INTRODUCTION

This book contains facts accumulated over sixty years in answer to enquiries: "Where is the ——— Collection?" It is not exhaustive; that were too much to expect and almost an impossibility, but it contains a vast deal of information now brought together and should be of service to enquirers. The original MS has been on my table at the British Museum (Natural History) and of daily use to the Staff or others and in its present form is made widely available to all who need it.

The late Dr Walter Horn published in 1926 a similar work dealing with all the collections of Insects noted by him, and Woodward and Sherborn in their Catalogue of British Fossil Vertebrata, 1890, gave a sketch in their Introduction of many British collections which had passed under their observation. Remaining notes have been collected from various sources and persons too numerous to mention, as it is necessary to keep down the bulk of such a volume for handy reference.

A few abbreviations are needful:

Ath. = The Athenaeum, London, 1828- .

B.M. with very few exceptions = Brit. Mus. (Nat. Hist.).

Gent. Mag. = Gentleman's Magazine, London, 1731- .

Mus. J. = The Museums Journal, 1901- .

Nature = Nature, London. 1869- .

N. & Q. = Notes and Queries, London, 1849- .

All of these can be found in any library. Other references have been quoted as fully as necessary.

Calvert, F. (Lord Baltimore). See Calvert, John.

Calvert, John. There were two J.C.'s, one a silver miner of Vasi Rupi. The other was a mining engineer whose life was published in The Mining Journal about 1905. He was an unscrupulous black-guard. He seduced two of the Sowerby girls, one of whom I knew as an elderly woman who eked out a poor living in Drury Lane by selling shells. I found her later on in Chelsea and learned that 'Jack' allowed her a small pension. He was in London in 1905 scheming to involve H.P. Woodward in some rotten mining plans but a cable to Westralia frustrated him. He was some connection of Lord Baltimore and said to have had his colls. His coll. offered the B.M. in 1938 and included the W.D. Saull coll. which he appropriated from the Metropolitan Inst., Cleveland Street, Fitzroy Square, seven van loads. Of this coll. the B.M. bought a few in 1866, some of which were labelled by James Sowerby, but it is doubtful if any were types or figured. The bulk was stored for over twenty years in a house from which cobwebs and dirt had to be swept away (Star, 23 Aug. 1938) and was acquired later, I believe by H.E.H. Smedley for Tottenham Castle Mus. J.C. had Sales, see Nature, Oct. 1897, p. cxcv; Ath. Oct. 1897, 543 and 1898, 82. A catal. of the coll. in 1905 (?) is in the B.M. For other particulars see Phil. Mag. n.s. x. (57), Sept. 1831, 237; Bull. Soc. Géol. France, VII. 1835 (1836), 49; The Geologist, 1860, p. 3 of May wrapper.
