A detection of that sinnful, shamful, lying, and ridiculous discovrs, of Samuel Harshnet, entituled: A discouerie of the frawdulent practises of John Darrel : wherein is manifestly and apparantly shewed in the eyes of the world not only the unlikelihoode, but the flate impossibilitie of the pretended counterfayting of William Somers, Thomas Darling, Kath. Wright, and Mary Couper, togeather with the other 7 in Lancashire, and the supposed teaching of them by the saide John Darrell.

Contributors

Darrel, John, approximately 1562-

Publication/Creation

[London] : [publisher not identified], [Imprinted 1600]

Persistent URL

https://wellcomecollection.org/works/yqjk8j5b

License and attribution

This work has been identified as being free of known restrictions under copyright law, including all related and neighbouring rights and is being made available under the Creative Commons, Public Domain Mark.

You can copy, modify, distribute and perform the work, even for commercial purposes, without asking permission.

wellcome collection

Wellcome Collection
183 Euston Road
London NW1 2BE UK
T +44 (0)20 7611 8722
E library@wellcomecollection.org
https://wellcomecollection.org

DARRELL'S DETECTION OF HARSNET

7326/B

Wakeleraft

Very Scarce

(STC 6283

extant 4 Copies

Collation agrees with Eccle title is A1 sigs A-B in 4s sig I not used pagination reverts after 47
a few headlines cropped & side notes shaved

STC 6283

Jaus/xx

A DETECTION OF

THAT SINNFVL, SHAMFVL, LYING, AND RIDICVLOVS DISCOVRS, OF SAMVEL HARSHNET, ENTITVLED: ADISCOVERIE OF THE FRAVVDVLENT PRACTISES OF IOHN DARRELL

WHEREIN IS MANIFESTLY AND APPARANTLY SHEWED IN THE EYES OF THE WORLD NOT only the vnlikelihoode, but the flate impoſſibilitie of the pretended counterfayting of William Somers, Thomas Darling, Kath. Wright, and Mary Couper, togeather with the other 7. in Lancaſhire, and the ſuppoſed teaching of them by the ſaide Iohn Darrell.

Pſalme. 7. 14.

Behold, He ſhall travaile with wickednes: for he hath conceiued miſchiefe, but he ſhall bring fourth a lye.

IMPRINTED 1600.

7436
4991

349367

WELLCOME INSTITUTE LIBRARY

TO THE CHRISTIAN AND VVELL AFFECTED READER, IOHN DARRELL MINISTER OF THE VVORD, WISHETH ALL GRACE AND HAPPINES: WITH a iudgment to discerne betwixt thinges that differ, betwene that which is true and false, good and evill.

In the dayes of Henrie the second of Fraunce, father to Charles, the great maslacrer and murderer of Godes Sayntes, when the Sunne-shine of the Gospell beganne to breake forth in that kingdome, and the name of Hugonot as a by-word of reproch was giuen to the professors thereof: in the very entrie as it were of those troubles and hurlie burleyes for religion, it is recorded of the Italian weomen and credulous popularitie of that countrie, that hearing of the great sturre that was then risen about those Hugonotes, they would needes knowe of their gostlye fathers and holy inquisitinge Fryers, what those French Hugonotes were: vnto whom that deuoute and Pop-holy generation (not vnlike themselues) made this wholesome and catholike answere: That they were not men forsooth, but vglye and monstrous shapes of men, headed like Dragons, faced like Dogges: eared like Swine, snouted like Serpents, with Boares tuskes and Asses iawes, yea such as would eate and deuoure vp their owne mothers, &c. wherevpon the poore weomen and sily multitude, neuer requyringe nor examining the matter any farther, fell straight to a kinde of hissing & clapping their hands, with most bitter out cries and hatfull exclamations against them, with fie on them wretches, fie on them wretches. Now even thus good reader (and no better then thus) fareth it with me at this instant. The name & sound of Darrell, of his imprisonment, and the cause therof, hath in a manner possessed & overspread the whole land. why, what is he saith one? what is the matter saith another? Answere is made presently and readilye by our two Englisch Inquisiters. Samuell Harsnet and his master, togeather with such others, whom they with theire crooked conueyances haue be witched, that Darrell is forsooth a cogger, a cousener, a Iugler, an Exorcist, a counterfeite, a deuill-flinger, a deuill-driuer, a Seducer, a deceiuer, an Impostor, and I know not what: that of an impious simplicitie he holdeth it lawfull to lye, cogge and faine, so it be to a good end, (as his fauorits tearme it,) to the glory of God, in which regard he hath taken vpon him to be deeplye seene in the mysterie of deuils, and hath playd his publike prize in this iuglinge science, casting out more deuils by prayer and fasting after a good dinner perhaps, then euer any of the Apostlee did at so full a season. And this in effect not onely the streetes and Tauernes haue ronge off, but (as I haue bene informed) the very benches and they had any iuſt matter or ſound and cleare euidence to convince me by? nay if they weare not in themſelues perſwaded, that Darrell would cleare himſelfe of teaching to counterfeite, if he ſhould be admitted to a proceeding according to the lawes of the Realme in ſuch cales prouided?

3 Thirdly, their very writtinge againſt me in this caſe in that manner as they haue done, is ſufficient in the iudgment of the wiſe to diſcry and diſcouer the guiltines of their conſciences this way. For what a ieſt were it to punish treaſon or rebellion by Booke-writting? I willinglye confeſſe the ſinne they charge me with (if it be true) to be as bad as rebellion, and to deſerue more then the pillorie, yea a ſhamefull and a reprochfull death to the terror of others. And if they can proue the thinges publiſhed againſt me in that printed Libell of S. Harſnetes, they ſhall neede noturie to paſſe vpon me, neither will I craue any fauour but iuſtice with ſeueritie. Seeinge then the puniſhe not nor neuer went about to puniſh this ſuppoſed offence according to the weight and deſert thereof: nay haue bene ſo farr from that, as within 14. dayes after the publiſhinge of the booke made againſt me, they offered me libertie vpon condition I would promiſe not to preach of poſſeſſiō nor diſpoſſeſſion: nor in my publike preaching iuſtifie the poſſeſſion and diſpoſſeſſinge of the perſons controverted: nor deale any more in the diſpoſſeſſinge of any: and yet haue publiklye made it knowne for ſo haynous and notorious a crime, what doth this argue but that inwardly in theire owne ſoules, they doe not beleiue their owne lible?

4 Fourthly, their often and ordinarie bringinge in the teſtimonie of Somers againſt me in theire ſaide booke, (able to make a horſe to ſpue) whenſoeuer they are at a ſtand and can by no meanes writhe nor wreſt in that which they would faine make good (being vtterlye voyd of all honeſt courſe of defence) then forſooth comes in M. Somers dropping out of M Harſnets budget as an authenticall witnes. And what doth more argue the guiltines of ther conſciēces, the deſpratēes of their cauſe, & the ſhamleſnes of their defence then this? That they are not abaſhed to ſuppreſſe the examinations of ſundry honeſt men, wiſe men and gentlemen of good place, taken by Comiſſion from the Arch.B. of Yorke as thinges of no account: and inſtead of them to tell vs a tale of Robin-hood, or rather if you will, of Robin the deuill, alias, William Somers? why alas, are they ſo ſimple or ſottiſh to imagine, that any man that is well in his wittes, will beleeue this or that becauſe Somers ſaith it, that infamous and notorious lyer, counterfeit, blaſphemer, and forſworne wretch?

Fiftly, theire winkinge at theire 7. Lancaſhire counterfeits, and

ſmothe

smoth passing by them not punishinge them, albeit 6. of them were in the same family, nor any of those 4. whom they haue dealt with, and say vpon their examination haue confessed that they haue counterfeted, no not Somers their principall supposed counterfeite: but fauoured, intertained, countenaunced, cherished and made much of him though most vile and infamous, and such as they must needes know to haue scarce any match in lewdnes and iniquitie: as if counterfeiting and blaspheming were a prayse or but a spirt of youth in him, and teaching to counterfeite onely odious in me. Now whence commeth this stealing by the 7. and impunitie of all, but from the conscience of man, telling him that they are no counterfeits, and therfore it is best to let them alone, and not to punish all these innocentes: Lest they in their innocencie denying constantlye to haue counterfeited, and exclaming against them, should bring them to great shame.

Sixtly and lastly the thing that most moueth me thus to be perswaded is: their winking at, and not answering at all to the impossibilities of or concerning Darling, Katherine Wright, Mary Cooper, and the 7. in Lancashire, which are the onely thinges we alleadge against their counterfeiting, why they neither are nor can possiblie be counterfeites: and the silly shiftes (to blere the eies of men) they haue deuised and forged out of their owne braines for answere to the impossibilities preised against Somers counterfeiting, & namely to the depositions of the 17. prouing the impossibilities by oath. Heerevnto I may add the absurd, sottish, tendes, and more then ridiculous proofes of my teaching 4. of their counterfeites. For howsoeuer stolidum vulgus, the foolish people, which will beleiue every thinge, (that Christ was a glutton, &c. that he had a deuill, speciallye when they haue the phariseis telling them, that he casteth forth deuils through Beelzebub: that he is a blasphemer, specially when the high preist saith he hath blasphemed, yee heare his blasphemie:) will vpon the producinge of these silly shiftes and absurd proofes, by a Prelate specially and his Chaplaine, hand ouer head, and of their word, rather then vpon any diligent examination of the matter receiue these for counterfeites, and me for their instructor: (which the B. of London and S. Harsnet knew full well, eis they woulde haue saued that labour:) yet the Prelate and his Chaplaine can not possiblie so beleeue and be perswaded in their consciences, which haue forged them to this saide end and purpose, and haue deliberatly and aduisedly wayed all things throughly concerning this matter: except you will cleane put out the eyes of their vnderstandingl, and depriue them of their reason, & make them of reasonable, vnreasonable creatures. Though the people of the Iewes through that silly shift of the Hie Preists and the Elders did beleiue, that Christes disciples came by night and stole him away, whiles the souldiers sleept, yet the hie priestes and Elders who deuised this shift for the smotheringe of Christs resurrection, knewe and were perswaded in their cõsciences it was not so, but far otherwise. Even so in this our case, though many of the people of England doe in their simplicitie and rash credulitie verelie beleiue that Somers & the rest haue counterfeited, & I instructed them, because of the silly reasons printed & published to that end by the B. of London and S. Harsnet: yet the B. & Harsnet which haue invented & deuised those sottish reasons, and framed a whole booke for the smotheringe of the worke of God wrought vpon these persons, can not but know and be in their consciences perswaded, that they haue not counterfeited, nor I taught them.

pro. 14. 15.

math. 28. 13.

These then (good reader) with sundrie others are the speciall reasons that moue me to thinke, that they themselues (what face soeuer they sett on it) doe not yet in their owne consciences betwixt god & them, constantly beleiue all that they haue thus published or rather libelled against me, beinge a thinge vnpossiblie they should. And if it fare so with the bitingest aud bittereste aduersaries, I may the bolder I thinke (even by the law and rule of equitie) be an earnest suter vnto thee whosoeuer thou art to suspend thy iudgment, and not hastily to passe any sentence against me: & intreat thy patience christian reader and fauourable censure of me thus farr fourth, as to cause thee to stope thine eares to all vniust surmizes and odious exclamations against me, till proofe and triall haue discouered my guiltines or innocencie. And this the rather I trust you will doe, if you remember and forgett not that saying of the holy ghost: he that is first in his owne cause is iust, then cometh his neighbour, and maketh inquirie of him. And that other in the same place: he that answereth a matter before he heare it, it is follie and shame vnto him. He that answereth, that is, taketh vpon him to iudg or determine of a matter incontrouersie, before he heare it, meaning, what can be said of both sides, it is follie and shame vnto him, that is, a poynt of follie comming from the lake of wisdome, and such as whereof one ought to be ashamed.

pro. 18. 13. 17.

And the rather I am to intreat this fauour at thy handes, in that I haue not bene dealt with accordinge to the ordinarie course of Iustice of this land, but altogether against the haire and in the vnreasonableste manner of proceeding that might be, as if it were no matter at all what violence & indignitie they offer to a man of my condition, or to so base a fellowe as Darrell is. Neither by their patience doe I thinke, that they can for their liues giue me an instance or shewe me the like president of their irregular & disorderly proceeding against me, in any of the honorable ciuil courtes of the Realme, which is wor thy

thy the notinge, yea to be recorded and nayled on the poſtes of the ſtreetes to the veiw of poſteritie. One would thinke that the reuerent fathers of the Church, ſhould in their courtes and iudiciall proceedinges, giue their children (as they would haue them counted) the reuerent Iudges of the land, and fathers of the common wealth, an example and patterne of Iuſtice and equitie: and not ſuch an example as they would abhorr and be aſhamed to followe. I haue heard that amonge other the excellent graces of God vpon her Maieſtie, this is one that doth exceedingly grace both her perſon & her goverment, namely, that in the makinge and ordaininge of her Iudges, ſhe doth among other things enioyne thē this ſpeciall charge: That what ſoeuer in equitie may be produced on the behalfe of the ſubiecte, may be patiently heard and fauorably admitted without exception or partialitie: and that they ſhould not perſwade themſelues to ſitte otherwiſe in Iudgment for her ſelfe, then for her ſubiecte. which kind of equall and chriſtian proceedinge if it had bene held with me, I needed not now to haue ſpent my time in refuting this ſhameles and malitious invectiue. what proceedinge hath bene vſed againſt me will plainly appeare by this diſcourſe followinge, and namely in my anſweare to the ſecond chapter of the firſt booke, by the quæries or demaundes to the Diſcouerer (I meane the B. of London and S. Harſnet) iuſtifiynge the ſame, and affirminge that this cauſe hath bene examined, accordinge to the vſual courſe by the lawes of the Realme in ſuch caſes provided. And yet ſhall not the Diſcouerer be euer able to name in what one thing after my appearāce before the high commiſſion, I was dealt with according to lawe. Truly for my owne parte I can not. If he can, let him doe it. For theſe reaſons I hope good reader, that layinge aſide all partiallitie and preiudice, you will reſerue the one eare, to heare what Darrell hath to ſay for the Lord and himſelfe, and againſt counterfeiting, and teachinge Somers, Darling &c. to counterfeite: and that you will beware how you receiue a falſe report againſt your neighbour, ſpecially againſt the Lord himſelfe and his workes. pag. 9. of the Diſcouerie.

If any thinke that the charge of counterfeiting, and of my teachinge to counterfeite, (the ſumme of the booke anſweared by me,) is ſo lying, ſlanderous, abhorring to common ſence, palpable falſe, and vnpoſſible to be true, that it was altogether vnworthy the anſweringe and convincing, or at leaſt of ſo large an anſweare and conviction as heere followeth: ſuch may remember that the Apoſtles being charged with drunckennes and to be full of newe wine, Peter for them all anſweared to & conuinced that vile ſlaunder. In like ſort did our Sauiour Chriſt being charged more vily to be a coniurer, and to caſt out deuils through Belzabub, the prince of deuils. which thinges are written for our learn- act. 2. 13. 14. math. 12.

inge

ing, even to teach vs what to doe whē any such thing falleth out. Now the larger I haue bene for these two reasons. First, I thought it fitt to answeare to all that is contained in the Discouery, which seemeth to make more or lesse against the cause or my selfe: least passing by some of this kind, it might be thought I therfore did it and purposly, because I were not able to answere. Againe, I cōsidered that many haue already giuen an eare to counterfeitinge, and verily beleiue our Denomakes to be counterfeits: for their sakes therfore, & that I might draw these preiudicate persons from their error to the imbracinge of the truth, it was requisite to answere all that in the face made for counterfeitinge, which could not be performed in fewe wordes. Secondly, I knewe the credit of the aduersarie was great, my owne little, beinge a base & contemptible person in the eyes of the world. That my selfe then and that which I contend for might be beleiued, even of this dotinge and blind generation, It was necessarie I should not onely cracke or diminish the credite of the aduersarie, even with his best frendes, which might haue bene done in afew wordes: but take all credit from him, by detectinge all his filthines: for in makinge his name to rotte and stinke, and the counterfeit cause he hath in hand, their is hope that men will giue some eare vnto me, and that I striue for, be I neuer so meane. Now this would be best performed in the larger pursuite and stirringe deepely in the falshods, lyes, and absurdities of the Disconcrer, which coulde not be donne without the multiplyinge of wordes. For the more one stirreth in that which is stinkinge and filthy, the more stinking sauor it sendeth forth. And so shall we find it to be in the ample ripping vp of this foule Discouery to the Detection wherof we will now proceed, God assistinge vs. If the falshood of some be detected, and thou find out the truth by this our Detection: then open thy mouth in the defence of that truth, and assist me with thy prayers.

Thine in the Lord,
Iohn Darrell.

As in all ages there haue bene some which haue gainsaid the holy doctrins of god reuealed in his word, so likewise there haue not wanted such as haue resisted the works which he hath wrought befor the children of men. Against the wonderfull works wrought in Egipt by Moses did those sorcerers Iannes and Iambres rise vp, and set themselues with all their diuelish arte and power. VVhen the holy ghoste fell vpon the Apostles in the forme of clouen tongues like fire, euen of those which were eye & eare witnesses thereof, there were some that mocked them, saying that they were full of newe wyne. The Apostle Paule hauing cast the diuell out of the Pythonisse, her maisters were offended therewith: caught him & Sylas his associate, and drew them before the maiestrates: who vpon their incensinge, commaunded them to prison, and to be beaten with rods: wherevpon they were beaten sore, cast into an inward prison or dungeon: and their feete made fast in the stockes. VVhen there was brought to Christ Iesus one possessed with a diuel, blind, and dumbe, and that he had healed him, so that hee which was blind and dumb, both spake and sawe: all the people (it is said) were amased, and said, is not this that sonne of Dauid? And vpon the same worke wrought vpon an other at an other time, the multitud marueiled saying, The like was neuer seene in Israel. But the Pharises resisted as other workes of his, so both these and said: he casteth out diuels, through Beelzebub the prince of diuels. In a word, the mockinges and scourgings, the banishments, the bonds and imprisonments, the puttinge to death of Christ Iesus, the Prophets, and his Apostles doe testify, how the word and workes of god haue bene from time to time resisted. Euen so it is now: God hauing wrought diuers rare and greate workes, there haue bene some found to withstand them: and to bear the world in hand that all is but connterfeyting and notorious cosenage. Among these the cheif are D. Bancroft B. of London and Samuell Harsnet his chaplaine and Examiner: whose labour day and night it hath bene for the space almost of two yeares: and in that time naue they applyed and abused their wit and authority, to perswade this to the world, and to this end haue they published a booke called a-Discouerie. But as Paule saith of Iannes and Iambres that withstood Moses, and of certaine men in his time of corrupt mindes, reprobat concerning the faith, which did then resist the truth: euen so & the same say I of these men: They shall preuaile no longer, for their madnes shall be euident vnto all men, as theirs also was.

Exod. 7. 11.

act. 2. 13.

act. 16. 18.

math. 12. 24.

math. 9. 33.

2. tim. 3. 8.

Herevnto serueth as the former treatise, wherein the truth is declared, and these workes published and made knowne to the world, (for the declaration of the truth, is a conviction of the falshood) so the treatise following: wherein the DISCOVERY is fully I trust answered ſwered and the euill name rayſed vp, and giuen out againſte theaſe workes, viz. of counterfeyting, and my teaching (the ſome or twoe parts of that booke) taken away. And when the lord ſhall yet further purſue the manifeſtation of theſe workes, diſcloſing that which is now couered, and making that knowne which now is hyd, which I doubt not but in due time he will: Then will their filthines and madnes be euident indede. And for our further aſſurance herein, we may remember, it is written Thou (Lorde) beholdeſt miſcheif and wrong, that thou maiſt take it into thine handes. And againe: There is nothing hyd that ſhal not be opened: neyther is there a ſecret but that it ſhall come to light. And againe to this purpoſe it is ſaid by the Apoſtle: Some mens ſinnes are open before hand, and goe before vnto iudgment: but ſome mens followe after. Likewiſe, alſo the good workes are manifeſt before hand, & they that are otherwiſe cannot be hyd. wherby it is playne that howſoener the ſinnes of ſome men are for a time in this world vnknowne, as hauinge bene committed in ſecret and in the darkneſſe, yet the Lorde in his time will bring them to light, and manifeſt them to the world: and on the other ſide, though the good workes of ſome be not for a time through the ſlaunders of ſome manifeſt and knowne to the world to be ſuch, yet it ſhall not alwaies be ſoe, they ſhall not alwayes be hyd, but in an other time god will reueale them, to be that indede they are.

pſal. 10. 14. mark. 4, 22. 2. tim. 5. 24. verſe 25.

It is in the ſecond place to be obſerued, that as ſathan hath euer vſed by his inſtruments to reſiſt the doctrines & workes of god, that thereby he might kepe god from his glory and prayſe, and man from beleuing and profiting by them: ſo the principall meanes wherby he hath preuayled in all times, hath bene the ſlaundering of thoſe whom the Lord hath therein vſed as inſtruments: for the old ſerpent knoweth full well, that the credit & good name of men being taken away be the doctrines they teach neuer ſo true and wholſome, & the work wherein they were vſed neuer ſo profitable and to be admired, they will not be receaued. Neither is he ignorant hereof that let the ſlander be neuer ſo manifeſtly or palpably falſe, yet the world will beleue it and runne away with it as currant, if once it be rayſed vp & ſpread abroad: for he knoweth that there is not one wiſe man of a thowſand, who vſeth to conſider of a thing and heare what can be ſaide of both ſydes, before he imbrace it as a truth: and that the fooliſh will beleue euery thinge. Hence it is that in theſe caſes it is his firſt and cheife labour to raiſe vp and ſpread abroad ſlanders. By this meanes he preuailed againſt Paule ſtirring vp ſome to affirme that he was a peſtilent fellowe, a mouer of ſedition that he ſubuerted the ſtate of the world: and was an enemy to the ſtate (as we ſpake now of ſome) a traytor, doing againſt the decree of Caſar. Yea of Chriſt himſelfe the diuell by his inſtruments gaue it

pro. 14. 15.

act. 24. 5, act. 17. 6.

out

out, that he was a Deceauer, and worse then so a Coniurer: casting out diuels through the prince of diuels. By the same meanes that auncient slaunderer, and accuser of the bretheren day and night, both to god and men, who thereby deceaueth all the world, hath hitherto mighte ly prevayled against the workes of god wee speake of: spreadinge abroade that Maister More and I, especially my selfe: are Deceauors, Impostors, cozoning marchants, that I haue taught some (I knowe not yet howe many) to counterfeyt. But as S. Paule notwithstandynge the aforesaide accusations, was nither seditious nor traytor, but one that practised and taught the contrary: and Christ was no Deceauer but one in whose tongue was found no guile, neither caste out deuilles by the prince of diuels, but came to destroy the works of the diuell, euē so we in lik māner notwithstanding that we are thus accused to be deceiuers & cosoners, and I knowe not what, and my self to haue taught Somers and others to counterfeyt: yet it shall by gods grace appeare by the sequell, that we are no such men indeede, and that my selfe is not (I thanke god) guilty of any such abomynation, as mine aduersaryes most vniustly lay vpon me. where by the way we may learne thus much, that it is not inough for one to be accused, for then innocency it selfe (Christ Iesus I meane) should not goe vncondemned. Therefore as in all other accusations and euill reportes of our neighbours brought vnto our eares, so in this concerning Somers and mee, if we desire to auoyde the iustifying of the wicked, and condemning of the iust, both which are an abomination vnto the Lord: we must examine whither the things alleadged to that end by the Discouerer doe throughly proue the same or no: otherwise they be but empty words discouering the mallice of the Discouerer. To the furtherance wherof this may serue that heere followeth, whereynto we will now by gods grace proceede.

mat 7.27.63. Reuel. 12.9.

OF THE EPISTLE.

This casting out of diuels is (saith he) now discouered to be but a pure play, conteyning two principall parts of a vyce and a diuell, one shift deuysed to to helpe this vyce of the stage, that he might not be hissed at of all the world is: that to cast out a diuel, is no such great matter, as men make account of beinge but mirandum et non miraculum, in the nature of a wonder, and not of a miracle.

Thinkest thou (Christian Reader) that this Discouerer (or rather Masker comminge thus to play his part on the stage) meaneth good sooth, that behaueth himself so ridiculously in the very entrance of so waighty a matter: or that his intent is to bleare thy eyes of vnderstād ing, with his colours of rhetorike, fyne quipps, & multitud of wordes & depositions: least you should se these works of god to his glory & your comfort. But to come to the point: S.H. is very ignorant if he cānot see a difference betwene mirandum & miraculum for by mirandum is ment only athing admiratione dignum worthy admiration, or to be admired, of which number who knoweth not ther be many works which be not miraculous. Ther was smal cause then why he should sport himselfe therewith and call it heere a shift, a miserable shift, and a little after a sly silly shift, seinge Augustine, and after him Danæus a man of great learning, put an apparant difference betwēne mirum & miraculum, a wonder, & a miracle. According to whose iudgments I may well terme that election of spirits we speake of, mirum a wonder and deny it to be miraculum a myracle. Now if it so fall out that the Discouerers procedings be answerable to his begining: his booke to his epistle, & his dealing concerning the matter of fact, to this in matter of doctrine: then may his booke be rightly called a Discouerye, not of a pure play, but of his owne inward and secret corruption (aswell mallice as ignorance) which no doubt he greatly desireth shoulde be couered. But let vs heare what he saith further against this silly shift of mine.

August. liber 3. de trinita. Danæus opus. 194. &c.

What dull conceites (saith he) had the rulers of the Iewes, that they could not see this sly silly shift, to deprave the miracles of our Sauiour Christ, and to tell the people there was no iust cause they should beleeue, that our Sauiour was the sonne of God: in doing such mighty miracles among them: the cheif one whereof was casting out of diuels: by reason that action was but mirandum, et non miraculum, a strange thing for silly people to wonder at, and not a myracle, to inforce them to beleue.

pag. 4.

The Discouerer might haue remembred that I doe not affirme that the casting out of diuels performed by Christ, was by fasting & prayer, and so miranda, et non miracula: but the contrary (euen there where I treate hereof) to both these. To cast out diuels (say I) by a word, so as one no sooner commaundeth the spirit to goe out, but forthwith he departeth as Christ and his Apostles did, is not only a myracle, but of them the greatest: but by the meanes of prayer and fasting to dryue out Sathan, or rather to intreat Christ (to whome all power is giuen in heauen and in earth) to cast Sathan forth, is mirandum, non miraculum.

In my apologie

Had these words of mine bene spoken to the Pharises could those dull conceyted Rulers of the Iewes haue thence taken occasion to haue depraued our Sauiour his casting out of diuels? Sure one wold thinke they serued rather to the magnifying thereof. Now if the Discouerer could proue, that Christ did cast forth wicked spirits by fastinge and prayer, or yet his Apostles, then indeede for as much as I houlde all election performed by them to be miraculous and yet houlde that it is no myracle, when Sathan is expelled by prayer and fasting, he shoulde conuince mee otherwise he doth but tryfle and abuse his Reader der in causing him to spend his houres in such vayne ydle and vnpro fitable discourse as concerneth nothinge the matter in question neyther toucheth his aduersary any thing at all.

Hee procedeth. There is a place saith hee in the last of S. Mark. wherein they mightely pleuse themselues, and taking it as a rod of defence to mayntayne their cause, it proues in handling a serpent that deuoureth them vp, the wordes are these: These signes shall followe them that beleue in my name they shall cast out dyuells, and shall speake with newe tounges &c.

This is a meere slaunder for it is as farre from mee and euer was from alleadging this scripture in my defence, as it is from takinge vpon me to worke myracles, and I will as soone doe the one, as the other. Howe this scripture is to be vnderstood of svch as had the myraculous faith, I haue shewed before against Thyreus and the papists peruerting it to their dispossessinge of diuels: and that it cannot be vnderstood of all beleuers as he expoundeth it.

But to procede. In steede of the author his name, wee haue in the end of the Epistle these twoo letters S.H. so that men may onely gesse who hath made the discouerie. VVere the truth on the discouerers side, he woulde sure in playne and full letters haue sett to his nam withont staggeringe, and thereby intimated thus much, Looke what I haue sayd of counterfeytinge, and by Darrell or any other, I such a one: am ready to iustifie the same but the discouerer beinge priuie to his owne false and corrupt dealinge. and fearinge least that woulde be descryed and come one day to light, thought it wisdome to conceale his name: who can tell also how the christian magistrat will take this, when he shall perceiue how greatly God is dishonored hereby and see the intollerable iniurie that is done first and cheifely to the Lord himselfe. who hath wrought these greate workes, and to whom greate glory and prayse is due for the same: secondly to those whom God (amonge others) hath vsed herein, and those vpon whom these workes were wrought, takinge away the good name both of all those and of others that I could name, as much as in him lyeth besides the greuious and causeless molestation of many subiects in the land, and the wrong doune to them both in their substance and good name. In this respect also there is cause why the Discouerer shoulde sett downe two letters, rather then his name: for it is good pollicy to preuent a mischeif, and cast for the worst.

There is no doubt but that S.H. stand for Samuell Harsnet chapline to the Bishop of London, but whither he alone, or his lord & hee haue discouered this counterfeyting and cosonage there is the question. Some thinke the booke to be the Bishops owne doing: and many ny thinke it to be the ioynt worke of them both. Of Harſnet I think men doubt not conſideringe the two firſt letters of his name be ſubſcribed. As touchinge his Lord and maiſter it is probable, ſeeing the booke is commonly called the Biſhop of Londons booke, & that all or part of it was made by an high Commiſſioner ſuch as the Biſhop is, as appeareth by theſe words: The author of the breif narration to drawe

pag. 14. VS peraduenture from dealing with M. Darrell: nowe other Commiſſioner in no reaſon can it poſſibly be. For the Biſhop of London it is that hath depoſed and examyned I know not how many, and that is acquainted with euery quirk and corner of this cauſe, that hath managed this matter, that hath perſwaded not only the reſt of the high Commiſſioners, but the whole land alſo as much as in him lyeth, that all is but counterfeyting and knauery: but how truly he and his chapline ſay ſo, and what reward they both deſerue at the hands of god, and men, for all the greate paines they haue taken in this behalfe, dooth partly appeare by the premiſſes, and will (I truſt) more fully be made manifeſt by that which followeth.

THE FIRST BOOKE.

THE 1. CHAPTER.

The nomber of ſuch perſons as are ſaid to haue bene diſpoſſeſſed, by M. Darrels meanes.

pag. 5. M. Darrell growing into ſome ſmal credit with the ſimpler ſort: became very peart & proud. Somthing to this purpoſe he confeſſeth ſome thought that
pag. 3. I did glory ſomwhat tomuch in the action of caſting forth diuels. And a little after There are added in the end of the hiſtory of the boy of Burton theſe words viz. ſhortly you ſhall haue the true ſtory come forth of thoſe 7. in Lancaſhire that were poſſeſſed with vncleane ſpirits, and all ſeauen deliuered at one time by this man, meaning M. Darrell as he himſelf confeſſeth.

Hereby the Deſcouerer laboreth to perſwade the worlde that I did glory in the caſting out of diuels as is playne by theſe words: what M. Darrell tooke vppon him after this his ſecond exployt, it may be ſurmyſed by glorying in the firſt.

To the firſt of theſe I anſwere that I haue not altogither ſo depoſed, as appeareth by page 277. of the Diſcouery. But admit it were ſo, and that ſome haue ſo thought of me as is ſayde, yet it followeth not theirvpon, that I gloryed &c. for many haue miſe conceaued the ſpeaches & actions of men. when Eliab Dauids eldeſt brother, heard the words of Dauid concernninge the killinge of Goliah he theirvpon thought, and ſaid vnto him, that he was com downe to ſe the battle of pride and the mallice of his hearte: and yet it was nothinge ſo. How oft did Ioſephs brethren conceaue amiſſe of his ſpeaches and actions? To the ſecond I anſwer, that beinge examined by the B. of L. vpon my oath, whither I thought that by these wordes this man, with the rest were ment my selfe: I answered affirmatiuely. And it being playne that he did meane me, (for who els had to doe with Darling, & the 7 in Lancashire) how could I answer otherwis without periury? These words also we must remember are not mine but the printers, as I tould the Bysh: at my examynation, & at the same time condemed them greatly (both which the Discouerer I warrant you concealeth) how then doe they or my answer vnto them argue my glorying in the actiō of casting forth deuels? Let the Discouerer fram his argumēt & it may be he wil be ashamed of it. Moreouer were it that I did glory somwhat toomuch herein the same maketh not against the cause, but argueth only my corruption.

whe-

Darrell being sent for into Lancashire by one M. Starchy dispossessed in the said M. Starchyes house seauen persons at one clap: viz: John Starchye, Margaret Hardman: Elianor Hardman: Ellen Holland: Margaret Byrom and Jane Ashton. And in the end of the discouery the Discouerer hath these wordes: vnto these notable exployts of Darrells, concerning Mary Cowper, Katheryn Wright the boy of Burton: and William Somers somewhat might be added of his pretended dispossessing the seauen (so often mentioned) in Lancashire, out of one M. Mores examynation and confessyon touching that matter: his sayd examynation is in the Registers office to her Maiesties Comissioners. And if any will take the paynes to pervse it, he shall finde that M. Darrels and M. Mores course held with those in Lancashire, was as vayne & ridiculous as with any of the other. pag. a. pag. 323.

VVe heare of M. Mores dealing and mine, about the (pretended) dispossessing of 7. Lancashire and in generall termes of the course we held with them therein, but from these first words vnto these last we heare not what they for their parts did, saue what is intimated by these aforesaid words: so as the reader knoweth not well what to make or thinke of them, of whom notwithstandinge there is oft mention made, and whither he should account them counterfeyts, yea or no. I desire therefore to knowe of the Bishop of London & Harsnet what theire iudgments of these seauen whither they counterfeyted a possession or were indeede possessed: for one of these sure they did, because they were handled so like to those that are possessed, both in & during the time of their trouble (or so fayned) and at the time and instant of their deliuerance (or dissembled deliuerance) euery one of them crying aloud, being rent sore, and lyinge as dead, or seeminge so to be, which are the signes of dispossession: Yea after also as wee haue heard in the story, either the vnclehne spirits being gone out, returned vpon them all, seeking to reenter into them againe, according to the Scriptures, or some such thing they fayned. These thinges duly considered, it cannot be denyed but that either they were possmath 12.43.

eſſed, or diſſembled a poſſeſſion. Yf poſſeſſed: it is to be hoped that they are now diſpoſſeſſed, conſidering the ſignes of diſpoſſeſſion mentioned in the goſpell were heard and ſeene at the time and inſtant of their amendment, and that ſince that very time, (being three yeares paſt) they haue continued free from being vexed by Sathan, as before they were, one excepted that is repoſſeſſed. The returne alſo of the ſpirits doth confirme their eiection. Yf thus it goe & haue gon with the 7. in Lancaſhire: then we ſee men may be poſſeſſed in theſe dayes and diſpoſſeſſed, yea that the greateſt part of the perſons controuerted were ſo indeede, and did not faigne ſo to be as is pretended.

If they counterfeyted, why was not M. Starchy and ſome other about them, being ſo many, fetched to London by Purſeuants or warrants, as well as ſundry from Nottingham about Somers, & diuers out of Staffordſhire about Thomas Darling? And why was there no commiſſion directed to ſome in Lancaſhire, for the better inquirye into this counterfeyting, and ſifting of thoſe counterfeyts (if ſuch they be) being 7. as well as one into Darbyſhire, an other into Leceſterſhire, & 3. or 4. (I take it) to Nottingham, for the finding out of the counterfeyting of thoſe foure there? Yf theſe haue counterfeyted with Somers and Darling, why were not they or ſome of them fetched vp and receyued into the Biſhop of Londons houſe, and by his Lordſhip and S. Harſnet depoſed and examined about their counterfeyting, as well as Somers and Darling their fellowe counterfeyts were? for marke what
pag. 4. the Diſcouerer himſelf ſaith in the end of this chapter: touching all theſe (ſauing thoſe in Lancaſhire) examynatiõs haue bene taken, & as well by the confeſſions of the parties, as by diuers other circumſtances, it doth playnlye appeare, that all which was done betwixt M. Darrell and them was meerly counterfeyted. I demaund now why theſe Lancaſhire perſons were omitted? why their examinations were not taken, and they tried what confeſſions they would haue made, as well as Somers. Darling. Kath: Wright, and M. Couper. if theſe likewiſe meerely counterfeyted. Surely me thinketh that if theſe 7. were counterfeits, the Biſhop and Harſnet doe hereby greatly preiudice the cauſe they haue in hand, and themſelues. for admit one or two of them were obſtinate, and would not confeſſe a counterfeytinge, yet it may be ſome of them would. There are ſundry of them, and they are not all ſure made of one moulde. Some of them alſo very yong, and it is likely they wold tel the truth moreouer it cannot be that the Biſhop and Harſnet taking ſuch great and long paynes about two yeares, day and night, to find out 4. counterfeyts, would haue paſſed by ſuch a number of counterfeytes, ſo greate a pray as this was, if ſo be they were counterfeyts. And much leſſe would they haue ſought out one ſingle counterfeyt Kath. Wright

by

by name, haue deposed and examyned her (with sundrye others) for counterfeyting 14. yeares past, and let all these alone with theire counterfeyting about three yeares agoe, if these were counterfeyts as well as she (is pretended to be) Againe if those 7. haue counterfeited so that we haue not 4. but 11. counterfeyts, considering I dealt with these 7. as well as the other 4. why is there no mention made (not so much as in generalty) of my fraudulent practises and procedings concerning the pretended possession and dispossession of these 7. nor any word vsed tending therevnto, as well as of Will. Somers Thomas Darling & the rest euen in particuler and by name? Surely the Discouerer did greatly forget himself to mention my (pretended) dispossessing of 4. only in the tytle of his booke, and in the first chapter of the booke wherein he treateth of the number of such persons as are said to haue bene dispossessed by my meanes to name 11. Besides if those haue counterfeyted seing then they are the greatest part of the counterfeyts, and haue not at all bene dealt with for their counterfeyting, it is playne that the Bishop and Harsnet haue but slightly shuffoled and slubbered ouer the matter of counterfeyting wherewith they haue bene wholy taken vp a long time, and left their worke vnperfect: much like to an vnwise builder who not first sitting downe and casting with himself what his house will cost him, falleth of building: but perceiuing after he hath builded a while, that he is not able to fynish that he began, is constrayned to giue ouer his building, whervpon all that behold it begin to mock him: or that foolish man which vnawares buildeth his house vpon the sands, but afterwards perceiuing the same to be no sure foundation, ceaseth to build any further: for this cause I aduise them either to confesse the truth & giue glory to god, or els for shame to proceede on in finding out more counterfeyts, and add to the 4. they haue already those 7. for all eleuen were handled alike: and their condition the same, yea somuch is in effect acknowledged by the Bishops and Harsnet in this whole first Chapter of theirs, and in very manye places of ther booke: otherwise all that heare therof will laugh at thē, and their doting partiallity, that would be so hot and sweat somuch about 4. and let 7. of the same counterfeyt condition passe & escape vntouched. Furthermore, if these 7. haue likewise counterfeyted, I desire to knowe of the Discouerer who taught them so to doe, & that he make him knowne to the world, as he hath done the teacher of the other foure, for why should we not think that they likewise had an instructor, specially seing 5. of the 7. were very yong, and their feyts as admirable & hard to be done as those of the 4? my self (we heare) schooled Somers Darling Kath: Wright and Mary Couper, and seinge the 7. were handled alike to these 4. counterfeyts, and that I dealt with the 7. as well as the other 4. and that 3. of the 4. were helped by the ſame meanes, viz. by prayer and faſting, or diſſembled the ſame with theſe, it is in all reaſon likely, that if I inſtructed the 4. to counterfeit then I haue done the like to the 7. in Lancaſhire alſo: but conſidering I am not accuſed thereof, and if I were I truſt they would cleare me themſelues: it is to be thought that this notwithſtandinge, I am free from teaching Iohn Starchy Anne Starchy, and the other 5. who he is then that inſtructed them, it would be knowne. Iohn and Anne Starchy with the reſt would be depoſed and examined by the L. Biſhop of London, and made to tell who it was, what his name is, that beinge knowne the world might be better ſatiſfied as touching their counterfeyting, and he whoſoeuer he is, might partake with me in puniſhment, ſeing he hath committed the like or the ſame fault. Laſtly if Io. and Anne Starchy: Margaret Hardman Elianor Hardman &c. be counterfeytes, why are they not puniſhed for counterfeyting, conſidering it is a fault deſeruing very ſeuere puniſhment, and not to be tollerated or borne with in any, much leſſe whē ſo many conſpire & ioyn togither in committing this ſaide abomination. Thus you ſee (Chriſtian Reader) in what ſtraits the Biſhop and his Chapline haue brought themſelues on which hand ſoeuer they turne them, whither to the right or left. If they ſay the 7. in Lancaſhire were poſſeſſed, then wee heare what followeth thervpon: if they affirme they counterfeyted a poſſeſſion, (and the one of theſe as is afore ſhewed it is very certaine they did) we ſee they are little or nothing holpen thereby: the onlye thinge I feare is that they will not be drawne to returne any anſwer herevnto at all: though I haue multiplyed my wordes, and enlarged my penne, and thereby wold prouoke them therevnto.

ſilence is beſt where anſweare cannot be made without a branded conſience.

Iane Aſhton is ſince fallen into the handes of certaine Seminary preiſts, and hath bene carryed by them vp and downe that country to ſundry recuſants houſes (as certaine ydle men were wont to carry puppets) and by cunning counterfeiting of certaine fits & ſtaying of hirſelf by the ſecret directions of the ſaid preiſts, ſhe hath gotten god knoweth what: they by ſuch leudnes haue wonne great credit, but hir Maieſties ſubiects haue in the meane time bene ſhamefully abuſed.

pag. 2.

Thus it is Iane Aſhton being with ſix other diſpoſſeſſed as wee haue heard, was after (embracing the popiſh religion) repoſſeſſed, & therevpon fell into the hands of certaine preiſts, who haue carryed her vp and downe the country, exorciſing and adiuring the diuell in her after their manner. Now I demaund of the Biſhop of London why theſe Seminarie preiſts haue not bene in all this time committed to priſon and puniſhed as well as M. More and my ſelfe, for beſides that they are preiſts, it is acknowledged (and it is moſt true) that thereby hir more fauor to preiſts then to miniſters of the goſpell.

hir maieſties ſubiects haue bene ſhamefully abuſed, and further it is ſaid that ſhee ſtayeth herſelf vpon their ſecret directions, whereby it ſhoulde ſeme (if one may beleue the Diſcouerer) that theſe preiſts haue taughte her to coũterfyt, at leaſt in part, why alſo is not this notorious coũter feyt puniſhed, that hath had a principall hand in this abuſing of hir ma ieſties ſubiects? but it may be ſhe is no counterfeit, for it is ſaide that through the directions of the ſaid preiſts ſhee hath gotten god knowes what: Imagine that it is the doing of ſome tricks, or as is ſaide heere the cou nterfeyting of certaine fits whether ſhe will or not as Mary Couper is brought forth depoſing, that certaine ſpeaches of mine (principally) and of certaine women, togither with her experience of the ſignes of poſſeſſion in her brother, made her to doe that which ſhee neuer thought to haue done, and this whether ſhe would or no, ſo as ſhe could not re-frayne: no maruaile then though ſhe haue not bene puniſhed for cou nterfeyting, and this is the very reaſon why of 11. counterfeyts (as ſome call them) none haue bene puniſhed for counterfeyting: no not Somers: who if it were ſo was an horrible blaſphemer, and otherwiſe moſt abominable. pag. 3. 16.

OF THE 2. CHAPTER,

The occaſion why M. Darrells dealing with Somers was called into queſtyon at Lambeth.

M. Darrell by vertue of her Maieſties Commiſſion for cauſes eccle- pag. 9 ſiaſticall being ſent for, appeared before the L. Archbiſhop of Canterbury and others at Lambeth: from whence he was committed to priſon, by reaſon of his abſurd and vntrue (but yet very confident) aſſertions: giuing therby iuſt occaſiõ to ſuſpect, that he was but a coũterfeyt: & order was taken for the further examination of that cauſe, according to the vſuall courſe by the lawes of the Realme, in ſuch caſes prouided. The iſſue whereof was, that vpon the hearing of M. Darrell, and the depoſitions againſt him in open court, before the L. Archbiſhop of Canterbury, the L. Biſhop of London, &c. he the ſaid M. Darrell was by the full agreement of the whole court, condemned for a counterfeyt: and together with M. More (his companyon) who tooke vpon him to iuſtefy the ſaid Darrell, had otherwiſe greatly miſ-behaued himſelf) they were both of them depoſed from the miniſtery, and co mitted to cloſe priſon, there to remayne vntill order were taken for theire further puniſhment.

All I affirmed at my commitment was, that Somers had not coun-terfited: Let men nowe iudge, whether that be abſurd & falce 2. whe ther ſo to affirme be heriſy: for I was commited to priſon for hereſy, & other hereſy (I then vttered not) & not for teaching Som. to counter feit: which fact was not thẽ in queſtiõ, no not vntil a month after I had bene in priſon: yea by the diſcouerers owne words, (which be that I was committed to prison by reason of (or for) my absurd and vntrue assertions? it appeareth that I was not sent to prison: for the same cause I haue bene so long deteyned in prison viz. teaching to counterfeyte. 3 Let men iudge, whither for this confident assertion I deserued to be committed to prison. what order was taken and agreed vpon by some in secret, & whither the selfe same that after was put in executiō I knowe not: but that in the examination of this cause there was a proceeding according to the vsuall course of this Realme in such cases prouided howsoeuer the Discouerer in generall termes affirmeth it, yet he maketh not the same to appeare in the particulers. Sir Discouerer you affirm indeede that I was iudicially proceeded against by due course of lawe and ordinary practise of the high commission court, according to the lawes in that behalf prouided. I pray you therefore answer mee.

1 First whether doe you knowe, that it is the vsuall course and ordinary practise of that court to deny the coppy of articles, or answers to men conuented into that court, whenas vpon their oathes they haue fully & directly answered vnto all such interrogatoryes, as haue bene objected against them? And if this be the due course & ordinary practise of that court: whether doe you knowe the same, to be according to the lawes in that behalf prouided?

2 Item whether doe you knowe, that it is the vsuall course, and ordinary practise of that court, touching the examination of any witnesses against a Defendant, to send forth commissioners into the country, and to authorise any other persons to be commissioners, then such only, as hir Maiesty by her letters patents vnder the Great seale of England, hath appoynted high commissioners? And if this be the due course & ordinary practise of that court, whether do you know the same to be according to the laws in that behalfe prouided?

3 Item whither doe you know, that it is the vsuall course and ordinary practise of that court, that the Commissioners, or other deputed by them, should menace witnesses called before them (as you your selfe Sir Discouerer did) with imprisonment, bringing vp to London, burning of their feete, or with some other kinde of vyolences in case they depose not to their humour and contentment: And if it be soe whether doe you know the same to be according to the laws in that behalf prouided?

4 Item whither doe you knowe, that it is the vsuall course & ordinary practise of that court, to examine witnesses against the defendant, without giuing him notice of the time and place of their production, and so to haue them sworne in absentia partis reæ? And if this be the vsuall course and ordinary practise of that court, whether do you knowe the same to be according to the lawes in that beehalfe prouided?

Item whether doe you knowe, that it is the vſuall courſe & ordi 5
nary practiſe in that court, for ſuch to examine witneſſes againſt the defendant, as haue no authority to take depoſitions as you Sir Diſco uerer did at London) And if it be ſo then whether doe you knowe the ſame to be according to the lawes in that behalf prouided?

Item whether doe you knowe, that it is the vſuall courſe & ordi 6 nary practiſe of that court, not to ſuffer the defendant to miniſter In-terrogatoryes againſt the witneſſes produced againſt him: And if it be ſo. then whether doe you knowe the ſame to be according to the lawes in that behalf prouided?

Item whither doe you knowe &c.that the defendant, whether 7 he be an adulterer, an inceſtuous perſon, or periured perſon&c. for the clearing of his innocency touchinge the cryme obiected, be not ſuffered to produce witneſſes, and to haue them examyned on his behalfe? And if this be the ordinary practiſe of that court, whether doe you knowe the ſame to be accordinge to the lawes in that behalfe provided?

Item whether doe you know, that it is etc. To denye ſuch as are 8
accuſed of adulterie,inceſt,periurye,etc.to haue theyre proctors & Aduocates to pleade and defende their cauſe? And if it be ſo,then whether doe you knowe that the ſame is accordinge to the lawes in that behalfe prouided?

Item whether doe you know,that it is etc.to condemne any per 9
ſon as guiltie of any offence,obiected againſt him, vnder the mouth of two witneſſes at the leaſt,and them alſo to be ſuch againſt whom by the eccleſiaſtical lawes no exception maye be taken? And if this be the courſe of that court,whether doe you know the ſame to be accor dinge to the lawes in that behalfe prouided?

Item whether doe you know,that it is ect.that ſocius criminis,be 10 admitted for a witneſſe againſt him, whom none but himſelfe can ac-cuſe? And if it be the ordinary practiſe of that court,then alſo whether his teſtimony of neceſſitie muſt be inſtar duorum teſtimoniorum omni exceptione maiorum? And whether this be according to the eccleſiaſti call lawes in that behalfe prouided?

Item whether doe you know,that it is etc.to deny vnto the defen 11 dant the ſight of the depoſitions of ſuch witneſſes,as are produced & examined againſt him? And if it be, whether is the ſame accordinge to the lawes in that behalfe prouided.

Item whether &c.to commit a miniſter of the goſpell, or any o- 12 ther man to priſon without bayle or mainpriſe, only for abſurd and vntrue, though confident aſſertions? and if it be,whether do you know the ſame to be according to the laws in that behalf prouided?

Item

Item whether doe you knowe, that it is the vſuall courſe & or 13 dinary practiſe of that court, to proceede againſt offendors in cauſes temporall? And if it be, whether doe you knowe the ſame to be acor ding to the lawes in that behalf prouided?

Item, whether &c. to proceede to the condemnation of anye
14 offendor, by any other prooſes, then ſuch only as are warranted by the eccleſiaſticall lawes of her Maieſties kingdome? And if it be, whether doe you knowe the ſame to be according to the lawes in that be half prouided?

Item whether doe you knowe, that it is the vſuall courſe, & or-15 dinary practiſe of that court, to pronounce any finall ſentence, or de finitiue iudgment of condemnation for any offence to be committed by the defendant: otherwiſe then by publique reading of the ſame ſe tence in writing by one of the Commiſſioners themſelues, the other his aſſociats by their conſents approuing the ſame: And if it be ſoe: whether doe you knowe the ſame to bee accordinge to the lawes in that behalfe prouided?

And where the Diſcouerer addeth, that the iſſue thereof was, that vpon the hearinge of me, and the depoſitions againſt me in open court, I was by the full agrement of the open court condemned for a counterfeytte: and together with M. More depoſed from the miniſtery, and committed to cloſe pryſon, there to remaine vntill order were taken for our further punniſhment:

I demaund of him who was preſent at this hearing: firſte whether I vſed any continued ſpeach then, ſaue one: and whether in the ſame I was not cut of. 2. whether being charged to teach Somers and M. Cooper his ſiſter, Kath: Wright and Tho. Darling, I ſpake any thing in my owne defence concerning the 3, laſt, one word or two excepted, concerning Kath: Wright, which rayſed vp collor in this Diſcouerer. 3. whether Th: Darling being in the court by the Biſhop of L. commaundement, was heard to ſay any thing touching my teachinge of him, or his own counterfeyting, or not counterfeyting: yea whether euer he or any other affirmed that I taught him to counterfeyte. 4. whereas the depoſitions againſt mee were heard then to ſpeak their fill, ſo the depoſitions (of the 17. taken by the 12. Comiſſioners) which are for mee, were heard to ſpeake at all, either then or at any other time before, though I haue oft and inſtantly deſired the ſame. 5. whether euer any one of my witneſſes, (who haue hundredes to cleare me) were heard to ſpeake either in court, or countre before commiſſioners. 6. whether if it be as I ſeme to intimate by theſe my demaunds, this hearing he ſpeaketh of was likewiſe accordinge to the vſuall courſe by the lawes of the Realme in ſuch caſes prouided yea or not

7. where he ſaith we are reſerued for further puniſhment, I aſke of him whether this be according to the lawes of the Realme, that we the accesſaries (if there were any counterfeyting) ſhall thus haue puniſhment vpon puniſhment, and the counterfeyts (if ſuch they were) nor any of them, be puniſhed at all: as if all the iniquity were in teachinge to counterfeyt, and none in learning and practiſing the ſame: otherwiſe (ſure) they ſhould be puniſhed as well as we, and not all the ſtrypes laid vpon M. Mores back and myne. And where it is ſaide, that I was by the full agreement of the open court condemned for a counterfeyt, it is vntrue. Neither was that or any other definitiue ſentence giuen of me. In the end we being commaunded to ſtand aſide (as the manner is) were forthwith after in the open court ſuſpended, and commaunded to cloſe priſon there to remayne till we ſhould heare further from thē. And ſo haue we done (ſaue that we haue not bene all this while cloſe priſoners) wayting when we ſhall be heard according to the Queens lawes, and be either acquited or condemned. More then this was not done, nor word ſaide.

They that ymagine Somers was not poſſeſſed, but did counterfeyt (ſaith the preface) doe by conſequence deny the the ſouereignty of our Sauiour in that action. And one of the written pamphlets: to deny the work of the diuels and God in the diſpoſſeſſion of So: may ſeeme to be after a ſorte to deny them in the goſpel. Then followeth his confutation, Indeede if M. Darrells credit were as good in ſaying, that So: was poſſeſſed, & that by his and his fellowes meanes he was diſpoſſeſſed: as the Euangeliſts and Apoſtles ought to be, when they tell vs of diuers that were poſſeſſed in Chriſts time, then their ſaid collections were pertinent. Otherwiſe manye falſe knaues from time to time, hauing deluded the people with hipocriſy, and pretence of caſting forth diuels, it is a ſuggeſtion of Sathan for any to colect that thereby the ſaid actions of our Sauiour: and his Apoſtles, are in any ſort blemiſhed: but let them rayle on. pag. 18.

If Somers were poſſeſſed and diſpoſſeſſed (as I truſt is made manifeſt) then are theſe their collections very pertinent though Darrels credit nor his fellowes, be any way to be compared with the Euangeliſts and Apoſtles: neither are the ſaid actions of our Sauiour and his Apoſtles in any ſort blemiſhed by theſe wordes, as this man ſuggeſteth, no man ſo collecting: but a man would thinke rather that they be blemyſhed, which will not receaue the poſſeſſiou and diſpoſſeſſion contended for notwithſtanding it hath ſo great confirmation from the goſpell But let them (ſaith he) rayle on. Is not heere very perylous rayling? well. If there be not heere, yet elſwhere there is, whereby they ſhew of what ſpirit they are. And this he doth by ſetting downe many rayling ſentences (ſo termed by him) which are ſcattered here and ther through out the Narration and Præface to my Apollogye: Some of which I will repeate, but of the shortest for breuity sake.

Agayn. M. Darrell hitherto could not obteyne somuch as patient audience or any iudicyall course of proceeding. Agayne, their proceedings haue bene indirect, contrary to the royall commaundement of her Maiesty, her lawes and lawfull liberties of her loyall subiects, and agayne his iudges becam e parties, pleaders, and accusers: agayne M. Darrell and M. More are now imprisoned for giuing testimony to the truth. agayne let men beware in crediting false rumours against those holy men of god, who doe nowe or shall hereafter suffer in this holy cause. Agayne I would aduise them that slaunder this worke, and persecute the seruants of god without cause to tak beede; least they be found euen fighters against god.

Thus we see what rayling the frends of this cause doe vse: let vs now consider, what rayling and scoffing (to let others goe) this mā an aduersary to the cause, and great frend to counterfeiting doth vse: that so comparing the rayling togither, we may the better discerne of it, and of these raylers.

A Patorne of Harshnets and his Lord, and Masters sobriety

This casting out of diuels is discouered to be but a pure play, contayninge two principall parts of a vyce and a diuell, let them with all their iuglyngs driue out a melancholike spirit, out of any poore soule in Bedlam. Thus much for a taste of diuel driuers legerdemayne: open the curtaine and see the puppets play. M. Darrell is thought by some to be such a one that if hee met with the diuell, he was able to curb him. If M. Darrell will be a right Exorcist after the currant fashion among the Iesuits: if he want the faith of doing myracles, he may cast his capp at them meaning diuels. when Somers was dispossessed, the deuill was shroudly dressed, he was forsooth so extreamly tormented by the fasting, prayers, and preaching of M. Darrell and the rest, as he had no leasure to say what he must doe, or what he would do, but rudely without taking any leaue of them departed. The diuell was trickt with their conceaued prayers. One diuell would haue bene mad at the name of Presbyter, an other at the sight of a minister that will not subscribe, an other to haue seene men sit or stand at the communion. And whoe knoweth whether in time, the naming of a presbitery would not haue had the vertue of a popish relique, as well to cast out a diuell, as to disclose him. If their schollers be of the new cut: they cry, they wallowe, they foame, and shew the signes mentioned in the Scriptures. There Exorcists for want of worke are driuen to their shifts, and like Tinkers walke vp and downe from place to place, seeking to be ymployed. Two points serued his turne instead of ingling slicks, heere is fast and loose as the Egyptian listeth. If the resemblances of Darrells practises to Pedlers be not fit: then as you remember Somers and Darrell colluding together, thinke vpon the pretty feates betwixt Bankes and his horse. So skilfull a catt is Darrell in hunting Darlings mouse. here

Open thine eyes then good reader and let thy consience be Iudge who is the Rayler.

vnto

vnto add that he calleth vs diuel ſlingers, Impoſters, iuglers, abſurde mates coſoning marchants, falſe knaues, &c.

A great deale more there is of this ſtampe: yea the whole boke from the firſt leafe to the laſt, is written in ſuch ſcoffing and raylinge characters, that it might ſeme rather to haue bene compiled by Nath Paſquil, or ſome Interlude-maker, then any other of ſobriety & iudgment. But the ſtile is ſutable to the matter. And ſo to returne vnto the former rayling, vſed by ſuch as contend againſt counterfeyting, and for Som: poſſeſſion: Let vs ſee what he inferreth & concludeth thervpon. Firſt, that my frends in ſo doing ſhew themſelues to be but children, which it is a ſhame for growne men to be: and that in theſe wordes Theſe are children indeede: to what rypenes in rayling thinke you they will growe, by the time they be men? To be perrilous children euē the children of the diuell: and this he doth out of Iames It is true (ſaith he) There is a wiſdome whoſe children by their outward appearance they may be well accounted. Of which wiſdome S. Iames ſpeaking ſaith. If yee haue bitter enuying aud ſtrife in your hartes reioyce not, neither be lyars a gainſt the truth, for this wiſdome deſcendeth not from aboue, but is earthly ſenſuall, and diueliſh. pag. 12.

I anſwer him, and vpon occaſion of his owne rayling and ſcoffing, retort this ſcripture vpon him thus. If it be a truth (as it is moſt true) that Som. Kath: Wright, and Darling were poſſeſſed and diſpoſſeſſed, that neither they nor Mary Couper haue counterfeyted, that my ſelfe haue taught them no ſuch thing: which this Diſcouerer auoucheth and contendeth for as a matter of truth, then for-aſmuch as he hath bitter enuying and ſtrife in his harte for the falſhood (whereof S. Iames ſpeaketh, as the wordes following doe ſhewe: for contentiō for the truth is lawfull and commendable) as appeareth by his tongue and pen, and is a lyar againſt the truth: It muſt of neceſſitye therefore be, euen by the teſtimony of the ſpirit of god, that this Diſcoverer and ſuch as he, are the children of this earthly, ſenſuall, and diueliſh wiſdome: out of his owne mouth then let this man be iudged. Pro. 13. 23. Iere. 13. 2 cor. 13. 8.

OF CHAP. 3.

How M. Darrells frendes haue ſett out the pretended diſpoſſeſſing of W. So.

The Diſc. telleth vs of certaine counnterfeyts, as of a maid of Cheſter of one Mildred the baſe daughter of Alice Norrington: of a Dvtch man with ſome others. Ergo concludeth he, Somers is a counterfeyt, & that ſuperexcellent wonder which M. Darrels fauourers, euen thoſe of the ouerworne Conſiſtoryan faction magniſye ſomuch is a counterfeyt and lewde practiſe.

Conſidering

Consideringe this very obiection is answered, and the absurditie thereof shewed in the narration, this man who taketh vpon him to confute that saide treatise, shoulde rather haue shewed the weaknes of the narrators answer tō this sayd obiection if so he could: then haue taken vp that stale obiection agayne. The narrator hath here tofore answered this argument thus: this followeth not, for we may with as good reason saye many haue not counterfeited, therfore Somers did not counterfeit 2 there could neuer any man counterfeit such thinges as Som in truth hath done. Hereunto I add, that Somers counterfeitinge followeth not here upon, except these thinges withall be true. first that this maide of Chester Mildred the Dutchman ct. counterfeited. Secondly that Som. & they carried themselues alyke: for if Sommers. were handled after a different manner from them, what letteth, that he might be no counterfeite. although they had countdrfeyted? Before then this argumente be of any force, the Disc. must shewe: that those Englysh and Dutch folkes he mentioneth, had a variable swellinge runninge all alonge their bodyes. and so of the rest of the rare accidentes whereof concerninge Som. we haue hearde: neither of which he hath perfourmed: And then also it followeth only probably. Againe, if this be a good reason, then is this also: I.N. publyshed a booke stuffed full of vntruthes. wherevpon it was called a legend of lyes: therfore. S. H. the publysher of this booke, hath so done.

Narratiō in the answer to the 1. obiection.

Moreouer it is certaine that all those the Disc. here setteth down for counterfeits, did not counterfeit, yea I thinke none of them the mayd of Kent excepted. For the mayd of Chester, it is well knowen and so many, that shee counterfeited not. And howe doth he proue the Duchman, (concerninge whose possession and dispossession there is a booke printed,) to haue dissembled? forsooth Samuell Harsnet sayth so a substantiall proofe, and worthy argument sure. He himselfe confesseth that the Maior of maydstone (a towne in Kent) Nicasius Vanderschcure (the minister of the duch church there (and Iohn Stikelbowe, with dyuers others did subscyibe to that pamphelet as he pleaseth to cal the boke aforesaide. The question and doubt nowe is whether we shall beleue this single man, and such also as we shal heare, or these other which I knowe not how many more. After this manner he proueth the rest he nameth to haue counterfeited. Although these had counterfeited it maketh nothing against vs, as hath bene shewed: yet who that is wise will beleue this mans report (for other proofe haue we none,) that they counterfeited, seeing he doth intimate no lesse by M. Throckmortons children, whose vexation by Satan was so manifest and notorius? for marke what is sayde pag. 93. moreouer he had hearde and read (meaninge Som who suerly studied the arte of counterfeitinge) some parte of a very ridiculus booke concerning one M. Throgmortons children (supposed to haue bene bewitched by a woman of Warboyse (wherby he sayth that he learned some pointe, and was not ignorant as fitt occasion serued, to ascribe what he list to witches. And this againe the Disc telleth vs in the person of Somers.

parte

It is twise affirmed that Som. learned some points from M. Throgmortons children, they therefore it is to be thought did counterfeit, for from whome are counterfeyt trickes to be learned but from counterfeyts, and such as haue that skill in those worthy feyts, as they can act them themselues? And in particuler it is said, that from them hee learned to ascribe what hee list to witches: viz. as they had donne before him. Agayne the Dis: denyeth that they were bewitched: for if they were but supposed to be bewitched, then were they not bewitched indeede. And yet it is manifest by many of their speaches and actions (mentioned in the printed booke concerning the witches of Warboys specially by their crying out vpon Allice Samuell the witch, they seemed so to be. And therfore if they were not bewitched & vexed by the Deuill they counterfeited. In a worde looke into the printed booke and you shall fynde, that if they were not vexed with vncleane spirits, they were most notorious counterfeyts, and such as before them neuer were, but saith the Disc. they were not bewitched or tormented with euill spirits: confederating with some wicked man or woman there abouts ergo conclude I counterfeyts, and so indeede the Discouerer meaneth: yet he thought it best and most for his safety becaus they were the children of an Esquier, not to say so in playne tearmes: as he doth likewise by M. Starchyes children in Lancashire. He nowe that would fayne haue the world deeme these for counterfeyts, (though for shame he dare not say so) considering whose children they were, the nomber 5. the tyme they were afflicted, aboue 3. yeares, their age being some of them about 9. or 10. yeares ould, the sundry impossible thinges to be counterfeyted donne in appearance by them, as their supernaturall swelling in their bodyes, &c. their supernaturall strength, knowledge, whereby it came to passe (to let other things goe) that one of them (M. Ioane by name) foretould that there should be twelue of them which should be bewitched in that house in one sort or other and named them all, being all weomen kind, and seruants in the house, herself and her sisters being fyue of the number, all which proued afterwards very true, for they had all their seuerall greifs, and most of them afflicted in the same sort and manner as these fiue sisters were: & furthermore that those seruants that came in their places, for the most parte of them were afflicted in the like sort as the other, for the space of two yeers togeather: and that besides two of them M. Ioane and M. Iane Throgmor-

pag. 9. 7.

the printed booke fol. 2.

ton were at the Assises at Huntington seene of the Iudge and Iustices in diuers fits, and M. Iane in her fit set in the court: both of them before such witnesses grieuously tormented, most pittifully to behould: And lastly Alice Samuell (together with her husband and daughter) was not only found guilty by the Iury of bewitching them, but besides did her selfe at her execution confesse that shee had bewitched them, and sente her spirit to torment them: Considering (I say) these thinges, and that these (with other) proofes, presumptions, circumstances, and reasons, prouing their bewitching and vexation by the Diuell were at large deli-p uered before the Iudge, and therefore vpon oath: and after published to the world, and knowne (as it appeareth) to the Discouerer, what a shamefull thinge is it, and intollerable iniury donne to those gentlewomen, and their parents yea to the Iurors and Iustices that condemned the witches, to affirme (in effect) and proclayme to all men, that they counterfeyted? And me thinketh one should not deale thus, and that aduisedly, except he thought that there were no witches, nor diuels, or at least that the diuels haue no power to torment men in their bodyes. But he that will not haue these 5, to be bewitched, but counterfeyts, (from whose counterfeyting Som: learned some of his tricks, and so not all of them from me) let him tell me in good earnest in his reply (if he be not ashamed to make any reply) what he thinketh of the Laylor his man of Huntington, for seeing he was in all respects handled as the fiue children were, it is to be thought that if they were not bewitched nor vexed by the diuell, but did counterfeit, it was so likewise with him. That he was handled alike to them, and therfore their condition alike, appeareth by the euidence of the sayd Laylor (vpon his oath) gaue, which is set downe in the booke entituled, The Arraignment and execution of the witches of Warboyse: in thes wordes followinge. Then the Laylor of Huntington gaue this euidence: that a man of his finding mother Samuell very vnruly whiles she was prisoner, at a time chayned her to a bed-poast: wherefore not long after his man fel sicke and in all respects was handled as the forenamed children were, with heauing vp and downe of his body, shaking his armes, leggs and head, hauing more strength in him in his fitts, then any two men had, crying out of mother Samuell, saying that she did bewitch him: and thus remayning in this extraordinary course of sicknes, about 5. or 6. dayes after dyed. If it fall out so that he say that this man counterfeyted too, and learned so to do of M. Throgmortons children (as Som. did in part) I thinke all that heare of it will laugh at his folly, And heere we may obserue how the Dis. to prooue Som. a counterfeyt, beareth vs in hand, first, that Tho. Darling, Kath. Wright, M. Couper, and the 7. in Lancashire were counterfeyts, Secondly the maid of Chester, Mildred &c. In a worde, that all the printed bok.

vexed

vexed indeede by the diuell, on this ſide and beyond the ſeas, among vs and the papiſts were counterfeyts, ergo (ſaith he) Somers counterfeyted. And this is, his mayne and generall argument. The antecedent or firſt parte whereof I deny, and doe deſire the Biſhop and S. H. to proue that, and then I will giue them the concluſion, and all they contend for.

For-aſmuch as M. Darrells frends doe ſo oft alleadge Tertullian. S Cypryan. S. Ambroſe. S. Auſten. S. Chriſoſtome, with Proſper, &c. it is not amiſſe to heare what Kemnitius (writing againſt the counſell of Trent) ſaith of this point, Exorciſtas ct. They haue tranſformed their Exorciſts in to magicall Inchanters. In times paſt it was a peculiar guiſt to caſt out diuells out of mens bodyes by the voyce of man, and power of god. And the ſame guiſt continued in the church in the times of S Cypryan, S. Ambroſe S. Auguſtine, S. Chriſoſtome, and of Proſper: Obſeſſi in templum adducebantur, et ſæpe communibus eccleſiæ precibus liberabantur: The poſſeſſed were brought into the church, and were often-times deliuered by the common prayers of the church: poſtea illud demum &c. But afterwards (ſaith he) that guiſt ceaſed. If M. Darrell haue againe obteyned it, let him make much of it. pag. 19.

The Diſ. perceyuing that beſides the holy ſcriptures, the auncient fathers are not only for poſſeſſion in theſe dayes, I meane ſynce myracles ceaſed, but alſo for diſpoſſeſſion by earneſt prayer: thought good to make ſhewe of this, that the teſtimonyes we alleadge out of the auntient writers are peruerted, & make not for vs at all: & why? Kemnitius ſaith ſo.

I anſwere, Peter Marter as greate a diuine as he, (to let others goe) affirmeth the contrary, as before we haue hearde. where is now this argumente, yf I ſhoulde ſaye no more? but for our better ſatiſfaction, let vs conſider what Kemnitius ſayth, and how trulye. The ſame guiſte ſayth he (meaning that power ouer vncleane ſpirits, giuen by Chriſts to his Apoſtles) continued in the church in the times of Tertullian Ciprian Ambroſe. Auſten, ct. Howe can this be ſo, ſeinge to caſt out diuels as the Apoſtles did &c. by a worde is a miracle. & that miracles were ceaſed be fore there tymes? we may remember that when and to whom this peculiar guiſt to caſt diuels out of the bodyes of men was giuen, then and to the ſame perſons was there withall giuen, to heale euery ſickneſſe and euery diſeaſe. for aſmuch then as Tertullian Ciprian, Ambroſ Auguſtine, Chriſoſtom, Proſper, had not the guyft to heale ſyckneſſes and diſeaſes, to giue ſight to the blyndect. It can not therfore be that theſe fathers had this Apoſtolicall guift, as Kemnitius affirmeth, & the Diſ. woulde haue it. yea the thinge it ſelfe ſheweth the contrary, and Kemnitius (& the Diſ. with him) ouerthroweth him ſelfe in his owne math. 10, 1, 8. mark. 3, 15. Luk. 9. 1.

words

wordes: The possessed (saith he) were brought into the church in the times of those fathers, and were often times deliuered by the common prayers of the church. Did the Apostles cast out Satan thus? or rather hauinge authoritie ouer the diuils, commaued them in the name of Iesus to go forth, and immediatly they departed? yf these fathers had the same guifte wyth the Apostles, as is here affirmed, why did they not vse it in the same manner, and with like successe that they did. I meane, the present and spedy dellyuerance of the partie possessed? but cast Sathan out after another māner, with more longer delay, greater helpe then euer the Apostles did or had? For howesoeuer there is not mention made in the scriptures of all those the Apostles dispossessed by farr, yet by infallible reasons taken out of them, it is cleare, that the Apostles did not deliuer any that were possest by the common prayers of the churche as it is here said of these auncient fathers, They had a more readie and easie way to driue out the vncleane spirit of what kinde soeuer it was. ct. by a worde, yea some times lesse sufficed. which as it did more set forth their authoritie and power ouer wicked spirits, so it commended also their doctrine and ministrie, aboue this ejecting of satan by praier, especially beinge assisted therin by others. It can not therefore be that the Apostles did at any time dispossesse Sathan by the publique praiers of the church as is here affirmed, and that truly, of those fathers. Nowe what doth these thinges argue but this, that howesoeuer the same expulsiō of Diuels out of mens bodyes continued in the churche, and was in the times of Tertullian Ciprian Ambrose Chrisostom &c. yet the Apostolicall power ouer Diuels, was before those times gone, and no man then guifted with that power: If in these deliueraunces by the publick praiers of the church whereof Kemnitius speaketh Tertullian Ciprian ct. had any peculer guift as it is here sayde: I demaund of the Diſ. (for Kemnitius is dead, and he is of his iudgment otherwise he would not haue alleadged him) first, what this guift was, for the the same that the Apostles had (notwithstanding they both say it) it is cleare it was not. 2. why rather one of these should haue a guift in casting out diuels, then the people or any of them that ioyned with them in such expulsyon, seeing the meanes whereby Sathan was cast out was prayer, and that the people present, prayed & intreted god in this behalfe, as well as these their leaders, and their prayers were not in vayne, but as well preuailed with god, as the supplycations & intercessions of their ministers: for what though percase the prayers of these holye men were more feruent, and by consequent auayled more with god, then the requests made by any priuate christian: shall we therfore ascribe such expulsiō of the diuell to one perticular man, and therewithall I knowe not what speciall guift therein? what is this ergo not by my racle.

Luk. 9.1. actes, 16.18, actes. 19.12. It is very likly also that vpon the shadowe of S. peter, deuilles went out, actes 5.15.16.

in

in effecte but to make the praiers of the reſt of gods people preſente as ſpeaches ſpoken in the ayere, and beatinge it, and ſuch as god regar deth not? 3. ſeinge by the Diſ. owne ſecret confeſſion, men were poſ-ſeſſed in Tertullian Ciprian, &c. there dayes, why not now? 4: Seeinge in the dayes of theſe auncient fathers, men were diſpoſſeſſed and Sa-tan caſt ovt by the prayers of the faithfull. why maye not men be diſ-poſſeſſed nowe vpon the vſinge of the ſame meanes? were the pray-ers of gods people then mightie with god to the expellinge of Sath an and are they of no force nowe? or rather is it impoſſible they ſhou lde preuayle ſo nowe, and in theſe our dayes, as the Diſ. becauſe Kem nitius. ſaith ſo, will needes haue it? In a worde, what letteth it that men may not nowe in this our time be diſpoſſeſſed by prayer, or pra er and faſtinge as well as when Tertullian Ciprian, Ambroſe Chriſoſt ome, Auguſtine and Proſper liued. 2 feinge that in their dayes miracles were ceaſed, and an end put to them as well as nowe: and that theſe fathers had no more a guifte to worke miracles, then M^r More & my ſelfe, whome God hath pleaſed (amonge others) to vſe in the lyke work. Theſe queſtions I deſire the Diſc. to anſwer, and I will expecte it at his handes if euer he replie excepte he be contente in plaine & expreſſe termes to yelde to this truthe. And thus we ſee that rather then the Diſc, will haue nothinge to ſaie againſt diſpoſſeſſion in theſe daies, he will bring vs yet the error at leaſt of one man: & that he ſaith ſo it is inoughe (forſooth,) becauſe he was otherwiſe greatly learned But howe proueth the Diſc, this out of the holy ſcriptures? which ſe-inge he doth not, nor I truſt can not, it is becauſe there is no light in him, yet wyſely muſt we obſerue here what Kemnitius error is, leaſt we ſhoulde doe iniurye euen to the deade. Herein he ſaid then very truly that the guift is ceaſed: and very fitly alſo againſt the Papiſt, (a-gainſt whome he writ) whoſe exorciſts chalenge ſuch a guift, where vp on as did the Apoſtles, ſo doe they adivre or charge the ſpirits to goe out, only herein he ſpake as a man and miſtooke the matter: firſt in that he tooke this guift to continue in the church vntill and in the a-foreſaid fathers times. 2 in that he thought (as it ſeemeth) that there is no caſtinge out of Diuels now, becaus that guift is ceaſed for beſides that extrordinarie and miraculus kinde of eiection of ſathan, which beinge temporarie, continued only in the churche whiles other mira-cles laſted, and together with them had an end, which was longe be-fore ſome of theſe fathers dayes: There is an other ordinarie and per petuall. viz. by prayer, or praier and faſtinge. By this meanes and af-ter this manner the aboue named fathers in ther times caſt out diuels and not by any peculyar and miraculus guift beſtowed vpon them, continuinge in the church vntill theire dayes. And thus are or may be euil spirits cast forth at this daye. and whereas he scornefully addeth If M Darrell haue againe obtained it, meaning that peculiar guift to cast out Diuels, which the Apostles had: let him make much of it: I in good earnest answere, that as I haue no such guift nor yet any spetiall guift herein aboue the least of my brethren or priuate christian so neither euer did I from the first time that I dealt in the dispossessinge of any arrogat any peculiar guift to my selfe. but haue from time to time cast the same as farr from me as I could both with my tongue and pen, & by the carriage of my selfe in this action I haue shewed no lesse, and herein may all men be confirmed as by my whole treatise before concerninge dispossession: so by that is he e aforesaide. Greatly then are they to blame, which charge me with challenging I knowe not what guift in casting out Deuils:

Iſa, 8. 20.

OF THE 4. CHAPTER.

M. Darrell did of his owne accord (after he was sent for by M. Dee, & M. Starchy) acquaint one M. More with the matter, and obteyned him to be his companyon in that action.

4. chap. How M. Darrell is made a fite instrument to cast out diuiles, then many other.

Hauing shewed the seuerall occasions of that christian dutye I performed to Kath. Wright and Th. Dawling, but corruptly. he proceedeth in the same vaine to the rest: & in the third place telleth vs how it came to passe that M. More, and my selfe went to those in Lancashire. VVhere he saith, that I went vpon the sending for by M. Dee and M. Starchy, he is deceaued. For a messenger comming vnto me frō these, I refused to goe, & returned that for answer. About some 10. weekes after (I thinking to haue heard no more of it) came an other messenger with a letter from M. Starchy, wherein he was ymportunate with me beseeching me euen for gods loue to see his distressed children, and an other from M. Iames Ashton a Iustice of peace there by, declaring the manner of their handling, & requesting my paynes to come vnto them. The next day (being the exercise day at Ashby de la zouch where I then dwelt) I made this knowne to sundry preachers, in number about 16. Their resolution was, that I should doe well to goe, and withall they thought it fit (vpon the motion of one of them, not of myne nor it M. Mores) that one of the company should goe with me, to this end principally, that if it should please God to prosper vs in that we went about, the same vpon our returne, and reporte might stand and be confirmed in the mouth of two witnesses. And heereof there be many witnesses. And then I went not vpon M. Dee his letter, so neither did I of my owne accord acquaint M. More (in perticuliar) with the matter as the Disc. pretendeth. And therefore he mistaketh or rather (I feare) wittingly misreporteth this whole matter

ter. But he proceedeth on, to the occasion of my going to Somers.

By the time that So. had his fits M. Darrell was of some name: and besides hauing a sister in lawe in Nottingham, one Mistres Wallis, she was not tongue-tyed, what a man her brother was: and thereupon being vrged by certaine weomen, she writt to M. Darrell a letter importing (saith Mistres Gray) that the Lady Zouch, she herself, and diuers other gentlwomen requested him to come ouer to see the said Somers. pag. 23.

Next to the name I had, the tittle tattle (forsooth) of my sister in lawe, and her letter importing as is heere specified, occasioned my going to Somers. But the truth is this. After So. had bene about a moneth very strangely and greuously afflicted, and that in such extraordinary manner, as therevpon he was suspected to haue an euill spirit within him causing it, Mistres Gray hauing read the prynted booke concerning Th. Darling, and of the aduice there specifyed that I gaue, made relation thereof to one Mistres Beresford, who tould her that I had a sister in lawe dwellinge in Nottingham. Heere-vpon shee was sent for, requested to write vnto me, for my speedy repaire to Som. She refused, saying that I would not come vpon her writing, but said she if you will write a letter vnto him, I will ioyne therein, and subscribe my name vnto it. Vpon this a letter was framed by one Syr Euans (as they call him) and subscribed by my sister in lawe, the tennor whereof was this.

Brother Darrell after most harty manner &c. These are not only of my self to request you, but also all the whole towne of Nott, willeth you, & also M. Strilley to take somuch paynes as to come vnto vs to a yonge man for as by the letter hereinclosed, we think he is possessed of some euill spirit: which they hearing of that good guift that the lord hath giuen you and wrought mightely by you, we generally craue your presence and assistance with vs, which we will do to the vtermost of our powers. These are therfore to request you to take the paynes to come with as much expedition as possibly yee may, and thus the lord be with you assist and keepe you now and euermore. This second of Nouember 1597.

Vnder this letter were subscribed these fewe lynes following, which they ment by the former wordes, the letter here inclosed, conteyninge the speciall thinges which induced them to thinke that hee was possessed.

His manner of taking is thus: sometimes it is in one place, sometime in an other: and when we charge it in the name of the father to auoyde, it tormenteth him, and he skriketh and cryeth, and after he is able to speake, he saith he did not skrike. And he saith he seeth diuers likenesses, sometimes a mouse, sometimes a dogge, and it perswadeth him to spoyle himselfe, and them that pray for him, and with other like perswasiõs to giue him a bage of monney, and fyne cloathes, aad to make him richer then any of the towne, if he will but one fortnight let him alone.

VVith this letter came another to the effect aforesaide from M. Aldridge the boyes pastor: when perusing this subscription, I founde diuers signes of possession, whereof some are mentioned in the gospell, others I had obserued in experience: and questioning with the messinger, heard besides of his foming, casting into the fyer, extraordinary strength &c I returned in answer that those thinges being true that they in their letter, and their messenger more at large related vn to me, the boy was vndoubtedly possessed with the diuell: and withal I aduised them to vse the meanes of fasting and prayer for his delyuerance from Sathan: but therein I said they were to spare me, for diuers reasons I rendred them, and to craue the assistance of others of greater guiftes and neerer them then I was. Heerevpon they did wright pretently to M. Iohn Ireton. and M. Iohn Browne: the one beinge then from home, the other in his answer aduised them to send for me because of the experience I had aboue others. (besides he M. Ireton I meane wrote to me to the same end) vpon this M. Maior his letter was procured and sent to me, vpon the receipt whereof I went. For thus truly I thought, that forasmuch as sundrye of the inhabitants of Nottingham and among them his maister, his pastor, togeather with the magistrate who were interessed in the boy, called and desired my poore aduice and assistance, it was my part and duty to goe, and to yealde them my best assistance, contrary to that I had purposed and written before, as being called of god to that worke: and hereabout I consulted also with two godly & learned men then in Ashby: who were eue so also perswaded, and whose allowance I had in that I did. I went not then to So. vpon my sister in lawes bare letter, neither doth the same ymport as the Disc. vnder the name of an other reporteth but being instantly requested by such as you heare: and if S. H. stand for Samuell Harsnet as all men suppose and wherof there is no doubt then knoweth he the most of these thinges as well as I: yea almoste no man better: for besides that he hath heard(vndoubtedly) of these seuerall letters (M. Ireton his excepted) many times: he may remember, that he being a commissioner, among other intergatoryes, they had one concerning the occasion of my comminge to Not. and that Mistres Gray and M. William Langford among others being deposed and interrogated thereabouts, answered that M. Maior that then was (viz. M. Peter Clarke) did write vnto me to that end, and that thervpon I came: bending their speach to the said M. Clarke who was present, as being a commissioner, Indeede this part of their depositions was not set downe among the rest as I was shortly after credibly informed formed. And now let others iudg of M. Harſnets dealing herein.

It is by the way to be obſerued that the Diſ. himſelfe (although in his ſcoffing vaine) confeſſeth that I ran not of my ſelfe to Som. nor any of the reſt but haue bene ſought vnto: from whence a probable argument may be drawne, that I did not teach him to counterfeyt nor any of the other, For if I had ſo done for gayning glory to my ſelf in a feined diſpoſſeſſing of him: ſurely (after ſo much paynes taken for ſundry yeares together) I would in all likelihood haue winded my ſelfe by ſome odd practiſe and deuiſe or other into that action, otherwiſe what had his counterfeyting bene to me, or would haue advantaged mee more then an other? true ſaith the Diſ. and therefore very cunningly you did ſo. For Som. hath depoſed that theſe wordes you ſaid vnto him in Aſhby parke: He alſo (meaning my ſelfe) tould me, ſaith Som. that he hauing a ſiſter in lawe in Nottingham, one M. Wallys, I could no ſooner name him when I ſhould be thought to be poſſeſſed, but that preſently and the rather by his ſiſters meanes, he ſhould be ſent for to come vnto me. This our ſaid meeting in the parke is hereafter ouerthrowne and therby it is manifeſt that no ſuch ſpeach was there vttered by me. But it is ſtrengthned by Edmond Garland's depoſition: Before M. Darrell was ſent for (ſaith hee) I haue bene preſent twiſe or thriſe at ſeuerall times, when Som. hath in his pretended fits vſed theſe words: Darrell, Darrel Darrell. If the deponent meane of the firſt ſending for me, that he depoſeth is falſe: if of the latter I yeald vnto it: but howſoeuer he mean and others take it, it mattereth not, becauſe it is playne by the premiſes that I went not to Som. vpon his naming me, but vpon other occaſion, whereby the falſhood of Som. depoſition doth further appeare and Garlands alſo if we reſpect the end wherevnto it ſerueth. moreouer had there bene any ſuch compact betwene Som. and me, why went I not at the firſt ſending for, being eſpecially ſo ſolemnly ſente for by a meſſenger of purpoſe, bringing with him a horſe for mee to ryde on (to make ſure I ſhould come, as ſome percaſe thought) ſuch a letter as we heare, and an other beſides from M. Aldridge? But not withſtanding this I ſate ſtill, and not only ſo, but returned beſyds ſuch an anſwer as wherevpon they write to two others as is aforſaid either of whoſe aſſiſtance had they of Nott. obteyned, we had neuer heard any thing of my teaching to counterfeyt. who can now in reaſon ymagine that there was any ſuch compact? could I be ſure that I ſhoulde be the ſecond time intreated, hauing alſo denyed in twoe ſeuerall letters to deale in that action? Indeede it ſo fell out by the prouidence of god (who had therevnto appointed me) but in reſpect of men by chance. For thus it was. One of the Earle of Huntington's men, Maiſt. Hoult by name, being at Nottingham, the Maior tould him of a pur-

pag. 8. 6.

pag. 8. 9.

poſe he had to write by him to his Lord, to be a meane to me, to com vnto them to a boy greatly diſtreſſed. M. Hoult anſwered, that he thought that neede not, for that his owne letter to me woulde ſuffyce and preuaile ſo farr with me, his place conſidered. And herevpon the ſaid letter was made, and ſent by him, who was preſently to come to Aſhby to his Lord, remayning there, where my ſelfe alſo dwelt at the deliuery whereof he made this knowne vnto me. And thusmuch touching the occaſion of my going to Som. wherein through the vnreaſonableneſſe and wreſting of my aduerſary, I haue bene inforced to be longer then I deſyred.

pag. 24. Hauinge begun the ſtudie of the law, he perceued therein ſuch greate corruption, as he gaue himſelfe to the ſtudie of diuinitie: that ſo he mighte ſerue god and kepe a good concience.

The vſe of this is to alienate the affections of thoſe which be of this calling from me, and there withall from the cauſe it ſelfe. But God is my witneſſe that I neuer affirmed any ſuch thinge, neither did the ſame euer enter into my thought. The commō lawes I hold and euer did ſince I ſtudied them, to be grounded vpon the lawe of god and reaſon, & to be of neceſſarie and ſingular uſe in the common wealth ſo farr am I and euer was from condemninge the ſtudie of them, farr therefore was that from me, the Diſc. here ſuggeſteth. Only this is true, that when the Lorde (who had longe before purpoſed to imploye me otherwiſe, and in the ſtudye of an other aw,) did draw me another waye, by layinge his hande vpon me, in cauſinge a ſtrange & extraordinary ſluggiſhnes to fall vpon me, being a ſtudent of the common lawes) euen then when I was moſt free and far from the ſam I thus thought with my ſelfe, and it may be I haue ſome times vſed wordes to this effect, that without all contradiction it were much better for me, to ſpende my dayes and ſtrength in the ſtudie of the deuine then humane lawe, and to be occupied and labour or worke vpon the ſoules of men, endeuouringe theire eternall ſaluation: then about the landes and goods of men and rightinge of the wronge, don vnto them therein which only concerneth this momentary life, and reacheth not to the bodies of men, much leſſe to there ſoules: The welfare and ſaluation of which next to the glory of god is only worthy to be ſought and laboured for: all other thinges beinge mere tryfles in compariſon thereof. Beſides conſidringe ſeriouſly of the afore ſayd hande of God, vpon me, and of the continuance of my very rare ſluggiſhnes (the lyke whereto I thinke hath bene ſeldome founde in any,) notwithſtandinge my earneſt ſtriuing againſt the ſame, I began to feare leaſt I did kick againſt the prickes, and imagine that the lord ſure woulde vſe my ſeruice in ſome other thinge, and place me in an other

other ſtandinge. And this (I ſpeake the truth in Chriſt, and lye not) cauſed me to change my minde, and tranſlate my ſtudye from the law of man to the law of God, & not any corruption in the ſame that I perceaued.

His frend forgetteth himſelf in affirming that M. Darrells life hath bene ſo ſearched into, for true it is that diligent care was had and commaundement giuen accordingly, that touching his conuerſation, otherwiſe thē apperteyned directly to his pretended courſe of caſting out diuells there ſhould not any one point be inquired into: neither was there, as by the acts in record it may appeare, and as it is ſuppoſed. M. Darrell will himſelfe confeſſe. pag. 25.

No verily, I am ſo farr from confeſſing this, that I am fully aſſured of the contrary. I haue bene very credibly informed of a ſerching after the life I led at Cambridge, and by page 95. it appeareth that vpon ſome inquiry, information hath bene giuen. How I behaued my ſelfe at Aſhby and at Nottingham the Diſ. himſelfe may remember, that he and an other Commiſſioner depoſed and examyned one Web his wife of Nottingham (at whoſe houſe at my firſt comming I made my abode for a fewe dayes) wherevpon and what moued her to intertayne me, what ſpeaches in ſecret paſſed betwene her and me, what words I vttered in the prayers I vſed while I was there, or to this effect, and not concerning my caſting out diuells or Som. counterfeiting or not counterfeyting, concerning which ſhe could ſay the leaſt of a thouſand: And for-aſmuch as this fact of the Diſ. was contrary to the commaundement giuen him, and that herein he and his fellowe commiſſioners went beyond the boundes of their commiſſion, and that the thing he did is in it ſelfe moſt intollerable, I deſire all men to conſider of it, ſpecially thoſe that be in authority. But what hath the Diſ. in all his ſearching found out? I aſke of him whoſe oxe or aſſe I haue taken, or to whom I haue done wrong? if he can tell let him heereafter declare yt.

But one thing is reported of M. Darrell, which paſſeth the reſt, and maketh it probable (you may not doubt) that God hath geuen him an eſpeciall grace aboue all other Exorciſts, now a dayes to expell diuels. For the ſay that after a ſort, he hath forſaken houſe, lands, and all for Chriſts ſake: which being an Apoſtolicall reſolution, why ſhould not he haue that guifte graunted vnto him? Indeede one is as true as the other, pag. 26.

The reaſon why it hath bene ſaid as is heere repored is, becauſe for a preaching miniſtery ſake, and ſo for Chriſt and his goſpell ſake, I changed my habitation: and when I dwelt in my owne houſe, & vpō my owne land, in my natiu country, among my kinſfolkes and acquayntance, to my full contentment and hartes delight for the thinges

of

of this life, I (through the grace of god) left all these to my losse, & pitched my tent in an other coast, and hereof I am not ashamed. And why might not he who knew this to be true, say as is aforesaide? this the Dis. scorneth, being one of those that will neither enter into the kingdome of heauen, nor suffer those that would, He seemeth by his scornfull speaches following, to thinke that there is no forsaking of house, land, and all to followe Christ, but where one selleth house, lande, and all he possesseth and giueth the mony to the poore, according to the speach, of Christ to the yong man in the gospell, if you will be perfect, sell that thou hast, and giue it to the poore. But to let this error goe, what meaneth the Dis. to call this an Apostolicall resolution? It should seme the answer giue by Peeter concerning himself, & fellowe Apostls, Behould we haue forsaken all & followed thee. But the Disc. must knowe that all this resolution to forsake all and followe Christ is not proper and peculyar to the Apostles, but common to them with all christians, yea this resolution is so generall, as he that is not resolued to forsak house land, yea and his owne life also, and all to followe Christ and his gospell, (u) is not worthy of Christ, and cannot be his disciple. Thus saith our Sauiour, (u) whosoeuer will followe mee, let him forsake himself, that is, resolue with himselfe, or be willing and ready to lose or lay downe his life for my sake whensoeuer I shall call him there-vnto, which hee must dayly expect: much more house and land and all things besids: and againe, if any man come to mee, and hate not his father, and mother, and wife, and children, and brethren and sisters, yea and his owne life also he cannot be my disciple. And here-vpon ymediatly after, he compareth him that is not resolute and ready to forsake life and all, and to endure whatsoeuer persecutions can befall him for Christ's sake, and yet professe himselfe to be Christ's, to a rash and foolish man, that beginneth, to builde, but is not able to make an end, and to an vnadui sed king, going to warre against an other, who will neither send embassage and desire peace, neither yet is able to meete him that commeth against him: and then concludeth the same thus: so likewise whosoeuer he be of you, that forsaketh not all that he hath, he cannot be my disciple. Yea obserue I beseech you heere, how by the next wordes following these of Peter (whervpon it must needs be the Dis. gathereth this resolution of forsaking all, to be Apostolicall) this is manifestly conuinced. For when Christ had vpon occasiō of Peeter's words, tould him & the other of his disciples, what reward they which had thus forsaken all & followed him should haue, that they should sit vppon twelue thrones & iudge the twelue tribes of Israell: there he sheweth that neither this forsaking of all, nor reward, is proper to them his Apostles, but common to others, saying: And whosoeuer shall forsake houses, or brethren, or sisters, math 19.21.

marke.8.34.

marke.8.34,

Luke.14.26.

or

or father or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my name sake, hee shall receaue an hundred fould more, and shall inherite euerlasting life. As if Christ Iesus had said, not only you my Apostles, but whosoeuer els shall forsake all to followe mee, shall haue the same recompence of reward with you. And this is expressly set downe by the 3. Euangelists, which argueth a greater ignorance in the Dis. From this resolution to forsake house, lands, and all for Christs sake. which I would be sorry I had not: he concludeth me to haue or to pretend to haue the Apostolicall guift, meaning, the same guift to cast out diuells and power ouer vncleane spirits, which the Apostles had. And marke what he addeth. Indeede one is as true as the other. But I say who shoulde knowe better then he, the one is more true then the other, and that the latter is as false, as the other is true. But to leaue my self. what saith the Dis. to many thousand (a) martyrs in former ages, who had not only this resolution, but did indeede forsake house, land and all yea their owne liues for Christs sake: were they all Apostles, and indewed with that Apostolicall guift, by a worde to cast out diuels, and by consequent to worke other miracles? Thus we see that whiles the Dis. in mockage blundereth out Apostolicall resolution, and Apostoliicall guift, he deliuereth doctrines rather Apostaticall then Apostolicall, I meane, such as can in no sorte be drawne from: nor agreeing with their holy writings.

math. 19. 29. marke. 10. 28 Luk, 18. 28.

By this worthy collection of the Dis. Latimer, Ridley, Cranmer, & those worthy men in Q. Mary time, the must needs haue the Apostolicall gift of casting out deuills, because they forsoke all for christ & his gospell sake

Will you knowe how he hath forsaken all to followe Christ? Hauinge two or three houses, and a litle land in Mansfeild and elswhere, left him by his father, he solde the same, and since hath liued vpon the monneye, (being as one of his frends saith) fiue or sixe hundred poundes. If then to sell land and liue vpon the monney, be to leaue all, and followe Christ, and a fit noate of one that can cast out diuels, wee shall not wante men of that trade: many vsurers in England will proone good Exorcists. Pag. 26.

It is cleare that howsoeuer he doth not in plaine tearmes call me vsurer, yet he doth intimate somuch, and would haue men so to accounte of me, But I desire all men seinge it is not so, to be better perswaded of me, and not to giue eare to this his false reporte. True it is that after certaine shorte leases which my father left me were expired, (which were worth yearely three times more to me then my lād I sould that little lande I had, as beinge not able of the annuall rent there-of (spetially in those deare yeares) to mayntaine my selfe and familie, hauinge 5. children. But it is as true, that presently with the same moneye I tooke a farme in Asbbie-delazouch, and bought some store of sheepe, kine, horses, oxen, with other thinges appertayninge to husbandry, for the mayntenanc of my houshonld, which both religion and nature taught me to prouide for. And these thinges are well

knowne

knowne to many. It is plaine then that I neither ſoulde my land to that end the Diſc. pretendeth, neither being ſould did liue vpon the money, that is, let it forth to vſurie as vſurers doe. I am ſory thus to trouble the world with the readinge of my priuat affaires, but that the vnreſonableneſſe of the aduerſarie and his ſclanderous tongue doeth there-vnto enforce me, in the iuſt defence of mine owne innocencie. But hath not the Diſc. here faithfully kepte his promiſe, in that he ſaide he would not meddle with my life: or is he not taken tardie, in that he ſaied he had not ſearched there-into.

OF CHAPTER 5.

How M. Darrell knewe Som. and the reſt, to be poſſeſſed.

M. Darrell affirmeth that Chriſt did not ordeyne any meanes to know who was poſſeſſed in the apoſtls time: but left that to be diſcerned by the maner of theire fitts, and ſo framing his iudgement accordingly, he ſaith: that the only meanes whereby now men are deſcerned to be poſſeſſed, are: the ſignes which are mentioned in the ſcriptures.

pag. 2, 7.

I neither doe nor did ſay that the Apoſtles did by no other way or meanes diſcerne who were poſſeſſed, then by the manner of their vexation by ſathan, which he calleth heere the manner of their fits, for it may be that ſome times they knewe ſomuch by ſome preſent and extraordinary guift, and ſo it is likely that Paule knew the Pythoneſſe to be poſſeſſed, and therefore I ſaide that the only meanes whereby NOW men are diſcerned &c. but this is it I ſay, that Chriſt did not ordeyne any ſuch meanes, for then we ſhoulde haue it in the Scriptures, and ſuch ordinance there I dare be bould to ſay we haue none. Beſids what neede Chriſt to haue ordeyned any other meanes for the diſcerning of the poſſeſſed, ſeeing by their manner of handling in theyre fits it was ſo manifeſt, and a diſeaſe ſo eaſy to be knowne, that the common people, yea euen the ſimple women could diſcerne thereof, as hath before bene ſhewed? yea but ſaith the Diſ. there is ſuch an ordinance: for in the 1. to the Cor. Chap. 12. among other guifts, there is mention of one, called diſcretio ſpirituum, the diſcerning of ſpirites: which ſaith the Diſ. was a meaſure of gods ſpirit to diſcerne betwixt counterfeyts, and ſuch as were indeede poſſeſſed. But we muſt knowe that the holy ghoſt meaneth hereby an other manner of guift. (u) Beware (ſaith Chriſt) of falſe prophets, which come to you in ſheepes cloathing but inwardly are rauening wolues. And againe * there ſhall ariſe falſe Chriſtes, and falſe prophets, and ſhall ſhew greate ſignes and wonders, ſo that yf it were poſſible they ſhould deceaue the very elect. And S. Paule ſpeaketh of (v) falſe Apoſtles which were deceipefull workers, tranſforming themſelues acts 16, 16.

vers. 10.

math. 7, 15, math. 24. 24. & vers. 11.

2. cor. 11. 13. chap. 4. 1.

elues into the Apostles of Christ: and of Sathan his ministers, transform-ing themselues as though they were the ministers of righteousnes. And S. Iohn saith thus: Dearly beloued, beleue not euery spirit, but try the spirits whether they are of god: for many false prophets are gone out into this world. All these beare the world in hand that they haue the spirit of god, and teach the truth, or true and only way to saluation, whereby they de-ceaue many, and yet it is not so. He now that is in-abled of god to di 1 Iohn.4.6. scerne the false prophets, and false Christs, from the true, and put dif 1 Tim.4.1. ference betwene (v) the spirit of truth, and * the spirit of error: he I say and all they haue this guift, called the discerning of spirits: which is com-mon to all the elect. But he that herein hath an excellency and sharp-nes to discerne the same aboue others, may fitly be said, and I thinke most properly, to haue this guift, In this guift Peter (as it is proba-ble) excelled Philip in discerning of Symon Magus. This guift they also may be said to haue, which can best discerne betwene those who though they preach the truth, yet they mingle the same with vayne 1 tim.1, 4. & 4. and vnprofitable doctrines (which Paule calleth fables, prophane & ould 7, & 6.20 wyues fables, prophane & vaine bablings, foolish & vnlearned questions &c. 2 tim.2.14,16, bidding vs to stay such doctrines, to put away such, to auoyd such, and 23.titus.3.& 1. to seperate our selues from such teachers:) and those which be good and profitable vnto men, the wholesome words of our, Lord Iesus Christ, & the doctrines which be according to godlynes. This is it that the spirit of god meaneth by the discerning of spirits, and not a guift or measure of god's spirit, whereby to discerne betwene counterfeyts, and such as were indeede possessed, which neuer any dreamed of before the Discouerer. And no maruaile. For there is no such difficulty to discerne betwene count-erfeyts and the possessed indeede. VVhosoeuer looketh into the gos-pell and considereth of the manner of their vexation by Sathan, who are there saide to haue bene possessed may easily knowe when one is possessed. No phisitian can so easily and surely discerne the disease of his patient by pulse, vryne, and other signes: as a christian man of vn-derstanding, may by the signes of Sathan his possessing one, discerne of possession. And reason will teach men to discerne of counterfey-ting viz. whether those thinges they behould can possibly come ey-ther from nature, or arte.

It is also to be obserued that the Dis. speaketh of the time past, and not of the time present: It would be knowne (saith he) what that guift WAS. he doth not say, what that guift is, and againe, a guift to discerne betwixt counterfeyts, and such as WERE possessed, he saith not such as are possessed: whereby it is playne that in his opynion this gu-ift whereof he speaketh is gone, so that none is now able to discerne betwene a counterfeyt, and one possessed: Howe is it then that the Disc.

Dif. taketh it vpon him to iudge that Somers and the reſt be counterfeyts. What fooles doth the Dif. make of men? and what a difficult thing is it forſooth to iudge in this caſe? Surely he thinketh that none can be now poſſeſſed, and then no maruaile though his guift be withered, for to ſay (men at this day being poſſeſſed) that none can deſcerne, whither they counterfeyte or no, it is too abſurd to ſpeake of.

OF CHAPTER 6.

Of M. Darrell's knowledge. who ſent the diuell into Somers and the reſt.

page. 36, All the diuels that M. Darrell hath hetherto encountred, were ſent by witches (as it ſeemeth) into his patiens. Whether witches can ſende diuels into men or weomen (as many doe pretend) is a queſtion, among thoſe that write of ſuch matters: and the learneder and ſounder ſort doe holde the negatiue, againſt whome Thyreus oppoſeth himſelfe, and with Thyreus M Darrell.

It is the Lorde (if we ſpeake properly) that ſendeth diuels into men. Shall we receaue good at the handes of God (ſaith Iob) and not receaue euill? meaning, the euill of puniſhment. And the Prophet Amos Iob, 2, 10, chapter 3, 6. Shal ther be euil in a citty & the Lord hath not done it? That then I mean and affirme is this: that Sathan being ſent of god and ſo permitted, to enter into one, as ſometimes he was into Darling Somers &c. the diuell being thus ſent, ſtirreth vp the corrupt affections of ſome, with whome (as I may ſay) he hath ſome familiarity, and laboreth to brīg them to hate that ſame perſō, and in that hatred, after their accuſtomed manner, by him or his miniſtery to be reuenged of the party. And whereas without this, he is to enter into and poſſeſſe the ſaid perſon, and will: yet taketh he oft this courſe, that thereby he may draw men to ſynne, which is the very worke and labour of his handes, and (as by his practiſe it ſhould ſeeme) to ſhame and puniſhment withall: for not only with our afflicted perſons, but others alſo, as one Margaret Heriſon of Burnham vlpe, (concerninge whoſe vexation by Sathan there is a booke printed) M. Throgmortons children, with ſundrye more, either poſſeſſed, or otherwiſe vexed by him, the diuell ſo ordered the matter, as that the party, or partyes, whome he had before ſtirred vp to ioyne with him in the afflicting of them, he diſcouered and made knowne to the worlde: and this wee may well thinke hee doth to this ſecond end, becauſe it is his manner to bring one firſt to ſynne, and the ſynne being perfected, to chaſten them to ſhame and puniſhment, as he did by Iudas, neither is it to any purpoſe to obiect that witches are very ſimple folkes, and know not what belongeth to poſſeſſion: for that they direct not the ſpirit thereunto, but ſpeake

only

only to their ſpirit or familiar, of tormenting the party whome they hate, (as appeareth by their confeſſions) the diuell of his owne accord entring into the parſon to be poſſeſſed, vnto which fact and ſeruice the lord himſelf hath indeede appoynted him. And where the Diſ. ſaith that the learneder and ſounder ſort doe holde that witches cannot ſend diuels into men, if he vnderſtand not by that he calleth ſending, as is aforeſaide, he ſaith nothing againſt me, nor to the matter: but if ſo as I ymagine he doth, then I demaund of him, who I know conſenteth heerein with theſe greate learned men: why witches and their familiar ſpirits may not alwell agree togither in this ſpeciall caſe as in others where Sathan killeth men, or beaſts, or ſtrangely vexeth them by ſome externall operation, which we call witcheryes? ſeeinge all is meerely a tormenting of the body by Sathan, the difference lying in the manner of it, which I truſt is by the witch left to the will and diſcretion of the diuell? as this latter we all knowe is confirmed: by the confeſſions of thouſands of witches and that in all ages from time to time, ſo is this other alſo by the confeſſion of ſome. Yea but ſaith the Diſ. to obiect the confeſſion of the witches is ro no purpoſe, and is already anſwered by the former learned men. His words be theſe: And touching the confeſſion of the witches themſelues: that may be leſte well inough to ſuch learned men as haue written ſufficiently of it. pag. 381

I deſire now to know of the Diſcouerer who haue made anſwer to the confeſſions of the witches themſelues, but they that hould that there are no witches as Wierus and Scot, which are the ſound and learned men he here ſpeaketh of, for theſe men maintayning this falſe poſition that there be no witches, muſt needes anſwer to the confeſſion of the witches themſelues: which euery one would obiect. And this ſaith he theſe lerned men haue done ſufficiently: whereby it is playne that this man is of the ſame opinyon with them. But he thought it wiſdome not to ſay ſo in playne termes, leaſt he ſhould prouoke the reuerent Iudges of the land againſt him, for that ſo ſaying he made them guilty of innocent bloude.

It is to be remembred that howſoeuer in plaine and expreſſe wordes the Diſc. doth not affirme, that none can in theſſe dayes be diſpoſſeſſed, yet in effect he doth it vnder the name of Kemnitius: So albeit he doe not ſaye that none can be now poſſeſſed with diuels, yet conſideringe his couert carriage of him-ſelfe there-in, not once grantinge (I warrant you) in all his greate volume any ſuch thinge, and that he will haue all the poſſeſſed perſons among vs and the Papiſtes alſo counterfeits, as appeareth by this his firſt booke; who can cõiecture any other, but that he holdeth, that none can be at this day poſſeſſed? In like-ſorte I ſay he doth here by witches, not plainly denyinge any ſuch to be, but ſecretly inſinuatinge as much to the reader Thus wee ſee he doth deny (but couertly diſpoſſeſſion of diuels. 2. poſſeſſion with diuels. 3: all compact with diuels to the hurt of others If he procede but one ſtepe further, it wil be couertly to the denial of diuels. VVell this I dare be boulde to ſay of the Diſc. whoſoeuer he be: that howſoeuer he profeſſe that he beleueth in god, and that there are diuells, yet by this very worke of his, (this Diſcouerie. I meane (he denyeth both.

OF. CHAP. 7.

OF THE CAVSES PRETENDED, WHY MEN ARE POSSESSED.

Alyce Goodrig of Staphenhill in Darbiſhire hauinge a ſpirit called Minnye in the likeneſſe of a dogge, partie colored, red and white, did ſende
pag. 37. the ſame to torment, Thomas Darling: the ſeauen in Lancaſhire were (as
pag. 42. it ſemeth) poſſeſſed by the meanes of one Edmond Hartley. and a little after: But Thomas Darlinges veniall ſinne exceeded the reſt: for he meeting Alice Goodrige in a coppice, did let an eſcape (as the book tearmeth it which ſhee takinge to be done in her contempt, vſed theſe wordes, Gip with a miſchife and fart with a bel, I will goe to heauen & thou ſhalt goe to hel. And there-vpon her Minne entred into him.

Howſoeuer the Diſc. derideth this reported in the booke of Darlinge. and no maruell, ſeeinge he is perſwaded that there are no witches: yet there is in reaſon (how ſtrange and incredible ſo euer it ſeeme to carnall reaſon) to perſwade vs to receiue it for a trueth. for firſt we haue Alice Goodrige the witch confeſſinge this of her ſelfe and that ſundrie times 2. the circumſtances mentioned in her confeſſion are true. vpon ſuch a day ſayd ſhe, I met Darlinge, in ſuch a place or wood called the coppice and the boy leting an eſcape, as the booke termeth it, I miſtaking the boy for one Sherrats boy, who had before broken me a baſket of egges vſed theſe wordes: Gip with a miſcheife &c. and there with-all bad my Mimie goe and torment him: who after returninge vnto me, ſaid he had done ſoe. Conſideringe now that it is very true and knowne ſo to be to others, that this Alice met Darlinge vpon the daye and in the place named, that Darlinge then and their did, and Sherrats boy alſo before, as is here ſpecifyed, and that ſhe vſed theſe wordes aforeſaid, and laſtly that the very ſame night Darling began to be ſicke and ſo continued worſe and worſe, vntill it was as euident as the daylight at noone, that he was tormented by the diuell: who (I ſay) conſideriug theſe things, can in reaſon otherwiſe thinke, but that ſhee ſaith truly concerning her ſending of her Minny to torment Darling. As then it is certaine, yea ſo certaine as without bluſhing it cannot be denyed, that Darlinge was tormented by the diuell, ſo it is hereby very playne that Alice Goodrige did thereabouts

confede

confederate with her familiar ſpirit. Moreouer in that we reade the like of others we are thereby to be confirmed herein. Alice Samuell a witch of Warboyſe confeſſed (as is ſet downe in the printed booke) that ſhee ſent her ſpirit called Pluck, to M. Throgmortons children, and willed him to goe and torment them. And that they were tormented by the diuell, euen 5. of his daughters, it is notoriouſly knowne, aud ſo generally receaued for truth, as the Diſ. himſelfe dareth not deny it, though fayne he would, as appeareth by his nibling at them. If this now were true, that Alice Samuell ſaith of herſelfe: why ſhoulde not the like confeſſed by Alice Goodrige of herſelf, be alſo true? And yf the one of theſe ſtrengthened eſpecially by ſundry circumſtances we can all of vs beleiue: why ſhould we not credite the other alſo, confirmed by as many, yea more and as ſtrong circumſtances as the other? But what is it that offendeth the Diſ. ſomuch and maketh the confeſſion of Alice Goodrige ſo incredible, yea ridiculous vnto him? doth this offend him, that ſhee ſent her familiar ſpirit to goe and torment him? or this, that ſhe was ſo malitious and cruell vpon ſo ſmall occaſion? or this, that her ſpirit was in the forme of a dogge? or this, that her ſpirit had a name, (viz. Minny) agreed vpon I meane betwixt them? or this, that the deuill did vſually (as it ſhould ſeeme) appear vnto her like a little dogge? or rather all theſe, and eſpecially that any man or woman ſhould haue ſuch familiarity & entercourſe of ſpeach and thus compact or confederate with the diuell? Leaſt theſe ſhould be as ſtombling blockes in our way, as it ſhoulde ſeeme they are in the Diſcouerers: let vs add to that is aforeſaide, theſe twoe thynges. Firſt, that this laſt, which is the ſtrangeſt and indeede all in all, is according to the ſcriptures: and that ſome of theſe reſt haue likewiſe in the generall, though not in the particuler, confirmation from the holy ſcriptures, for by them it playnly appeareth, that among the ſonns and daughters of men, there are ſome which haue familiarity with diuels, haue ſpeach and compact with them about this and that action. chap. 28. 7. Heerevnto ſerueth that in the firſt of Samuell· where the witch that Saule repayred vnto, is ſaid to haue a familiar ſpirit. And in that the diuell at her call, appeared vnto Saule in the likenes of Samuell, and had ſpeach with him: what ſhould let vs to thinke, that if not always yet ſomtimes, and when ſhe would, the diuell appeared vnto her in this or that forme and had ſpeach with her? Furthermore in that theſ are ſaid to worke with ſpirits, we are thereby to learne that the diuell and they confederate in the ſame workes, and therefore (no doubt) this phraſe or manner of ſpeach is vſed. Yee ſhall not (ſaith Moſes) regard them that worke with ſpiriis. And againe if any turne after ſuch as worke with ſpirits. The ſecond thing to be obſerued is, that not onlye Levit. 19. 31. Lev. 20. 6.

The Araignme & execution of the witches of warboyſe.

Alice

Alic Samuell but thousands o ther haue confessed the like, as strange and incredible as these of Alice Goodrige, and the truth of the same haue bene confirmed by many circumstances, wherevpon these kind of people, (witches I meane) haue receaued the punishment due to such malefactors. Neither did this Alice Goodrige escape vnpunished: but was for this very fact and no other committed to Darby gayle by a Iustice of peace, found guilty thereof by the iury, and by my Lord Anderson adiudged to ympriſonment, where since she dyed. Nor yet Edmond Hartley who after he was found guilty by the iury, was adiudged by the Iudge to death, and accordingly executed. Now if this concerning Alice Goodrige and Darlyng which was the very euidence giuen at Darby against her, be a meere ieſt & ridiculous matter as the Diſc. maketh it, and that indeed there was no such thinge, (this Darling being as M. Harſnet would haue it a very counterfeyt boy, and in that respect also the case nothing so in truth) who seeth not, that to make the best we can, he doth thereby condemne, Iudge, Iustice, & Iury of simplicity: and he is the only man (forsooth) that hath had a true and thorough insight into this matter. VVhether this man be in the Premunire that hath so directly and publiquely impeached the iudgment giuen by the Queenes Iustices against the saide Alice for bewitching of Darling, specially sentence beinge giuen heerein. I desire the reuerend Iudges of the Common Lawes of England (who can best iudge heereof, and whome it cheifly concerneth deliberately to consider. And if it fall out so that he be not in case of Premunire yet sure it is such, and so notorious an abuse, as they I trust in their wisdomes will see redressed.

Pag. 38. VVhere in this chapter the Disc, calleth Thirens my Maister & in this whole first booke of his semeth to match vs together, as maister and scholler: and in many places doth pretende as though I had learned I.knowe not what from him: surely he greatly forgets himself for wel he knoweth that in other doctrines, I dissent a litle more from the Iesuite and the rest of that generation then he, for all his glose and faire shew in this his booke, and therfore it is very vnlikly that I should so throughly agree with him in the doctrines of possession and dispossession, as vsually the master and scholler doe. neither can he be ignorante here-of, who is so well studied in Thirens, that Thirens his treatise from which I should learne forsooth all my skill, came to light an. 1598. which was after all our 10. persons were dispossessed, and the saide booke not to be had in Englande, vntill after I was in in the Gatehouse (that I knowe of) and therfore it can not be that I learned any thinge for my practise hitherto from him. except I wente beyond the seas vnto him, and had it from his owne mouth. But I mar-

ue

uell where this first booke of the fiue had bene, if Thireus booke had not come to the Disc. handes, before this Discouerie came from them: for whosoeuer hath read Thireus, may easily see, how that as wind filleth a bladder, and so maketh it bigg, which in it selfe is little: so hath Thyreus treatise of Demoniakes made the first booke of the Discouerers to swell greatly.

OF CHAP. 8.

Of the meanes alleaged by M. Darrell and others, whereby men are dispossessed.

The ordinary meanes ordtyned to continue in the church for the casting out of diuells M. Darrell maketh to be very ancient. For he saith: that it hath bene in the church since the fall of Adam. Pag. 42.

Seing this meanes hath not only continued in the Church since Christs time, but was before, as may be collected out of the * Scriptures, and that we reade not of the first ordeyning of any such meanes: why may we not well thinke, that as god in mercy left and ordeyned meanes in nature, for the curing of the naturall diseases and infirmityes of mens bodyes, euen from the time mans body was subiect vnto them. so he did appoynt this supernaturall meanes, for the healing of this supernaturall disease, from the time it also was subiect thervnto, which is the fall of Adam. But saith the Dis. Herein Darrell hath no great certainty, for he confesseth that there is no mention in the olde testament, of the institution of that meanes. And so of likelihood men were possessed from time to time during the space almost of 4000. yeares, God himself hauing ordeyned no wayes to cure them. Out of my own mouth and confession, he pretendeth to conuince me. But marke how vnskil fully he doth it. Darrell himself confesseth, that there is no mention in the olde testament of this meanes, which he saith hath bene in the church synce the sale of Adam: by his saying then it is likely, that men being possessed about 4000. yeares, god ordeyned no way to cure them. He should haue inferred of my said confession, men therefore being possessed about 4000. yeares god in writinge left no specyall or peculiar meanes all that time for the curinge of them, but instead therof he concludeth as we heare. But let vs take the argument as he himselfe hath framed it: In the olde testament there is no mention of this meanes or medicyne to cure the possessed. Therefore from Adam to Christ there was no such means or medicine ordeyned of god to heale them. I answer, that the argument followeth not, as may appeare by that which followeth. In the olde testament there is no mention of speciall means or medicines to cure feuers, or other diseases, therefore God hath ordeyned no meanes or medicines to heale men so diseased. And heere I might proceede to a thousand instances. The reason why this consequece is not good

* math. 12. 27. actes, 19. 13. pag. 43.

is, becauſe many yea almoſt infinyte thinges are decreed in the ſecret and æternall counſell of god, and knowne ſo to be of man, which are not ſet downe in his reuealed will: ſo that although there be no ordinance as touching the healing of the poſſeſſed by prayer, or faſting and prayer mentioned in the ould teſtament, yet notwithſtandynge the ſame might well be a meanes ordeyned of god for the curinge of ſuch. Secondly, we may aſſure our ſelues that god reuealed many of his ordinances to them which liued vnder the lawe, which were not ſet downe in the ſcripture of the olde teſtament: becauſe howſoeuer now to vs vnder the goſpell, and in the laſt dayes * god ſpeaketh only by his ſonne, bidding vs * heare him in his word. * and miniſtery, ſo as at this day for our information in the Lordes will and pleaſur with man, we are to goe to the holy ſcriptures only, and the miniſters of Chriſt deliueringe that which from them they haue receiued: yet at ſundry times and in diuers manners god ſpake in the olde times to our fathers, beſides by the ſcripture of the old teſtament, as by his prophets, by dreames and, viſions, and by vrim: well therefore might prayer and faſting be, not only the ordinance of god for the caſtinge of Sathan out of the bodyes of men, but alſo reuealed and made known to be ſuch to the Church of god then, albeit the ſame were not mentioned in the old teſtament. From this argument the Diſ. procedeth to a ſecond, wherein alſo there is as little art: taken from the teſtimony of Thyreus, and that he doth in theſe wordes

Heb. 1. 2.

Matth. 17. 5. Luke 10. 16.

Heb. 1. 1.

1 Sam. 28. 6.

But in ſaying that the ſame meanes doe continue nowe in the church, that were in vſe before the comming of Chriſt: that his maiſters the popiſh exorciſts, will condemne as an error in him. For one of them ſaith, that the wayes of caſting out diuells in the olde Teſtament, iam vetuſtate, ſi non alia de cauſa antiquatæ ſunt, et abolitæ, as being growne in dotage, are nowe abolished for their age.

pag. 43.

Thyreus par. 3. cap. 41.

Behold his confutation. Surely this man was barrayne of arguments, otherwiſe he would neuer haue run to Thyreus for ſo abſurd a one as this is, to conuince me with. If he had produced the teſtimony of an antient father or late writer he had ſaid ſomething: and yet it had bene argumentum in-artificiale, an argument wherein were no art at all, eſpecially in a matter of religion, which is to be decided by the holy ſcriptures and not by the writings and opynions of men. But for the convincing of me a miniſter of the goſpell, to produce the ſaying of Thyreus a Ieſuite and ſuch as hath neither ſap nor ſauour in it, is to beate the ayre, & not to diſpute. Thus he may as well conuince me in not ſo fewe as an hundred ſeuerall points of doctrine, as the nō ber of ſacraments, the preſence of Chriſt in the bread and wyne, &c. wherein the Ieſuite diſſenteth from that which I with the church of god doe hould and maynteyne.

M. Darrell holdeth that in the Apostles time, there were two sortes or kyndes of casting out diuels, the one ordinary, which was in the church before the comming of Christ: viz. fasting and prayer, and the other extraordinary, viz. commaunding of Sathan to depart in the name of Christ. pag. 43.

Of this latter kinde of eiection of Sathan there is no question, the doubt is whether the first was in the church in the Apostles time and that resteth to be discussed. Seeinge wee reade of a castinge out of diuells by fastinge and prayer, euen then when Christ himselfe was vpon earth: (for Christ saith not, this kinde shall not goe forth as speaking of the time future, or that which afterwardes should be, but this kinde goeth not out, as meaning of the time present, & that which then was done or in vse:) and that after this manner the Apostles did not dispossesse the diuells as is made euident (I trust) where I treat of this scripture: it must needes be that this kinde of eiection of vncleane spirits, viz. by prayer or prayer and fasting, was in the church in the Apostles time. And this is confirmed by these wordes of our Sauiour: If I through Beelzebub cast out diuels, by whome doe your children cast them out? therefore they shall be your iudges. By whome (saith Christ) doe your children cast them out? as if he had said, though Beelzebub or by the spirit of god? by which interrogation is insinuated, doe they it not by the spirit of god? for you say not of them neither will saye, that that they doe, is done by the diuell: therefore that is, because you say that your children cast out diuels by the spirit of god wherein indeede you say truly: and in the meane season affirme that I cast them out by Beelzebub: and so of the like actions, done by the same finger, giue a contrary iudgment, which is a most vnrighteous thing, they shalbe your iudges: that is in the day of iudgment shall testify against you: according to which testimony, god shall iudge you. It is now to be considered, by whome and by what manner this was done, whether by the Apostles, or some other which had frō Christ receaued the same power with them ouer vncleane spirits, and so by commaunding Sathan to depart in his name, or by some other kynd of men, and after an other manner: First then we are to knowe that by those which are heere called your children, meaning Iewes which in Christ's time cast out diuels, cannot be vnderstood coniurers, because they cannot well be said to cast out diuells as is heere saide of these: for how can Sathan driue out Sathan? but specially, for that Christ approueth of this eiection, and secretly confesseth it to be done by the spirit of god, Neither hereby may we (although many doe) vnderstand the Apostles or Disciples, nor yet any who expelled euill spirits by commaunding them in the name of Iesus Christ: bycause these

math. 17. 19. marke. 9. 24.

math. 12. 27. Luke 11. 19.

marke. 3. 25.

theſe their children the Phariſes confeſſed to caſt diuells forth by the power of god, but this as they denyed to Chriſt, ſo it cannot be but that they would deny the ſame alſo to all of his houſhould, & to whō ſoeuer that ſhould playnely and directly in his name, and by any power receaued from him caſt forth Sathan: for the diſciple is not aboue his maiſter, nor the ſeruant aboue his Lord. It is enough for the diſciple to be as his maiſter is, and the ſeruant as the lord. If they called the maiſter of the houſe Beelzebub, how much more them of his houſholde? And as the phariſes becauſe of theire extreame mallice againſt Chriſt, which muſt needes extend it ſelfe to his diſciples, could not but be farr from the approuing and commending of any greate worke done in the name of Chriſt, ſo alſo for that they could not indure that the people ſhold beleeue in him, but when any myracle was done that might cauſe or helpe forward that ſame, they were readye to burſt for anger. That this generation of vypers then, who excommunicated the blind man for bearing witneſſe to the work that Chriſt had wrought vpon him, and ordeyned that if any man did confeſſe that he was Chriſt, he ſhoulde be excomunicate out of the Synagogue: who conſulted togither to put Lazarus to death, becauſe for his ſake many of the Iewes went away, and beleued in Ieſus: would acknowledge that worke to be done by a deuyne power, (and ſo allowe and commend it) which was done in the nāe and power of Ieſus Chriſt, and was very effectuall to bring the Iewes to beleue in Chriſt, as they did heere of this eiection of diuells performed by their children, as a thing euen impoſſible. For theſe two reaſons it cannot be, that they who are ſaide heere to caſt out dyuelles, were either of the Apoſtles or 70. diſciples of Chriſt, or any other that by power communicated from Chriſt did in the extraordinarye manner caſt forth wicked ſpirits. If therfore euill ſpirits were caſt out of ſome in the Apoſtles time, and not by the Apoſtles nor by any others after that extraordinary manner the Apoſtles did, viz. by commaunding of Sathan to depart in the name of Chriſt Ieſus, as by the Scripture is manifeſt: muſt it not needes be, that then there was an other manner of eiection beſides that extraordinary vſed by the Apoſtles and diſciples of Chriſt? and why may we not ſay, that it was by prayer, or prayer and faſting, conſidering thoſe wordes of our Sauiour, This kinde can by no other meanes come forth, but by prayer and faſting? The former of theſe Caluine writinge vpon this very place, doth not only affirme, but alſo confirme and proue out of the ſcriptures, and to the latter he doth very much inclyne, although he doe not fully auouch the ſame.

Filios eorum quidam accipiunt &c. their childrē. ſoe take for the children of that whole nation: and ſome thinke that the Apoſtles were ſo called. Others

refer

math. 10. 24.

Iohn 11, 48. & 12, 10.

Iohn 22. 34,

Iohn. 12. 10,

Luk 10, 17.

math. 17, 21, marke 9, 29.

Caluin harmo.

referr them to the olde Prophets. But I doubt not but that he vnderstandeth the Exorcists of whome then there were many among the Iewes, as appeareth by the 19. chapter of the Acts. for it is likely that they did iudge no better of the disciples of Christ, then of the maister. And presently after speaking of the originall of these Exorcists he saith this: Ita fieri potest vt invocato Dei nomine, dæmones fugarent &c so it may be, that by calling vpon the name of god (that is by prayer) they did cast out diuells: and the people hauing had experience of such power of god, did rashly ordeyn vnto themselues an ordinary function.

But the Disc. laboreth to confute, first by producing M. More his contrary iudgmente. I answere, that M. More and my selfe are fellowe minnisters, and that the same is no more a conuiction of my opinion then mine of his. And what although we dissent not only here in, but in some other points also concerning the doctrine controuerted, which the Disc. I warrant you seeth out and pursueth to the vttermost, are we not men and subiect vnto error as well as others? And is it such a rare matter to see two differ aboute the interpretation of the same place of scripture? and of such vse, as the same (forsooth) must needs be published to the worlde? surely nothinge lesse. But this vse wee may make of it, that the same considered, it is not likely there was any such deuise or confederacie as the Disc. affirmeth in the 15. page of his Discouerie. His wordes be these. Of these premises it woulde peraduenture anger them, if any should collect, that in all likelihoode, seeinge neither by learninge nor sufficient argumentes, they coulde heretofore preuaile, for the settinge vp of their presbyteriall conceits, they thought to supply: there wants therein, by this deuise of castinge out diuels. In pressinge the difference in opinions betwixt vs, the Disc. ouerthroweth the likliehood he here speaketh of, more then he was aware. Secondly, he goeth about to conuince me by two arguments of his owne: the first where of is sett downe in these wordes. To hould with M: Darell, that there was an ordinarie meanes to cast out diuels in Christs time, doth derrogat much from the honor of his miracles in casting out Satan. pag. 44. I answere, no: no more, then to hould that there was then an ordinarie meanes to heale other diseases and infirmities of mans body, doth derrogat from the honor of his miracles. in healinge persons so diseased or affected, but here of he giueth a reason: for the infidels might haue surmised, that Christ had done it by the ordinarie meanes, hauinge vsed the same secretly with-out there knowledge, The vnbeleuing Iewes coulde no more surmise thus, then in his curinge of naturall diseases, that he did the same by naturall meanes, or medicines secretly applied vnto them before. And neither of these coulde they in any reason so much as surmise, considering the infinit number he healed, and that immediatly, so soone as he saw them, yea often times before. vpon the touching of the hem of his garment. His seconde argument followeth. moreouer, it maye argue the ex-

pag. 44. traordinarie meanes to be superfluous: there beinge then an ordinarie, mea- nes, and that of such facillitie, as will after appeare. no. for the expulsion of satan by the extraordinarie meanes. ct. by a worde, so as Christ no sooner spake. or the Apostles in his name, but the euil spirit went out;
did most manefestly and palpablie (as I may saye) sett forth, or publish and preache to al men, the dietie of Christ Iesus: which the ordinarie by callinge vpon the name of God, did not. 2. The extraordinary and miraculus eiection by a worde, yea some times by the very shadowe of one, so guifted, or kercheiefs or handkercheifs carried from such, argued a far greater power and authoritie ouer vncleane spirits and so did more commende and dignifie such persons and there ministrie, then the eiection by the ordinarie meanes. The extraordinary therefore, was not superfluous but of singuler vse, notwithstandinge there was then an ordinarie meanes. Neither is the ordinarie, of such facillitie as the Disc. imagineth. Is it so easie a thinge to pray, or to be so affected with the miserie of an other, as to sende vp sighes or gro-nes to the Lord in their behalfe? Indede to babble or to vse the labor of our lippes for our selues or others is an easie matter, commō to the prophanest that liue: but to labour inwardly in our spirits, or to offer psal. 25. 1. vp a spirituall seruice acceptable to God in Christ, or as the Prophet Dauid saith, to lift vp our harts to god, with sighes and groanes for our selues or others, they beinge fast glued to the earth, and naturally gi-uen to looke thyther, is a verie vneasie hard and difficult thinge: and far more vneasie to continue and holde out any time therein: & hard liest of all can wee be contented, and that for the good of an-other, to waine our selues for a daye from meate and drinke, and all other comfortes of this life: Our profits and pleasures, afflictinge & humb-linge our soules together ther with. That this is not a matter of such facillitie as the Disc. affirmeth, lamentable and dayly experience doth shewe. But if we will speake of a facillitie, in castinge out deuils, then must we goe to Christ & his Apostles, who no sooner spake the word but it was donne, yea som times with more facillitie then a worde, as is layed downe before.

pag. 45. M. Darrell confessing the necessity of fayth in the said ordinary mea- nes, saith: that neither the faith of doing myracles. nor the iustifying faith is therein necessary: but that the temporary, or historicall faith may suffice.
It being here obiected, that an historicall faith sufficing, (as is before expressed) and that the prayer and fasting in such as haue but that faith cannot please god: it will followe that the ordinary meanes which Christ hath left in his church for casting out of diuels as necessary, is such a meanes as is not accept

acceptable to almighty god. M. Darrell answereth, that the consequence is not good, and so that poynt lyeth.

And so he answereth againe, and againe will, if the Disc. sholde ympleade him a thousand times. Surely one wolde thinke this argument followeth not. The prayer and fasting of such as haue only the temporall or historicall faith, cannot please god in Christ, to the obteyninge of any spirituall blessing: therefore not to the casting out of Sathan, or obteininge of their corporall benefit: and so by consequence, wee haue a meanes to cast out diuels, if this be one, which is not acceptable or pleasing vnto god. Yf the Disc. reply that he doth not so vnderstand the Antecedent, or first part of this argument, as I set it downe, then I ment not to deny the argument, neither doe I now, but the Antecedent, which must be this The prayer and fasting of such &c. cannot please god to the obteyninge of any blessing, (that is so farr preuaile with god) otherwise he concludeth nothing. Now this is false. For the prayers and humiliation of the wicked, may auayle with god to the obteyning of a corporall benefit, and remouing of a temporall iudgment from himselfe or an other, and such is possession, and deliuerance therefrom: albeit the fae is not effectuall to procure a spirituall blessing, as the remission of sins and such like. Ahab fasting and humblinge himselfe, though it were but outwardly and not in soundnesse and syncerity of hart, did thereby escape not only himselfe, but his sonn also that punishment which otherwise had certainly ouertaken them both. Thou shalt not (saith the lord by Moses) doe iniury to a stranger, neither oppresse him: yee shall not trouble any widdowe, nor fatherlesse childe: if thow vex or trouble such, & so he call and cry vnto me, I will surely heere his cry. And a little after if thow take thy neighbours rayment to pledge, thow shalt restore it vnto him before the sonne goe downe: for that is his couering only, and this is his garment for his skyn: wherein shall he sleepe? therefore when he cryeth vnto me I will heare him: for I am mercifull. Shall we thinke now that god heareth not the prayers or cryes that the stranger, widdowe, fatherlesse, &c. send forth to the lord out of the anguish of their soules, and greuousnes of their oppression, except they be such as be indewed with a iustifying faith? god forbid. For howsoeuer it is certaine that in thes and in such like cases the eares of the lord are open to such, & their prayers most auailable with god: yet are they not shut against sinners but god heareth them thus far, as to deliuer them from the oppression they are in, and to take vengeance of their oppressors. And it is to be obserued that we haue no such limitation here. Is it not thus saide by the lorde? If the stranger, widdowe, fatherlesse childe that feareth my name, call and cry unto me, I will heare: but more generally, yf any widdowe or fatherlesse childe whatsoeuer, being iniuried, or oppressed exodus 22. 21. vers 23. vers 26. 27.

1 kinges 21. 27. 27. 29.

ſſed, call and cry vnto mee I will ſurely heare. Thus then it is. God doth heare the ſighings and cryes &c. that wicked men in their miſeryes, or imminent daunger thereof doe ſend forth vnto him, and deliuereth them, as the creator ready to ſhew mercy to his creature, which although as a ſinner he abhorreth, with his prayers and all his ſacrifices, yet as his creature he loueth, and hath compaſſion of, ſpecially in miſery, as appeareth by the places of ſcripture aboue written: where this is ſet downe for a reaſon, why he will ſurely heare the oppreſſed ſtranger, widdowe, fatherleſſe &c. for I am mercifull: alſo by that ſaying of Dauid: The lord is good to all. And herein we ſhall be further confirmed, if we call to minde, how the lorde in reſpect of our creation calleth himſelf our * father, and vs in the ſame reſpect his ſonnes and daughters: well therefore may go I heare his children by creation, in a matter pertayninge to this life, ſeeing alſo in the thinges of this life he is ſo aboundantly gratious vnto them: But concerninge the life that is to come, or ſpirituall bleſſings in heauenly things, it is no marualle though he heare them not at all, but only his ſonnes by adoption, conſidering he will beſtowe no ſuch * treaſures vpon them, & that Ieſus Chriſt maketh no * interceſſion for them: in whome only and for whoſe mediation, ſuch requeſts are accepted of god.

pſalme 145.9.
Deut. 32. 6.18. 19
Luke 3.38.
matth. 5,45.
ſalme 145.16
acts 14.17.
matth.1.21, acts 13.48. epiſ.1.3.4. Tit.1.1, Ioh.3,15.16.& 10.26, Luke.16,11.12. Ioh.17.9.
1 peter 2.5.

p23.15. But an other point may not be left aſleepe. Darrell ſaith that in the ſaid place of Math. 17. 20. that the faith there mentioned, is to be vnderſtoode to be the faith of doing miracles: That the Apoſtles were reproued for theire weaknes in that faith: And that if the ſame had bene ſtronge enough, they might haue caſt out the wicked ſpirit mentioned in that Chapter, verſe 21. without prayer or faſting: whereby it followeth (for ought that dull men cã diſcerne) that M. Darrell houlding (as is before mentioned) that place of ſcripture to be a ſecret ordinance for the continuance of faſting and prayer, as the meanes to caſt out diuells, and that therein by faith is vnderſtood the faith of doing miracles: (which if it had bene ſtrong enough in the Apoſtles peayer and faſting had bene ſuperfluous) it will followe it is thought, that the hiſtoricall faith will not ſerue his turne, but that it muſt be the faith of doing miracles: which muſt be vnderſtood for the faith that is required of neceſſity, when there is neede to caſt out diuells. So as if he want that, he may (by his owne doctrine) caſt his capp at them.

Marke (Good Reader) his noate of attention, or preface before my aſſertion: but an other poynt may not be left aſleepe: and after his concluſion there-vpon, the caſting of a capp, ymagine his owne into the ayre, and you ſhall ſee the man marueylouſly tryumphing: ſo that either now ſure he hath the victory, & that he hath got alſo out of my owne wordes, or els he will neuer haue it. The poynt I affirmed was, that the faith mentioned Math. 17. 20. is to be vnderſtood of the miracu-

lus

bus faith: and heereof I gaue two reasons, which are heere likewise set downe. There-vpon saith the Disc. it followeth, that Dar. holdinge that place of Scripture to be a secret ordinance for the continuance of fasting and prayer as the meanes &c. I answer, that all that he inferreth was true, and very fitly collected, if I held the place he speaketh of viz. Math. 17. 20. to contayne in it the ordinance wee speake of: But all men knowe that it is not Math. 17. verse 20. which were most absurd: but verse 21. viz. these wordes: This kinde goeth not out, but by prayer and fasting. Yea the Disc. himself confesseth the same, but the leafe before this, page 43. Thus in a word we see his collection and boastinge to be meerely in vayne. Yet for our better vnderstanding and further answer, we must remember: that two kindes of expulsion of Sathan are heere spoken of: one extraordinary, wherein the miraculous faith is required, verse 20. and an other by an ordinary meanes, viz. praier or prayer and fasting, verse 21. and here howsoeuer the iustifyinge faith is to be wished, and is best: yet the faith temporall, or historical may suffice, for the expelling of Sathan after this manner, or by the ordinary meanes, which standeth not somuch in the faith of the person therein vsed, as in the mercye of god obteyned, man vsinge the meanes which to that end he hath ordeyned. And as this faith may suffice, so it should seeme that it hath or shall: for we reade that in the day of the lorde, some workers of iniquity shall say for themselus lord haue we not in thy name cast out diuels? why should we vnderstand this of Iudas only and such as he, who by a word cast out diuells, seing that manner of eiection continued so small a time in the church: And not as well of the sonnes of Sceua? (and such as they) who it is probable cast out diuells by the ordinary meanes, where-with they had mixed some adiurations, (where-vpon they were called Exorcistes) added thereto in that and former time when all things almoste were corrupted, and as it is very likely vpon some imitation of the prophets, who had (no doubt) cast out diuels by adiuring or commaunding the spirits to goe out in the name of the lorde: as the papists doe nowe in the ymitation of Christ and his Apostles: both of them forgetting that they had not receaued any such power ouer vncleane spirits, and therefore should haue refrayned from commaunding or adiuring them. True it is that they were far from casting the euill spirit out of the man mentioned Acts 19. the reason I thinke was because they entred vpon that where-vnto they were not at all called of god: for not contented with that manner of eiection they had formerlye vsed, because it shewed no such authority ouer diuells, as that performed by the Apostles, and by consequent did commend them nothig somuch to the people, which was the only thing they desired: they attempt

math, 7. 22.

acts, 19. 13.

tempted to caſt euill ſprits out of ſundry in the name of the lord Ieſus: no maruaile therefore though they had no better ſucceſſe therein, albeit they percaſe after an other manner, I meane the ordinarye meanes both before & after that diſpoſſeſſed diuers. And why doth this ſeme ſo ſtrange and incredible to ſome, as I known it doth? why may not a wicked man be as well an inſtrument to caſt out diuells after the ordinary, as the extraordinary manner? and out of the body, as well as the ſoule of man? ſeig eſpecially this latter is a far more worthy work, If we obiect as (I think) we can obiect nothing elſe, that god heareth not the prayers of ſuch, nor regardeth their humiliations: that is anſwered already.

pag. 50, Their powerfull preaching is annexed for a meanes to prayer and faſting. Whereunto may be added the word of God (as the ſtory ſaith) which the diuells (forſooth) could not indure to heare, but would be gone. And ſo you ſee them fall into the ſaid popiſh follies, makinge the ſignes of poſſeſſion, the meanes and cauſes of diſpoſſeſſion.

VVee doe not, neither euer did affirme, that theſe are the meanes ordeyned of god for the caſtinge of ſathan out of the bodyes of men, for we doubt not but that without the vſinge of either of theſe he may be expelled, as it was in the diſpoſſeſſion of Kath. Wright and Darling. Yet notwithſtanding we thinke that in this ſaid worke theris good and holy vſe thereof. Firſt, becauſe in this caſe, men wreſtle not againſt fleſh and blood, but againſt principallityes and powers, and againſt the worldly gouernours,, the princes of the darknes of this world, againſt ſpi
eph. 6. 10, rituall wickednesſes which are in the high places: It ſtandeth them therefore vpon, to take vnto them the whole armour of god that they may be able to reſiſt ſo ſtrong an enemy, and hauing finiſhed all things ſtād faſt. Now part, yea a principall part of this armour, is the word of god, mark. 4. euen the ſword of the ſpirit: And herein we haue our bleſſed Sauioure for an example to imitate, who when the deuill in an extraordinarye and viſible manner appeared vnto him, ſpeaking alſo vnto him, he reſiſted and ouercame him by the word of god. Secondly, becauſe the
1. Pe. 5. 9. reading, interpreting, & applying of the holy ſcriptures ſerue to ſtrēgthen our faith, whereof there is neede: for reſiſt (ſaith S. Peter) the diuell ſtedfaſt in the faith. 3. to ſtirr vp whatſoeuer guift of prayer is in vs, or feruency therein, and to worke the true humbling of vs vnder the mighty hand of god. But admit we hould reading & expounding of the word of god were meanes of diſpoſſeſſion, yet that followeth not there vpon which the Diſc. from thence collecteth viz. that wee make the ſignes of poſſeſſion, the meanes & cauſes of diſpoſſeſſion. Did we euer hould the reading and preaching of the word, to be ſignes of poſſeſſion? ſurely no: for theſe ſignes are nothing elſe but the fearefull

effects

effects and operations which Sathan beinge within the body of man sendeth forth: in which nomber to place the worde of god and preaching thereof, is a most sottish and impious thinge: and simple men though wee be, yet I truste wee were neuer so absurd: which beinge so, the Disc. collection is not worth a straw e.

But saith he, it is most apparant by M. Mores conceite, who thinketh prayer more necessary, then the signes of possession mentioned in the scriptures, for the true discerning of those who are possessed. pag. 50.

It appeareth that M. More doth not say altogither so, as is here mentioned. But be it graunted: doth he therefore make prayer a signe of possession? as one & the same thing, a signe of possession, & meanes or cause of dispossession? Behould how the Disc. argueth. By prayer a man may discerne of those that are possessed: ergo, prayer is a signe of possession. If this be a good argument then are these also: By the guifte called the discerning of spirits, the Apostles truly e discerned of those that were possessed, as the Disc. affirmeth pag. 28. ergo, that guift is a signe of possession. By the knowledge of the signes of Sathan possessing one, mentioned in the gospell, wee may truly e discerne of those that are possessed: ergo, that knowledge is a signe of possession. And so the Apostles were possessed, & all indued with this said knowledg for where the proper signe of a thing is, there is also for certainty the thing signifyed thereby. Againe, by good skill in phisick, one may truly e discerne of a feuer: therefore skill in phisick is a signe of a feuer. Thus to reason doth very ill beeseme a batcheller of artes, much more a batcheller and Doctor of diuinity. But this much worse: professed deuines to charge falsly (and that in print) a preacher of the gospell, to hould, that prayer is a signe of possession, where-vpon followeth, that al which pray are possessed.

OF CHAP. 9.

Of the signes whereby M. Darrell & others doe discerne (as they say) when Sathan is expelled.

M. Darrells ignorance maketh him (as it seemeth) in this point confident. pag. 50.
He is peremptory, that because it is saide in the scriptures: that the spirits of the lunatike, when he was cast out of him did cry and rent him sore, & that he lay as one dead: that therefore these three are infallable signes appointed of God to knowe when one is dispossessed, Nay rather then fayle hee will be content with one of them, as in his dealing with Thomas Darlinge hereafter will appeare.

Where-vpon I houlde these three for signes whereby to knowe when one is dispossessed, as signifying the egresse of the spirite, I haue before declared: it remayneth therefore only that I answer to those obiections the Disc. maketh against them. The first wherof is this:

Soms

Some lewde knaue may easily counterfeyt these signes: ergo &c. I answer, that none can counterfeyt, that is, doe the like to any one of them, much lesse can any counterfeyt them all. For the holy ghost speaketh not of a naturall cry, sent forth by mans voyce or power, the like whereunto an other man may vtter and so counterfeyt: But of a supernaturall loud cry, sent forth by a supernaturall power, I meane, the diuells: for it is said, the vncleane spirite cryed with a loud voyce and came out of him: in like sorte it is said, the vncleane spirit tare him: nowe one would thinke that both the hand and tongue of man were too short to performe that is done by the diuell. It is besides said of the possessed childe mentioned Mark. 9. that when the spirit was gone out of him, he was as one dead, in somuch that many said he is dead. meaninge that howsoeuer he was not indeede deade, but had life remayning in him, yet he was in all things like to a deade body, without any appearance of life, starke and stiff, the pulses not beating, nor taking breath &c. like to a man in a swound. in whome although there be life, yet no such thing appeareth to be. Euen so it was with the dispossessed child, where-vpon the people which thronged about him tooke him to be deade. Nowe this lewd knaue cannot easily nor yet possibly counterfeyt Howsoeuer then, were our 10. dispossessed persons counterfeites, as the Disc. will haue them, there crying, renting, and fayning to lye as dead, an other as lewde might easily counterfeyt: yet to say that one may counterfeyt the crying, renting sore, and lying as deade, mentioned in the gospell, and caused by the diuell, is both absurd & impious.

marke 1.26.

page 26

His second obiection is set downe in these wordes .M .Darrell confessing, that in the Apostles times, some spirits were cast out more easily then others, might in reason haue thought, that those that went out so easily, did not so greuously torment the parties at their casting out, as the rest did.

True, not so greuously torment at theire going out, as the rest did, therefore not greuously torment at all, and so of the other signes. This followeth not, as euery childe may se. Two malefactors are whipped (ymagine) for one and the same fault, by two seuerall tormentors: the one being beaten by the more cruell man, hath 40. stripes: the other by him that is lesse cruell hath but 20. By this reason now of the Disc. this latter was not beaten at all, for he was not beaten so greuously as the other was.

page 31

His third obiection followeth: And somewhat it is that although there are diuers mentioned in the scriptures, to haue bene dispossessed by our Sauiour Christ and by his Apostles: yet it is said of none but of the lunatick Mark. 9. that when Sathan departed, the spirit either cryed, or rente him sore, or that they lay as dead. To make therefore such particularities in one, a generall rule to all, argueth greatly the weaknes of his iudgment.

page 51.

The

The Disc. is greatly deceaued, for of an other Mark. 1. (a man and not a childe, as the lunatike was Mark. 9.) it is said, that when he was dispossessed, the vncleane spirit tare him, and that he tare or rent him sore appeareth by Luke 4. where the same story is set down. Secondly it is written, that he cryed with a loude voyce, and came out of him. marke 1, 26. vers. 7.

And in the 8. of the Acts, that the vncleane spirits crying with aloude voyce, came out of many that were possessed. And in that this is not saide heere of a particuler person, as Mark 1. & 9. but of many, it is therbyplayne, that it was an vsuall thing with the spirits, to send forth or cause loude cryes, when they went out of those they possessed. Thus hath the Disc. in saying that none but the lunatick Mark 9. either cryed, or was rent sore, vttered vn-awares a manifest vntruth, and therein shewed no greate learning or iudgment, who vpbraydeth others with ignorance, weaknes, and want of iudgment. We reade not indeede in euery place where mention is made of casting out diulls, of these 3. effects, that they cryed, were rent sore, and lay as deade, but only in the 9. of Mark: nor in any place besides, that they in that case were for a season as dead, and had the Disc. said either of these, he had said trulye: yet notwithstanding it is very probable that thus it went with the dispossessed generally: for in the 17. of Math. and 9. of Luke where the dispossession of the lunatick childe is set downe, there is no mention neither of crying * nor renting, nor lying as dead, yet by the 9. of Mark it is cleare that when the diuel went out of him he cryed, was rente sore, and lay as deade. In the 4. of Luke we reade of the dispossession of one of Capernaum, whome Christ met in the synagogue, but we heare nothing of any loude crye that then was sent forth, yet by the 1. of Mark verse 26. where the same myracle is recorded it is playne there was such a cry: for it is said, the vncleane spirit cryed with a loud voyce. In that there is then no more mention in the gospell of these I call signes of dispossession, it is not because they which were dispossessed, did not cry, neither were sore rent, nor lay for a season as deade, at the going out of the spirit, but only the lunatike Marke 9. whereof fewe will doubt, these places compared and considered with that of the Acts: But for that the holy Euangelists labouring after breuity doe (vsually) report only the said greate workes with some fewe circumstances, as out of whome the diuell was cast, where and specially by whome & in what manner it was done viz: by the word or commaundement of Christ: without describing at large the manner of sathans vexing the sayde party, either while he held his possession, or when he went forth, the 9: of Marke only excepted, where both these are performed: & therfore it is that elsewhere we reade not of all the 3. signes, and not because other dispossessed persons did not cry &c: when the spirit went

vers. 18.
vers 42.

In Luke there is mention of renting or tearing. but that is to be vnderstoode of the time of his possession and not after that Iesus rebuked the deuill, and commaunded him to goe forth & so of the acte & instant of his egresse.

vers. 35.

ont, but only he. And where the Disc: saith that rather then fayle I will be content with any one of them: I answer that howsoeuer I thinke these 3: signes were vsually heard and seene in the egresse of the spirits, yet it may be not alwayes, but sometimes two or percase one did suffice to signify the same, and yet are not the other therefore in vaie because the more signes the more we are confirmed in the dispossession of one: for why may not this as well be true of the signes of dispossession as of possession? where all the signes are not required, but some of many may suffice, as hath bene shewed before. yea what & if we should see one bowed togither, so as he could not lift vp himself, as the * possessed woman was Luke 13. might we not well thence gather (especially if we perceiued that it was not naturall) that he had a spirit causing the infirmity of body, and that he was so bound by sathan? And yet this is but one effect or operation of sathan: & so but one signe of possession. And why one signe may not suffice to signify the spirits going out of a man, as well as this being in the body of mã I for my part doe not see neither doe I think that the Disc. can shew any reason. And although be it one, or more, there is singuler vse of the signe or signes, to signifye the egresse, as I haue shewed before, treating thereof: Yet are the signes of dispossession of no such absolut necessity, as the signes of possession are, as might easilye be shewed. And therefore I will not deny but that one may be dispossessed, and none of these signes appeare, which is more: the health and ease of the party from all former vexation by the diuell, declaring his deliuerance from the diuell, as it is in naturall diseases: yet I think it falleth out thus very seldome if euer, for the reasons formerly giuen by me. Vnderstand me of the eiection of sathan by the finger of God, & not of his voluntary egresse as is in the papacy, which may well alter the case. And so is Thyreus fully answered saying, non raro fit vt spiritus descendant, nullis sui discessus post se datis signis. It is often seene that sathan departeth, leauing no signes of his going: which the Disc. in the ende of this Chapter obiecteth out of him against me.

vers 11. for it is very likelye shee was possest.

de Dæmon. cap. 12. sect. 10.

From these signes he proceedeth to certayne other, which my selfe haue obserued in experience, whereof we haue heard before, & saith that it may not be omitted of whome I haue learned them, euen of Thyreus forsooth. But how can this possibly be true? seing Thyreus treatise de dæmoniacis, from which by my handes these counterfeyts shold haue receaued their directions concerninge the signes, came not to England vntill the yeare 1598. they suffring or doing the same, the one of them I meane Darling 1596. and the other viz. the 7. in Lancashire 1596.? How greatly also in this respect did the Disc. forget himselfe to make (almost) a whole * booke to this end, to perswade

I meane the first bodke of the Discourse

the

the world, that I haue learned all my skile (forsooth) concerning possession, of Thyreus the Iesuite, and in the same booke euery where alleadge him to confute me: whereby appeareth that Thyreus and I dissent in iudgment as much almost as two can dissent about the doctrie in question: & therefore it is very vnlikely that I haue learned I know not what from him. He procedeth to obiect against the signes heard and sene at the dispossession of the parties controuerted as followeth.

The cheif assurance, that M. Dar. and M. More had, that Sathan had left Iane Ashton, was her owne wordes, viz. when rising from her fit, she said he is gone, he is gone, I am well, I thank god. And hauing wept in the said fitt, shee also saide, that then Sathan departed from her. So as heere we haue a newe signe of Sathans going out of one: viz. the wepinge of the party. pag. 53.

That M. More hath said no such thing, as the truth is, so it is probable heereby, for that the Disc. in the margent hath not noted the article and page, as his vsuall manner is in other places, which if he could haue done, he woulde neuer haue omitted. And truly for my owne part (god is my witnesse) I neuer said so, yea it was farr from me, much lesse did I depose so, as the Disc. affirmeth, yea what need it, seeing besides her most extreame tormentes at that time, I (with many more) sawe her lye as dead for a season: which had I forgotten as it is not likely, yet thereof the story of the 7. in Lancashire written by M. Dickons (one of the coppies whereof I had) would haue put me in minde: 1. heereof also I was neuer deposed nor examyned, no nor yet concerning the 7. in Lancashire, saue the first time I was befor the Bishope a worde or two, concerning them all in generall, as whether I had not seene them before M. Starchy writ vnto me, and whether M. More had not bene there before he went with me. VVherby appeareth the corrupt dealing of the Discouerer, who in the margent hath Darell ad art. 17 pag. 144. And whereas in the Lancashire story penned by M. Dickons, from whence (and not from M. More nor me) the Disc. hath both this and a great deale more in this said chapter, and elswhere scattered heere and there, there is mention of her increase of torment (which as I conceaue is ment by those words Mar. 9. rent sore) where-vpon these wordes are vsed: Now in this time they were all greeued to see how pittifully she was tormented. & togither with that he heere mentioneth this, viz. she was cast into a traunce, and lay as one deade for a while: he hath of purpose omitted both these: that soe he might weaken that it is saide by me concerninge the signes of dispossession, and withall bring the reader ignorant hereof, to suspect her dispossession, and togither with hers all the rest. To which purpose he proceedeth to the dispossession of Margaret Byrom, and the

signes

signes thereof: wherein he dealeth more playnlie and lesse corruptly, I meane especially in that he telleth in the argument from whence he had the same: not from M. Mores depositions & mine, but from the history of the 7. in Lancashire.

pag. 53. Margaret Byrom saide that at her reuertinge, after shee had lyen as dead half an houre: she felte the spirit come vp from her belly towardes her breste, thence to her throat &c. as followeth the history before. It left behinde it saidshee a soare throat, and a filthy smell, that a weeke after her meate was vnsauery. Heere wee haue the Iesuites stinche. And besides the most infallable note amongst M. Dar: three signes of dispossession, viz. lying for dead is heere confuted, for this party was reuiued againe before Sathan was gone.

This obiection ariseth onlye of the misplacinge of one worde which the writer of this story M. Dickons did vn awares: which being placed in his right place the obiection is easily answered: for wheras it is thus set downe. M. Byrom said (a) that at her reuerting, after shee had lyen as dead halfe an houre, shee felt the spirit come vp &c. it shoulde haue bene thus: Margaret Byrom sayd at her reuerting, after she had lyē as dead halfe an houre, that she felt the spirit come vp &c. neither can the firste in any sence or reason be ascrybed to Margaret Byrom, as they must needes if we take the wordes as they are by the Disc: reported: for she knew not how long she lay dead, no more then a deade body: But very fitly they belong to the writer of the story, as appeareth by the right placing of the word that. From Margaret Byrom he proceedeth to the other sixe, and out of the Lancashire story, setteth downe at large the seuerall shapes that the euill spirits (as it shoulde seeme) caused presently vpon their egresse from them, and presented themselues into theire eyes, as if they had gone forth of them indued with such bodyes: and there-vpon playeth vppon Darlynges mowse. And all this to make their dispossession odious or ridiculous if he could, whereas indeede it confirmeth the same. But he saith neuer a word of their most extrame torments, for renting sore, their cryinge loude: their lying all 6· as if they had bene starke deade, which in the saide story are likewise set downe with their seuerall circumstaunces: These thinges he thought good to omitt:

This word that is wrong sette.

pag. 54. Thyreus part 4 chap. 51

Finally, against all the signes of dispossession, and therein the dispossession of our Demoniacks, confirmed by the signes thereof, hee bringeth in Thyreus, saying: Sicuti pro voluntate sua &c. As wicked spirits may at their pleasure omitt these signes, so they may shewe them, and yet notwithstanding keepe their possession. I answer Thyreus and graunte that vnderstanding this of the signes which spiritus ab Exorcistis coacti dant, the spirits compelled by the Exorcists giue, as the putting out of a can-

Thyreus cap. 51. sect. 4

dle

dle, the breaking of a quarry in the glasse-windowe, and such like ridiculous signes, it is most true: the signes also which of their owne accord they giue, as the sensible and visible (as I may say) going out in such sort as we heare, vomiting &c. I doubt not but they may at theire limited pleasure omitt: but that they may shew them and keepe their possession, especially the signes mentioned in the gospell, as the Iesuite will haue it, and that also after the meanes is vsed aright, which god hath ordeyned for the casting out of diuells I deny: for it cannot be that god will suffer the spirites thus to delude & mock his people, which shall be heereabouts occupied in faith and obedience to his owne ordinance: wherein as the wicked spirits would delight exceedingly, thus (I meane) to dissemble an egresse, in handling the persons possessed in such manner as some times they did when they wente out of men, and especially at the time we speake of, so woulde they vse the same full often: yea I trust if it were so, & left to their pleasure, and that the diuells were not in this case ouer ruled & brydled by that ouer & all-rulig hād of god, all England shold haue heard of it before this. Againe were it thus that the spirits might giue these signs & tarrie in men, or that the spirits might omitt all the signes mētioed in the scripture whē they goe forth of men, we could not know that the possessed were dispossessed as hath bene shewed, but must needes stand iu doubt therof at least for a time, & that time wherin we are affected with the works of god, if euer: whereby it would come to passe, that when this wonderfull worke of god sholde at any time be wrought, the lord should neither be hartely praysed for the same, and receaue that glory that otherwise would be giuen him, nor man receaue sound profit therby. And it is a wonderfull thing to consider how ready the papists are to affirme that their Exorcists can & doe compell the spirits to giue such signes as they pleaseof their departure, and neuer once thinke of gods compellinge them to giue the signes mentioned in his word at their egresse, for the assurance of his people, that they are gone out, who without the same cannot possible knowe somuch, nor of his restrayning them to shewe the said signes whē yet they remaine within them.

OF CHAP. 10.

Of M. Dar. and M. Mores conceit: that Sathan being cast out of one, doth presently after seeke to repossesse him.

M. Darrell like a kinde frende, had neuer to deale with the dispossession of any: but for his care therein, he may be thought to haue deserued great commendation. For his perswasions to such still haue bene, that they should vse all diligence and circumspection, that Sathan did not againe reenter into them. This his perswation hath euer bene drawne from a position, which he stifly houldeth: that Sathan beinge expelled out of man, doth seeke pre- pag. 55

pag. 56. ſently after to reenter into him againe: and that it is commonly a very hard matter to withſtand him, by reaſon of his ſubtiltyes, alluring them by promiſes, and terrifying of them by threatnings. And a little after: his ſayde opynion of Sathans ſeeking to reenter, relyeth vpon a metaphoricall place in the ſcriptures.

Mark. 12.43. When the vncleane ſpirit (ſaith Chriſt) is gone out of a man, he walketh throughout dry places, ſeeking reſt, and fyndeth none. Then he ſaith, I will returne into mine houſe, from whence I came: and when he is come, he findeth it empty, ſwept, and garniſhed. Then he goeth, & taketh vnto him ſeauen other ſpirits worſe then himſelf, and they enter in, and dwell there: and the end of that man is worſe then the begining. Euen ſo ſhall it be with this generation. This place of ſcripture is indeede metaphoricall as appeareth by theſe wordes, euen ſo it ſhall be with this wicked generation: and is vſed by our Sauiour, to illuſtrate and playnly ſet forth the miſerable (future) eſtate of the Iewes, if they continued in their ſinns. The metaphore is this. As it is with a man which hath an vncleane ſpirit caſt out of him, if notwithſtandinge that great mercy of god receyued, he continue in, or returne to his former ſinnes, whereby it cõe to paſſe that the diuell returning and ſeeking to enter into him again, doe indeede enter in, which he certainly will, if he finde his old gueſt ſuch, and that with ſeauen other ſpirits worſe then himſelfe, the end of that man ſhall be worſe then his begining, miſerable therefore and fearefull, euen ſo ſhall it be with this people of the Iewes, who being in their bloud and filthynes, god waſhed and clenſed and made them his peculiar people, and * cheif treaſure aboue all people, ſo as they were the lordes portion and Iacob the lot of his inheritance, and hath * carryed them vpon eagles winges, being ſo tender ouer them, that * he that toucheth them, toucheth the apple of his eye, and * hath committed to them his oracles, ſo as * to them apperteyneth the adoption, and the glory, and the couenants, and the giuing of the lawe, and the ſeruice of god, and the promiſes: if this people now hauing bene made partaker of theſe and many other vnſpeakable mercies of god, ſhall returne to their former filthineſſe for their intollerable vnthankfulnes their laſt eſtate ſhall be very miſerable, and worſe then their firſt: which ſcripture as our fathers before vs, ſo we at this day ſee fulfilled before our eyes, in that as it was ſaid to Cain, they are caſt out frõ their owne land, which flowed with mylke and honney, and are vagabonds and runagates in the earth, & ſo their eſtate farr worſe, euen ſeauen folde worſe, then euer before. From this ſcripture I collect theſe things. Firſt and cheifly, that the diuell beinge caſt out of men, ſeeketh to enter agayne into them. 2. That he deſireth the recouery of that pray he hath loſt, (that is the poſſeſſing againe of the ſaid party) aboue many other prayes. 3. that Exodus 19.5. Deut. 32.9. Exodus, 19.4. Zech, 2.8. Romans 3,2. Romans 9,4.

he

he doth recouer and repoſſeſſe ſuch as giue themſelues to the ſeruice of ſinne, and otherwiſe can not. 4. That in this caſe the vncleane ſpirit entreth not in alone, but with more and worſe. 5. that the end or laſt eſtate of ſuch ſhall be worſe then their firſt. Nowe what though this ſcripture be vſed by the Lord as a metaphor or ſimilitude to illuſtrate an other thing: may we not therefore gather theſe things from hence? or is there no truth (trow we) in the metaphors themſelues vſed by our Sauiour? If the ſalt (ſaith Chriſt) haue loſt his ſauour, it is good for nothing: men doe not light a candle and put it vnder a buſhell, but on a candleſtick, and it giueth light vnto all that are in the houſe. * The kingdome of heauen is like vnto leauen, which a woman taketh and hydeth in three pecks of meale, till all be leauened. In like manner. S. Paule * A little leauen leaueneth the whole lump. * Goe to the piſmire O ſluggard, (ſayth Salomon) behould her wayes, ſhe prepareth her meate in the ſommer, & gathereth her foode in the harueſt. He that goeth vpon coales, his feete ſhall be burnt.

math. 5. math. 13. 33. gal. 5. 9. * prou 6. 6, prou. 7. 8.

Theſe are metaphors and yet in them and a thouſand more in holy ſcripture, there is a certaine and vndoubted truth. That is ſayde heere of going vpon coales, of the Piſmire, leauen, and the reſt with infinite more of the like kinde, is very true, notwithſtanding the ſame is metaphorically ſpoken, yea let the Diſc. ſhew but one metaphor in all the ſcriptures, wherein there is not a certaine and vndoubted truth: how can it then poſſibly be that this ſpoken of the vncleane ſpirit going out of a man, ſhould be vntrue, becauſe it is metaphorically? That this is ſpoken metaphorically, hindreth not at all the truth therof. And wher as the Diſc. pretendeth as though I did only rely vpon the metaphorical place, and had no other proofe, for that I ſo confidently affirme as touching the returne of the diuell, and ſeeking to enter againe into him out of whome he is gon, he is deceaued: for a moſte pregnante proofe hereof there is (as hath bene already ſhewed) in the 9. of Mark where Chriſt Ieſus being about to caſt the diuell out of one, and knowinge the aforeſaid metaphore to be moſt true, and that the vncleane ſpirit being gone out of man will returne, and ſeeke to enter into the ſame man againe, forbiddeth him ſo to doe, I meane, the reentring or repoſſeſſig of the ſaid party, it may be the rather becauſe he was a child: I charge thee (ſaith he to the ſpirite) come out of him, and enter no more into hī. vers 25. Albeit then one teſtimony of the Lord Ieſus might abundantly ſuffice, yet behould a double teſtimony of his for the further confirmig of vs in this truth: why then doth this ſeeme ſome ſtrange or newe doctrine, or odd conceite, not onlye to the Diſc. but to manye other that abhorre the counterfeyting he contendeth for, ſeeinge it hath ſuch warrant, and is ſo playnlie ſet downe in the ſcriptures? me thinke

eth

eth if beſides we looked into the nature of the diuell and how hestād eth affected both towardes god and man, this ſhould not ſeeme ſo ſtrange a thing. Among wicked men he that vniuſtly poſſeſſeth an other mans houſe, if it ſo fall out that he looſe the poſſeſſion thereof, yet will he not preſently giue ouer all clayme thereto, and ſeeke no more after the enioying of it: but if by ſtrong hand, briberv: or any other violent or deceiptfull meanes, he can compaſſe the poſſeſſion againe, he will ſurely doe it: if he obteyne it not, yet it is cleare he will doe his beſt indeuor. As this is generally true, ſo ſpecially if it be a ſumptuons houſe, and ſuch as wherein the vſurper taketh great pleaſure to dwell in, and he alſo one of great authority, and hating deadly, the right owner thereof. Euen ſo and much more wicked and malignant ſpirits (which are principallityes and powers) being as vſurpers caſt out of the bodyes of men, the glorious temples for the holy ghoſt to dwell in: doe ſeke by all poſſible meanes to enter into them againe, and repoſſeſſe them. VVe all knowe and confeſſe, that ſathā being caſt out of the ſoule of man, which he poſſeſſeth ſo long as we continue the children of diſobedience, he doth more egerly beſett it, and ſeeke the repoſſeſſing of it, then euer he did before: and this beſides that the holy ſcripture teacheth vs, euery conuert knoweth to be true in his owne experience. Nowe why ſhould not the ſame ſpirit take the ſame courſe preſently after his eiection out of that other part of man, his body I meane: ſeing not only the ſcriptures, but the parties likewiſe ſo diſpoſſeſſed out of their owne experience ſignifye the ſame vnto vs? This conſidered there was iuſt cauſe I thinke to perſwade the perſons diſpoſſeſſed as I did, and is ſet downe before. And ſmall cauſe is there for the Diſc. to condemne the reaſon (among others) of the diligence and circumſpection required of them: viz. becauſe of the vnſpeakable ſubtilty of their aduerſary the diuell: which ſheweth it ſelfe, both in his deceitfull and alluring promiſes, and terrifying threats: for who knoweth not that by how much more ſubtle the enemy is, and we ſimple, by ſo much the more diligent and circumſpect we had neede to be, leaſt otherwiſe by his cunning and our negligēce he circumuent vs: Neither is any well-inſtructed Chriſtian ignorant heereof, that the diuell ordinarily, if not alwayes, preuayleth and ouercometh vs, either by promiſes or threates, therfore it ſhalbe our wiſdome & cheif meanes of ſafety, to haue a vigilant eye to eyther of theſe. Thus may the Diſc. ſe how palpably he erreth, who (as it may ſeeme) with his popiſh or Ieſuiticall Exorciſts (whome in the ſeconde place he produceth againſt vs) houldeth that thoſe ſpirites which are once caſt out of men, ſecundo eoſdem ingredi, et vexare non poſſvnt: cannot enter the ſecond time into the ſame men, and vex them. And yet beheld

behoulde how he boasteth as if the truth were firmly & vndoubtedly of his side, and as if he had answered all that men haue to say in two wordes, viz. that the scripture wee relye vppon, is a metaphoricall place. pag. 58. But M. Darrell (saith he) and his frendes will peraduenture be better prouided in this poynt heereafter. How Dar. is prouided he nowe seeth: And by that time S. H. is prouided for obiections, I trust Dar. will be sufficiently prouided for answers vnto them. And thus much for answer to the obiections made against my opinions, which somtimes I deliuered to the B. of London, little thinking that the same shoulde haue bene published to the worlde. It remayneth that I proceede to the matter of fact charged against mee: in which two poynts the discouery consisteth.

OF CHAP. 11.

How those that tooke vpon them to cast out diuels doe get themselues work, and of their deuises to couer their lewdnes

The Exorcists of both kindes for wante of worke are driuen to theyre shiftes: and like tinkers walke vp and downe from place to place seeking to be imployed. pag. 61.

Obserue heere not somuch the Disc. rayling, as his contrariety & thwarting of himselfe: for page 22. he himselfe saith and confesseth, that when Kath. Wright was first troubled, she was by one M. Beresfordes aduice sent to M Dar. at Mansfeild, and to one M Beckingham to be comforted, or cured of her infirmity. And concerning the occasion of my dealing with Th. Darling thus: The certainty hereof is, that M. Walkeden (the boyes grandfather) hearing how M. Dar. had helped K. Wright, procured him to come to Burton, to helpe Darling: from him he peoceedeth to those in Lancashire: When the 7. in Lancashire were troubled M. Starky, and M. Dee resolued vpon him, and writ their seuerall letters vnto him for his repayre into Lancashire: And lastly as touching the occasion of pag. 25. my going to Somers, he saith: that * I hauinge a sister in lawe at Nott: one Mistres Wallys, she writ vnto me, requesting me to come ouer to see the said Somers: Hereupon he addeth and collecteth (and that trimlye) thus: Hetherto it may appeare, how M. Dar. hath beue sought vnto.

Yf this his collection with the premises be true, (otherwise he is greatly to blame to publish them to the world, and that for certayne truthes) how can this also be true, that like a tinker I walked vpp and downe &c. It is one thing to be sought vnto, and an other to seeke for worke, and to be ymployed. And thus is the Discouerer conuynced by his Discouery: and let this suffice for answer and refutation of his tinkerlike stuffe.

It is a matter of some difficulty to discouer their shifts and sleightes to that purpose, they haue so many: and by their experience doe manage th m pag. 62.

so craftely. Diuers of them are heere set downe, and the rest may be supplyed peraduenture by some hereafter. Sometimes they make choyce of some such boyes or wenches, as they thinke are fitt for their purpose, whome they procure by many promises and allurements, to keepe their counsell, and to be (as they tearme it) aduised by them.

pag.79. & 81. pag.86. pag.82.& 84. The Disc. and So. hereafter tell vs, how for his counterfeitinge I * promised him he should neuer want whileſt I liued. 2. * that so doing I doubted not to procure him a releaſe from his maiſter: that besides I allured him by giuinge him first xij. pence, and after that an other xij. pence, but we heare nothing of the promises I made either Kath. Wright, or Th. Darling, or Mary Cooper: nor yet how these, or those in Lancashire were allured to counterfeyte. But I conceaue how it is. pag.63. These were not fit schollers to dissemble and collude with me as Som. was and others of that kinde, but counterfeyts of an other kinde, such as I did not confederate or couenant with, as I did with Somers: but at pag.63. my comming to their fayned dispossession, found ill at ease, troubled eyther in their stomack with choller or fleame, or in their belly with grypinges or collick, or in their heade or ioynts with aches or numnesse: and vppon certaine speaches vsed by me a reformed Exorcist began to suspect themselues to be possessed, and others also with them: wherevpon they (pore pag.65. soules) vnawares acted they knew not how the signes of possessyon pag.66. and dispossession. Did euer one reade any thing more absurde then this? It may be we shall heereafter heare that which is as absurd of Somers: but otherwise we seldome or neuer reade the like sottish and ridiculous stuff, as the Disc. hath for 8. leaues togither, from page 61. vntill the ende of his first booke. But he procedeth in his childe-ish tale pag.61. And these are commonly of the poorer sort, either the children or seruãts, of such persons, as the Exorcists doe well know, to be of their owne stampe, and well affected towards them.

Heere the Disc. greatly forgate himselfe: for albeit some of our Demoniacks were pore, yet was not Th. Darling of the porer sort, much lesse M. Starkies children, whose sonne is to inherite land worth (as I take it) some hundreds of pounds by the yeare. But he worse forgat himselfe in that which followeth: for how could we know the parents or maisters of such to be well affected towards vs, whome wee neuer knew or sawe in the face, before we dealt in the dispossession of the persons possesse k: as they are ready to testify, and one in reason may well imagine of M. Starky and Mar. Byroms mother, seing we dwelt about 50 myles asunder. He addeth that we knewe them to be of oure owne stampe: what he meaneth hereby (because these wordes are som what obscure) we may perceaue by that heere following, set downe

pag.69:

page 69. you ſhall obſerue a little wonder: It will hardly be ſhewed, that any of this ſorte haue bene found, but either in the houſes of Recuſants, or of ſuch as haue on the other ſide pretended ſome zeale, for they know not what reformation. Heerein alſo the Diſc. was greatlye deceaued, for it is well known that the parents and maiſter of the perſons poſſeſſed, were not Recuſants, and for zeale after reformation they were ſo farr from that, as vndoubtedly they know not what that reformation he ſpeaketh of meant, no not any of them, Darlings frendes excepted. Thus you heare of what ſtamp they were, whoſe children or ſeruants counterfeyted, as the Diſc. tearmeth theire vexation by ſathan: whereby it is manifeſt of what ſtamp we are, that dealt in the diſpoſſeſſinge of theſe counterfeytes: which alſo in the ſame place he declareth more at large: Beſides it falleth out amongſt vs: that they who haue taken vppon them, to haue caſt out diuells, haue ſtill bene men of that humour, as being forſooth more pure then the reſt of their brethren where by the way firſt we may learne, who is more pure then the reſt of his brethren that is in playne termes a puritane: not he as all men imagine, who challengeth ſome purity to himſelfe aboue other men, but he who is of the humour of reformation: more playnlie: he that hath ſome zeale for reformation. Yf the cauſe be thus, as it is cleare it is, there is no cauſe why theſe puritanes (as they call them) ſhould be hated, deſpiſed, abhorred, and ſo ſhamefully intreated, as they were rather dogges, then men. It is a good thing (and deſeruing loue and reuerence) to deſire the reformation of that which is amiſſe in church, or perſon: a better & more pleaſing to god, to ſeeke and labour after it, ſo it be done aright and in due order: and beſt of all and highly accepted before god to be earneſt and zealous therein. But admit that theſe men ſeeke after the reformation of thoſe things which be not amiſſe, and neede not therefore to be reformed: in particuler, admit that it was lawfull for men to reepe carnall things, of thoſe congregations where they ſowe not ſpirituall thinges: to eate of the milke of the flock, though they feede not the flock: for theſe kind of * ſouldiers to haue wages, albeit they goe not a warfare, and that it were not the Lords ordinance that they only which preach the goſpell, ſhould liue of the goſpell: and that neceſſity lyeth not vpon euery miniſter to preach the goſpell, but that the reading thereof ſufficeth, and that men may liue of the goſpel, although they be not able to preach the goſpell, or if they be able, preach little or not at all, or not to the people from whome for their ſaid preachig ſake they receaue their maintenance: alſo that weomen may baptiſe, in the caſe of danger or neceſſity as they call it, &c. Admit this I ſay, yet notwithſtanding forasmuch as thoſe whom men call puritans, doe ſeeke the reformation of theſe things, and others of the ſame kinde in

pag. 69.

2 tim. 2. 3,
1 cor. 6. 14, 18.

a zeale of god, as is hereby manifeſt, in that for this cauſe they doe & are ready to forſake father and mother, wife and children, houſe and land, liberty with all the comforts of this life, yea life it ſelfe if god cal them therevnto: and are contented in and during this life to be of all men the moſt miſerable: there is ſmall cauſe why the Diſcouerer and the world with him, ſhould hate, ſcorne, & ſo contemptibly vſe them as if they were the offcowring of the world, and refuſe of the people. S. Paule in the 9. to the Roma. calleth God to witneſſe to his conſcience, that he had great heauineſſe and continuall ſorrowe in his heart, and that vers 1, he would wiſh himſelfe to be ſeperated from god, for his brethren that were his kinſmen according to the fleſh, and in the begining of the Chapter follwing, he vſeth theſe wordes: Brethren my harts deſire and prayer to god for Iſraell is, that they might be ſaued, his reaſō therof followeth. For vers 2. I beare them record, that they haue the zeale of God but not accordinge to knowledge. If Paule were thus affected towards the Iewes, who were ſo exceedingly violent and outragious in whatſoeuer they went about in their blynde zeale, as at large appeareth by the ſtory of the Actes of the Apoſtles, becauſe they had in them a zeale of god: woulde hee, were he now liuing among vs, be ſo affected as the moſt are, towards the puritanes as they are tearmed, in whome it is manifeſt there is a zeale of god, be it that it were not according to knowledg? ſeing they doe nothing in their ſaid zeale in a tumultuous, but all peaceable manner: as by prayer to god, and humble petition to her Maieſtye the heade, and the body of this Realme met and ioyned togither in Parliament? either would S. Paule (trowe wee) call theſe men in ſcorne as the Diſc. doth: * men of the ouerworne conſiſtorian faction, men of the humour of reformation, men more pure then the reſt of their brethren, that is, puritanes: or with others preciſians phantaſticall men: &c. yea of Sathan Sathaniſts as my ſelf haue heard them called: becauſe of theyre zeale, admit it were a blinde zeale: who for the blinde zeale that the Iewes had, called them ſo louingly brethren? It is not poſſible:
As from ſome thinges which might be obſerued, ſo from theſe two places, and ſome other, eſpecially that, page 15. (where vpon certaine worthy premiſes he collecteth, that in all likelihood, ſeing neither page 15. by learning nor ſufficient arguments, they of the ouer-worne Conſiſtorian faction could heeretofore preuayle, for the ſetting vp of their preſbyteryall conceyts, they thought to ſupply their wants therein, by this deuiſe of caſting out diuells:) It may very probably be gathered, that the thinge which hath vexed the Diſc. and made him ſweate ſomuch about counterfeyting, is not the counterfeyting, and teaching to counterfeyt a poſſeſſion: nor his hatred and abomination to ſinne, and in particuler to this deteſtable couſenage: but his hatred againſt the inſtrumentes which

which god vſed in theſe great workes of his: whome, together with all of the ſame ſtamp, as from his ſoule he hath of long hated, ſo hereby was the ſame mightely increaſed, in that theſe kinde of men ſhould be thought to haue ſuch intereſt in Chriſt Ieſus, as that at their (falſly termed) verball prayers, and hypocriticall faſtings, he ſhould as it were viſibly deſcende from heauen, and tread downe Sathan vnder their feete. This ſaid the Narrator before the Diſc. came forth, cannot be indured. whereby we may ſe he coniectured aright. And mark what he thereupon out of the Apoſtle addeth: But god hath choſen the fooliſh thinges of the world to confound the wiſe, and the weake thinges of the worlde to confound the mighty. As if he had ſaid: in that the Lord hath vſed in theſe rare and great workes of his, ſuch weake and contemptible mē, we ſhould rather conſidering the lordes manner of dealing, be confirmed thereby in theſe workes, & further aſſured that they are of god then kept from beleuing and embracing the ſame.

Theſe are not dealt with but there muſt be a great aſſemb'ly gathered togither in one corner or other: all of them ſuch perſons, as they knowe to be their frendes, or at the leaſt as their ſaid frends doe bring with them, and are thought fit to be peruerted. pag. 6

The falſhood of this is heereby manifeſt, in that M. More and I knewe not thoſe perſons in Lancaſhire who ioyned with vs in prayer to god for the caſting out of Sathan of the perſons poſſeſſed, as they can witneſſe: nor yet any one of them being meere ſtrangers to them all and they to vs: and at Nott. alſo they were generally vnknowne to me neither was their any choyce made by ſome of our frendes, and procuring of men to come, (as is well knowne to them that did come who were not a few) as the Diſc. ſuggeſteth: Beſides this partly argueth, that (were there a counterfeytinge indeede) theſe our ſayde frendes were confederates therein, which I think hardly any will ſauour. It is maruaile that the Diſc. affirmed not likewiſe that all thoſe which haue ſeene Somers, Darling, and the 7. in Lancaſhire in their (pretended) fitts, were not my frends (ſo ſhould I haue ſome ſkoare of frends:) or at leaſt that my frendes he ſpeaketh of did bring them, or procure them to come, knowing them to be ſuch as were like to be peruerted, for this he might as truly haue affirmed as the other: & this had bene to ſome purpoſe indeede, whereas the other is to none. It is ſtrange therefore that he ſtrayned not himſelfe a little further: but though he doe it not heere, yet he ſaith ſomething elſ-where bendīg this way: for ſpeaking of the 12. Commiſſioners, he hath thes words * that they are not to be impeached, ſomuch for their want of wiſdom, as for their blynding the eye thereof, by their prepoſterous affections, they held with M. Darrell. Yf now the principall eye witneſſes of Som. fitts for wiſdome

At the diſpoſſeſſion of the 7. in Lancaſhire there were preſent about 40. & of So. at Nott. 15 or

pag. 30

wisdome, learning, and authority were thus affected towardes mee, well may it be that the reſt alſo were: And if by my frends I could procure theſe perſons to ſee So. in his fitts, who albeit for theire wiſdome they were not eaſily to be deceyued, yet becauſe of their prepoſterous affections were fitt to be peruerted, much more by the ſaide frends of myne might I procure meaner perſons to ſee him, more fit to be peruerted then they. And this is to be ſuppoſed of the reſt of our Demoniacks, viz. that the principall and other witneſſes of their vexation were likewiſe blynded all, and euery of them with prepoſterous affection, which no man (ſure) will beeleue, the Diſc. excepted.

The end of the Firſt Booke.

THE SECOND BOOKE

OF CHAP. 1.

Diſcouerer.

Of M. Dar. intercourſe with So. by ſtarts at Aſhby, from about the yeare 1592 vntill 1597. for his inſtruction how to diſſemble himſelf to be poſſeſſed.

Fol. 1.

Darrell

This my ſuppoſed guiltynes is prooued two wayes, firſt by Somers accuſing me to haue taught him: Secondly, by circumſtances arguing the ſame: depoſed by diuers witneſſes. In the accuſation we are to obſerue firſt, the accuſer: ſecondly the accuſation it ſelfe, laſtly the circumſtances confirming the ſame (as is pretended) depoſed by others.

The accuſer is William Somers, a yong man about the age of 22. yeares: who firſt is knowne to be a notorious and infamous lyar: for

4. times hath he varyed with that double and falſe tongue of his: ſom times affirming, at other times denying all counterfeyting: and euery of theſe times openly, and to an infinite nomber of men. 2. By his owne confeſſion he hath counterfeyted a poſſeſſion: and if that were ſo, prophaned the holy exerciſe of prayer and faſting: and is therfore moſt vile and abominable. 3. Yf he haue counterfeyted, he is a moſt horrible blaſphemer: hauing ſometimes ſaid there is no god: and ſometimes vſed theſe wordes, I am * god: I am Chriſt, as is depoſed. 4. He is a forſworne wretch: for he hath ſworne both wayes, that hee hath counterfeyted, and that he hath not counterfeyted: yea with an execration, betaken himſelfe to the diuell if euer he counterfeyted: he muſt needes therefore be forſworne. In regard heereof I anſwer that foraſmuch as ther is only one witneſſinge againſt me, I ought not therevpon without further proofe, neither by the " lawe of god, nor by the ciuill lawe, be held and adiudged as guilty. 2. I haue to all the articles framed againſt me out of his accuſation, anſwered negatiuely and me thinketh were I a priuate man, in regarde of my educatAon, yeares, and life, I ſhould be credited rather then Somers: much more being a miniſter of Chriſt Ieſus and preacher of his goſpell. 3. Beſides my owne oath and proteſtation againſt this ſingle accuſer, * learned and graue deuines haue offered to be my compurgators: which by the ciuill lawe (according to which I am to be iudged) doth aboundantly ſuffice for my purgation: ſeeing my owne without theires is ſufficient. 4. I take exception againſt his teſtimony in regard of his vnworthynes, which appeareth by the premiſes. And becauſe of this I affirme, that there is no body teſtifying againſt me the crime layde to my charge: for there is none but Somers (as by that which followeth is made euident,) and he in all lawe is nullus teſtis: no witneſſe.

Yf that wretched & notorious Blaſpheamous Hacket, were iuſtly & worthely condemned: & executed, for ſuch like blaſphemies & indiguities as this may it not ſeme ſtrange that this lewde periured boy ſhould be thus cheriſhed and much made of, by the Biſh. & his Chaplen.

An ſ.

"Deut. 19. 15.
Iohn, 8. 17.
2 cor. 13. 1.
1 tim. 5. 19,

M. Iohn Ireton.
M. Iohn Browne
M. Robert Evington,
M. Tho. Boulton
pag. 244.

Diſcouerer.

The Diſc. ſaith of him, that he hath dealt ſince his examynation at London much more ſinceerly in this matter then I.

Darrell.

Admit then Som. were not ſuch and ſo vile as we heare, but as the Diſc. it may be will haue it, a yong man of good reporte: admitt likewiſe that not only he but others alſo ioyned togither with him in the accuſation, yet notwithſtanding for-aſmuch as the accuſation it ſelf is moſt falſe, as we ſhall heare, all will make nothinge to prooue my guiltynes. And ſo from the accuſer let vs proceede to the accuſation, and examyne it.

Diſcouerer.

About a quarter of a yeare before my departure (ſaith So.) from M. Tho. Grayes, (with whome I then dwelt at Langley Abbey in Leyceſter ſhire shire) I was sent one day to Ashby de la Zouch (being 4. or 5. myles distant) vpon some occasion of busynes. At what time I with other * boyes, going into an (a) alehouse, found there M. Darrell, whome I little regarding, but (b) playing the wagg, and shrewd boy with my companions, M. Darrell departed out of the house, and stayed at the dore vntill I came forth. And then he tooke me apart, asked me my name, where I was borne, with whome I dwelt, Alas (quoth he further) thou art a pretty boy, and my countreyman: I knewe thy father, and am sorrye to see thee in so meane a case: for I was simply apparrelled, euen as meanly almost as could be. Hee also promised to bring me out of the towne, and to tell me somethings, wherin if I would be ruled by him, I should not be driuen to goe so bare as I did but be able to mainteyne my selfe as long as I liued. When I had dispatched my busynes, I returned homeward, and found M. Darrell not farr from the place where I left him, talking with (c) two or three strangers, about one Katheryne Wright whome he said he had dispossessed of an vncleane spiryt. After he had ended his communication with them, he went with me along in the streete in my way homeward: and as we were going togither, I hauing ouer-heard some of his speaches with the saide strangers, asked hym what they ment: he answered me with a long speach concerning the possessiō of K. Wright, and tould me the manner of her fitts &c. as there followeth: where is set downe at large our first (pretended meeting) or acquaintance with the occasion thereof, the allurements I vsed to perswade him to counterfeyte, and the acting of certayne trickes by my selfe for his better instruction.

what these boyes were & there names it would be knowne, also what Alehouse.

(a) About 200. of the cheife of them amonge whom I haue liued, haue allreadie (in effect) witnessed, that I vsed to goe in to Alehouses, as little as other preachers of the gospell.

(b) boyes vsuallie playe in the feildes or stretes

(c) These men haue neither names nor surnames, no more then the boyes. But no maruel for they were to So. strangers.

Darrell.

Ans. 1. I answer before the Lord, and as I shall answer it at the dreadfull day of iudgment, that I neuer (to my knowledge) sawe William Somers before the 5. of Nouember 97. which was but two dayes before his dispossession, and that was also vpon earnest intreaty made by the Maior (then) of Nottingham and by sundry others: much lesse then had I for certaine yeares before 97. diuers and secret metings with him, and confederated with him, as he accuseth me.

Secondly, I answer, that forasmuch as Somers was gone from M. Grayes before the time he affirmeth our first meeting or acquaintāce began: it cannot therefore possibly be, that this his said accusation is true. About Midsommer 1598. I being by the B. of London deposed and examyned, it was articulated against me, that about 4. yeares (then) past, as I was talking with two or three strangers in Ashby cō cerning K. Wright, W. So. came to vs, and that leauing them, I went with him on the way homewards, perswadinge him to counterfeyt a possession as K. Wright had done. The same was read and charged against me in Michelmas tearme followinge at Lambeth before my

Lord

Lord cheif Iustice and some other of her Maiestyes moste honorable priuy counsell. And this was done in the presence of aboue an hundred. Then or at that time (as we see) our first acquaintance began Anno 1594. now sixe yeares past: but So. accusation being synce by the Disc. retyned, and cast into a newe mould, because of an Apologie of mine made after this, he is now said to haue bene acquainted with me from about the yeare 1592. whereby the Disc. hath gayned two yeares, which standeth him in singuler steade. for take the accusation as it was at the first, and is in the article, and continued long charged against me, as in equity we ought, the Disc. and Som. are manifestly conuinced by the discouery it selfe. for by pages 94. and 95. it appeareth, that it is now about eight yeares since Som. went from Maister Grayes, and the accusations being in his first frame, it is little more then sixe yeares since Somers and I were first acquainted, as he affirmeth: so that Som. should haue bene gone from M. Grayes, about 2. (o) yeares after the Disc. accompt, before he and I were acquainted, and therefore the accusation false. Blame not then the Disc. for this alteration of the time, for had he let it goe as it was framed at the first, either he must haue let that point of my Apollogie alone, or els haue cleane ouerthrowne himselfe and all: now whether of them soeuer he had done, it had bene against himselfe, and the latter shamed him for euer. It was wisdome then (I trow) with a dash of his pen to preuēt all, which was by writing the figure of 2. instead of the figure of 4. & chaunging 94. into 92. But let vs take the time of our first acquaintance to be, not as So. hath affirmed, but as the Disc. now reporteth it: (for I see no remedy) yet by the discouery it selfe it will appeare, that the accusation is false herein: for by page 94. it is playn (as forth with we shall heare) that So. went from M. Grayes aboue 7. yeares before the discouery came forth, and the Disc. himselfe confesseth. that it was then but 7. yeares synce wee were acquaynted, for from 92. (which is said to be the first time of our acquaintance, if we were acquaynted so soone) vntill 99. are but 7. yeares: and besides Somers saith that we met togither about a quarter of a yeare & pag. 80. twelue or thirteene weekes before he went from M. Grayes. By the discouery it selfe therefore it is manifest, that he could not come to me at Ashby from M. Thomas Grayes at Langley abbey a quarter of a yeare before his departure thence, as both here and page 82. is by Somers in his accusation affirmed. whereby it is euident that the Disc. in his discouery hath playnly discouered my inocency, togeather with So. & his own falshood and corruption. And this is the second time the Discouerer is conuinced by his discouery. And if heereby my innocency and the falshood of So. accusation appeare: How would it shine and be cleare

(o) ex certis mendacem arguo manifestis.

if vpon a commission graunted I should make proofe that it is aboue 10. yeares since his departure from Langley abbey, whereof I am very sure, and how or which way it will forthwith appeere

It will not helpe him to say that he doth not dyrectlye affirme that we became acquaynted 92. but about 92. for this worde about must haue relation to the time after 92. viz. 93. and not to the time before, because he saith in the next wordes followinge, that I became acquainted with So. at Ashby about 5. or 6. yeares past, meaninge from 98. which is all one as if he had said from 92. or 93. whereas otherwise he should haue said, about 6. or 7. yeares past.

Discouerer.

Against this the Disc. obiecteth as followeth: Where M. Darrell saith (viz. in my Apollogy) that it is 9. yeares or thereabouts since Som. went from M. Grayes, if that were true, he had said somewhat, for the clearing therefore of this: First M. Gray and Mistresse Gray being interrogated 23. Octob. 1598. how long it was since So. left their seruice: the one saith: more then sixe yeares past: and the other about sixe yeares as they remember. But there is some better certainty to bolt out the truth heerein. So. was bound prentise (as M. Dar. confesseth) with Thomas Porter, about a monneth or fiue weekes after he was discharged of M. Brackenburyes seruice: and So. saith that he remayned little above a quarter of a yeare (if so long) with M. Brackenbury: and it will be confessed, that he went from M. Grayes to dwell with M. Brackenbury: so as if we can fynde when Som. was bound prentice, it will appeare how long it is since he dwelte at M. Grayes, Now the Indenture it selfe whereby he was bounde, beareth date the seauenth of May in the 35. yeare of her Maiesty: whereby it is manifest the premises being true, that it is not yet seauen yeares since Som. dwelt with M. Gray, which controwleth M. Dar. nyne yeares.

Darrell.

The premisses being true, that he saith is not thereby manifest: for if we add to the date of the Indenture, the monneth or 5. weekes and quarter of a yeare he speaketh of, it is likely to be full 7. yeares, and as more as lesse. yea the premisses being true, it is manifest that his not yet 7. yeares (viz. at the time the discouery came forth) is false: for if it were more then 6. yeares in October 1598. since So. departure from M. Grayes: must it not needes be more then 7. yeares in November 1599. which was the time wherein the discouery first sawe the light? And this is the third time the Discouerer is conuinced by his owne discouery, neyther doe the premisses, being true, controule my 9. yeares: for they being true, M^r Gray notwithstanding deposed truly: and so did Mistresse Gray, her memory saylinge her for the present: They thought as it may seeme, that they would make sure to sweare truly,

and

and to keepe them within their boundes, and no maruaile seing notwithstanding that (as I was credibly informed) the B: of London said to M. Gray when he thus deposed, that he had forsworne himselfe: offering to lay him a hundred pounds that it was not 6. yeares since So. left his seruice, albeit M. Gray being ready to lay with him, he after refused: and not only this, but threatned him and Mistresse Gray likewise to send them to prison, what would he haue done, or at least said, if they had gone as far as truly they might? Had they deposed that it was not 7. yeares, or that it was not eight, or not 9. years past, their depositions being true, that I said of 9. yeares must needes haue bene false, but we see they haue deposed otherwise: and I trust if they should now be deposed thereof, after they haue better considered of the matter their depositions woulde not controule but confirme Darrells 9. yeares, But admit it were but 7. yeares. (yea somewhat lesse) from the time of So. departure from M. Grayes, vntill the time I writ my apology, which was in October 98. it had bene all one and as much for the clearinge of mee, as if it had bene 9. or 19. yeares from the time he went thence, because thereby it had bene euident he was gone from Langley Abbey before our pretended meeting should begin: which is sufficient for me, yea although wee take the time of our first acquaintance to begin in the yeare 92. or as the Disc. after affirmeth, about 5. or 6. yeares past from 98. much more if we take it as it was at the first layd out in writing against me: for if So. were gone from M. Grayes 7. yeares before the yeare 98. which was Anno 91. then was not he there 92. whereby we may see had the Disc. controuled my 9. yeares: it would not auayle him for the prooving of my guiltinesse. And if the Disc. will heerein saye any thing to the purpose, (otherwise he may in this poynt be hereafter sylent) hee must leaue my 9. yeares, and proue that So. was at M. Grayes at Langley Abby in the yeare 92. as he and Somers affirme: which I thinke he shall finde as ympossible for him to doe, as to prooue So. a counterfeyt. And when he hath performed this (if it proue possible) yet is he neuer a whit the nearer my teaching of him,

And where in this account of the Disc. he saith So. was bounde prentice as (M: Darrell confesseth) with Thomas Porter, about a moneth or fyue weekes after he was discharged of M. Brackenburyes seruice: obserue I beseech you his cunning: for he pretendeth to the reader as though that were graunted by me for a truth: whereas that which I confesse is this, that Somers was bownd prentise to Thomas Porter, and the very placing of my confession in the middest of these wordes doth ymply as much, and not that he was bound to him about foure or fyue weekes after he came from M: Brackenburyes: which I know to be false:

But to let that goe: the Disc. and Somers in theſe and the words following before mentioned haue vttered 3. vntruthes, euen as many as there be ſeuerall points deliuered: For firſt beſides that Som. was about 6. weekes with Porter before he was bound, as Porter and his wife are ready to witneſſe, he was (as I offer alſo to proue) after he came from M. Brackenbury at his mothers houſe in Nottingham firſt ſick for certaine weekes, after in health before he went to Porter, In the whole as I coniecture by that which followeth, about half a yeare before he was bound prentiſe, 2. (as ſhortly we ſhall heare) beinge M. Brackenburyes boy, he remayned at Bell hall in the County of Wy gorn frō the feaſt of Penticoſt in the yeare 91. vntil the feaſt of Michael the Archangel & from thence he went to his maiſters houſe at Holme not far from Newark vppon Trent: where alſo he remayned for a ſeaſon, beſides the time he was M. Brackenburyes boy before he came to Bell hall, which as I thinke was about a yeare. This Som. calleth little about a quarter, and becauſe he had not lyed heere enough, the Diſc. addeth if ſo long. 3. Somers being taught by M. Grayes ſchoolemaiſter and not able as it ſhould ſeeme to indure the correction which was due vnto him, ran away from M. Grayes home to Nottingham. wher likewiſe he continued a ſeaſon, before he went to M. Brackenburyes, but how long I know not. It will not then be confeſſed, but denyed, except it be by Somers and the Diſcouerer (who ſpare not to deliuer any thinge for truth be it neuer ſo falſe) that he went (with a ſtrayghte foote) from Maiſter Grayes to dwell with M. Brackenbury. we haue heard before, that the Diſc. his premiſſes beyng true, yet that he inferreth vpon them is falſe, viz. that it is not yet 7. yeares ſince Somers dwelt with M. Gray: how much more then the premiſſes being falſe? ſo that both concluſion and premiſſes be falſe and deceitfull, like to the authors and inuentors of them.

Diſcouerer.

And where the Diſcouerer vpon occaſion of theſe wordes of myne in my Apologye: Somers was gone from M. Grays 5. yeares before our pretended meeting, hath theſe wordes: If M. Darrell meane theyr firſt meeting at Aſhby, it is a palpable vntruth, to ſay, that Somers was gone from M. Grayes fiue yeares before that time: if he vnderſtand theire laſt meeting in the parke, he was gone indeede from M. Grayes aboue three yeares before that time, but not fyue:

Darrell.

He muſt remember, that I vſed thoſe wordes for the conuyncing of the accuſation then layde out in ſundry articles againſt me, wherein our firſt meeting was ſaide to be about 6. yeares now paſt, and that I truſt would proue no vntruth, if I ſhould be put to my tri

all

all: and not of the accusation now in prynt, wherein our arquaintáce is stretched about two yeares further, which is as much the Disc. as Som. accusation, and a miserable compound, as I may say- 2. Admit I had bene mis-informed, it had bene a fault in them from whome I receaued that information, and an other in me to spread it abroade, (although with no purpose of printing it) yet nothing auayleable to proue me guilty of teaching So. to counterfeyt.

And whereas Somers saith in his accusation, that dwellinge at M. Grayes at Langley abbey, he came from thence to me at Ashby de la zouch (being foure or fyue myles distant) vpon some occasyon, where I taught him to counterfeyt, and that sundry times as appeareth by page 82. wherevpon it is to be intended that I dwelt then at Ashby, as I haue for diuers yeares: this also (it is euident) is false, in that he was gone from M. Grayes before I came to dwell at Ashby. for from thence he went about 10. yeares past, and it was but 7. yeares vpon the feaste day of S. Mychaell the archaungell last (I meane Anno 99.) synce I went to Ashby: so he was gone about 3. yeares before I came thither or indeede euer sawe Ashby. This vrged by me heeretofore in my Apology, the Disc. semeth to conuince in these words following.

Discouerer.

Somers affirmeth (saith Darrell) that when he repayred to me to be taught, he came from one M. Grayes of Langley, with whome he saith he Pag. 93. then dwelt, to Ashby where I then dwelt, as he affirmeth: and in a parke there we met. In which wordes there are foure vntruthes. First, Som. doth not say that ever he repayred vnto him to be taught, but that beinge with him he was taught by him.

Darrell.

VVhether Somers as is pretended came to me at Ashby with an intent to be taught and to that ende, or no, it mattereth not, for the question is, whither euer we met at Ashby, & whither he was taught by me or no. Now and against this meeting and teaching at Ashby, both in my Apologye & here I bend my selfe, and thus I reason: He was gone from M. Grayes before I came to Ashby, & whiles I dwelt at Ashby he remayned not at M. Grayes: It cannot therfore be that Som. dwelling with M. Gray came to me dwelling some foure or fyue myles distant at Ashby as he affirmeth. And where the Disco. trifleth about the ende Somers set before himselfe in comming vnto me, surely if there were any such meeting at Ashby, and teaching there to counterfeyt, as Somers and the Discouerer pretend, considering it is sayde, that * after our acquaintance began and agreement about counterfeyting, he met me three or foure times in Ashby: one woulde thinke that he came to receaue some newe instruction from me, or to haue the Pag. 85.

ould renewed: for wherefore elſe came he vnto me? It is not ſaide any where that I went to him, or ſought him out at Langley abbye or
pag. 80. elſ-where, or yet in Aſhby, but that he * founde me in an alehouſe in paa. 82, Aſhby, and (a) met me three or foure times in Aſhby. And againe (b) I
pag. 83. went to Aſhby, and enquiring for M. Darrell, found him in a houſe by the ſchoole neere the Church-yard. Hauing met with him, he walked with me
pag. 84. into the feildes &c. And againe (c) I tooke Aſhby in my way of purpoſe to ſee M. Darrell whome I found there: Is it now credible that he ſhoulde come thus of purpoſe to me at Aſhby, being come inquire and ſeeke after me, when he hath found me and we met, I preſently fall of teaching him, and he of learning, and yet he come to no ſuch ende? It he had ſayde thus of our firſt meeting it had bene another matter, but to affirme that he neuer repayred vnto me to be taught, had there bene any ſuch repayring and teaching, muſt needes be in the iudgment of all men very vntrue. Yea it is contrary to pag. 84. with 85. Thus is the Diſcouerer conuinced the fourth tyme by his owne diſcouery: and pretending to ſhew my vntruthes is himſelfe fallen into an vntruth, were there any truth in my teaching Somers to counterfeyt, which he contendeth for. But let vs proceede to his ſecond vntruth.

Diſcouerer.

pag. 93. Secondly the tymes of So. repayring to M. Darrell were not whileſt he dwelt with M. Gray: but afterwardes when he was run away from his maiſter Thomas Porter of Nott. for Somers only layeth to M. Darr. charge that on a time when he dwelt at M. Gray he met him the ſaid Darrell by chance at Aſhby, & was then firſt inſtructed by him.

Darrell.

Contrary to this are theſe wordes page 82. Alſo the ſaide Somers affirmeth that after his former acquaintance begun with M. Darrell and whileſt he ſtill remayned with M, Gray he met M. Darrell three or foure times in Aſhby And continuing his ſpeach concerning our meetinge at Aſhby, whiles Somers remayned with M. Gray at Langley abbey, he addeth this further: at other times alſo the ſaid M. Darrell did kindely ſalute me: and ſo proceedeth the Diſcouerer (as there appeareth) to mẽtion Somers departure from M. Grayes to M. Brackenburyes, & how ſhortly after he was with him, he fell a counterfeyting and practiſing theſe feyts of actiuity, which of me he had learned at Aſhby, whiles he was at M. Grayes. VVhereby it is playne if the Diſcouerer ſay truly page 82. that we met more then one time at Aſhby whileſt Somers
pag. 93. dwelt at M. Grayes, which is contrary to that is heere affirmed.
Thus the fift time the Diſcouerer is confuted by his owne diſcouerye, and if he ſpeake the truth page 82. (otherwiſe he is to blame to publiſh a lye for a truth) he ſpeaketh heere vntruly: and ſo in conuyn-

cing

cing me of an vntruth, he himselfe is found with an other vntruth.

Thirdly Somers doth not affirme that M. Darrell dwelt then at Ashby, when he dwelt at M. Grayes and mett him in Ashby they might meete there togither though M. Darrell did not dwell there. pag. 93.

Be it that in the article layde out in writing against me, it is not expresly saide, that I dwelt then at Ashby, yet considering it is sayde that he came sundry times to me at Ashby before he went from M. Grayes, we haue heard in reason it is to be so intended, and the same was to be vnderstood, which is all one as if it had bene expressed, for howsoeuer Somers might meete me by chance at Ashby the first time he was (as they say) instructed by me, (and yet this is very incredible that we should not only stumble one vpon an other in an alehouse but agree so quickly of our match, and fall so roundly to our worke euen at the first dash) yet that by chance thus he should meete me after at Ashby three or foure times and at other times also before he wente from M. Grayes, as is aboue saide, I not dwelling at Ashby but 20. myles of and aboue, he also dwelling foure or fyue myles of, and in subiection to an other, is (almost) as vnlikely, as that a blynde man shoulde catch an hare with a taber, as it is in the prouerbe: for it is not sayd either by Som. or the Disc. that I appoynted him to meete me at Ashby, we dwellinge both of vs elswhere: for that had bene as absurd, considering the places of our aboades, as presently will appeare. VVe may therefore assure our selues that the reason why it is mentioned so carefully and purposely, first in So. accusation, then in the circumstances confirming the same, that Langley abbey and Ashby were foure or fyue myles distant, is becawse men might there-vppon coniecture that I dwelling in Ashby, and he no further of, might well in some probabillity and likelihood meete in Ashby. and that diuers times, and in the parke which standeth betwene them both: whereas had it bene confessed that I dwelt not there but twenty myles from the place, had I say the accusation bene so framed, and the place of my dwelling also named, it had bene made thereby in all indifferent mēs iudgments not only very vnlikely to be true, but also incre-dible, as may appeare by that which heere followeth. pag. 80, & 87.

I am able to proue by a multitude of witnesses that from the time I left the Vniuersity of Cambridge which is about eightene years past, vntill I went to Ashby, I dwelt either at Mansfeild in Sherwood, or Bulwell a village three myles distant from Nott. saue that I was at London a student of the common lawes of this land, almoste a yeare, which was about fifteene yeares past, now Langley abbey with these two townes are north-wardes from Ashby and the grounds belonging to the Abbey, M. Grayes demeanes lye very neare the high way from from both the sayd townes to Ashby, the wayes meeting thirteene or fourteene myles before you come at Ashby, so that from which of these places soeuer of my aboade I went, (as from the one of them I must, if I dwelt not at Ashby) I must needes passe by M. Grays house where So. dwelling was, when I was short of Ashby 4. or 5. myles, which considered, who can be so grosse as once to ymagine that we would appoint and that sondry times, Ashby to be the place wherein to consult and doe our tricks: a man would thinke, that had So. and I met as he affirmeth, some parte of the grounds belonging to Langley abbey (there being especially trees & bushes, as well as in Ashby park) had bene safer and more for our ease: for so much laboure bestowed in vayne might I at least haue saued. Considering also it is saide that we met in Ashby towne, and so in the view of others and that often, wherein myght needes be great daunger least one day it should make to the descrying of vs and * bring vs both in danger of hanging: Ashby was the most vnmeete place of a thousand we might haue agreed vpō pag. 86. and made choyce of. It is most true the Disc. saith, that I dwelt not at Ashby, (but indede at Mansfeild) when So. dwelte at M. Grayes, neither will any man deny, but that we might haue mett there togither though I did not then dwell there: but that the accusation was thus framed against me at the first (according to which I framed my Apology is as false, as this is true, what fault then was committed by me herein in my Apologie? yet if we will beleue the Disc. when he speaketh vn truly, by his saying it may be gathered that I did dwel at Ashby whē Som. dwelt at M. Grayes: for he reckoning page 94. & 95. how long it was from the time that Som. went from M. Grayes: hath these words: It is not yet 7. yeares since Som. dwelt with M. Gray: & reckoning on the other sid in the pag following, how long I dwelt at Ashby, he vseth these

pag. 96. words: which yeares being layd togither, doe amount to aboue eight yeares and a halfe. If those two speaches or accounts of his be true, (which vnder colour of truth he publisheth to the world) by the disc. his owne testimony when Somers dwelt at M: Grayes, I dwelt at Ashby, and therfore he might well haue let this third vntruth of mine alone. And this is the sixt time the Discouerer is conuinced by his discouery. Howsoeuer it be whether I then dwelt thire or not there (as it greatly matereth not) the Disc. is taken in an other vntruth and contradiction, yea in the verye same leafe, as by his discouery is further discouered Somers falshood and his owne.

Discou.

pag. 94. Fourthly, whereas M. Dar saith (if he meane plainlie,) that So. affirmeth their meeting in the parke to haue bene whilste he dwelt at M. Grayes: he is therin greatly deceiued. For there saide meeting there was little aboue a yeare before his pretended dispossession at Nottingham.

Darrell.

It is said page 80. that when we were first acquaynted and agreed of this match, which is supposed to be diuers yeares before the latter meeting here spoken of, I acted his tricks vnto him. Now this meeting I euer tooke to be ment in Ashby parke. But seeing we mett not there then, as the truth is: and the Disc. himselfe confesseth, and yet notwithstanding met then somewhere, as the Disc. and So. affirme, I desire them both to bethinke them and agree of the place, where I taught and he learned at our first acquaintance, and to discouer that in the next discouery, for the better strengthening of their wreecthed & miserable accusation: for in Ashby parke we heare it was not, and no other place of our meeting hath hitherto bene named, the Alehouse and Ashby streetes excepted, in neither of which places it is cleare by theire owne wordes page 8. that I acted not his tricks vnto him.

VVhere I affirme in my apologye, that it is but 6. yeares since I went to Ashbie, the Disc. indeuoreth to perswade the world that when he published his discouerie it was about 10. yeares: and this is an other untruth (forsooth) of mine. His words be these:

Discouerer.

If the information giuen be true, he doth therein forgett himselfe. For it is reported that he dwelt in one Perrines house in Ashby about one yeare Then in one Iohn Hollandes about 6. yeares, and lastly in William Swinsons about a yeare and a halfe: which being layd togither, doe amount to aboue eight yeares and a halfe. wherevnto (if M. Darrell doe not still continue his family there, but hath dwelt since a year or two at Nottingham) that time also since he departed thence, may also be added.

pag. 96. It is reported (saith he) your owne forged deuise at Ashby (if there were any such) is vtterly false, yea in the Discouerers owne conscience, it may appeare by that which thereafter followeth.

Darrell.

It is reported (saith he) that I dwelt &c. but by whome Sir Discouerer is this reported, or is it simply your owne forged deuise? That the report and information of my dwelling eight yeares & a halfe at Ashby (if there were any such) is vtterly false, yea in the Discouerers owne conscience, it may appeare by that which heere followeth.

I went to dwell at Ashby (as I can easily and sufficiently proue) vpon the feast day of Saint Mychaell tharchangell 92. and my Apology I made since my departure from Ashby about the same time of the yeare 99. How is it then possible, that I should dwell there 8. yeares and a halfe? and that herein I said truly in my Apology the Discouerer himselfe cannot be ignorant: for page 24. he maketh mention of a testimoniall from Nottingham (he should haue added also from Mansfeild and Bulwell, for the inhabitants of these three townes ioyned together in one and the selfe same testimonyall) and of an other from Asshby, hauing some 200. names of the cheif of these townes subscrybed, for the witnessing of my good behauiour during the space of my aboade with them, which was about 16. yeares, which with sundry other writings the B. of London * iniuriously tooke away from me, being prisoner in the Gatehouse, And in the Asshby testimonyall he knoweth are these wordes: Wee the Inhabitants of Asshby de la zouch &c. certify that for the space almost of sixe yeares together, during which time he hath dwelt heere in Asshby, he hath lined among vs in very good reporte, behauing himselfe euery way as became his profession, and the gospel of Christ. And this they offer (being aboue 30. in nomber) to testify further, if it shall please authority to call them therevnto. Nowe if my dwelling in Asshby (as the Disc. vpon a false report insinuateth) had bene eight yeares and a halfe, is it credible, that so many honest inhabitants, purposing to giue a true testimonyall of my behauioure during all the time of myne aboade with them, would haue diminish ed more then two yeares and a halfe of my continuance at Asshby? seing especially they voluntarily offer to testify that they haue subscribed vnto, vpon their corporall oathes: and that the thing I desired (as I can proue) was not a testimonyall concerning my behauioure, but as touching the time of my aboade with them. Is not this Discouerer then (his owne conscience witnessing the same) a Discouerer, a reporter, or an informer of a shameless vntruth? for is it not a shamelesse thing that he should publish and make shewe to the world, that I dwelt at Asshby at least 8. yeares and a halfe, himselfe knowinge the same to be false? Is the information (trow we) where-vpon he affirmeth this, to be compared for nomber and credit, with the aforesaide information to the contrary? But I desire to know of the Disc. from whome he had his information. Surely from none in Asshby, for the inhabitants generally of that towne know that I neither dwelte sixe yeares nor sixe dayes in a house of Iohn Hollands: yea that he had no house (then) to let and spare me, and that I did not dwell halfe sixe yeares in any one house of any one particuler mans in Asshby. But it may be he had his information from William Somers, who hath informed him in many other worthy things, and whose testimony with him is of greate credit, such as he receaueth before the othes of aboue thirty. why should he not then beleiue him herein (if he be the informer) before the report of aboue 30. others? But let vs heare Somers speake in his owne person, and proceede in his accusation.

(a) by his sole authority, when as diuers Commissioners shold haue ioyned with him therin

Pag. 89.

Discouerer.

Within 12. or 13. weekes (as I thinke) after my first acquaintance with M. Darrell, M. Gray placed me with one M. Anthony Brackenbury to keepe certaine siluer hayred conneyes, with whome after I had remayned about

about 6. or 7. weekes, (as far as I remember) I began to put in practise sundry of these instructions that M. Darrell had giuen me. I fayned my selfe to be sicke: I foamed at the mouth: I did sometimes lie speachlesse as though I had bene dumbe: and so by the space almoste of a monneth I did counterfeyt as well as I could, such fits as M. Darrell had tould me that Katheryne Wright did practise. How be it I was not (as it seemeth) at that time my crastes maister. For M. Brackenburie and M. Randoll Barton his brother, being verily perswaded that I was but a counterfeyt, & that I had dissembled all that I had done, I was turned out of seruice, & wente home to Nottingham to my mother: with whome after I had remayned about a moneth, I was bound prentise for seauen yeares, to one Thomas Porter a musitian in that towne.

Darrell.

Before he hath tould vs how and what I taught him presentlye vpon our first greeting, and now he telleth how and where he putt in practise sundry of these instructions, with the ill successe which followed vpon that his forwardnes, in that he would be doing before he was his crasts maister: which made him I warrant you take time enough before he did his feyts the second time. That this is false and come out of the same shop with the former, and from the same author, the diuell I meane, the father of lyes, is hereby manifest, in that he was gone from M. Grayes in Leycester shire, and seruant with M. Brackenburie in Worcestershire, before the time that he and I are saide by the Discouerer himselfe to haue bene acquainted togither. For we haue heard before out of page 78. that we became acquanted aboute the yeare 1592. and out of page 79. about fiue or sixe yeares past before 98. Now I can by oath proue that from the feast of Penticoast 1591 William Somers then M. Anthony Brackenburyes boy, remayned at the mannour house of Bell hall in the county of Wigorn, vntill the feaste of S. Mychaell tharchangell, and from thence went to his said maister his house at a towne called Holme. How long before this time he had bene M. Brackenburies boy I yet know not, but that he ran away frō M. Grays home to Nottingham and there continued a time before he went to M. Brackenbury is certaine. Yt then So. was gonne from M. Gray 91. yea I take it in the yeare 90. if not before, which is 9. or 10. yeares past, how could he possibly be M. Grayes boy, and remayning with him in his seruice at Langley abbey, come to mee from thence to Asshby for 12. or 13. weekes 92. and 7. or 8. yeares past, except he had retorned to M. Grayes seruice againe after he had bene with M. Brackenbury, which is manifest he did not by page 83. 84. and neither So. nor the Discouerer euer affirmed that. And where he saith he foamed, I think it passeth his skill, and that he counterfeyted & was therefore turned out of seruice, and went home, the truth is, that being strangely handled, vexed indeede by Sathan, and as I verily think then possessed, and thereby a continuall trouble to M. Brackenbury, he was from thence sent home to his mother on horsback, and that with two or three for his more safetye, and with monney also from M*istresse Brackenbury* to his said mother, and this was the counterfeyting he vsed, and the manner of his turning out of seruice. Thus much for answer to the first part of Somers accusation, conteyninge oure first acquayntance and agreement about counterfeyting: wherein as ther be diuers other absurd things (which for breuity sake & partli for that they are vnworthy the answering I omyt) so this is one, that mentioning my teaching of him, and acting of certaine tricks for his better instruction, we neare not of any place where this should be performed: for the Discouerer telleth vs that our meetinge in Abbye parke was not till aboue 3. yeares after this, and other place is neither heere nor elswhere named. This dealing is much like to his, that accusing one before the iudgment seat of robbery, nameth not any plac

pag. 81. where he should be robbed. But let vs proceede to our third pretended meeting, for the second meeting which is saide to be vppon his first running from his maister and in his way going to Essex, conteineth only a few wordes betwixt vs concerning counterfeyting, without any teaching and acting on my part, and learning on his, and therefore I will omyt it. Where first I will set downe the Discouerer his wordes seruing to make a way therevnto, & then So. his owne.

Discouerer.

pag. 84. 85. Vpon his second running from his maister, and after he had remayned in Essex a good part of a yeare, till he was weary he returning homewards againe towards Nottingham with better hope then before, to buy out his yeares, thought it conuenient in his iorney homewards to take Ashby in his way, of purpose to see M. Darrell, whome he found there as he saith, & had dealing with him as followeth.

Vpon my comming at that time to M. Darrell, he asked me where I had bene: whither I was goinge, and whether I had attempted to practise any of his instructions. To whome I answered according to his questions: that I had no conuenient time, otherwise then when I was alone to doe any of those things.: then he tould mee many things of the boy of Burton. wher vpon I shewing my selfe to haue a desire to goe and see him, M. Dar. said I should doe well in so doing, because that seeing of him in his fitts, I might the better learne to doe them my selfe afterwards: being thus incouraged, I went to Burton, where I sawe Tho. Darling: but perceyning that a greate number of people came likewise to see him, and fearing that some of them might knowe me, I returned to Ashby, not staying to see D*arling in any of* his

his fitts. At my comming back againe to M. Darrell he demaunded of mee whether I had seene the boy in any of his fitts: & I answered that I had not for the reason last mentioned: which M. Darrell not well approuing, said that I might well inough haue staid to haue seene some of them, because it was not likely that any there could haue knowne me: Then vpon some further occasion of speaches betwixt vs, M. Darrell deliuered vnto me in writing, the particuler fitts. which the said Thomas Darling lately had, and did act the most of them himselfe before me, we two being in the parke together alone, by Ashby. At that time also M. Darrell deliuered vnto mee in writing, certaine signes and gestures, which were to be vsed, he said, to signify sondry kindes of sinnes: which gestures he did likewise act himselfe in the place before mentioned. Then followeth the acting of certayne feates on his part: and after that he thus procedeth. These things thus finished I tould M. Darrell that I ment to returne to see if I coulde gett my selfe released from my maister, and he approuing my purpose therin, sayde that when the time serued I might well put all the former things in practise there with good effect: and that in so doing he doubted not, to procure mee a releas from my maister. He also tould me, that he hauing a sister in law in Not. on Mistris Wallys I could no soner name her whē I should be thought to be possessed, but that presētly, & the rather by his sisters meāes he should be sent for to come vnto me, & so we departed. And thus far So. (quoth the Disc.) for the prose of all the former particulers, wherwith Darr. is charged

Darrell.

As in the two former (pretended) meetings, so in this thirde, neither Som. nor the Disc. doe tell vs in what yeare of the Lorde, or of the Queene we met, which I desire the Reader to obserue. They knew not belike what yeare to name, least thereby they should disaduantage themselues. Before we heard of no place where I shoulde giue these worthy instructions: neither then, nor now doe we heare of the certaine time wherin this should be done: which dealing is like to his that accusing one to haue robbed him, can neither name place where he robbed him, nor the time when: which accusation if it should be receaued, as it is far from any Iudge, so it woulde peraduenture trouble one were he neuer so innocent, to cleare himselfe thereof. But as before out of the Disc. and So wordes, vttered elswhere and to an other ende, I haue, will they nill they, founde out aboute what time our first pretended meeting and acquaintance shoulde begin, though not the iust time, and thereby cleared my selfe, & shewed the falshood of his accusation, euen so I trust to doe heere. In the page before, viz. 83. it is saide that the second time Somers rann from his maister, was about a yeare and a halfe before he fell to his practises at Nottingham: and heere it is saide, that vpon this his second running and after he had remayned in Essex a good part of a yeare, we met in Ashby parke in his returne from Essex to Nottingham. Now to his said practises he fell at Nott. in October Anno 97. so that by So. and the Disc. saying, this our meeting in the parke was in the yeare 96. And this the Disc. page 94. (though to an other ende) confesseth, saying: There meeting in the parke was little aboue a yeare before his pretended dispossession at Nottingham: but this his dispossession pretended (as he tearmeth it) was vpon the 7. of Nouember 97. therefore this our meetinge must be (if there were any such) by the Discouerers owne confessyon in or about October 96. which possibly cannot be so: for that at this saide meeting So. saith that I tould him many things of the boy of Burton and aduised him to goe and see him, whereyppon he went to Burton, and sawe Thomas Darling &c. as is aforesaide: than I deliuered vnto him in writing the particuler fitts which the saide Darling lately had &c. nowe these things cannot possibly be true, (and so the accusation is notoriously false) because Darling was not at that time possessed, but dispossessed, and deliuered from Sathan and his vexation, aboute halfe a yeare before this time, and a yeare and a halfe before Somers dispossession as in the begining of his fift booke is made manifest.

pag. 263. One (saith he) Thomas Darling dwelling at Burton vpon Trent, begining to be sick in February 1595. did afterwards take vpon him to dissemble certaine tricks: wherein continuing till the weeke before Whitsontyde following, he was deemed by M. Darrell to be possessed, and the next day after (as it is pretended) was dispossessed. From which time he continued well, by the space of about eight dayes, and then being at the schoole he fell againe to certaine tricks and perseuered in them by starts two dayes whilest it was pretended that Sathan sought to repossesse him. But synce he hath left those practises. This appeareth also by the first and second pages of his booke.

If Darling were recouered and well, so continuing (or leste his practises) at the time the Disc. mentioneth, as the truth is, and Som. dispossessed vpon the 7. of Nouember 97. how can that which is heere reported be true? So that the Disc. hath againe in his Discouery discouered my innocency, and the falshood of himselfe and So. accusation. And this is the seauenth tyme the Discouerer is conuynced by his owne Discouery.

Moreouer where the Disc. and Som. affirme, that in his returne to Nottingham, after his second running from his maister, & a little aboue a yeare before his pretended dispossession, wee mett in Ashby parke and that there I taught him: I am able and offer to prooue by sundrye

witnesses

witneſſes, that So. after his ſecond vagary or running away from his maiſter, was returned againe to Nott. to his ſayd maiſter and there continued with him aboue two yeares and a quarter before his diſpoſ ſeſſion. How can the premiſſes then or accuſation poſſibly be true.

And wheras he ſaith, that I deliuered unto him in writing the particuler fitts which Darling (then) had, and againe, that I deliuered vnto him in writing certaine ſignes and geſtures, I demaund what is become of this writing, and why myne own hand is not brought forth againſt me. It may be that Som. tare it in peeces after firſt he had written the ſame in a Sententiæ Pueriles, as he did by the writing he had at our first meeting, and hath loſte this booke alſo with the other. O that theſe things be admodum puerilia, and muſt needes ſmell (& be laugh ed at) in the iudgmcnt of the wiſe, yea it was well for ſome they wer no worſe. pag. 82.

The Diſc. addeth: And thus far Som. for the proofe of all the former particulars, wherewith M. Darrell is charged. Aworthy proof ſure but ſutable to the reſt. I maruaile that the Diſc. is not aſhamed, to account So. teſtimony a proofe, and much more to produce his teſtimony ſo oft, I thinke (a) 40. times at the leaſt, and for the prouinge of ſo many ſeuerall things as he doth: he being a notorious lyar, a periured perſon, in a word as infamous and vile a youth as liueth I thinke this daye vpon the face of the earth, Notwithſtandinge ſaith the Diſcouerer. (u) the confeſſion of Som. is of greate moment. And is it ſo indeed? VVhy So. hath ſaid there is no (r) god, & vſed theſe wordes, I am god and (a) Chriſt, as is depoſed: Bluſh then and be aſhamed (O thou man) of thoſe ſpeaches. Beſides, Som. hath ſaid and ſworne that he did not counterfeyt. If his wordes be of ſuch credit with the Diſc. & ſome few others (for with few or none that are wiſe and godly I hope they be not) why ſhould not his wordes ſealed at other tymes with oathes and execrations be of like vallew? And why doth the Diſco. or any other rather beleeue So. affirming he counterfeyted, then denying the ſame? ſeing eſpecially he hath as oft denyed, as affirmed that he counterfeyted, and that he hath alſo varyed ſomuch with that double and falſe tongue of his, euen 4. times, and therefore is not to be beleeued in any thing he ſaith, nor his teſtimony to be admitted in any court of record. Yea but ſaith the Diſc. Som. confeſſion is not ſo bare as M. Darrell pretendeth, but is ſtrengthened with many circumſtances (depoſed by many) as doe argue the ſame in all likelyhood to be true, yea many of them togither with the boyes oath, are very pregnant proofes thereof, page 106. And thuſmuch concerning the accuſation, now we will proceede to the circumſtances confyrminge (as is pretended) the ſame.

This argueth a deſperat cauſe

pag. 87.

what then? yet why ſhould not his teſtimony be admitted againſt Darrell.

pag. 87.

pag. 87. The first circumstance alleadged to confirme So. accusation

Discouerer.

It it confessed by M. Gray and Mistresse Gray, and by M. D*ar himselfe, that So. dwelt with* M. Gray at Langley, within 4. or 5. miles of Asshby de la zouch: and did run on errands as Mary Houlden saith.

the 2. circumstance pag. 87.

2. M. Darrell hearing So. describe the situation of Asshby, did thereby well perceaue, that he had bene at Asshby, So as there is no impediment in that respect why he might not meete M. Darrell there as is deposed.

the 3. circumstance. pag. 87.

3. It is also confessed to be true, that So. going to dwell with M. Brackenbury left certaine bookes at M. Grayes.

the 4 & 5. circumstance. pag 88.

Likewise that Som. was bound a prentise with Thom. Porter and that he ranne twise from him is acknowledged to be true by M. D*ar. himselfe. and so the said So. had sufficient opportunity to goe to Asshby, and to talke with* M. D*ar. at such times, as vpon his oath he hath deliuered.*

Darrell.

By these and such like circumstances, had Somers charged any other with teaching him, the same person might as well (and indeed as truly) be proued guilty thereof as I, For instance: Admit So. had accused S. Harsnet insteade of I. Dar. and that the accusation were thus: About eight yeares past I dwelling at Langley Abbey with M. Tho. Graye and going on errands now to Asshby a market town there by, now to Loughborrow an other, mett on a time one M. Harsnet at Asshby, and there the said M. Harsnet perswaded me to counterfeyte to be possessed with the diuell, which he said I might easily learne, & he would teach me: promising me that if therein I would be ruled by him he would take me into his owne seruice, and maintain me while I liued. herevpon we went into Asshby parke, and being there M. Harsnet the better to teach me did act diuers tricks, for gnashinge with his teeth, he knocked his own teeth togither diuers times, for tomig, he rolled his tongue in his mouth, and then put out some little spittle betwixt his lippes, and said that I might soone learne to doe it better, by rolling a stone in my mouth, but specially if I coulde gett a little soape to vse at such times: (&c. as followeth page 81.) and because we were to depart farr one from an other for my better remembrance he gaue me directions in writing, charginge me to make away the writing, which I did after I had writ the same in a Sententiæ Pueriles, which booke I left at M: Grayes. Now about 12, or 13. weekes (as I thinke) after my first acquaintance with M. Harsnet: M. Gray placed me with one M. Anthony Brackenbury to keepe certaine syluer hayred connyes: with whom after I had remayned about six or seaue weekes, I began to put in practise sundry of those instructions that M. Harsnet had giuen me, &c. as before we haue heard out of page 83. Heerevpon being turned out of seruice I went home to Notting- ham

ham & was bound prentice first to Tho. Porter of Nott. and after with a Barber in East Smythfeild in London: where beinge I repayred to M. Harsnet at his chamber in the B. of Londons house, & made knowne to him my yll successe: who tould me that he must further instruct me, and that he might the more safely and conueniently doe it, hee said he would procure his Lord to agree with my maister for my yeares, and to receaue me into his house, aand after I should be his man, as he had before promised me, and then he woulde teach mee in his chamber: and accordingly he did so.

Now if S. Harsnet shall deny this, and say that here is nothinge but So. bare accusation: I will out of his mouth returne against him, that the accusation is not so bare as he pretendeth, but is strengthened with such circumstances as doe argue the same in all likelihood to be true: yea layde togither with some other that might be added, are pregnant proofes thereof: for first it is manifest that So. dwelt with M. Gray, & did run on errands as Mary Holden saith. 2. Som. hath bene at Ashby: So as there is no ympediment in this respect why he might not meete S. Harsnet there, as he chargeth him. 3. So. dwelt with M. Brackenbury 4. Som. going to dwell with M. Brackenbury left certaine bookes at M. Grayes. 5. So. being at M, Brackenburyes did counterfeyt, & was therefore turned out of seruice, as is said page 81. 6. So. was bounde prentise with Tho. Porter, and did goe after to London, 7. being there he was bound prentice with a barber in East-Smythfeild. 8. He was from thence receaued by the B. of London into his house, agreeing with his maister for his yeares, and it may well be this was by S. H. procurement. 9. being in the B. house So. was often in S. Harsnet his chamber, and they two alone. 10 So. was S. Harsnets man, and had maintenance from him. The sixe first of these circumstances the Disc. telleth vs is true, and the foure last he knoweth to be true: and yet the accusation I trust he will say is false. The circumstances then of an accusation (vayne and tryfling ones I meane as be these) may be true, and the accusation very false. Notwithstanding then the truth of the Disc. circumstances precedent and subsequent, yet the acculation of any teaching of Somers to counterfeyt, may be (and indeede is) most notoriously false. And heereby is discouered the vanitye and lightnesse of the Discouerers silly & sottish circumstances, which may aswell serue for the appeaching of himselfe or any other, as of me against whome they are brought. So that I shall not neede to spend any more time in refuting that which refuteth it self in the iudgment of the wise.

pag. 88. The 6. circumstance.

Discouerer.

6. Somers practised at M. Brackenburyes some such sitts, as he had afterwards at Nottingham, whereupon M. Brackenbury did discharge him from his ſeruice, as Som. hath affirmed.

Darrell.

This is anſwered before. 2. So. fitts at Nott. were not counterfeyted but done by the diuell ergo So. counterfeyted not at M. Brackenburies, but was then poſſeſſed, for it is ſaide, that his fitts at theſe two places were alike.

pag. 89. the 7. circumſtance.

Diſcouerer.

7. So. in his fitts at Nott. and before M. Dar. comming thither, did name him the ſaid Dar. diuerſe times.

Darrell.

I deny not but that he named me, before I was the ſecond time ſent for by the Maiors letter: but the Diſc. muſt proue that he named me before the firſt ſending for me, when to one of the letters for my repayre to So. Miſtreſſe Wallys my ſiſter in lawe ſubſcribed her name, and that the ſaid naming of me, was the occaſion of my ſending for. otherwiſe this naming me ſtrengtheneth not So. accuſation as is plain by page 86. mentioned before in the very laſt words of So. accuſatiō And this as hitherto the Diſc. hath not done, ſo neither ſhall he be able to performe: as may appeare by that I heeretofore haue reported concerning the true occaſion of my going to Som, which I can eaſilye proue.

But admit it were otherwiſe then I affirme, yet ſeing it was not Som. but the diuell by his tongue that named me, it argueth rather the ſubtlety of the diuell at that time laying the foundation of that building he ſince hath erected, then my teaching him to counterfeyt.

Diſcouerer.

8. M. Darrell tould Robert Cooper the boyes father in lawe that if he would careſully looke to Somers, he ſhould not looſe a penny by him: which ſorteth with that depoſed by Somers: How if he would be ruled by M. Dar he ſhould not want: And the ſauour is increaſed by that which M. Darrell himſelfe confeſſeth. viz. that he was a meanes with ſome others to haue a collection made for the relciſe of the ſaid Cooper. but indeede there were twoe.

pag 89 the 8. circumſtance

Darrell.

Be it that Cooper haue thus depoſed, for we heare not what hee hath depoſed. only the Diſc. ſaith ſo, Be it alſo graunted that I haue confeſſed as is heere ſaide, thogh it be otherwiſe: why might I not haue vſed words to this effect to Cooper, and what had I therein ſayd ill beſeeming mee? Conſidering the pouerty of Cooper, and the greate charge, and continuall hindrance Somers was to him and his family e day and night for ſome weekes, beeſides the great trouble and diſquietnes he put him and his vnto. It is true there were two collections

ons, but neither of them in the name of Somers but of the poore: The first of them was at the priuate fast helde at Som dispossession: The second at a publique fast kept at Nott. These collections all mē I trust will allow of. But was the monney at these times collected gyuen to Somers? or not a penny: or yet was all or most of it giuen for his releise to Cooper his father in lawe? nothing lesse. The monney receaued at the first collection vas part of it giuen to the poore of Nottingham, and part to Thomas Porter So. maister, because of the losse he had suffered, and the charge he had bene at through Somers affliction, for the space of aboue a moneth before. as M. Aldred M. William Langford with some others can witnesse. That which was giuen at the second and publique fast was distributed by the Maior, whereof some he gaue to the poore of that town, and some to Cooper, partly because of the charge and trouble he had bene at whiles Somers remayned with him, partly for the cloathing of him, who scarsly had any to couer his nakednes. And how doth this confirme his accusation, & proue that I taught him to counterfeyt as the Disc. affirmeth? The lying boy faith in his accusation that I promised him if he would be ruled by mee, he should be able to maintayne himselfe as long as he liued: and again that he should neuer want whileſt he liued: If this were the principall ende of his counterfeyting as is pretended, why (when he had counterfeited and done his feates) did neyther he demaunde, nor I giue him any thing? But let the Disc. and Som. say what they please, for there tongues are their owne, and they lordes ouer them: the deede sheweth that he hath liued and bene farr better mayntayned, since he saide he counterfeyted, then whiles he did counterfeyt, as the Disc. tearmeth his possession, so as the diuell may seeme to haue kept promise with him hitherto alluring him thus: thou had better say thou was a counterfeyt, and liue like a man, then to haue nothinge: for if thou shalt say thou wast not a counterfeyt, and goe into the clergyes hand thou shalt haue nothing.

pag. 80. paa. 81,

pag. 89. & 106. & 131. the 9. circumstance.

Discouerer.

9. I bought out the yeares of his apprentiship, proued by my own confession, which is this: I gaue my word to Somers his maister, that he should haue 13. shillings 4. pence to release him of his apprentiship, which afterwards I did performe.

(a) this condition is fraudulently left out by the Discouerer.

Darrell

Heere these things are to be remembred: 1. that I gaue my word as is heere said, if So. father in lawe did not (a) pay him by such a day which he not performing as I thought verily he would I was in conscience bound to pay, because of my promise. 2. I did this & indeed desired that So. might be released of his yeares, because Tho. Porter his maister

maister was a fidler, which trade of life we all know is much abused. 3. Porter being besides a weauer, had kept him still in his seruice, so that he would naue ymployed him only to the trade of weauing. 4. all this was knowne to diuers, and to what ende it was done: whence it came that I paying the aforesaide 13.s. 4.d. the Maior sent mee at the next collection for the poore 6.s 8.d. of it, desiring me to take that vntill the next collection following, and that then I should haue the other moytie. And when that came I had of M. William Langford though not all, yet 3.s. 4.d. the other 3.s. 4.d I went without, for that trouble about Somers grew then vpon mee. And this is all the buying I vsed. This also is said to be the other end of his counterfeyting: To be releassed (quoth So. from my maister according as M. Darell had promised me, I did began the course that M. Dar. had wished me to vndertake. A likely thing that he who knew so ready a way, & of the two much better, I meane to runne away from his maister, woulde to that said end counterfeyt to be possest with the diuell, 2. It is to be considered, what I did for him in this behalfe, when he had performed the condition on his part: euen that is heere aforesaide, which is iust nothing.

pag. 97. & 6.

Discouerer.

10. Mistresse Wallys according to M. Darrells former worder, did send for M. Dar. to come vnto him.

pag. 96. the 10. circumstance.

Darrell.

This is answered before: where we must obserue that this circumstance with the 4. next precedent, haue bene purposly inserted in the accusation, because being either in part true, or seming so to be to the vnwise & inconsiderat, the accusation it selfe might therby seeme to be true, and from them receaue some confirmation: whereas were all of them most true, and in the whole as they are not, yet notwithstanding the accusation (as touching the life of it, I meane my teachinge him to counterfeyt) might be most false, as in deede it is: which but for breuity sake I would here haue made very playn. And thus much for answer to the circumstances alleadged by the Disc. for the strengthening of So. accusation: now followe other circumstances generally arguing such a compact.

pag. 90.

Discouerer.

pag. 89. & 106. the 11. circumstance arguinge the compact.

There are heerewithall besides set downe by the Disc. certayne circumstances generally arguing such a compact: as first that I with som other of my adherentes at an Inne or Tauerne interteyned him with good cheare.

Darrell.

Being at supper with diuers preachers at the signe of the castle,

Som.

Somers came in, and one of the company, not my selfe, willed him to sit downe and to take part with vs, which accordingly he did. As before the Disc. would haue the reader imagine that I was an alehouse haunter, so here a haunter of tauernes, but he hath two certificats cõcerning my life and conuersation, with about 200. handes subscribed, that telleth him it is otherwise, whereby his sinne herein is made the greater.

pag 89. the 2 generall circumstances

Discouerer.

2. when So. was accused to haue bewitched one, M. Dar. dealt with the Maior of Nott. that he might be bayled.

Darrell.

It shall be heereafter shewed, that this is false: But why might I not well haue done so, had I bene then at Nott. as I was absent? seing it is manifest (as in his place will apeare) he was innocent of the murther for which he was imprisoned, and so hardlye intreated through the mallice of some? And, how doth that conclud the compact of counterfeyting betwixt vs two? or what lodgick call you this?

Discouerer.

3. whilest M. Darrell was at Nottingham he had secrett conference with So. diuers times.

pag. 90. the 3 generall circumstance

Darrell.

I neuer had speach with him in priuate vntill about 9. weekes after his dispossession, neither is there any thing deposed to the contrary, (no not by So. himselfe) and that was to my remembrance only once, as I haue deposed, the occasion wherof I can shew, & vpõ his father in lawe Robert Coopers request I did it. But be it diuers times, why might I not lawfully speake with him apart? I thinke in some respect better then others both in regard of his former affliction, and the danger he was in aboue others, and that he was one ouer whose soule I was by my calling to watch. Yf this be a good circumstaunce against me, it will likewise be of some strength against sõme others in Nott. whome I could name, who talked with him apart as well as I, and ofter too, especially meeting with the other circumstances: as, that they knew him, dwelt in the same towne with him, so as they might haue sufficient opportunity to meete togither, were oft with him, with many circumstances more as strong as these obiected against me, But I will shew wherein this circumstance is defectiue, whereby the weaknes of it may yet better appeare. Yf they which haue deposed to our secret & diuers conferences had gone a little further, and said that they harkning heard me commend him for doing such a trick well, and such a feate excellently well, so as my selfe could not haue bettered it, or to some such purpose: then had there bine a circumstaunce indeede, euen a presumption, whereupon it might well haue bene presumed, & probably concluded that I had taught him, so that So. had (t) done nothing but that he might haue learned and acted. But take the circumstance as it is, of my bare talking with him, and it is of no validity at all.

He did nothinge but in appearance onely' being indeede a meere patient.

Discouerer.

4. When So. was fallen at iarr with M. Dar. he writ vnto him thus: all things that I did were counterfeyt, & I pray you let it passe, for the more you meddle in it, the more discredit it wil be for you: which doth argue ther was some pack betwene them.

pag. 90. the 4 general circumstance

Darrell.

The iarr was this, He said that he had counterfeyted: I denyed and gainsaide the same, Now in this letter Sathan by his instrument did goe about to perswade me to cease to contend against counterfeyting, that is, for the Lorde and his worke: and thus the truth is, that I haue counterfeyted, and it is to your discredit that you haue bene deceaued by mee, but much more discredit will it be for you, if you meddle fiarther in it: giue ouer therefore your contending against my counterfeiting, But suppose that So. ment as the Disc. pretendeth, that there had bene some packing betwixt vs concerning counterfeyting, and that he had expressed his meaninge in playne wordes: the same had not made mee guilty of teaching him, except Somers bare accusation did suffice ther to, and then had the matter bene long since ont of controuersy, and the Disc. might well haue saued a great deale of labour. And heere by the way note the wisdome of the Disc. that will strengthen So. accusation, by Somers letter, that is (a) Somers by Somers, 2. Let vs heere obserue, how that notwithstandinge the extreame folly hee sheweth heerein and in the rest of his circumstances, yea generally in all that he saith throughout all the discouery, yet alas many by his lyes and very fables, haue bene drawne from beleeuing the workes of god, to giue eare to his slaunders and foolery, and to iustifye the wicked, and condemne the iust, which are haynous synnes beefore the Lorde.

And euidente signe that the Discouerer is pleuntfull in his proofes.

math, 18. 6 7

VVell it must needes be that offenses come, but wo be to that man (sayth Christ) by whome the offence commeth, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea.

pag. 91. ths 5 circumstance

The falshood and vanity of his fift circumstance of turning my copy as touching the witch, pretended by me to haue sent her spiritt into Sm. relying only vppon the Disc. bare report, I for breuity omit, referring the Reader for his satisfaction therein to the beginning of the story concerning Somers.

OF CHAP. 2. & 3.

disc

Discou.

OF M. Darrells priuate directions to So. whilste he was at Not. with him, how he should from time to time be haue himselfe in his coũterfeiting. pag. 88.

Disco.

In this 2. Chapter So. chargheth me that comming to Not. vpon the 5. of Nouember, the two next morninges beinge the 6 and 7. of Nouember, I came vnto him and had certaine speaches with him priuatlye, as touchinge the acting of his fitts vpon the day of his dispossession, the said 7 day of Nouember: and also what he shoulde doe in his remouall (& vpon the very motion therof) from the house where he was, to the place where the fast appoynted was held for his dispos- pag. 100. sing, which last part of his accusation is sett downe in these wordes after many other. And even so said M. Dar. (the second morning being the 7 of Nouember) the like order shal be taken with thee this morning. Anone one shall be sent to see if thou be readie: at what time thou shalt shewe thy selfe to be much troubled in thy fitts: vpon signification wherof, sixe or seuen shall come to bringe thee vpon there shoulders, whom thou maiste greatlye trouble in their carriag of thee, by stryngling with them, as others that were possessed did: and as though the diuell had compelled thee so to doe, being very loth to come to so godly an exercise. Shortly aftet M. Darrels departure, all thinges were done accordingly. One Langford was sent to see if I were readie: at whose comming I did make shewe of my greatest fits, in an vnquiet manner, Ther vpon the saide Langforde returning to M. Darr. by and by seuen came to carrie me, whom (I thinke) I did very much trouble: & wher vpon it was giuen out, that I was so heavie in my fitts, as seuen was scarse able to carrie me.

Darrell.

If this accusation were indeede true, who seeth not, how easie a matter it were by sound and infallible testimonies to manifest the truth thereof. For as certaine nights and dayes, before my comminge to Nott. this pretended counterfeyte had diuers persons of honest report abidinge with him, partly by reason of his greuous and lamentable affliction, and partly to preserue him from destroying himselfe, which by as manye wayes as he could, hee attempted to haue done, (which argueth also that he was no counterfeit, but indeed really possessed, for what counterfeite, did euer seeke willingly by all meanes to murther himselfe) so after my comming to Nott. vntill his dispossession, he had much more company with him then before, both day & night, so that he neuer beinge by himselfe alone after my comminge, it is not possible that I should haue such, and so longe priuate conferẽce with him as is here pretended. And if I could not be with him, & conferr with him in an inuisible manner, how commeth it to passe that so many

many eye witneſſes being preſent, ther is not one produced to proue this conference? or did I at my comminge put all forth of there place where he remained, and where we had conference? why then are not ome of them produced, ſworne and examined to depoſe this theire thruſtynge out? ſythence by the rules and maximes of the eccleſiaſticall lawe, by which I ought to haue bene Iudged, onus probandi incumbit agenti ſiue accuſanti, and that actore ſiue accuſatore non probante, abſoluendus eſt reus: I appeale to all the doctors of the Ciuill lawe, whether the teſtimonye of So. being as himſelfe confeſſeth a counterfeyt, beinge ſocius criminis obiecti, being a vagarant runagate from his M. ſhould in this caſe be a good teſtimonye to proue this priuat conferẽce yea or no. But to let theire opinion paſſe touchinge this poynt: I am readie, and able by ſundy credible and honeſt perſons in whoſe companye alltogether I remayned thoſe two morninges, to make good proofe, that I was neither of theſe morninges with Som. at all, neither alone, nor yet with others (a) If then Somers was neither of theſe two mornings priuatly by himſelfe alone: If alſo as wel by ſuch perſons as were at that time with him beinge not a few, as by ſuch perſons with whom I remained in aplace far diſtant from Som. lodging, I be able to proue, my ſelfe not to haue bene preſent, but all to gether abſent, frõ the partie with whom this pretended priuate conference ſhould be: Let the reader Iudge whether theſe two falſe witneſſes Som. I meane & the Diſc. the one principall the other acceſſary as graund confederats and conſpirators againſt the good name of an Innocent, be not worthely of all good men to be exploded and hiſſed at.

(a) that time excepted wherein one the latter of theſe, my ſelfe with many other aſſembled togither ioyned in prayer & faſtinge, for his deliuerance from Sathan.

Diſcou.

pag. 100. Yea but quoth the Diſc. M. Dar: himſelfe confeſeth ſomwhat which tendeth to the confirmation of this his ſecond conference with Somers: For beinge depoſed he acknowledged, that he ſent William Langford that morning to take order for the preſt bringing of So. to Smales houſe, & that M. Langforde brought him word, that as ſoone as he ſpeake of the boyes remouinge, he was preſently caſt into a ſore fit. And againe, in his hiſtorie he hath theſe words: The boy was brought by 6 or 7 ſtrong men, who had all of them enough to doe, to bringe him to the next conuenient and ſeemlye roome, to the place of his aboade.

Darrell:

My confeſſion tendeth nothing to the confirmation of any ſuch pretended conference: For what though I ſent W. Langford, that W. Langford did bring me word et: and that he was brought by 6 or 7 doth this proue that vpon the 6 and 7 of Nouember in the morning, I had ſpeach priuatlye with Somers? marke the Diſc: argument.

Darrell dothe confeſſe that theſe and theſe thinges were done by

Lang

Langford,et. therefore Darrell had priuate conference with Somers about counterfeiting which argument if it be good, why then not this followinge also?

W. Langford confesseth these thinges to be true:

therefore W. Langford had priuat conference with Somers the 6 and 7 of Nouember about counterfeyting.

Now if this argument hold not against W. Langford why should it holde against me? I denye not that it fell out as is here saide with So. vpon the motion to remoue him, and in the remouing of him, but that I vpon the 7 of Nouember 97, (or yet at any other time) directed or aduised him so to doe I deny. which fact beinge thus denyed the Disc. confirmeth or proueth thus: So. did thus and thus, (as appeareth by Darrels owne deposition, and his historie) ergo Dar. instructed him so to doe. If this be a good argumente, it is a verie easie matter to proue that I haue taught So. to counterfeyte: and had So. accused the disc. as he hath done me, and he but sent M. Langford or some other to se that he was remoued, lest that should be to doe when the people were assembled: I could with great facilitie proue him guiltie of teaching him to counterfeite. And here we may see what the disc. proueth or confirmeth by this his worthy confirmation: and how herein (as often elsewhere) he buisieth himselfe to proue that which is or will be graunted, and omiteth that which is by me denyed: 2. we must heere vnderstand, that the disc. knowing these things to be true, hath inserted them among So. lyes, therby hoping to dazel the eyes of men, and deceiue the simple, or over hastie and vnaduised reader: who seeing these thinges, being a great part of his accusation to be true, may thervpon imagine that the rest is likewise true. And this is the maine fallacie and deceit he vseth in setting downe So. accusation.

For the preseruinge of some from beinge thus be guiled by this deceauour. we must knowe, that when one is accused of a matter capitall or criminall, to proue the accused guiltie, it is not sufficient that certaine circumstances or perticulers contayned in the accvsation be true: for it is an easie matter for him that careth not with the disc. how fooliſh and ridiculous, besides false, the accusation be, to frame such an accusation, (admit of high treason) as shalbe true in 19. circumstances or seuerall pointes of the accusation, and very false in the 20. being the treasonable act or intent it selfe, as may easily be coniectured by the instance giuen before concerninge S. Harsnet. Even so it is in So. whole accusation, and this parte therof, wherin notwithstanding sundrie circumstances (not materiall) are true, yet that wherof I am accused, vz. reaching of him to counterfeite, is palpablie false, and no thinge proued nor yet produced that probablie might confirme the ſame. And thus haue I anſweared the accuſation of Som. or principall points therof, concerning my teaching him to counterfeite: and truſt the falſhood of it is made euidente to all men. Let vs now proceed to the circumſtances, that is, certaine ſpeaches of myne, whereby alſo the diſc. will proue that I haue ſcholed Somers. where by the way we muſt obſerue, that the accuſation beinge falſe, (wherof I thinke hardly any chriſtiã that hath read the premiſes doth once doubt) no circumſtãces can ever make it true. In this reſpect it is a thinge needles to vſe any more wordes about them. Yet that my innocencie may be the more manifeſt, and leſt in not anſwering them, ſome ſhould imagine that I were not able to anſwere, I will ſay ſomthing to them, but with what breuitie I can, Leauing So. who hath ſo accuſtomed his tongue to lying, that he ſcarſlye vttereth a true worde in all that followeth, to the diſc. to beleiue his lyes: who calleth falſhood truth, and truth falſhod.

The firſt circumſtance prouing (as is pretended) my inſtructing him, is ſet downe in theſe wordes.

the 1. circumſtance. pag 107.

art 9. pag. 16

Diſcouerer.

M. Dar. hauing neuer ſeene Som. (as he pretendeth) did affirme, that he was certainlye poſſeſſed by a wicked ſpirite, vpon the rude report of a ſimple man, one Hugh Wilſon, and vpon a letter receaued by wilſon from his ſiſter in law miſtris Wallis. This M. Dar. confeſſeth in theſe wordes. Being certified in my ſiſters letter and by the meſſengers further ſpeaches, of the manner of So. fits: I did ſend them worde, that thoſe thinges being true he was poſſeſſed, and this I did before I ſawe Somers.

Darrell.

VVee muſt knowe that other proofe the Diſc. hath not of this his circumſtance, then this my confeſſion: and it is apparant that my confeſſion proueth it not: for in the circumſtance it is, that I ſaide So. was certainly poſſeſſed, and I write vncertainly and vndoubtedly therof, as appeareth by my wordes. And conſideringe that in the letter (which is ſett downe before) there are diuers ſignes of poſſeſſion mentioned, and that Hugh Wilſon tolde me further of So. foaming, of his extraordinary ſtrength, caſtinge into the fire, with other ſignes of ſathan his poſſeſſinge man, mentioned in the goſpell, as I can proue: and that where the proper ſigne or ſignes of a thing is, there is the thing ſignifyed thereby: why might I not well write as I acknowledge heere I did? and what did I therin ill beſeeming me? And how abſurdly doth this conclude my inſtructinge of So. to counterfeite? Let the reader frame here the argument, and he will eaſilie grope and finde out the abſurditie.

the 2 circumſtance pag 108.

Diſcouerer

Darrell ſaide, that he purposed to haue a faſt for Som. diſpoſſeſſion, &

that

that he doubted not of good ſucceſſe, by that meanes to procure the boyes deliuerance. Heerevpon the diſc. collecteth as followeth. This M. Dar. confident bragging that he doubted not of good ſucceſſe, as it argueth his ignorance: ſo the ſame being ioyned to his raſh credulitie, doth make it probable that eyther he had layde his plotte with the boye before, or els that he knewe very wll, how by his cunninge to drawe one the boy for the ſeruinge of his turne as he himſelfe liſt.

Darrell.

VVhat and how great my confidence in this caſe is, and wherevpon the ſame is grounded, appeareth els where, where I treate of the meanes of diſpoſſeſſion. But marke how the Diſc. argueth thervpon: Darrell doubted not of good ſucceſſe, ergo it is probable that he had plotted before with the boy about counterfeiting, or elſe knewe very well et. By this reaſon had M. Ireton or M. Browne, who were writ vnto, and there counſell and paines deſiered about So. as well as mine, hoped of good ſucceſſe a faſt being vſed for his diſpoſſeſſion, and ſo affirmed: they had eyther plotted with him about counterfeiting, or elſe et. Againe if this be a good circumſtance, & that out of it one may probablie conclude as you heare, then can I tell and proue to the Diſc. who taught the 7. in Lancaſhire, for I am ſure he will haue them counterfeites too. Surely M. More, For when he went and came into Lancaſhire, he was very confident of good ſucceſſe, a faſt being vſed for there diſpoſſeſſion, and his ignorance and raſh credulitie concerninge there deliuerance equal to mine as touching So. this alſo he did affirme to others, as I knowe he will confeſſe: therefore he either had layde his plotte with them before, or elſe he knewe very well how by his cunning to drawe them on for the ſeruing of his turne, as he himſelfe liſt. The abſurditie of the Diſc. firſt collecti on concerning my plotting with Somers to counterfeite, becauſe vpon iuſt occaſion I writ that he was poſſeſſed, with ſuch a caution as you haue heard, euery child may eſpie: and ſurelie his ſecond collection is no leſſ abſurd. for how could I knowe & that very well that he woulde be drawne on by me to counterfeite, before I had ſpeach with him or yet did ſee him? It might be for any thinge I knewe to the contrary, hauing then neuer ſeene him, that if the boy was not poſſeſſed, yet he was otherwiſe greuiouſlve aflicted (whervpon the letters & meſſenger came vnto me) and ſo would haue ſmale iiſt to ſerue my turne againe, were it not ſo, yet percaſe he was not apt to doe ſuch rare feits as in that caſe are requiſite. Moreouer, admittinge both theſe to fall out patte as he would haue it, yet how could I knowe before I ſett eye of So. that he would be willing to counterfeite a poſſeſſion with the diuil, and that he was altogether graceles, for otherwiſe he neither would nor durſt commit ſuch an abomination.

diſco.

Discouerer.

pag 108. The cheifest meanes whereby M. Dar. did seduce the people, and cunninglye instruct So. without suspition in any that beleiued him, were these two false groundes, (wherof in the first booke) vz. that those who are possessed, haue in there fitts no vse of there senses or faculties of there mindes, and that whatsoeuer they either doe or say at such times, it is not they but Sathan that doth both say and doe it.

Darrell

Howsoeuer the Disc. doth not onely here but (I knowe not how oft) els where as pag. 30. 69. 111. 289. 306. prattle and florish with emptie words as though these were the two principall and false grounds wherby I am said to haue bewitched all the beholders: wee must first knowe that he proueth not the former of these (whereto I will first answere) no not so much as by a false witnes. For his 4 witnesses here following, and two pag 111. doe only depose that I saide So. was sene lesse in his fits, and those two pag. 306. that I saide the same by Kat. Wright: which ioyned together proue not that I said those who are pag 30. possessed are senceleese, or as he saith else where and meaneth heere (a) pag 306. whosoeuer is possessed, is in his fitts altogether sencelesse 2. I haue vpon my pag 289. oath denyed, that I said this of So. vz. at the times articulated against me: at another tyme I deny that I affirmed Kath. Wright was sencles,
This is the eight time the Discouerer is conuinced by his Discouery. and a thrid time being here about deposed, I answeared thus: (a) I beleiue that Tho. Darlinge had not his sences or memorie in his fits: but I (c) thinke that Satan might so order the matter, as that he either had or might haue had his sences in his said fitts. And surelye I must needs thinke so, except I were so grosse as to imagine, that sathan being entered into man, is bound (as I may say) hand and fote to depriue euery such person of ther sences, and cannot otherwise doe: and secondly should much forget my selfe, who haue in experience seene the contrary in Margaret Byrom, Iane Ashton, and also in W. Somers, as I haue shewed before, where I treate of the signes of possession. For this reason confirmed by some experience, I am as far as any other from saying that pag 36. the Disc. so oft inculcateth and fathereth upon me, vz. that whosoeuer is possessed is altogether sencles in all there fits, yet notwithstandinge I hould that the possessed ordinarily are sencles in theire fitts, not only becaus my selfe and others haue obserued this in experirence, but specially becaus the same may be probablie collected out of the scrip math. 12. 22. mark 9 25. mark 5, 5. tures. For did not the deuill depriue them (at least) of some of theire sences, whom he made both blind and deafe? wherevpon the spirite was called by Christ Iesus (d) deafe spirit? and may we not well thinke that they were without feeline, who stooke the mselues with stones? and seeinge the same men were depriued of the faculties of there mindes,

both

both of their vnderſtanding and memory (for it is playne by the context that they were (k) out of their right mynde) haue wee not then good cauſe to iudge that they were depryued of all their ſences internall & ex ternall? And that thus it went not alwayes with them, but in theyre fytts, that is in the time of their vexation by Sathan, may be gathered out of the 8. Marke, where it is ſaid of one of them, inſteade of both that being often bound with fetters and chaynes he brake them: and then it was, that no man could tame him, and made his aboade (naked) in the mountaynes and graues, and ſtroke himſelfe with ſtones, ſo as there were other times viz. when they were out of their fitts, when he liued and conuerſed among men, cloathed & in his right mynd. And that not only theſe, but generally the poſſeſſed in Chriſts time were ordinarily for the time of their fitts without their ſences, we may probablye thinke, becauſe it is euident that they had not their vnderſtandynge: otherwiſe they would neuer haue cryed out (m) what haue wee to doe with thee, O Ieſus of Nazareth? art thou come to deſtroy vs? and that not only theſe but many poſſeſſed with diuells vſed theſe kynd of ſpeaches, appeareth by Marke 1. 34. Thus we ſee that one of theſe which the Diſc. calleth my falſe grounds wherewith he chargeth me to haue ſeduced the people, and (a) iugling ſticks wherevppon my Legerdemayne (as he calleth it) did conſiſt. is warranted by the holy ſcriptures. Beeſides, this hath bene obſerued and reported of ſome, who it ſhoulde ſeeme were poſſeſſed. In an hiſtory printed 86. concerning the afflictions of Margaret Heriſon of Burnham Vlpe in Norfolke, and the ſpeach the ſpirit had with M Robinſon miniſter at the ſame place, it is ſaide that ſhe was of all ſences both internall and externall, to the iudgment of thoſe that were preſent, vtterly depryued, and in an other place, ſhee comming to her vnderſtanding cryed &c. And in the booke printed of the bewitchinge of M. Robert Throckmortons 5. daughters, who as I take it were poſſeſſed, it is reported that they were depryued of all vſe of their ſences duringe their fitts, and that they could neither ſee, heare, nor feele any body: and to this effect there are ſcattered very many ſpeaches throughout the ſaid booke: yea it is playne there that two of theſe gentleweomen, Miſtris Ioane and Miſtres Iane had not theire ſences in theire fitts before the Iudge and Iuſtices.

mark 5.15, Luk 8.35.

(m) mark 1.24.

page 30.

And where the Diſc. by way of preuention hath theſe wordes: The lunatick in the ſcriptures was in his fitts dombe, but it cannot be ſhewed that he wanted the reſt of his ſences: page 30.

He ſeeth now more may be ſhewed by other perſons then poſſeſſed: and truly it is an eaſye matter to ſhewe, that the lunatick wanted one of the externall ſences he ſpeaketh not of, viz. hearing: for Chriſt in healing the lunatick ſayd: Thou dombe and deafe ſpiritt I charge thee

marke 9.25.

come out of him: how the ſpirit was thus called of the effect, becauſe he made the lunatick dumbe and deafe. Indeede if ſpeaking be one of the externall ſences, as the Diſc. it ſhould ſeeme will haue it, ſo as there are not 5 but 6. externall ſences, I will not ſay that the poſſeſſed are or were in Chriſts time depryued in their fitts of all their ſences: for it is cleare all were not poſſeſſed with dumbe ſpirits as this Lunatick was, And this concerning the firſt of theſe groundes.

Diſcouer.

My ſecond ſuppoſed falſe ground is, that whatſoeuer the poſſeſſed doe or ſay at ſuch times, viz. in their fitts, it is not they, but Sathan that doth both ſay and doe it.

Darrell.

That the diuell vſeth the tongue of thoſe he poſſeſſeth, & ſpeaketh by them it is manifeſt by theſe ſcriptures among others (u) what is thy name? Legyon: for we are many. (a) And the diuell beſought him, ſaying: If thou caſt vs out, ſuffer vs to goe into the heards of ſwyne. (p) Hould thy peace and come out of him. (h) Hee caſt out many diuells, and ſuffered not the diuells to ſay that they knew him. (i) And diuells came out of many, crying, and ſaying, thou art that Chriſt that ſonne of God. Heerevpon Auguſtine affirmeth, Diabolum eius lingua vti, in cuius corpus intrauit: that the diuell vſeth his tongue, into whoſe bodye he is entred. yea in the manifold ſpeaches of the poſſeſſed mentioned in the goſpell, we reade not of any one which was not vttered by the diuell. It is cleare then that often if not alwayes in the fitts of the poſſeſſed, Sathan ſpeaketh and not they. And as the vncleane ſpiritts vſe the tongues of them in whome they are, and ſpeake what they will by them, ſo doe they alſo vſe the other parts or members of their bodyes to performe other actions: as their feete to goe with their hands, to ſmite with, &c. ſo the diuells went with the feete of the men poſſeſſed with the legyon, and carryed them into the mountaynes and graues, went with the ſame feete (q) out of the graues very feirce, and with the mens hands offered vyolence no doubt to diuers, ſo that no man might goe by that way: (r) plucked the chayns aſunder, and brake the fetters in peeces, wherwith they were bound: and ſtroke them with their owne handes with ſtones. And generally it is ſaide of others, that (s) when the vncleane ſpirits ſawe Ieſus, they fell downe before him. Beſides, the parties poſſeſſed we treat of haue confidently affirmed from time to time their fitts being ended, that they knewe not any thing they during thoſe tymes ſpake or did, and yet did many actions, and for the moſt part neuer ceaſed prating: yea ſome of thoſe in Lancaſhire continued 3. dayes and 3. nights, and did the workes they were accuſtomed vnto as well and as readilye as euer, ſpake as freely as at other times, and yet knew nothinge more mark 5.9. math. 8.31. mark 1.25. mark 1.34. Luk 4.41. Liber queſt. 13.

math 8.28. mark 5.4. mark 3.11.

or

or lesse, of that they had said or done all that time, nor of any thinge that had bene spoken or done to them. And of M. Throckmortons children in like sort affected, it is written thus: when it pleased god to deliuer them of their fitts, they neither knew what they had said, neyther yet in what sort they had bene dealt withall, as hereafter shall be deliuered in particuler. And as this is reported of the 5 daughters generally and particularly, so the same is said of 7. seruantes in the house afflicted most of them in the same sort and manner in these words: and when they were out of their fitts, they knew no more then the children what either they had don or said. Did not now these speaches and actions, yea whatsoeuer in their fitts these saide and did come from the diuell, by whome they were at the same time otherwise vexed, and not from themselues? or haue we not iust cause to beleue them thus affirming, when we see it manifest, that some things are vttered by them, which passeth theire knowledge, and reach, and done which are impossible to be done by them? And seeing it is euident that whatsoeuer these persons possessed said and did in their fittes, the same was spoken and done not by them but by the dyuell, and that somuch is manifest by the scriptures in part, though not in the whole: why may not I for my owne parte thinke or be of opynion, that whatsoeuer the possessed doe or say (ordinarily) for the time of their fitts, it is not they, but Sathan that doth both say and doe it, as the Disc. chargeth me (but falsly) peremptorily to affirme? And yet the Disc. proueth not thus much as nowe voluntarily I say, but onely that I haue said to this effect in particular, concernig So. and Katheryne Wright. And thus much as touchinge my seconde suppосed false ground, and iugling stick wherevpon my legerdemayne did consist.

The Arraignement and execution of the witches of warboys

Now let vs consider what the Disc. gathereth or concludeth of these two suppосed false groundes of myne. First, that thereby I did seduce the people, and draw them to thinke and say, that the persons conuerted were possessed. Alas poore silly soules, which were so easily by these few wordes of myne seduced & blynded. VVhy but all were not hereby seduced, and drawne to thinke and giue out in speach that these were possessed, for sundry weekes before I spake these wordes, (admitt I did speake them) or yet euer sawe So. Darling, Katheryne Wright, many thought and said (as I can proue) that they were possessed, wherevpon there was a rumour thereof in those quarters: who now, or what speach seduced those people?

pag 108. as is before mentioned.

Secondly, thereby I cunningly instructed So. without suspition in any that beleeued in me. If I thus instructed these counterfeyts, it was such a cunning & secret instruction (I trow) as my said schollers had nede to haue bene rather growne men, then boyes and little damsells. But how

how can this be, seing all the counterfeytes, had their lessons at theire fyngers endes, some about a moneth, some a quarter of a yeare, some two yeares before? and against this the Disc. saith not any thing saue about So. Besides if this be a good reason to proue my instructing of So. why doth he not vse the same to proue thereby my teachinge of the 7. in Lancashire? which howsoeuer he would haue the worlde to thinke is true, yet for shame he dare not publish it to the world. Lastly, this being a good argument of one his teaching to counterfeyte, the Disc. shall doe well to inquire after him who said as much heretofore of M. Throckmortons children (and of others) as I concernynge So. Darling and Kath. Wright yea the very same with me, that being found out he might be punished for such instruction as well as I. For albeit it be some yeares since such instructing, and counterfeyting was, I meane of M. Throckmortons children yet it is little more then half so long as it is since Kath. Wrights counterfeyting and my teachinge of her, and therefore may much better be inquired into, then this other fact done sundry yeares before. And thus the Disc. hauinge made a way to that which followeth, and layd this as his foundation, whereupon his whole Discouery resteth, as whosoeuer hath read & obserued that worthy worke cannot but see, he proceedeth to build thereupon, proportionably to the rotten and worse then sandy yea ridiculous foundation, to the ouerthrowing and casting downe whereof I also will procede, and so come to the rest of the Discouerers circumstances, whereby he procedeth to proue my teaching of Somers to counterfeyt.

Discouerer.

The 3. circumstance pag 108.

Vpon the aforesaid bare relation of Hugh Wilson and before he had the̅ seene So. Dar. sent word by him to Nott. that Somers was in his fits sence lesse. It is vntrue.

The 4 circumstance pag 109.

M. Darrell at his comming to So. to Nott. said he was possessed before he had seene him in any fitt, especially such a fytt as might not easilye be counterfeyted. false.

The 5. circumstance. pag 110,

M. Dar. vpon his first comming vnto Som. affirmed, that it was not So. that spake in his fitts, but the diuell by him. I graunt, what followeth?

The 6. circumstance pag 111.

M. Dar. the first night of his comming vnto the boy affirmed in the presence of the said boy, that he was in his fitts senceless. false.

the 7. circumstance. pag 113.

M. Dar. specifyed the same night in the presence of So. & diuers others, the manner of such fitts as the possessed had in the scriptures, and of those which were seene (as he said) in Kath. Wright, the boy of Burton, and the seauen in Lancashire. what of this?

the 8 circumstance. Pag 113.

M. Dar. then said to the persons present in the hearing of Som. that he

he the ſaid So. would doe the like. falſe.

M. Dar. tould them in So. hearing, that he the ſaid So. was not ſo much troubled for his owne ſinnes, as for the ſynnes of the people, or of the inhabitants of Nott. falſe. The 9. circumſtance pag 114.

M. Dar. affirmed in the preſence of the boy, that ſathan did vſe to ſhew by geſtures in thoſe that were poſſeſſed, the particuler ſinnes that raigned in thoſe places where they dwelt. falſe. The 10 circumſtance pag 115.

M. Dar. affirmed in the hearing of So. and preſence of many, that he verily thought the diuell would doe the like in So. and declare by ſignes & geſtures the ſinnes of Nott. and of others. falſe. The 11. circumſtance.

So. acting thoſe geſtures, M. Dar. did expound them very learnedlye, to ſignify this or that ſinne that raigned in Nott. falſe. The 12. circumſtance pag 116.

The next day (being Sonday) M. Dar. comming to So. vſed the like ſpeaches then in the preſence of others that he had done ouernight: viz. that So. was in his fitts ſenceleſſe &c. falſe. the 13. circumſtance. pag 120.

M. Dar. did take vpon him to foretell many things that woulde happen the day appoynted for the faſt: as that they ſhould ſee very ſtrang things, that Sathan would wonderfully torment the boy, and that he doubted not but that they ſhould perceaue by the ſignes of poſſeſſion and diſpoſſeſſion, that the boy was poſſeſſed, and that then he ſhoulde be deliuered from Sathan. falſe. the 14 circumſtance, Pag 122.

M. Dar. the day of the faſt affirmed in his ſermon, that they ſhould euidently perceaue by the ſignes of poſſeſſion, that So. was poſſeſſed, and by the ſignes of diſpoſſeſſion that So. ſhould be diſpoſſeſſed, if god woulde: and comming to intreate of the particu'ar ſignes of poſſeſſion, and ſo of diſpoſſeſſion, he vſed ſuch pawſes, as that the boy had leaſure to act them in order as he named them. The latter part of this circumſtance is falſe: It is proued by So. depoſition only. the 15. circumſtance. pag. 124.

In the declaring of theſe ſpeaches depoſed by many, conteyninge in them ſo many circumſtances, conſiſteth my inſtructing of So. by ſpeaking to others in his hearing, thoſe things which I ment that he ſhould practiſe: wherein I dealt ſo cunningly as that albeit I had neuer ſeene him at Aſhby, nor dealt with him priuatly at Nott. yet this ſaide courſe which I held with him there, and with thoſe that came to ſee him in his fitts, was ſo contryued as might eaſily informe So. what he had to doe, and did indeede blynde and miſleade many of the people. pag 106.

Darrell.

I anſwer generally to theſe and all the former circumſtances: firſt that all theſe circumſtances with the reſt of the depoſitions in the Diſcouery, were taken by Commiſſioners choſen and appointed by them which are againſt me, I not being ſuffered to ioyne with them therein: neither haue I had nor poſſibly could gett any coppy of them, or my firſt generall anſweare to the circumſtances.

Commission graunted for me, to re-examyne these witnesses. Now these proceedings are contrary to the Queenes lawes, and the ordinary practise of the high Commission court: and for that cause (had I nothing else to say) these circumstances (with the other depositions in the Discouery) are of no force, neither prouing any thing, nor yet proued against me.

my 2. answere

2. These Commissioners were and are my mortall enemyes, & therefore very partiall, one of themselues also M. William Gregory by name, being their clarke or notary. And as it cannot (almost) other wise be, so I am able to proue, that they haue carryed themselues very corruptly in the execution of theire seuerall Commissions: And therefore in all equity and indifferency, the things heere and through out the Discouery deposed are to be more then suspected, euen to be reiected.

my 3. answeare.

3. I affirme that many of these circumstances are false, and offer to bring at least an hundred witnesses (if so many were needefull) to depose otherwise for the falsifying of them.

my 4. aniweare.

4. Admit that I had ioyned in these Commissions, and that all were true which is deposed: I affirme that these circumstances are to weake and insufficient to proue that I taught him to counterfeyt supposing he were a counterfeyt: for if we will proue a thing in controuersy or matter criminall by circumstances, as they must be diuers, so they must be strong, euery one probably concluding that whervnto they serue, bearing the name and nature of a presumption, as we very well call it: the etimology of which worde teacheth, that the presumption being true, it is thence to be presumed, and in all likelihood thought, that that is true whereof it is a presumption. And thus diuers presumptions meeting togither, being so many probable arguments, (specially hauing respect to the other presumptions) they make among them a sound and substantiall proofe, and necessarily conclude that whereof they are presumptions. As for example, and for the better vnderstanding thereof: Let vs ymagine that in Grayes Inne feildes I. S. a gentle man of Grayes Inne is slayne, no body being eye witnesse thereof, so that I. S. being deade, and none present at the murther, the murtherer is to be founde out by circumstances, or not at all. If against I. N. being apprehended vpon suspition, it should be obiected, that he was of Grayes Inne as well as I. S. that he knew him well, and was acquainted with him, and the place also where I. S. was slayne, that hee was seene walking with him the day before in the city, that he was known to be of greate vallour, and therefore able to performe such a fact, & that he was his owne, and to goe wher he would at his pleasure, and so had sufficient opportunity to goe and fight with him and slay him: thes cir-

circumſtances (I ſay) and an hundred more ſuch, are not auaileable to proue I. N. guilty of the ſaid murther: for notwithſtanding theſe circumſtances were moſt true, and many more of this kinde, I. N. might be as innocent and free from the murther as the babe in the wombe: yea by ſuch like circumſtances a thouſand ſeuerall perſons might be as well condemned as I. N. And if in this caſe vpon the aforeſaide or no ſtronger circumſtances, a Iuſtice of peace ſhould commit I. N. to priſon, the Iury finde him guilty of murthering I. S. the Iudge pronounce ſentence of him, and he therevpon be (a) executed, woulde not all men that ſhould heare thereof wonder at it? and ſay with one conſent: Surely the gentleman was innocent for any thinge that appeared to the contrary. But if againſt I. N. it ſhould be giuen in euidence, that the ſame morning I. S. was ſlayne, they two falling out, challenged one the other, naming time and place, where and when, after I S. was killed, that ſhortly after the murther committed, he was ſeene comming from the ſaide place ſprinkled with bloud, that his ſworde was bloudy, and his dagger found where this murther was done: by theſe and ſuch like circumſtances or preſumptions, it was as manifeſt he ſlew him as if there had bene ſome preſent at the murther. And marke I pray, how euery of theſe circumſtances and ſuch like which we very aptly call preſumptions, do probably conclude I. N. to haue done this murther, yea the leaſt and weakeſt of them the other preſumptions conſidered therewith: which the former circumſtances doe not at all. Euen ſo it is in the matter of teaching to counterfeyt, whereof I being accuſed, the Diſc. would proue me guilty by circumſtances: but they being all of the ſame kinde with the firſt of the aforeſaid circumſtances alleadged againſt I. N. that is friuolous, vayne, and ridiculous, not one of them deſeruing the name of a preſumption, doe not proue me guilty of ſuch inſtruction, no more then the firſt aboue named circumſtances prooue I. N. guilty of murthering I. S.

This is my caſe, mutatis mutandis

That theſe are ſuch friuolous circumſtances will appeare to him that ſtanding in doubt thereof ſhall marke how handſomly they conclude my inſtructinge of So. to counterfeyt, whereevnto they ſerue as circumſtances, and otherwiſe doe their maiſter the Diſcouerer no ſeruice at all. As thus for example: Darrell before he ſaw Somers ſaid he was poſſeſſed, if the ſignes of poſſeſſion were ſeene in him as he was informed: it is probable therfore that Dar. taught him to counterfeyt a poſſeſſion. Againe, Dar. affirmed that it was not So, that ſpake in his fitts, but the diuell by him, it is therefore probable that Dar. inſtructed So. to counterfeyt. Dar. affirmed in the preſence of So. that he was in his fitts ſenceleſſe, it is to be preſumed therefore that he taught him to counterfeyt. Dar ſaid (for ſoe the Diſc. and his falſe witneſſes tell vs) that So. was not ſomuch troubled led for his owne sinnes, as for the sinnes of the people: ergo he taught him to counterfeyt. If thus we should goe through the Disc. circumstances and weigh them in the ballance of reason, we shall fynde them as light or lighter then vanity it selfe. Truly I thinke since the worlde was made, there were neuer more vaine, ydle, and sottish circumstaunces obiected against any man liuing.

my 5. answeare, My 5. and last answer is, that if there were a possibillity of counterfeyting, as there is not, and these circumstances were a little stronger in appearance then they are: yet in this case of teaching So. I can not be proued guilty by circumstaunces. for how can it possibly bee made true by any circumstances that I haue taught So. to counterfeyt, so long as he cannot tell where nor in what place I taught him, nor when? can any action be done, but there is a place and time wherein and when the same is done? Euen so it is in this my schooling of Somers. Haue I taught So, to counterfeyt? I desire to know where and when. In Ashby parke (for other place as yet there is not any named) I haue shewed it cannot be, and it is as cleare as the day light at noone, where then? It would be knowne: So. heereof can not be ignorant if there were any such thing performed. Let him then tell the place where, the weekes, monethes, or yeares wherein the same was doing with other circumstances therevnto apperteyning,. If this So. cannot doe (as hitherto he hath not truly and men may well thinke he cannot, for if he could he had done it before this) we may be most assured it is becaus there was neuer any such instructing of him. It is not in this our case as it is in murther and such like offences, Som. is not deade, but aliue, he is not absent and to seeke, but at hand, neyther can he but know that which I desire he should make knowne, if any such thing be. And vntill this be done by So, the aforesaid circumstances and a thousand such more are not sufficient, or any whit at all auailable to prooue me guilty of teachinge him to counterfeyt. yea to what purpose are my circumstances in this case of ours, except this I speake of be first performed truly to none at all: except it be to dazell mens eyes, and so to keepe them from seeing that which otherwise they could not but see most clearly. If Som. had once done this I speake of, and so as I were not able to conuince him, then indeede there would be some vse of circumstances to strengthen his accusation. They had neede also to be very strong ones, considering the vnworthynes of the accuser, and the rare and wondefull feyts I should teach him. But that being not done, I maruaile how any man of reason and iudgment, should hould me guilty vpon those aforesaid poore and empty circumstances.

For where the Disc. saith that I did so cunningly instruct Som. by speaking

ſpeaking to others in his hearing thoſe things that I meant he ſhoulde practiſe, as that albeit I had neuer ſeene him at Aſhby, nor deait with him priuatly at Nott. yet the courſe that I had held with him there was ſo contryued as it might eaſily informe So. what he had to doe it is moſt abſurde. For who can be ſo voyde of reaſon as to thinke, that I could no ſooner ſpeake of the ſignes of poſſeſſion mentioned in the goſpell, as ſoming, caſting into the fyer, extraordinary ſtrength ect. and of othere very admirable feyts, as of a greate ſwelling in the body, and of a little ſwelling to run along the body betwene the fleſh and the ſkyn, of making the armes and legges heauy as yron, of retorting the tongue into the throat, ſo as no part of it could be ſeene in the mouth, of enduring the pricking with pynnes, and keeping in the bloud ſo as none not a drop ſhould iſſue at the places pricked, with many more ſuch like: but that So. preſently could and did therevpon doe the ſame? was there euer ſo nimble a boy and ſo apt a ſcholler heard of beefore ſince the world began? It is no maruaile then though the Diſc. terme him an apt ſcholler, So. ſaith he being an apt ſcholler for M. Darrell to practiſe vpon, hearing by M. Dar. ſpeaches what was to be done at his handes did &c. wherewith all that were preſent were much amazed. pag 106. Thus is the argument of the 3. chapter. pag 116.

But admitt this were poſſible, as me thinketh none ſhould ſay ſo beſides the Diſc. yet out of queſtion it is impoſſible, that the ſpeaches I vſed to others at Nott. in So hearing vpon the fift of Nouember & after, before which time my voyce was not hearde in the preſence of So. ſhould inſtruct So, in thoſe things he practiſed for the ſpace of 4. (a) weekes at the leaſt before that time. which being ſo, and withall manifeſt and notoriouſly knowne, confirmed alſo by the depoſitions of the 17. That So. or the diuell did the very ſame things before the 5. of Nouember and my comming to him at Nott. which he did after, wherevppon I was ſent for and requeſted to come: it cannot be that So. was inſtructed of me by ſpeaking to others in his hearing, thoſe thinges that I ment he ſhould practiſe. Beeſides, it is againſte common ſence that I ſhould inſtruct him after this manner, if that were true that the Diſc. and So. affirme to be true, I meane that I had bene ſcholing of him beefore at Aſhby, and pryuatly alſo inſtructed him at Nott. For he hauing bene (as they ſay) foure or fyue yeares learning his tricks and hauing had them alſo in writing from me, he coulde not (ſure) be to learne them when he ſhoulde act them. Againe it had bene extreame folly or rather madnes in vs both, that hauing ſo long time & opportunity to teach and learne in, could finde out none, but deferr it vntill the very inſtant they were to be practiſed. (a) how can the Diſc. avoyde this without bluſhinge.

Thus the Diſcou. himſelfe may ſee, that his circumſtances albeit they be many, are too weake and inſufficient to proue my teachinge of his counterfeyt, and therefore So. accusation must doe the deede, or else it will not be: which (as appeareth by the premisses) is palpable falſe, hauing neither face nor possibillity of truth in it. The best way then for the Discouerer, I meane the Bish. of London and Samuell Harsnet is, to confesse the truth and publish it, and so giue glory to god: seeing the falshood of this Discouery is nowe made manifest in the eyes of the Sunne.

The 3. chap. conteineth parte of the former circumstaunce, and so is alreadie answeared,

OF CHAP. 4:

Discouerer.

Of M. Dar. cunning instructing Somers, by speaking to others in his hearinge of Sathans seeking to repossesse him: and of the acting of certayne tricks under a couerlet.

pag 127. In the former parte of this chapter the Disc. telleth vs of a second or new cosenage, viz. So. counterfeytinge of a repossession: and after pag 128. what manner I instructed him we heare in the title of the chapter. This cosenage the Disc. pretendeth to proue by two speaches of mine the one is that I should affirme to my Auditory in the hearing of Som. that for a certainty Sathan would seeke to repossesse the said So. and preuayle against him except he were mightely withstood by faith The other that I affirmed the night he was dispossessed in the hearing of So. & diuers others, that Sathan returned the same night he was dispossessed out of certaine in Lancashire, and that so returning he appeared vnto them in certayne similitudes.

Darrell.

VVhen the Disc. hath proued me guilty of the first cosenage, I my selfe will yeald the second: & vntill he haue performed that which yet he hath not, none that is wise, will regard what he saith, concerning this new cosonage, as he termeth So. repossession. 2. All or most of that I haue giuen before in answer to the aforesaid circumstaunces, serueth also for answer vnto this. 3 Seeing betwene So. dispossession and repossession (which was about thirteene weekes) he and I had secret conference togither diuers times, as the Disc. telleth vs, and that for page. 90. the instructing of him to dissemble a repossession, it had bene sufficient, to haue in a worde or two at one of these our secret conferences, to haue bid him fall againe to his former tricks, and say withall that the diuell did seeke to enter into him: so that this instructinge of him by speaking to others in his hearinge nede not. And one woulde think, that were there any such new cosenage, I would rather haue giuen him his direction concerning the same apart, then before diuers others. 4. So. was then repossessed, as now at this present he is.

The reasons that moue me to thinke that Som. is indeede repossessed are these. 1. becaus about 12. or 13. weekes after his dispossession

seſſion, I (among diuers others) sawe in him the signes of poſſeſſion, euen all the same I did before, and beheld him handled after the very same manner he was the time of his first trouble: and therefore if the poſſeſſed, he is so now, and if euer he was poſſeſſed, then and for the same cause he is againe poſſeſſed. 2. The scripture telleth vs, that the vncleane spirite being gon out of a man, doth not only returne and seeke to enter into his said house againe, but indeede enter and poſſeſſe the said party, if returning he finde him empty, swept, and garnished, that is ready and prepared to interteyne his oulde gueast the diuell, which is when the party is vncleane and liueth in sinne, for an vncleane person is a fitt receptacle for the foule spirit: but So. out of whome the diuell was cast, is and hath bene such, as is manifest by his abominable lying in denying the worke of God wrought vpon him, his false accusinge of the innocent, ioyned with greate obstinacye and ympudencie, his periury, and other greuous and open synnes of his: It must needes therefore be that So. is reposſeſſed. 3. There is somethinge in reason to confirme vs herein: in that from time to time So. hath bene doing in secrett, and offered sometimes openlye to doe his tricks, as some call them. After he had said the second time that he had counterfeyted, and was as free from being vexed by sathan, and as farr from all appearance of poſſeſſion as now he is, he (as is notoriously knowne, and the Disc. himselfe confesseth,) shewed his tricks before my L. Anderson, and diuers others, in some extraordinary sort. At one of my examinations before the B. of London M. Barker register to the high comission, and another gentleman being present, So. vppon occasion of some wordes vttered by me, would haue bene doinge his tricks, and had vndoubtedly but that the Bishop rebuked him for it, and presently for feare thereof sent him away. It should seeme that the Bishop had seene him doe his tricks before that time, yea percase often, otherwise he would haue bene as glad for the further satisfyinge of himselfe to haue seene his feyts, as some there present. At Lambeth vppon whitson-eue, in open court So. offered to doe his tricks, and had not the B. of London said, it was to no purpose, because M. More and I wolde say, it was not he, but the diuell that did them, he had without question fallen to his worke. Neither can we in reason thinke, that these were bare offers or wordes, he not beinge able to performe any such thing, considering (to omyt other times) he or the diuell did indeed some of his trickes beefore my L. Anderson, and therefore the one of them both can and is ready to doe them, when So. will, accordinge to the couenant passed betwene them. Considering then So. (or rather the diuell) is doing now and then as we heare, and that such feytes as the eye-witnesses thereof confesse, none besides him can doe the like,

2 mark. 9. 25. math. 12. 43.

3

pag. 205.

and

and the cheife of them, that if the boy did not say he counterfeyted, and cease to doe the tricks when he is bidden, he should verily think that he did them by the diuell: may not this well after the premisses confirme vs in his possession? whether So. was packt beyond the seas by some that knew he was possessed, and feared least that woulde one day appeare, or went of his owne accord about some great busynes of his owne, let other men iudge: as also why it will not be graunted that the meanes may be vsed which the (u) worde of god directeth vs vnto for the discouery of Sathan, whome we are boulde to affirme lurketh in him.

Luke 11.22.

And where some men can hardly with any patience indure to heareof this repossession, because no such thing appeareth: they must know that Sathan doth and hath long laboured to obscure the worke of god wrought vppon So. & to annihilate it, if it were possible, that so god might goe without the glory and prayse which would be gyuen him in the acknowledgment thereof, and man lose the profit he wolde make of such a rare worke of god. To this end and for the better bringing of this to passe, the diuell (hauing recouered So. and entred into his house, the body of So. agayne) indeuored by himselfe and his instruments threatning and promising, to drawe him to deny the work of God, and affirme that he counterfeted, and therewithall couenanted with So to helpe him to doe any thing that he would take in hand, meaning those thinges that he had in the time of his possession done. The case being thus, and this being the worke that the diuell hath in hād, it is not to be ymagined that Sathan beinge in So. shoulde torment him, and so make it appeare that he is there: for thus he shoulde be against himselfe, and ouerturne all he had done and hath in hande. Yf the diuell hauing drawne So. (after that he was againe entred into him) to say he counterfeyted shoulde vexe him, and sent forth the same effects he did before he thus affirmed, causing a verye greate swelling in his belly, an other and much lesse to run along his bodye betwene the flesh and the skyn, depryuing him of all sence, so as being prickt deepe with pynnes, he woulde not styrr, nor bloud issue, retorting his tongue into his throate, causing him to foame excessiuly, to be (in appearance) of supernaturail strength, and knowledge, casting him into the fyre without being burnt &c. and that daylie: what would it aduantage the diuell for So. to say and sweare he counterfeyted, when the deede euery houre done by himselfe shewed the contrary? and where had bene my teaching to counterfeyt? and the imprisoning the innocent? how would also the children of men haue bene generally kept from beeleeuing the worke of god and magnifyinge him for it, and not only so, but insteade thereof brought to re-

ceaue

ceaue a false and vile report against his seruant, and that which is far worse against the worke it selfe. Howsoeuer then the diuell is naturally carried to vexe and torment them in whose bodyes he is, and to sende forth such effects as we heare, and ordinarilye doth so: yet we may be assured that when he seeth it is more for his aduantage to refrayne, (as it is in this our case to draw thousands to synne, then to torment one sole body) he being in man will not shewe himselfe and make that knowne, but lurke and lye cloase (as I may say!) like a subtle serpent, and oulde foxe as he is.

VVe haue hearde before in the story, that for the space of a fortnight or thereabouts Sathan did withdrawe himselfe from vexing Iohn Starky, and Anne Starky for certaine dayes, insomuch as their parents with others did verilye thinke at the first when M. More and I came to Cleworth, that they had bene well, and no wicked spirites within them: yea we haue had experience thereof even in Somers: who after he had giuen it forth that he counterfeyted, and therewith continued as well and free from all appearance of possession, as at this present he doth, for the space of 4, or 5. weekes, was fearefully tormented by the diuell, before the Commissioners, and many other witnesses, and so continued about 12. dayes, (in the vew of all that came vnto him) vntill the aduersaries hauing gathered hart to themselues, did rise vp againe for counterfeyting, and tooke him the second time into their custody, in whose hâds he was no sooner, but presẽtly he was (as they thought) well, and no diuell (forsooth) in him: and so hath remayned as they thinke vntill this day. which suddayne amendment, if I may so call it, with the cause or occasion thereof, might helpe vs to spi out the reason of Sathans not vexing of So. albeit he be in him styll if we were wise. Now I desire to know, why the diuell may not aswell by the space of some yeares abstayne from tormenting the man he possesseth, as for the space of some weekes. Thus we see that So. not being vexed by sathan, doth not let but that he may be possessed. VVe see also the reason why the diuell thus withdraweth himselfe, which well considered we may perceaue that it is not possible it should haue bene or yet be (so longe as all things continue as they are) that the vncleane spirit entred into So. with seauen worse then himselfe, shold vex him at all, otherwise then in corners, before such, and in such maner, as he thinketh good, and seeth it to make for the vphoulding & mainteyning of that euill name of counterfeyting, which he for the obscuring of the greate worke of god, hath raysed vp, and spread far & neare, for what saith the scripture? when the stronge man armed keepeth the house, the things that he possesseth are in peace. This is first to be vnderstood of corporall possession, as is playne by the occasion thereof. math. 12. 29. Luk 11. 21.

Now did euer the ſtrong armed man poſſeſſe a houſe more quietlye, then he doth So. his houſe or body? when no man reſiſteth that vſurper, when So. himſelfe and ſome ſuch as are rulers in the church & comon wealth, yea and too many others, are for this vniuſt poſſeſſor, for counterfeyting, and teaching to counterfeyt: and no man almoſt in a zeale of god and his glory riſeth vp againſt him. As then the repoſſeſſion of So. is according to that which is foretoulde vs by the holy ſcriptures: euen ſo in this lurking of ſathan. and being at peace with Somers, we ſee the ſcripture likewiſe fulfilled. Neither doe I doubt, but that if any zealous for the Lorde of hoaſts, ſhall procure ſuch order to be taken, that the meanes may be vſed for the diſpoſeſſinge of this vſurper, and ſo Chriſt Ieſus the ſtronger come vppon this ſtrong man, he ſhal be ſpoyled of his houſe, the armoure wherein he truſted taken from him, and his ſpoyles deuided: and we therein alſo ſee the ſcripture fulfilled beefore our eyes, we deſire that a tryall heercof may be made, that ſo happely if no other way an end may be put to this controuerſie. To deny this were very hard, and iniurious to the manifeſtation of the worke, and peace of thoſe which contend abut it. If I had only knowne Som. poſſeſſed, and not to haue bene beeſides diſpoſſeſſed, I ſhould haue bene leſſe confident in this preſent poſſeſſion, for why I ſhould haue doubted leaſt Sathan peraduenture had leaue from god, to poſſeſſe him only for a ſeaſon, which time being expired he might remayne there no longer, albeit no meanes was vſed for his expulſion and againſt this I fynde nothing in holy ſcripture. But of the repoſſeſſion of one, I am otherwiſe perſwaded: becauſe it is ſaid & that of both the Euangeliſts which ſpake of the conditiō of the repoſſeſſed, that the ſpirite hauinge entred in with ſeauen worſe then himſelfe, will dwell there, and take vp his habitation, as hauinge ſome right and intereſt in the houſe. In which reſpect it may be it is ſaid that the laſt ſtat of that man is worſe then the firſt: meaning that the condition of the man repoſſeſſed, is worſe then it was when he was firſt poſſeſſed. For firſt Chriſt ſpeaketh in both the Euangeliſts in the preſent tenſe, not in the future, the laſt ſtate of that man is worſe, not ſhalbe worſe, 2. The antitheſis or oppoſition betwene firſt and laſt eſtate, confirmeth this expoſition, for by firſt eſtate we are to vnderſtande the condition of the poſſeſſed from the time ſathan entreth into man, vntill the time of his eiection, and by laſt eſtate, I thinke his like conditiō of being poſſeſſed, but after eiection: wherby it may welbe diſtīguiſhed frō the former, & rightly be called laſt eſtat hauing reſpect to the other and like eſtat going beefore. And this laſt condition of one poſſeſſed, which is that we call repoſſeſſion, is ſaide to be the worſe: firſt, becauſe into ſuch the ſame ſpirit which was there before is entred. with ſeauen worſe then himſelfe. 2. becauſe they will dwell there: that is, though they be caſt out, returning they ſhall and will recouer the partye, and gett him anon againe into math. 12. 45. Luk. 11. 26.

their

their possession, And truly no marualle though the estate of the repossessed be such as we heare, and far worse then the estate of those persons possessed out of whome the vncleane spirit was neuer cast: considering theire great vnthankfullnes, for so singuler and sencible mercy of god bestowed vppon them, and that notwithstanding the Lord hauing corrected them for their sinnes by the diuell. and after deliuered them out of his handes, yet they returne to theire sinnes agayne: without which one cannot be repossessed. This I say considered it is iust with god, to deliuer them vpp to the full possession of the diuell, or diuells, or at least to some further possession and interest in them then beefore.

As for the B. of Londons obiection, that So. hauing remayned a yeare in his house, hath gone to the Church all that time, and there carryed himselfe as orderly as any other of his famely, and likewise in his prayers at home as M. Harsnet (quoth he) can witnesse: it is easilye answered, for we reade in the 1. of Marke, that at Capernaum there was in the Synagogue a man in whome there was an vncleane spirit: and how oft the same man had bene there who can tell? and quietly (no doubt) hee carried himselfe there, otherwise that had bene no place for him. Indeede he cryed out when he sawe Iesus, but this all that were possessed did whereseeuer they met him, so that said exclamation was not because of his being in the Synagogue, but because of Christ his being there.

VVhere I say that So. is now possessed, I doe not meane that the diuell is for certaynty at the very instant when I so speake in the body of Somers for as he may be there, so at that present may hee be without him, as I suppose: but I mean that Sathan hath leaue from god to enter into that body of his, and torment it, which he is denyed to doe by others, which letteth not but that he may or doth goe forth sometimes, and come in againe at his pleasure, And this I conceaue generally of the possessed, and Sathan his being within them, for it is likely that the diuell doth with those he entreth into as the father of the Lunatick saith, concerninge his dealinge with his chylde, (a) And loe (quoth he) a spirit taketh him, and suddenly he cryeth and he teareth him that he foameth, and hardly departeth from him, when he hath bruised him These are saide in the Scriptures to be (b) possessed with the diuell, meaning touching their bodyes, which in this case is called his house: for concerning their soules they are no more nor otherwise possessed thē others, now a man is possessed of his house, although he remayne not alwayes in it. Euen so it is (I thinke) betweene sathan and his house, that is the body he possesseth. Indeede he is said to be possessed, in whome there is an vncleane spirit: but it followeth not thereupon that the mark 1 23.

what it is to be possessed

Luk 9 39. math. 4 24 and chap 8 16. 24. math. 12. 29 44.

the ſpirit is alwayes in the man, & neuer out of him. Yea except now one ſpirit, now an other ſhoulde goe into the body of the poſſeſſed, after the diuell taketh once poſſeſſion of the body of man, which is vnlikely: it muſt needes be that the ſpirit goeth out ſometimes: for otherwiſe it is not poſſible, that the ſpirit ſhoulde vtter theſe thinges he is by experience ſeene oft to doe by the tongue of the party poſſeſſed, as the ſpeaches and actions ſpoken and done elſe where, at or about the ſame inſtant they are ſpoken and done. And thus much concerning Som. repoſſeſſion.

pag. 134. Diſcouerer.

After this So. deuiſed new tricks vnder a couerlett, vpon this occaſion: Lying vppon his bed with a couerlet caſt ouer him, he moued by chance he knew not how, ſome parte of his body, when he was ſuppoſed to be in a fit, and therefore ſenceleſſe. whereupon he the ſaid M. Dar. gaue it out, that it was the diuell, that made that motion vnder the couerlett: which was ſuch an inſtruction to Som as he ceaſed not to feede that error: Likewiſe (ſayth So.) lying in my bed, I did ſometimes knock and fillip with my fingers & toes, againſt the bed ſides and feete: and this alſo was aſcribed to M. Dar. as to haue bene done by the diuell.

That which So. heere depoſeth is confirmed by the depoſitions pag 139. of diuers, The very knocking at that time I was there, (ſaith M. Hallam) was one of his toes, ſlipping downe from the other: when the voyce of 4. or 5: knocks were heard togither in manner of a chyme, quoth M. Crauen, I founde one of them to be his finger thruſt vnder his thigh, as he lay vppon his backe. George Richardſon thus, Touching the likeneſſes of kitlinges moaning in So. bed, I haue heard much wonder thereof, at one time when I was there, it was the boyes foote. Edmund Garland thus. Catching on a time at that which I ſawe moue the cloathes, I gott houlde of it and offering to caſt vp the cloathes, to ſee what I had in my hand, it ſlipped from me, & I beleeue it was the boyes priuy members. Againe I hearing a knocking at the beds feete, catched the boy by the toes, which I perceaued to haue made the former knocking. M. Aldred thus. the rapping in M. Hallams opinion was nothing elſe, but the tapping of one of his nayles vpon an other. M. Par The tapping was the fillipping of his fyngers or ſome motion with his toes.

Darrell

VVe heare what So. and his witneſſes ſay, let vs now hear what was depoſed before the 12. Commiſſioners.

M. Aldridge. This examinat ſaith that he ſtanding in the hall heard a greate knocking in the parlour where the boy lay, and ſuddenly he ruſhed in

Narration dep. 2. where he found the boy alone in his bed, lying with his face vpwards in his fitt, with his mouth drawne awry, & his eyes, ſtaring as though they would haue ſtarted out of his head. And kneling downe to prayer he heard the knocking againe vnder his knees as he thought: and in the bed vnder the couerlet kett, he ſawe the forme, and ſhape as it were of fyue kitlings in quantity to the view of the eye. And againe this examinate ſawe the bedcloathes at the feete to ſhake, moue, and leape, as the leaues of an aſpen tree, ſhaken with the wynde.

dep. 6. Ioane Pye ſaith that diuers times ſhee had heard a clapping in his bed, as though it had bene the clapping of 3. handes, and that ſhee hath ſeene a motion in the bed, as though it had bene the creeping of 3. kitlings, which ſhee and diuers others haue indeuored to take houlde of, but neuer could, for when they attempted the ſame, it hath vaniſhed, his handes and feete neuer ſtirring to their ſights and that at other times, ſhee hath heard at his bedds feete a knocking, as though it were vnder the bed to their vnderſtanding.

dep. 14. Elizabeth Milward ſaith, that ſhee hearde a thumping, or knocking in his bed, and ſhee putting her hand into his bed, felt the ſaid knockinge (as ſhee thought) at a hollow place aboue the cheſt of his body: which knocking ſhee heard as ſhee went downe the ſtayres being ſo fearfull as ſhee durſt not ſtay aboue with him.

dep. 15. M. Pare ſayth, that he hearde a thumping, or knocking in the boyes bed in three ſeuerall places at once, and he putting his hande into the bed felt it ſenſibly knock vnder his hand.

dep. 16. Thomas Gray Eſquire ſaith, that he ſaw a mouing vnder the vppermoſt couering of the bed (not far diſtant from the ſmall of the ſaid William Somers leg,) which lay in a round lumpe pantinge, which this Examynate perceauing, poynted at, and ſaid to the ſtanders by, what might this be? whervpon one of them ſaid, it is his feet: then it was anſwered by thoſe that ſat vpon the beds feete, thus: we haue his feete heere, and doe holde them. Then this Deponent for the better vnderſtanding thereof layd his hand vppon the ſaid lump, and felt it moue, and claſping his hand togither, he felt that it yealded, as ayre, or wynd, and opening his hand againe it filled the ſame in very full manner, And this Examynat taking away his hand, ſaw the cloathes ſettle very ſoftly downe, like as a bladder being blown ful of winde falleth togither after it is pricked· and ymediatly the like mouing was on the other ſyde of the ſaid William Somers, and this deponent ſeeing it ſaid (laying his hand vppon the place, where before it was) heere it was euen now, and at that very inſtant this deponent (without mouing of his hands) ſenſibly felt ſomething vnder the cloathes patt very faſt in the palm of his hand like the foote of a kitling, or ſuch like thing.

Darrell.

The Diſc. telleth vs, what his owne deponents, (of his owne culling, and of his own ſifting and examynation, and ſome of them of his owne ſtampe and affection, whoſe depoſitions alſo are produced by his owne ſelfe, depoſinge more or leſſe as he pleaſeth) doe ſaye: but in his whole Diſcouery, we heare not of theſe other depoſitiones, depoſed and examyned by other manner of perſons then himſelfe, and fellowe Commiſſioners. The Diſcouerer belike thinketh thus to blynde the eyes of the worlde, but the muſt knowe that the producing of theſe abſurd and ridiculous depoſitions of I know not whom, taken as it were behinde a cloath by ſuch as are partyes, and no indifferent Commiſſioners, are a ſlender conuiction of the depoſitions of theſe other fyue heere ſpecifyed, ſo grauely, iuditially and orderlye done, let the Diſc. heereafter then conuince that which they haue depoſed: for vntill that be done, and theſe 5. proued periured: It cannot poſſiblie be (as euery childe may ſee) that that or thoſe thinges which moued vnder the couerlett, ſeene and looked vppon as they moued or crept vp and downe the bed from place to place, ſtirringe and mouing vnder the handes of many, as if they had bene whelpes, kytlings, ratts, or ſuch like lyuing creatures, ſometimes alſo vaniſhinge vnder mens handes, when feeling them they beegan to claſpe theyre handes &c. as before, hearde likewiſe to make a thumping or knocking, ſhould be So. feete, or his toes, or fingers, or pryuie members: or this knocking be cauſed by his fynger thruſt vnder his thigh, or by the fillipping of his fyngers, or by one of his toes, ſlyppinge downe from the other, or by the fillipping of one toe with an other vppon the bed, or yet by the tapping of one of his nayles vpon an other. For (to omyt that which conteyned in theſe fyue laſt depoſitions offereth it ſelfe to the conſideration of euery one,) it is notoriouſly knowne to the inhabitants of Nottingham that his mouing & knocking vnder the couerlett, continued tenne dayes and nights, by times or rather more, and that So. was vſuallye helde by ſome, armes & legs, his armes alſo (he being in his cloaths) on the day time aboue the coueringe, and ſeldome or neuer vnder it. And this is (in part) confirmed by M. Grayes depoſition. I ſaw (ſaith he) So. lying opon a bed, being helde by ſondry perſons at his feete, and alſo at his heade &c. Agayne as before wee haue his feete heere and doe holde them. How could then this motion and knocking be made by his handes or feete? 2. Som. on the day time was alwayes in his cloathes: it came not then (ſurely) from the tapping of one of his two nayles one vpon an other. 3. Neyther in the night when So. was in his naked bed could the knocking or rapping come either from the ſlipping downe of his toes from the other, or his finger thruſt vnder his thigh, or the fillippinge of his toes or fingers, or tapping of one of his toe nayles upon an other, becauſe of the loudnes thereof: for ſaith Elizabeth Milwarde, I hearde the knocking as I went down the ſtayrs, being ſo feareſull, as I durſt not ſtay aboue with him. And M. Aldridg, (ſpeaking of an other time, and when he was in an other houſe) ſtanding in the haule I heard a greate knocking in the parlour wher the boy lay. And this which M. Aldridge

de

deposeth, there are a great number of witnesses ready to depose.

4. It is to be obserued that M. Hallams deposition beginneth thus Hauing heard of many wonders, of certain knockings in So. bedd, I was very desirous &c. And George Richardson after this manner: Touching the likenesses of kitlings mouing in So. bedd, I haue heard much wonder thereof, and at one tyme &c. whereby it is playne that either there was some very rare accident, or seeming so to be, which we may be assured did drawe many to behould him: And beesides at this time M. Hallam and M Freeman (becausse his kinswoman was now appeached to be a witch, for this accident, and the Discouery of certaine persons for witches, began, continued and ended togither) gaue it out that So. was a counterfeyt. VVhich two things considered, and that by reason of the latter the most that came vnto him had an especiall eye to counterfeyting, how simple, and what silly soules must they needes be, that were thus deluded by the tipping and tapping. slipping, & sil lipping of a boyes toes and fingers? But as in other things so in this particular, the Disc. will not only put out their eyes who behelde Somers troubles, and depriue them of their sences I meane their feeling, and hearinge, but also of theire reason and vnderstanding, as if they had bene fooles or naturals, or more like vnto bruite beasts then men. And this I desire the Reader to consider of.

OF CHAP. 5.

Discouery.

Of M, Dar cunning instructing of Somers, by speaking to others in his hearing such things, as he ment he should practise in the detecting of witches.

After M. Dar. brought him on to an other matter concerning the detecting of witches, affirming to diuers in the presence of Somers, that it was ordinary with those that were lately dispossessed to detect witches, and that So. would doe the like. These things M. Dar. denyeth. pag. 137.

Darrell.

As before the Disc. hath tould vs that I instructed So. in his practises from the 5. of Nouember vntill the 7. 2. to dissemble a repossession. 3. certayne tricks vnder a couerlett, by speaking to others in Som. hearing: so heere he saith the same concerning the detecting of witches: that I instructed him therein, by speaking to others in his hearing. Hence it commeth that both in these seuerall instructions and cosenages mẽtioned by the Discouerer, and the depositions proving the same, and namely this touching witches, we haue ordinarily some of these clausses, in the presence of Somers. in the boyes presence, the boy being present, Somers being present, in the presence of the boy, M. Dar. affirmed to those that were with the boy, in the hearing of Somers, before Somers &c. And these with such like clausses are most materyall, and such as might not see for a test her of pag 113.113.

be

be omitted, for then my cunning instructing, and depositions concerning the same doe fall to the grounde. Did euer any since the worlde was made publish to the world for truth and in good earnest, so absurd and ridiculous stuff, as this is of my instructing So. by speaking to others in his hearing, what I would haue him to doe? The Disc. speaketh often of wonders, he may well let this go among one of them, for I am sure it is a matter to be wondred at were it true, viz. that Darrell and Somers should agree togither about counterfeyting a possession, dispossession &c. which are not very easy to be counterfeyted, meete together thereabout for the space of 4. or 5. yeares, haue instructions in writing passe betwene them, after comming to dwell at the same towne meete often in Dar. chamber alone, and euen then when these counterfeyt tricks were doing, and yet notwithstanding defer all ther instructing and learning vntill the very time came that So. should do his feytes before others. One woulde thinke that men woulde rather hisse at these things then beleeue them: but by lamentable experience we see it is otherwise: wherein the folly of man, and how easily hee is misled and seduced, doth euidently appeare.

Discouerer. pag 138.

George Richardson deposeth thus, One Mistrisse Wallis and others did talke in the roome where So. lay, of such persons as were suspected to be witches, before he the said Somers did name them.

Darrell.

By this deposition of the Disc. owne witnesse as I may say, (& therfore not by him not to be denyed for sure testimony) this last supposed instruction of myne is very much weakened, for it is verye vnlikely that I did instruct him to detect witches, seeing I did not direct him what persons he shoulde name for witches, as appeareth by this deposition, which ymplyeth that he had such direction only from this speach of Mistresse Wallys and others, But what if Mistresse Wallys and the rest had not come in the nick, as I may say? or comminge had not named these persons suspected to be witches? or if they had named them, yet had not so done in the roome where Somers lay, that is not in his hearing? If all these things had not fallen out thus hand patt as the say, where had then bene this detectting of witches? For it must needs be that eyther this cosenage had neuer bene, or Som. had at least named other persons. But it may be that Mistresse Wallys at least if not the others had confederated with me about my teachinge So. to counterfeyt, and there are these circumstances to strengthen it. 1. Shee is my wifes sister. 2. when it was she was not tongue-tyed what a man her brother was. 3. Shee writ a letter vnto me to come ouer and see Som. 4. we heare what wordes shee vttered (if we may beeleue George Richardson swearing) and that in So. hearing. Considering these circumstances surely the Disc. did greatly forgett himselfe, for else vndoubted edly when it was, he woulde haue depoſed and examyned Miſtriſſe Wallys about this matter.

Diſcou.

M. Dar. (ſaith Robert Cooper) deſired the Maior to make inquirye through the towne, if any perſon could charge any of the pretended witches. The Maior did ſo accordingly, & nothing being ſayd to diuers of their charges, they were all ſett at liberty vpon bonds, ſaning two. pag 142.

Darrell.

I ſaid that the ſaid detecting of certayne perſons for witches was done by Sathan, and as he might therein ſpeake truth to an euill end, ſo being the father of lyes, there was more cauſe to ſuſpect him of lying: and therefore whoſoeuer ſhould there-vpon hold & report them (or any of them) to be witches without ſome proofe had therof from men, ſhould iniure them in their good name, & ſin againſt god. For whereas So. was very ſtrangely and greuouſly handled at the bringing and carrying away of the detected perſons, and ſo oft as that was don where-vpon percaſe ſome ſuſpected them to be witches: we muſt remember that this alſo was done by the diuell (as by the manner of it it did appeare) therefore not to be regarded, who were they, or ſom of them, moſt free from witchcraft, yet might haue done ſo, thereby to haue drawne the innocent to puniſhment, and man to condemne & ſlaunder the righteous. Heere-vpon I affirmed, that if any could teſtify any thing againſt them concerning witchcraft, it were wel they did it. And I hearde that witneſſed againſt them yea almoſt all of thē, before they were had to the magiſtrate, that for my own part I did & ſtill doe ſuſpect them generally to be ſuch as worke with ſpirits, and that Alice Freeman, Widdow Higgit, Widdow Boote, Groues, Millycent Horſlay, and So. aunt (whoſe name I know not) are ſuch I haue no doubt, and I thinke I could make proofe of thoſe facts of theires, as would make it manifeſt to others. And hee reby it is playne that it is vntrue the Diſc. ſaith, that the parties brought vnto Somers. were thereby reputed for witches: for thus it was: Preſently vppon the detection, matters of fact came to light, firſt priuatly, then openly in the towne hall, which lay hid vntill then, and there-vpon were they reputed for witches. yea it is well knowne to the inhabitants of Nott. that when theſe of the towne of Nott. were openly before the magiſtrates of the ſaid towne for ſuſpition of witchcraft, there was not a word vſed concerning the detection: widdow Higgit was reputed a witch, for diuers facts wherein it muſt needes be that the diuell and ſhe did conſpire together, and eſpecially for murthering the childe of one Bingham of Nott. whereof he openly accuſed her in the towne hall. So Alice Freeman was reputed a witch for matter of fact, ſpecially a little after the detection, vpon ſuſpition of murthering the childe of Mary Cooper ſiſter vnto Somers, whereupon ſhe was condemned by (a) two Iuryes of willfull murther, and it is ſtrange that any Iury ſhould be founde to acquite her there of. Thus might I proceede to the reſt, ſaue that none of them were charged with taking away the life of any. Yea lett all men iudge of Millicent Horſlayes owne confeſſion: who beinge by M. Perkyns Iuſtice of peace examyned, and denyinge that euer ſhee hurt any body, acknowledged that ſhe had helped divers, but it was (forſooth) by good prayers, whereof ſhe then ſaid one.

Diſcouerer.

pag 142. pag 143. But this deuiſe of Dar. concerning the detecting of witches is almoſte laide aſleepe. and againe This deceipt of Dar. is ſo daſht, as it is ſuppoſed wee ſhall heare no more of it.

Darrell.

It is a practiſe of Sathan and no deuiſe of myne to diſcloſe the acquaintance he hath with ſome of his familiars. This hath bene ſeene beeſides in Tho. Darling and the 7. in Lancaſhire, in Margaret Heryſon, (of whome beefore) M. Throckmortons children, & many others. And where the Diſc. ſuppoſeth we ſhall heare no more of this, ſurely we had not if he had not giuen cauſe thereof: and before I ende, I muſt once againe tell him and all men, that it was not So. but the diuell by his tongue, that detected the witches. For firſt it is not likely that he coulde haue diſcloſed ſo many, 2. As Sathan was during this Diſcouery ſenſibly about So. body vnder the couering to our ſight, hearing, and feeling, (as is aforeſaid) ſo was he alſo ſenſibly vexing him in his body, as was manifeſt to the great multitude that duringe that tyme beheld him: In probabillity therefore might not the diuell vſe his tongue and other inſtruments of ſpeach, although that be very rare and extraordinary, as well as perform other things as rare, yea more rare about him and alſo moleſt him in his body, & ſome other parts therof? 3. He knew nothing more or leſſe of the infinite ſpeaches he then vttered, and namely of his calling for and naming certaine perſons to be witches, as himſelfe then affirmed, when there was ſome beleuing of him, and in reaſon to leade others to beleeue him, as wil appeare by the reaſon following. 4. whiles he was diſcouering theſe perſons, he vttered thoſe thinges which paſſed his knowledge and vnderſtanding: For now it was that he expounded the Creed by the ſpace of an howre: when Alice Freeman and widdowe Higgit were ſearched by diuers weomen, a good way from his fathers houſe, he tould therof euen as they were ſearching and that Alice Freeman had a mark of ſuch a ſhoulder, and the other none found of her, which was euen ſo. When Millicent Horſlay was had before the abouenamed M. Perkins

4.

4. or 5. myles distant from Nott. he tould the very time she was examyned, the words she then vsed for herselfe, and of the stripping & searching of her. In like sort he tould of the speaches and actions of her sister a myle of Nott. euen when the same fell out. And were it not to auoyde tedyousnes, much more of this kinde might heere be said. Seeing then it is cleare, that these speaches were vttered by the diuell: why should we not thinke that the other speaches, which concerned and accompanyed the same, & were vttered as it were with the same breath, came from the same spirit?

OF CHAP. 6.

Of M. Dar. course, from about the seauenth of December vntill the fourteenth of Ianuary, whilest Somers refused to dissemble any longer.

Discou. pag 145

M. Dar. bent his cheise force to perswade his auditorye, that sathan would lurke sometimes about one (out of whome he had bene cast) suffering the party to be well for a good space, but that he was verily perswaded, that Sathan would not giue him ouer, vntill in the end he had repossessed him.

About 8. weekes after the time the Discouerer heere speakethof, and after Somers had giuen it forth that he counterfeyted, I did openlye affirme, that Somers had not counterfeyted, and 2. that he was repossessed, and that it came from the subtlety of sathan then lurking in him, that he vexed him not, but I woulde haue bene ashamed, to haue saide, that Sathan would lurke sometimes about one, or that Sathan would not giue So. ouer vntil he had repossessed him, as the Disc. chargeth me to haue done: but proueth none of them not so much as by a false witnes, no not by So. owne testimony, who stãdeth him in great stead at other times for the proofe of many worthy things. But that which the Disc. saith heere, he thwarteth and ouerthroweth else-where. for heere from the 7. of December vntill the 14. of Ianuary, he will haue me pratling to my auditory that Sathan lurketh sometimes about one, & that sathan wold not giue ouer vntill in the end he had repossessed Somers, in the whole Chapter following also affirming, that he began to be repossessed about the 14. of Ianuary: and in page 127. he telleth vs that So. supposed repossession was about the 21. of Nouember. If I held and gaue it out about the 21. of Nouember, that So. was repossessed, it is not credible that I should from the 7. of December till the 14. of Ianuary iangle as the Disc. affirmeth. And this is the 9. tyme that the Discouerer is conuinced by his owne Discouery Darrell.

Discou. pag 147

The author of the Narration writeth thus vpon So. dispossession M. Dar. was retayned preacher in Nott. that populous towne, hauing had no setled setled preacher there before this time, since the begining of her maiestyes raigne. Eyther M. Aldridg or his companion are in danger of an hard imputation: except it may be thus holpen: M. Aldridg is vicar of S. Maryes in Nott. wheras this fellow peraduenture accounteth neyther persons nor vicars nor any that bear such popish names, for preachers: the Doctor to be chosen by the parrish, as M. Dar. was, is the preacher (forsooth) that must beare the bell.

Darrell.

The Narrator denyeth not, that they haue had a preacher, but no setled preacher, or standinge mynisterie, for that M. Aldridg hath flocks or congregations beesides to attend vppon as well as that, whereby it hath come to passe, that his people of Nott. haue hearde his voyce oft times but once in a monneth, sometimes sildome: which many besides the Narrator account no setled ministery.

OF CHAP. 7.

How So. about the 14. of Ianuary fell again to the acting of certayn fitts, wherein he continued at times, till about the 24. of Febauary, & how M. Dar. pretended that he was possessed.

Discouerr.

pag 148. M. Dar. spent about 4. or 5. weckes (next going before the 14. of Ianuary) in preaching, and reuiling those that helde So. for a counterfeyt.

Darrell.

Had I carryed my selfe in the pulpitt and worke of the ministery, as the Disc. beareth the world in hand, I had bene more fytt and worthy to haue sitt at the plow tayle, and guided it, then in the chair of Christ Iesus, and to haue bene a guide to his people. I publisshed the worke of god, presently after the dispossession of Somers & then did (as in duty I ought) make mention openly of So. and at other times I deny that euer I mentioned him, saue that about a quarter of a yeare after his dispossession, and after he sayd he counterfeyted, I spake against that cursed confession of his, and against them that would haue him to be a counterfeyt. And this I did twise, once vppon the Lordes day to my owne people, & an other time not long after to them and others come out of the coasts thereabouts met togither at a fast. At this latter time also I remember, I vsed a few wordes concerniuge his repossession And whereas the Disc. saith in the chapter before that I preached at Nott. about that time, viz. from about the 7.

pag 145. of December to the 14. of Ianuary, 6. or 7. sermons, vppon the 43. 44. 45. verses vppon the 12. of Mathew, concerning Sathans returne to reenter he saith vntruly: for they were preached in Nouember, two of them of the 8. and 9. dayes of this moneth, and so on forwardes on the

lordes

Lordes dayes vntill I had finiſhed that ſcripture. He bringeth mee in depoſing this, but (as full often) he hath corrupted my depoſityon, the circumſtance of time being of his owne inſerting. Beeſides when I preached theſe ſermons more then 6. of the 7. ſermons were of ſpirituall poſſeſſion: and that in both theſe I ſpake as the truth is, the inhabitants of Nott. can witneſſe.

The Diſc. ſaith further that with this argument of diuels I ſo troubled my auditory, that they grew very weary of it, and ſome blamed me for it to my face. Pag 145.

Truly it is very vnlikely, ſeing whiles I was preachinge of this ſcripture, they generally made choyce of me for their teacher. It is true indeede that ſome two or three of the cheif frendes to counterfeiting, naturall men, not ſauoring of the ſpirit, ſhewed ſome diſlike to my preaching, and aduiſed me to preach of loue and charity, ſayinge that they were euer in charity before I came there: but this was about a quarter of a yeare after theſe 7. ſermons, wherin I had preached the law (that ſo they might be drawne to hunger and thirſt after the goſpell, and made fitt to receaue it) which was not ſweete and pleaſynge vnto them: and therevppon they kicked with the heele againſt me preſuming to inſtruct their teacher, and to direct their guide (like to the ſcholler, that ſhould take vppon him to teach his ſchoolemaiſter) which is no new nor ſtrange thing.

Diſcouerer.

My father in law (ſaith So.) receaued at two collections made by M. Dar. meanes the ſome of twenty nobles, or thereabouts, in reſpect of his trouble and charge, when I was in my pretended fits. pag 148.

Darrell.

VVhat a ſhameleſſe boy is this, ſeeing the contrary is notoryouſly knowne to the inhabitants of Nottingham. I haue ſhewed before thatat the firſt collection made at his diſpoſſeſſion, his father in law had neuer a penny, and at the ſecond but part thereof, as I geſſe about 20. s. or 4. nobles, whereof part was to apparrell Somers. And theſe collections were not by my meanes, otherwiſe then by ſpakling to the people at the diſſoluing of the congregation to be mindfull of the poore, if ſo I did. Neyther doe I doubt but that the Diſcou. knoweth this to be very falſe, yea few better, & yet behold he publiſheth it for truth to the world. For who can thinke but that he hath examyned the boy his father in law thereabouts: firſt in hope to haue it confirmed by his depoſition, if any ſuch thing happely had bene: 2. though it ſhould proue otherwiſe, yet hoping either by threats or by flattering ſpeaches to draw him therevnto: for if Rob. Cooper the boys father in lawe haue depoſed as the Diſc. affirmeth, he hath ſundrye times in other things deposed as falsly as So. himselfe hath heerein. Beesides it is very likely that the Disc. hath had some speach hereof, eyther with the Maior, or M. Freeman, or M. William Gregory, from whome he might learne the certayntye heerein. For the Maior giue So. father in law that which he had of the collection, and if it were 20 nobles, from him he receaued it, who can witnesse that I neuer spake word to him concerning the same: so that were that true which is falsly and that So. father in lawe had 20. nobles, yet it made not against me. Seeing now we heare nothinge of this 20. nobles from none of these but only from Somers, not a deposition among the multitude of depositions confirminge this, we may be sure that it is not onlye false, but iustly suspect the Disc. himselfe to know the falshood of it.

Discouerer.

pag. 150. It is to be obserued: how some of M. Dar. cheif frends haue left him after a sort in two of the cheifest poynts of this whole action. One of them hauing giuen his opinion, that So. did not dissemble those fitts which he acted before the Commissioners, deputed from the Lord Archbishop of Yorke: but that it was the diuell in him, that played those prankes in his body, could (it seemeth) be content to acknowledge, that he was possessed: but at the time of his examynation, he would not affirme that the said So. had bene at any time dispossessed, although (saith he) I haue heard by depositions and other reports, that might induce me very probably to thinke that he was dispossessed. The other being a very rash and headstronge yonge man, one M. Brinsley a minister: he at the time of his examination doubteth asmuch of Som repossession as the former did of his dispossession. I am fully perswaded (saith he) that William So. was possessed with an euill spirit, and that he was dispossessed: but concerning his repossession I am not therein so fully perswaded: although I haue many reasons to induce me so to thinke.

Darrell.

At the time of his examination (meaning M. Iohn Browne one of the 12. Commissioners, a very reuerend and learned man) he woulde not affirme, that is, vpon his oath (for the booke was presently called for so soone as any appeared before the B. of London) that So. was dispossessed. Did M. Browne leaue me, or yet the cause and worke of God which he regardeth a little more then me, because he would not sweare that So. was dispossessed. Truly it had bene very strange if he shoulde haue so deposed. One woulde thinke that he hath shewed himselfe a frend to the cause, whatsoeuer he is to me, in saying that he did not dissemble. 2. in affirminge that he was possessed, and that it was the diuell in him that played those prancks in his body, as the Disc. rehearseth them. 3 that he did think that he was dispossessed, or to this effect. And for M. Brinsley a preacher of the gospell, it appeareth by his deposition, that he he hath not left me nor yet the cause. For he hath deposed that he is fully perswaded that So. was possessed. 2. that he is fully perswaded he was dispossessed. 3. that though he be not so fully perswaded of his repossession, yet he doth think so, meaning of the time present, because for any thing he knew, Sathan after his repossessing of So. might percase be departed. Surely the Disc. was not wise in producing those depositions which e very childe may see maketh not for him, but against him. And as vnwise was he to tell vs that M. Ireton his credit wrought some inconvenience, through his facility in beleuing those things which were tould him: al beit his speaches still did rely vpon this supposition, that if those things which he heard were true, then thus and thus. For M. Ireton is known as to be of singuler learning, so of great wisdome, and therefore (as it is said of such in the prouerbes) will consider before he beleue: as the things reported, so the credit of the reporter, with other circumstaunces and none of those foolish ones which will beleue euery thing. 2. M. Ireton was not only tould and heard of the strange and fearefull operations of Sathan, in and vppon the body of Somers, but was also an eye witnesse thereof, the daye of the commission, he beinge one of the Commissioners, so that this silly euasion of the Disc. will not serue his turn. And hereby, as partly also in that M. Ireton being by the B. of London deposed, concerning So. counterfeyting, possession, dispossession, & repossession, as well as the two former, (for he came not (sure) to London, dwelling an hundred myles of for nothinge, neither beinge come was he kept by the Bishop sundry daves, deposed, and often examyned, about nothinge, but in all likelihood the very same that M. Browne & M. Brinsley were,) & that of the said depositions or answers of his to the same articles, we heare nothing in this volume of depositions, it is a very easy thing for men to conie ture, what M. Ireton thinketh of Som. For had there bene but a lyne for the Disc. purpose, all the world should haue heard of it. The same may be sayd by M. Fuington a great scholler likewise & Commissioner, who togither with M. Browne and M. Brinsley was deposed and examyned: of whose answers also and what he an eye witnesse hath said to So. counterfeiting or not, his possession, dispossession, and repossession we heare not a worde. The secret testimony of these 4. so reuerent deuines and open also by theire speaches from time to time, the wise and discreete will regarde more then all the depositions the Discouerer to the contrary produceth.

prou. 14. 15.

prou. 14. 15.

Discou.

pag. 151 or rather as the Disco. saith

Vpon M. Dar. report & preaching that So. was repossessed, there was then greater resort vnto him then before. M. Dar still perswading euery on that came (as (a) So. saith) that he the said So. was repossessed: & that he re- remayned in all his fits vtterly senceleſſe.

Darrell.

This is a manifeſt vntruth, for the next day after I firſt ſaide he was repoſſeſſed, and before I preached ſo, I went to Aſhby, where my family remayned, and before I returned (being the ſaterday following) he was had to S. Ioanes, and ſaid he counterfeyted, whether alſo I neither did nor might repayre vnto him, one only time excepted when the Maior was preſent. And after the Diſcouery of ſathan before the 12. Commiſſioners, I was with him only the next morninge with diuers miniſte rs at Edmund Garlands houſe, departing preſently home to Aſhby, from whoſe houſe he was departed, & with the dog turned to his vomyt, I meane his former confeſſion of counterfeyting, which he had diſclaymed for a ſeaſon, before I returned to Nott, and both theſe I can dyrectly proue. But how doth the Diſc. proove that he affirmeth? why thus So. ſaith it: and then the Reader may be ſure it is a lye.

Diſcouerer.

pag 151. It might greatly be maruayled what eſtimation & credit M. Dar. got by this new forgery of So. pretended repoſſeſſion. Howbeit many of the wiſer ſort, that were not poſſeſſed with the giddy humoure of nouelt yes (couered forſooth with zeale & ſighings) did laugh this to ſcorne, as they did the reſt.

Darrell.

The wiſer ſort the Diſc. calleth thoſe which did laugh to ſcorne the worke of god. Of ſuch ſcorners the world was neuer without ſome: when a far greater worke then this we treate of, and more wonderfull was wrought, and that ymediatly by the Lorde himſelfe, whereof we reade in the 2. of the Acts, it is ſaid ſome mocked. There is a generation and euer will be, that ſitteth in the ſeate of the ſcornfull. But who are thoſe wiſe men he ſpeaketh of? forſooth M. Walton Arch-deacon of Darbyſhire, and M. Sales officiall: both nonreſydents, and the latter a man of no learning, and as l ttle wiſdome and gouernment: He woulde neuer elſe (as I haue credibly hearde) haue bene the ryng-leader in the ſetting vp of a may-pole the laſt ſommer, with pypinge, and dancing, and that vppon the Lordes day. Out of the miniſtery are of theſe wiſe men, M. Peter Clarke Maior then of Nott. M. Freman and the other Nott. Commiſſioners. For beeſides theſe there were ſcarſlye any (ſome papiſts only excepted) which were knowne to wag the tongue againſt the worke of god, the multitude not only acknowledging it: but reioycinge in it, and magnifyinge the name of god. And in the miniſtery none were knowne to be for counterfeyting, & againſt the poſſeſſion and diſpoſſeſſion of Somers but the two former: vpon occaſyon that M. Walton did riſe vp and that openly againſt the manifeſt manifeſt worke of god, after one publique meeting about Som. there was an other at the ſame time agreed vpon. VVhen the appoynted day was come, there were mett togither many miniſters and learned men, all which were for poſſeſſiō, & no mā heard to ſpeake a word for counterfeyting, this aren-deacon and officiall excepted. Now all theſe the Diſc. accounteth to be men poſſeſſed though not with diuells, yett with the giddy humour of noueltyes. VVell my brethren, it is farr better to be one of the foolish of this world, and for that folly to be laughed at and ſcorned, then of the wiſe, & "princes of this world, & for the ſame to be laughed at by him that dwelleth in heauen, and of the lord to be had in deriſyon. But I deſire to know of the Diſc. (who can ſo well diſcern of ſpirits) with what ſpirit M. Walton was poſſeſſed, when beefore the Commiſſioners after all this contention, he renounced counterfeyting, and confeſſed it to be the finger of god, as both M. Euington & M. Ioon Strelley with others can witneſſe: and whether at that time he alſo were not poſſeſſed with the giddy humour of noueltyes, couered with zeale and ſighings.

1 cor. 1 27.
1 cor. 2. 6.
pſa. 2. 4.

Diſcou.

So. grew weary of this his ſaid relapſe, after he had continued therein about ſixe weekes, & ſaid to Iohn Cooper that he ſhould be quyet if he might get out of M. Darrell fingers, and be at S. Ioanes. And againe in the next leafe: Cooper ſignified to ſome of the Aldermen, what So. had ſaid vnto him touching his deſire that he might remayne with him, that ſo at the length he might be in quyet.

pag 153.

Darrell.

In theſe wordes the Diſc. telleth vs how So. by the meanes of Iohn Cooper, got himſelfe from his father in lawes houſe to S. Ioanes. The reaſon mouing him there-vnto was, that being weary of counterfeyting through his long continuance therein, viz. for 6. weekes togither, he could not tell how to gine ouer his diſſembling, becauſe of me. To helpe himſelfe therefore in this ſtraight, he bethought hī of this courſe we heare of. For anſwer herevnto: firſt the Diſc. doth not proue that So. was the cauſe of his going to S. Ioanes, no not by So. depoſition, but only ſaith ſo him ſelfe. 2. By the depoſition of Iohn Cooper page 177. the contrary doth appeare, as we ſhall preſently heare. 3. we may hereby coniecture how falſe this is, in that S. Ioanes is a houſe in Nott. whether vagrant and ydle perſons are ſent and kept very ſtraight to worke, beinge ſeuerely corrected if they fayle therein. Now who can thinke that So. who had runn away, firſt from M. Grayes, and after twiſe from Tho. Porter, was a yong fydler & ſinging boy, had alſo playd the counterfeit boy as the Diſc. ſaith, firſt at M. Brackenburyes, then at Nott. ſhould offer voluntarily his neck to the yoake, (I meane of toyleſome labour) and his back to the rod of correction. And wherefore ſhoulde he doe this? becauſe (forſooth) otherwiſe he coulde not be quyet, & gett himſelfe out of my fingers, but muſt naedes will he nill he continue his counterfeyting, whereof alas he grew weary. A moſt ridiculous thing, all circumſtances well conſydered, which I leaue to the Reader to bethinke him of. Yea but the Diſc. is of an other mynde: for marke what he telleth vs, and that very ſolemnly in an other place.

pag 7. If any ſaith he doe ſurmiſe theſe practiſes to be improbable, as beinge much ſubiect to danger, in that the ſaid parties that are ſo cunningly drawn on in thoſe courſes, may vpon many occaſions detect them: they muſt knew that theſe fellowes are well enough furniſhed in that behalfe. For firſt amongſt the Papiſtes, it were ſufficient to bringe a ſuſpition of hereſye, that ſhould but doubt that one were not poſſeſſed, if their preiſts affirmed the contrary. And we ſee amongſt our ſelues, how hardly it is indured, that our pretended Exorciſts are called into queſtion, but be it that the woſt ſhould fall out: yet they haue ſuch rules, as if you will allow them, they are ſafe enough. For if any doe once fall into their handes, or yealde themſelues vnto their peactiſes, they can neuer be ridd from them by any meanes, ſo long as they are pleaſed to worke vpon them.

Conſidering theſe wordes of the Diſc. and that he ſaith that counterfeytes can neuer be rid by any meanes from their teachers ſo longe as they are pleaſed to worke vpon them: it is no maruaile though Som. were glad to get himſelfe euen to S. Ioaues (the woſt place for his eaſe of a thouſand) that ſo he might rid himſelfe of me: but rather a maruell that he could ſo be rid of me. ſeeing the Diſc. ſaith that ſuch ſchollers can neuer be rid of their maiſters, no not by any meanes. If this be true S. H. how came it to paſſe that So. rid himſelfe out of my handes once before when he was weary of counterfeyting, as now he is ſaide to be? So. (quoth the Diſc.) beginning to be werie of counterfeyting, for ought that M. Dar. could doe, altogither refuſed to continue his diſſembling courſ any longer: and ſo made no ſhew of any of his pranks for the ſpace of 5. weekes. And agayne: So. growing weary of his diſſimulation, contrary to Darrells perſwaſions gaue ouer all his tricks & practiſes. And this he proueth pag 144. pag 112. ſubſtantially by So. teſtimony. Hereof (ſaith he So. in this ſort. About the begining of December, I did grow very weary of all my former practiſes, and thereupon did wholly leaue them, contrary to M. Dar. good liking anſ. 1. who endeuored to perſwad me ſtill to continue in them: but he could not preuayle with me ſo farr. Here by the way we ſee that the Diſcouerer is cõtrary to himſelfe, And this is the 10. time that the Diſcouerer is conuinced by his owne Diſcouery. But I would know (I ſay) of the Diſc. why So, could not as well gett himſelfe this latter time out of my fingers with-without the conueying of himselfe to S. Ioanes, as well as before. Others will thinke though the Disc. be of an other minde, that were it so that I had taught So. to counterfeyt, as he will haue it, and he had but in secret tould me, that being weary of counterfeyting, he wolde counterfeyt no more, and rather then so he would discouer all, I wolde haue bene willing enough to haue rid my selfe of him, & if nedes I must busy my selfe in this worthy art, haue rather sought out a newe scholler, then haue troubled my selfe with one so lazy, so wayward, wauering, and peruerse, wherein also was such danger. For howsoeuer amongst the papists there is no danger to the preist teachinge one to counterfeyt, though the counterfeyt bewray all, so long as the preist affirmes the contrary, if we may beleeue the Discouerer: yet I trust he will not say the same of the ministers of Christ Iesus amonge vs, and yet he doth say somthing bending that way. Moreouer, if Som. saide thus to Cooper and went by his owne procurement to this said end to S. Ioanes: why when he was come thither did Cooper threaten to whip him, if he would not leaue his tricks, as Cooper himselfe confessed vpon his oath to the 12. Commissioners? but more for the conuincing of this followeth forthwith. And where the Disc. pretendeth that So. grew weary of his relapse meaning counterfeyting to be repossessed, be cause he had continued therein about sixe weekes he is therein greatly deceaued, for it was but two weekes. So. began to be repossessed at or about the time of his ympriſonment, as appeareth by the beginninge of this chapter page 49. but that was not about the 14. of Ianuary, as the Disc. saith in the argument of this chapter and So. also a little after, but the 14. of February as I can proue by many witnesse. & the 24. of February he went to S. Ioanes, as is confessed, where hee was presently quyet, and confessed his dissimulation. By this that hath bene said we may partly see, that So. remoued not himselfe for the cause heere alledged, to S. Ioanes, but they indeed caused this removall whome Sathan vsed as his instruments to get from the boy that cursed confession of counterfeyting which soone after he was there hee made, the meanes first being vsed, which serued there-vnto: viz. promises and threats, as heereafter will appear. And those were our Nottingham Commissioners, who caused him to be carried thither greatly against the boyes and his parents will, vnder coullour to fynde out some counterfeytinge, where it was as manifest as the dave-light at noon, that there was no possibillity of counterfeytinge.

The end of the second Booke.

THE THIRDE BOOKE.

OF CHAP. 1.

How Somers confessed his dissimulation at S. Ioanes in Nottingham as soone as he was out of M. Dar. disposition.

Discoverer.

pag 177. Concerning the occasion of So. remouing from his father in lawes house to S. Ioanes in Nott. (a place where the poore are sett to worke) Iohn Cooper the keeper there deposeth thus. Being oftentimes with So. in his fits, & dilligently beholding the course of his carriage in them: I grew very suspitious that he did but dissemble, and thereuppon was well content, to haue the tuition of him, to make tryall of the matter: the rather, for that the boyes kepers and frendes that were about him, were willing to please him in all his humors.

Darrell.

The true occasion or rather cause of Somers remouing, was neyther the former, whereof I haue spoken, nor yet this latter here mentioned, but first and cheifly the mallice of M. Freeman Alderman, because his kinswoman Allice Freeman was by So. detected for a witch which could not stay it selfe in accusing So. vniustly of witchcraft, & imprisoning him, & after vppon bayle byndinge him ouer to answer it at the Assises, but proceeded & neuer gaue ouer vntill So. confessed that he had counterfeyted, he hoping therby as it should seme to recouer the good name of his kinswoman, and partly to disgrace and so consequently to be reuenged of me, whome in regarde of that discouery and the counterfeyting he then strove for and I gaynsaid, he hated extreamely, so as at the length he could not indure to come to the church, when I exercised my ministery 2. the mallice of M. Gregory the towne clarke (a popish mate) against the work of god, that is the dispossession of Somers and this because of his religion, being in hart a papist, as is playn, in that for the space of eleuen yeares before he had not receaued the lordes supper. Now the papists & their adherents (albeit the learneder sorte of them doe acknowledge a reall possession and dispossession of Sathan in and out of the bodyes of men) cannot yet in patience indure that any such worke should be wrought in our church and by our ministery by fasting and prayer performed by vs, This forsooth they will haue peculiar to their own synagogue, to their own portusse, to their owne Te rogamus, mũbled prayers, processions, coniurings, & ceremonyes, as else-wher hath bene manifestly

shewed

shewed. To these came M. Morey an Alderman one also reputed to be vnsound and popish these three did draw with them M. Hart Alderman and M. Clarke then Maior a man very easy because of his simplicity to be misled: which 5. assembled in the towne hall, sent for me, signifying vnto me, that they purposed to take So. and comit him to the custody of two honnest men, because they suspected him to counterfeyt, which accordingly they did 3 dayes after: saue that the men they prounded to be So. keepers namely Iohn Cooper & Nich. Shepherd were scarsely honnest and of good name as we shall heare hereafter.

Discouerer.

The day after that So. came to S. Ioanes, he did counterfeyt himselfe (saith Nicholas Shepherd) to be in a fit, because (as I think) certain weomen were come thither vnto him to see him, who did greatly bemoane him: whereypon I remouing the said weomen from him, tould him whilest hee was in his tricks and in Iohn Coopers presence: that if he would not leaue & rise vp, I would set such a payre of knip-knaps vpon him as should make hī to rue it: & thereupon So. did presently rise, and left his said tricks, & had no more fits, whilest he continued there, being the space almost of a monneth. The next day I falling into some better acquaintance with him, (he vpon my promise that I would be his frend, and procure him fauour from M. Maior & his brethren) did confesse vnto me, that all he had done in the course of his former tricks, were but counterfeyted, and said, that when I would. I should see all his said tricks, and how he did them. The same day I tould Iohn Cooper, what So. had confessed vnto me, and willed him that when they were in bed together, he should talke with him thereof, sayinge, that I verily thought, he would confesse all vnto him at large. And accordingly it fell out. For as Iohn Cooper hath deposed, So. tould him, that all the tricks he had done in his said possession and repossession were all of them counterfeyted. Pag 178.

Darrell.

It is very true that is said here of a fit that So. had before certaine weomen, and is as true that the same day or day before he had an other in the garden before M. Freeman and some other: vpon the sight whereof, because of his greuous beating of himself, with his face groueling and tongue thrust into the moulds, wallowing, & foming, he the said M. Freeman affirmed, that he had the falling sickneſse, and this was presently bruited throughout Nottingham. If So. were weary of his relapse or pretending to be repossessed. that is of counterfeyting, & said vnto Cooper, that his desire was to be at S. Ioanes, and that so at the length he might be quiet and giue ouer his counterfeyting, as is said in this very page, and in the leafe before: why did he fall to the doing e of his tricks againe after he was at S. Ioanes? It is absurd to say that Pag 152. & 178.

he did thus, becauſe the weomen did bemone him for the weomen being remoued or as Cooper depoſeth page 193. put out of the houſe, and ſo departed, he was ſtill at his tricks: It cannot therefore be that he did at this time his tricks becauſe of the weomen: neither becauſ he thought men tooke ſome pleaſure to behold him, and for that cauſe himſelf in the actinge of them. Neither can it be that Shepheard and Cooper did threae him, that the weomē or any other might ſee, that they could make him leaue his tricks, and all his knauery: ſeeinge the weomen were gone home, and they two alone with Som. in his fit, when they did threaten him. Moreouor, it is confeſſed that So. at S.m Ioanes in a fit, being threatned by Cooper to be whipped, and by Shepheard to be pinched with a paire of knipknaps, did therevpon preſently leaue his tricks, and had no more fits, whileſt he was at S. Ioanes: It cannot therefore be that So. left his counterfeyting, becauſe he grew (a) weary thereof, and did of himſelfe goe to S. Ioanes to be (a) queyet, and that he confeſſed ſomuch to Cooper before he came to S. Ioanes, as the Diſc. affirmeth page 152. and 178. And this is the 11. time the Diſcouerer is conuinced by his Diſcouery.

pag. 193. See then good reader how this Diſco. croſſeth & entangleth himſelfe: for yf this ſuppoſed counterfeyt. did giue ouer his trickes: for threates or feare, how then did he grow weary of them, or did voluntarily retire himſelfe to be quiet.

VVe are beſides to obſerue heere, firſt that this confeſſion of counterfeyting was got, by one Nich. Shepheard, and Iohn Cooper two very diſſolute and infamous men. I remember in a certificate made by one of Nott. to the Arch-biſhop of York, wherevnto many of the cheif of Nott. ſubſcribed, there were theſe wordes vſed concerninge theſe honeſt men, that they were two (o) rakeſhames, the better of them hauing bene twiſe (o) araigned. 2. that theſe were fit inſtrumentes for Sathan to worke by, 3. that Som. confeſſion of counterfeytinge was not voluntary, but extorted & by threats compaſſed.

(o) and yet witneſſes good enough againſt Darrell.

Diſcouerer

The 26. of February being Sonday, So. was deſirous to goe to the church, and I tould him that if he ſhould ſo doe, & then fall againe to one of his ould tricks, the people would be much troubled. Wherevpon (quoth So) you know what I haue confeſſed vnto you, and I will giue you my hande and doe promiſe you faithfully that I will not then fall into any fit. And ſo I went to the church with him, both in the forenoone and in the afternoone, pag. 193. & he kept his promiſe with me.

Nic. Hheppearde pag 207.

Darrell

By this depoſition of Shepheards, it is playne that notwithſtanding Som. confeſſion and ſhew of counterfeytinge, yet the deponent did not haſtily be[illegible] him, but made ſome doubt & ſtaggeringe at leaſt at his counterfeyting: or elſe why ſhould he vſe theſe or ſuch like words: if you ſhould fall again into one of your ould tricks, the people wold be much troubled &c. hence alſo it was, that both Shepheard & Cooper

all

all the time he was at S. Ioanes, were euer both or one of them at his elbow, giuing their diligent attendance vppon this counterfeyt where soeuer he was in church or else-where, as is well knowne to the inhabitants of Nott. In that likewise the Maior with the Aldermen aforesaid, and Gregory hired this couple of honnest men, and gaue them their wages, to wayt at an inch vppon Somers and that not only vntill he had confessed he counterfeyted, but after also for the space of a moneth, all one as if he had denyed that he dissembled, and stood to the truth & present possession, in which state whosoeuer is, it is verye requisite he haue a keeper or keepers, because of the danger he is in to be destroyed by the diuell: it argueth that they also doubted he was no counterfeyt, notwithstanding his confession suspectinge the truth thereof.

OF CHAP. 2.

How M. Darrell dealt with So. for the reuocation of his saide confession that he had dissembled.

Discouerer.

M. Dar. was charged by her Maiesties Commissioners to haue sought many wayes to haue withdrawn So. from his said confession, & haue stuck vnto it that he was possessed. And againe, when M. Dar. perceaued that So. by no pryuate meanes that he could vse would be drawne &c. pag 185. pag 186.

Darrell.

Here is a whole chapter consumed, and many words vsed about iust nothing. I once and only once vsed a few wordes to So. whyles he remayned at S. Iones, and that in the presence of the Maior & som others, reprouing him of the haynous sinne he had committed, and the great scandall he had giuen, in affirming that he counterfeited, his own conscience accusing him thereof: neither is any more deposed against me. And what herein did I ill beeseeming me, or that I ought not, and in duty was bound to doe?

I confessed being examyned that So. in saying he had in the whole course of his former fits dissembled, lyed therein greuously against his owne conscience, to the dishonor of god, and hurt of his church Therevpon saith the Discouerer, Consider the gentle zeale of benefiting the church, by his faculty and skill in casting out diuells. pag 186.

My meaning was that the people of god beleeuing and meditating of the worke of god wrought vpon Somers, woulde no doubt receaue thereby great profit, wherof many though not all through this lye of his, and cursed confession of counterfeyting are depriued and not only so, but thereby drawne to receaue a false report and euil nãe against the worke of god, and by consequent against the Lorde himselfe, and to iustify the wicked, which is an abomynation before the lord. And this tendeth to the dishonour of god, and hurt of his church or people

lord

OF CHAP. 3.

How M. Dar. deuised two or three shifts, to haue auoyded So. confession, that he had dissembled.

Discouerer.

pag 187. Being examyned I confessed, that I had said at sometimes, that So. affirming that he counterfeyted, was a confirmation that he was repossessed.

Darrell.

My reason is, because the same, inioyned with his obstinacy is a math. 12. 43. certaine argument that he is empty swept and garnished, and therefore if he were possessed and dispossessed, he is repossessed.

Discouerer.

M. Dar. breathed out his second oracle (which is my second shift to auoyd So. confession) saying that it was no maruaile though he coulde doe his fits considering that he had more deuills in him then before. Hereof M. Dar hath not bene examyned, because it was one of the interogatoryes whervnto he refused to answer. For true it is that after that he had bene examyned diuers times about this matter, he found himselfe so perplexed, as that he refused to be any further examyned, saying that his conscience was troubled, in that he had answered somuch already. wherein he is not greatlye to be be blamed. For although a lyar must haue a good memory, yet by many crosse questions, he may be taken short, as it hath happened to him in many particulers.

pag 188.

Darrell

Heerein appeareth manifestly the mallice, craft and peruerse wrestinge ofthis Discouerer:, For as I knewe not what the interrogatoryes were I refused to answer vnto, so did I not therefore refuse becaus I was taken short as he would haue it, or for that I was not able sufficiently to answer them, neither I thanke god was I therefore in my self perplexed, or my conscience troubled, but for that hauing yealded to somuch before as men with any modesty or conscience could require at my hands, yea to more, and hauing answered already to no lesse I thinke then to 190. or 200. interrogatoryes, I perceaued euidently by lamentable experience, that my said answering albeit it were by oath, did not at all helpe to purge or cleare me as an innocent, and to put an ende to the controuersy, wherevnto the Lord hath sanctifyed an oth and which was the thing I expected, and hoped for: yea that this was not the scope and drift of this my examynation and multitude of Interrogatoryes (howsoeuer the B. of London did so pretend) but to entrap me cunningly, if happely they could, & to make me my owne

ap-

appeacher and accvſer, when they were wholly deſtitute of other me anes to prove that which they did ſo eagerly and earneſtly ſtryue to boult out againſt me, namely this counterfeiting as now is manifeſt to all men, a thing that neither by the law of god nor man I was bound vnto, if I had bene guilty, as heauen and earth is my witneſſe I was not. Secondly I refuſed to depoſe any further, becauſe manye of the interrogatoryes were moſt vayne childiſh and ridiculous, as may ap peare by the Diſcouery it ſelfe, eſpecially if we conſider, that from thē my guiltyneſſe was in part to be gathered, For this cauſe alſo I confeſſe I was greiued (& as I tak it iuſtly greiued) in my ſoule to anſwer any further vpō my oth, & to call to witneſſe the gloryous & fearfull name of the Lorde, (whereat euery Chriſtian ought in reuerence to tremble) to ſuch baſe, tryflinge, and ridiculous things as were then propounded vnto me without end or lymitation, (which I perceiued by former experience) as being not worthy to be cōfirmed by the teſtimony of gods moſt glorious name. But alas I knew not what the ar ticles were vntill I was ſworne: and at the firſt time I was beefore the Biſhop to be examyned, I yealded to anſwer to thoſe thinges which ſhould concerne my dealing with So. or any of the perſons whome I had affirmed were poſſeſſed: which I did for the further confirmation of my innocency, and for auoydinge of that ſuſpition which I feared would haue riſen vpon my denyall to haue anſwered. And at the tim of this refuſall to anſwer, I ſpake to this effect to the Biſhop as partly appeareth by the wordes heere mentioned. Now where the Diſc. pre tendeth that I am contrary to my ſelfe in many particulars, I demaund of him, why he hath not noted and recorded thoſe my particulars con trarietyes, or at leaſt giuen ſome taſt thereof. It may be he hath refer red them to his next volume or malitious inuectiue againſt Darrell, becauſe peraduenture there is ſuch a heape of them that they cannot well be contayned in this Diſcouery of his without tedioufneſſe to the Reader: Indeede as the Diſc. orderth the matter there be many contradictions betwixt his deponents and me: But the queſtiou & doubt is firſt, whither he hath produced both their depoſitions and mine tru ly or no: Secondly, if he haue done ſo, then whether I haue depoſed truly, or they whoſe depoſitions haue bene obteyned and compaſſed for the moſt part by threates or a lurements as I offer and am able to prooue to thoſe that are in authority if I may be therevnto admitted: notwithſtanding I finde it not mentioned throughout his whole Diſcouery, in what one particuler thing I am contrary to my ſelfe, wherof to the wiſe and vnpartiall Reader I leaue the conſideration, as alſo of the manifould contrarietyes or particuler things wherein the Diſcouerer is contrary to himſelfe in his Diſcouery: in nomber 15. which in their propper places I haue noted, and to iudge him of his owne mouth: desiring the Discouerer in his next treatise, to reconcile those places in his Discouery: and to shew how I haue either ignorantly mistaken him, or malitiously peruerted his words: or else hold his peace altogither, and by his sylence proclaime to all men the falshood he hath hitherto maynteyned: for that he will confesse the truth, & shāe himselfe to giue glory to god, (which for him were a happy thinge) thereof there is little or no hope.

OF CHAP. 4.

How M. Dar. and his frendes to discredit So. confession did falsly report, that he was induced thereunto by promises threatnings and inchantments

Discouerer

Amongst many wayes whereby men are corrupted, and induced to speake falsly, allurements by fayre promises, and threatninges haue not the leyst force: which being very well knowne to M. Dar. and his good frendes, pag 191. they thought it might carry some good probabillity, and serue for a shift, to giue it out: that So. was so wrought and drawne to affirme, that he had dissembled. But how vntruly they haue charged him herein, the depositions following will declare pag 191. So. (as the Disc. saith) deposeth, that he was not induced by any promises so to confesse, but did it willingly. And M. Hart, M. Iackson, M. Freeman, & M. Gregory testify, that he did of his own free will without compulsion any ways. The men that were cheifly suspected to haue delt with pag 193. So. as heere it is supposed, were Iohn Cooper and Nicholas Shepheard: whose depositions follow. I neuer knew (saith Shepheard) of any promises made to pag 192. the boy, to confesse that he had counterfeyted: but I remember that M. Iackpag 193. son promised, that if he would declare the truth, he would be good vnto him

pag 192. and helpe him to a seruice in London. Indeed I confesse, that in one of the boyes fits at S. Ioanes I threatned to haue a payre of pincers to pinch him by the toes, if he vsed these tricks. And Iohn Cooper thus: I doe not know any that perswaded So. to confesse himselfe to be a dissembler. Againe So. (after his comming to S Ioanes) did pretend himselfe within a day or two to haue pag 193. certayne fits, whereupon the said Cooper, putting at one time sundry wyues out of the house, (at whose comming he the said So. did fall into one of the said fits) and then giuing him some wordes of correction, viz. threatninge to whip him, he the said So. presently rose vp. By neither of theis depositions can it be collected, that they threatned the boy to say he had dissembled, or that thereby he was induced so to affirme.

Darrell.

And heere is all the Disc. proofe of that he saith, and disproofe of that I haue affirmed. If So. testimony be true (else sure the Disco.

would

woulde not rely ſomuch vpon him, nor produce him as he doth eueri hand while, for the proofe in a manner of euery particular thing, whe rewith it pleaſeth him thus falſly and iniuriouſly to charge me) that which he hath teſtifyed concerninge this poynte is to be regarded, which heere followeth. After So. had for the ſpace of a moneth, euen during that time he remayned at S. Ioanes, ſaid he counterfeyted, he was brought before the 12. Commiſſioners, affirming the ſame, vntill being caſt into ſundry fits, and vexed anew by ſathan (wherin the deede it ſelfe ſhewed the contrary) he acknowledged to the Commiſſioners, that he did not diſſemble. Thus ſaying (viz. that he diſſembled not) and being tormented by the diuell, he continued 10. days at one Ed. Garlands houſe, in which time he was aſked by Garland and others then preſent why he had counterfeyted, ſeing it was other wiſe? He anſwered, and after ſet it downe with his owne hande writing, (which is yet to be ſeene) thus: Beinge at S. Ioanes there came vnto me a thing like vnto a dog, and ſaid vnto me &c. And Nicholas Shepheard ſaid, and if I were in a fitt againe, he woulde fetch a paire of knypknaps and a rope, and he would make me confeſſe, (meaning that he was a counterfeyt) or elſe hang me, And Iohn Cooper and Shepherd ſaid, and if I would ſay, that I was a counterfeyt, that M. Maior and the Aldermen would giue me ten pound, and I ſhould ſet vp any trade that I would, and I had better to ſay that I was a counterfeyt & liue like a man, then to haue nothing. For if I ſhould ſay that I was not a counterfeyt, and goe into the cleare yes hands I ſhould haue nothing. anſ.

If this anſwer and hand writing be true (and it is greatly confirmed by Shepheards depoſition and made manifeſt to be true in part) this poynt is cleared and it thereby euident that So. was induced by promiſes and threatnings to ſay he counterfeyted. 2. This appeareth by the aforeſaid depoſitions, for howſoeuer the former deponents being godleſſe men, not fearing an oath, deny the promiſe, which doubtles they from the Maior and ſome of the Aldermen made knowne vnto him (for as I remember M. Iackſon Alderman acknowledged as much in the town hall in the hearing of many, but ſaid they did it in pollicye, to drawe the boy on) leaſt they ſhould bring ſome diſgrace vpon the ſaid Maior and Aldermen, yet Shepheard we ſee maketh mention of a promiſe, if he would declare the truth, that is, confeſſe that he had counterfeyted: for he had not vntill that day affirmed that he did not counterfeyt, which if they had accounted for truth, that he had declared vnto them alreadye, A promiſe then viz. to be good vnto him &c. was made to So. if he would confeſſe a counterfeyting, called heere the truth. And page 179. Shepheard depoſeth thus: So. vpon my promiſe that I would be his frend, and procure him fauour from M. Maior & his brethren did confesse vnto me, that all he had done in the course of his former tricks were but counterfeyted, whether now there was any promise made to So. by Shepheard and he induced thereby to say he counterfeyted. Let the discreete Reader iudge, as also whether this deponent or the Disc. and for counterfeyting, be not forsworne.

brethern

But that by threatnings he was induced to say he dissembled it is by their depositions euident. For So. being in one of his fits, the one of them confesseth that he threatned to whip him, the other to pinch him with a payre of pincers, if he vsed any more of those trycks that is counterfeit tricks: the leauing of which and neuer vsing them afterwards as it is confessed he did vpon these threats, carrieth with it in reason a secret or still confession of counterfeytinge. which I say was sought and aymed at in these threats. This further appeareth by Shepheardes deposition mentioned a little before: pag 178. The day after (saith he) that So. came to S. Ioans he did counterfeyt himselfe to be in a fit, whereupon I tould him whilest he was in his tricks that if he would not leaue and rise vp I would sett such a payre of knipknaps vppon him, as should make him to rue it: and therevpon So. did presently rise and left his said tricks, and had no more fits, whilest he continued there, being the space almost of a moneth. Heere we see that Shepheard sweareth that So. counterfeyted, and that beinge so perswaded he threatned him if he would not leaue his counterfeyting, now let euery one iudge, whether it is not likely that with the forsakinge of his counterfeyting he sought not for a confession of counterfeyting: wee are to obserue heere that Shepheard threatned So. with a payre of knipknaps if he were in a fit againe according to So. answer & writinge, which may well induce vs to beleeue So. in the rest he hath vttered with the sae breath, and namely that Shepheard said he would make him confesse, that he counterfeyted or else hang him, with the roape that he threatned to fetch with his paire of knipknaps. 3. Speaking of this his threatning it is said, that therevpon So. left his tricks, and had no more fits. The tie when So. made this confession is to be marked. It was presentlye after this threatning and promising, and not before. These things considered it cannot be denyed but that So. by promises & threats was induced to affirm that he had dissembled: at the least, that in my Apollogy I did not falsly report hereof as the Disc. in the argument of this Chapter affirmeth but according to the truth: My wordes are these: For the obteyning of this confession, Cooper and Shepheard (two most lewd and euell disposed persons) threatned him the one to whip him, the other to pinch him with a payr of pincers, as appeareth both by So. confession, and their owne vppon theyr oathes before the 12. Commissioners: vpon occasion of these wordes and for the disprouing whereof this chapter was compiled by the Discouerer.

disc.

Discouerer.

But by M. Dar. owne rule, in that So. being in a fit heard their sayd threatning speaches, and rising vp had no more fits, whilest he was at S Ioanes, it seemeth to be apparant that he was a dissembler. pag 194.

Darrell

My rule letteth not but that So. being in a fit might heare: for I hould that howsoeuer those in whome are vncleane spirits, be in their fits ordinarily depriued of their sences, yet not alwayes, nor at all times but is then and so oft otherwise, as the spirit shall see it make for his aduantage, which I affirme of this fit, and euery other that So. hath had (specially) since that time, and hath still I doubt not in secret before some, if it be so that in these fits he doth heare. But how doth the Disc. proove that So. did heare their threatning speaches in the fitt hee mentioneth? surely not at all. It is to no purpose to say that he semed to heare by that which he did presently vpon their threatnings for they that be possessed seeme to others to see, when they see nothing, to go with their feete, to strike with their handes, and to speake, when not they but the diuell performeth these things, as hath already bene shewed out of the scriptures: euen so they seeme to heare, when they heare not And for the rising vp, that is the giuing ouer his tricks, hauing no more fits for a moneth: we must vnderstand, that he which did these trickes (as the Disc. prophanly calleth them) could as easily put an ende vnto them, and would readily doe it, when he sawe it make for his aduantage, that is, the perswading of the world, that So. had counterfeited what and how greatly the diuell gayneth by this cunning trick of his aboue the rest he hath done in So. body, euery one may now see, and we that haue bene thus long prisoners doe feele.

That which the Disc. addeth concerning sorcery, charming and anoynting, of So. is false fabulous & slanderous: neither my selfe nor any of my frends euer dreamed, that through these or any of these Som. was euer induced or compelled to say that he had dissembled, as the Disc. affirmeth, but proueth not nor neuer wilbe able iustly to proue: only this pag 194 it was: Some in Nott. suspected least whiles So. remayned at S. Ioanes there were that sought the casting of the diuell our of So. that counterfeyted, not by prayer and fasting, but sometimes by coniuration, at other time by an oyntment wherewith M. Gregory a reputed papist caused him to be annoynted. It is said by the Disc. and deposed by his witnesse. Shepheard and Cooper that by M. Gregoryes appointment, this oyntment was giuen him to mak him more nimble to shew his tricks: yea but it should seeme that it had an other odd quallity in it, for when Shepheard gaue some of this oyntment to Mary Cooper, (Som. sister) to annoynt her finger as by his deposition appeareth, he said that she should haue no more fits, what this oyntment was, and where it was had, whether of M. Gregory himſelfe, or by his appoyntment of the Apothecary, doth not appeare in the depoſitions, in which poynt is to be noted the couert & cloſe carriage of both the deponents.

OF CHAP. 5.

Diſcouerer

Of M. Dar. ridiculous pretence, that So. was induced by the diuell in forme of a black dogge and an aſſe, to ſay he had diſſembled.

Darrell.

But heereof we ſhall not neede to doubt, how ridiculous ſoeuer it ſeeme to the Diſc. if we can perſwade our ſelues of the truth of Somers former anſwer and hand-writing wherevpon it relyeth, and is grounded, His wordes be theſe.

(a) yf Somers be a man of that credit & his teſtimony ſo authenticall with M. Harſnett and the Biſhop againſt M Darrell, why are they not as kind heere to beleeue him in this poynt, when he ſpeaketh for the clearinge of Darrell. yea the cauſe it ſelfe alſo, for which Dar. ſuffereth.

Being at S. Ioanes, there came vnto me a thing like vnto a (o) dog, & ſaid vnto me: And if I would conſent vnto him and ſay that I was a counterfeyt, he would giue me a bagg of gould, and if I would not, he wold make me be hanged, or elſe he wold teare me in peeces. And if I woulde I ſhoulde doe any thing that I would take in hand, and he would come to mee lyke a mouſe, and would helpe me. And there came to me a thing like an (a) aſſe and ſaid if I would not ſay that I was a counterfeyt, he would caſt me into the well, and ſo went away.

VVe ſhall be the better perſwaded of the truth heereof, if wee firſt remember that which by experience hath bene found true, that it is Sathans vſuall manner to appeare in viſible ſhapes to them he poſſeſſeth, and that So. was now poſſeſſed. 2. that So. in his fitts beefore the Commiſſioners ſaid (as it were in the throate) a black dogg a dog a dogg a dogg, iterating the ſame very oft and ſpeaking at that time no thinge elſe in his fitts. 3. that three of the Commiſſioners ſaw a black dogg (in appearance) about the boy in a fitt or fitts, buſy about his face, and none other. Now it could not be but had it bene a dogg indeede, ſome others alſo ſhould haue ſeene him, there beinge ſo many thronging about him, yea ſurely one or other would haue dryuen him away, either for the ſafetye of the boy, or that they might the better haue ſeene, whereof euery one was ſo deſirous: and wold neuer haue indured him to haue chopt at his face, as a water-dogge at a duck, as it was ſaid by ſome of good credit he did. 4. where this thinge like a blacke dogge that is the diuell, promiſed to helpe Som. in any thinge he would take in hand, mening, to doe thoſe things he formerly had done in him, becauſe So. ſaying he counterfeyted (vpon which condition he made him this promiſe) might the rather be beleeued to counterfeyt, it is manifeſt that therein this writing is true, for that euer ſince he made that confeſſion vntill this day, So. when he wil doth his tricks

Thyreus chapt. 6. 5. et cap. 7. 6.

such

such as none can doe, and therefore we may be assured this thing like a mouse doth helpe him, and when he will, he leaueth & putteth an end vnto them, as though So. had done all, and not this mouse. 5. That the second or latter part of this writing also is true, as is before shewed. Now these fyue things being true, as indeede they are, I see not why any should doubt of the truth of this writing: which beinge true it is manifest that So. was induced by the diuell in forme of a black dogge and an asse, to say he had dissembled: and then is not this Darrells ridiculous pretence?

OF CHAP. 6.

How M. Dar. hath falsly affirmed, that So. was induced to say he had dissembled, for feare of hanging: whereas he falling into his fitts before the commissioners at Nott. (vpon a former compact) the feare of hanging was one of the cheifest causes, that hee then affirmed, that he had not dissembled.

Discouerer.

There is added a sixt inducement, viz. the feare of hanging: he being slandered to haue bewitched one Stirland to death. For the clearing therfore of this vntruth: So. before hath deposed, that one cause why about the 14. day of Ianuary 1597. he fell againe to those fitts, (whereupon M. Darrell affirmed that he was repossessed) was this: viz. The feare of such daunger, as he otherwise might haue fallen into, by reason of the said accusation, cõcerning his bewitching of Stirland to death. pag 199.

Darrell.

Is not this vntruth like to be well cleared by So. deposition? But to let that goe, and to deliuer heerein the truth. So. beinge charged with felony and for the same imprisoned, as is confessed page 149. we all know that at the assises he was to be arraigned and therefore in danger of hanging. I desire now to know how So. could be freed frõ this danger, by falling into his former fitts. The Disc. telleth vs for that thereby he should be sure to be defended & vpheld by M. Dar. & his frends so far forth as they were able themselues, or by any other meanes that they could procure on his behalf. why but Dar. & his frends had they been willing & desirous, were not able to deliuer him frõ the danger he was in, and keepe him from his tryall, specially the matter being in the hands of Dar. and So. greate aduersaryes neither yet did I or anye of my frends attempt anye such thinge, as the Maior with the Aldermen and town clarke know full well: whereby it is playne that as we were vnable, so we desired not to keepe him from his tryall: This therefore can be no reason of So. returning to his old byas of dissimulation. Yea I desire the Disc. hereafter to shew, how possible So. falling again into his former fitts could any way helpe to deliuer himselfe from the suspition of witch-

witchcraft being the thing that brought him within the danger of hanging. I am very ſure it was the onlye way to bring him to be condemned for a witch, and ſo to the gallowes: and therefore wee may be ſure it was not Somers, but the diuell in So. that being returned and entering into his houſe againe, fell to his olde byas: for thus it was: The aduerſaryes eſpecially M. Freeman and M. Gregory, hauing contended for counterfeyting about 11. weekes, but not preuayling, it ſo fell out, that one Sterland of Snenton neere Nott. hauing bene one day in the market at Nott. fell there ſick, whereof he dyed, but before in his ſickneſſe ſaid (as his wife and others affirmed) that So. had trode vpon his heele, whē he was laſt at the ſaid market, and had certainly bewitched him, as appeareth by page 149. Hereuppon it was bruited throughout Nottingham that So. was a witch, and not poſſeſſed, and ſo all that he had before done, or ſuffered, came from himſelfe, and his familyar ſpirit. This rumour ſpreading it ſelfe, the matter was inquired into, & roūd out that he dyed (as the philitian ſaith) of a baſtard pluriſy, in his rauing ſaying as is aforeſaid, which is confeſſed page 149. his wife alſo affirming, that ſhe would not for any thing ſay that So. had bewitched her huſband. Heerevppon the aforeſaid rumor ſuddenly vaniſhed and came to naught. But M. Freman and M. Gregory comming from London abont ten dayes after, reuiued the ſame, and of iuſt nothinge made a haynous matter, and would needes haue So. to be a witch. M. Freeman got to his owne howſe Sterlands wife, and ſome of her neighbours, and ſo wrought them that the poore wife & her neighboures ſaid forthwith after openly in the towne hall ſomuch, as wherevppon for the bewitching Sterland her huſband to death, So. was impriſoned and they bound to giue euidence againſt him at the next aſſiſes. And heereof So. was not ignorant. being a matter notoriouſly knowne to the inhabitants of Nott. Thus wee ſee how So. came to be in feare & danger of hanging, and by whoſe meanes or procurement. what was now to be done by Somers or what was the ſafeſt courſe for him to take, whereby to free himſelfe from the daunger he was in, & to ſaue his life? Surely to ſay and ſtand to it that he counterfeyted in all that he had done before: for who would then accuſe him of witchcraft, or giue eare to ſuch accuſation? If he would affirme that he himſelfe did all by art in diſſemulation, no body would beleeue that he had either diuell or ſpirit, or any thing to doe with ſpirit or familiar, this (I ſay) was an eaſy and ſure way to ſaue his life, and ſo it proued. Agayne, Som. might thus thinke with himſelfe: M. Freeman and M. Gregory who would fayne haue me to be a counterfeyt: are they whoe haue cauſed me to be accuſed of witchcraft, and they are able to take that order with M. Maior, and the other Aldermen they ſpecially ioyninge

with

with them heerein and desiring the same, that this matter shall proceede no further, so as I shall not be arraigned at the assises, nor so much as brought to my tryall, I will therefore say I counterfeyted, & so please them all. And in this sort might So. by affirming that he dissembled very well free himselfe from the danger he was in, and saue his life, yea and thus it fell out. For he confessing first to his keepers, then to the Maior and Aldermen by a letter (forsooth) that he neuer had deuell nor spirit, and that all he had done in the course of his former trickes, were but counterfeyted, saying that when they would, they should see all his said tricks and how he did them: & that for witches & witcheryes, he had deliuered his mynde to his keepers: neuer heard more of his bewitchinge of Sterland to death, the Maior and Aldermen with the town clark smothering all, so as the indge neuer heard thereof, nor So. seene once to stand within the barre among other fellons. On the other side had So. stood to the truth, and had neuer acknowledged any counterfeyting, for any thing man could see, he had bene as certaynlye arraigned of witchcraft, as he was accused and ymprisoned for the same, Sterlands wife and her neighbours had giuen euidence against him, and such a Iury (I trust) called out to haue gone on him, as it may be wold haue found him guilty, as well as one at the same assises, that found Allice Freeman not guilty of murthering or bewitching to death the childe of Mary Cooper sister to Somers. VVhether So. now were drawne to say he had dissembled, for feare of hanging, as I affirme, or the feare of hanging caused him to fall to his olde course of dissimulation, as the Disc. affirmeth let the Reader iudge. But the Disc. proceedeth yet a little further in the proofe of that he affirmeth. pag 200.

Discouerer.

Beesides after that So. vpon that occasion, and some others, fell to his old tricks, he continued in them about six weeks, and did not make his dissimulation publiquely knowne, for all that time, and till his comminge to S. Ioanes. So as it is apparant, that So. for feare of hanging, fell againe to his former byas of dissimulation. pag 193.

Darrell

So. continued only about ten dayes repossessed, which is heere termed, a falling to his old tricks, and not 6. weekes, before he made his dissimulation knowne. It is true that he did not say that he dissembled, till his comming to S. Ioanes, and truly no maruayle, seeing he was drawne by other meanes beesides this of bewitching Sterland, to that confession of his, viz. by threats and promises, vsed partly by Sathan, partly by his instruments, and all of them after his comming to S Ioanes But how doth this proue much lesse euidently or apparantly proue that which the Disc. inferreth thereupon, viz. that So. for feare of hanginge fell againe to his dissimulation?

Discouerer.

pag 139. Assuredly (quoth the Disc.) this fellow through his acquaintance with Sathan (as it should seeme) is growne to extraordinarye & presumptuous bouldnesse: not shaming to say any thing that may serue his turne

Darrell.

VVhether this latter parte may be truly said of himselfe, and he be iudged out of his owne mouth, let him that hath hearde vs both speake iudge.

Discouerer.

pag 198. & 202. So. fell into his fits before the Commissioners at Nott. vppon a former compact. and for fear of hanging (cheifly) then affirmed, that he had not dissembled. This is by degrees made manifest vnto you.

Darrell

But how? by So. depositions, which are strengthened by the depositions of others. these latter I will for a season spare, and wee will heare what So saith the principall deponent heere, as also throughout the 2. 3. and 4. bookes of the Discouery.

Discouerer.

pag 209. Concerning the first So. deposeth thus. It being knowne, that I was to appeare before the Commissioners, Nich. Shepheard, and others moued me, that when I should come before them, I should shew some of my tricks in such manner and forme as I had before done them, & not rise againe vntill M. Maior should call me, that thereby (say they) it may plainly appeare to the Commissioners, that whatsoeuer thou hast done before was done of thine own accord, & meerely counterfeyted,. This counsell being agreeable to M. Maiors desire (as I was informed) I did willingly yeald vnto it.

Now for the second poynt, lett So. proceede, vpon the said agreement, I ap- pag 201. pearing (saith So: before the Commissioners, and after some speaches had with me (by some of them) fell downe and playd diuers of my tricks: as I was accustomed to doe in my pretended fitts. There I continued tumbling & acting my tricks for a long time, still expecting when M. Maior woulde call me. whilest I was thus tumbling, two did prick me with pynnes: one in the hand, and an other in the legg, which although I felt most sencibly, yet I endured it, because I still wayted, that M. Maior should call me, but he forgetting so to doe, & I being no longer able to continue in that sort, I did rise vp my selfe, as I was wont to doe, in the end of other my dissembled fits.]

Darrell.

VVhether there was any compact betwene the Maior and Somers it mattereth not, If there were not, their sin is at the dore & will one day finde them out that haue so deposed. If there were. it came doubtlesse from the subtlety of the diuell, who hauing for sundry weekes

before

beefore lurked in Somers (that so he might the better rayse vp the euill name of counterfeyting of the greate worke of god) and beinge by the appoyntment or commaundement of god (as is to be supposed) at this time to manifest himselfe, thought thereby to helpe himselfe, and perswade the world still notwithstanding this his discouery, that So. was a counterfeyt. If any demaund why should the Lord commaund the spirit to discouer himselfe? I answer, that is a secret & only knowne to the lorde: yet it may be, because the Lord hauinge fore appointed a mighty and wonderfull opposition against his manifest worke, he would haue solemne witnesses first thereof, for the further strengthening of those who should beeleue his worke, and makinge those the more, yea out of measure inexcusable, who should resist & fight against it, percase also and partlye to strengthen and incourage his seruants whome he would especially vse not only in bearinge witnesse to the possession and dispossession, but also to the repossession of Somers, which last the worlde would not indure to heare of: and to put them in hope (for their further incouraging therein) that as then after sathan had withdrawne and hid himselfe for a time, whereupon there was greate contention, whether the boy were possessed or counterfeyted, the Lord did discouer the spirit to the manifestation of the truth, and that beefore solemne witnesses, so one day after an other manner of contention, I meane farr greater, and before more solemn witnesses, of greater authority, god would vncase that subtill spirit & deceauer of the world, to the full manifestation of the truth, and his owne glory, whether then I say there was any such compact as is heere mentioned or no, it mattereth not, neither whether So. were afrayde of hanging: but the matter indeede to be considered by vs is, whether So. did those strange things whereof the Commissioners were eye witnesses, as So. and the Disc. affirme, or the diuell as we affirme.

The Commissioners with sundry others of account and good credit doe know, that beefore them Som. wallowed to and fro on the chamber floar, or swiftly rowled with his body stretched out to the full length, in very strang and admirable (yea I may truly say) in supernaturall manner. 2. That he lay before them with his body swelled greatly. 3. His intralls were shot vp and downe along in his body, much like to the shooting of a weauers shittle. 4. greate violence was offered vnto him, thereby to make tryall if he had any feelinge, and namely he was pricked with pynns in hand and legg, whereat he stirred no more then a stock. 5. being pricked and that deepe, not a drop of bloud issued out. This pricking with pynnes, and the induringe thereof So. himselfe we see confesseth, so it may be he did, the not issuing of bloud, and the Disc. thought good to keepe that back: but how soeuer I speake this by coniecture only, yet this I am sure of, that So. being pricked did not bleede at all. His hand was held vp beefore the Commissioners, the place red where he had bene pricked, but the skyn whole, so as though the bloud seemed to be there gathered, & ready to spring out, yet neither did nor could, because the skyn was whole. And yet behould M. Iohn Strelley by name, not only pricked him deepe, almost halfe an inch deepe, (as M. George Smale (who then held ouer the boy) deposed since to the B. of London, as also that no bloud issued) but beesides sturred vp and downe, of purpose to make him stirr and bloud issue, but neither would be. Yf now Som. (or any of the sonnes of Alan) can by art so order the matter, that he can indure to be pricked with pynnes, and neuer stirr thereat, nor bloud issue, wallow, swell, and shoote his intralls, then I deny not but that So. might haue dissembled beefore the Commissioners: otherwise it must needes be, that these things came from the diuell, and so he did not counterfeyt: except the Disc. will put out the eyes, not only of the Commissioners, but of many others also.

how

Moreouer, if So. as a counterfeyt did then shew his own tricke, and the end thereof, and of the compact with the Maior was that therby it might playnly appeare to the Commissioners that whatsoeuer he had done before, was done of his owne accorde, & meerly counterfeyted, or as M. Freeman hath deposed, to satisfy the company of his counterfeyting, and the Maior, to satisfy all men, why when he had shewed them and was asked by the commissioners wherefore he fell downe, did he answer that a qualme came ouer his stomack, and in a worde so as by his answers it was euident that either he could not, or would not tell of any thing that either he (in appearance) had done, or was done vnto him by others For this was not the way to satisfy the company of his counterfeyting, which is saide to be the end why he then did his prancks, but to induce men to beleeue the contrary. So. is produced by the Disc, answeringe this obiection in these wordes.

pag 201.

pag 202.

Discouree.

When I had thus ended these prancks, the Commissioners asked mee whether I had bene troubled with any fitt, syrce I came into that place beefore them, or had felt any hurt done vnto me: I answerd no: and after affirmed vpon other speaches that I had not dissembled. And beinge heere demaunded (quoth the Disc.) why he so answered, he saith thus.

Whilest I was in my pretended fitt, I heard e many reioyingly say, that now it was mist playns that I was repossessed & vtter very sharpe wordes against those who had giuen it out, that I was but a dissembler. Besids I began to suspect that either M. Maiors opinion was altred, who was fully perswaded beefore (as I thought) that I had altogither dissembled: or else that he durst durſt not ſpeake his mynde therein, & call me, ſeing the reſt of the commiſſioners, and many others ſo confident indeed, that I was repoſſeſſed. Furthermore I alſo then feared leaſt M. Markhams and one Lagues wordes, with ſundry others, would proue true: who the ſame morning & ouernight had tould me, that if I were found to be a diſſembler, I muſt be hanged. whereas quoth Lagues, if it then appeare that thow art not a diſſembler, ther can no lawe nor Iudge hurt thee. In theſe reſpects I thought it the beſt way for my ſelfe, to yeald for that time to their humors, and to anſwer as before is expreſſed, that I had not diſſembled.

Darrell.

For our better vnderſtanding of the iugling and deceipt heere vſed, we muſt know that euen as So. was facing it out to the Commiſſioners, that he had counterfeyted, and yet refuſing to counterfeit ſo againe, he was vyolently caſt downe, the ſpirit then trifling exceedingly: to framing his countenance, & toying with his armes and leggs as a man in carnall reaſon would haue verily thought that he counterfeyted. nothing being done but that might eaſily be done by any. Our helpe was this, that being pulled by the eares and hayre of the heade as if they ſhould haue haue bene plucked of, and therewithall his head beaten ſo to the floar, at a mercifull man would ſcarſly doe to a dogg yet he ſtirred not not at all therat, nor at the pricking of him with pinnes, neyther did any bloud iſſue at the places pricked.

This fitt ended, he beinge aſked by the Commiſſioners what hee had done alſo what others had done to him, hee coulde tell of nothinge, one of the commiſſioners aſkinge him, whether he were not pricked of one of his handes with a pynne, he anſwered yes hould inge forth the wronge hand: whereby thoſe that were preſent perceaued, that he would gladly haue vttered thoſe things that had in that fitt befallen him, if poſſibly he could, that ſo ſtill hee might haue perſwaded men that he had formerly diſſembled. Laſtly beinge demaunded whether he had counterfeted, he anſwered with a braſen face as before the ſaid fit that he had counterfeyted Forthwith he was carryed away by his keepers and preſently after elſe-where in the towne fearefully tor mented by the diuell, whereof when tydings was brought to the Commiſſioners, viz. that now So. was very fearfully handled, ſome commaunded that he ſhould be brought back againe, which being done accordingly, he no ſooner appeared beefore them, but he was in a fitt, and ſo proceeded from fitt to fitt, till he had had ſundry, the ſpirit in theſe vexing him indeede, and ſhewing his rage & malice againſt man, and not in ſubtilty as he did at the firſt,

VVhere now the Diſc. affirmeth, that So. liinge in the fitt, he had at the firſt, when he was pricked with pynnes, and out of which the Maior ſhould haue called him, did vpon good deliberation (forſooth) change his mynde, and accordinge thereto the fitt beinge ended, ſay to the Commiſſioners that he had not diſſembled: it is vntrue, for then he affirmed the contrary, that he had diſſembled, as the Commiſſioners with ſundry others can teſtify. And if So. did ſay to the Commiſſioners, that he had not diſſembled which I doe not remember, it was after he was ſent for the ſecond time, and vpon the feareſull vexation he then indured thick and threefoulde by Sathan which helpeth not the Diſc. at all: for notwithſtanding that were ſo, yet this that So. and the Diſc. doe tell vs, is falſe.

I muſe the bluſh not at the verye ſound of ſuch aſhamles & curſſed teſtimony.

Secondly it is to be obſerued how the Diſcouerer proueth that Somers thus changed his mynde lyinge in his fit: why Somers (o) ſaith ſo, neither can this be otherwiſe prooued. Alſo how he prooueth that Somers at the end of this ſaide fit, (o) affirmed that he had not diſſembled: Somers depoſeth it: and there is not ſomuch as a falſe witneſſe ſtrengthening it, ſo that the truth hereof reſteth only and barely vpō So. credit, which I thinke is long agoe ſhamefully crackt, and ſhiuered both with wiſe men and with fooles. 3. were So. credit better then it is, yet the tale which is tould vs, is ſo vnſauery or rather ſo abſurd, & ſenceleſſe, that me thinketh it is more then ſtrange that any man of wiſdome and iudgment ſhould euer harken vnto it, or embrace it as a truth.

For marke I pray you: heere is a paltry boy brought in delyberating and conſulting, as if he were a graue man of greate delibera tion and aduiſement. And when I pray you and at what inſtant muſt this graue deliberation of his be, forſooth euen then when he was do ing of his rare fayts, and others vſing their pleaſure towards him: one violently beating his heade to the floar, and plucking him by the hair and eares full ſoundly, an other pricking him in the hand with a pyn, a third in the leg: & he in danger to be ſo further dealt with, & to haue the like hard meaſure offered him: he knew not by how many, mee thinketh that by meanes heereof his thoughts ſhould haue bene drawne an other way, partly to the tricks he had in hand, partly to his payne and partly taken vp about the preſent denger and likelihood he was in of induring yet more payne, and by reaſon hereof ſo perplexd and interupted, as that he could hardly haue fallen into ſo graue a conſultation with himſelfe: and ſo orderlye alſo haue proceeded therein from one poynt to an other, from the firſt & weakeſt reaſon that moued him, to the ſecond & ſtronger, and from thence to the third and moſt forcible of all.

Of all ſeaſons this ſure muſt needes be the moſt vnfit and vnſeaſonable ſeaſon for Somers to debate deliberate and conſult in: neither ther doe I thinke that this plot and deuice of Som. and the Discouerer had any sapp or witt in it at all, to make this consultation determynation and resolution to be in the middest or during the time of his pretended fitts. there would be no sauor in this. Yet had it bene a litle more probable if they had sayd, The fit being ended and past, or whilest he stood beefore the commissioners, bethinking himselfe what answer to make: but take the tale as it is deliuered vs, viz. whilst he was in his fit, and I thinke he is scarsly well in his witts that will beleue it.

4. The third and mayn reason leading him thervnto was (forsooth) the feare of hanging, arising of this speach, that if he were found to be a dissembler he must be hanged. Be it that these wordes were spoken must So. therefore needes be in such a greate perplexity and feare of hanging, as if the very naming thereof were sufficient to make him quake for feare?

Alas poore simple boye, belike he thought that euerye worde was a blowe. But wherefore doe I call him simple, who deliberatinge and discussinge of matters before he resolued what to doe shew eth so much witt? where now was all his ingenye and deepe consultation, that feared hanging because of his dissembling? doth not euerye childe know that for cousenage a man can not by our lawes be hanged, but is otherwise to be punished? pag 203.

And if herein he were ignorante, and that none of his frendes of themselues woulde haue toulde him so much, yet he might easily by enquiry haue learned somuch: But how proueth the Discouerer that these very wordes of threatning were vsed? By the testimony of Somers, and Nich. Shepheard & Iohn Cooper his keepers, three most vyle and wicked men.

Secondlye. we may obserue how the testimonye of these two witnesses (for the third is an accuser and a party) doe proue the same. If it be proued (quoth M. Markham) that thow art a counterfeyt, thow deseruest to be hanged: Thus deposeth Shepheard and Cooper thus M. Markham said to So. that if he were found to be a dissembler he must be hanged. pag 204
Againe Shepheard thus: One Iaques said to So. in the hearing of me, and of Iohn Cooper, that if he were proued to be a counterfeyt he must be hanged And Cooper deposeth after this manner, One Iaques tould the boy, that if he did counterfeyt he would be hanged: Concerning M. Markham his speach, the one deposeth thow deseruest, the other thow must be hanged and the one sweareth Iaques said he must the other he would be hanged: Heereby it appeareth that these are false witnesses being so variable & dissonant one from an other: Finally, take Shepheards wordes concerning M. Markham, and Coopers concerning Iaques and there was small cause why So. should be afrayd of hanginge: and lesse why the Discou. should breake forth into these wordes: This was threatning & terrifying indeede, able to haue shaken the constancye of a stronger man: wherein the Disc. hath relation to the other feare that So. had of hanging, whereof he speaketh in the beginninge of this chapter, as though forsooth this feare far surpassed that. But euery childe may see the contrary, & the Disc. vayne boasting: for deedes farr passe wordes: And I am verie sure, that had a stronger man then So. bene accused of felony, & for the same bene imprisoned, as So. was, as the Disc. himselfe confesseth, which caused the feare of hanging in So. mentioned before: though neuer so innocent, yet sometimes he would haue feared the losse of his life: and so would no man of vnderstandinge in this case, though he were guilty of counterfeyting, as So. was not. And thus much for answer to this calumniation.

cause

pag. 149.

OF CHAP. 7.

Discouerer.

Pag. 204. How So. was perswaded by threatnings and promises, to haue continued his dissimulation, after he had bene before the Commissioners at Nott. vntill M. Dar. might againe dispossesse him.

Darrell.

what is this to the perswading of him to continue his dissimulation.

VVhy might not some perswade So. hauing confessed the truth therein to continue, and to take heede of (a) returning with the dog to his vomyte? And what did they therein ill beseeming them? The Disc. must remember that he hath not yet prooued So. dissimulation.

As for the threatnings and promises the Disc. prateth of, he that will vouchsafe them the reading, cannot but see, that they deserue rather to be laughed at, then to haue any answer at all.

Discouerer.

pag. 205 The Iudges comminge to Nott. he the said So. being sent for beefore the L. Anderson confessed at large, how he had dissembled, and there shewinge his tricks before his Lordship & diuers others, in some extraordinary sorte, to those that had not seene him beefore, he presently started vp, vpon his Lo. bidding him to arrise, and shewed himselfe to be as well as he was before.

Darrell.

I doe in all reuerence counsell & adueise my Lord Anderson and whosoeuer heereto fore haue seene, or heereafter shall see So. doe his tricks, or rather the diuell his tricks in him, to turne away theyre eye from So. falling downe, and arrisinge at a call, to the things acted before them. The which albeit they be easy to be counterfeyted in comparison of the rare effects the spirit sometimes sent forth in Somers yet

let

let them be well examyned, and they will be found to be such, as cannot be done by any humane or naturall strength and agillity, & therfore must needes come from a supernaturall power, which is the diuel. As for So. falling downe and rising at the beck of man, that commeth from the subtlety of the spirit thereby blyndeing the eyes of men, and inducing them to thinke, that it is not he, but So. that doth the feyts, for we must remember that by the holy scripture it is playne, that a wicked spirit possessing one, as he doth now Somers, hath the ouerruling of the body and partes thereof, at his pleasure, as the spirit of mā hath when therefore the diuell will, (and he will when he seeth it to make for his aduantage) he can aswell and doth as readily cast down the body of Somers and rayse it vp againe, as any of vs can doe by ours Againe he that doth those things I meane the supernaturell accidents men beheld in Somers lying on the ground, can as easily throw downe Somers and raise him vp, or put an ende to his fitts, vpon the word or commaund of a man, that so Somers may rayse vp himselfe: VVe may heere also remember, how some of those in Lancashire, continued 3. dayes and nights in a fit, in which time it is certaine they did manye thinges at the speaches of others, and yet it was not they but the dyuell in them.

The Discouerer saith, that Somers shewed his tricks in some extraordinary sort, It is very true: for the spirit tryfled and toyed exceedingly, which extraordinarilye he had done before, specially exceeded somuch therein as then he did. 2. It was extraordinary in that none of the sonnes of Adam can doe the like. But the Discouerer shold haue done well, and to the better satisfyinge of the Reader, if he had tould vs the particuler tricks he at that time did, as of the swellinge he had then in his body, though nothinge so bigge as in former times, of the exceeding waight of his legg & arme like (a) iron.

but this would haue marred the fashion of all the supposed counterfeiting.

Discouerer

Since which time (sayth Somers) I haue bene very well, I thank god notwithstanding M. Darrell did then & hath since diuers times affyrmed, that I remayne still repossessed. pag 205

Darrell.

He is not, nor since hath bene better, then he was for sundry wekes beefore, after which it appeared that he was not verye well, but was indeede possessed with the diuell. And so I doubt not notwithstandinge this supposed well, and very well being of his, but that he is so still, and that in due time, god will make it manyfest to all men.

OF CHAP. 8.

Of the depositiones taken on M. Dar. beehalfe at Nott. and how vpon the examynation of his owne witnesses, it falleth out: that the bodily actions of So. in his fitts, were not extraordinary, as they haue bene misreporoed

Discouerer.

The commission was procured, & expedited the 20 of March 1597. by these Commissioners, (if the printed Narration said truly) Iohn Sherwood Esquier, high Sheriff, Sir Iohn Byron Knight, Iohn Stanhop, Robert Markham, Richard Perkins Esquires, Peter Clarke Mayor of Nottingham, Myles Leigh Officiall, Iohn Ireton, Iohn Browne, Robert Euington, and Thomas Boulton, ministers & preachers, men for their sufficiency, it is true very meete to haue dealt in a farr greater matter. The gentlemen are verye well knowne to be fit gouernours, and are a greate stay in those partes of the country where they dwell. If the examynation of a matter of highe treason had bene committed vnto them, or any other of a lower degree, concerninge the good and peace of their country, they had bene within the compas of their owne element, and would no doubt with all sufficiency haue discharged thē selues therein. But the hipocriticall sleights of false seducers, in matters that concerne religion, they are of an other (o) nature.

pag 208.

(o) of what nature, that nether reuerend ministers of great learning nor woorthy gentlemen, of great wisdom of sufficiency all of them, could e once reach vnto or were able to Iudge of.

Darrell.

The Disc. knowing that the depositions taken at this time, doe vtterly ouerthrow So. counterfeyting, and proue it as impossible for So. by art to haue done those things he must haue done, if he be a dissembler, as it is for him to walke vpon the sea, or to goe to Roome on a day, and that the said depositions doe receaue some credit from the sufficiency and worthynesse of the Commissioners themselues by whō they were taken, thought it good pollicy first and afore all thines, to cast a myst as it were before the eyes of his Reader, and to put some scruple and doubt in his mynde whether these were the very Commissioners indeede, as I and my frends doe beare the world in hand, and yet he knoweth full well (and no man better then he) that they were the very same: only M. Iohn Walton Archdeacon of Darbyshire is wanting in this rolle, and maketh them vp 12. in nomber. Secondlye, allow these to be the men, then forsooth he excepteth against them, as well in regard of theire partiallity: branded as before in these wordes: By their preposterous affections they held with M. Darrell, as in regard of the insufficiency of the gentlemen, closely implyed & marked in these wordes: They held not themselues within compas of their owne elemente. Concerning the first we must know that these are only but the words and florishes of the Disc. and that indeede and in truth ther is no such matter, all the cheif of them (one only excepted) being meere strangers

gers vnto me, and two of the other my great aduersaryes, nay I may truly say, that I did not know any liuing that did more deadlye hate me then M. Walton. As touching their ſufficiency, albeit in other things the Diſc. we ſee doth ſurely acknowledg it, yet in this preſent caſe of counterfeyting he hath a glaunce and wype at them, as if they did not well know what they did: for why alas poore gentlemen they did not (forſooth) keepe themſelues within the compaſſe of their owne element. Marke heere good Reader: *Peter Clarke, Richard Hurt, Anchor Iackſon, Richard Morey, and William Freeman, Aldermen of Nottingh*ã, Samuell Maſon gent. William Gregory Towne-clarke, and Samuell Harſnett the Diſcouerer: wherof the moſt are tradeſ-men, and ſome very ſimple men, did not exceede their bounds, went not beyonde theyre compaſſe, but helde themſelues within theire element in the execution of their ſeuerall comiſſions: But the aforeſaid gentlemen that had this matter in examination before (notwithſtandinge the gentlemen be of greate wildome and ſufficiency) did by the cenſure of the Diſc. ouerſhoote themſelues and went beyond their element.

A ſtrange thing: But it may be that S. Harſnet, if none of his fellowe Commiſſioners, hath that ſpeciall guiſt whereof he ſpeaketh page 28. which in his learning he calleth the guiſt of diſcerning ſpirits: which is a meaſure of gods ſpirit, to diſcerne betwixt counterfeyts, and ſuch as were in deede poſſeſſed: which none of the other hath: yf he haue ſo, yett mee thinketh theſe other commiſſioners ſhould at leaſt be able to tell whether So. being prickt with pynnes before their eyes, ſtirred thereat or no: and whether any bloud iſſued out: whether his body ſwelled &c. and this (with ſuch like) in this caſe ſufficed, and is ſure within the cõpaſſe of their element.

Diſcouerer.

And conſcerning alſo the witneſſes themſelues, much might be ſaide for their excuſe. They hauing conceaued well of M. Darrell, coulde not eaſily ſuſpect any trechery in him. And to ſay the truth theſe grounds preſuppoſed to be true (which M. Dar. had taught them) viz. that whatſoeuer he did or ſpake in his fitts it was not So. but the diuell that did & ſpeak it: it may rather be maruayled, that they depoſed no (a) more, then blamed that they depoſed ſo much.

pag 209.

that is as much to ſay, that they did not forſweare themſelues more, if Somers counterfeited as the Diſco. will haue it.

Darrell.

Marke I pray you the vnconcionable proceeding of this Diſcouerer: Firſt in his preamble to the depoſitions, ſomthing he ſaith to extenuate the ouerſight of the commiſſioners, then for the excuſe of the witneſſes he telleth vs that the witneſſes alſo conceaued well of me, or were likewiſe prepoſterouſlye affected towardes mee: and thence alſo it came that they depoſed in this manner as they did: what a thing is this: that

all

almoſt all men ſhould thus affect and loue me: whom others ſomuch deteſt and abhor? The Commiſſioners they through their prepoſterous affections to me had their eye of wiſdome blynded: ſo as they like vnwiſe men as they were, held with Darrell, beleuing that Som. had not diſſembled whereas the wiſer ſort beleued Somers. The witneſſes (beinge no leſſe then 17.) conceaued ſo well of me as for the affection they bore me (if the Diſc. ſay true) they purpoſely forſweare themſelues: for if to thoſe things which vpon their oathes they did avow, they did depoſe not for that they ſaw and felt any ſuch rare and impoſſible things in So. as they depoſed: but vpon ſome partiall and corrupt affection to wardes me: then can it not be denyed but that they did flatly periure themſelues: which if it were ſo the Diſc. being a miniſter of the goſpell, might haue bene better occupyed a great deale to haue diſplayed their corruption and agrauated their ſynne, then thus to haue pleaded in their defence and excuſe. An other thinge whereby the witneſſes were drouen to depoſe as they did, was (ſaith the Diſc.) a falſe & deceiptfull ground they had receaued from M. Darrell viz. that it was not Somers, but the diuell that did & ſpake all in his fits: To this I anſwer that notwithſtanding any ſpeach they heard from me they themſelues could well enough tell what they heard felt or ſaw in Somers: my ſpeach could not (iure) put out their eyes or depriue them of theire ſences and feeling, whither the things were ſpoken or done by So. or by the diuell, that was nothing to them. Moreouer, almoſt all the witneſſes depoſed to thoſe things which they partly felt, and partly ſawe, beefore they heard my voyce at Nott. as appeareth by the depoſitions no ſpeach then of mine could either ſo bleare and dazell their eyes or bewitch and benumme their ſences to make them quite voyd of ſence well in concluſion the Diſc. doth heerevpon tell vs that it may rather be maruayled they depoſed no more, then they blamed that they depoſed ſo much. what a ſenceleſſe ſpeach is this, and how ill beſeming any that profeſſeth himſelfe to be a chriſtian much more a miniſter of the goſpell. From hence the Diſc, to the end of this Chapter ſetteth downe the retractations of ſundry of the deponents· yea he beareth the world in hand, that they haue all of them retracted all that before theſe commiſſioners they had formerly depoſed: Mow it is a ſynne and ſhame for any to retract that which he hath beefore abſolutely aduiſedly and vpon good ground affirmed vpon his oath. But a greater ſyune and ſhame it is to iuſtify men in ſo doing. Secondly among theſe retractions there be ſome, (as forthwith will appeare) which haue directlye periured themſelues, if the Diſc. report their depoſitions truely.

pag 208.

pag 207.

Now what an abomynation is this, that a Biſhop & his Chaylayne who take vpon them to be cenſurers and reprouers of mens faults haue no reproofe

reproofe for the periured, nay be so farr from dealing so with offendors of that nature that they rather maruayle that they are no more periured.

Discouerer

But one thing concerning our witnesses in hand, is worthy of a consideration: that the most of these that were examyned, were but symple persons, & such as had not bene past twise or thrice with the boy, in all the tim pag. 211 of his trouble, Som (hauing threescore ready) would haue produced his cheif witnesses first, but peraduenture it was thought good pollicy to lay the burthen vpon the simpler sort.

Darrell.

A thirde and principall exception against our witnesses is, that they were simple men. I answer, some of them were gentlemen of worship, others gentlemen by office, 4. preachers. In a word none of thē are accounted by such as best knowe them, to be more simple then other men: yea I dare be bould to say not any of the 17. deponents be so simple as some that I could name of the latter Commissioners, which is a shame forsome, and disgrace of their commission. The 4. exception is, They had not bene past twise or thrice with the boy. It is most vntrue, for sundry of them had bene oft with him in his fits, some almost dayly with him for the space of a monneth beefore, and one was continually in the same house with him day and night. And where he obiecteth that I hauing 60. ready, it had bene fit I should first haue produced my cheif witnesles: we must vnderstand that the commissioners sitting two dayes togither and calling for some to prooue nowe this, now that, one while this ympossible thinge to be counterfeyted, an other while such other matter as in their wisdomes they thought good I was constrayned to send in such as were then at hand. But how knoweth the Disc. that these are not my cheif witnesses? He that aduised ly considereth of their depositions, will finde that they haue deposed materially against counterfeyting, and so much as the worlde is not able to answer, much lesse the Disc. with all the helpe he hath from his miserable shiftings, wreastings and re-examynations. Againe if there were any omytted, which coulde more materially and fully against this supposed counterfeyting, then doth this cause and worke of God susteyne the more losse, and is to the Disc more aduantage: he might well therefore haue helde his peace and contented himselfe with that which is already deposed. But in all likelihood he would heere-vpon perswade his reader, that the things deposed are of no moment at all, but easily auoyded and wyped away with a wett finger. But alas this is harder for him then he ymagineth: It is beyond the compasse of all his learning and wit, as may appeare by that which he hath done already: for hauing heerein labored what he can by ſuch countenance and authority as he could poſſibly procure, yea and preſſed euery thinge to the vttermoſt, yet in the ende after all his ſweating, canuaſing and adoo, hath he proued iuſt nothing in the accovnt of any man of wiſdome and iudgment: as I truſt will ymediatlye appeare vppon the view of the examynations themſelues. Had he not better then haue ſit ſtill, and winked at theſe depoſitions, or ſmoothly paſſed by them, as he doth by diuers other things, as if he had not ſeene them, then thus to haue ſtrvgled and ſtriuen like a birde in the lyme, to the vtter diſgrace and ouerthrowe of himſelfe and the pretended counterfeytinge he ſo earneſtly ſtryueth for. And thus much for anſwer to his coging and glauering preface: Now to proceed to the examininge of the Diſ. re-examynations. That this may be done the more throughly & exactly, I will firſt ſet downe the firſt depoſitions of thoſe whome the Diſc. hath re-examyned, (where he either hath not donne it at all, or elſe but in part) and ſo comparing theire former and latter depoſitions or re-examynations togither, wee ſhall playnlye ſee what thoſe witneſſes haue retracted or qualyfied, and how worthely and ſubſtantially this Diſc. conuinceth the depoſitions of the 17, taken by the aboue named 12. Commiſſioners.

Narration dep 2

Robart Aldridge clarke viccar of S. Maryes in Nott. ſworne & examyned, ſaith: that firſt he comming to W. Somers vpon thurſday being the 3. of Nouember (as he thinketh) he found him lying vpon a bed, no bedd-cloathes lying vpon him, but only his hoſe: and ſawe a thing runninge vpp his right legg to the quantity of a mouſe, and he calling vnto god by prayer, ymediatlie it remoued out of the right legg into the left, & laying his hand thervpon, imediatly it remoued into his belly, where it did ſwell to a verye greate quantity, twiſe ſo byg as his body as he thinketh, and from thence into his breſt, & there it was the bignes of his fiſt, & from thence into his neck & from thence vnder his eare, where it remayned in the bygnes of a french walnutt, not changing his former cullor, and ſo remayned there for the ſpace of a quarter of an houre.

And this examynate further ſaith: that he heard in a ſtrange hollowiſh voyce, that he was his, and this examynat anſwering ſaid that he lyed, he was gods: & that he had made a promiſe vnto god in baptiſme to be his, then the voyce anſwered, that he was god Chriſt & a kinge, & that he made baptiſme, and that he made him bis by a new couenant.

This examynate alſo further ſaith, that the ſaid W. So. had ſuch ſtrength, as ſiue men had much adio to keepe him downe, duringe which time he exceeded in ſwelling, ſkriking roaringe & yelling very feareſully, gnaſhig of his teeth, & ſoaminge at his mouth. And alſo ſaith that ſtandinge in the hall he heard a great knocking in the parler where the boy lay, & ſuddenly he

he rusted in, where he found the boy alone in his bed, lying with his face vpwards in his fit, with his mouth drawne awry, & his eyes staring, as though they would haue started out of his head. And kneeling downe to praier heard the knocking agayne vnder his knees as he thought. And in the bedd vnder the couerlet he sawe the forme & shape, as it were of fiue kytlinges in quantity, to the view of his eye. And agayne this examinate sawe the bedcloathes at the feete to shake, moue, & leape as the leaues of an Aspen tree shaken with the wynde.

Now followeth the Disc. re-examynation of this deponent.

Discouerer.

M. Aldridge being asked, why heeretofore he had affirmed, that he perceaued, whilest So. was acting his tricks, the formes as it were of kitlings, vnder the couerlet that lay vpon him, the said couerlett being betwixte his eyes & them, rather then the formes of whelpes, of conneyes, of rãtts &c. answereth, I thinke my so affirming did proceede of this &c. because I haue heard beefore, that certayn witches had spirits in formes of kitlings, & those formes then came to my minde. [And agayne I doe very well know, that a mans sences may be deceaued. Besides I was then very greatlye afrayde, which is a great meanes to deceaue a mans sences: being a mighty passyon, that will procure many ymaginations, & cause a man to thinke that which is but little to be greate, that which standeth, to moue: & that to be, which is not. Whereby I confesse (my great feare considered) that I might be deceaued, in affirming many things, concerning the particularities of the said So. fitts: and I verily thinke it may be true, that So. affirmeth, of making certaine motions with his fingers vnder the said couerlett, & of his knocking against the bedstock, whilest I was praying by his bedside.

M. Aldridg pag 210.

Darrell.

M. Aldridge being re-examyned denyeth not, that he sawe the formes or shapes as it were of 5. kitlings in quantity vnder the couerlet wher So. lay: but only sheweth, why he rather teatmed or compared the saide formes to kitlings, then to other such like liuing creatures, as whelps conneys, ratts &c. occasyoned therevnto by the interrogatory propounded vnto him, except we gather the same out of the last wordes of his deposition. But be it for feare, or through the cunning of his examyner he was drawne vnawares to retract that he had before concerning this poynt deposed: was there therefore no such supernaturall accident vnder the couerlet, as the Disc. woulde haue men heerevppon to collect? why besides this deponent, there haue 4. others deposed to this rare accident, as hath bene declared beefore, whereof twoe at the least viz. M. Th. Gray and Ioane Pye haue bene likewise re-examyned thereabouts, but we heare neither of retraction, nor yet of qualification therof, whereby we may rest assured that they iterated and affirmed

affirmed the ſame againe vpon their re-examynation. Shall nowe the reſt be periured, (as needes they muſt if there were no ſych accident) becaule of the fraylty of one. Furthermore, doth this prooue that M. Aldridge hath retracted or qualified all that he depoſed at the firſt, as the Diſc. would fayne heerevppon inſinuate, & haue the worlde beleue: who ſeeth it not to be otherwiſe? Yea foralmuch as in reaſon it cannot be but that he was further re-examyned, and that we heare of no ſuch qualifications, it is thereby euident that he did not ſomuch as quallfy that he had formerly depoſed, concerning the running, variable ſwelling, & his ſupernaturall ſtrength. Therefore thoſe two impoſibilityes remayne ſtill proued and vnretracted by M. Aldridg oath, and ſo conſequently vnanſwered & vnauoyded by the Diſcouerer

Diſcouerer.

pag 212. Tho. Hayes

Whereas Tho. Hayes depoſeth before the L. Arch-Biſhopp of Yorks Commiſſioners at Nott. that he ſawe ſome thing runn out of W. So. legg into the other, & thence forthwith into his belly, ſwelling the ſame: inſomuch that the ſame was much bowned vpwards: & when the ſame departed thence, he ſaw it playnly in his throate, in his tongue, and in his cheeke, neere to his eare-roote, to the quantity of the yolk of an egg, which he taking betwene his fingers, found the ſame to be in ſoftnes like the yolk of an egge: Being re-examyned, he ſaith thus. I ſawe a ſwelling in his cheeke, to the quantitye of the yolk of an egg, & in his throate of the ſame quantity: further then his throat & his face, I could not nor did ſee it: So. lying in his cloathes. But I ſawe a ſtirring run downe his breſt, & into his legges, without any viſinge or quantity, that I could diſcerne, ſauing in his belly, the boy at that time lying on his back ſomwhat bended.

This ſwelling and running of ſomthinge in So. body, is one of the cheife ſupernaturall actions or paſſions, (for the Apollogy it ſeemeth knewe not whether to call them) that M. Dar. & the Narrator doe inſiſt vpon, for the proofe that So. was poſſeſſed. But if they were no other, then M. Hayes vpon his examynation hath depoſed: there was no greate ſtrangenes in them. It is ſuppoſed that M. Dar. will be very angry, to haue theſe ſupernaturall runnings ſo extenuated: But he muſt be content, for it is very agreeable to his former ſucceſſe.

Darrell.

See you how this man tryumpheth beefore the victory, yea before his aduerſary once meete him in the feilds. I may very well ſay to him, as Ahab ſayd to Benhadad: Let not him that girdeth his harneſſe, boaſt himſelfe as he that put-eth it of, To proue that So. hath not counterfeyted, among ſundry other actions or paſſions to the nomber of 20 at the leaſt, euery of which is ſupernaturall, that is ſuch as neither can come from nature, nor art compaſſe, I account the running & variable

1 kings 20 11

riable swelling which So. had, to be one of the chefest: So. (say I) had a swelling betweene his flesh & skynne of a variable bignesse, in some part of his body of the bignesse of an egge, in some other bigger, some lesse, swiftly running vp and downe along his body, sometimes making a stay for a quarter of an howre and sometimes lesse, in this or that part of the body. It was seene and felt (to let other parts goe) in his foote, and to remoue from toe toe, and in his forehead, & other partes of his face: his eare rootes. yea in his very tongue, and which is most of all, to thrust out his eyes extraordinarily bigge a blacknesse being sundry times vpon them for the present. Besides, beinge in the one arme it would be forthwith in the other, and so of his legges, and when it made any stay in legg or arme as oft it did, then and duringe that time the same member was as hauy and inflexible as if it had ben iron. That such a swelling there was I proue by the depositions of 11. Two we haue hearde already, namelye M. Aldridge, and M. Hayes both preachers: the rest followe

W. Hynds sworn & examyned saith, that at his comming vnto the said So. he did see a swelling in his neck to the bignesse of a great wallnutt, and from thence it remoued into the bone of his cheek, and there was to the bignesse of a great hasell nut and from thence it removed into his eye & the skyn of his ey waxed black and because this examynat had heard before that he the sayd So. did counterfeyt, he did lay his hand vpon the said swelling vpon the cheek bone, which swelling did tremble like an aspen leafe in a calm winde, was very soft, but in that place did not charge his naturall cullor. narration dep. 3

Th Westfeyld sworne and examyned saith, that vpon sunday at night beinge the 6. of Nouember, he saw So: hauing a great swelling vnder his left eare, to the bignesse of a wallnutt, and from thence it remoued into the eye where it semed not so greate, but caused a great blacknes in his eye and eyelid that this examynat layd his hand and felt a certain mouing. and his eye changed into his naturall cullor ymediatly: and so changed 8. times betwene 3. and 6. a clock in the morning. narration dep. 4

Ioane Ply sworn and examyned saith, that So. being in his fits, she hath sene a swelling in his feet, which remoued from toe to toe, and so to his legg, and from thence in his body to to the bygnes of a 3. penny white loaf and so to his throat to the bignes of a ratt, and vnder his ear to the bignesse of a wal nut, and in his eye brees like a blacke clocke, and so remoued from place to place, which this examinate and others haue sensible seene, and felt. narration dep. 6

William Langford sworne and examined saith, that vpon the 7. of November the said So: being extreamly tormented, and toyled, and his buttons therewith opened, he sawe a risinge or swelling, in the bottome of his bellie, which to his knowledge moued the clothes: and his brest and stomake beinge narration dep. 9 bare he saw visiblie the same rising, or swelling in bignesse of a goose egg, or a halpeny white loafe, assend vp to his breft, and so to his throate.

narr. dep. 12. I Sterlley sworne and examined saith, that he sawe a little thinge to move in diuers parts of his body, swelling the bodye, and risinge into seueral partes of the face, to the bignes of a crab or wallnut.

narr. dep. 13. Richard Mee sworne and examined saith, that on sonday at night being the 6 of Nouember, he came, to the said So. to watch with him about 9 of the clocke at night, and found with him M. Westfeild, and others, and betwene 3. and 6. a clocke in the morninge heard a voice saying that he would haue his right eye: and then he would haue his left eye, the voyce being as he thinketh contrary to his naturall voyce. And this examinate further saith, that a day or two before, and sundrie other times this examinate did see a swelling in his armes and legs, the being naked to the bignes of a wallnut, and remouing from place to place in his body, and that he felt it in his belly to the bignes of a 6. browne loafe, and that it was so heard that he could not presse it downe with his hand: which this examinate assayed to doe, by putting his hand vnder the bed clothes.

nar. dep. 15. I Pare sworne and examined saith, that he sawe W. Som. lie groueling vpon his face vpon the bed, and a certaine swelling or rising vnder his clothes to the bignes of a mouse: which remooued from place to place, to diuers partes of his body.

nar. dep. 16. I Clarke sworne and examined saith, that the clothes being taken off W. Som. he sawe in his breast being in his shirt, a swelling risinge to the bignes of a ratte, which this examinate tooke hold of: and found it as soft to his feeling as a downe pillowe, and he thinking to hold it fast, it presently avoyded, and then the boy said it was gone downe into his legg. And this examinate saith, that he sawe him at sundrie times when diuers of his members, as his leggs, armes, and others were inflexible, and exceeding heauie aboue nature, as yron.

nar. dep. 17. W. Hunt sworne and examined saith, that he did see a thing in bignesse fitt to the bignes of a wallnut, running in the fleshe of the said So. about his face, forhead, and eyes, and so run about his face to his eare.

That So. then had such a variable swelling as I affirme, such as a reasonable man will thinke, W. So could not counterfeite, or commaund to rune alonge in his body at his pleasure, euery on may see that will not willfully be blyndfold himselfe: neither can it be otherwise, except these 11. witnesses be periured, and with them some others, who haue since deposed the same. Now the Disc. thinketh to wipe all this awaye and to blind the eyes of the world, with producinge the examination of on of the 11. deponents, and boasteth as though he had answered throughlie and paid me home as touching this swelling, to my shame, and proueth yea as he supposeth that I will be very angrie, to haue these

super

supernaturall swellings so extenuated. The Disc. sure taketh me to be a verye impatient man, or els this thought woulde neuer haue entred into his hart, yet he shall see that I wil answere him without any great choller. And first I affirme that M. Tho. Hayes being reexamined, hath not retreacted that which before he deposed, nor yet quallified the same, except the Disc. counteth this a quallification, as I suppose he doth, that W. So. did then lye in his clothes, which in truth is a very sorrie one, or rather non at all seeing in his deposition before he had said that he saw was vpon all saints day: and it is well knowne that Som. had his clothes on the day time: And this for another, that the boy did at that time lye on his backe, somwhat bended. which wordes if they be M. Hayes his. I thinke he was contented to be stowe them on the Disco: and his fellow commissioners, so to be ridd of them: yet notwithstanding he deposeth vpon his reexamination, that he had a swellinge in his belly, but in other words. Indeede I confesse theire is some difference in words betwene his first and last examination, and no maruell there passing a yeare betwene them and more, and that the commissioners at this latter examination thirsted after some difference, contrarietie, retractation, or qualification, framing their interrogatories accordinglie, they are the same in substance: sauing that in the first this swelling is vrged a little further, he depossinge that it was in his cheeke nere the eare root, and in his tongue: and in the latter eare roote, and tongue are omitted: which was through M. Hayes his forgetfulnes, or els the Disco. hath purposly omitteth or conceiled them, as not seruing his purpose.

anſ. 1.

2. Let vs take this examination at the huckſters hand, and as the Dis. hath produced it, and we shall find theiris smale cause why he shoulde so boastingly say, that ther was no great strangnes in the sweling. Is it not very strange to see no at his owne will and pleasure, make a swelling in his throat to the quantitie of the yelke of an egge, which Tho. Hayes being reexamined deposeth? 3. But admit M. Hayes had vpon his reexamination denyed all that he had before deposed, shal that preiudice the depositions of the other 10? or were they therfore periured heerein, becaus he was periured? It is manifest by the Discouerie that M. Aldridge Rich. Mee, Ioane Pye, and W. Hunt, who haue likewise deposed to this supernaturall swelling, were also reexamined, but we heare not a word what these said vpon their (a) reexamynations to this swelling: one may therby imagine that they haue neither retracted, nor qualified the same. The constancie now of these 4 witnesses, doe much more confirme this swelling to haue bene in So. body, then the retractation of one sole witnesse, doth weaken the same, if it had bene so that he had alltogeather retracted that, which he had before deposed, as he hath not. The Disc. adderh the deposition of M. Craven. I demaund

anſ. 2.

anſ. 3.

(a) nor shall not I warrante yow so longe as they mak not again. Darrell.

pag. 213.

what

what his said depoſition doth in this chapter of reexaminations: and why he is ſett amonge the reexaminate, ſeeing he was none of the 17. firſt deponentes, nor euer examined before. It ſhould ſeeme by this and ſome other ſuch like depoſitions of his, that he was one readie to helpe the Diſc. at a pinch, when he ſtood in neede of a depoſition for his purpoſe. And here we may note the cunning dealing of the Diſc. who to make Darrell, ſeeme the more odious and to helpe out this pretended counterfeiting, (which cannot ſtand without ſuch ſlye and filthy ſhifts) amonge his reexaminants foiſteth in this examinante of his owne cuſſing. 2. I anſweare, that his ſaid depoſition is both verye falſe and ridiculous, ſeruing the Diſc. not ſo much to convince or extenuat theſe ſupernatu'all runnings, (which he doth forſooth wonderfull ſoundly before) but to make way to a pretty ieſt of his, wherwith he deſiered belike to delight his reader. M. Darrell (quoth he) doe not here ſay, that the deuill ſkipped out of the boyes thigh into his pocket, and turned himſelfe into a pare of gloues: the diuill may rather be thought to pag 208. haue rune vp and downe in his owne coſening pate, then in the boyes bodye. In like ſorte and to the end aforeſaid, he bringeth in Iohn Wiggen, who was neuer ſworne and examined before. yet the Diſc. placeth him in the ranke of the reexamnants. Finally, he alledgeth So. authentical teſtimony, which neuer faileth him: and therevpon inſerteth theſe wordes of his owne.

Diſcouerer

Beſides he (meaining So.) Likwiſe ſetteth downe how he did make the pag 207. ſaid motions that ſemeth to rune in his body, in theſe words: I did moue firſt the calfe of my legg, then my knebone, which motion of the knee, will likwiſe make a motion or riſing in the thigh. Alſo by drawing and ſtopping of my wind, my belly would ſtirr and ſhew a kind of ſwelling. The bunch as they tearmed it about my cheſt, was by the thruſting out of my breaſt. Likewiſe my ſecret ſwelling did make the end of my windpipe to moove, and to ſhew greater then vſuall it is. Againe, my mooving of my Iawes one bunch was easly made in the ſide of my cheke neare my eare. And about the middle of of my cheke, with the end of my tonge thruſt againſt it, theſe motions by practiſe I would make a very faſt on after another, ſo as there might eaſilye ſeeme to be a running in my body of ſome thing, from place to place.

Darrell.

I deſire euery on to conſider whethrr any of the children of men, admitt ther had bene no other ſwelling or motions then this beaſt confeſſeth, can mak theſe motions here ſpecified, who can moue the calfe of his legg, without mouing or ſhaking his whole legge? and ſo I might proceed on to ſome other motions, 2. wher pretence is made that ſom ſwellings were made by So. his tongue ſpecially in his face; I anſweere.

that

that his tongue could not make that swelling vnder his eare root, much lesse that which was in his forhead, and least of all thurst out his eyes. and cause, ablacknes of them. But I demaund how he made that swelling in his feete, remouing from toe, to toe: it was not with his tonge sure he did that.

Discouerer.

The Disc. procedeth. Furthermore, one Rich. Mee did depose before the said Commissioners, that he had sene W. Somers stand, and turne his face directly backward, not mouing his body, and that his eyes were as great as beasts eyes, and that his tongue would be thurst out of his head, to the bignes of a Calves tongue. pag 216. Richard Mee.

But let vs see what the said Mee hath deposed, vpon his reexamination. Wheras I haue bene conceiued, to say and sware, as is before expressed, my meaning was & is (saith he) that he the said So. turned his face a good way towards his shoulder, & not otherwise: & likwise my meaning was, is, that his eyes were somwhat gogling out, but otherwise no more then ordinary. And thirdly my meaning was, and is, that by reason it was candle light when I saw his tongue thurst out, and by reason of my conceit of the strangnes of So. troubles, before I saw him: his tongue being thrust out, it seemed somwhat bigger, then if So. had bene well, I should haue thought it to haue bene.

Darrell.

Rich. Mee did depose to about 11 seuerall things, non of which can possiblie be done by art, as appeareth by his deposition in print: dep. 13. now being reexamied & I trust of them all, he hath only minsed that he said of the bignes of So. eyes & tongue & turning of his face directly backward: which we regard not at all, as beig of no such momēt: doth the Disco. thinke by this trifling of his, that he hath answeared all that Rich. Mee hath deposed concerning So.? he hath done nothing lesse. Mee his reexamination sheeweth some little frailtie, but overthroweth not his first deposition. Yea his relenting no more, (all circumstances considered) doth rather strengthen his former depositiō, then his qualification weaken it. And this I say of Rich. Mee, is to be vnderstod likwise of Ioane Pye: whose deposition contayning in it 14. impossible things to be done by So. or any sonne of Adam. the Disc. answeareth, Ioane Pye. with telling vs she was reexamined, and of her qualifiyng vpon her reexaminatiō one (a) sole impossibility of the 14. But he must know (as pag 216 is aforsaide) that besides these haue not retracted theire first depositions, sundrie others also togeather with them haue deposed the same thinges: which their retractation, much lesse these sory qualifications of theirs can not conuince or disproue. And here we may againe obserue the deceite of the Disc. who mentioning scarcelye the 10. part of Rich. Mee and 20. of Ioane Pies depositions, pretendeth to the ignora

nte reader, as though he had set downe all that they at the first time deposed with their full answears at their reexaminations. Besides the formers, the Disc. produceth Henry Nussey Rich. Newton and Wil. Hunt: who hauing before deposed, the two first to Som. speaking with his mouth wide open, the third with his mouth shut close: being reexamined, Henry Nussey hath qualified, the other two retracted or denied, that the had before deposed, if the Disc. haue set downe their reexaminations truly: This periurie of theirs, the Disc. calleth the qualifying of their former depositions, & interpretations of their meaning. But if men may be admitted so to expound theire owne wordes, we shall neuer haue any periured, nor punished for periurie to the end of the world: notwithstanding I answeare: Seeing the Commissioners that examined, did (as I am informed and doe verilie beleiue) threaten their examinats sometimes with hauing them before the L. of London, somtimes with imprisonment, & before their eyes commaunded Henry Butler by name to prison: it is no maruell though amonge many, some fraile men were found, that would rather relent either in part or in whole, from that which in their consciencs they knew to be true, then hazard and in danger themselues they knewe not to what punishment and trouble. Stronger men then they haue done as much in the like case: we all know how shamfully that notable Apostle of our saviour Peter another manner of man then any of our examinats, for feare denyed that he knew the Lord, and that with an oath, or execration. It is no strange thinge then for our reexaminats (weake and infirme men as they were) to haue shruncke and relented, had it bene further then this. 2. Let the very enimyes Iudge whether voluntarie oathes, wher no profite or feare of evill in the world was like to come vnto the deponents theirby, or oathes compassed partlie with flaterie and other cuninge dealinge, partlye with terrors and threats (as is notoriouslye knowne) be more like to be true. 3. Those which haue relented are but few, and can not therfore in any reason preiudice that which the rest being many haue deposed: which is abundandlye sufficient to cleare the cause from counterfeting: and that we disire may be answered: offering to make vp the number of these few pety reuolters (2 or 3. excepted,) with a supplie and advantage if we may be suffered 4. It is to be supposed that if the reexaminations were (o) seene, it would appeare that more is confirmed, then extenuated.

Henry Nussey, Rich. Newton VVilliam Hunt pag 214 & 217.

pag 211.

(o) and therfore it is wisdome to kepe them close: and noe maruill though I could get no coppie of them, as by law I should haue had.

Discouerer

pag 218.

These were the cheife poynts, which seemed most strang in the said depositions, taken at Nott whervpon it was thought good to haue the said witnesses examined. And how they qualifie their former words, you see it apparant.

Darrell.

Theſe (ſaith he) were the cheif poynts. vz.. the runing ſwelling, ſpeaking with his mouth wide open, at other times cloſe ſhut, the turning of his face directly backward, his eyes being as great as beaſt eyes, and tongue of the bignes of a Calues tongue, his body doubled, his head betwene his leggs: for not on more then theſe hath the Diſc. named. I anſwere, that ther are ſundrie other poynts beſides, and amonge thoſe ſome not inferiour to them, which the Diſco. doth not once name or touch in this his Chapter of reexaminations, much leſſe returne an anſwer vnto them: In the ſaid depoſitions taken at Nottingham, it was alſo depoſed.

1. That ſomtimes his legges, ſomtimes his armes, were heavie and inflexible like yron. depoſed by Iohn Strelley, artic. 12. Ioane Pye artc. 6.

2. That W. So. had ſuch extraordinarie ſtrength, that ſomtimes 3. 4. 5. 6 or more were ſcarſe able to rule him. depoſed by Rob. Aldridg artic. 2. Ioane Pye, art. 6. Iohn Wood, art. 11. Iohn Strelley, art. 12. Richa, d Mee art. 13. William Langford. artic. 9.

3. when 4 or 5. ſturgled with him, (ſometimes for an hower toge ther) ſo as they were throughlie wearied, he did not ſweate, pante, or change colour. depoſed by Wil. Langford art. 9. Richard Mee arti. 13. Iohn Wood artic. 11.

4. He wallowed, gnaſhed with his teeth and foamed at his mouth exceſſiulie depoſed by Robert Aldridg artic. 2. Wil. Aldred art. 5. Iohn Strelley art. 12. Rich. Mee art. 13. Will. Langford arti. 9.

5. His face and mouth fearefully diſtorted, one lippe towardes one eare, another towards another: depoſed by VVilliam Aldred arti. 5. Ioane Pye arti. 6. Richard Mee artic. 13.

6. His body plucked round vpon an heape like a browne loafe: & ſo rowled, he was caſt vp like a ball from the bed 3 or 4 times to gei ther, halfe a yard hie. depoſed by Ioane Pye, artic. 6.

7: Being caſt into the fire (where he laye with his hand in the fire not burned) ſomtimes againſt the walls & iron barrs of the chimney, with great violence, he receiued no apperance of hurt at all. depoſed by Ioane Pye art. 6. Iohn Strelley art. 12. Rich. Mee art. 13.

8. He told of diuers things done in his abſence, without notice gi- ven by any perſon, depoſedd by Elizabeth Milward art. 14. Ioane Pye. artic. 6.

9. In his fits ſtrange ſmelles were in the place where he lay, ſome times like brimſtone, ſomtimes very ſweete. depoſed by Ioane Pye artic. 6 Richard Mee, artic. 13.

10. A ſtrange knocking perciued about his bed, in his fitts: both his feete & hands being held vnmoueable. depoſed by Rob Alared art. 2. Ioane Pye art. 6. Eliza. Milward art. 14. Iohn Pare art. 15.

11,

11. He did crie hideously, somtimes like a Bull, beare, swine, and in a smale voyce vnpossible to be counterfeited: deposed by William Langford arti. 9. Robert Aldridg arti. 2. Rich. Mee arti. 13.

12. His legge would be crooked with his faules, and could not be strightened, deposed by Rich. Mee art. 13. Tho. Haies arti. 1.

13. In his fites his pulses and temples did not beate. deposed by William Langford, a Chirurgian arti. 9.

14. His eyes was blacke and chaunged colour in his fites, deposed by William Hinde arti. 3. Tho. Westfeild arti 4. Rich. Mee art. 13.

15. He lay for an hower as one dead: cold as Ice, his face and handes blacke, no breath being perceiued to come from him. deposed by Ioane Pye art. 6. Eliza. Milwarde article. 14.

These poynts, are contained in the aforesaid depositions, and seemed most strang, as well as the former mentioned by the Discouerer, and if euer either the Bishop or his Chaplaine doe pleade for the diuill againe, the must needs returne vs answere vnto these or els they doe but tifle say nothing. Secondly, he shall doe well to make known to the world, what M. Aldridge, M. Hayes, Rich. Mee, Ioane Pye, and the other reexaminats did say beinge reexamined to the other poynts they had before deposed. In the meane season euery child may see, that the Dis. hath not performed that he professeth to doe in the title of this chapter. vz. to make it playne, that vpon the reexamination of my owne witnesses (as he calleth them) it falleth out, that the bodily actions of So. in his fitts, were not extraordinarie, seeing he hath not so much as named (c) 15. of them, and if I should graunt him that those bodily actions (or passiones) of So. which he mentioneth, were not extraordinary (for which he saith very little, and proueth full silily) yet ther is enought besides to make it manifest and apparant to the world that it was impossible for Somers to haue counterfeited.

(c) neither was it wisdome to name them, seeinge they must needs haue marred the fashion of all the suppos ed counterfeitinge.

And whereas it pleaseth him to speake so indefinitly, and to saye that The saide witnesses were examined, closly and cuningly theirby implieing as if they had bene all examined, & so it seemeth would faine haue his reader conceiue and be perswaded, wherevpon also: (doubtles) it cometh to passe, that he neuer mentioneth neither the number of the first deponents, nor of the reexaminats: we are to vnderstand, that vpon the 20. of March 97. before the 12. Commissioners mentioned in the begining of this chapter, there were 17. witnesses examined, whose names are confusedly set downe before: with the principall thinges they deposed. Synce which time there haue bene sundrie of the said deponents by the Dis. and other of his colleges reexamined: but how many I knowe not, and he himselfe mentioneth onely but seauen with their qualifications: thinkinge by this maske & vizard vizard of a reexa nination, though he bring in but a few, and of the meaneſt of the thinges depoſed, ſuppreſſing and ſilencing the reſt of the rare accidents depoſed, together with many deponents, to carrie away the cauſe as it were in acloud, and to dazel mens eyes and make them beleeue, that all the depoſitions (wherin I and my fellowes doe ſo greatlie trihumph) are fully anſwered, confuted, and ouerthrowne. But we muſt not forgett, that of the 17. tenne of them haue either not bene reexamined at all, or els being reexamined haue reſiſted all their temptationes, threats, and allurements, and doe through gods mercy continue ſtedfaſt and vnmouable: vpon the teſtimonie of which witneſſes (with many more) (a) this truth, I meaine, the impoſſibilitie of Somers counterfeiting doth relye and ſtand ſo ſure, that the world is not able to remoue it. For if in the mouth of 2: or 3. witneſſes a truth by the ordinance of god is to ſtand, and everie controuerſie to be decided: how much more then is this truth to ſtand ſteadfaſt, and controuerſie to be ended, even by the Lords owne ordinance, in the mouth of ten times 3. witneſſes or theire abouts

(a) for beſides theſe 17. theire haue bene ſince by the Biſhope & his commiſſioners about 13. more d epoſed, which haue witneſſed by Somers many thinges vnpoſſible to be counterfeite.

FINIS.

THE FOVRTH BOOKE

The impoſſibilitie of Som. counterfeiting beinge manifeſt enough by the laſt chapter, in the eyes of any vnpartiall and indifferent iudge, were ther nothing els ſaid, nor to be ſaid, then theiris allready ſaid. I thinke it ſhallbe wiſdome to vſe few words more concerninge the ſame. Beſides, I am afrayd the reader is wearye in turninge over ſuch patched and ridiculous ſtuffe as this, when my ſelfe am not a little greiued to ſee my time (which ought to be more pretious to me thē the gold of ophir) thus vainly and idlie conſumed, in turnninge and rakinge vp ſuch filthy and vnſaurie dunge, and were it not that I am perſwaded that the Lord hath called me heerevnto, both for the defence of mine owne innocency, and ſpeciallye the ſetting forth of that wonderfull worke of his, which wretched & vngodly men doe ſeeke by allmeanes to deface, I would in that regard haue buryed all in ſi-lence longe agoe. For theſe cauſes (moſt chriſtian reader) albeit I purpoſe (by thy patience & gods aſſiſtance) to make the caſe more cleare and playne vnto thee in that which remaineth to be anſwered of the obiections & ſurmiſſes of the Diſcouerer: yet will I therin be as breſe as poſſible I can, and as the vnreaſonablenes of the aduerſarie wil giue me leaue: the rather in that whatſoeuer he coineth and breatheth out againſt the cauſe rather then me heereafter, cometh out of the very ſame forge and ſhope with the former, wherof I am content to make thy ſelfe Iudge in the pervſall.

OF CHAP. 1.

Diſcouerer.

How M. Dar. laboured from time to time, to make thoſe thinges that So. did, & were but very toyes, to be thought both ſtrang & extraordinary.

Darrell.

VVhether the thinges depoſed to be done by Som. (done indede by the Diuell) were very toyes and nothing ſtrange and extraordinary in them: and further whether the things done by So. were ſuch as he did or could doe of himſelfe. and ſo argue a counterfeitinge, or whether the did paſſe his reach, ſkill, and power and ſo argue a ſupernatu rall power, namly the power of the diuell within him, let the chriſtian reader himſelfe Iudge by my anſwere to the laſt chapter.

OF CHAP. 2.

Diſcouerer

How M. Dar. would not ſuffer as nere as he could any to deale with
pag. 225. So. in his fitts, to try whether he were ſenſeleſſe or diſſembled.

Darrell.

The ground of this chapter is this aſſertion fathered vppon me: vz. that Som. or whoſoeuer is poſſeſſed is ſenſeleſſe in all their fites: wherevnto I haue ſufficiently anſwered in my anſwere to the 3. chap ter of the 2. booke.

OF CHAP. 3.

How M. Dar. indeuoured to excuſe So. when he was taken ſhort, and did ſuch toyes, as did argue him ſufficiently to be a counterfeit.

Diſcouerer.

pag. 233. It is obiected that his foaming came from a peece of blacke lead he had in his mouth. I put (ſaith Somers) a peece of blacke lead into my mouth, that therby I might foame in more abundant manner.

Darrell.

anſ. It is true that one a time he had a litle blacke lead in his mouth, but (as I verily take it) he did not then foame, as partly appeareth by Edmond Garlands depoſition, (following) who was then preſent. But be it that he did: his foaming came not, nor was becauſe of the ſaid blacke

leade

lead: for then another puting blacke lead into his mouth, ſhall theirby be made able to foame alſo which I thinke non of vnderſtandinge will affirme: and triall therof may ſoone be made: 3 we ſpeake of a ſoming in the time of his firſt poſſeſſion, now foaming, and then foaming, ſpecially in great abundance the day of his diſpoſſeſſion: and this blacke lead from whence his foaming ſhould come, he had onely once in his mouth, when he was at Garlands houſe, as is plaine by the depoſitions concerning the ſame, which was almoſt 20. weekes after the foaming wee ſpeake off. Now although blacke lead may peradventure haue ſuch an odd myſticall qualitie as is pretended, yet it could not (ſure) cauſe him to foame, ſo long and ſo many weekes before he had it. For theiris no body that depoſeh to any blacke lead: then and if he had had any we ſhould no doubt haue heard of it: nay So. himſelfe depoſeth no ſuch thinge: but by this depoſition we may rather coniecture, that if the diuell cauſed not his foaming, but himſelfe, then it came by rolling a ſtone or ſoape in his mouth, for ſo ſaith he I taught him to doe, that he might the better foame, But how doth the Diſcouerer proue that Somers foaming came of blacke lead? beſides Somers teſtimonie, by the depoſitions of two witneſſes. In one fitte I ſaw William Somers (ſaith Edmond Garland) froath at the mouth very much, ſo as the foame roaped downe into his necke: and at on time I found a peece of blacke lead in his mouth. He doth not ſay, and at the ſame time, vz. that he foamed, I found a peece et: but, and at one time I found et: meaninge, another time. So that by this depoſition it ſhould ſeeme, that Somers foamed not when the blacke lead was in his mouth. From hence then we can no more conclude that So. foaming came from this peece of blacke lead in his mouth, then from the morſels of bread, and gobbetes of fleſhe, which he likwiſe hath had in his mouth. But George Richardſon depoſeth more fully: In a fitt he foamed (ſaith he) exceedingly, and I hereing a kind of grating of ſome what betwixt his teeth, tould Garland the boyes keeper: wherupon Garland taking him by the heaire of the head, and I by his mouth, we ſhooke out of his mouth a peece of blacke lead. pag 238. pag. 233.

Darrell.

I will not ſtand heare to ſhew the falſhod of mans depoſition, but onely I aſke, what and if So. inſtead of the black lead, had in his mouth a ſtone, or pine? had the ſame cauſed his foaming both at that time, & longe before? For I doubt not but that either of theſe hath as well that vertue and workinge quallitie in it as blacke lead hath: I am truly aſhamed to vſe ſo many wordes a bout that which deſcrueth rather to be laughed at, then anſwered: but the folly of theſe who beleeiuinge this haue in good earneſt obiected it againſt me, as a matter of moment, hath thus farr conſtrained me.

OF

OF CHAP. 4.

Discouerer

pag 235 How contrary to M: Darr: assertion, Somer, had his senses and vnderstanding in his fitts.

Darrell:

In my answere to the 8 chap: of my 2 booke, I haue shewed, that howsoeuer Sathan doth (no doubt) ordinarilie depriue those he possesseth in their fites, of their internall and externall senses, yet not all wayes, but can and doth by his slyghts so order the matter, as that the possessed haue many times their senses & vnderstanding in as good measure as those that are not possessed, a thinge that I haue allwayes held, and neuer sence I came to any iudgment affirmed the contrarie. Vnlesse therfore the Disc. had proued that So: in all his fits had his perfecte sences and vnderstanding, (which he neither doth nor by any possibilitie can doe) he saith nothing at all against my assertion, but fighteth with his owne shadow, & confuteth a forgerie of his owne, which he faslye chargeth vpon me.

OF CHAP. 5:

Discouerer:

pag 238. Of the motions and knockings which were heard and sene about Somers in his fitts, that they were done and made by himselfe, and were not as M: Darr. hath reported, extraordinarie or supernaturall.

Darrell

This is answered before in my answeare to the 4 chap: of the second booke: and may in a word be answeared againe: that all that is their and here obiected is false, absurde, and ridiculous, as hath allreadye bene shewed.

OF CHAP: 6

How Somers casting himselfe into the fire, was voluntary, and no extraordinary matter, as M. Darrell hath pretended.

Discouerer

pag 242. Because the words of casting into the fire (quoth So.) doth seme to import much: First I say, that the fires in my Mistris house, and then afterwards in my father in laws, were but very smale, made of slat coales, and so compassed at the ends and foreparte with barrs of iron, that except I should haue thrust my selfe betwixt the sayd barres, and the wall, or had thrust my fingers betwixt the barrs, I could not in any wise haue cast my selfe into the fire: But I confesse that M: Dar. hauing told me out of S. Marke, and like wise hauing straightlie warned such as keept me in my supposed fitts, that they should be very carfull to looke vnto me: I did cast my selfe now & then into the Chimney, or vpon the yrons or grates.

Darrell.

con-

Concerning this poynt Ioane Pie hath deposed thus On Allhalow even at noone, or their abouts I with sundry others, being with VVilliam Somers, he was sitting in a chaire about two yards from the fire side, and sudenly was cast towards the fire, his head lighting vpon the iron that keept vp the fire, and one of his hands in the fire: and they being 3 or 4 taking him vp to saue him from burning, they could not set him in the chaire again: for his leggs were so bowed as they all could not streight them, and he so heavie, as they could scarce lift him, and that neither his head, haire, nor any part of his body was hurt or burned by the fire. narration d.

And M. Iohn Strelley after this manner: He was on a sudden cast in to the fire in the presence of all: and suddenly taken out without any hurt to him by the fire, being of waight as aforesaide. dep. 12.

And Rich. Mee thus: And the said Som. would be violently cast into the the fire, standing from the fire a yarde and halfe off, and none of his clothes burnt or heare singed. dep. 13.

Let now the reader chuse, whether he will beleiue this beast of England, or these 3. vpon their oathes, and many other affirming, and readie to depose the same, and more then this. And where he saith, that I straightly warned such as keept him that they should be carfull to looke vn to him: how can this posible be true, seeinge he was cast into the fire, before (a) I came to Nottingham as appeareth by the deposition of Ioane Pye which also Hugh Wilson made knowne vnto me at Ashbye, when he came to me their for my repiare to So. at Nott. as he and som of my owne familie can witnes. And where he confesseth, that he cast himselfe vpon the yrons or grats: it should seeme that as the fires were very small (for sooth) and made of slate coales, so the yrons or grates by me anes therof were not hoat neither, els the would sure haue burnt him. (a) then blush for shame you that plead for Somers.

Discouerer

Ouer and besides So. deposition the Disc. produceth two others wherof one deposeth that on a time he clapt his buttockes vpon the fire, the other, that he fell downe with his shoulders on the fyre. M Barnard

But he was oft cast into the fire. so that his being cast at two seuerall times as is saide, if that were so, letteth not but that at other times he might be so cast, as that some bare part of his body laye in the fire: yea it is directly deposed by Ioane Pye of one time, and before the Bishop of London (as I take it) by Edm. Garland of another time and place, that his bare hand laye in the fire, and for some little space as appeareth by the circumstances, and yet was not burned. And ther are sundrie ready to depose, that at another time and place in the presence of many, he was throwne on his face into the middest of a hoat & great fyre, his face bareinge downe the hoat coales that lyinge thus with a lynine cap on his head Mary Couper his sister snatched at him, plucke James Alwood away the cap, and left face and barehead in the fyre: And yet behould no face burned, nor heaire singed thereby.

OF CHAP. 7.

Discouerer

Of So pretended strength and weight in his fitts, that contrary to M. Dar. and his frends reports, ther was nothing extraordinarie in them.

pag 244

Darrell

So. say I had such extraordinarie and supernaturall strength, that 3 somtimes 4. 5. 6. or moe, were scarce able to rule him, though they had him at great advantag: as lying flatt vpon the ground, or vpon a bed, (yea a lowe trundle bed) or tyed fast to a chaire 3. men for an houre or their abouts striuing with him, though they swet and were in a manner breathles, and theirby forced to giue place to others: yet did he not so much as chang his colour, or pant, nay he was scarcely perceiued to draw his winde, as is deposed ergo, So. is no (c) counterfeite. For no man can adde to his strength by counterfeiting.

(c) answere this argument or els yeald to the truth.

Discouerer

The Disc. now telleth vs that his strength was not extraordinary, And he proueth it first by So. ridiculous deposition, then bythe depositions of 7. others.

pag 245

Somtimes saith Ed. Garland a man that hath had great triall of Som. supernatuarll strength) Somers strength was but ordinarie And againe, I found him often of easie strength.

Darrell

VVhy this leteth not but that at some other times in some of his fitts, he was of extraordinarie streugth: And this I doubt not but that Garland did at the same time depose, though we here nothing of it. Yea his very words insinuat no lesse. The other sixe depose that they aparte prouing his strength, found it to be but ordinarie. I doe not say neither euer did, that So. in all his fitts was of extraordinarie strength, for then indeede Garland and the other sixe had deposed materially: but of such strength in some of them he was without all question and cõtradiction. He foamed we save, he wallowed we say, he was cast into the fyre we say, etc. Yea wee say not that he foamed, or wallowed, he was cast into the fire in all and euery of his fittes, but that in some of them and at sundrie times he was evidently seene to be thus strangly and extraordinarily visited. And presuppose that vpon the apprehention of alewde person for some fellonious acte, 3 or 4. honest substantiall men should bring in euidence, that such a day and time they saw the partie breakinge vp his neighbours house and takinge away his goods: were not this euidence sufficient in law and reason to convince the fellon, because that at some other time or times, other his good

frends

frendes did see him sitting in his chaire and reading of a booke? For this is truly the Disc. manner of reasoninge in this case, to bleare the eyes of the world with, and to proue this counterfeiting if he could. Somtimes (forsooth) Somers strength was but ordinarie: and Somtimes or often (saith another) I found him but of easie strength: ergo Som. strength was not extraordinarie, as Darrell affirmeth. In like manner he argueth before: one a time saith on, Som. clapt his buttocks on the fire: another, he fell downe with his shoulders on the fire, ergo So. was neuer cast into the fire, his face, or bare hands being in the fire, and he not burned.

OF CHAP. 8.

Discouerer

So. knowledge in his fits was not extraordinarie as M. Dar. and his frendes haue falsly pretended: neither could he speake Greeke, Hebrew, or Latine, otherwise then he had learned.

Darrell

That his knowledge was extraordinarie, I trust it is elswhere in the historie made manifest. Against it nothing is obiected worthy the answering. But alas poore Somers himselfe) who neuer fayleth the Disc. at a pinch) he good soule like an honest youth is as euery hand whyle so here brought vpon the stage to patch out this desperat cause, and to depose at large: now wheras to this end I haue alleadged that he (a boy scarcely vnderstanding one article of the Creed) did expound the Creed by the space of an houre togeither or their abouts, (a thing acknowledged by two of the Discouerers owne witnesses) this is handsomly shadowed, glozed vpon and daubed ouer in these words: that he was in some sort enabled so to doe, by reason that almost euery minister, that came vnto him, had interpreted the Articles of the Creed diuers times vnto him. It had bene good and a most equall and indifferent course (seeing So. is knowne to be an impudent lying wretch) for the strengthening of this glozing deposition, so vnlikly to be true, to haue had these ministers knowne, and ther names, that did thus enable and instruct Som. in the articles of the Creede: or at least the depositions of some of those who were then present would then haue bene taken. It had bene no heard matter for the Commissioners to haue sifted out this vpon the taking of the depositions, if it had pleased them, seeing it is deposed (you see) that thes Ministers haue interpreted vnto him the articles of the Creed diuers times and that in the time of this his trouble he was sedome or neuer alone. But admitt that such a course were taken by I know not how many ministers visitinge him in his sicknes, (a thing that I suppose no man of vnderstanding will easily beleiue) yet it is a question whether So. were of himselfe able to lay vp so much, as somtimes he deliuered.

OF

OF CHAP. 9.

There was no impossibility in So. fites as M. Dar. and his frendes haue fully pretended.

Discouerer

This the Disc. proueth by no lesse then 10. depositions. Now I consider without feare (saith Robert Couper) what thinges the boy did in his fitts: I thinke any other of his nimblenes and capacitie may doe the like.

Darrell

Robert Cooper being present at So. dispossession, with teares confessed his sinnes before vs all, being some 150. If at that time he though So. counterfeited, then those teares of his and confession were hipocriticall. The truth is that oppressed with feare, vpon the fearefull sight he then beheld, he shed those teares and made that confession: as the men of Ephesus did vpon the report only of the like worke of Satan: but being now without that feare, as himselfe confesseth, his mind or iudgment as it shoulde seeme is cleane altered, as by this and other wretched depositions of his appeareth.

Discouerer

pag 256 I was oft (quoth George Richardson) with the boy in his fittes, and could neuer see any thing done by him, but I could doe the like.

Darrell

George Richardson pag 233. depoeth that he saw So. in a fitte, wher in he foamed exceedingly Now I thinke he can not do the like, though he put a peace of blacke lead into his mouth to helpe him, as he saith So. then did. And where he saith he was oft with him, I spppose his oft times, were not aboue 2 or 3 times.

Discouerer.

pag. 256. Seeing So. in his fitts (saith M. Aldred) the fift of Nouember, heauinge vp his belly, drawing his mouth towards his eares: scriching, et, I departed away perswaded that he was a counterfeite, and that he did nothing, but that a boy naughtely disposed might doe as well as he.

Darrell

But I would faine know what M. Aldred did thinke vpon the 7 of Nouember, vpon which day he preached at So. dispossession, and in his prayer confessed his sinnes with teares, on which morning also he said to some, that the said night his sleepe departed from him, vpon that he beheld the euening before in Som. as also what he thought of Som. when he was first deposed before the 12. Commissioners. It may be their are many thousands in this kingdome which somtimes thought So. to be a counterfeite who now see & confesse that it is vnpossible it should be so: this therfore is nothing to the purpose nor at all against

gainſt me that M. Aldred hath depoſed. For albeit the 5 of Nouember he ſpeaketh of he might imagine thoſe few actions of the boy to be counterfeite, yet this letteth not but that at other times both after and before vpon the ſight of other more ſtrange and fe arefull accidents, he might be of another mind. And thus (but for breuities ſake) could I particulerly anſweare and avoyde all theſe depoſitions of the Diſcouerer.

Diſcouerer. pag 157.

I neuer did ſee any thing that So. did, to make me to thinke that it was ſupernaturall: ſaith Nich. Shepheard. and M. Craven, I did not ſee him doe any thing which another boy might not eaſilie haue performed. And M. Foſter, I ſaw nothing but it might be counterfeited, and M Pare: I could not perceiue any extraordinary thing to be done by the boy, but what any other might well haue done: And M V Vallis, I could not perceiue any ſuch ſtrangnes in the thinges I ſaw the boy doe, and Iames Alwood: vpon the 5 of Nouember at night: I obſerued that any body naughtily diſpoſed, might haue done the ſame. And laſtly ſaith Rich. Newton: I neuer ſaw Somers doe any thing, but that a boy of his yeares might eaſilie doe.

Allow that all thoſe & a duzen more ſay true vz. that they neuer ſawe &c. no did Iohn a Stile nor Ihon a Noks they are all wee ſee in the negatiue. therfore 2. honeſt men in the affirmitiue craſe and confound them all.

Darrell.

Becauſe theſe men were either blind, or ſeeing would not ſee, ſhall wee therfore put out the eyes of others, of the 17 depoſed firſt, and of ſundrie others depoſed ſince: as alſo of hundreds beſides readie to depoſe the ſame, if they were thervnto called by authoritie? All men are not like to Peter and Iohn who ſaid vnto the faces of the hie prieſts and Elders, that they could not but ſpeake the things which they had ſeene & heard. 2 wher almoſt al theſ 10 witneſes which ſaw So. in many fits depoſe, that they themſelues could do the like, others, that any body might doe the ſame, yea eaſily: how can it be but that they be periured if they haue ſo depoſed indeede? for their be almoſt 30 which haue depoſed to about 20 thinges impoſſible to be done by any natural or artificiall power. Beſids, by the depoſitions of So. & others depoſed & exanined by the B: and the Diſc. and alledged in this booke to proue counterfeiting, and ſo by the Diſcouerie it ſelfe, it is manifeſt, that it is not ſo very eaſie a matter for one, much leſſe for any body naughtily diſpoſed, to doe the ſame. Seuen came to carrie me (ſaith Somers) whom, as I thinke, I did very much trouble: whereupon it was given out, that I was ſo heauie in my fits as 7 were ſcarce able to carie me. By this reporte it ſhould ſeeme that 7 could hardly carry him, not becauſe of his ſtruggling, and yet euery boye can not ſo ſtruggle, but for the exceedinge great weight of his body (which is by ſome depoſed) wherupon this report did riſe. It is alſo confeſſed and depoſed, that he made his belly to ſwell and did hide his tongue: vz: ſo as no parcell of it could be ſeene

anſ. 1.

act. 4. 20.

pag. 180. & 181.

with a candle, for not longe before and in the presence of the Maior with some 50 others, his mouth was by 12 persons or their aboutes looked into with a candle, but no tongue nor parcell therof was their to be seene, saue the roote in his throate: Againe, Som: thrust his tonge backwarde into his throate, speake with his mouth wyde open, pricked with pinnes, endured it, foamed exceedingly, that the foame ran downe on both the sides of his mouth, and about his chinne, & roaped downe into his necke: Theſe thinges (confeſſed by the Diſco. himſelfe and the frendes of counterfeiting, yea depoſed by his owne deponents,) can not any body vaughtely diſpoſed eaſily doe: yea hereby it is euidēt that no body can by art doe the like, and therfore So: hath not counterfeited. Let the Diſc. then and frendes of counterfeiting be iudged out of there owne mouthes. And this is the 12. time the Diſcouerer is convinced by his Diſcouery, Before we haue hearde that the Diſc. in his Diſcouerie hath diſcouered my innocencye: & heere we playnly ſee that he hath done as much for the cauſe it ſelfe. Yf now hereby the impoſſibilitie of So. counterfeitiug doe appeare: how much more, when herevnto we ſhall add the rare and ſupernaturall accidents mentioned in my anſweare to the laſt chapter of the third booke.

pag 23.5
pag 215.
pag 201.
pag 233.
pag 189.
pag 233.

Diſcouerer

pag 257.

Whether theſe depoſitions will ſatiſſie M. Dar. and his frends, it may be doubted, but to any reaſonable men they will be ſufficient, to ſhew the vanitie of the foreſaid pretended impoſibilities.

Darrell

The Diſc. may now be out of doubt, that theſe his depoſitions doe not ſatiſſie me, as alſo why: neither doe they or can they ſatiſſie I truſt any reaſonable men, but muſt needes appeare vnto them to be as generally vaine & friuolous, ſo moſt of them manifeſtly falſe, & the depo nēts plainly periured, if they haue ſo depoſed. Farr therfore are they from ſhewing any vanitie in the aforeſaid impoſibilities, witneſſed by a cloud of witneſſes. And thus is this ſuppoſed vanitie of the aforeſaid impoſſibilities quite ouerthrowne, & made lighter then vanitie it ſelfe.

OF CHAP. 10.

How contrarie to M. Dar. and his frends aſſertions, W. So. was accounted by many in Nottingham, for a diſſembler, from the time that he begane his practiſes there, vntill be confeſſed the ſame himſelfe.

pag 259.
Tho. Porter
Rob. Cooper
Ed. Garland
M. Barnard

Diſcouerer

This he proueth by ſundrie depoſitions. One depoſeth, I told M. Dar. it was reported, that the boy did counterfeite. Another, I did verilie thinke that he did but diſſemble. A third, many ſtill hold opinion, that the boy did diſſemle. A fourth, I thinke that So. diſſembled: and thus doe 3. moe depoſe.

Darrell

The people of the Iewes said of Christ, that he was a glutton and a drinker of wine, and that he had a diuill: yea the phariſes ſaid of him, that he was a coniurer, caſting out deuils, through Belzebub the Prince of deuils. And yet behold there was neuer any thinge more falſe. Many, yea generally all the people of the Iewes did thinke and report, that the diſciples did ſteale Ieſus away by night, whiles the ſoulders ſleept: and I warrant you, had the hie preiſts, (who rayſed vp this ſlaunder of the reſurrection of Christ) ſent forth Commiſſioners, enow would haue depoſed the ſame. and yet loe exceeding falſe: yea not only ſo, but abhorring to common ſenſe. For what more abſurd and ſenſeles thinge can be vttered, then that which the ſouldires affirmed, that while they ſleept, his diſciples ſtole him away? yf Chriſt was gone while the ſouldiers ſleept, as they reported, and was generally beleeued, amonge the Iewes how knewe the ſouldiers that the diſciples ſtole him away? and whether he raiſed vp himſelfe, and went away yea or no, as his diſciples affirmed? Thus we ſee theris nothing ſo falſe and abſurd, ſpecially if it be againſt the glory of god, and the good of his church, but if Sathan once gette any to giue it out in ſpeach, many will beleiue it, and report it. Even ſo albeit it be palpable falſe, abhorring from reaſon and ſenſe and vtterly impoſſible to be true, that Som. did counterfeit, yet not withſtanding it may be beleiued, reported, and depoſed by many. So in conſiderate and fooliſh is man to beleiue euery thing. This the old ſerpent hath in long experience knowne to be true, & that therby yea by nothing more he hath in all ages preuailed greatly againſt the Lord, and his ſervants. Otherwiſe he would neuer ſpread abroade ſo manifeſt ſlaunders as vnceſſantly he doth. And as generally in other caſes he doth thus without faile, & euer will: ſo hath he done in theſe particuler workes of god, whereof my ſelfe haue bene a witnes. Kath. Wright was no ſooner diſpoſſeſſed, but preſently the deuill raiſed vp one Beckingham an old man in the miniſtrie, and a kinde of preacher, to ſay that ſhe had the falling ſicknes: and yet the man neuer ſaw her vntill her diſpoſſeſſion. Darling being diſpoſſeſſed, Sathan ſtirred vp one Edward Baker to ſay that he counterfeited, and others to report that he was helped by a witch of Stapherhil. when the 7. in Lancaſhire were deliuered from Sathan, the papiſts gaue it out and ſpread it abroad that I was a Coniurer, in ſo much as M. Dickons writtinge vnto me thereof, aduiſed me to come to Mancheſter, and openly in the pulpit to cleare my ſelfe of that ſlaunder. Neither doe I doubt but that the ſame is noyſed among them vntill this day. For ſince my imprifonment I vnderſtand by writing, that they report their, that I did put the deuill into them all, the very ſame words alſo haue ſundry of them ſaid to my face in priſon. And they papiſtes at they Clinke openly and a loud haue called my beloued brother M. More, who ioyned math. 11. 19. Ioan 7. 20. math. 9. 34. and 12 24.

math. 28, 13. 15

prou. 14. 16.

with me in the same worke, (and in regard theirof hath bene my fel low in bonds) Coniurer. In like sorte when the deuill was cast out of So mers, he had some at hand to say that he counterfeited: yea ceased not vntill by himselfe and his instruments, he had not onely drawne the boy (vpon whom the worke was wrought) to say that he counterfeited: but that the same might be more probable and the rather beleiued, to affirme besides that I taught him so to doe: yea lett vs assure our selues that if Satan should be driven out of thowsands hereafter, against euery such worke of god, & for the obscuring of it, he would raise vp & spread abroad one slaunder or other: otherwise god should goe with the glorie due to him, and man make his best profit therof, without any resistance by Sathan, which is not possible, except in som speciall case, and for a certaine time it please the lord to chaine him vp. Be it then as the Disc. saith, (though in this chapter of his there be much vntruth) that So was accounted by many in Nott. for a dissembler: it doth no more proue So. to be a dissembler, then the account and report of the people of the Iewes proueth that Iohn the baptist had a deuill, yea that Christ was a glutton and drincker of wine, that he cast out deuils by the prince of deuils and that he had a deuill: In a matter of religion or concerning god or his seruants. vox populi, is not (as we commonly saye) vox dei, but often, if not for the most parte, vox diaboli. Yet indeede the people or multitude, said not from time to time, nor yet at any time, that So. counterfeited, as the Disc. affirmeth, but the contrary. But let vs frame and therby a litle better obserue the Disc. argument, therby to see how substantiallie he proueth Som. to haue counterfeited. It was reported, saith one: I thinke, I verily thinke (say others) that So. did counterfeit, ergo So. counterfeited. Behold the Disc. demonstration. If this be a good argument, then this also: many reporte that So. did not counterfeit, and some of better iudgment and credite then these deponents haue so deposed: as namely M. Ireton, M. Browne M. Evington, M. Brinsley, preachers of the gospell: ergo So. did not counterfeite Thus also I can proue that So. was possessed, for they aforesaid preachers haue deposed that they thinke so. Yea what is their so false, that one may not (in appearance) proue, or so true that he can not disproue by this kind of argument? many thinke and prattle of the fyre of purgatorie, ergo etc. The Iewes who are not a few thinke, and verily thinke, and say to this day, that the Messias is not yet come, ergo. The Disc. may be allowed thus to dispute. But this shamles kinde of arguing doth well sut with the cause he hath in hand. Neuertheless I answere particularly to the cheifest of these depositions.

math. 11. 18.

but alas these men were out of their owne element.

pag. 150 & 151.

pag. 59.

Discourer

I did alwaye (saith M. Mead) say in my hart, that he did but dissemble.

Dis.

Darrell

we haue heard before how greatly M. Aldred was affected with that he beheld in So. the 6. of Nouember at night, and the day of his dispossession, whither for breuities sake I referr the reader: so as it can not possible be true that is heere deposed. And if M. Aldred haue affirmed this vpon his oath, his deposition is not to be regarded.

Discouerer

When I perceiued (quoth M. Leigh) that the diuel, that was pretended to be in Somers, could speake no language but English, I tooke the boye for a counterfeite, and so alwayes after I did repute him. pag 263.

Darrell

I answeare M. Leigh, that this is a sory argument and sily conclusion to perswade him (and others through him) of Som counterfeiting, because he could speake no language but english. For their be many (no doubt) in England which be somwhat strágly handled, that can speak no other language but english, & yet are no counterfeits. Neither doth it hence follow that he nad no deuill in him: except M. Leigh can proue this, that whosoeuer is possessed and hath a deuill in him, speaketh diuers Languages: then indede he saith somethinge. Their is no doubt but that the deuill can skill of all Languages: but it followeth not their vpon that beinge in man, he theirfore will speake the said languages, or some of them, at the becke also and pleasure of this or that man. He can doe many thinges, that he will not doe. No question but the deuill in So.m (god permitting) could haue done a thousand thinges whereby it should haue bene as manifest he had bene in Somers, as by speaking latin, or greeke, whereof he did not one: and yet it followeth not theirvpon that he was not theire.

THE FIFT BOOKE

OF CHAP. 1.

How M. Darrells credite, touchinge his dealing with the boy of Burton, doth relye upon a false and fooliſh booke, that was publiſhed of the ſaid boys pretended poſſeſſion, and diſpoſſeſſion.

Diſcouerer pag 269.

And M. Dar. himſelfe confeſſeth that he read, or at the leaſt did heare the ſaid booke read over, before it went to the preſſe: and yet acknowledgeth vpon diuers occasions, as hereafter shall appeare, that sundrie poyntes in it are vntrue: which beinge considered together with the premises it may well bethought, that M. Darr. writteth falsly, when he telleth vs that a greate many would depose the saide booke to be (c) true, if they might be called theirunto by authoritie.

(c) one would thinke that this Disc had neuer gone to schoole he reasoneth so childishly as if a discourse may not be true in the substance & yet faulty in some circumstance.

Darrell

The Disc. hauinge vsed many wordes to smale purpose and not worthy the answearing, to proue the printed booke concerninge Darling to be a false and fooliſh booke, commeth in the third and last place to that which he thinketh to be most materiall, namely, my owne confession, in that I acknowledge sundrie poyntes in it to be vntrue: and these he sheweth in the chapter followinge to be three. But we must vnderstand they are matters of circumstance, and that I doe not iustifie the booke in every circumstance, but the historie to be true in substance, as appeareth by pag. 266. Now marke good reader how the Disc. argueth: The booke concerning Darling is vntrue in some poyntes, therfore in all, or ergo the whole booke is false. Hath he his sences thinke you, that gropeth not the grosſnes of this argument? Now, wheras it may seeme that I was in fault in that I did not correcte the booke in these saide poyntes that were a misse, seeing I read it ouer before it went to the prese, the very truth is, that in a writinge which I returned togeather with the booke to M. Iohn Denison the publisher theirof, I did sett downe the summe of that I speake to Darling & his frends, desiering that that beinge the truth might be published, & that the other lines which were penned (and now printed) wherein these said vntruthes are contayned, might be left out. Am I now in fault, because these things were not accordingly reformed? Touchinge the other poynt, to witt my affirminge, that many are readie to depose the said booke to be true, though I my selfe (forsooth) acknowledg it to be false: marke I praye thee (good reader) the deceitfull dealinge of the Discouerer: how he purposly leaueth out the speciall wordes that should cleare the case, vz. for the substance of it. I sayd in my Apologie, the booke printed for the substance of it, hath bene offered to be confirmed by the oathes of a great many: a principall part whereof we see he omitteth: without which omission he could neuer haue made (as euery child may see) this goodly flowrish, and theirfore it must needes be that the same was wittingly and aduisedly done by him, which aggrauateth his fault theirin: whereas I meant then and doe meane still, that the substantiall poyntes theirof that make against counterfeiting, are true and iustifiable. For confirmation wherof we must know, that M. Denison whē he came to the B. of London to be examined about the same matter, brought in writinge the names of a great many (I thinke about 40.) who offered to depose to the same effecte, yf they might haue bene admitted: neither doubt I but that he made this knowne to the Bishop.

bout

OF CHAP. 2.

Of M. Darrells rashnes in affirminge Thomas Darling to be possessed, and of his cunninge instructing him, how to behaue himselfe vpon the day of his pretended dispossession.

Discouerer.

This matter of Darlings was so acceptable vnto M. Darrell hauinge bene out of worke from the pretended dispossession of Katherine wright, vz pag 270. for about 9. or ten yeares, as that he thrust himselfe into it somwhat grosly.

Darrell.

This he proueth by the deposition of Robert Toone, who deposeth that he relatinge to other preachers and my selfe, the manner of the boyes fites. I answered, that my opinion was the boy was possessed. Darrell said he was of opinion &c. ergo. a worthy argument sure. In the 22 page the Disc. hath these words: The certaintie hereof is that M. Walkeden the boyes grandfather hereing how M. Darrell had helped Kath. Wright, procured him to come to Burton, to helpe Darling. I now the Disc. speake truely as indeed he doth (though he seldome fault that way) then every one may see that Darrell did not thrust or intrud himselfe into this action, muchles somewhat grosly as the Disc. affirmeth, being theirevnto requested and procured by the boyes grandfather M. Walkeden. And thus is the Discouerer convinced the 13. time by his owne Discouery.

And where he saith that the afore said preachers vpon my persua pag 271. tion, resolued together with me & diuers other ministers of a fast to be had at Burton for Darlings dispossession, and indeuoreth to proue the same by Iesse Bees deposition I answeare that had we done so, we had done nothinge whereof we neede to be ashamed, but the truth is we had not a word about that, as M. Hildersham and M. More with the rest of the ministers can witnes.

Discouerer

Being earnestlye intreated (saith M. Darrell) for my presence at the fast I pag 276. denied the same, and that for these two reasons: vz. for avoyding the note of vaine glorie, and that the people through myne absence might be kept from ascribinge any speciall guift to me in casting out deuils. In which his second reason it may be obserued: first his conceite, that the deuill the next daye would be cast out: then it appeareth that he had vsed great vauntes of the dispossession of Kath. Wright, or otherwise, why should he haue suspected any such thing by the people? Againe if this were not a shifting reason, how came it to passe, that he was present at the dispossessinge of the 7. in Lancashire: but especiallie of Wil. So. when his name was almost at the highest

Dar

Darrell

VVhat my conceite (as the Disc. tearmeth it) heerein is, and where vpon grounded, appeareth by that I haue ſaid in my Narration, treating of the meanes of diſpoſſeſſion. For anſweae to the ſecond thinge heere obiected againſt me, I onely put the chriſtian reader in minde, that the people of the Iewes would haue made Chriſt a king, and the people of Liſtra with theire preiſt would haue ſacrificed vnto the Apoſtles, Barnabas and Paul, as godes come downe vnto them in the likenes of men: and yet it is certaine that Chriſt and theſe his Apoſtls were farr from ſeekinge or deſiring any ſuch thing. To the third I anſweare, that beinge priuie to the great good I ſometime had receiued in beinge an eye witnes of this notable worke of god, and griued in this reſpecte for my abſence heere ſpoken of, eſpeciallye after the boyes diſpoſſeſſion: I theirvpon thought and determined with my ſelfe, if like occaſion afterward ſhould be offered of my preſence, not to with draw my ſelfe as I did any more, theireby to looſe the benefite of that good which the Lord in mercy might affoord me by being preſent and an eye witnes at theſe & ſuch like deliuerances: albeit in the two former reſpectes, or for the two reaſons aforeſaid, I after my ſelfe deſired & could rather haue wiſhed to haue bene abſent then preſent. And that heerein I ſpeake the truth, and lye not, god is my witnes.

pag 277.

Diſcouerer.

Howbeit, if he had bene ſo careſull to haue avoyded the note of vaine glorie as he pretendeth, he would neuer haue ſuffered the wordes before mentioned of the diuell, touching his praying, as ſalt as they did, that were with Darlinge, to haue paſſed his handes: for theirby he ſeemeth ſo gredy of ſome commendatiõ, as rather then faile, he was contented to receiue it from ſatan.

Darrell.

Had I bene the publiſher of that booke the Diſc. might then with ſome better coulour haue framed this malicious collection againſt me 2. thoſe words are not ſo much ſett downe for the matter of thẽ, as for the mãner of their deliuerie, vz. with his mouth wide open: which thing impoſſible to be counterfeited, will the ſooner be beleiued, whẽ it is not onely declared that the boy ſpake with his mouth wyde open, but alſo ſpecified what words he ſo vttered: and in this reſpecte their was good and iuſt cauſe of publiſhinge them. 3. Theire is ſmall cauſe why any ſhould commend me, or conceiue well of me in regard of this ſpeach, ſeeing it was ſpoken by the father of lyes, and therefore greatlye to be ſuſpected of falſhode, excepte my ſelfe had publiſhed the booke: for my peryſinge of it was knowne onely to ſome 3. or 4. perſons.

Anſweare 1

2

Of M. Darrells further practise with Darling to pretend, that Sathan sought to reenter into him, and of some other his vntrue assertions concerning the boyes fittes, and of his cunning dealinge likewise with him, that he should neuer confesse his dissimulation.

Darrell.

From page 285. vntill 290. the Disc. pursueth his owne shadow, labouring with many wordes to convince me of that I neuer affirmed. vz. That Darling in all his fittes was altogether senceles: this I haue shewed before in my answeare to this generall charge, wherevnto to avoyde tediousnes and idle repetitions of the same thinge, I referre the reader for full answeare to all that heere he obiecteth against me.

Discouerer

Another thing that the Disc. troubleth himselfe much with, and where aboutes he bestoweth many lines, even from the page 289. till page 293. is, that I should affirme, that it was Sathan onely (as I did thinke) that vsed the words in those dialogues mentioned in the said booke the said Satan transforming himselfe into an angell of light, at such times when he seemed to speake godlily. And this he confuteth full soundly (I warrant you) first by producinge the boy Tho. Darling deposing, that he doth not beleeue so. Then by the deposition of Iesse Bee a sadler, who saith: that whosoeuer affirmeth so, doth lye in so affirming. There reason is, because of the godly speaches he vsed mentioned in the dialogues. Then and in the third and last place the Disc. himselfe telleth vs, that for the same reason he thinketh that it can not be that the saide dialogues came from the deuill: his wordes be these: If any man will take the paynes to pervse those speaches, which Iesse Bee hath fathered vpon the boy in the said dialoges: he shall finde them to be such as will hardly be found againe in any storie that euer was written to be ascribed to Sathan. pag. 289.

Darrell

If now I can shew out of a history of good credite against which theire can no exception be taken, as holy wordes and as vnlikely to come from Sathan, as those mentioned in the dialogues, to haue yet neuertheles bene vttered by Sathan, then I hope the Disc. will yeeld, that the holines of those speaches doth not lett, but that the same not withstandinge they might proceede from the diuell. VVe read then in the divine storie, that the Temptor saide vnto Christ, it is written, al leadging scripture for his purpose, (all the wordes whereof be holy.) And often thus: Iesus the sonne of the most high god. And againe, I know thee what thou art, even the holy one of god. VVhat wordes I praye you be more holy then these? and what wordes more vnlikely to come from Sathan then such as these? Sure if the Disc. had bene liuinge in that age, and present at these holy and divine speaches, he would not mark. 5. 7. mark 1. 24.

haue thought they came from Sathan. Even ſo likewiſe I muze what the B: and S. Harſnet would haue ſayd, if they had bene by, when that teſtimonie and commendation was giuen by the diuell of Paul & Silas, whereof we read in the actes. Theſe men (ſaith he) are the ſeruantes of the moſt high god, which ſhew vnto you the way of ſalvation. VVhat wordes almoſt could be deliuered more vnlikely to proceede from the diuill, that aduerſarie of mankinde, then theſe? for being true, a man at the firſt bluſh might imagine, that if the were the ſpeaches of the euill ſpirit, then ſure he was not vnwilling that men ſhould be ſaued: wherasthe old ſerpent ment theirby to hinder, and did mightelye hinder the ſaluation of men, I meane the inhabitantes of Philippi: for by oft cryinge out in that manner as he did, he moued and occaſioned S. Paul to caſt him forth of her whom he poſſeſſed, and others vpon that facte of the Apoſtle, to caſt him and Silas a prophet into priſon, & ſo ordered the matter that vpon their inlargment they departed the citie: which no queſtion was the thing Sathan aymed at in the commendation he gaue of Paul and Silas. So that by theſe and ſuch like examples of the holy ſcripture we may ſaflye conclude, that the wicked ſpirit heere ſpoken of, did ayme ſure at ſome evill practiſe & intent, when he vſed thoſe holy words mentioned in the ſayde dialogus howſoeuer the Diſc. happely iudge otherwiſe, and his deponent Ieſſe Bee, becauſe of the godly ſpeaches contained in the dialogues.

Diſcouerer

pag 293. M. Darrell being charged, that ſince the time of the pretended diſpoſſeſſion of Darling, he had cheriſhed, entertained & lodged the boy at his houſe: and that leaſt his owne packing and diſſimulation might happen to be detected as well as the boyes: he did vſe this, or the like perſwaſion in effecte vnto him: vz. that he ſhould continue conſtant, and not ſuffer himſelſe by any alluerment to be drawen to ſay, that he had diſſembled in his former fittes, and that he was neuer poſſeſſed with any wicked ſpirit. And his anſweare is thus: one night I entertained the ſaid Darlinge in my houſe at Aſhby: and the reſt he denieth: but Darling himſelfe depoſeth it. I haue bene with M. Darrell (ſaith he) diuers times, ſometimes at Burton, once at Apleby, once at Packington, at ſeuerall exerciſes: from whence I went hom with M. Darrell to Aſhby, and ſupped that night with M. Hilderſham, M. Dar. two other miniſters, and Miſtris Ireton, at M, Hilderſhames houſe, & did lye that night at M. Darrells. Alſo I confeſſe that M. Darrell hath had ſome communication with me, and hath willed me at ſometimes that I ſhould be conſtant, and ſticke to the truth, meaning, that I ſhould not ſuffer my ſelſe to be drawen to affirme that I was not poſſeſſed: but that I had diſſembled in all my ſayd fittes, and ſo conſequentlye, that God had not deliuered me from the poſſeſſion of Sathan.

Darr.

Darrell

Heere is great adoe and much prattle about packing, dissimulation, and I knowe not what, and of the feare forsooth that was on my behalfe least the same should be detected: but if the Iudge should call for the evidence to prooue this, then come in nothing but 2. poore & silye circumstances or presumptions: either of which if the be of force to proue any thing, must needes probablie conclude this said packing. The first circumstance and argument of his is this. Since the preteuded dispossession of Darling, Darrell hath cherished, entertained, and lodged Darling: it is probable therfore that Darrell taught Darling to counterfeite a possession: and that at such time or times ther was some packing betwene them about the smothering of the said dissimulation. The antecedent or former parte of his reason the Disco. pretendeth to proue both by my owne deposition and Darlinges, but he doth not proue it fully: for in it he speaketh of my cherishing of Darling, as if he had bene my darling indeede, or as if I had bene some foster father vnto him, but proueth no such thinge, but onely the bare lodginge of him one night onely: and truely I doe not remember that euer he did eate one crumme of bread in my house in his life. But admitte he had supped with me as well as lodged with me, and stayed with me a longer time, not that night onely, but diuers nightes, what of all that? admittinge the antecedent to be true (as it is false) yet how doth the consequent and it hange together by M. Harsnetes logike? many haue both eaten and lodged with me, whom I neuer packed nor consulted with about dissemblinge a possession. The second circumstance is, Darrell willed Darling to be constant and sticke to the truth, and not suffer himselfe to be drawne to affirme that he had dissemled I would be loth to blot paper or stand long in answering and refuting such ware as this: And therfore I only desire the reader to open his eyes and to behold the vanitie of it, and withall the shifting pacherie of this discouerer who pretendeth forsooth and would faine haue the worlde to thinke that these wordes of mine were vsed to darlinge at mine owne howse at Ashbie and that darling hath so deposed, & therfore I deposinge the flat contrarie, must needes be forsworne. Now this cunninge insinuation of his is closely & darkely but yet malitiously shut vp in these wordes of his: the rest darrel denieth: implyinge therein as if I simplye and absolutely denyed all the rest which (to make the case plaine and apparant vnto the good reader) I doe not I doe not deny that euer I vsed any such speaches to Darlinge at all, But that I vsed any such speaches to him in my house at Ashbie the night I lodged him there, or spake any words vnto him to that effect, This is that which I denyed vpon my oath, and deny agayne: nay I haue vp-

the 1. circumstance

on my oath to the B of London confessed, that I said to Darlinge as is here by him deposed. But where & when? in the Gathouse after this Darlinge had bene in the Bishops house for sundry weekes together, and sundry meanes vsed, yea and by your leaue none of the best(c) to haue drawen him with Sommers(for the strengtheninge of Sommers confession of counterfeitinge)to saye and confesse that he had counterfeited: as threatning, and imprisonment in the Bishops house, forging and deliueringe of letters to Darlinge as come from me, and thervpon requiringe ,and obtaining answeres from him to the same letters, a thinge not denied by the B. of London him selfe in open Court. In like sorte Darlinge deposed that I said thus to him (as here is specified)at the Gatehouse after his departure from the Byshop, and not at Ashby: the contrary where vnto he is redy to depose. Now where the Disc. by his wresting and writhing, alteringe and keeping backe parte of our depositions intimateth, that one of vs must nedes be periured, & that in his christian and charitable intendement must nedes be Darrell. The truth is(and so it will appeare)that in our depositions at large we deposed one and the same thinge in effect, our depositions strengthening and confirming one another and not disse nting or crossing one another And by these kind of sleights and slipperie dealing the Disc. maketh often shewes of periurie and contrarieties where none is. If you will haue any more circumstances, they are set downe a lyttle before in the Discouerye and doe here followe.

3, circumstance pag 272. Darrell no sooner saw the boye in a fitt, but presently he affirmed him to be possessed.

4 pag 272. Darrell tolde them in Darlinges hearing of Katherin wright, who hauing bene possessed was troubled in such sort, as Darlyng was.

5 pag. 273. Dar. repeated in the boyes heareing what were the signs both of possessiō & dispossession, mentioned in the scriptures, wherby Darlinge might learne, what he was to act & practis the next day when he was to be dispossessed.

6 Darrell mouing the boyes freindes to haue a fast for his pretended dispossession told them that that kinde of spirit was not cast out but by prayand casting.

7 pag 274. Darrell hauing appoynted the sayd fast, he foretolde to those that were present in Darlings hearing, that they should see the deuill cast him into very strange fitts, and that they should heare the deuill speake in him, wherby the saied boye myght learne whate he was to acte that daye.

8 pag 285. Darrell affirmed that Darling was senceles in al his fitts.

9 pag. 289. Darrell affirmed that whatsoeuer Darlinge seemed to doe or speake in his fits it was nothe, but Sathan.

These circumstances are all of them in a manner false slaunderous, and malicious. so weakly proued and so sottishly and absurdly applyed, as a man

and Mary Cooper, confesse & report impossibilities of themselues, in saying they counterfeited, if so be they haue so saide.

Ergo they ought not to be credited.

Now concerning this Darling (to pase by sundrie other strange actions or rather passions of his,) he oft times in a day in his fittes, had a great swelling in his body, by reason whereof diuers times the buttons of his dublett did brust off, and his aglet holees breake, albeit they were purposly made and sett on the stronger. 2. He beinge but of 13. yeares of age was of that strength that two strong men coulde not hold hī downe or rule him, a thing impossible to be coūterfeited: for no man can add to his strength by counterfeiting. 3. In his trāces he vttered sundrie continued speaches with his mouth wyde open, as appeareth by the booke that is printed of him. 4. his armes & shoulder bones were in many of his fites thrust out of ioynt, seene & felt sundrie times by diuers. Now beside the paine and anguish of the ioyntes & senowes in this case, I would faine knowe for my learning, how it is possible for a man to put his bones out of ioynte and in a gaine at his pleasure, and then immediatly use and occupy his armes in as goōd plight as if no such thinge had happened vnto him. Yf M. Discouerer with his sweet Iewell W. Somers can with all their nimblenes. packinge, and dexteritie, but deuise to counterfeite such prettie trickes as these, then indeede the say somethinge to Darrell, and for Darlings counterfeiting.

Furthermore Alice Goodridge the witch sundrie times confessed, that she mistaking Tho. Darling for one Sherrat a boy, sent her familiar or spirit in the liknes of a dog (partie coloured redde and white, called Minny) to torment him in his body, and that she had caused his vexarion by the diuel. And further at her sendinge of him, she strained all her bodye, and vomited, bidding her minny to goe and doe the like to the boye, who returning said, that he had done so. Now the truth is, that besides the childe was most fearefully tormented, in and through all the partes of his bodye, he was much troubled with vomiting & with often prouocations therevnto, as yf he had striuen and strained to vomit and could not. It is also to be remembred, that shee named the time when, the place where, the occation wherevpon, and the wordes she vsed when she sente the deuill to torment him, as appeareth in the 26 page of the printed booke. Herevpon Alyce Goodridg was committed to Darbye gaole, indited and arraigned, and founde guiltie thereof, and by my Lord Andeson sentence giuen vpon her to imprisonmente, where since she died. These thinges considered, to saie and publish thus confidently that Darling counterfeyted, what is it els, but presumtuosly to condemne both Iury and Iudge eyther

pag 276.

face. 2. But admite he had made such a confession: seeing it is evident it had bene done of frailtie and humane infirmitie (which yet god be prayſed he did not) what is this (as the boy himſelfe ſaith) to the purpoſe? If I of frailtie ſhould ſay &c. Heere it muſt not be forgotten how Darling a yoūg ſtripling of thoſe tēder & vnſettled yeares was dealt with and enſnared. He was for the ſpace of a moneth in the Biſhops houſe: duringe which time the Biſhop and his Chapline with all theire fetches and deuiſes weare dayly and howerly in hand with the boy to wringe this confeſſion from him: which they beinge not able by any meanes to obtaine, and diſpairing theirof as it ſhould ſeeme, Harſnet his ſcholemaſter vndertooke to doe this feait, when they two were in his chamber together, and did effecte it accordinglye, but in ſuch manner and by ſuch a worthy deuiſe as we heare: and then preſently perceiuinge him not to be for there purpoſe as Somers was, they retayning Somers, turned him out of the dores. But before and to the end aforeſaide, I meane the gettinge of a confeſſion of counterfeitinge, (which notwithſtanding they went without) he was kept ſo ſtraight, that none of his frendes, no not his mother, might haue any acceſſe vnto him. ſometimes he was not alittle fawned vpon: ſomtimes mighty threatened. S. Harſnet they two being in his chamber alone, offered to thrattle him, and threatened to whyp him, if he would not confeſſe Dærells practiſes, ſheewinge of him two roddes. diuers other threatnings I omite. He was impriſoned in the Biſhps houſe: ſundrie letters alſo (as is before mentioned) were framed and deliuered to him as ſent from me, from whom anſweares to them were obtayned, theirby likewiſe to haue entangled the boy and to haue gotte ſome thing from him if poſſibly the could. Admit now that Dærling a boy of 15. yeares of age, beinge thus ſore layde at for a confeſſion, had at length of frayltie, and in a deſire to be at libertie and ridde out of theire handes, yeelded them that ſorie confeſſion that is thus fathered vpon him: had the thinge confeſſed by him, bene theirfore true? Men ſometimes of greater yeares and riper iudgment, haue in ſuch caſe ben too eaſily drawne from the truth to affirme that which is falſ and erroneous, How eaſily then might ſuch a weake boy be peruerted and ſeduced? 3. Suppoſe that he had voluntarily and of his owne accord confeſſed that in all thinges he diſſembled, yet the ſame ſuffiſed not to proue him a counterfeit, ſeeinge it is evident ſome thinges were done or ſuffered by him which can by no poſſibilitie be counterfeited: whence may be drawne an unavoydable argument to craze the credite of him and Somrs and of the reſt of the ſuppoſed counterfeites: For no man confeſſinge or reportinge an impoſſibilitie of himſelfe ought to be credited: But Somers, Dærling, Katherine Wright

and

bade him, and further shee did confesse that after that time, she neuer sawe the said little dogge, but once, that it came to her in the Gayole at Darby, whether shee was committed for the said facte, and she being in the sayde Gaole, was brought before the Iustices of Assise and Gaole deliuerie, and their desiered the said Iustices to be good to her and forgiue her, & she would neuer doe so any more. In testimonie whereof we hereunto severally sett our handes and seales, dated the First daye of October. 1598.

Humferye Ferrers. Thomas Gresley.

To all those to whom it doth or may appertaine, we whose names are vnder written, aswell resiantes and inhabitantes of the towne of Burton vpon Trent in the countie of Stafford, as others greetinge. whereas wee haue bene requested, and desired to certifie our knowledges, concerninge the straūg handling or be taking of one Tho. Darling of late grieuously handled and tormented, and that in such strange manner as was wonderfully to be hould, (whereof we weare eye witnesses) we therefore for the better satisfying of all those, that are desierous to know the truth in that behalfe haue thought good to signifie, that we are perswaded, and doe verily thinke, that the saide Tho. Darling did not dissemble, or counterfeite in any of those his fittes, or strange betakinges. And the causes or reasons which moue vs so to thinke be many, whereof for avoyding of over tedious matter, we will onely herein alledge some few, (as namely) first for that we haue knowne the said Tho. Darling from his childhood to be of an honest and gratious disposition. and both himselfe and his frends in whose keepinge he was duringe his said fittes to be such as we are well assured, would haue no hand incounterfeit or lewde practises, and also the manner of those his fittes, tormentes or betakeings were such, and so supernaturall as we are fully perswaded that no man is possibile able to counterfeit the like. And also for that their was one Alice Gooddridge &c. To the effect in the afore said Testimoniall. And their vpon this Alice Gooddridge being brought before the Iustices of assise and Gaole delinery was by dewe course of lawe then convicted of the same fact, in testimony whereof we haue hereunto severally subscribed our names, dated at Burton aforesaide the fifte daye of October. 1598.

Peter Eckersall minister at Burton. I. Grainger. VV. Caldwall VV. Hawes. I. Hawes H. Blackwall R. Turner VV, woodcocke I. Fichit I, Finney E, wrightman V. Palmer R. Moore R. Hyde I. Debanke I. Bridgett E. Hudsonne T, Dutton R. watson I. Horbyne R. Baker H. Clarke, E. Goodcole R. Taylor I. Simpson T. Hasten the elder, constables of Burton. T. Hasten the younger R. Hayes w. Harresen I. Taylor. R. Shenten. H. wackfeild. R. Tomson T. Saunders. I. Alsoppe. R. Teale. w. Clarke. T. Stanly. R. Hendlye I. Henworthe I. Butler R. Bradlye Raphe Teate.

of iniuſtice or ſimplicitie, or both. And theſe thinges are ſo notoriuſly knowen to all the Cuntrye, that an hundred ſuch ſhameleſſe Diſcoueryes as this, are not able once to bringe them (I meane the impoſſibilites afore-ſaide) into doubte or queſtion there. For the further confirmation where of, we are ready to proue and auerre the ſame by the oathe of many ſufficient witneſſes, and there by make it moſt euident and playne to the world, that it is impoſſible that Darlinge ſhoulde be a counterfeit. In the meane ſeaſon we may remember that two Iuſtices of peace and quorum and aboue fortye of the inhabitantes of Burton neyghbours there-vnto, which were eye wytneſſes of Darlinges vexations haue vnder theire handes in twoo ſeuerall teſtimonials witneſſed, that his fitts, torments, or betakinges, were ſuch and ſo ſupernaturall, as they are fully perſwaded no man is poſſible able to counterfeite and for this and ſome other reaſons are perſwaded and doe verily thinke that Darlinge did not diſſemble: as appeareth by the tenure of their letters teſtimoniall here followinge. The former wher of the Biſhop hath, and a coppie of the latter, as I take it.

To all thoſe to whom it doth or may appertaine, wee whoſe names are vnder written, Iuſtices of peace, and quorom within the countes of Stafford, and Darby, amongeſt others ſend greeting. whereas we haue bine requeſted and deſired to certifie our knowledges, concerninge the ſtraunge handling or betakeing of one Thomas Darlinge. of late greuouſly handled and tormented, and that in ſuch ſtrang manner as was wonderfully to behould, (whereof we weare eye witneſſes) we therfore for the better ſatiſfying of all thoſe that are deſirous to know the truth in that behalfe, haue thought good to ſignifie, that we are perſwaded, and doe verily thinke, that the ſaide Thomas Darlirg, did not diſſemble, or counterfeit in any thoſe his fittes, or ſtrange betakinges, and the cauſes or reaſons which moue vs ſo to thinke, is: Firſt for that the manner of thoſe his fittes, tormeuts, or betakeinges, weare ſuch, and ſo ſupernaturall as we are fully perſwaded, no man is poſſible able to counterfeite the like. And alſo for that their was one Alice Goodderidge, the wife of one Oliuer Goodderidge, of Stapenhill, within the countie of Darby, who long before that time, had bene ſuſpected for a witche, and being for that cauſe brought before vs, did vpon her examination before vs, confeſſe that ſhee did miſtake the ſaid Tho. Darling, and thought it had bine one Sherratte a boy who had done her ſome wronge (as ſhe ſaith) and moreouer we haue bine informed by ſome of good credit to vs well knowne, that the ſaid Alice Goodderidge did confeſſe that ſhe did call her thing (for ſo ſhe tearmed it) which was (as ſhe ſaid) in liknes of a little dog and called it Minnie, and bad it goe after the ſaid Darling (thinkinge it had bine Sherratt) and torment him in all the partes of his body, which ſaid little dogge retourned to her againe, and tould her he had done as ſhee

badde

bade him, and further shee did confesse that after that time, she neuer sawe the said little dogge, but once, that it came to her in the Gayole at Darby, whether shee was committed for the said facte, and she being in the sayde Gaole, was brought before the Iustices of Assise and Gaole deliuerie, and their desiered the said Iustices to be good to her and forgiue her, & she would neuer doe so any more. In testimonie whereof we hereunto severally sett our handes and seales, dated the First daye of October. 1598.

Humferye Ferrers. Thomas Gresley.

To all those to whom it doth or may appertaine, we whose names are vnder written, aswell resiantes and inhabitantes of the towne of Burton vpon Trent in the countie of Stafford, as others greetinge. whereas wee haue bene requested, and desired to certifie our knowledges, concernninge the straug handling or be taking of one Tho. Darling of late grieuously handled and tormented, and that in such strange manner as was wonderfully to be hould, (whereof we weare eye witnesses) we therefore for the better satisfying of all those, that are desirous to know the truth in that behalfe haue thought good to signifie, that we are perswaded, and doe verily thinke, that the saide Tho. Darling did not dissemble, or counterfeite in any of those his fittes, or strange betakinges. And the causes or reasons which moue vs so to thinke be many, whereof for auoyding of over tedious matter, we will onely herein alledge some few, (as namely) first for that we haue knowne the said Tho. Darling from his childhood to be of an honest and gratious disposition. and both himselfe and his frends in whose keepinge he was duringe his said fittes to be such as we are well assured, would haue no hand incounterfeit or lewde practises, and also the manner of those his fittes, tormentes or betakeings were such, and so supernaturall as we are fully perswaded that no man is possibile able to counterfeit the like. And also for that their was one Alice Gooddridge &c. To the effect in the afore said Testimoniall. And theirvpon this Alice Gooddridge being brought before the Iustices of assise and Gaole deliuery was by dewe course of lawe then conuicted of the same fact, in testimony whereof we haue hereunto severally subscribed our names, dated at Burton aforesaide the fifte daye of October. 1598.

Peter Eckersall minister at Burton. I. Grainger. VV. Caldwall VV. Hawes. I. Hawes H. Blackwall R. Turner VV, woodcocke I. Fichit I, Finney E, wrightman V. Palmer R. Moore R. Hyde I. Debanke I. Bridgett E. Hudsonne T, Dutton R. watson I. Horbyne R. Baker H. Clarke, E. Goodcole R. Taylor I. Simpson T. Hasten the elder, constables of Burton. T. Hasten the younger R. Hayes w. Harresen I. Taylor. R. Shenten. H. wackfeild. R. Tomson T. Saunders. I. Alsoppe. R. Teale. w. Clarke. T. Stanly. R. Hendlye I. Henworthe I. Butler R. Bradlye Raphe Teate.

Thus we see that howsoeuer darlinges vexation by Sathan is not confirmed by the oathes of men as Somers is: Yet by the testemonie of many witnesses of good credit, who render 3. forcible reasons a gaynst counterfeitynge. He nowe that is so filthye as to beleiue this Discouerer vpon his bare reporte without any proofe or reason of Darlinges counterfeiting, before the testimonye of so manye alleaging such effectuall reasons against counterfeytinge: let him be fylthye still and yet more filthye. The matter contained in theise testimonials makinge against Darlings coounterfeitinge, I haue sufficiently pressed and vrged before in my Apologie wherevnto the Disc. returneth no manner of answere at all, and yet beareth the world in hand, that he hath dispatched and wiped away all. These thinges which make so strongly against counterfeiting are likewise sett downe in the printed booke of Darling, and are the principall thinges in it to be obserued to proue his vexation by Sathan: against these therfore and the rest of this kynde, the Disc. shoulde haue bente his force in that course he hath taken, wherevnto he saith not a worde: and not haue passed by these as if he sawe them not, and in stede of them cull out some petie triflinge thinges that maye easely be practised, or make a shewe of a possibillitie to be counterfeited. as namely, the speches vttered by the tongue of Darlinge dialogue wise and his apparitiones of a Catt, a Dragon, a Beare Lightnings, Thundring, a Lambe, a Doue, etc. which though I am assured that Darling did not counterfeit, yet it is euident that it is no harde matter to counterfeite and dissemble the same and more, if one were so lewdly giuen: and the world will easilie be drawen to beleiue a practice in such small and slighte matters as these: when it neither will nor can beleue these thinges here mẽtioned to be counterfeited. And thus is laid open and discouered the craftie and fraudulent dealing of the Discouerer.

Discouerer

pag 192. Lastly it is to be obserued, than Darlinge after he had continued a while in his first pretended fits, many supposed and gaue it out, that he was but a dissembler, as it maye appeare by the depositions following vz, Iesse Bees and Edw: Bakers.

Darrell

This is his other argument to proue Darling a counterfeit. The verye same he vsed before to proue Sommers a counterfeite. A worthy one it is sure and in effect the same with this: many supposed and gaue it out, that Paull was a God: therfore he is a God. Thus we see what a act. 14, 11. blasphemous conclusion would followe vpon such an Antecedent, if it were true. when the Disc. hath put this argument of his (denyed by me) into moode and figure, and proued the proposition, vz. whatsoe-

uer

yet many suppose and giue out in speech is true, I will then yelde him the coucluſion, and reſigne him the conqueſt, and acknowledg both Sommers and Darlinge to be counterfeites. And this maye ſuffice for anſwere to the Diſcouerie concerning Darlinges counterfeytinge, and my teaching of him.

OF CHAP. 6.

Diſcouerer

A breife of Katherin Wrights confeſſion touchinge the beginning of her diſſimulation, and of the reaſons that moued her ſo to doe..

The generall cauſe it ſelfe touching the late attempts of caſtinge out the deuill is of great importance: otherwiſe it is not vſuall, that matters ſo long paſt vz. about 13. or, 14. yeares ſhould be ſearched into.

Darrell.

There is a cauſe then wee ſee of our attemtinge, he meaneth pretendinge to caſt out deuils, but what this cauſe ſhould be, that is a ſecret forſooth, we ſhall heare more of that another time, for the preſente we muſt contente our ſelues with a generall notize of a genrall cauſe, and that (ſaith he) of a greate importance. It is to be thought therfore and preſumed that he meaneth the ſame cauſe which he ſpeaketh of, Pag. 14. 15, that is, the ſetting vp of the Preſbiteriall conceits, or diſcipline ſo long contended-for by ſome. VVhere-vnto we anſwerer (yf he meane ſo) as Nehemiah ſometime did to Sanballat the enemie of the Iewes: It is not done according to theſe wordes that thou ſaieſt: for thou faineſt them of thine owne harte. nehemiah. 6. 8.

Diſcouerer.

Katherin Wright being examined, confeſſeth vpon heroath, that in all the courſe of her pretended poſſeſſion and diſpoſſeſſion, and of her fytts both before and ſince, whatſoeuer ſhee did that ſemed to be extraordinarie, it was all diſſembled. pag. 279.

Darrell

To get this confeſſiõ from this poore & ſimple maide (which is all that the Diſc. hath to proue Katherin Wrights diſſimulation) wee muſt know, that the Commiſſioners (who were ſent downe by the B. of London for the ſame purpoſe the preſident or principal where of for ſooth was S. Harſnet. this Diſc.) kept her with thẽ two halfe dayes and a nighte, and in the ſaid time threatned to burne her fete if ſhee would uot confeſſe that ſhe had diſſembled: as ſhee affirmed forthwith after ſhee came from the commiſſioners, bewaylinge her faide periurie. And herein S. Harſnet a commiſſioner was a principall agent. But be it granted that this her confeſſion was voluntarie, and not extorted, as the contrarye is manifeſt. Yet therein is ſhe not to be beleiued becauſe in ſo affirminge ſhee reporteth thoſe thinges to haaue bene done done by her selfe which she possiblye coulde not doe. For K. Wright in her tyts did swell excedinglie in her body & necke, whence it came to passe that she wente daylye with her petitcoate slacke laced to the length of one hande: somethinge also was sencyblye felt to stir vp & downe in her bodye, as if it had bene some quicke thinge. Shee was likewise of extraordinarie and supernaturall strength, and of such excedinge waight, that 5. stronge men by reason of her waighte (she not strivinge or strugginge at al) could scarcelye carrye her a little waye, albeit she were then but of some, 16. or 17. yeares of age. To these I maye add this one prettie toye of the deuill, which I doe not see how it could possibly be counterfeite. She being at one M. Edward de Beresfordes house, desirous to drinke, but could take none: M. Beresford him selfe came and called for drincke, but as they held it to her mouthe, beholde the drincke spirted vp out of the peice to the roofe of the parlour.

although a spirit cannot be felt yet it may cause a sturring or shutting vp & down of the tatcats: as did in Somers before the 12 commissioners

M. Beresford deposing this, S. Harsnett refused it, M. Beresford notwithstanding willed it might goe amonge the rest of his depositions, but S. Harsnet still rejecting it, said vnto him thus, belike you will haue it a miracle, yf you will haue it a miracle you shal answer it before my L. of London.

Discoverer

And this course she confesseth she hath holde from the time she began it, vntill the time almost of her examination. vz about 13. or 14. yeares: partely because shee was by that occasion much made of, and for that she feared. that if she had shewed her selfe to haue bene perfectly well for any long season, her father in lawe would haue fallen to his former hard vsage of her.

pag. 298.

Dartell

Yf K. Wright haue counterfeited, she hath therin spent the prime of her life, from the age of 17. vntill about 30. theirby depriueing her selfe of many, if not of all the comforts of this life, as societie, marriage &c. who can now in any reason thinke, that a younge damsell to my remembrance of a comely feature and personage. desirous enough (if not to much) of the pleasures of this life, would wittingly, and willingly depriue her selfe of them all, and that for so many yeares together, and to such an end as heere is pretended. I deny not that K. Wright hath deposed that this was the reason of her counterfeitinge, But I trust S. Harsnet did thervnto by his slyghtes and deuises draw her & entice her. Neuertheles who of vnderstandinge will beleiue eyther him or her, seeing there were more easie and honest wayes to haue avoyded the hard vsage of her father in lawe, (to admit such vsage) then this of fayning to be possessed with the deuil? as either by going to service, or coupling her selfe to some in honest mariage. And truly I can not but maruile, that she hath not bene all this while wearie and double wearie of counterfeiting and had her fill theirof, seeinge shee hath continued so long in the practise of it. It is somethinge also that in all this time her counterfeiting hath not bene espied nor found out, till the Discouerer came with his fellow commissioners. But this surpasseth eth al the reſt, that after ſo longe coumterfeitinge about 14. yeare continuance: ſhe is not yet punniſhed at all for her ſaide counterfeiting, nor M. Sommers neither, nor any of the reſt. Oh ſaith ahe Diſcouerer concerninge Ka. Wright, when ſhe was examined ſhe profeſſed, pag 298. that thenceforth ſhe would become a newe woman, and leaue al her former diſſimuation. This then belike is ſatiſfaction ſufficiente for all her counterfeiting. As good a ſatiſfaction are the like wordes vttered by a notorious theiſe, murtherer, or any other malefactors: & yet neuer theles they are puniſhed by the chriſtian magiſtrat, & ſo ought to be

CHAP. 7.

Of M Darrells procedinges with Katherin Wright for her pretended diſpoſſeſſion.

But there was another engine vſed, as Ka. Wrighte hath depoſed in theſe wordes. One faſhion of M. Darrell in my pretended diſpoſſeſſion at pag 300. Manſfeilde, was to lye vpon my bellye, ſaying that he woulde by ſo lyinge preſſe the Diuell out of me. When this ſtrange faſhion was obiected to M. Darrell: Ah quoth he, I looked for this, and then framed his anſwere vnto it in this ſorte. I hauinge read in the ſcriptures, how Elias and Saint Paul did ſtretch themſelues alonge on ſome that weare dead, in their recouery to life, and beinge a younge ſtudent in diuiniti, not paſt foure or 25. yeares of age, I did in a blinde zeale (as I thinke) lie vpon the ſaied Ka. Wright as it is obiected. Afterwardes this his ſaied anſwere beinge repeated as the manner is, he did thus amend it viz. I did lie vpon the ſaied Ka. Wrighte, but not vpon her bellie, as I beleue. This quallification beinge alowed of, he deſired about three dayes after a ſeconde reuiew: and then for the diſcharge of his conſcience as he ſaied in deliuering the truth, he ſet down his minde in this ſorte: Wheras being examined vpon the ſudden of a fact done twelue yeares paſt, I haue ſaied that I did the ſame as there it is expreſſed in a blind Zeale, meaning a fooliſh and indiſcrete imitation of the Prophet and Apoſtle: I doe now proteſt that hauinge called my ſelfe better to minde by conferinge with my wife who was then preſent, and by better deliberration vpon the ſame, that I verily beleiue I did not the ſaid facte, to the ende there ſpetified: for that I neuer dreamed at that time of working any miracle, neither did looke for her deliuerance from Sathan, but ſhe being at that time verie vnrulie I did it to kepe her downe, there being alſo at that time another vpon ſome part of her, and vpon me that we might the rather keepe her downe. And thus at the length, you haue his perfecte anſwere wherein it is to be feared that he hath made boulde with his oath. For where as at the thirde time he ſaith he was taken vpon the ſudden, when he made his firſt anſwere, that ſemeth not to be true, for that his ſaide lying vpon her was no ſooner mentioned vnto him, but he affirmed that he looked for it, and had two examples readie for his excuſe therein.

I desire thee (good reader) with patience to heare & with wisdome to consider of that which is here thus cunninglie & malitiously published against me. I am charged thou seest, with counterfeiting, and haue bene thus long imprisoned, tossed and turmoiled, examined and reexamined for teaching to counterfeit: but the proofe of this fayling, and S. Harsnet and his Master both comming short of this their purpose & intent, to their greife: and not being able for their liues with all there wreasting, packing, and miserable shifts, to convince me of this sinne, then they flye to another shifte (a sluttish one) thinkinge theirby vtterly to shame me, and disgrace me foreuer vz. To make the world beleiue that I am a vitious and vncleane person, their withall closly implyinge and perswadinge men yf they could: that Darrell who makes no conscience of so foule a sinne as that of vncleannes, will neuer make bones at so smale a matter as for glorie to teach men to counterfeit: & heerein lyeth the strength and force of all this foule batterie against me, in that one sinne is apte enough to drawe on another. But if I were such a one indeede as they would so faine haue me seeme to be, vz. either a drunckard or alehouse haunter with Somers, as before is insinuated: or an vncleane person of vnchast behauior with K. Wright as here is insinuated, and more playnly by that marginall note, pag. 37. Darels lust: I doubt not, but they would haue bene able after all their searching and inquirie into my former life, to haue made some better proofe theireof then they haue.

Now before I enter into the answere of such particulars as are here thus vniustlye charged vpon my head, to wype away all ielousie and suspition which may happely enter into the conceipte of too many against me: I doe here vnfeinedly protest in the presence of God and his Angels, that in all this my dealinge with Kat. Wright, I had not (I thanke God) so much as an vncleane thought: neither did I lye on her in such manner as Elias & Paul somtimes did in the restoringe of two to life, nor yet in imitation of them: all which I directly deposed before the Bishop. And that theire was no vncleannes in acte, euery one may be assured hereby, in that this said lyeing were their present, and eye witnesses theirof, my owne wyfe with other weomen, and for that another man also, Edward Loades by name lay together with me vpon her: all or most of which witnesses be yet liveynge, and readie to beare witnes herevnto, if they might be admitted: with one of which at the least, the wife of Henry Crosse of Mansfeild, S. Harsnet had speach at Mansfeild, as he with his fellow commissioners returned from examininge K. Wright, but what shee witnessed we heare not, onely my selfe heard that he receiued such answeare from her, and found her so backwarde from affirminge that he would haue had her, as he

threatt

threatned to haue her before the B. of London, and with impriſonmēt their. This being ſo, and my conſcience being cleere even coram tribunali, I may the bolder good reader craue thy patience to heare my further anſweare to the particulars as followeth.

Being by the Biſhop of London examined concerning this *Lying*e I ſayd that I did not well remember wherefore I did it, and no maruell, being ſo long ſince it was done, about 14. yeares, and a thing not worthy the remembring: notwithſtanding the Biſhop preſſing me to an immediat anſwere, would needes haue me ſay ſomething. VVhere vpon to ſatiſfie his importunacy, I tould him that for the preſent I did thinke or imagin that I did it in ſome childiſh, fooliſh, and vndiſcrete imitaion of the Prophet and Apoſtle: For quoth I vnto him I was then young and had ſtudied diuinitie bvt a while, and therefore it may be did fall into ſuch an error and childiſh parte. But after my departure entring into a more ſerious conſideraton of the matter & hauing my memorie alſo holpen and releiued by other meanes. I returned with al the conuenient ſpeed I could not 3. dayes after as the Diſc. ſaith, but ſooner, and craued that my ſayd anſwere might be corrected, for that I had much miſtaken the matter. VVhere vpon being depoſed againe, I affirmed as the truth was, that I did not lye on her in imitation of the prophet & Apoſtle, wherof I rendred 3 reſons. Two of them are mentioned bv the Diſc. himſelfe, but the third & principal he hath after his vſual manner craftely omitted, leaſt the reader ſhould happely lyght on that might tend to my clearing. The reaſon was this If I had done ſo as Elias and the Apoſtle did, Then no doubt I ſhould haue laied my mouth vpon her mouth my eyes vpon her eyes & my handes vpon her hands. &c. wheras there was no ſuch thing don neither can be imagined to be: for thē I wold haue layen on herin one of her trances, (ſeeing ſhee had many) and not in a fytt & ſuch a fitt wherein aboue all other ſhe was worſt to be ruled: nay it can not in any reaſon be conceiued that I intended any ſuch thinge conſidering Edwarde Loades (a man yet lyuing) ioyned with me in that Lying. This I did ſay vpon my oath, and can preue parte of it by witneſſes. notwithſtanding all this my firſt anſwere was not corrected, wherein (as I am informed) I am dealt with contrary to Lawe equitie and Iuſtice, but yet not contrary to the vſuall dealing of the Biſhop and his Chapline. Albe it then I freely confeſſe that in the ſaide done ſo longe ſince I was very vndiſcreete, and in my anſweare vpon my examination no leſſe raſh and vnaduiſed: yet the caſe beinge no otherwiſe then we heare, their was ſmale cauſe why either it ſhoulde be obiected againſt me before the iudgment ſeate, or that Doctor Barlow ſhould haue it vp as it were vpon a ſtage, in Cambrige at the commencemsnt, or the Diſc. in this triumphant ſort to publiſh and proclame claime it to the world, therby to make Dærrell an odious & infamous perſon: as if he ſhould lye vpon a woman in beaſtly manner, or els fooliſhly & preſumptuouſly doe it in imitatiō of Elias or Paul: which as I haue proteſted is moſt falſe. But ſuppoſe this latter weare true: yet ſeeing it was done ſo many yeares ſince, when I was little better then a chud in vnderſtandinge, and that now beinge of riper yeares I am as farr from approuing theirof, or practiſinge the like as any man whatſoeuer, it muſt needes be I take it, and cannot be excuſed to be in the higheſt degree of mallice, and the hardeſt meaſure of reuenge, in this deſpightful & opprobrious manner to obiect it againſt me. And yet when they haue all done & ſtrained aud racked this folly or vndiſcrete parte of mine to the vttermoſt, it will be found to weake to proue or convince me of that which they would ſo fayne (yea rather then their liues) find me guiltie off. vz. This teaching the art of notorious counterfeiting. what doth my ſuppoſed lyinge on K. Wright (if it were true, as it is falſe) helpe and further them in this their plea and accuſation againſt me? ſurely not one iote at all, but onely to eaſe their ſtomokes, and wreake their mallice. And this makes me remember a report of the old Earle of Surrie, who being araigned and called before the Commiſſioners for Hihg Treaſon, it was among other thinges alleadged againſt him by ſome then in authoritie, that he had very diſorderly broken the glaſſe windowes in Cheapſide. whervnto the Earle made anſweare: what? doe you call me hither for High treaſon and doe you alleadge vnto me the follies of my youth? Even thus (good reader) fareth it with me at this inſtant. I haue bene called hither by the High Commiſſion, and haue endured thus long trouble and impriſonment, not for bny brifle or triflinge matter if it ſhould be true, but for ſuch avile and ſhamfull practiſe, as deſerueth rather the ſeuere ſcourge or rigour of iuſtice, and my ſelfe to be made a fearefull example and ſpectacle to poſteritie, then to haue any booke or any ſuch baulinge diſcourſe as the Diſc. hath wrirten and publiſhed againſt me. And yet we ſee when they come to proue this hainous matter againſt me, then they fall to tell me (as theſe men did by the Earle) of my breakinge of glaſe windowes I meane of my lying on K. Wright: which fact as I my ſelfe do not approue of but cōdemne as very vndiſcretly done, ſo they for their partes may make much of it, but it will little avayle them to prone me guiltie of teaching K. Wright to counterfeit a poſſeſſion and diſpoſſeſſion of the deuill..

That which pleaſeth the Diſcouerer to tearme my qualification, is nothing leſſe, but onely an anſweare to certayne words of the article which at the firſt readinge of the B. (if he read them) I marked not well, containing in it a playne and direct anſweare to that which was not anſwered before. wherein yet the Diſc. after his wonted manner

hath

hath left out parte and the best parte on Darrels behalfe, vz. these wordes: I did lye vpon her side, she lying on her side, and this (as my answere to this article will witnes) I deposed at the same time when I sayd my lying was in imitation of the prophet, as I did (vz. for the present) thinke: whereas I was not then very sure, so had I aduisedly considered thereof, and better remembered my selfe, I had presently and in the same moment corrected that false immagination of mine, wherein I so much wronged my selfe. Now as the Disc. hath omitted part of my deposition, so (the better to peice vp his patcherie,) hath he added somethinge of his owne, vz. as I beleiue: and againe, I verily beleiue, which words because the argue a doubting, the Disc. hath inserted, as though I had stoode in doubt of those thinges, wherof I am and was very sure and out of all doubt. Neither would I haue protested so confidentlye as is here confessed, and then come in after wards with I beleiue. I verily beleiue.

This perad venture would haue cleared Darrell too much, and therfore no reason for M. Harsnet to set it downe.

VVhen I sayd Ah I looked for this. I did not meane such a fylthy and ridiculus deposition as is here mentioned, or such an article as then was read vnto me much worse then the deposition: but being examined concerninge Ka. VVright, I looked to heare of my said lying and to be examined thereof, and that the world should be borne in hande that it was in an vncleane desire, and thervnto inded inclined the article. The reason whereof was because I knew Sathan would bringe to light and spread abroade, this rash and vndiscret acte of mine, if god did permit him, and that the same through the greate folly of man and prones to beleue any thing reported thovgh neuer so false, especially against a preacher and minister of the word, would tend to my reproach, and not rest there, but thorough the false perswation thereof, keepe many from beleuing the workes of God wherein the Lord had vsed me as an instrument among others This greiuing me inwardly in my soule, and in that my greife these wordes burstinge forth, the Disc. wold faine here vpon inferr, that I made bolde with my oath, because I sayd that I was examined vpon the sodaine. To this I answere and it is true, that I was on the sodaine examined of this facte, and yet loked for the same, after that the Bishop began to examin me as touching Ka VVright: for before he came to this article, there were diuers other articles proposed vnto me concerning this said Katherin, about the which the Bishop was a good space in examining me. In which interim I looked to heare of that which now the world you see (through the charitie of this chaplaine and his good Maister) thus infamously heareth. As touching this deposition of Ka VVrights, he is verie simple that knoweth not who taught or perswaded her so to depose and that it came not of her selfe, if so be shee haue so deposed.

Discouerer

VVe see that Ka VVright was dispossessed, but not by the ordinarie meanes (of prayer and fasting) that Christ appoynted: and so Darrel must be driven to confesse that he wrought a miracle.

pag 303.

Darrell

I haue shewed els where that Deuils are or may be cast out by prayer, or by prayer amd fasting, according to the kind of spirit wher with the partie is possessed: and that this is the ordinance of Christ. K VVright then being by prayer dispossessed, was healed by the ordinary meanes, as wel as those which be deliuered from Sathan by fastinge and praier: and therefore not by miracle.

Discouerer

It being obiected to M. Darell by her maiesties Commissioners, that he knowing the saied Katherin VVright to dissemble in her pretended fites at Manssfeild, had priuat conference with her, and taught her how to order her selfe in the manner of her counterfeiting, wherby he encouraged her in that her lewd course, he doth deny it, but thereof Ka. VVright deposeth thus: M. *Darrell after his coming to me at Manssfeild, did tell and teach me alone, how to use and order my selfe in my fites.

pag. 303.

Darrell

Ka VVright saied this for feare least her feete should haue bene burned. 2. K. VVright came to Manssfeild but two dayes before her dispossession, before which time she had bene for many weekes handled after a strange and greiuous manner, euen after the same manner as shee was at Manssfeild and after at VVhittington vpon her repossession, as is euident by pag. 305. where-vpon shee was first had to one Arthur a coniurer, to be holpen yf it might be, and after by the appoynt ment of the now Ladie Bowes, then Mistres Fovliam to Chesterfeild a market towne thereby, whether by her meanes also repared sundrye neighbour ministers, which seing her in diuers fits, suspected her to be possessed, wherevpon the same was bruted in those quarters, and this was before she came to Manssfeilde as the aforesaid Ladie with many others can witnes. It can not be then (were K. VVright a counterfit that I did teach her at Manssfeild seing whether she coũterfeited, or was possessed, it was so with her long before she was sẽt by M Beresforde to Manssfeild, before which time God he knoweth, I neuer saw her, neither doth Ka VVright nor yet the Disc. say any thing to the contrarie. 3. I was saith Ka. VVright when I parted from M Darrell in the very same case that I came to Manssfeild. And for the strẽgthening* hereof are produced the depositons of three, wherevpon the Disc. (pag 305) concludeth thus: By which conference of the time it appeareth directly that Ka. Wright was not at all in any sorte releiued by M Darrell And in another place the towne wher I then dwelt to one Edward Loades, to be helped by his father in law: M. Beckingham.

Anſ. 1.
2

3
pag. 305.
then sure theire was either counterfeiting, or els possession before.
which indede is false, neither is the same deposed by the 3 witnesses, but onely this: that short after her return from Manssfeilde, she was as euill at before, handled after her wonted manner according to her former fites which needes must be so, because she was possessed.
pag 298.

place thus. And this course she confesseth, she hath held from the time she began it, vntill the time almost of this her examination, vz. about 13. or 14 yeares. This considered I desire to know of the Discouerer, wherefore I did teach Ka. Wright to counterfeit, If to glorye in the dispossession of her, as is to be intended, for the gayne of one peny is not layed to my charge: how cometh it to passe, that Ka. Wright fayned not her selfe to be dispossessed; & so continued well euer after that I with others vsed prayer in her behalfe, but not withstanding the prayers vsed to the end to make shew that she was therby dispossessed, and a secret agreement theirof betwene vs, if the Disc. say truly, yet continued the very same, counterfeiting a possession after in like manner as before? This tended to the shame of me her master, and not to my prayse: all the glorie had bene in the fained dispossession, whervnto the dissemblinge of a possession onely serued, (if their had bene any such iniquitie) and therefore would in no case haue bene omitted. who can be so grosse as once to imagine that I did teach K. Wright to counterfeit a possession, and giue her no instruction concerning the dissembling of a dispossession? speciallie seeinge I did affirme and beare the world in hand that shee was dispossessed vpon the prayers vsed by my selfe & others? what in common sence would K. Wrights fayninge to be possessed advantag me? Had K. VVright dissembled to haue had the deuill cast out of her by me, and then must she haue remained well, after I pretended to dispossesse her, in carnall reason ther was somthing to haue induced me theirvnto, but their was nothing in reason to leade me to perswad and teach her to counterfeite onely to be possessed with the deuill, and the sam for many yeares to dissemble. As this could not procure me in particular the prayse of men, and to be reputed to haue some rare and odd gifte in casting out deuils, but rather the contrary, all things well considered: so neither in generall could it further the setting vp of the Presbyteriall conceites: seeing heerewas no deuill cast out by a Presbiteriall man, to commend him, & his conceits to the world. And this is the 14. time the Discouerer is convinced and shamed by his owne Discouery. pag. 15.

4. It is to be remembred, that K. wright setting downe the cause of her dissimulation forsooth, doth not mention any profite or benifite shee should receiue from me, or that I did beare her so in hand, but mentioneth the hard vsage of her father in lawe Iohn Mekin, in beating & bruising her very sore to deliuer her selfe from which she fell of counterfeiting: wherevnto the Disc. addeth, a desire to liue at some ease, and to be much made of by her parentes. If these were the reasons or causes of K. Wrights dissimulation, as K. VVright and the Disc. tell vs: then she did not dissemble for Darrels sake, not for any profite or benefite she was to receiue from him. And this is the 15. time that the Discouerer is con- anſ. 4. pag. 197 198 & 313.

vinced

vinced by his Discouery: except you will say these were not the onely causes of her counterfeiting, which we can not in any reason thinke, seeinge neither K. VVright nor Disco. (who betwene them I truit haue omitted none) haue named any other cause.

Hauinge answeared that which is said to proue K. VVright a counterfeite, and my selfe to haue taught her, the rest in this chapter beinge of lesse moment I omit, as not worthy the answearinge, and so will proceed to Mary Cooper the fourth counterfeite.

OF CHAP. 8.

OF M. Darrels proceedings with M. Cooper, the sister of william Somers Discouerer.

First M. Cooper saith thus: many times M. Darrell would call me vnto him a lone, I being in my fathers house, and tell me that he doubted, that I would proue in time to be possessed, and therfore bad me looke vnto it. His particular speaches with her were nothing else, but a cunninge proiect to put Mary Cooper in mind, that she might counterfeite such a matter, and so shee tooke it. Hereunto also that apertaineth, which she deposeth thus: I often times heard M. Darrell say before my pretended euilnes, that it was the deuils custome, when he had possessed one in a familie, to seeke to possesse more of the same familie likewise. This (as arguinge too plainly his cunning packing) M. Darrell denyeth: but it is some what strengthened by Somers deposition in this behalfe: beforetime (saith he) that I fell againe into this course, &c. Furthermore whiles the saide Mary Cooper was meditating as it seemeth vpon M. Darrels former speaches, it fell out that a child of hers died a little before Christmas: which she tooke so heavilie, as it made her as shee saith indeed and truly euill at ease, and somwhat weake: whereupon certaine women and others in the towne, comming vnto me, tould me (saith shee) that I was worse, then I knewe my selfe to be: and that I would be as evill as my brother william was. These wordes added to M. Darrells former speaches: that he doubted she would proue to be possessed, and that Sathan was not content with one in a familie, together with her experience of the signes of possession, which she had seene in her brother, and often heard of M. Darrell, made her (as shee saith) to doe that which she neuer thought to haue done: that is, (as she addeth) to tomble and tosse, to talke idely, and to laugh.

pag 315. & 316

Darrell

In this last chapter of the Discouery, the Disc. telleth vs of the counterfeitinge of one Mary Cooper of Nottingham, wife of Robert Cooper the younger, and sister to William Somers, and of my teachinge of her, or cunninge and fradulent practises vsed to the said end. And this he proueth by her deposition, strengthened by Somers deposition. other proofe hath he none. She counterfeited a possession. And to the end she might be deemed by the world to be possessed, shee did tumble & tosse toſſe, talke idely, and laugh. Surely theſe thinges are eaſily done, nei ther need ſhee to haue any helpe to teach her them, or I to haue vſed any great cunning therin, but of her ſelfe without me, ſhe was able to haue tumbled &c. And were not they wiſe people trow ye, which vpon the doinge of thoſe toyes would deeme her to be poſſeſſed? we muſt knowe then (and may in reaſon aſſure our ſelues) that were Mary Cooper a counterfeite, to make ſhew theirof ſhe did ſomething elſe beſides tumble and toſſe, talke idely and laugh: yea by the words of the Diſc. ſo much may be coniectured, in that he ſaith Mary Coopers experience of the ſignes of poſſeſſion, which ſhe had ſeene in her brother, and often heard of me, made her &c. whence it is to be gathered, that ſhe to be thought to be poſſeſſed with the deuill as well as her brother was, did counterfeite ſome (at leaſt) of the ſignes of poſſeſſion, as W. Somers her brother had to the ſaid end done before her. Let vs then (I ſay) conſider what counterfeit trickes ſhe did, and whether they be ſuch as I could teach, and ſhe learne and practiſe.

1 She conſtantly affirmed that viually in the nightes ſhe was trou bled with ſtrange ſights and viſions, and namely of Alice Freman: ſom thinge alſo now and then ſpeaking to her, and by ſome circumſtances this might be made probable.

2 It is certaine that on the daye ſhe was handled after a ſtrange manner by fites, and that by courſe or turne with her brother Somers, for he no ſooner ended his fites, but preſently in the twinkling of an eye, ſhe begane hers, and when ſhe ended, immediatly begane he: & thus they did though they were in ſeuerall roomes.

3. In theſe fites ſhe ſpeake very much, wherof ſhe knewe nothing after, and that this is true, it might be made very probable by diuers circumſtances alſo.

4. In ſome of her fites ſhe was of that ſtrength that 4. or 5. coulde ſcarſlye rule her.

5. She was of ſupernaturall kuowledge, tellinge of diuers thinges done a good way of her, and that at the ſame inſtant they were done.

6. In her fites ſhe was in the Iudgment of men without feelinge. As to her brother, ſo to her, a little thinge in appearance was done to make triall theirof, which notwithſtandinge vndoubtedly will ſuffice theirvnto. And that was this: her little finger was bended withall the force of a man inward, ſo as preſently after it ſwelled much, and great payne had ſhe theirof many dayes after: yet theirat ſtirred ſhe not at all, no more did Somers.

7. her belly was in the mideſt as it were deuided, and rayſed vp of either ſide.

8. Out of her belly was ſenſibly heard a kinde of whupping, alſo a noyſe much like to the whurring of a catt.

9. her bellye on the ſudden ſwelled, and was in eſtimation of the bignes of a woman ſomewhat more then haiſe gone with child: and ſo continued beinge litlle or not at all bigger, about a quarter of a-yeare. 2. This ſwelling would ſuddenly begone, & after a little while be their againe. 3. Vpon and duringe this ſwelling ſhe felt ſomthinge (as it were quicke) ſtirr within her, whervpon ſhe thought eſpecially at the firſt, that ſhe was with child, and now & then alſo through her great ſimplicitie ſhe ſo hoped a great while after: & yet alwayes from the begininge ſhe ſaid, that that ſtirring was nothing like to that ſhe felt within her when before ſhe was with child. After ſhe had thus cõtinued about 13. or 14. weekes, ſhe fell a traueling, ſo as midwife after midwife and neighbour weomen were called in and ſent for, wherin (as I was credibly informed) it went thus with her. At the begining of her trauile, her belly was about the bignes aforeſaid and ſoft: the next day very bigg, but ſoft: not long after very bigg, and hard, as if ſhe had bene indeede with child, and at the poynte of deliuerance: ſometimes alſo ſhe was very gaunt, hauinge her belly leſſe then a womans ordinarily is. Moreover, a ſtirringe or movinge was ſometimes ſeene and felt in very ſtrange and admirable manner, as if theire had bene ſome quicke thinge cauſinge it, but ſo as no ſubſtance could be felt: and this was in ſundrie partes of her body, as about her ſtomake, aboue her breſtes, and in her arme or ſhoulder. And this rare accidẽt together with this ſtrange alteration in her belly, from little to great, and from great to little, from ſoft to harde, & from harde to ſoft, was duringe the time of her trauell, which was for 2. or 3. dayes, as I remember. She had the paynes of a woman in trauill: and in danger of death, as many women in trauell: in ſo much as they which were with her deſpayringe of her life, cauſed the bell to be toled for her. In a-word, ſhe was in althinges like to a woman in trauell, differing onely heerein from others, in that they bring forth ſomethinge, either liuinge & reaſonable creature, or ſome vntimely birth: but ſhe nothinge at all, neither then nor after: trauell after trauell, and nothinge but trauelinge, and one would haue thought for a childe, for their were all the ſignes and forrunners of a child, and yet behold no childe was brought forth, nor yet any thing elſe. That iſſued from her, which neuer was knowne or heard of to come from any woman, but where a child was either brought or their to be brought into the world: and yet loe no child. Beſides theſe things which ſhe had in common with other weomen, which weomen can tell it is impoſſible to counterfeit, and a ſhame for men to ſay ſo: ſhe had this in ſpeciall and proper to her ſelfe, that lumpes of fleſh came from her, and that which beinge carried

carried to the Phisition, he said that if it came from nature, it was not possible for her to liue. Heere was a bloudie counterfeitinge, if you knewe all, as the weomen which were at this trauell can tell better then I. VVhiles these thinges, and presently after these thinges were done, she notwithstanding did rise out of her bed, & go vp & dow no the house, into the chamber, and neither keept bed nor house for all her traueling: which had cost her it may be her life if this her trauelinge had bene naturall, and not extraordinarie and supernaturall. In her brests also she had sometimes water, and sometimes milke. It was a prittie peece of cunning to conraye now milke now water, into her brestes, and such as fewe weomen can doe the like: and yet this we se is but the least of a many of her faytes. Is not this a strange kinde of traueling, and strange childe sure that this woman went with? It may be it will proue so in the end when this woman shall come to be deliuered of this childe. After all this trauelinge I haue seene this woman with her belly of a bignes somewhat more then ordinarie, and within halfe a quarter of an hovre and lesse, so bigg to my Iudgment and others, as a woman great with child and readie to be deliuered.

As the summe of this being examined by the B. of London, concerning Mary Cooper, I sett downe in wrighting, (whereof I read part to the Bishop he refusing to heare the rest) affirminge vpon my oath some of the same to be true of my owne knowledg, and that the rest I was crediblie informed and did beleiue to be true: so I offer now to those that be in authoritie to make prose heereof by many witnesses. pag 317.
Yea the Disc. himselfe confesseth she had a swellinge in her body whereby she verily thought her selfe to be with child. And a little after he produceth M. Cooper deposing thus: whē Mistres Gray and the rest of her cō pany (vz. the other weomen desired to come to her trauell) came about me saying and reporting, that I should be deliuered of some monstrous thing, pag 318.
Heereby it appeareth not onely that Mary Cooper trauiled, as is afore said, but also that in the same it went with her very extraordinarilie: wherevpon the weomen their present, looked not that the sayd Mary should haue bene deliuered of a childe, but of some monster: and trulye no maruell the premisses considered.

VVe heare what M. Cooper hath counterfeited, & what I haue taught her, if a counterfeite she be. But how did I teach her? For sooth I said vnto her I doubted she would proue to be possessed: and that Sathan was not content with one in a familie. This latter speach saith the Discouerer, (which no wise man will beleiue) argueth too playnly his cuning packing. Did euer man reade such ridiculous stuffe as this? Doth it not deserue rather to be hissed at, then answered? Frame the argument S. H. Darrell sayd to Mary Cooper, he doubted or thought she was possessed &c. therfore

Therfore he taught Mary Cooper to counterfeite a poſſeſſion. By the ſame reaſon certaine women and others in Nottingham which goeinge to Mary Cooper ſayd, ſhe would be as evill as her brother was, taught her to counterfeit. For heereby they ment ſhe would be poſſeſt as Somers was, which is more then that I affirmed. Heerevpon the Diſc. aſcribeth her counterfeitinge partly to them and this ſpeach of theirs: but how ſottiſhly he doth it, and how abſurdly he reaſoneth here againſt them and me, let every child iudge. A boy may ſee that were we deceiued, and Mary Cooper not poſſeſt, this ſaid ſpeach argueth our ſimplicitie, but no ſuch iniquitie as the Diſc. pretendeth: No leſſe groſſe is this, that Mary Cooper and I dwelling in the ſame towne, and I deſiring in my ſelfe that Mary Cooper ſhould counterfeite, and ſhe willinge on her part to performe the ſame, as the Diſc. pretendeth, yet dwellinge in the ſame towne and hauing ſundrie times ſpeach togetner, neither I nor ſhe euer had word of counterfeiting, but onely vſed ſuch ſpeaches as you heare: which were a cuning proiect (forſooth) to put her in pag 315 mind of counterfeiting. Heere was an apt ſcholler I trow, that need no further inſtruction in ſo difficult a matter, then to haue a few ſorye wordes (ſuch as you heare) caſt forth, which might put her in minde on lye of that ſhee ſhould doe. Her brother was good at learninge his feites, if you will beleiue the Diſcouerer, but ſhe farr ſurpaſſeth him. But Mary Cooper in the depoſition proceedeth.

Diſcouerer.

Which laughing, I would ſometimes haue reſtrayned, but could not,
pag 316 by reaſon of the peoples fooliſh ſpeaches that were preſent. This laughing and fleering ſome would thinke to be but a ſmale matter: but conſider what M. Darrell gathereth of it. I affirmed ſaith he in Mary Coopers hearing, that her laughing and fleeringe countenance was ſuch as I had ſeene in others poſſeſſed. Againe, I haue ſayd that her laughter in her fits did proceed from the deuill.

Darrel

Concerning this laughing, and the wordes I ſpake as touchinge the ſame, this we muſt vnderſtand: that for certaine weekes when Mary Cooper was about her aforeſaid trauelling, and Sathan moſt buſie about her, ſhe was giuen ſo to laughing, that ſhee no ſooner looked of any body but ſhee would laugh or ſmile, neither could ſhe abſtaine as ſhe ſaid, and no doubt truly. Now I ſeeing this coũtenance in her ſometimes, and hearing of it by others, and perceiuing euidently at the ſame time the worke of Sathan vpon her, & calling to mind the fleeringe countenance and laughing not onely of K. Wright, but alſo of 3. of the 7. in Lancaſhire, and withall conſidering that ſuch an effect might well proceed from the deuill, who by his nature is giuẽ

to

to all vanitie, and therfore might well cause such a vaine & light coũtenance: did tell her, that that her laughing or smilinge came no doubt from the deuill. And this I saide therby to haue drawne her to haue turned her eye to god, correcting her for her sinne, by the ministerie of Sathan.

Discouerer..

Againe the said Mary Cooper being thus deemed to be troubled with Sathan, it fell out that besides her sayd greise and weaknes she had also some swellinge in her body, whereby she verily thought her selfe to be with child. And otherwise whatsoeuer she pretended in outward shew, she nether had suffered nor felt as she hath deposed any thing in the world. Against her opinion of being with child, M. Darrell opposed himselfe as much as he could. M. Darrell (saith she) laboured to bring me from my perswasion of being with child, by often saying, that it was no child, but such a child as god deliuer euery good body from. pag 317.

Darrell

I perceiuing this simple woman to be euer looking to nature, & ascribinge in a manner all to nature, saying still she was with childe she trusted, and hoped for all this she was with child: I seeinge her to doe this, as is the maner of vs all almost to looke and gaze onely vpon the meanes, or second cause of our troubles, and to goe no further, and being most sure also that neerein she was greatly deceiued: labored to drawe her from that fond, foolish, and absurd conceit of hers, which kept her from profitinge by that affliction: and indeuouringe this, assured her that she was not with child, and that these thinges came not from nature, but from a supernaturall power, & somthing a boue nature, which was the deuil: either inwardly possessing her, whervnto I rather inclined, yea in a manner wholly: or being without by some externall operation of his. And this I therfore did, that I might therby the better drawe her to looke from earth to heaven: to god I meane the author of her affliction, and his extraordinarie hand vpon her, afflictinge her in her body by the ministerye of Sathan, as I tould her: that so she might be the more throughly affected, & humbled vnder that Iudgment, and the Lord so iudginge her. Yf she had proued with childe and brought forth one not long after, then it had shewed some simplicitie in me, but not argued my teachinge of her to counterfeite, if such she were, and then if those wordes had bene cast in my teeth, I could lesse haue blamed them. But behold more then a yeare & halfe after she felt somthing stirr within her, & thought she had bene quick with child, as we cõmonly call it, she brought nothig forth, nether liuing creature, nor yet vntimely birth. VVas I not then (trow ye) to blame to say as I did? that she was not with child, it is now manifest, nifeſt, theirin then I ſaid truly, and for that one would thinke I deſerued not to be blamed. Yet yow ſee I am, which puteth me in mind of the prouerbe we haue: truth may be blamed, but it ſhall neuer be ſhamed. And what if I ſhould vſe the other ſpeach againe: God bleſſe every good woman from ſuch a childe? I thinke their is neuer a good woman in England, but if I ſhould ſay ſo in her heareinge, would ſay in her hart, Amen to it: vnderſtand me you mnſt conditionally. But this that followeth I deſire the reader carefully to obſerue.

The Diſc. confeſſeth that Mary Cooper had greife and weakenes, alſo a ſwelling in her body, and alittle before it is ſaid, that at her counterfeite trauell ſhe was indeede and truly euill at eaſe, and ſomewhat weake, whereupon certaine weomen comming vnto her vz. to her trauell &c Of Somers (in effect) he confeſſeth, that he had a diſeaſe in his body by wading: Of Darling that he felt indeede at the firſt ſome prickings in his legges, and that he vomited, and was ſomewhat evill at eaſe and of Kath. Wright, that ſhe growinge to ſome weakenes, began to be troubled with a kinde of ſwelling in her body, occaſioned (as ſince ſhe hath learned) by ſome ſtoppinge of humours, not vnknowne to diuers weomen. Heereby it appeareth that all theſe counterfeites, did not all theire feaites, but that ſom of them came from nature: ſo that nature & craft may ſeeme to haue conſpired and traueled together to bringe forth theſe counterfeites: yea every of them without exception. VVhat, were they all ſicke and euill at eaſe, S. H.? Sure they had not otherwiſe bene fitte perſons to haue made counterfeits off: and belike the better to make ſemblance of counterfeiting, they were to haue ſome helpe from nature, which they could not haue from arte. But what might that be which was naturall, and which they could not doe by arte? a ſwelling in the body why, but William Somers did counterfeit this ſwelling, as appeareth by pag. 181. and 213. where he telleth vs alſo ful abſurdly how he did the ſame. The other counterfeits then ned not to haue run to nature for the doinge of this tricke. But if they were all of them indeed and truly evill at eaſe, as the Diſc. and they themſelues ſay, and that truly: it is ſtrange that they ſhould haue any harte to counterfeite: alſo that being ſicke and weake they were able to ſhew forth ſuch ſtrength, and ſuch admirable and manifold faytes, as is manifeſt they or the deuill did. And this is the ſixteneth time the Diſcouerer is convinced by his owne Diſcouery.

pag 180. pag. 295. pag 298.

Diſcouerer

When Miſtris Graye ſaith Mary Cooper and the reſt of her companye came about me, ſayinge and reportinge that I ſhould be deliuered of ſome monſtrous thing, I laughed hartely at their folly: and this my laughinge they termed my fite, and would cry out: now Lord bleſſe her, ſhe it in a ſore fitte

pag 318.

fitt. The which theire fooliſh wonderinge made me laugh more and more: and the more I laughed they more they cryed: Lord haue mercy vpon her, ſhe is in a ſtrang fitt, beſides when I had laughed till my harte was ſore at them, becauſe my ſtrength was ſpent with laughing, then would the whole company of weomen, namely Miſtris Gray, and the reſt, cry out lord bleſſe her, lord bleſſe her, Lord Ieſus haue mercy vpon her, now ſhe is in a traūce.

Darrell

WVe haue heard before of Mary Cooper being with child, and that after ſhe had continued ſo many weekes in apperance ſhe fell of trauel ing, whereupon diuers neighbour weomen (& among them Miſtres Gray) being firſt requeſted (accordinge to the cuſtome) came to her ſaid trauel, and how it went with her theirin very extraordinarily, in ſo much as they weomen preſent theirat conceiued ſhe would haue bene deliuered of ſome monſtrous thing, as is here confeſſed. The Diſc. now telleth vs in the perſon and depoſition of Mary Cooper, (which I know he would haue men beleue to be true) that ſhe did nothing but laugh, and this laughing they termed her fitt: were not theſe wiſe weomen, which ſeeing a woman onely laugh, did theirvpon thinke that ſhe was in trauel, and not onely ſo, but imagined that ſhe would be deliuered of ſome monſter, and theirvpon cried vnto the lord to haue mercy on her? Againe it is ſayde, that Mary Cooper was indeed and truly euill at eaſe: It is incredible then that beinge ſicke, ſhe ſhould thus exceede in laughing Surely if Calphurnius were aliue of whom the Poet ſaith, pleno ridet Calphurnius ore, and ſhould reade this ridiculous depoſtion, he would not onely laugh with open mouth theirat, but as it is ſayd here of Mary Cooper, laugh till his harte were ſore. Had not the Diſc. ſolde himſelfe to all impudencie and ſhameles gaynſaying the truth, would he euer haue affirmed, much leſſe publiſhed to the world, that Mary Cooper did at her traueile whereof we haue harde, nothinge but laugh? But as the Diſ. doth here extenuate or rather make iuſt nothinge of the rare and greuous effectes, which Sathan wrought vpon the Body of Mary Cooper, at the time of her ſuppoſed traueile, ſo hath he done the like before (to his vttermoſt) throughout his Diſcouery: by other as ſtrange and greiuous effectes, which the euil ſpirites in Somers, Darling, and Katherine Wright ſent forth: and this is aboue all thinges to be obſerued by the reader, for herein principally lyeth his deceite. Secondly, as heere he doth this beſides impiouſly, very abſurdly and in ridiculous manner, ſo vſually before. For inſtance: Somers ſay I did ſoame exceſſiuely: it is true quoth the Diſc. and his depoſitiones, but it was when he had blacke lead in his mouth. &c. pag 239.

Diſcouerer

You heare in this depoſition ſome mention of the Iudges, whereupon it is pag 321. 322.

fitte

to remember vnto you, what a very ſtrange and malitious practiſe was vnder taken, to haue procured the death of a poore woman one Alice Freman, vpon pretence that ſhe was a witch. This Alice Freeman was one of thoſe whom Somers had named for witches, and is alied to M. Freeman an Alderman and Iuſtice of peace in Nottingham. It is ſaid (but vntruly) by ſome of M. Darrels frendes, that before the detecting of Alice Freeman for a witch, it was not reported in Nottingham, that Somers was a diſſembler, thereby inferring that the offence taken by her detection, was the cauſe that rayſed vp a ſlaunder for ſooth of Somers diſſimulation. The practiſe was, to charge the ſayd poore woman Alice Freeman, to haue bewitched to death the child of Mary Cooper: and that ſhe likewiſe was the cauſe of the ſayde Maries trouble and vexation, as hauing bewitched her in like manner. which conceite being thruſt into Mary Coopers head ſhe was arraigned: M. Darrell was one amongſt diuers that gaue in euidence againſt the woman, grounding himſelfe much vpon Somers detecting of her for a witch: & matters were ſo proſecuted againſt her, as had not the Iudges in their wiſdome diſcerned ſomwhat, it is verily thought, the poore woman (being found guilty by the great enqueſt) had bene condemned to death.

Darrell

Seeing the Diſc. will iuſtifie Alice Freeman, and together with her kinſman M. Freeman haue her to be a very innocent, & to haue bene without cauſe through the mallice (forſoth) of ſome accuſed of witchcrafte, let vs therfore ſee what may be ſayd concerning her: not that I will charg her with witchcraft, but that we may ſee, ſhe is not altogether ſo free from all ſuſpition of witchcraft as the Diſco. and her kinſman pretend: and that there was iuſt cauſe of the proceedinges vſed againſt her. In the beginning of December 97. preſently after the diſcouerie of this Alice Freeman among other perſons for a witch, by Somers or rather by the deuill vſinge his tongue, ſhe the ſaid Alice coming into the houſe of Robert Cooper, father in law to Somers and to Mary Cooper his ſiſter, ſome angrie wordes the ſayd Mary gaue her, callinge her a witch. The night following (but how it came to paſſe I know not) Mary Cooper felt a ſtiring within her belly, as if their were ſome quicke thinge, her belly ſwelling (which was ſenſible to others) and the other greuous vexations wherof we haue heard before growing vpon her by little and little. To this ſtirring M. Aldridge hath denoted afterwards ſhe grue to be indifferently well, and ſo doth continue: onely ſhe complayneth, that ſhe hath a kind of ſturring in her belly, But if Alce Freeman together with her familiar ſpirit cauſed Mary Coopers ſtrange and fearefull vexations, then it was thought that her mallice did not ſtaye it ſelfe there, but reached to her onely child, that ſo ſhee might be further reuenged of her: and hereupon this ſuſpition did arise. About 10 dayes after the former iarrein a faire mone shine euē ninge, Alice Freeman went from her owne house to Robert Cooper his house. One seeinge her: and maruelinge to see her trudg so fast, that could so ill (beinge a very ougly, old, lame woman,) doe it, followed whott foote after her, and dogged her. When she was come to the aforesaid house, she did not forthwith knocke at the dore, as the manner of well meaning people is: but peepes first at the chinckes of the doore, then went she to the window, and thus she continued playing at bo peepe a good while, and yet she is no child but a well aged woman. At length she espied the honest man which had followed after her, and then she full mannerlye and honestlie fell a knockinge. Into the house she commeth. Mary Cooper had then a litle childe standing at her knee in health and playinge, Alice Freman desired to light a candle, but Robert Cooper denyed her, and asked her why she came to that house, which of all other was by the Maior forbidden her. Away goeth she without lighting her candle, and as she went ouer the threshold, the child which euen now was so well and merry, began to be sicke, and fell a scrighinge and skreaminge, and so continued for two dayes and then dyed.

pag 3 : a.

riſe

Some questions might be heere asked, which if they were fully answered, would remoue some scruple which remayneth still in many as, wherefore she went so so hastilie thether, and being come peeped in after that manner? wherefore to light a candle at that house, rather then another? It being the onely house which was by the magistrate forbidden her: there beinge besides so many houses, I know not how many betwixt her house and Coopers: Coopers house also standinge out of the streete, a good space into the churchyarde. Moreover, to what end she went to light a candle, & how that contradiction of hers may be salved? To some she sayd, she went with a candle from home, only to light it, and so to returne home: and this her answeare was approued by the magistrates of Nottingham, and yet can not be true the premisses cōsidered, besids that which followeth ouerthroweth the same. To others that she had lost pinnes in the churchyard, & would haue lighted her candle at Coopers house stāding in the churchyard to haue found some of them, for it is oddes she had not found them all, to sōe other this question being asked her, she answeared she had lost 2d. in the churchyard, and that she desired to find. But it may be he that pursued her, found that which she lost he would be examined therof: but we must first know, what she lost. whether mony, or pinnes. It is a question also, whether she went of purpose and made haste to lose something, that after she might be occupied in seeking that she neuer lost. It would be demaunded also, why being denied to light her can dle there, ſhe went not to another houſe to light it, that ſo ſhe might haue gone a bout the ſeekinge of that whatſoeuer it was ſhe defired ſo much to finde. Surely either ſhe had loſt nothing, or elſe ſhe grew careles of that ſhe had cared ſo much for newly before: for ſhe went preſently to another houſe, and a little while after home, without returning to the churchyarde.

I might add here another ſuſpitious matter againſt her, concerning one George Spencer, by whoſe meanes in al probabillitie (as I coulde ſhew, but that I haſte to an end, he was ſo greiuouſly afflicted, that very many were quicklie gathered about him, and longe after continued troubled in his bodye after a ſtraunge and vnnaturall manner. I can tell alſo of a pretie pranck ſhe playd after both theſe. ſhe cam on a time into the houſe of a man in Nottingham whoſe name I haue forgotten who carrieth Aquauitæ vp and down the cuntrie: his wife welcumed her with ſome ſhreud wordes: for there be few in Notting which loue not her roome better then her company. ſhee claſped her huſband about the neck or backe, and departed, a ſtrange kinde of ſalutation. The ſame day the man went forth with his bottles on his backe, when he was gone forwarde about a mile or two in a fayre euen grene ſwerde waye, backwarde fell he and brake his bottles, & there laye all the mans Aquavitæ. Back he comes for new bottles, & more aquavitæ: when he came at the very ſame place again, it fel out with him iuſt as before. If this was long of Alice Fremans imbracinge him, the poore man I dare ſaye had as liue ſhe had ſo kindly imbraced another as him, for the louing ſalutation if I ſay it came from thence, ſcathed him 4. nobles. Home he cometh the ſecond time. & after they two were made freindes he and his bottles eſcaped well. I haue heard of more ſuch like ſtories of Alice Freman, as of one which falling out with her as ſhe was at meate, had lyke to haue bene choaked, & continued handled in that ſtrange manner in her throate, as I neuer hearde of the like before, and that for the ſpace of 5. howres or there abouts. euen vntill Alice and ſhee were made cater-couſins, and then loe ſhe was as wel as might be. and this was as it is ſaide and ſome other of this kinde, before Somers ſaide ſhe had a catt.

Theſe things moued ſome to ſuſpect Alice Freman of witchcraft, and though not all yet parte of this was giuen in euidence againſt her: & not Somers detecting of her for a witch, whereof there was no ſpeach before the Iudge, and being done by the lying ſpirit was therfore to be held for falſe & ſlaunderous, or at leſt to be ſuſpected, except euident proofe thereof might be had from men. And heereof had M. Freman her kinſman well conſidered, he would neuer haue laboured ſo much by himſelfe and his frendes, I meane his fellowe Commiſſioners, to

haue

haue proued Somers a counterfeite, therby to recouer (as he thought) the good name of his kinswoman: Seeing the suspition of her witchcrafte relyed not at all of Somers detecting her for a witch, but of matters of fact to be proued against her: and that were Somers a counterfeite, which he hath thirsted so much after, the same woulde not free her from the said suspition. The Disc. parenthesis vz. but vntruly, is vntrue. my frendes said very true, if we vnderstand them of the time after Somers dispossession, as they (no doubt) meant. It is well knowne to the inhabitantes of Nott, that before the detecting of Alice Freman for a witch, Somers was not reported in Not. to be a dissembler: neither produceth the Disco. any thinge to the contrary: onely himselfe saith the contrary: whose testimonie I thinke no man will regard. But to returne againe vnto Mary Cooper, the Disc. proceedeth.

Discouerer.

M. Aldridge deposeth thus. Afterwardes she grew to be indifferently well, and so doth continue: onely she complayneth, that she hath a kinde of stirring in her belly: (wherevnto the Disco. addeth) and is not otherwise troubled, then it happeneth out vpon occasion with other weomen, pag 322.

Darrell

It is first to be obserued, that parte of M. Aldridge deposition is wantinge: afterwardes she grew well: these wordes must needes haue relation to some before, wherein something was said concerning her evilnes, and for the confirmation of that I haue to that end before deliuered: but the Disc. thought good to smother all that, as makeinge not for him, but against him: and this is vsuall with him. 2. It is deposed that she hath a stirring in her belly, (according to that I haue before affirmed) and confessed. that she is troubled as other women are vpon occasion: then sure there was somethinge besides her laughing, which so affected the women met at her aforesaide trauaile.

Discouerer. pag 313.

The authour of the Breife Narration writeth in this sorte: what goodly stuffe they (meaninge the Discouerer and his fellow Commissioners) haue returned, time and mallice will make knowne vnto vs. The stuffe such as it is (vile indeed) his Maisterschippe may be pleased now to pervse: and theirby reape some profite, if he read it with no greater mallice then it was written.

Darrell.

The Narrator (I dare saye) was neither Prophet nor the sonne of a Prophet, and yet herein he did foretel that which after cam to passe The stuffe that S. Harsnet and his fellowe commissioners haue returned him selfe confesseth is vile indede: and sure so it is, yea as vile I am perswaded, as euer was returned since England was a nation. for what is

is that ſtuffe but an heape of falſe, fooliſh, ridiculus, and abſurde thinges witneſſed vpon the oathes of men, ſome few depitions excepted. But is this all that doth make this ſtuffe vile? no hereby it is made more vile in that this vile ſtuffe was compaſſed by the cunning perſwaſions, and threates of the commiſſioners? men. for the preſent and and this acte in authoritie. and ſuch as ſhold rather haue done their indeuouts to haue, preſerued then drawen the deponents to periurye But is here all? no the ſtuffe returned and publyſhed to the worlde is made more vile by the Diſcouerer, his additions, detractions, and alterations. being therby made farr worſe then at the firſt it was deliuered. But is this all that maketh this ſtuffe vile? no no all this ſtuffe hath bene compaſſed and produced not againſt man? but againſt the Lorde himſelfe, not (indeede) to finde out any counterfeiting and teachinge to counterfeite whereof there is no more queſtion or doubt to be made. then whether it be daye light at noone, as the fayreſt ſunſhine daye in ſomer, but to obſcure the workes of god, and to keepe his people from beleuing them to be ſuch? becauſe they were brought to paſſe by ſuch as the Diſcouerer,, deſpiſeth and hateth, and woulde faine haue al men to hate and deſpiſe. And this is it that maketh this ſtuffe out of meaſure vile execrable, and abominable in the ſight of god. and therefore ought ſo to be reputed of all his people. Yea if we the inhabitantes of England be the lords people or inheritance as we profeſſe. we can not but ſo account hereof, & will therfore by al good meanes accordinge to our places further thir punniſhment: and our vice Godes, which are here on eaeth in Gods ſteade, will take vengance of theſe traitors &, rebels againſt God, for this vnſpeakable diſ honor done to him, and this treaſon or rebellion of theires, in takinge parte with ſathan his enemie (the God and prince of this worlde) who in ſome extraordinary manner is riſen vp againſt theſe workes of God) againſt the Lorde himſelfe. Yf it be ſaid by ſome in authoritie, that if it may be made to appeare that theſe thinges are true, they will not endure them, but ſeuerely punniſh theſe commiſſioners. I in all humillitie offer to make proſe of theſe thinges and generally of whatſoeuer I haue ſet downe in this my Apologie or defence of the workes of God, and of my ſelfe: and if herein I fayle I refuſe no punniſhment: In the meane ſeaſon it is to be remembred, whereof theſe worthy commiſſioners examined ſuch as were by them depoſed: ſurely for the moſt parte of ſuch thinges as might ſerue to proue theire fooliſh, abſurd and ridiculus circumſtances: and to this end vſualy they depoſed them concerning the ſpeaches that I ſhould vtter in the hearing (forſooth) or preſence of Somers And how long befor ſhould I haue ſpoken theſe thinges? about a yeare: yea ſome of them about 14. yeares then paſt. were not here good memories that could remember

I doe not ſay of every particular becauſe it may be ſome witneſſes will ſayle to witnes that that know to be true & haue formerly confeſſed.

ber the very wordes they hearde so long before, speciallie the same little or nothing concerning them, and being not worthy the remembring: yea the last time when they were spoken, and that so perfectly as they nede not to vie this clause so far as they remember or other to this effect. One would thinke it had bene fitter men should haue bene examined concerning the actions of Som, then of my speaches, and of the strange and extraordinarie thinges they had seene in him if happely they had sene any, as the 12. first commissioners did: for thereby only it would be made manifest and out of controuersie by the oathes of men, whether Som. had counterfeyted or no. If it be obiected that here of they did depose such as were examined by the 12 Commissioners: I answere and confesse that they did so indeed by diuers of them: but the Disc. hath kept back and buried all that some of them affirmed the seconde time vpon their oathes, and in a manner all that the rest then deposed, as is made manifest by my answere to the 8. chapter of the 3. booke. so that the cause is not bettered there by, only the Disc is made the more sinfull.

In the masse of depositions I thinke we scarsly haue six times this worde or any to this effect.

Concerninge the depositions published to the worlde vnder my name, this is it we must knowe: that howsoeuer for the substance of them they be mine, yet many of them as they be produced by the Disc. are not mine some he hath fathered vpon me, I hauing deposed no such thinge, nor yet neuer bene examined thereof: others he hath corrupted, somtimes adding, somtimes omitting or keeping back that which is very materiall: and by this his corrupt dealinge with my depositions on the one syde and the like with the depositions of his owne deponents on the other syde, he maketh greate shewe to the world of periurie where none is. Now this periury he meaneth to me: for why I am but one, and the Disc. produceth ordinarily 3. or 4. or more deposing the contrary. And are not diuers to be beleued before one? I answer, not alwayes and in all cases. Against Paul Ananias the high preist with the Elders and Tertullus, and I know not howe many Iewes besides witnessed before the iudgment seate, and I would no doubt haue deposed, that he was a pestilent fellow, and a mouer of sedition, the cõtrary only Paul a pore prisoner affirmed: & yet the truth was with this sole man. Euen so it may be (and I would be sorrie it were not) in this our present case. And here it is not to be forgotten that my selfe being first deposed, S Hierom went downe with his commission after, his intergatories being framed according to the things I had formerlie deposed: and there endeuoured by threats and other wise to drawe many of those which came before him and his fellowe commissioners to depose the contrary to that I had formerly deposed, (that so he might make me hatefull to the world, because I was (for wher I deposed doubtfully with these wordes as I beleiue, as I remember, or other to this effect, which vsually I did, the Discouerer wher he pleaseth produceth me deposing certainly: & where I precisely deposed, there he foure times bringeth me in deposinge doubtfully, inserting, as I beleiue.

Actes 24.1.

sooth)so notorious a periured person)to the great greife(alas)of the poore soules and trouble of theire consciences, the most of them not so much deposinge willingly that which they knew to be true,as what the *Disc.*against their willes would haue them to depose,& perswaded to be true, saying, I trust, Darrell him selfe hath confessed it vpon his oath &c. when I had deposed otherwise, and that the same were false, as my selfe doe assuredly knowe, and am able and offer to make direct profe theirof by some of there depositions,and of many of them could by the power of reason shew the same, and would but for brevitie sake.

The Disc. telleth vs, that the reader shall reape some profit by his Discouerer,if he read it with no greater mallice then it was written.

The profit is in stead of glorifiyng God for the greate workes he hath wrought,and making that right and holy vse of his works wher of at large we haue heard elswhere, to receiue an evill name & false and vile report of the same:and to iustifie the wicked,and condemne the righteous,which is an abomination before the Lord. And looke what reward is due to him that sendeth forth such cursed fruite, that may the Discouerer expecte and in iustice is to receiue at the handes of the christian Magistrate, for all the paynes he hath taken. For doth not nature it selfe teach vs that the labourer is worthy of his hire?and reason this, that the hire or reward should be proportionable to the labour or paynes man taketh? VVhether this corrupt and worse then rotten stuffe, and whether S. H. Discouery detected now (I trust)to be a very sinfull, shamfull,slaunderous, and lying treatise, came from charitie as the Discouerer pretēdeth,or from mallice which he denieth,as it belongeth to god the searcher of the hartes to iudge, so it is no hard thinge for man to coniecture. For as out of theabundance of the hart the mouth speaketh,so the hand writeth.

Howbeit peraduenture, when he hath better considered the contentes of this treatise, he wil not be so peremtorie.Otherwise he hath here matter sufficient to shew his skill in for the iustification of it.

Discouerer pag 324.

Darrell

As in these wordes the Discouerer very valiantly challengeth the *Narrator,*so pag 58.doth he challeng me likwise,saying after his scoffinge manner, that I will peradventure be better prouided hereafter: and that it were conuenīt also that I furnished my selfe with some better profs. This chalenge considered there is smale cause why any should be offended with me for answering the *Discouerie,*and producing the best prooses I haue, for the prouinge *that William Somers, the 7. in Lancashire,Thomas Darling,and Katherine Wright were indeed possessed with deuils, and dispossessed of them,and did not counterfeit the same,*as is vntruly

ly affirmed by the Discouerer, & some others. And if it be so that herein I haue deliuered the truth, as I trust it is manifest by this and my other treatise, me thinketh no christian should be displeased therwith, but rather reioyce in this publishing & manifestation of these workes of god, and remouing of the blocke that lyeth im the way, hindering the Lordes people from magnifiyng of him for them, and profitinge by them. Can the child of God be offended with that which tendeth to the prayse and glorie of God his father? or the louer of the truth, with the contendinge for the truth, and conviction of the falshood? Haue I committed any thinge herein but that which in dewtie I did owe vnto God, and could not without sinne haue lett vnperformed? The Prophet Ieremiah complayneth that the people in his time had no courage for the truth. Had not I bene guiltie of this sinne, and had not this reprose reached it selfe to me, if base and vile man publiklye defacing the truth and workes of God, I should not as publikly haue maintayned the same, and shewed some courage for the truth, beinge a principall witnes of these workes, and called also to suffer for them? If S.H. had published a slaunderous and reprochfull booke against me, meerly concerning my owne person, and not against the Lord also, as this his Discouery concerning my teaching to counterfeit is, I could haue bene contented in silence to haue passed by it: and yet a good name is a pretious thinge, aboue siluer and gould, and such as one would be loth to lose, or suffer to be taken from him: but to see S. H. slaunder and bringe vp an euill name of the workes of God, and spread the same farr and neare: and for feare of punishment, or desire of libertie, or other carnall respect, not to gaynsay S. H. and to iustifie the works of God against him and all gainsayers, was a poynt of great cowardlines, and ill beseeminge the souldier of Iesus Christ: and indeed to feare man, more then God. Such fearefull ones shall haue their parte in the lake which burneth with fire and brimston, which is the second death.

Ier. 9. 3.

pro. 22. 1.

2 Tim. 2. 3.

Reu. 21. 8.

The scope and drift of all that hath bene saide concerninge both the cause and my selfe is, that the mouthes of all men being stopped, and the worke of God beinge acknowledged: The Lord may haue his glorie and prayse, and man receiue his profite theirby. Secondly, that mine owne innocency and fellow prisonners appearinge, we may not only (being restored to our ministerie and people,) obtayne libertie for our bodyes, but also for our tongues: & they which haue caused all this sturr in our church, and vniust molestations vnto vs: and in vs, beinge ministers to the congregations we belonge, and raysed vp this vile slaunder of the great and rare worke of God, and since sweated to vphold and maintaine it beinge on foot, and their in fought against God and his glorie, and the good of his people: may be inquired inquired after: and being found out delt with as the enimies of God and his church, and receiue their iuſt recompence of reward. The goodnes of the cauſe, the intollerable iniurie done to vs the ſeruants and imbaſſadors of the Lord of hoſtes, cry a loud and ſhirll vnto the ſonnes of men, I meane the honorable and in high place and authoritie, for a ſpeadie execution theirof. The lawes alſo of our land and the authoritie which from her moſt excellent Maieſtie is deriued to ſuch, call for no leſſe. Our truſt therfore and moſt humble ſupplication to our mortall Gods is: that they would tender the cauſe of the immortall God. Yea be now zealous if euer, ye Princes & Iudges of the earth, and ſuffer not Gods cauſe to be thus diſhonored & troden vnder the feete of men. Remember and forget not this ſaying of the Lord I beſeech you, them that honor me I will honor, & they that deſpiſe me ſhall be deſpiſed. If then you our nobles and honorable perſonags deſire to be right honorable indeed, be you carefull to honor the Lord, in takinge parte & mayntaining this cauſe & worke of his.

Sam. 2. 30.

And thus hauinge ended my ſpeach to man, I convert my ſpeach to thee Lord, who alone and beſt knoweſt all things, and into thy boſome as my beſt yea my onely beloued I make my mone, and poure out my complaint day and night. If I be guiltie of that which is layd to my charge: If I haue confederated with Somers, Darling, Katherine Wright, or Mary Cooper: If euer I ſett eye of them to my knowledge, or any of them before they were poſſeſſed, as I conceiue of their caſe: then let me not onely be made a laughing ſtocke, and by-word vnto all men, as of late I haue bene vnto manye, and this acte of mine regiſtred to my perpetuall infamie: but raſe thou Lord my name alſo out of the booke of life, and giue me my portion with hipocrites. Bur if it be otherwiſe and according that I haue ſayd, then let the righteouſnes of the iuſt deliuer him, accordinge to thy promis. Ariſe o Lord, mayntaine thy owne cauſe, cleare the worke thou haſte done by thy owne finger. Awake alſo and ſtand vp I beſeech thee for my defence. Thou haſte called me out and ſett me on this worke, and gratiouſly directed and aſſiſted me theirin thou haſt opened the eye of my vnderſtanding to ſee into this truth, and haſt not forſaken me: goe a long ſtill I praye thee with me my Lord and God, and neuer leaue the purſuite of thy owne worke, and defence of vs thy ſeruants vntill the truth herein be manifeſt. So ſhall the congregation of the people compaſſe thee about: for their ſakes therfore and that their ioye and thankſgiuing may abound, rebuke thou Sathan, and cauſe the Magiſtrates to rebuke the ſonnes of men.

Mary Cooper excepted.

Iud. 11. 6.

The

The number of such persons as are saide to haue bene dispossessed by M. Darrels meanes. Chap. 1. pag 8
The occasion why M. Darrels dealinge with Somers was called into question at Lambeth. Chap. 2. pag. 13.
How M. Darrels freindes haue sett out the pretended dispossessinge of William Somers Chap. 3. pag. 19.
How M. Darrell is made a fitter instrument to cast out deuils then many other. Chap. 4. pag. 26.
How M. Darrell knew William Somers and the rest to be possessed. Chap. 5. pag. 34.
Of M Darrels knowledge, who sent the deuill into Somers, and the rest. Chap. 6. pag. 36.
Of the causes pretended, why men are possessed. Chap. 7. pag. 38.
Of the meanes alledged by M. Darrell and others, whereby men are dispossessed. Chap. 8. pag. 41.
Of the signes whereby M. Darrell and others, doe discerne (as they say) when Sathan is expelled Chap. 9. pag 51.
Of M. Darrell & M. Mores conceite, that Sathan beinge cast out of one, doth presently after seeke to repossesse him. Chap. 10 pag 57.
How those that toke vpon them to cast out deuils, do get themselues worke, & of their deuises to couer their lewdnes. Chap. 11. pag. 61.

The Contentes of the Second Booke Answered.

Of M. Darrels intercourse with Somers by startes at Ashby, from about the yeare 1592. vntill 1597. for his instruction how to dissemble himselfe to be possessed. Chap. 1. pag 66.
Of M. Darrels priuat directions to Somers, whileft he was at Nottingham with him, how he should from time to time behaue himselfe in his counterfeiting. Chap. pag 92.
Of M. Darrels instructing of Somers by seeking to others in his hearing, those thinges which he meant that he should practise from the 5. of Nouem. when he came vnto him, vntil the seauenth of the same, being the day of his pretended dispossession. Cha. 3. pag 92.
Of M. Darrels cuning instructing of Somers, dy speaking to others in his hearing of Sathans seeking to repossesse him, and of the acting of certaine trickes vnder a couerlet, from the seauenth of Nouember, vntill about the xxi. of the same. Chap 4. pag 98.
Of M. Darrels cunning instructing of Somers, by speaking to others in his hearing such thinges, as he ment he should practise in the detecting of witches, from about the xxi. of Nouember, vntil about the vii. of December. Chap. 5. pag. 107.
Of M. Darrels course, from about the vii of Decem. vntil the xiiii of Ianuarie, whileft So. refused to dissemble any löger C. 6. pa. 111.

How Somers about the xiiii. of Ianuarie fell againe to the acting of certaine fits, wherin he continued at times, til about the xxiiii of Ianuarie, & how M. Dar. preteded that he was repossessed C.7.p.112.

The contentes of the Third Booke, Answeared.

How Somers confessed his dissimulation at S. Johns in Nottingham, as soone as he was out of M. Darrels disposition Chap.1. pag 120.

How M. Darrell dealt with Somers, for the reuocation of his said cõfession, that he had dissembled Chap.2. pag.123.

How M. Darrell deuised two or three shifts to haue avoided Somers confession that he had dissembled Chap.3. pag.124.

How M. Darrell & his frends to discredit Somers confession did falsly report, that he was induced theirvnto by promisses, threatings, & inchantments Chap.4. pag 126.

Of M. Darrels ridiculous pretence, that Somers was induced by the deuill in forme of a blacke dogge & an Asse, to say he had dissembled Chap: 5 pag 130.

How M. Darrell hath falsly affirmed, that VV, Somers was induced to say he had dissembled, for feare of hanging: wheras he falling into his fits before the Commissioners at Nottingham, (vpon a former compact) the feare of hanginge was one of the cheifest causes, that he then affirmed, that he had not dissembled Chap.6. pag 131.

How Somers was perswaded by threatninges, and promisses to haue continued his dissimulation, after he had bene before the commissioners at Nottingham, vntill M Darrell might againe dispossesse him Chap.7. pag 141.

Of the depositions taken in M Darrels behalfe, at Nott. & how vpon the ree xamination of his owne witnesses, it falleth out: that the bodily actions of Somers in his fits, were not extrordinary, as they haue bene misreported Chap.8. pag 143.

The Contentes of the Fourth Booke Answeared.

How M Darrell laboured from time to time, to make those thinges that Somers did, (and were but very toyes) to be thought both strange and extraordinarie Chap.1 pag 160

How M Darrel would not suffer, (as neare as he could) any to deale with Somers in his fits, to try whether he were sencles or dissembled Chap 2. pag 160

How M Darrel indeuoured to excuse Somers, when he was taken short, and did such toyes as did argue him sufficiently to be but a counterfeit Chap.3: pag 160:

How contrary to M Darrels assertion, Somers had his sences and vnderstanding in his fits Chap.4: pag 162.

Of the motions and knockinges which were heard and seene about Somers in his fittes, that they were done and made by himselfe, & were were not as M Darrell hath reported, extraordinary or supernaturall Chap. 5: pag 162:

How Somers casting himselfe into the fire, was voluntarie: and no extraordinary matter, as M Darrell hath pretended Ca. 6: pag 162.
Of Somers pretended strength & weight in his fits, that contrary to M Darrels and his frendes reports, their was nothing extraordinary in them Chap. 7: pag 164.
Somers knowledge in his fits was not extraordinary, as M Darrell & his frends haue faisly pretended: neither could he speake Greeke, Hebrw or Latine, otherwise then he had learned Chap. 8: pag 165.
Their was no impossibilitie in Somers fits, as M Darrell & his frends haue faisly pretended Chap. 9. pag 166:
How contrary to M Darrels & his frends assertions, w. Somers was accounted by many in Nott. for a dissembler, from the time that he begane his practises their, vntil he confessed the same himselfe Ca. 10 pag 168

The contentes of the Fist Booke Answeared.

How M Darrels credite touching his dealinge with the boy of Burton, doth relie vpon a false & foolish booke that was published of the said boyes pretended possession & dispossion Chap 1. pag 171.
Of M Darrels rashnes in affirming Thomas Darling to be possessed, & of his cunning instructing him, him how to behaue himselfe vpon the day of his pretended dispossion Chap, 2: pag 173.
Of M Darrels further practises with Darling to pretend that Sathan sought to reenter into him, & of some other his vntrue assertions, concerning the boyes fites, and of his cunning dealing likwise with him, that he should neuer confesse his dissimulation Ca 4: pag 175:
How Darling confessed his owne dissimulation: Chap. 5. pag 179.
A breife of K. Wrights confession, touching the beginning of her dissimulation, & of the reasons that moued her so to doe Ca 6. pag 185.
Of M. Darrels procedinges with Katherine Wright, for her pretended dispossession. Chap. 7. pag. 187.
Of M Darrels proceedinges with Mary Cooper, the sister of William Somers. Chap. 9. pag. 195.

Faultes escaped

pag 8. sbeaches for speaches, p, 14 high cõmissioners for cõmissioners, pa. 15 to be for 2, to be p 20. subscyibe for subscribe. ib. which I know for with I knowe p. 23 demum for denum ib. did etc, by for was. by, p, 26 and then for as then, p. 36. chasten for hasten. p. 45 but the for but this the, p 47 is it for it is p 54. descendant for discedant, p 70, as more for as well more p 77 yeare 99. foryeare 98, p 95. vndoubtedly for doubtfully, p, 97. done at his handes for done & executed at his handes p. 127, had not vntil for had vntil, p. 128 indeed for induced, p. 142, had done for had not done. p. 143: Sherwood for Thorold. P. 146. could more. for could make more. p. 148, rusted for rusted, p. 148. but me say, for I nt trifle & say ib of mans for of this mans. p. 160. & mary for & may p 163. yea wee for yet we, p. 167, deposed indeed for deposed falsly, no for he they haue so deposed indeed.

Finis.

Case 1.

AM/H 12/56 : EV/GX/-

AKK/-/-