REPORT.

THE continued and progressive improvements which have been effected during the past year renders this annual report of the Asylum satisfactory both as to its condition and arrangements. These alterations and improvements can hardly be considered as of secondary importance: tending so immediately as they do to the comfort and influencing the health of the patients, which has been generally good. The men have been employed daily through-out the year in the various departments of agricultural labour, and in the shops of the tailors, shoe-makers, and carpenters. women have been active in all their customary engagements, and they are now energetically employed in decorating their rooms and adorning their galleries for the approaching festivities of Christmas: and there are four who will present themselves to the Committee to-day (with their garlands about them) for discharge.

Nothing has taken place throughout the year to disturb the uniform harmony and order of the House. The condition of the patients on admission has shewn some slight improvement, in the disposition, throughout the county, to obey repeated and urgent exhortations to transfer them before their bodily unfitness is so glaring as to afford no human probability of recovery. The state of syncope in which many were brought has tended as usual to swell the list of mortality. Out of nineteen patients sent with bodily disease, six did not live beyond fourteen days after admission, and the remaining thirteen had their lives prolonged by the utmost care and nourishing diet, to two months at the longest.

The report of to-day is as follows :-

Patients in the House, 31st Dece				Males. 138 51	Females 201 59	Total 339 110

Application was made in June last by one of the largest Unions in the county, having about forty patients in the Asylum, for the removal of twelve as harmless inmates, to be provided for in the Union House: in conformity with the 8th clause of the Lunatic Asylums Amendment Act. Some jealous anxiety has existed as to the practical adoption of this clause. It sanctions, with the combined consent of the Committee of Visitors and the Medical Officer, the removal under some required fulfilments, of certain patients suffering under chronic insanity. Now it is not without considerable fear in the event of more extended compliance with this clause, that the patients whose daily registered actions shew that they are inoffensive and harmless in the Asylum, may be very much the reverse when they are out of it. The probable association with other inmates of the Union House, and the more than probable diminution of their indulgences and comforts, may lead to their return, when the latter end may be worse with them than the beginning. The accommodation required by law to be made for them in the Union House, and the demands on their condition, comforts, &c. by the Medical Officer, from whose guardianship they will be taken, has most probably prevented the adoption of the mode of removal to any extent at present: and the Clerk of a large Board of Guardians in a distant county has sought further information from the Poor Law Commissioners, on the plea that the 8th clause of the above Act is inoperative.

Such harrowing recitals have been brought before the public within the last few weeks, of idiots confined in private houses, at the mercy of brothers and nearest relatives, and those acting out of indifference or ignorance rather than malice and intentional cruelty, that one never can look upon any discharged patient without some anxiety as to his future welfare, and endeavour to secure the comfort of those that remain. It is the wish of the Superintendent to press upon the minds of all the inmates of the County Asylum, the reasonableness of adopting the more than mere sentimental recommendation of high authority to those who were ascending the up-hills of life, that they may with no less satisfaction echo Earl Russell's quotation, "Rest and be thankful."

It will be seen by reference to the Report of the Commissioners in Lunacy who visited the Asylum on the 13th of November last, that they refer very emphatically to two requirements, more land for cultivation and the introduction of gas. The first would indeed be very desirable, if it could be obtained: it would secure the double advantage of health and profit. The additional comfort, economy, and safety gained by the introduction of gas may be more forcibly perceived by recognising the fact that the Suffolk Asylum is perhaps the only one in England, where its substitution by oil and candles is thought to be sufficient: they are very dirty, very disagreeable, and inefficient substitutes.

The sanitary value of increased light is very great: gloominess of mind is the unavoidable result of gloominess of atmosphere. The health and restoration of a patient may depend on the night's rest as immediately as upon the day's occupation, and the night's rest may be more intimately associated than we can calculate with the cheerfulness and alacrity, or the reverse, of retiring to bed. If economy and cleanliness did not enter into the consideration, the mere element of evening cheerfulness as promoted by gas, would be no secondary element in our hygiene. It is next in importance to the arrangement of windows for the plentiful admission of sunlight. Patients have always been observed to take great interest in gas; and to feel strongly and sensitively the superiority of the home of restoration, in this respect, to the home where disorders commenced amidst privations and trials, typified by one dim heavy struggle of a penny flame, as much as by empty plates and tattered garments.

It may be well to remark upon the suggestion of the Commissioners on the addition or enlargement of the Asylum, that there is nothing at present that demands immediate attention to it. There is no undue crowding on either side of the House. The conversion of two unoccupied rooms into dormitories adjacent to the new female airing court, has provided for fourteen patients, seven in each: and upon inspection, these rooms will be found replete with every convenience and comfort: and their occupation has entirely removed the necessity of submitting to over-crowded apartments.

Since greater latitude has been given to the patients by extended walks beyond the boundary walls, and the transferance of cricket and out-door games to the meadows, an advantageous alteration has been made in the large airing court on the male side. It is now laid out and planted as a garden in imitation of the more attractive one on the female side. The women keep their garden up very nicely, and have excited a spirit of emulation in the more robust labourers. "The harmonies of form and of colour into which flower beds may be arranged, bring nature into more familiar connection with all which has served to cultivate, to sweeten, or to elevate the mind of man." Many of the inmates of our poorer population cannot read, but "all can listen to the voice of nature speaking in the language of our choicest libraries, and symbolizing all that is most pleasing in the world of books."*

^{*} See Caxton Papers, Blackwood, January No., 1863.

The removal of the old doors between the day rooms and the large corridor and their substitution by arched openings, on the female side of the House, has met with much approval. More light is admitted, more cheerfulness obtained, and the dining accommodation very much extended. One hundred and twenty patients now sit down quietly and orderly to dinner together. The more excited patients follow the example of their more quiet associates, and the attendants are able to act in concert in waiting upon them. Many improvements, which it would be incorrect to call minor have been made throughout the building. Several of the walls round the airing courts, have been lowered further and they may be yet again with advantage. There is much gloom and discomfort and very little additional security in a high wall. A patient is in the House now who effected his escape a few days ago over the highest part of the highest wall on the male side, and he has returned to boast that a wall of twenty feet high would never stop him. he can climb like a cat, and he seems from his own acknowledgement to have been in and out of various places of confinement. Within the last twelve months he has escaped twice from an Asylum in Surrey and twice from the Suffolk Asylum, and at different times he has been an inmate of the Asylums at Hoxton, Brentwood, Maidstone, and Hanwell, from each of which he has either been discharged, or escaped without subjecting himself to any legal formality. He bears a brand on his side of the letter D, as a deserter from the army; and he complains of having been punished in barracks by heavy shot drills. He says that after one of his escapes he walked 72 miles in 25 hours, from Charing Cross to Ashbocking, without food. He still protests against the injustice of his personal detention: with what justice he complains his acts will show.

By improving some of the old window lights and taking up more of the stone floors in the bed rooms and long corridor on the male side, much additional comfort is obtained. These have been floored with deal upon asphalte and the same has been done in the room formerly used as a Chapel, now occupied as a shoe-maker's shop, where an attendant works with the patients, and has at the same time command over the large airing The new Church now completed, and paid for, has been licensed by the Bishop of the Diocese, and it is filled by about 200 patients who manifest exemplary order and devotionally join in the services. A presentation of Communion plate has been most generously made by John Purcell Fitz-Gerald, Esq., whose kind and friendly interest in everything relating to the Asylum, and its inmates, the Superintendent desires thus publicly to acknowledge. pleasing effect of walking to a church detached from the main building is very marked. In witnessing seats filled with really attentive hearers who have hearts susceptible of the Truth in spite of any mental disease whatever, and minds more recipient and discriminating than some readily condescend to acknowledge, and in marking all the happy characteristics of a church going people, it seems to be a matter of wonder that congregational worship should have retained any vitality, or been tolerated so long in the inappropriate little room in which it was formerly celebrated.

The Church, may be even in Cæsar's household, and domestic services properly and profitable carried on; still it is in the Church of God, that His truths are more prominently presented and perhaps more permanently impressed. While the brain, and the heart's action which is both naturally and spiritually regulated by it, may have been the scene of mental conflicts, it is in the Sanctuary that the things that are temporal, with all their dimness and obscurity, may be seen as passing from the view; and the things that are eternal, in all THEIR clearness crowding upon it. And it is believed and trusted now, that the little Church of the Suffolk County Asylum, may form the scene even with insane worshippers, of genuine preparation for Heaven's exercises and Heaven's peace.

Commissioners' Report.

The following tabular statement shows the changes in the patients since the 14th Oct., 1862, the date of the last visit of the Commissioners, and their present numbers:—

Admitted	M. 52			Total.
Discharged	24		34	 58
Of whom recovered				53
Died, all from ordinary causes	25		30	 55
Present numbers	140	2	200	340

The patients are all chargeable to Parishes or Unions within the County, and the weekly rate of maintenance is 8s. 6d.

The Asylum is estimated to accommodate 150 male and 200 female patients, so that there are properly speaking only 10 vacancies on the male side and none on the female, although there are a few beds in the latter division unoccupied, some of the dormitories being over-crowded. All available space on the female side is appropriated to sleeping accommodation. In these circumstances the question of making further provision for the care and treatment of the pauper lunatics of the County becomes a matter of urgent importance.

We avail ourselves of this occasion again to submit, for the earliest consideration of the Visitors, the necessity of providing by purchase or otherwise additional land for the occupation of the male patients. The land, the property of the Asylum, is only 30 acres in extent, of which 7 are under spade husbandry. About 5 acres are rented by the year, and also under spade husbandry, making altogether 12 acres cultivated by the labour of the patients, of whom about 40 are so employed. Dr. Kirkman has stated to us his opinion, that he could beneficially and profitably employ upon the land double the present number. We have satisfaction in reporting as favourably as heretofore, of the good order and creditable personal condition of the patients of both sexes, who were at the time of our visit free from excitement, and the usual large proportion usefully occupied. The sanitary state of the Asylum is satisfactory, 3 patients only of each sex being registered as under medical treatment. We found no one in bed. Non-coercion has always been the rule of the Asylum, and seclusion is rarely resorted to. The patients secluded since our last visit have been on an average only one in a month, and the number of occasions have not exceeded 17. The Chapel, which is a neat and convenient structure, and presents externally and internally, a pleasing ecclesiastical aspect, has been completed and brought into use within the last six weeks. It accommodates 200 patients and is generally filled. The adjacent grounds have been well planted, and the boundary paths extended and improved. The room previously used as a chapel has been converted into a good shoe-makers' shop, in which six patients are now employed. Amongst other internal improvements we have to report, with approbation, the removal in one ward on the male side and two wards on the female, of the door between the day-room and large corridor, which are now connected by a wide archway. The dining accommodation has been thereby extended, and the wards generally rendered more cheerful. A similar improvement will, we trust, be carried out in the other analagous wards. The patients of both sexes take extended walks almost daily beyond the Asylum grounds, between 40 and 50 of the female patients going out in parties every alternate day. We are informed by Dr. Kirkman that the general condition of the pauper patients when received is better than formerly. The dinner this day was good and ample, except that the beer was of inferior quality. The sick and infirm who require it have ale and porter. Gas is still a great desideratum, and we again desire to press upon the Committee, the expediency of its introduction. We have made all the statutory inquiries.
