detailed Account of the Building Expenditure, and Return showing the amount of Charity done by the Institution were read,

And the whole Report for the year 1860, with the Statement of Accounts and Statistical Tables, was ordered to be prepared and printed, under the direction of the Committee of Finance.

IT WAS RESOLVED UNANIMOUSLY,

1. That the Thanks of the Court be presented to the Chairman and Vice-Chairman of the Committee of Management for the very valuable services they have rendered to the Institution during the year.

2. That the Thanks of this Court be given to the Noblemen and Gentlemen composing the Committee of Management for their valuable services during the past year.

Esq., for his good offices as Treasurer during the past year.

4. That the Thanks of this Court be given to John Mercer, Esq., and Francis Underwood, Esq., for their good offices as Auditors during the past year.

5. That the Thanks of this Court be given to the Finance Committee for their good offices during the past year.

REPORT.

In presenting the Annual Report of the Northampton General Lunatic Asylum, the Committee of Management have great pleasure in saying that they have every reason to be satisfied with the conduct of the Institution by Dr. Wing and the other Officers of the House.

Their Reports, which are printed at length, will supply all the particulars of the treatment, medical and moral, of the Patients, and those Reports are so worthy of the attention of all interested in the Institution, that it would be doing injustice to them to make any extracts from them.

There have been large and very useful alterations and additions to the Buildings during the last year, and the accounts will shew that they have been effected at a very reasonable cost.

The Male Ward No. 3, which has been frequently objected to by the Commissioners in Lunacy, has been entirely remodelled, and converted into a spacious and airy day-room for pauper patients. The kitchen has been enlarged, and store-rooms have been added, which were much wanted. Convenient workshops have also been fitted up, and are now in constant use. The yards for exercise have been enlarged, and relieved, as much as possible, from the appearance of places of confinement.

Great gratitude has been expressed by the discharged patients for the kind treatment they have received in the Asylum.

The Committee have this year to congratulate the Benefactors of the Institution that a Chapel is now about to be built. For this much-desired object funds have been generously contributed during the last two or three years, which now amount to £2,000 and upwards, to which is to be added a per centage upon the income derived from the private patients, voted in January, 1858, for this purpose.

This sum has been considered sufficient to justify the commencement of the work. A very beautiful design has been obtained from G. G. Scott, Esq., and a contract for the work has been taken by Mr. C. Ireson, sen., for £2,750. The Chapel is to be completed by the 24th June, 1862.

It is feared that an impression has gone abroad that this Institution does not administer the amount of charity that many of the Subscribers would desire to be supplied to that class of private patients whose friends are hardly able to pay the sum of £1. 1s. a-week for their maintenance, which is the lowest rate of payment for private patients.

The Committee, therefore, desire to call public attention to a Table, appended to the Report at page 19, which will shew that, by the reduction of this charge in the cases of thirty-eight of the poorer class of private patients, a sum of between £600 and £700 has been this year remitted, or given in charity. Any case of distress that is brought before the Committee receives careful (and it is hoped it will be allowed upon a study of this Table) an indulgent consideration.

The following Legacies were received during the year 1860 :—

From Mrs. M. A. Worley	£300
„ Mr. Wm. Lovell	£45

MEDICAL SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT.

TO THE DIRECTORS OF THE GENERAL LUNATIC ASYLUM, NORTHAMPTON.

MY LORDS AND GENTLEMEN.

The period has now arrived at which, according to custom, it becomes my duty to lay before you a Report of the state of this Institution during the past year, with a narrative of the more important circumstances that have occurred within that time, for eleven months of which it has been under my superintendence, having been for the first month under that of my predecessor.

On the 1st of January, 1860, there were on the books of the Asylum 321 patients, of whom 163 were males and 158 females; 88 being private patients, viz., 43 males and 45 females; and 233 paupers, i.e., 120 males and 113 females. Of the whole number on the books, 216 were actually resident in the house, and 5 were absent on trial. During the year 98 were admitted, viz., 45 males and 53 females; of these 20 were private patients, 10 males and 10 females; and 78 were paupers, 35 males and 43 females. 51 were discharged, 29 males and 22 females; 16 being private patients, 10 males and 6 females; and 35 paupers, 19 males and 16 females. 42 recovered, i.e., 9 private patients, 6 males and 3 females; and 33 paupers, 18 males and 15 females; of the remaining 9, 8 were relieved and 1 not improved.

26 have died, of whom 13 were males and 13 females; 8 being private patients, viz., 4 of each sex; and 18 pauper patients, which were also equally divided between the sexes, 9 males and 9 females.

On the 31st of December, 1861, there remained on the books of the Asylum 342 patients; of these 84 were private patients, 39 males and 45 females; and 258 paupers, 127 males and 131 females. 240 were actually resident in the Asylum, and two paupers, one male and one female, were absent on trial. The daily average number on the books during the year was 329. The admissions have been eight less in number than in the preceding year. The recoveries are somewhat above the average, as shown in the returns of the various Asylums in England and Wales. Both might have been apparently increased, were it not that, whenever practicable, the plan has been adopted of sending out a patient on trial for a limited period, in preference to an immediate and unconditional discharge. There are many who, before quitting the Asylum, appear perfectly well, but unable to bear again mixing with the world, shortly relapse and return to the Institution. If this re-admission takes place within the time for which the leave of absence has been granted, it appears only in the returns as a continuous case; but had a complete discharge been granted, it would have been registered in the first place as a recovery, and in the second as a fresh admission, thus fictitiously raising both the recoveries and admissions, and also in appearance diminishing the length of time a case is under treatment. Nevertheless, I believe the course adopted to be the proper one, and that it is better for the number of recoveries to make a smaller figure, than that many so discharged as recovered should again be returned to the Asylum, in a few weeks after leaving it, relapsed into a state as bad, if not worse, than before. The mortality has been very moderate, and decidedly below the average, having been a fraction under eight per cent., viz., 7.90 on the daily average number, and a fraction over six per cent., or 6.20 on the whole number under treatment during the year; but, moderate as this rate of mortality is, it has been materially increased beyond what it ought to have been by the reprehensible practice of bringing patients in a dying or exhausted state, delaying their removal from home until all hope is past, or, should life be prolonged, materially diminishing the prospect of recovery, for it is a truth which cannot be too widely spread, or too forcibly impressed, that the prospect of recovery in cases of insanity is in the inverse ratio of the duration of the disease. Of the 26 deaths, one occurred within 24 hours, two within 48 hours, two within a week, and three within a month, of their admission. One death was a suicide, a female pauper patient having, when in the laundry, thrown herself into a copper of boiling water. This was the only death in the year which, in the opinion of the Coroner, rendered an inquest necessary. The coppers, which were quite exposed, have since been enclosed by a wooden framework, and, but for this precaution, I should have had to report a second accident, suggested to the mind of the patient doubtless by the catastrophe just related, one of the female patients, in a fit of passion, having attempted to push a laundry-maid into a copper, who saved herself by clinging to the framework of the wood enclosure before referred to. But one other death calls for special notice, that of a male patient, who died from internal hæmorrhage, caused by an aneurism of the abdominal aorta; the remaining deaths were all from ordinary causes of mortality—exhaustion from cerebral disease, paralysis, epilepsy, pulmonary consumption, &c.

One birth occurred during the year, a married pauper patient having been safely delivered of a male child on the 9th of August, the mother having been at that time an inmate of the Asylum for about two months. She took but little notice of the offspring, and when nearly three months old it was transferred to the Towcester Union Workhouse, where it subsequently died.

A serious accident occurred to a female pauper patient in the month of June, who, in attempting to escape through the window of her sleeping-room in the night, by means of the sheets tied together to form a rope, fell into the yard outside, and fractured her thigh. She was much shaken by the fall, and was for some time in a precarious state, but ultimately made a good recovery, and is as well now as she was before the occurrence. Two other fractures of minor importance have taken place during the year amongst the female patients, one having fallen in an epileptic fit and broken her collar bone; the other slipped in the airing ground in the frosty weather, and fractured her arm—both have done well. No accident of importance took place on the male side, the most serious being that of an epileptic, who, in a sudden frenzy in the night, arose and broke a large number of panes of glass, and somewhat severely cut his hand; an abscess formed, and he suffered much, but eventually did well. A male patient succeeded in making his escape, and reached the residence of a distant relative, where he remained for upwards of a week, and was then safely returned to the Asylum.

The Religious Services have been well-attended throughout the year, but I will not enter upon these subjects, as you will be fully informed respecting them by the Chaplain in his own Report. I cannot, however, but express my great satisfaction at the prospect that the Institution will, without further delay, be provided with a Chapel suited to its requirements, having become daily more and more convinced of its necessity, and the inconvenience of the present arrangements. A few of the patients have been permitted to attend at various Churches and Chapels in Northampton and its neighbourhood—a privilege highly valued by them. In accordance with the new rule of the Institution, the attendants and servants have every evening been assembled by myself for family prayer and the reading of a portion of Scripture.

The usual Statistical Tables have been prepared; they require but little comment from me. They exhibit, however, a considerable increase in the number of patients employed, an increase amounting to a daily average of more than fifty. The number of articles made in the female department, and the quantity of work done there, is highly creditable to the Matron, and those who have acted under her directions, while equal commendation is due to the Steward for the activity that has been displayed in the tailors' and shoemakers' shops, the results of which have been far in advance of the preceding year. In alluding to this subject, I cannot omit to call attention to the advantages arising from the new workshops, which are cheerful and commodious, and well adapted to their purposes. The removal of the shoemakers from the wards has taken away a constant source of apprehension and danger, as well as a centre of uncleanness and want of order. The new shop for mattress making and hair picking has also relieved the wards of much dirt and untidiness. The out-door labour has increased in proportion with the branches of industry above mentioned, and if I am not able to congratulate the Directors on the production of a flourishing balance-sheet of the farm, owing to an altered valuation of the stock, and the loss of the root crops of 1859 by frost, and other matters named in the abstract of the accounts, I at least have the satisfaction of stating that it has in no way fallen short of our expectations as a remedial means in affording beneficial and healthful employment to many of the patients, who have worked with a good will and a result highly satisfactory.

Amongst the tables laid before you, is a new one, prepared by direction of the Committee of Management, setting forth the amount of the charitable operations of this Institution. When we consider the awful affliction of insanity upon the middle classes of small means, the educated and sensitive man of various professions, whose means of existence depend entirely upon personal exertions and health of body and mind, the poor governess, the struggling tradesman, the skilful artist, and numerous others, it is scarcely possible to overrate the value of an institution that will step in to save them from what they cannot but feel to be the degradation of pauperism, and enable them to procure comforts and provisions available only to those of wealth and fortune. It is understood to be the desire of our legislators to encourage the erection of Lunatic Hospitals for the poorer of the middle classes, and though they shrink from an endowment of such institutions from the public funds, I think, as an Act of Parliament is about to be introduced by the Secretary of State for the Home Department to amend the lunacy laws, a clause might be introduced by some member taking an interest in these matters, exempting from taxation, both local and general, all Asylums for the Insane not carried on for any individual benefit or profit in the shape of a commercial speculation. Such exemption from taxation would, I feel sure, operate as a very powerful encouragement both to the institutions already established with these laudable objects, and to the foundation of others, for which there is ample room.

Since the commencement of the present year, numerous structural improvements and alterations have been made in this establishment. Early in the year the new offices and store-rooms of the Secretary and Steward were brought into use. They have contributed much to the comfort and convenience of that officer, and have materially facilitated the business of the departments under his immediate direction. Over these rooms and offices are a number of sleeping apartments, which have been fitted up for male pauper patients, enabling us to give up a number of rooms in the top centre of the house to female patients, thus affording considerable relief to the over-crowded sleeping accommodation for that sex. By the alterations and additions in Ward Male 3, that portion of the building has been converted from the most cheerless and gloomy to one of the most commodious and comfortable wards in the Asylum; the new day-room especially is admirably adapted to its purpose. We have also gained a new associated dormitory capable of containing 15 beds, and when the whole of the alterations now in progress are completed, which they will be in a very few weeks, an additional space for about 35 beds beyond the number at present occupied will have been provided for on the male side of the establishment, ample to supply our wants for some time to come. By these means we are now able to separate completely the private from the pauper patients, at least as far as I think it desirable to separate them; they meet, of course, at Divine service; they see each other in the grounds, and at their daily out-door occupations, and occasionally at their recreations, and it seems to me these meetings are not unattended with advantages. It has a greater resemblance to life out of doors to the ordinary population of our villages and towns than if one class only were to be seen. It has been objected to mixed Asylums for the Insane that private patients feel themselves degraded by being placed under the same roof with paupers. This I believe to be purely a theoretical objection, for I have never witnessed it in practice, due precedence being always granted to the private patient sufficient to mark the distinction in rank and position, while the private patient enjoys the advantages afforded by the resources of a large establishment, and which a large establishment alone could afford. It must not be supposed that the pauper inmates of a Lunatic Asylum are all of the class met with in our Union Workhouses. Some of them are persons of some education and refinement; many of them have left comfortable homes, having become pauperised solely by their affliction, an affliction necessitating expenses altogether beyond the means of themselves or of their friends, and compelling them, for the first time, to seek the public aid. Is it no comfort to these persons, calculated to uphold some self-respect, to feel that the institution of which they are inmates is not exclusively of a pauper character. As regards their previous standing in society and education, there is no marked line of demarcation between the private and pauper patients; they gradually merge the one into the other the same as in society at large. I have seen much of, and been resident in, Asylums exclusively for paupers and for private patients, as well as those containing both classes, and my experience leads me to the conclusion that there is an animation and cheerfulness, if not an efficiency, in the mixed Asylums not met with in the exclusively pauper or private Institutions. The large chartered Lunatic Asylums of Scotland rank as high in public and official estimation as any in the world, and they contain a mixed population of all classes.

Among the other improvements carried out during the past year should be enumerated the erection of three new handsome marble baths, and the abolition of the custom hitherto prevailing of making one apartment serve the threefold purpose of bath-room, scullery and pantry. The construction of open fire-places in the Galleries 1 and 4 on the female side have a very cheerful appearance, and each of them serve as a centre, around which the patients group themselves. The covering the stone flooring in No. 4 on both the male and female side of the house has given a much more furnished appearance, and an air of comfort to these wards which they did not before possess, and the quietude it produces by destroying the noise of footsteps is another great addition to comfort. Much has been done in painting and colouring, tending greatly to improve appearances, and these processes are still in progress, much yet remaining to be done.

In the general treatment of the patients I have endeavoured to grant them as much liberty as is consistent with safety, and to render their detention and separation from their families and friends as little irksome as possible. With these views some few have had the privilege of walking out unattended on parole, a privilege for the abuse of which I had to recall but in two instances. Others have been taken out daily (weather permitting) in large and small parties for extended walks in the neighbourhood, and occasional drives into the surrounding country. Three pic-nic parties, on a large scale, took place in the summer months, and afforded great gratification to the patients who attended them. The first was a walking excursion to Danes Camp; the second took place at Harlestone Heath; and the third, by the kind permission of the noble owner, in the Park at Castle Ashby. On the two last occasions, the parties were conveyed in vans, omnibuses and flies, the journeys to and fro being no small part of the day's enjoyment. Appropriate refreshments were provided, and they were amused by music, dancing and out-door games. The whole passed off without any unpleasant circumstances. A few of the gentlemen went to the Review of Volunteers in Althorp Park. Other patients have been taken to concerts and musical performances in Northampton. The visiting of patients by their friends has been much encouraged, and many have been very attentive to their afflicted relatives. Others, I regret to say, take but little notice of them, and some appear to have wholly forgotten them. When the patients have been in a proper state, and the friends have wished, they have been allowed in many instances to take them out to spend a few hours with them; this has been more especially permitted to those whose friends reside in the town; they have invariably brought them back punctually to appointment. The general recreation and amusement of the patients have not been neglected within the limits of the Asylum premises. Out-door games have been encouraged, and I anticipate, when the fine weather returns, much healthful enjoyment for them from the completion of the new Bowling-green, which is very pretty, and well adapted for its purpose. Foot balls and skittles have also been provided. Within the house, in addition to the former provision of bagatelle, chess, cards, &c., the billiard table has been repaired and is now in good order. Two meetings take place weekly for recreation, viz., on Monday and Thursday evenings, from seven to nine o'clock. On these occasions, which are invariably presided over by the officers of the establishment, the amusements are varied, and consist of music, singing and dancing, exhibitions of the magic lantern, lectures, readings from Shakespeare, Dickens, and other authors. In the latter we are much indebted to the services of the Chaplain, who has not only read on several occasions himself, but has also introduced several friends. We are beholden to him in this way for a reading from Shakespeare, a lecture on the earth and its movements, and an admirable exhibition of conjuring or sleight of hand. We have also had another exhibition of this description by a professional illusionist, Herr Dobler, which afforded much pleasure and amusement to a large assembly of patients. These entertainments are enlivened by a brass band of 12 or 14 performers, which, through the liberality of the committee in providing instruments, we have been enabled to organize amongst the attendants and servants of the Asylum; much credit is due to them for the zeal and energy they have shown in this cause, which, in so short a time, has brought them to a state of great proficiency. They are fortunate in having for their leader a really superior musician, J. McCrohan, head attendant of Male 3 Ward, and formerly of the band of the 17th Infantry. He deserves great praise for the way in which he has got them on, and the pains he has taken in the matter. This band renders us independent of extraneous sources for the music we require. On New Year's Eve an entertainment took place in the new room of No. 3 Male Ward, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion. Refreshments were served out during the evening, and the amusements consisted chiefly of music, dancing and singing; but perhaps the most notable features in this entertainment were two large handsome Christmas trees, hung with presents for the patients, previously selected with care for those to whom it was intended to present them, having regard to their known individual feelings, habits and wishes. The expense of these trees was defrayed by subscription, and the idea originated with the Chaplain, by whose personal exertions, aided by his friends, it was carried out to a highly-successful issue. Upwards of a hundred patients were present on this occasion, and they were allowed, such as had friends within reach, to invite them, and it was one of the most pleasing incidents of the evening to see husband and wife, parent and child, brother and sister, cousins and friends, enjoying themselves together, for the time forgetful of the severe affliction with which they were visited. More than one of the Directors of the Institution, a number of the clergy, medical men, and other respectable inhabitants of the town and neighbourhood were present, and cheered us by the sanction their presence gave to our proceedings. Many objects of interest have, during the year, been introduced into the establishment, for the purpose of pleasing and attracting the attention of the patients. I refer especially to pictures, birds, gold and silver fish, guinea pigs, white, black and spotted mice, fancy poultry, &c. I have also specially directed my attention to cleanliness, order, regularity and discipline, all of which exert material influence upon the disordered mind. None but those accustomed to witness them can fully appreciate the evil effects upon the insane of a want of punctuality, disorder in arrangements, untidiness, broken furniture, and numberless other matters, an attention to which is indispensable to comfort and to make life agreeable. All the efforts made for the recovery and amelioration of the patients before detailed will be found to be directed to three general purposes:—1st, to promote a sound state of bodily health, by placing the patient under such circumstances as are most favourable to the correct performance of the functions of the various organs of the body, such as appropriate diet, good clothing and lodging, pure air, exercise, and judicious medical treatment. The first step to a sound mind is a sound body. 2nd, comfort and ease, both of body and mind, by the removal, as far as possible, of all sources of discomfort and irritation. In pursuing this object we may sometimes appear to lean to the luxurious, rather than the needful; but, in the case of the insane, that which with others might appear a superfluity and extravagance, is, in truth, but a powerful remedial means. 3rd, to divert the mind from a morbid train of thought and feeling, and prevent it preying upon itself by directing it into new and more healthful channels, by rousing the torpid, stimulating the listless and apathetic, soothing and comforting the timid, nervous and apprehensive, and by calming and tranquilizing the restless and excited; in short, by the employment of the various means ranged under the general heading of moral treatment. That we have not been unsuccessful in our efforts may be gathered from the fact, as recorded in the books of the Asylum, that whereas in the year 1859 it was found requisite to resort to seclusion (that is, placing a patient in solitary confinement in a room) in 148 instances, in the year 1860 only 31 such instances occurred, and the great proportion of those in the early months of the year. It would appear to be almost superfluous to add that mechanical restraint is never employed.

In conclusion, I would wish to make my grateful acknowledgements to the Committee of Management for the uniform courtesy and kindness I have ever received from them, and my sincere thanks for the consideration they have always given to such suggestions as I have felt it proper to make to them, and the assistance they have invariably accorded to me in carrying on the duties of my office. I would also desire to thank the various officers associated with me in my work for the aid they have rendered me, and the attention they have paid to my wishes and directions. It is a pleasure to me also to be able to speak generally in terms of commendation of the conduct of the attendants, nurses and servants, who, with a few exceptions, have discharged their responsible, onerous, and often trying duties in a manner highly satisfactory to me, and with a zeal and ability most creditable to themselves.

I have the honour to remain,

My Lords and Gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

EDWIN WING, M.D.,

Medical Superintendent.

CHAPLAIN'S REPORT.

I have the honor of laying before you my Fourth Annual Report. The past year, so far as my ministerial duties are concerned, has not been distinguished by any incidents of an unusual character, if I may be allowed to except the birth of a male infant, the child of a married pauper patient, which, in consequence of severe indisposition, received at my hands the sacred rite of baptism.

In the absence of events startling for their novelty or interest, it is a cause of much thankfulness that nothing has transpired to detract from the usual cheerful tone of these Reports.

The attendance at the religious services has been regular and good, and the demeanour of those that frequent them has, with very few exceptions, been most orderly and devout, thereby inducing the conviction that "our labour is not in vain in the Lord."

The average number of patients attending Divine Service on Sundays has been 164, viz., 81 males and 83 females. The average attendance at Daily Prayers has been 84, viz., 41 males and 43 females. 145 patients were present at Divine Service on Good Friday, viz., 71 males and 74 females; and 172 on Christmas-day, viz., 90 males and 82 females. The Holy Communion has been administered on the first Sunday in every month, and also on Christmas-day; the average number of communicants, not including officers or attendants, has been 17, viz., 5 males and 12 females.

I have on one occasion privately administered the Holy Communion to a sick patient, who expressed a desire to avail herself of that necessary and all-sustaining means of grace; she is now removed from us by the hand of death.

The Asylum Library, with that of Messrs. Mudie, has furnished 798 volumes of books for the perusal of the patients, all of which have been circulated by me on the same principle as public libraries. These books, together with a liberal supply of newspapers and periodicals, have afforded no small amount of amusement and gratification to those of our afflicted brethren who are separated by the hand of God from the world and its happiest associations. At the commencement of the year we received a welcome and handsome present of fifty volumes of books of historical and general Literature, including four vols. of "Knight's Pictorial History of England," from Miss Cust; and six copies, beautifully illustrated, of "Dr. Watts's Divine and Moral Songs," and six copies of a small publication entitled "The Word of God," from a nobleman, a member of the Committee.

Gifts of Books of an interesting and instructive character, especially such as are adapted for the reading of the poor and uneducated classes, are much to be valued, inasmuch as they supply a deficiency still felt in our permanent library, and afford in an agreeable form a healthy recreation and solace to the disordered mind.

A copy of "Hints on Nursing," by Miss Florence Nightingale, has been placed in each of the male and female wards, for the use of the attendants and nurses.

The usual Lectures, accompanied with prayer and reading of the Holy Scriptures, have been given by me on both sides of the House on all fitting opportunities, and I have the pleasure of again testifying that the good results arising from these special ministerial labours are most encouraging; many patients have personally expressed to me their deep gratitude for the comfort and instruction they have derived from them.

The Female Pauper School has been conducted by me, as heretofore, and my best thanks are due to the Matron for her valuable assistance at the same.

A Singing Class is held every Tuesday evening, and conducted by the Matron and myself, when we practise the hymns and chaunts for the ensuing week. This class is attended by such of the patients and nurses that have a taste for singing, and an inclination to join with us on these occasions.

The unwearied exertions to provide recreations and amusements for the inmates have been very successful, and attended, as far as I am able to observe, with the best results. My opinion is chiefly formed from the many expressions of gratification and delight as to these festive reunions that reach my ears from those patients who have participated in them.

With the desire to co-operate with your excellent Superintendent in this and all other works for the benefit of the patients, I have, during the past year, given to large and attentive audiences three drawing-room entertainments. The two first consisted of reading aloud the "Christmas Carol," by Charles Dickens; and the third of reading selections from the Poems of John Clare, the "Northamptonshire Poet," on which occasion a lady, the wife of a clergyman in the town, kindly presided at the pianoforte, and sung at intervals various songs, one of which was composed by poor Clare himself. The Rev. H. L. Elliot, curate of St. Giles's, also gave a most interesting lecture on "The Movements of the Earth," illustrated by the beautiful diagrams presented to the Asylum by the Rev. J.

D. Watson, vicar of Guilsborough. The Rev. C. E. Donne, late curate of St. Edmund's, on another occasion gave some very clever readings from Shakespeare.

I cannot conclude without offering my sincere congratulations to the Chapel Committee and the Directors in general on the success that has attended the appeal to the county on behalf of the fund for erecting a House of God in connection with this noble Institution. I feel assured that this good work, when completed, will bring down upon all who have taken a part therein the blessing of Almighty God, and cause many, both in this House and out of it, hereafter to say—"Yea, for the sake of the House of the Lord our God, I will seek to do thee good."

I am, Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

HALFORD R. BURDETT, M.A., Chaplain.

Abington-street, Northampton, Feb. 27th, 1861.

APPLICATION FOR ADMISSION.

Prior to sending a Patient into the Lunatic Asylum, it is very desirable that a communication should be made to the Medical Superintendent, who will furnish the Applicant with the Forms required under the Act of Parliament.

Patients chargeable to Parishes in the County of Northampton are admissible on the production of proper Forms, provided there be room in the House, which should be previously ascertained.

TERMS OF ADMISSION.

The Terms for Board, Lodging, Washing, Medical Advice, Medicines, and all other necessaries, Wine and Clothing excepted, are from £1. 1s. to £3. 3s. per week, according to the accommodation desired, and must be paid quarterly in advance. In special cases, requiring extraordinary attendance and accommodation, terms higher than the above may be proposed by the Superintendent, subject to the approval of the Committee, at their next Meeting, or the Committee may, in instances where they think proper, reduce the above rates.

For any further particulars, apply, either personally or by letter, to the Superintendent.

As the Friends of Patients may sometimes find it difficult to procure a proper person to conduct them to the Asylum, an experienced Attendant will, on application, be provided.
