times I finde mention of these, as in ¶ Britton cap. 12. who saith in the Kings person (as he writes his whole Booke) Vide Britton in litera B. in this manner: Wee will, that all those which be fourteene yeeres old, shall make oath, that they shall be sufficient and enough unto us, and that they will be neither felons, nor assenting to felons. And we will that all be (en dozeine & pleuis per dozeniers) that is, professe themselves to be of this or that dozein, and make or offer surcetie of their behaviour by those or those dozeniers, except religious persons, Clerkes, Knights, and their eldest sonnes, and women. And ¶ Kitchin out of the Register, and Britton saith thus: Religious persons, Knights, Clerkes, or women, shall not be Deceiners, fol. 33. So that he (by I gather, that of latter times this word signified nothing but such an oath, as by his oath of loyaltie to his Prince (for none ordinarily findeth surcetie at this day) is settled in the confirmation or sicietie of a dozein. And a dozein seemeth now to extend so farre as a Leet extendeth, because in Leets only this oath is ministred by the Steward, and taken by such as are twelue yeeres old and vpwards dwelling within the compasse of the Leet, where they are sworne, ¶ Fitzherb. 3921 ¶ Discontinuance, (Discontinuatio) Signifieth in the Common Law, nothing else but an interruption or breaking off: as discontinuance of possession, or discontinuance of proceile. And the large discourse that ¶ Littleton hath about this Discontinuance is rather to shew cases wherein it is, or wherein it is not, then to define the thing. The effect of discontinuance of possession is this, that a man may not enter upon his owne land or tenement alienated, whatsoever his right be unto it, of his owne selfe, or by his owne authoritie, but must bring his writ, and seeke to recouer possession by Law. Examples you may haue here in his Termes of Law, verbo Discontinuance, and in ¶ Littleton eodem cap. with whom agreeth another in these words: But discontinuance of possession is indeed an impediment unto a man for entring into his owne land or tenements, caused by the fact of one that alienated them contrarie to right, and gaue Liuerie and seisin of them, whereby the true owner is left onely to his action. See the ¶ New termes of Law, and the Institutes of the Ciuill Law, cap. 43. and see St. Edw. Cokes Report 1. 3. the case of fines fo. 85. b. *The effect of discontinuance of plee is, that the instance is stilled, and may not be taken again, but by a new suit afresh. Dutchie Court. b ☞ Dutchie Court, is a Court wherein all matters appertaining to the Dutchie of Lancaster are decided, by the decree of the Chancellour of that Court. And the originall of it was in Henrie the Fourth his dayes, who obtaining the Crowne, by deposing Richard the Second, and having the Dutchie of Lancaster by discent in the right of his Mother, hee was seized thereof, as King, and not as Duke. So that all the Libertie, Franchises, and Iurisdictions of the said Dutchie, passed from the King, by his Grand Seale, and not by Liuerie, or Attornement, as the Possessions of Euerwicke, and of the Earledome of March, and such others did, which had discended to the King by other Ancestors then Kings. But at the last Henry the Fourth, by authoritie of Parliament, passed a Charter, whereby the Possessions, Libertie, &c. of the said Dutchie were reserred from the Crowne. Yet Henry the Seuenth reduced it to his former nature, as it was in Henry the Fifth his dayes, ¶ Crompton Iurisdict. fol 136. The Officers belonging to this Court, are the Chancellour, the Attorney, Receiuer generall, Clerke of the Court, the Messenger. Beside these there be certaine Assistants of this Court, as one Attorney in the Exchequer, one Attorney of the Dutchie in the Chancerie, foure learned men in the Law, retained of Counsell with the King in the said Court.

Forest. b ☞ * Forrest (Foresta) is a great or vaſt Wood. ¶ Mr. Manwood 2. par. of Forest Lawes, cap. 1. n. 1. thus describeth it: A Forest is a certaine Territorie of Woodie grounds and fruitfull Pastures, priuileged & for wilde beasts and fowles of the Forrest, Chace, and Warren, to rest and abide in, in the safe protection of the King, for his Princely delight and pleasure, which Territory of ground so priuileged, is Meered and Bounded with vnremoueable marks, meeres and boundaries, either knowne by matter of Record or else prescription, and also replenished with wilde Beasts of Venerie or chase, and with great coverts of Vert, for the succour of the said wilde Beasts to haue their abode in: for the preservation and continuance of which said place, together with the Vert, and Venison, there are certaine particular Lawes, Priuileges, and Officers, belonging to the same, most for that purpose, that are only proper vnto a Forrest, and not to any other place. The manner of making Forrest, as the same Author well setteth downe, part. 1. pag. 142. is this: The King sendeth out his Commission vnder the broad seale of England, directed to certaine discreet persons, for the view, perambulation, meering and bounding of the place, that he mindeth to * Afforest, which returned vnto the Chancery, Proclamation is made thereof out all the Shire where the ground lieth, that none shall hunt or chase any manner of wilde beasts within that precinct, without the Kings speciall licence, after which hee appointeth ordinances, lawes, and Officers, fit for the preseruation of the Vert and Venison: and so becommeth this a Forrest by matter of record. The properties of a Forrest are these in speciall, first a Forrest, as it is truly and strictly taken, cannot be in the hands of any but the Kings: the reason is given by ¶ M.
