 294 have recently been found, 1927.

This letter appeared in the Sunday Times' Oct. 16. 1926. The brass had been picked up at an auction at Minehead. I proved that it must have come from St. Mary's Church, Southampton and now (Sept. 1927) it is, I believe, about to be restored to that church.

BURIAL PLATE OF 1601.

A discoloured brass plate bearing the burial inscription of a person called Averin Wallop, who died in 1601, was bought at a sale of antique furniture by a Minehead man, who seeks to clear up the mystery of who the lady was and where she was buried.

He asks for any possible information concerning it, as he wishes to restore the plate to its proper position.

The inscription, which is barely decipherable, reads:—

"Here lyeth the bodye of Averin Wallop, the wife of Willm Wallop, Esqre., whose bodye here lyeth. She lyved in the feare of God a religious vertuous gentlewoman, and she dyed in the true faith of Jesus Christ, Thursdays, IXth of Aprill, in the yeare of Our Lord 1601 and in the XLII. yeare of the Queene Elizabeth."

About Sept. 1927 there came to light at St. Mary's Warminster a fragment of a Brass which was identified as part of the inscription of a memorial to Hugford recorded by Dugdale.
