[The English fortune-tellers: containing several necessary questions resolved by the ablest antient philosophers, and modern astrologers / Gathered ... by J[ohn] P[hillips] student in astrology].

Contributors

Phillips, John, 1631-1706

Publication/Creation

[London]: [P. Brooksby, J. Deacon, J. Blare & J. Back], [1692]

Persistent URL

https://wellcomecollection.org/works/vk4u5gfw

License and attribution

This work has been identified as being free of known restrictions under copyright law, including all related and neighbouring rights and is being made available under the Creative Commons, Public Domain Mark.

You can copy, modify, distribute and perform the work, even for commercial purposes, without asking permission.

Wellcome Collection 183 Euston Road London NW1 2BE UK T +44 (0)20 7611 8722 E library@wellcomecollection.org https://wellcomecollection.org

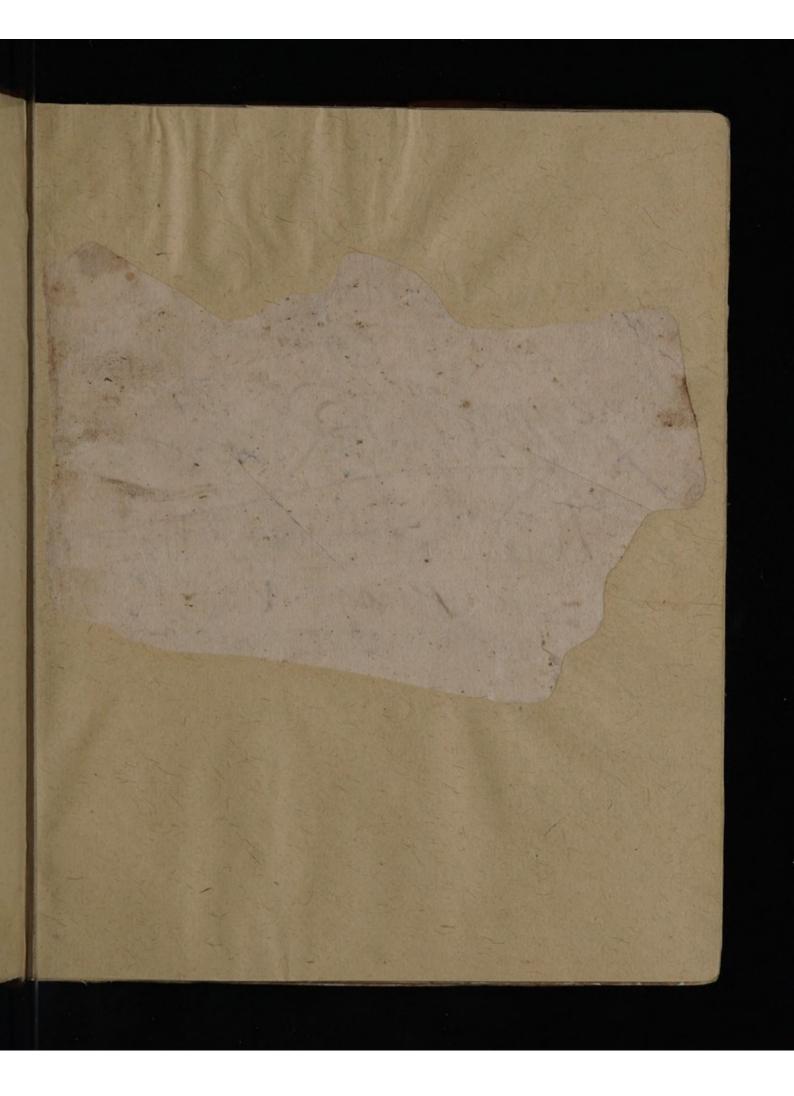

41109/B

PHILLIPS, J.

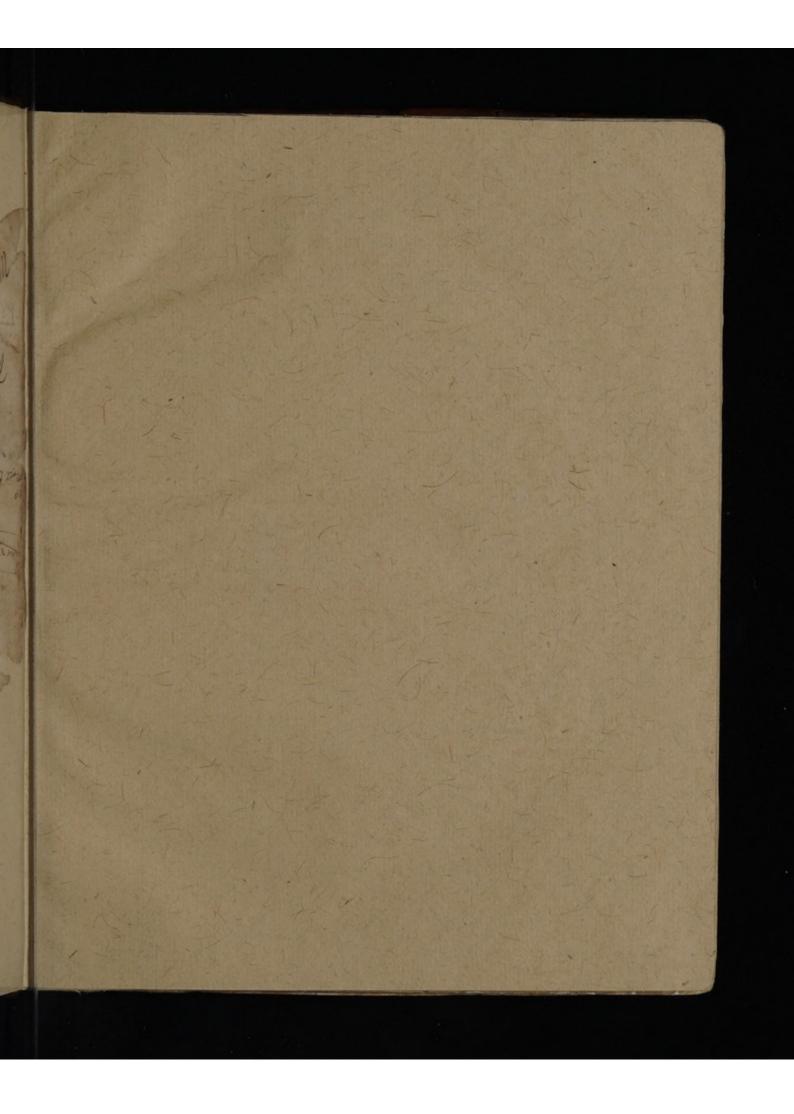

The English fortune tellers

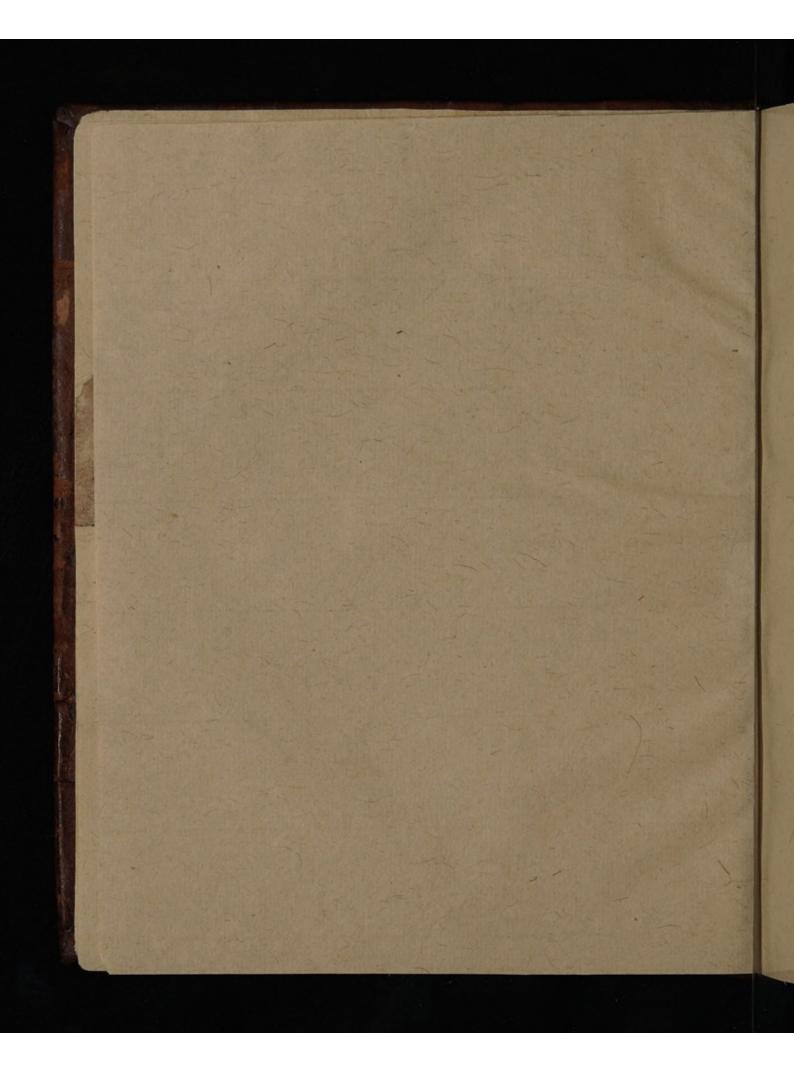

[London: 1692]

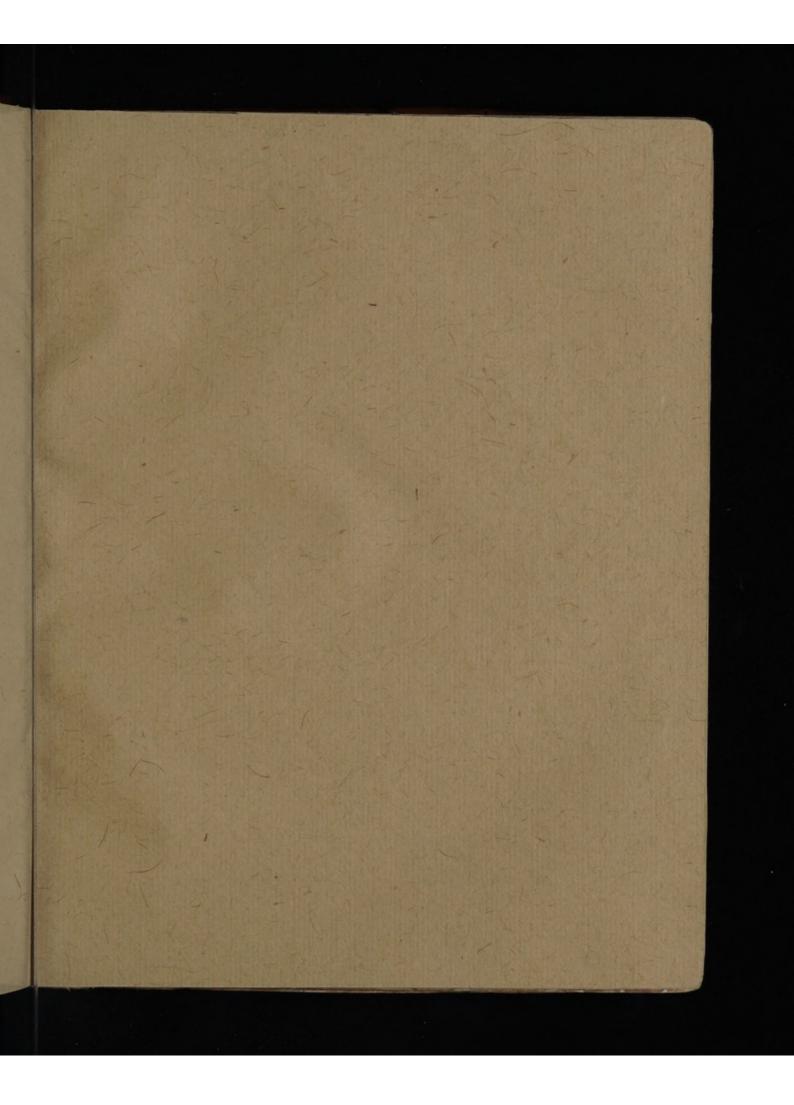

Wanting A1-3, 82-E2, L4, Mi

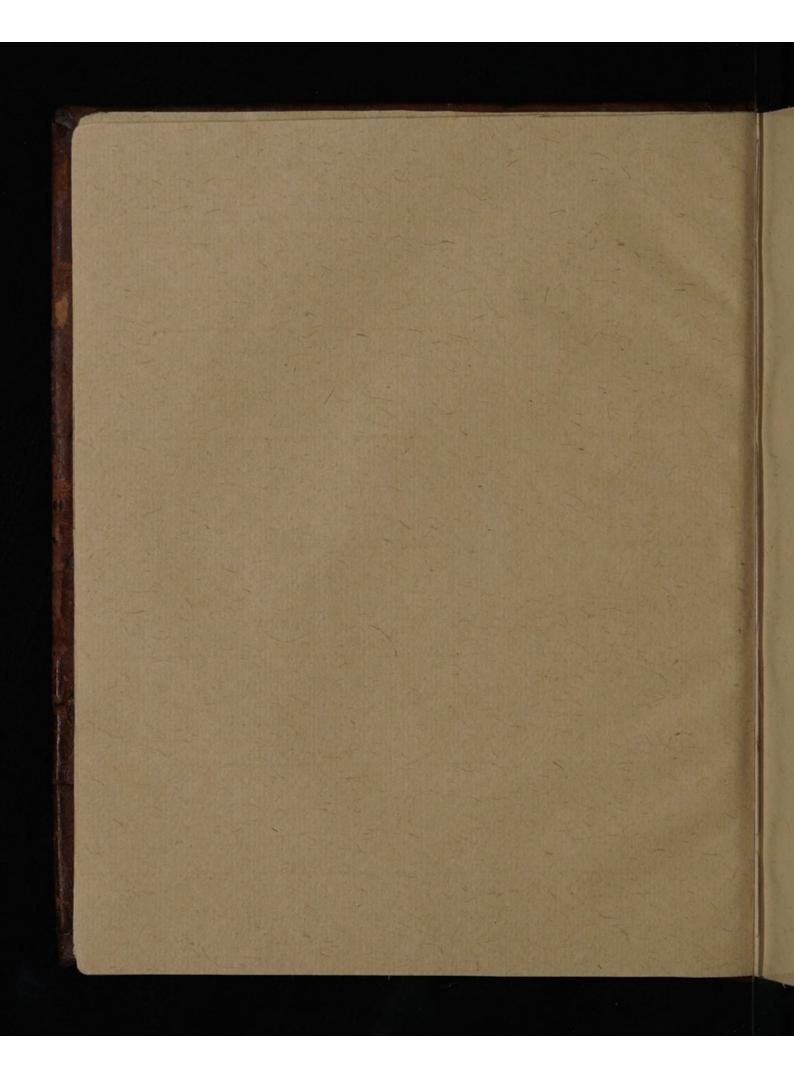

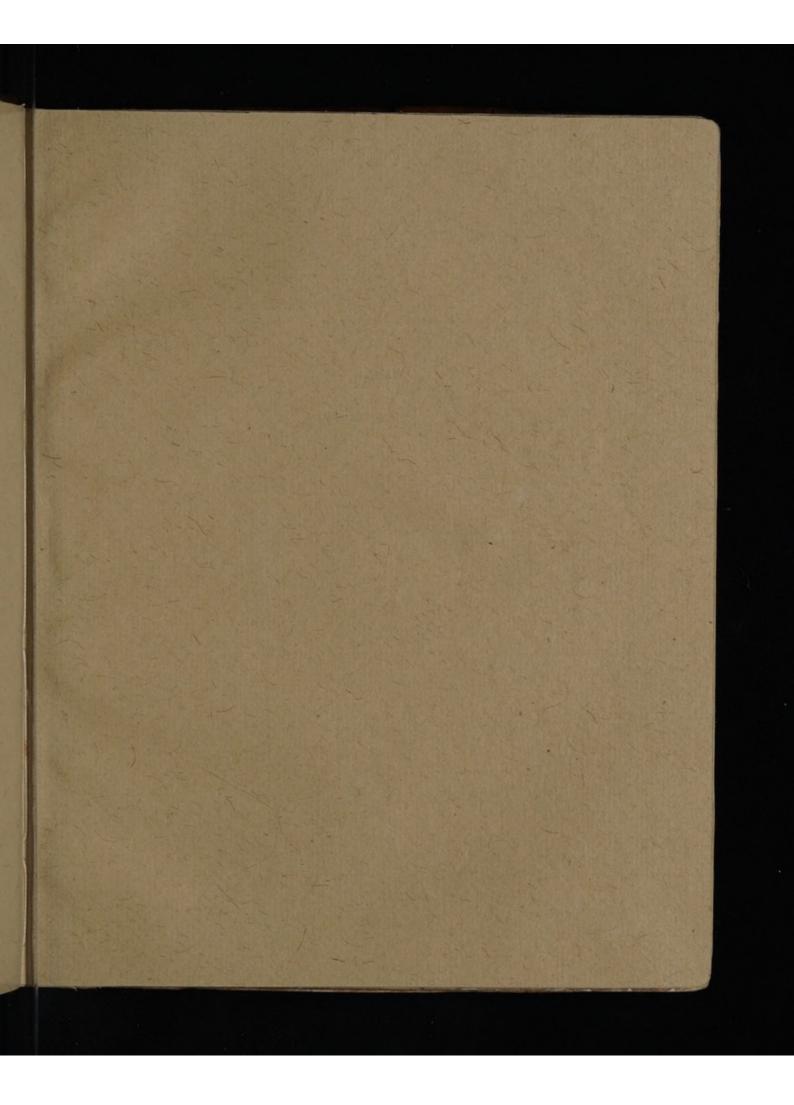

Nicho endall Vicholls

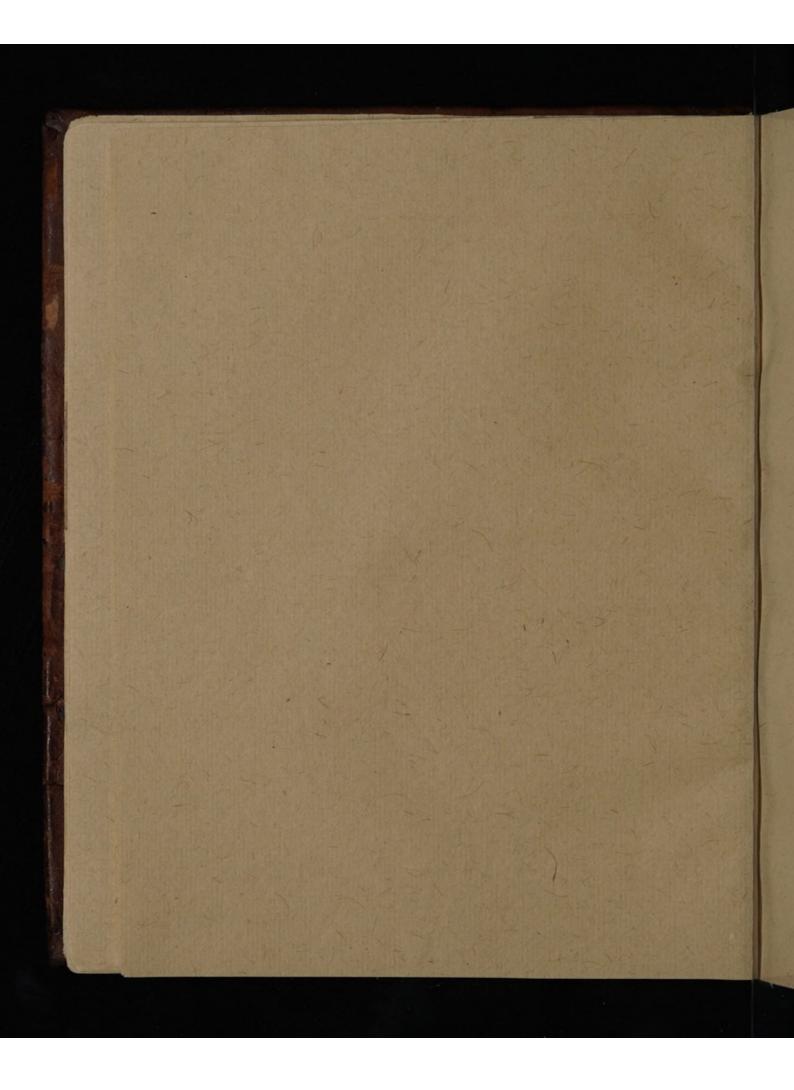

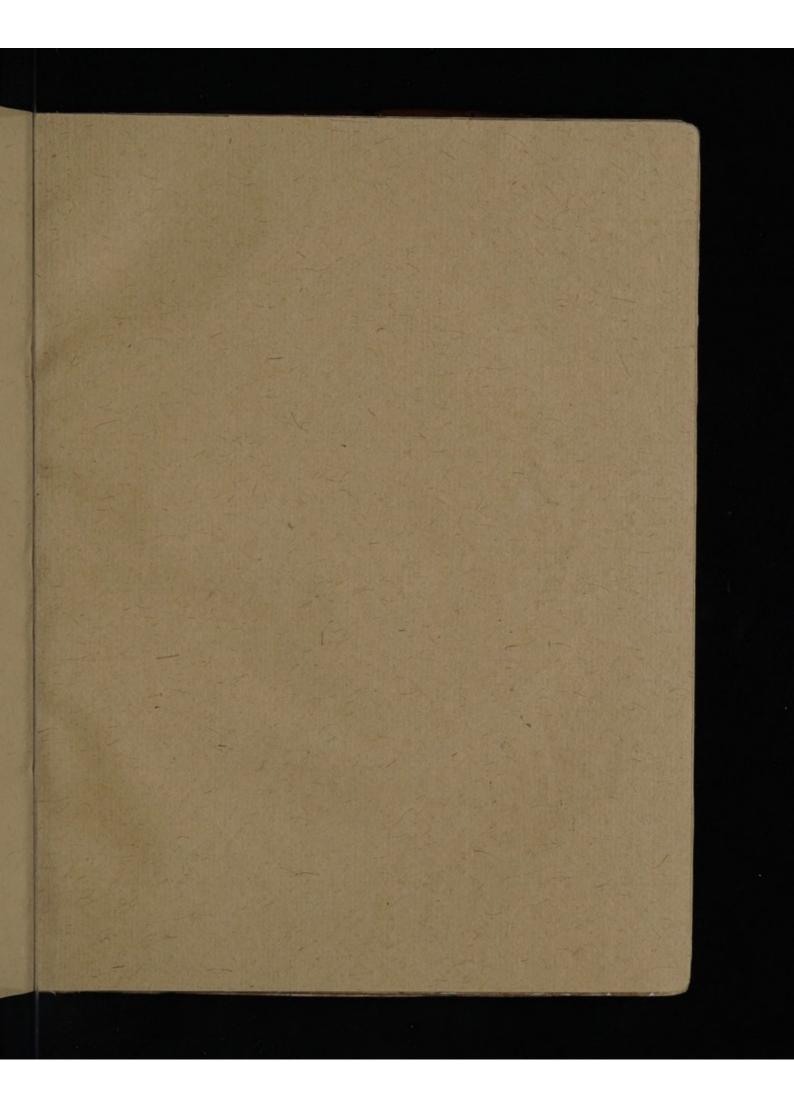

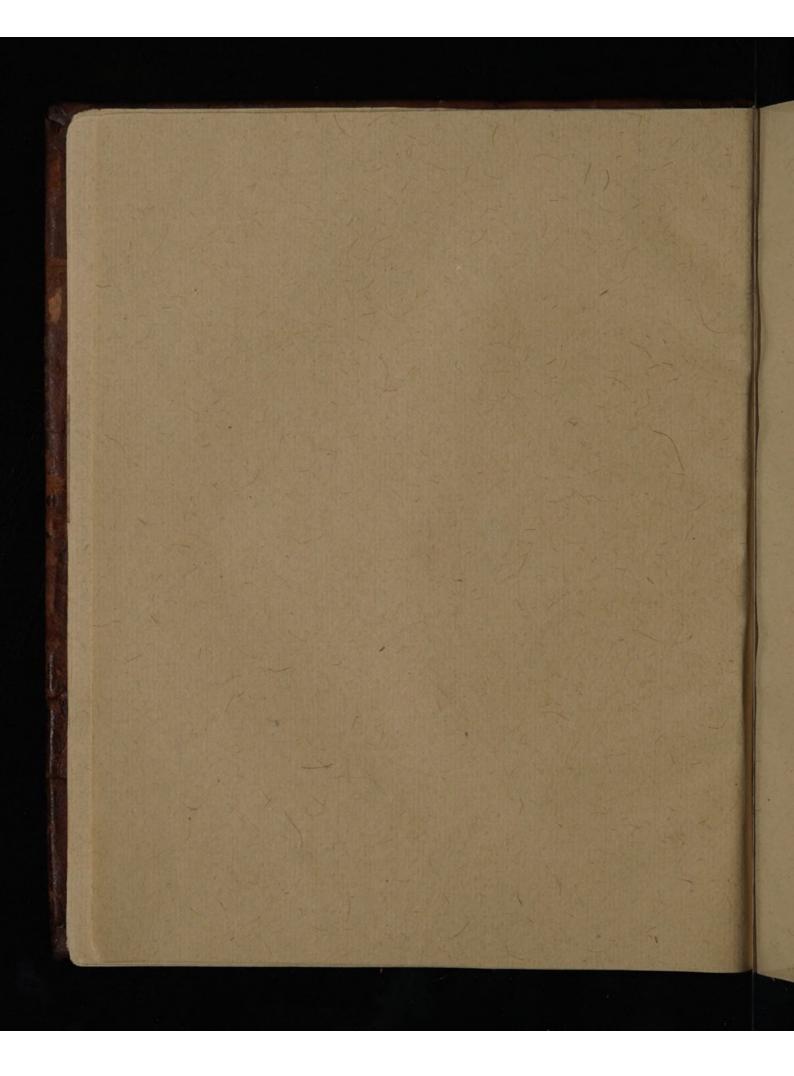

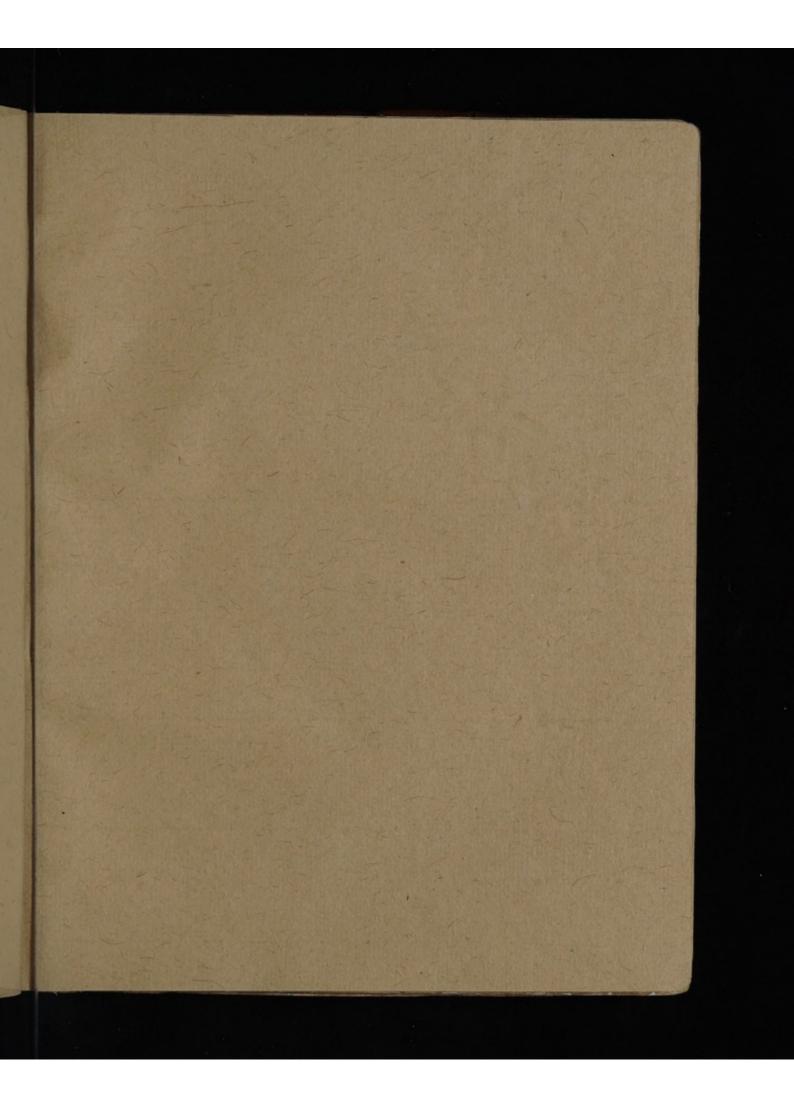

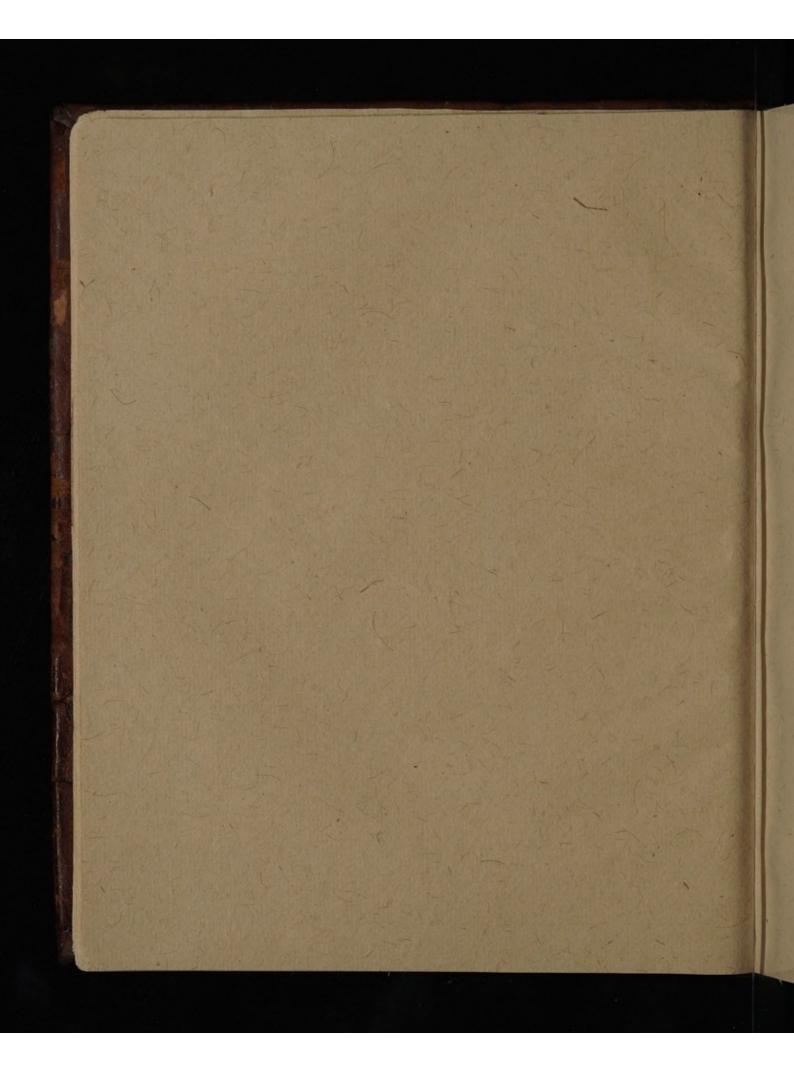

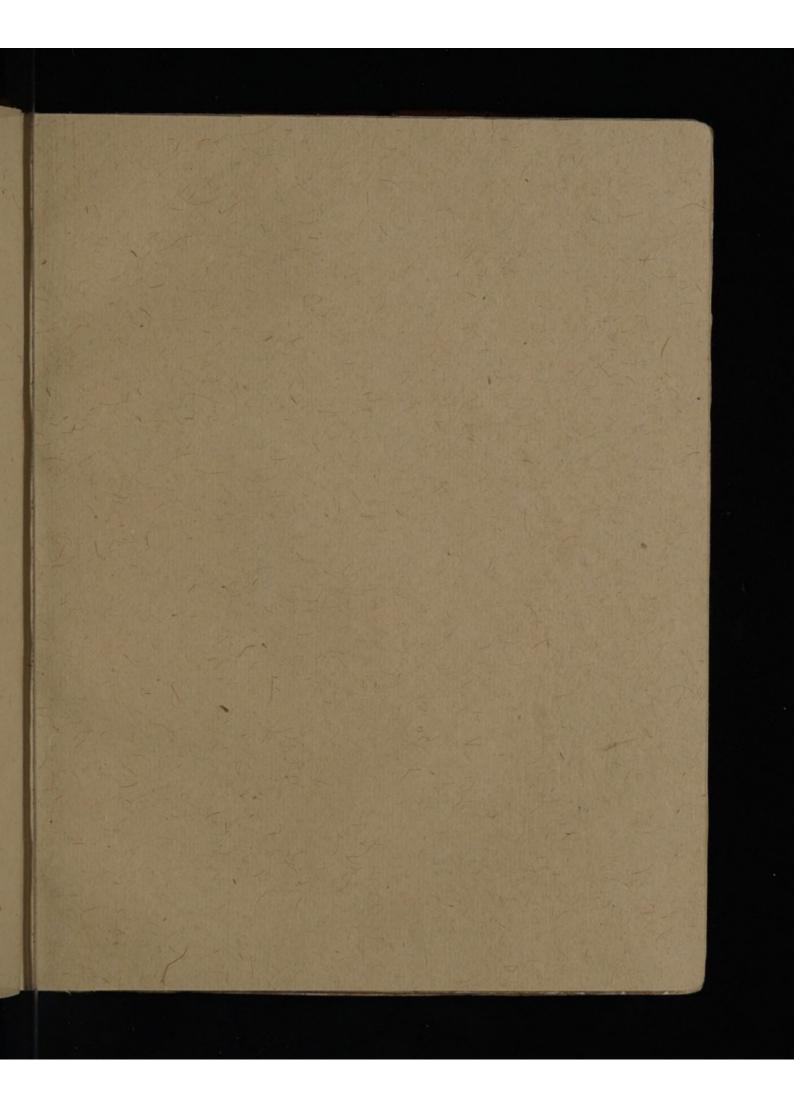

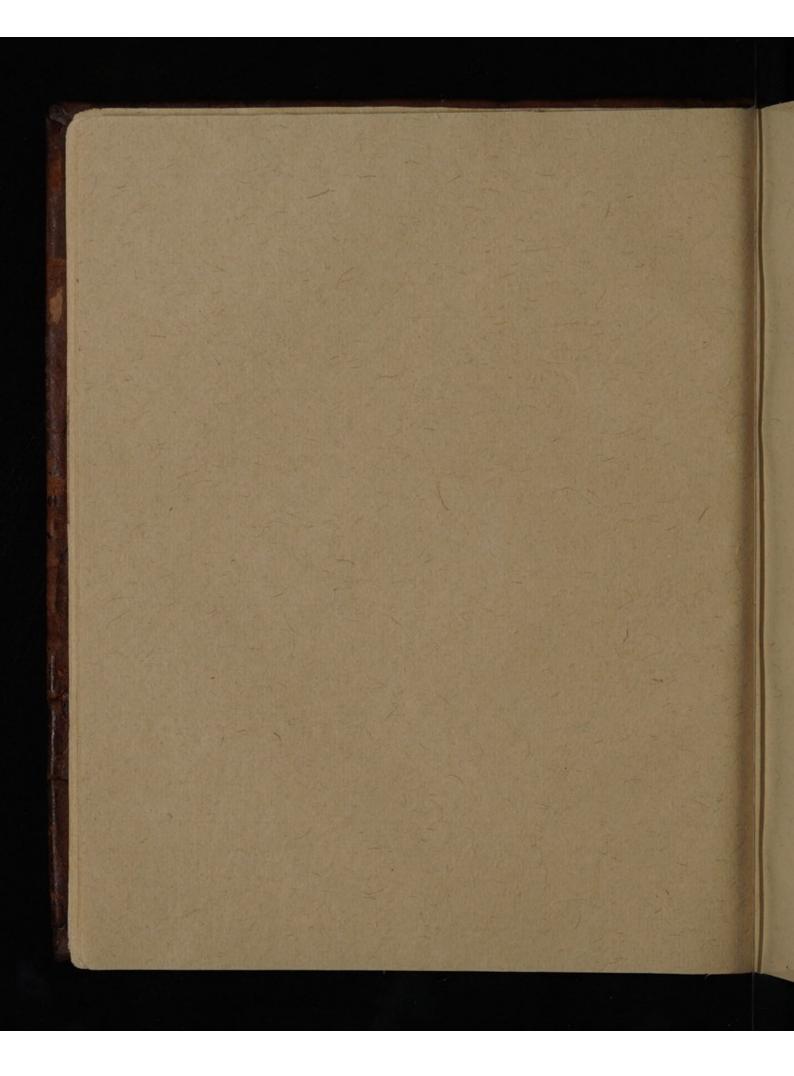

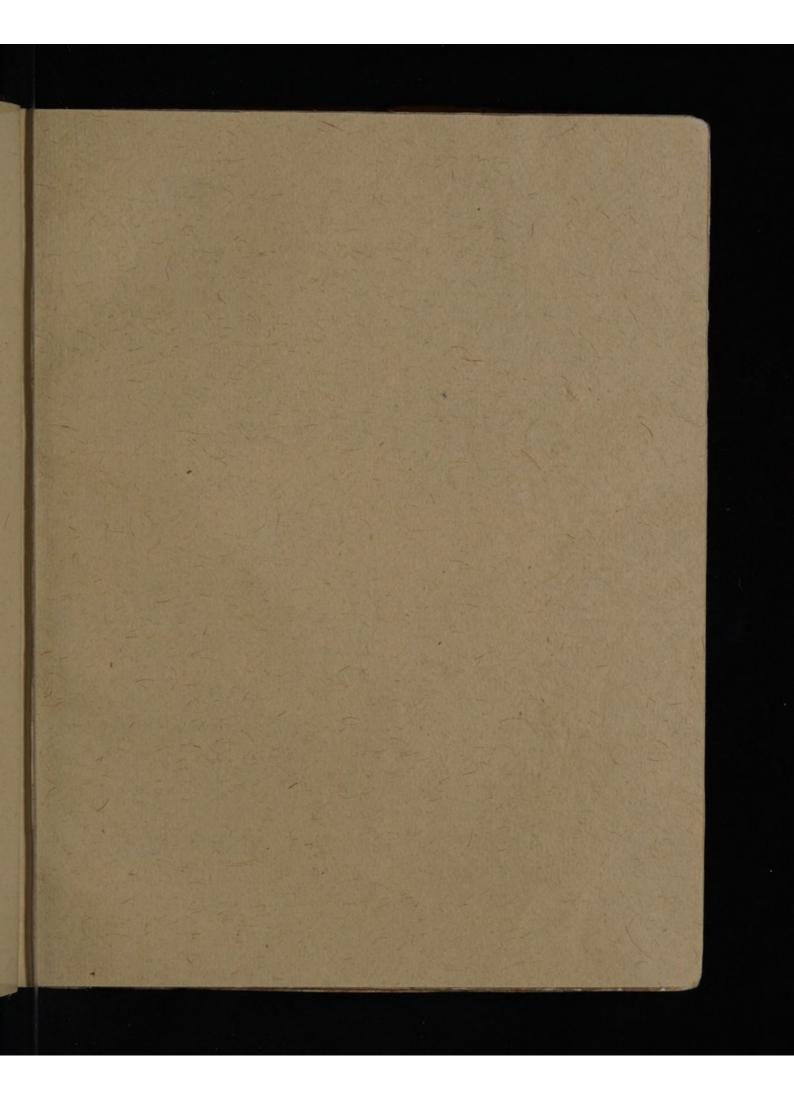

King Egbert.
Go to Fryer Bungy.

King Fragosa.
Go to Damon.

King Gyges.
Go to Cornelius Agrippa.

King Harold.
Go to Diagoras.

King Janus.
Go to Doctor Dec.

King Kardin.
Go to Doctor Faustus.

King Lycaon. Go to Cleanthes.

King Mydas.

King Nautilas.
Go to Copernicus.

King Oberon.
Go to Erra pater.

King Philip.
Go to Paul Grebner.

King Quirinus.
Go to Damonax.

King Romanus.

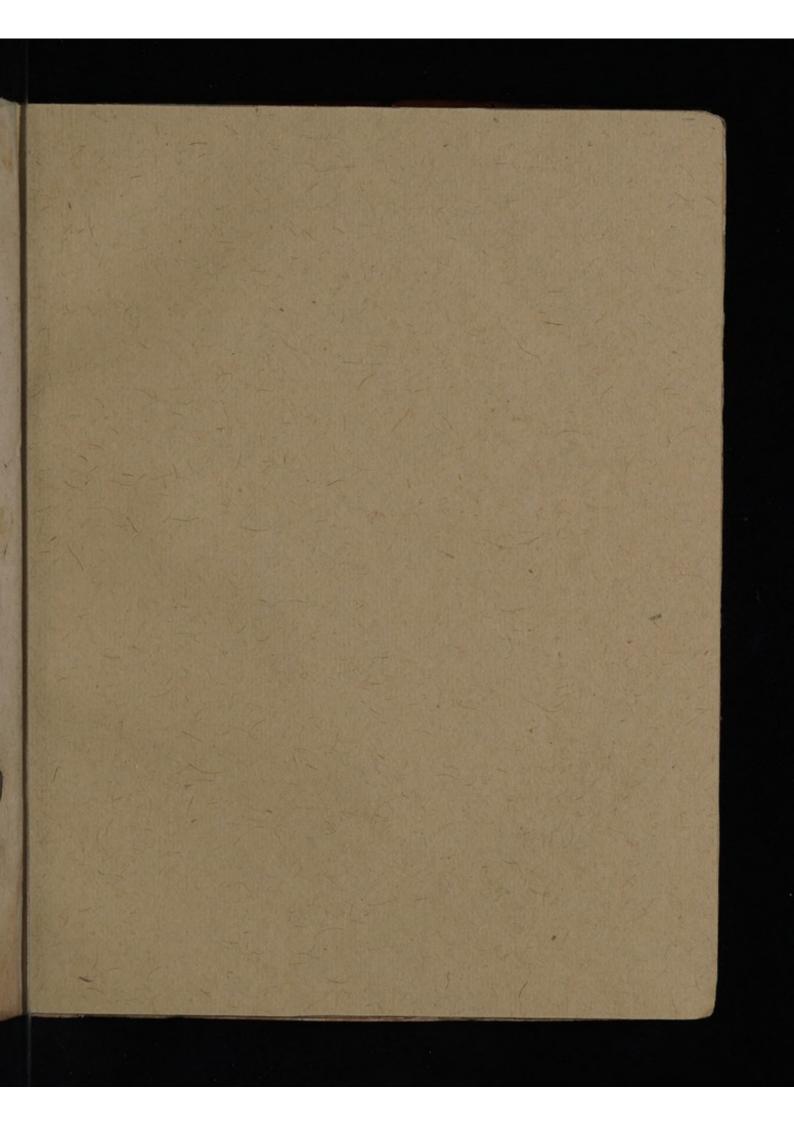

King Scipio.
Go to Bapt. Porta.

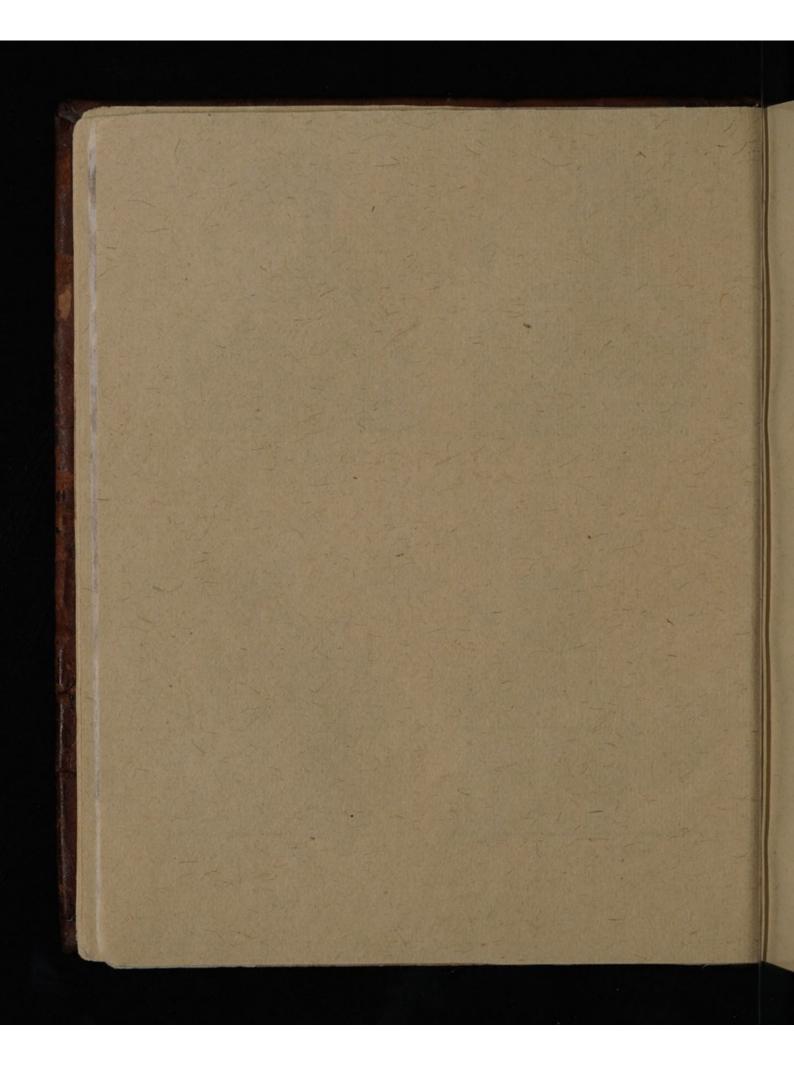

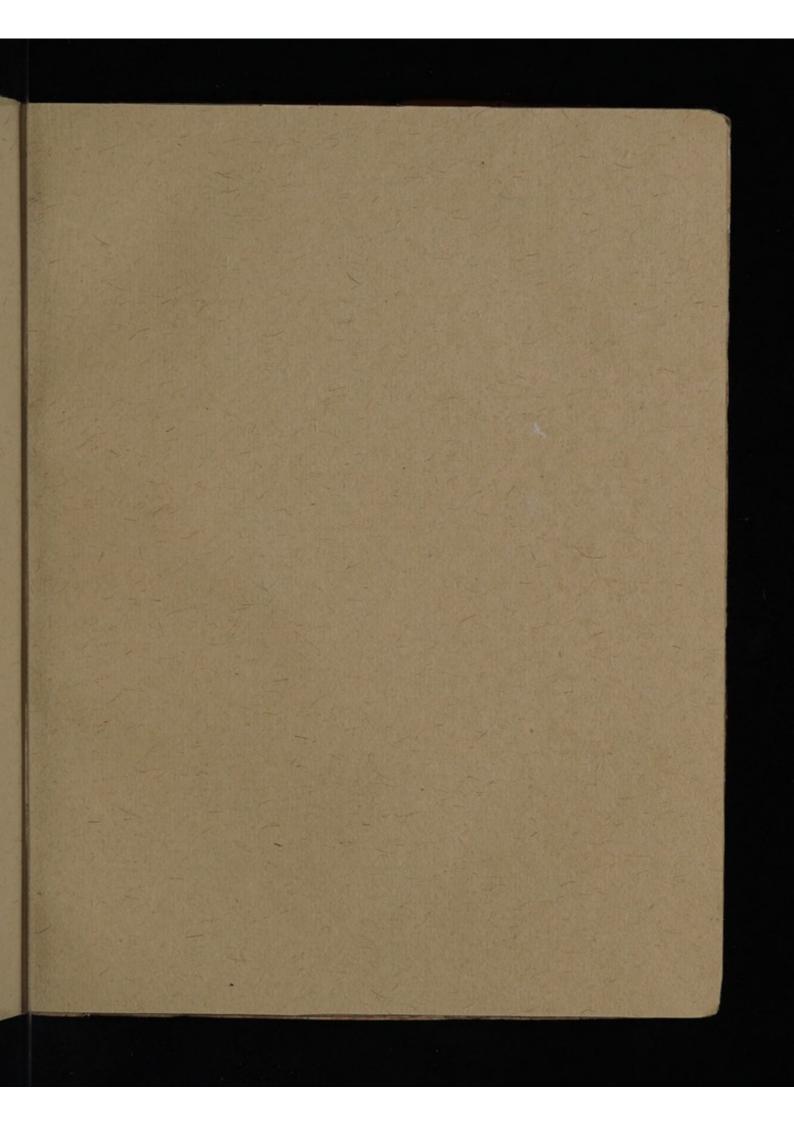

· King Telepus.
Go to Merlin.

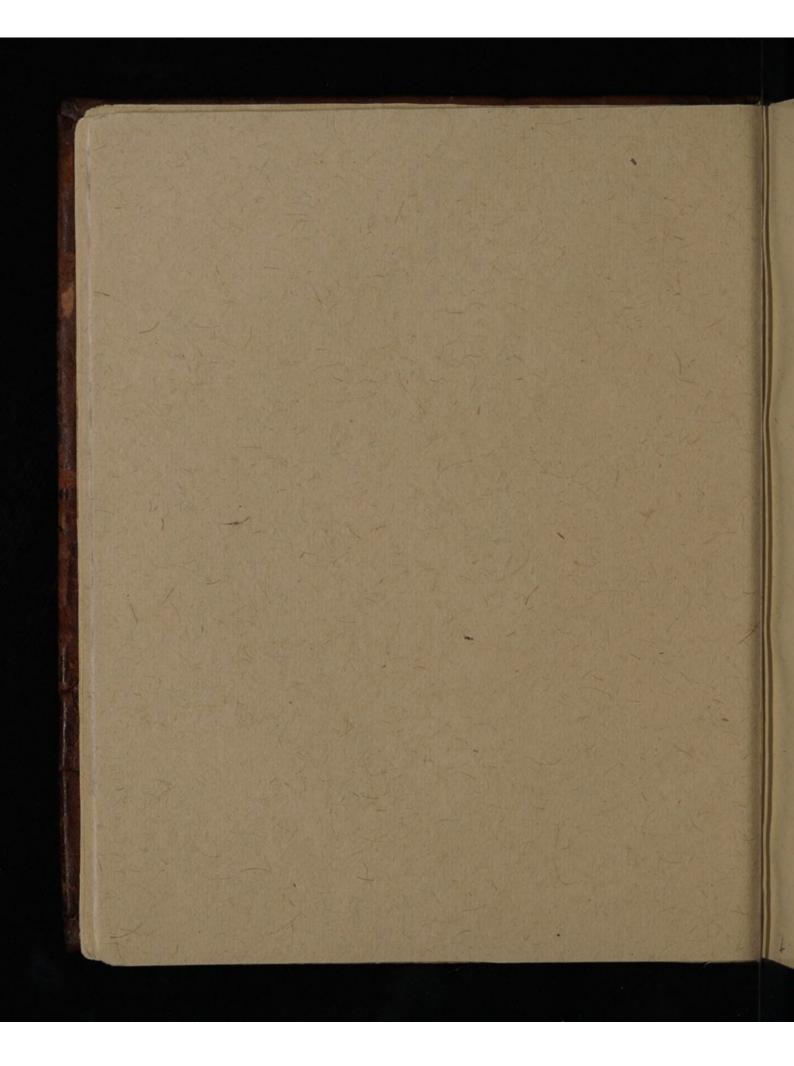

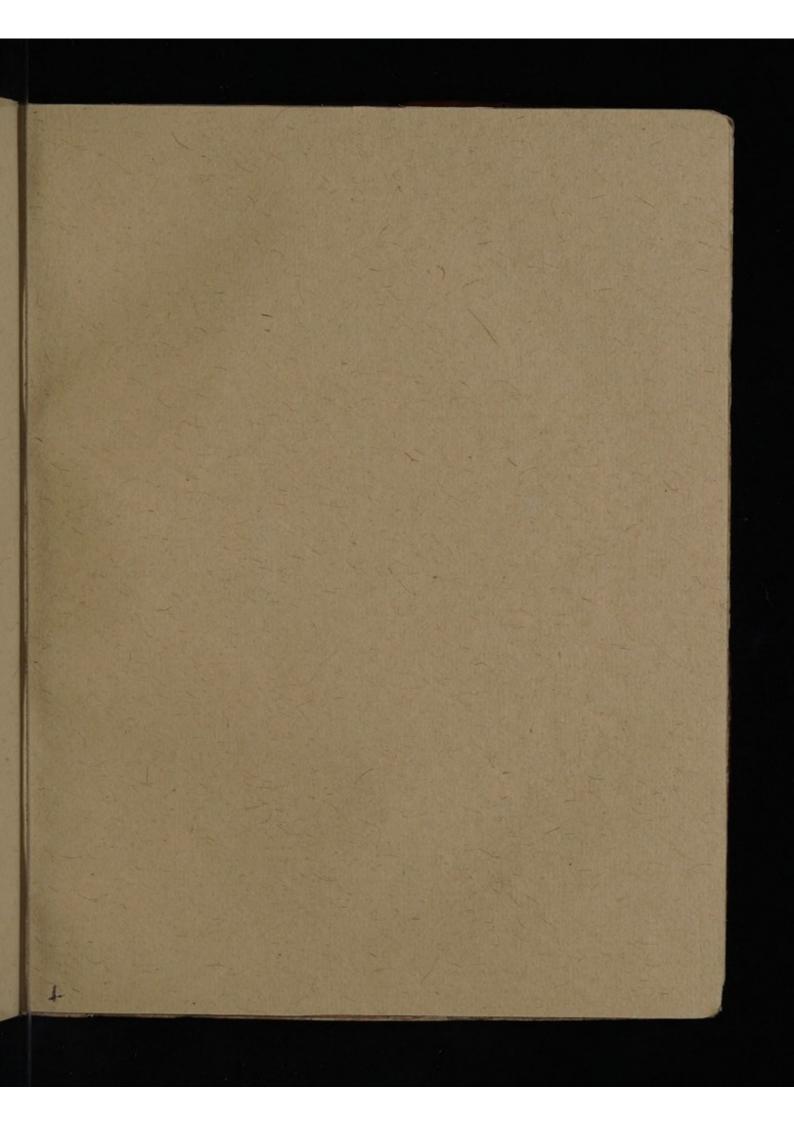

King Valentine. Go to Nostradamus.

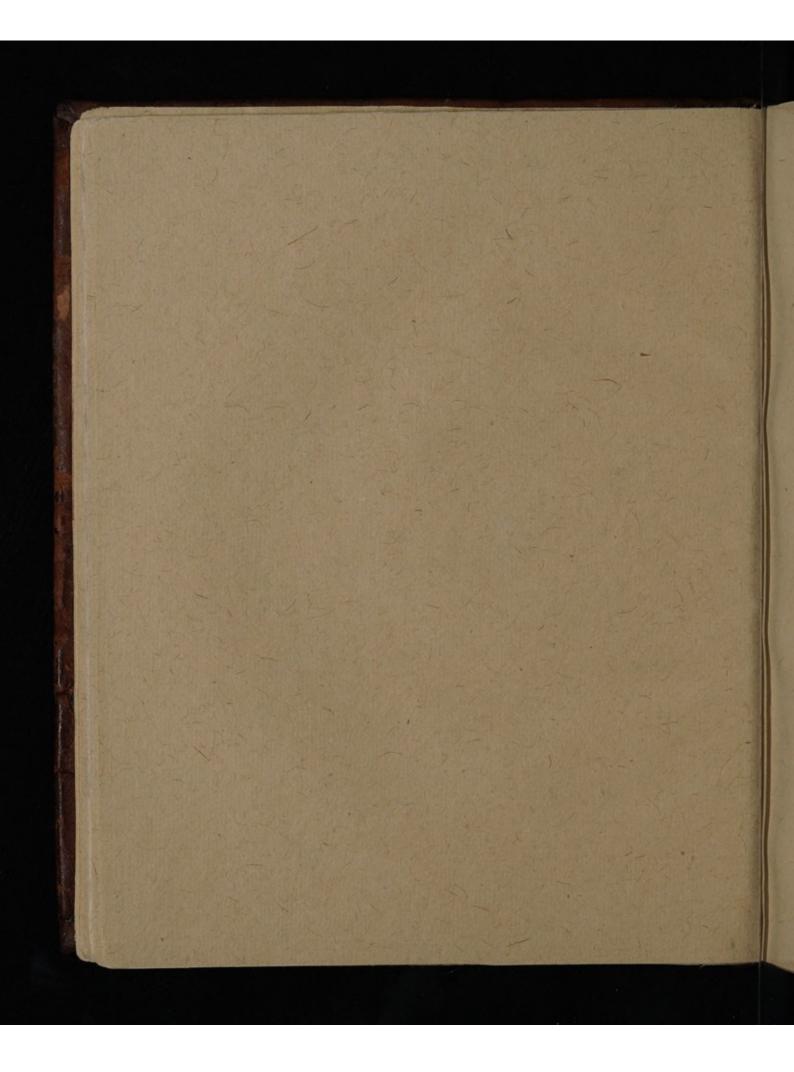

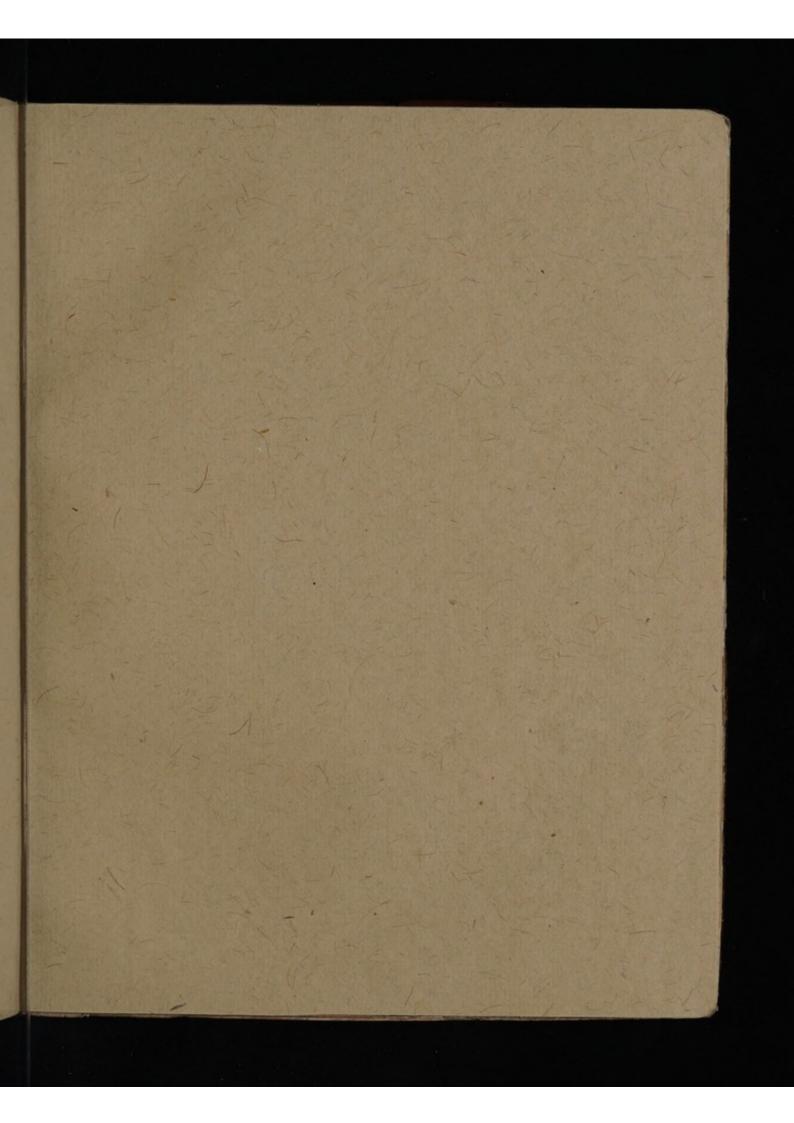

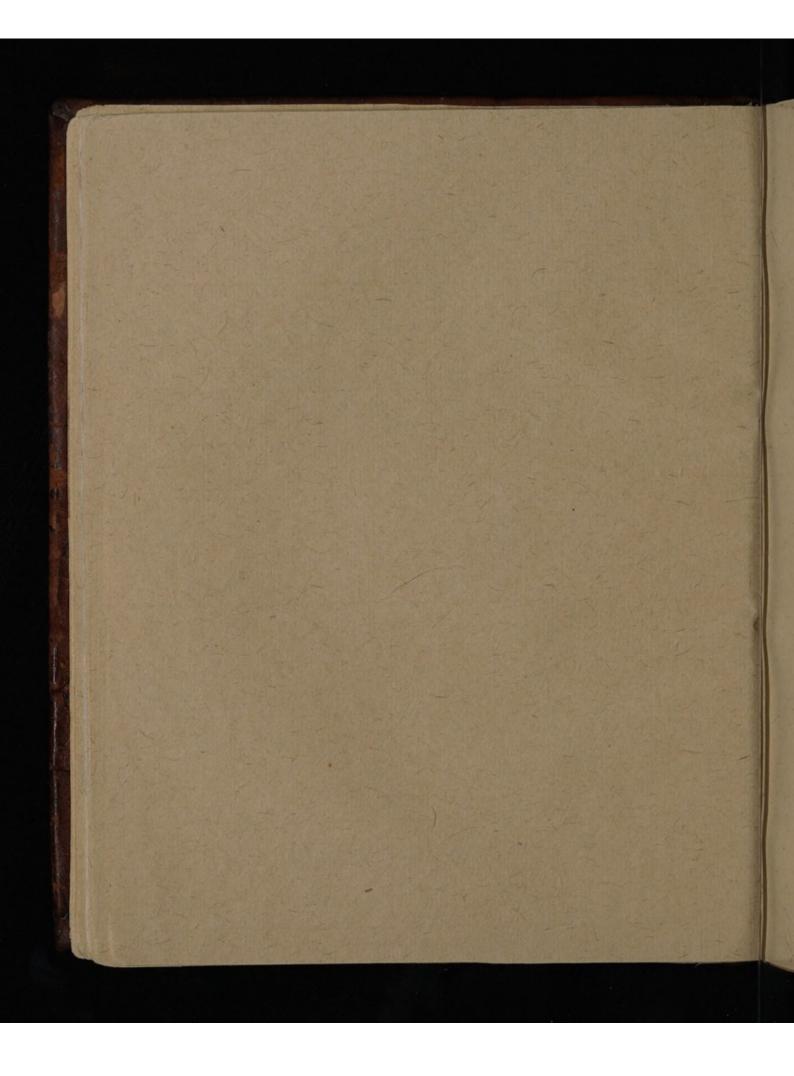

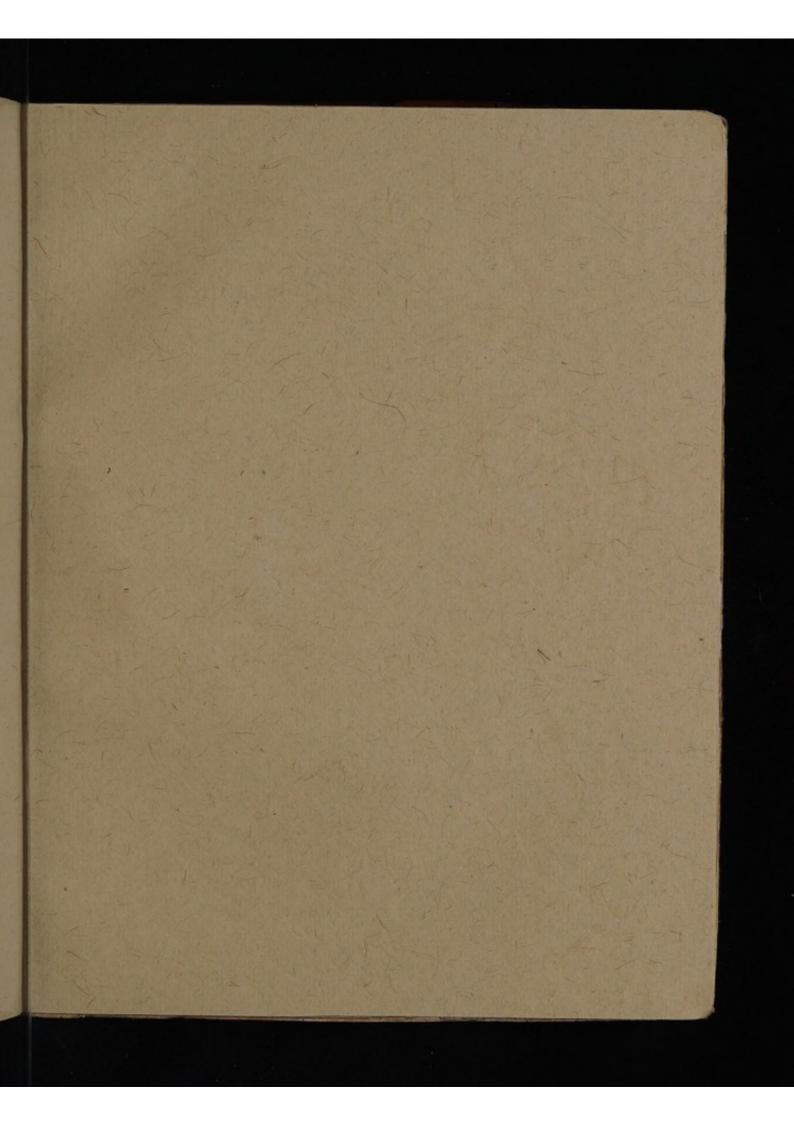

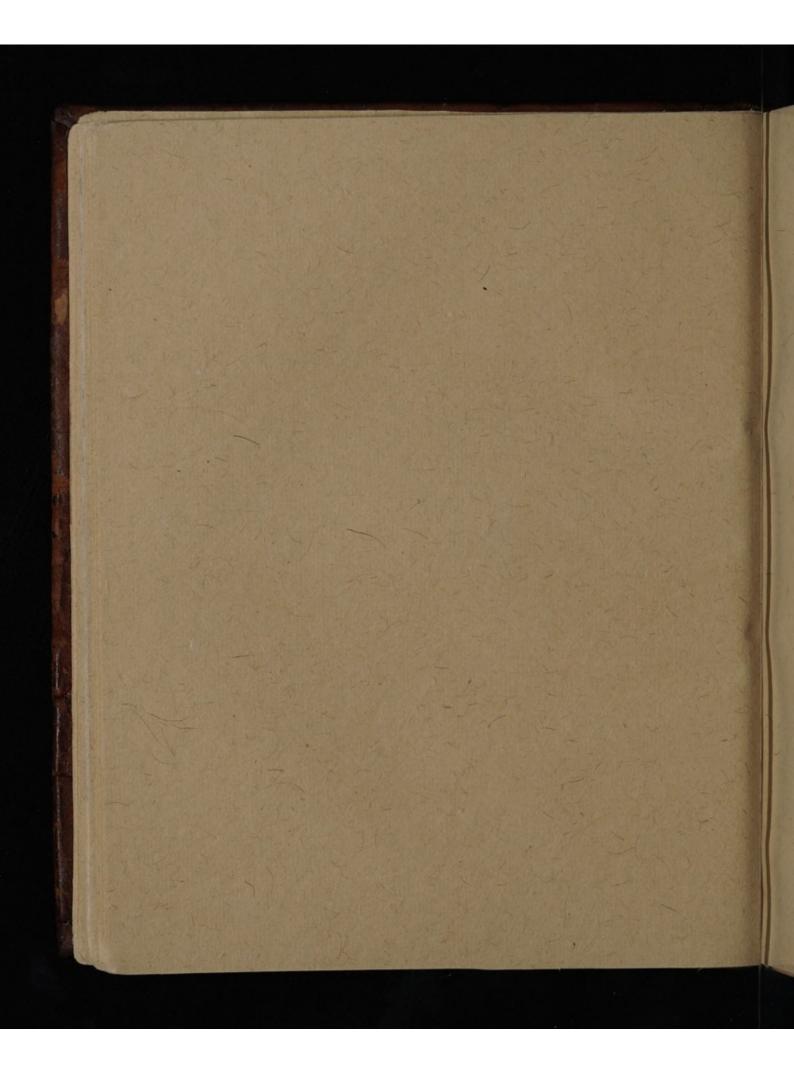

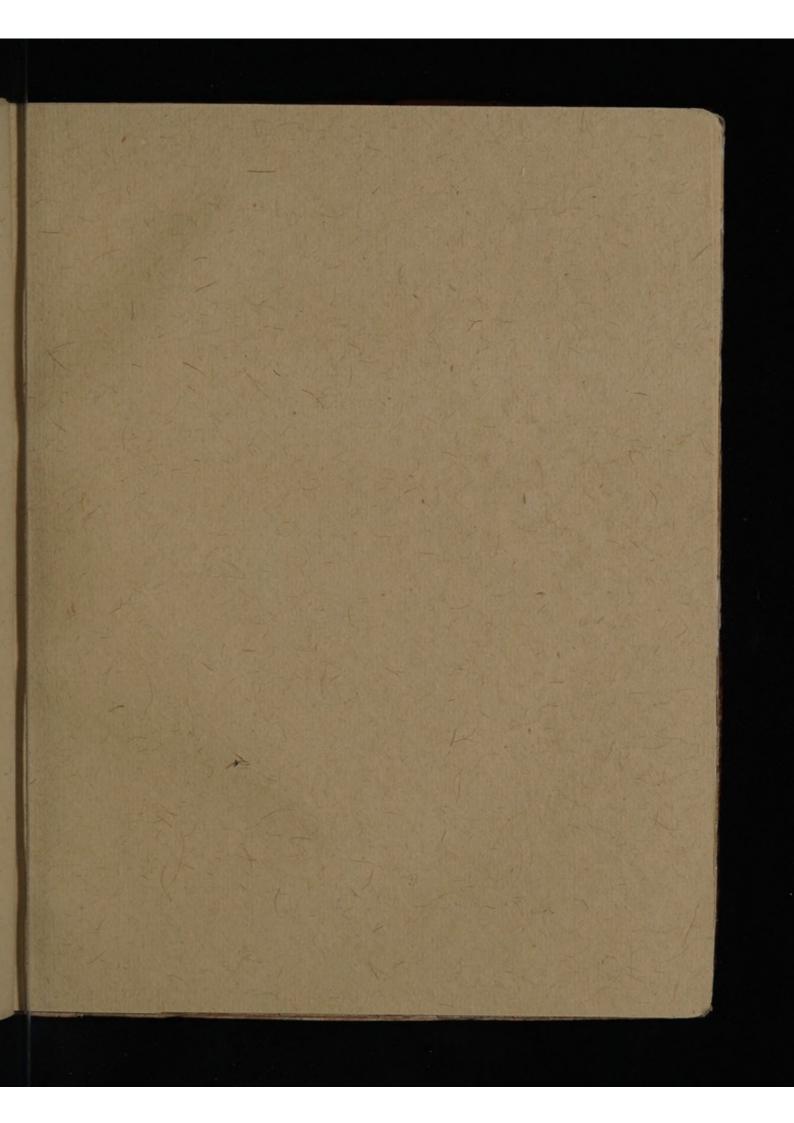

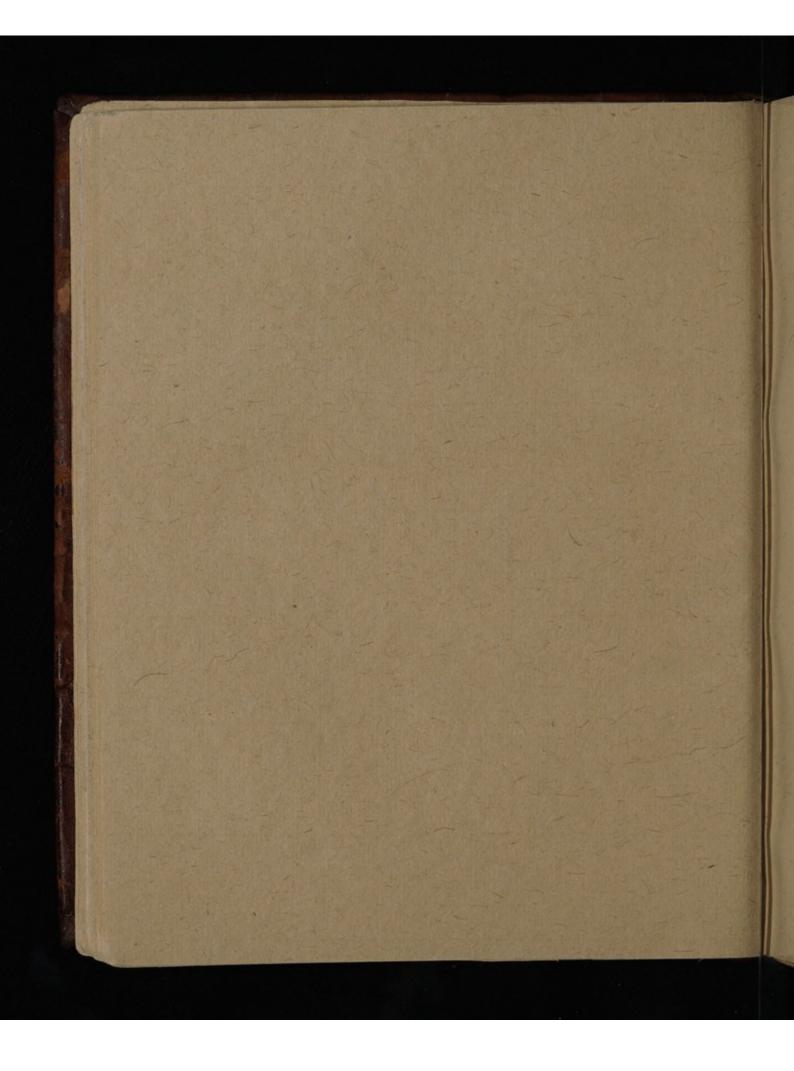

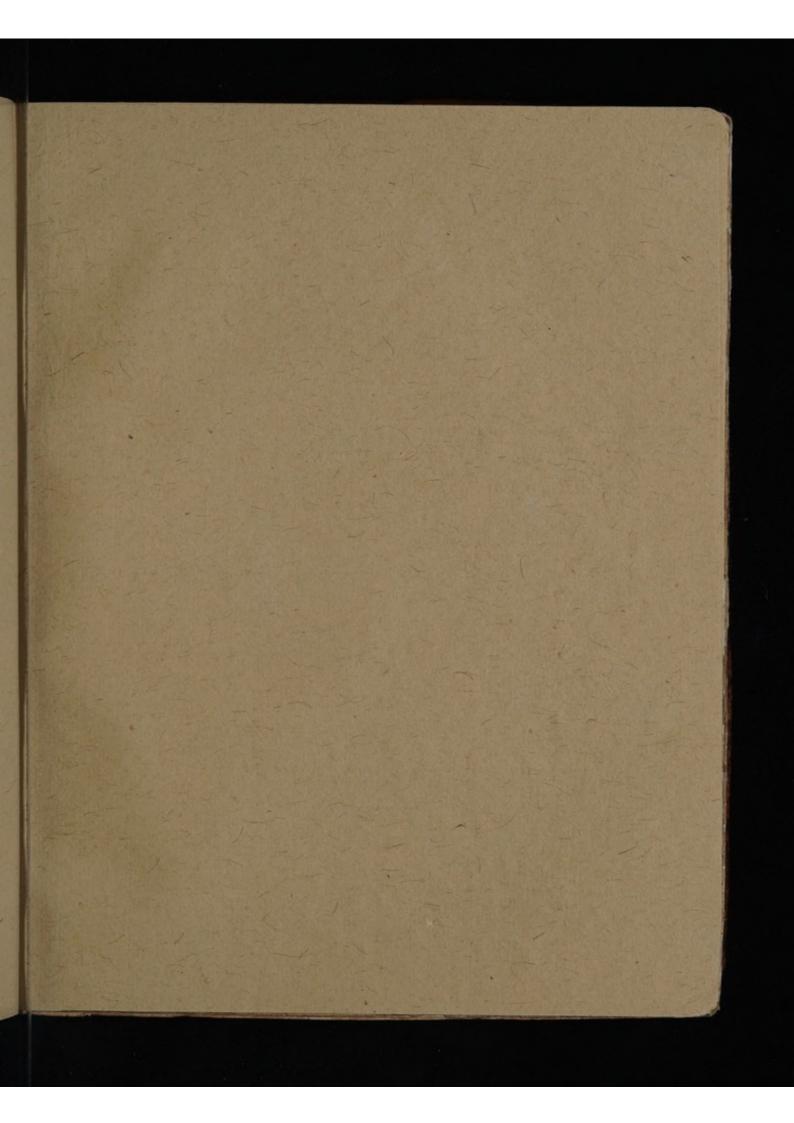

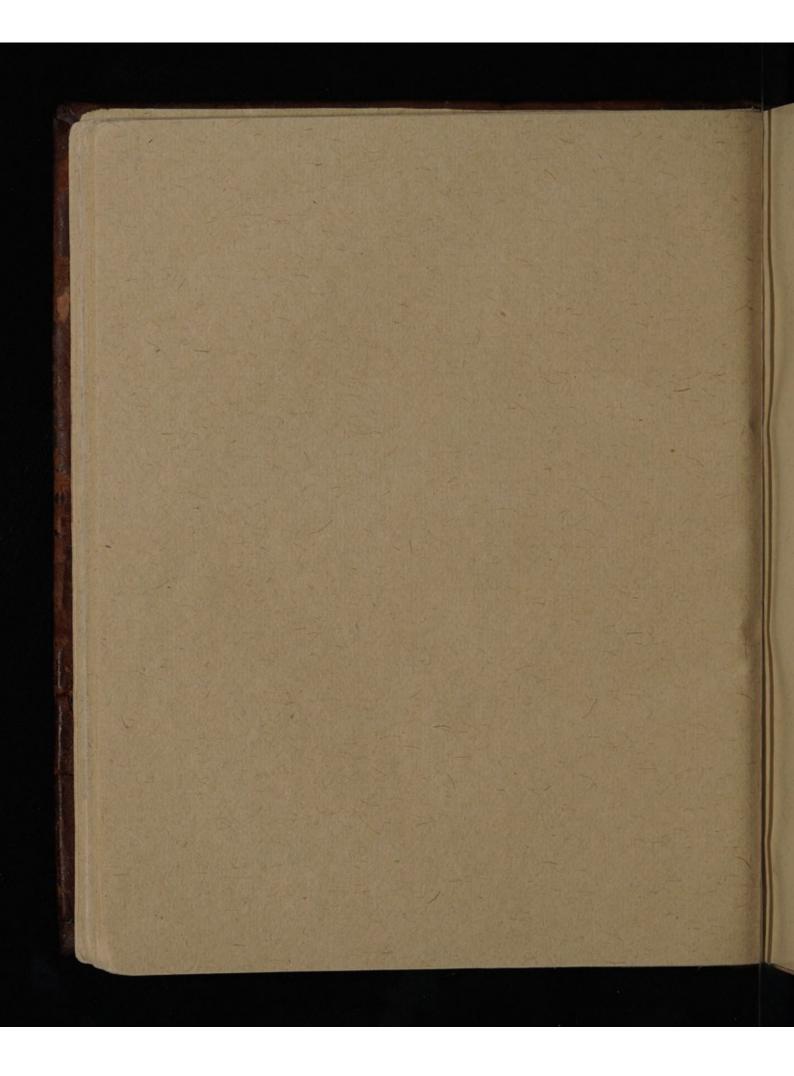

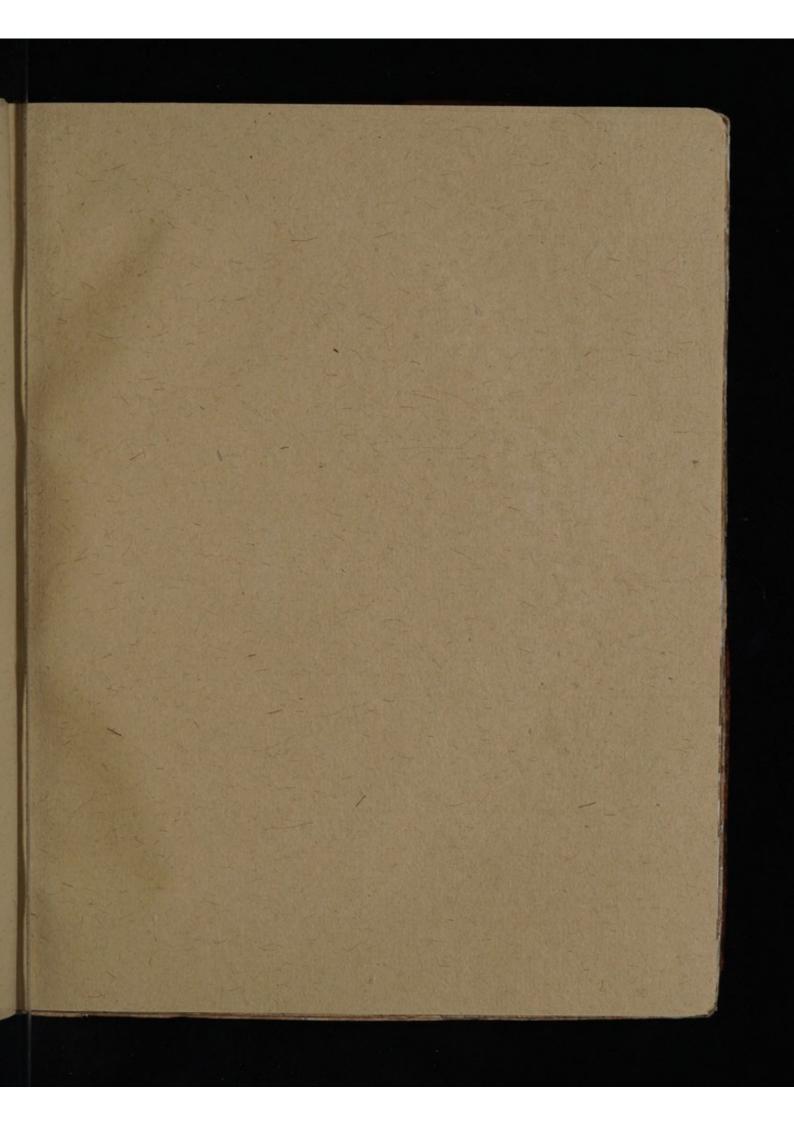

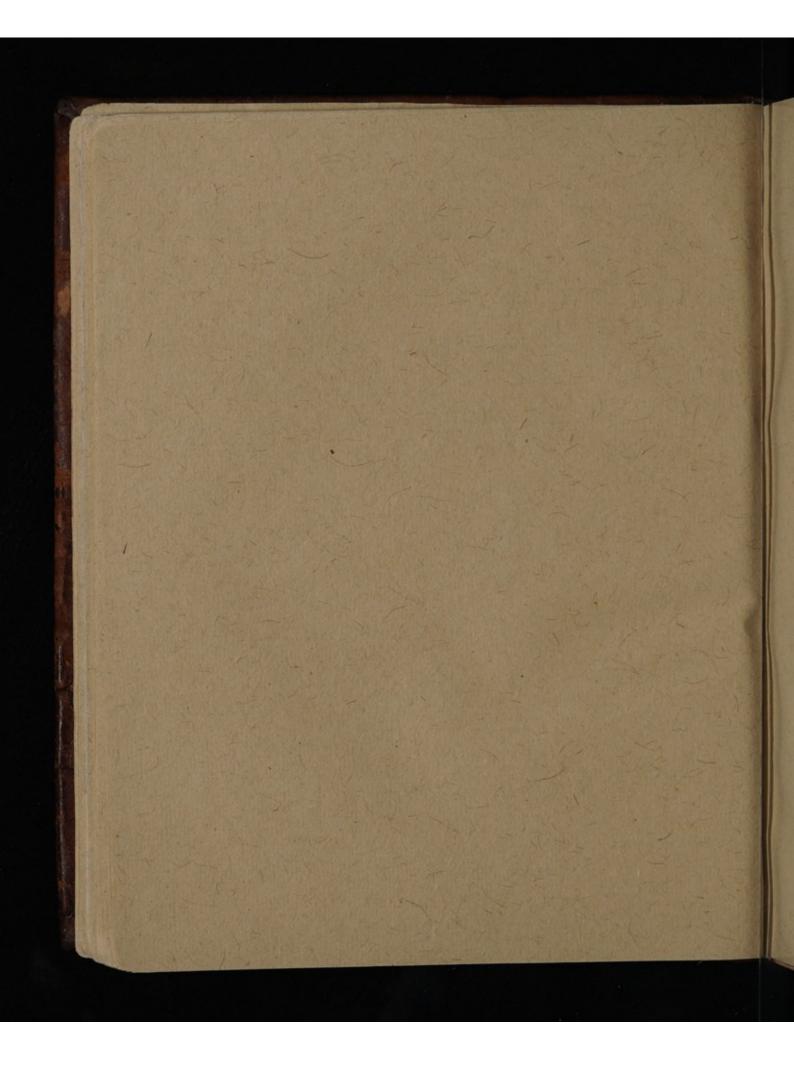

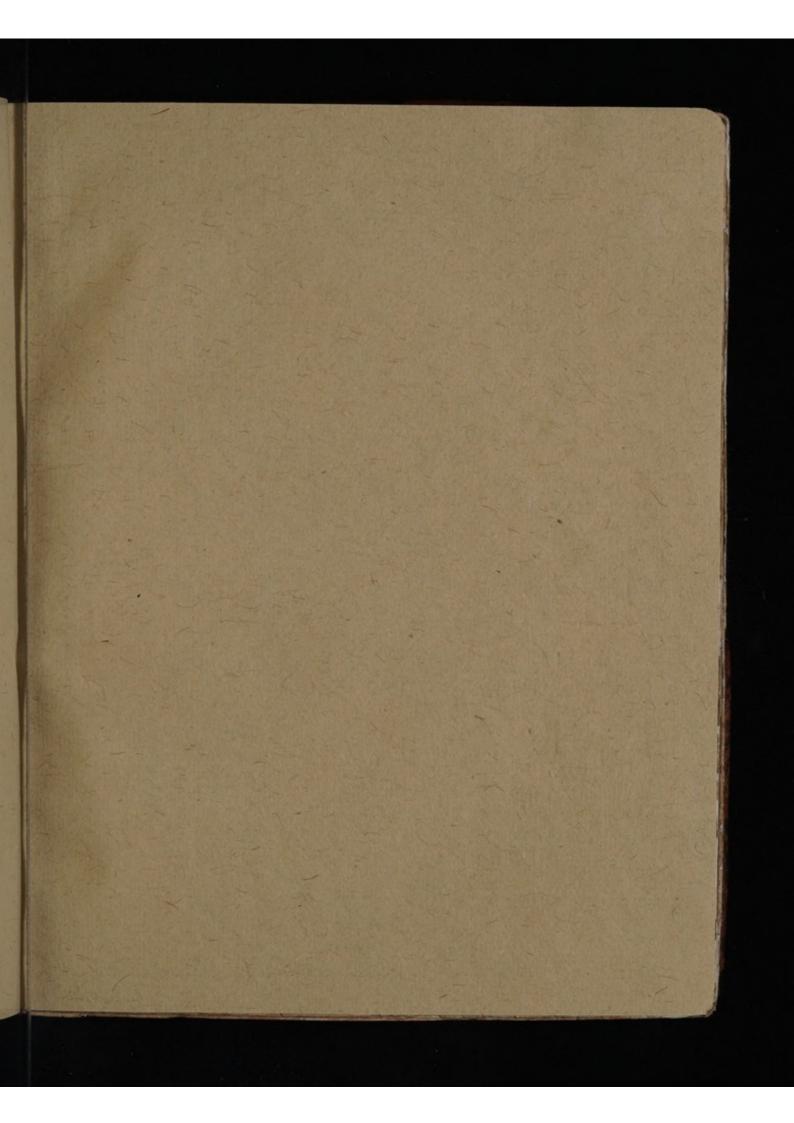

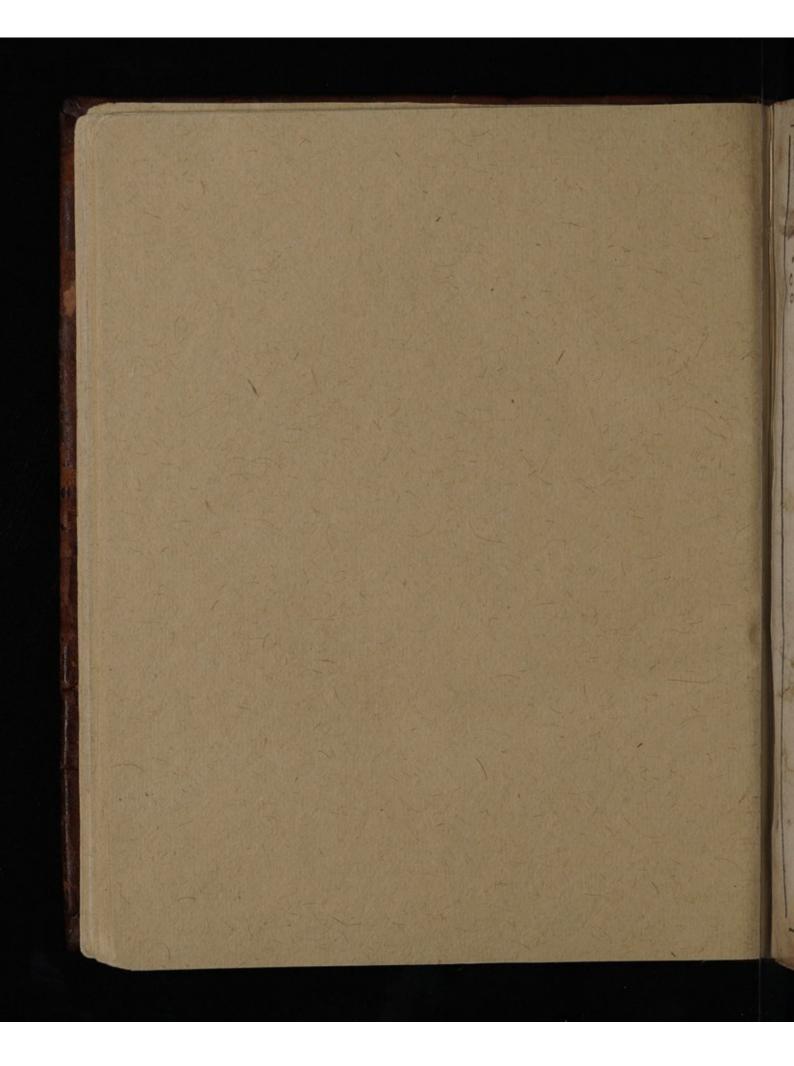

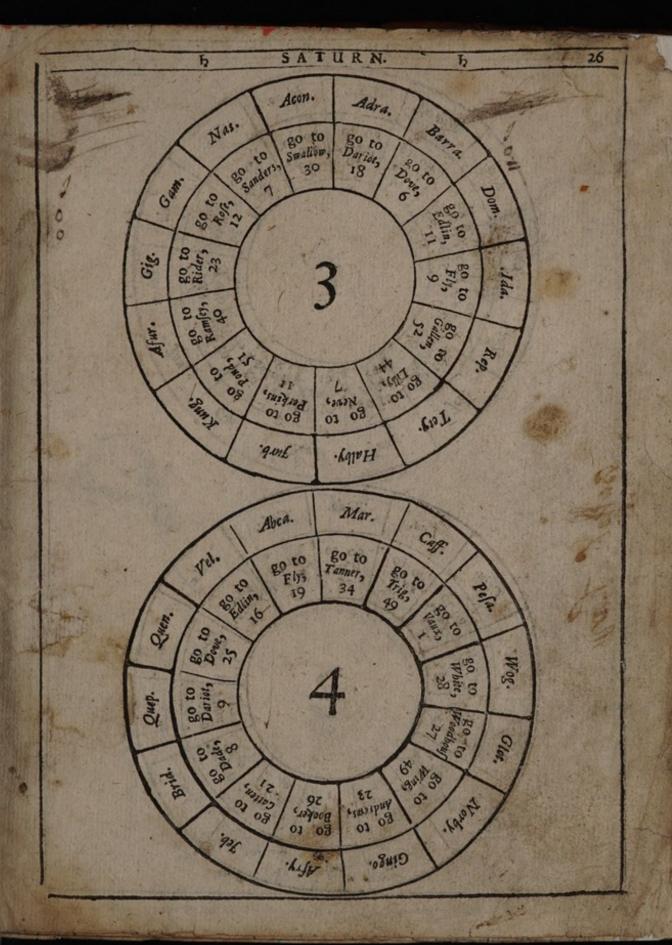

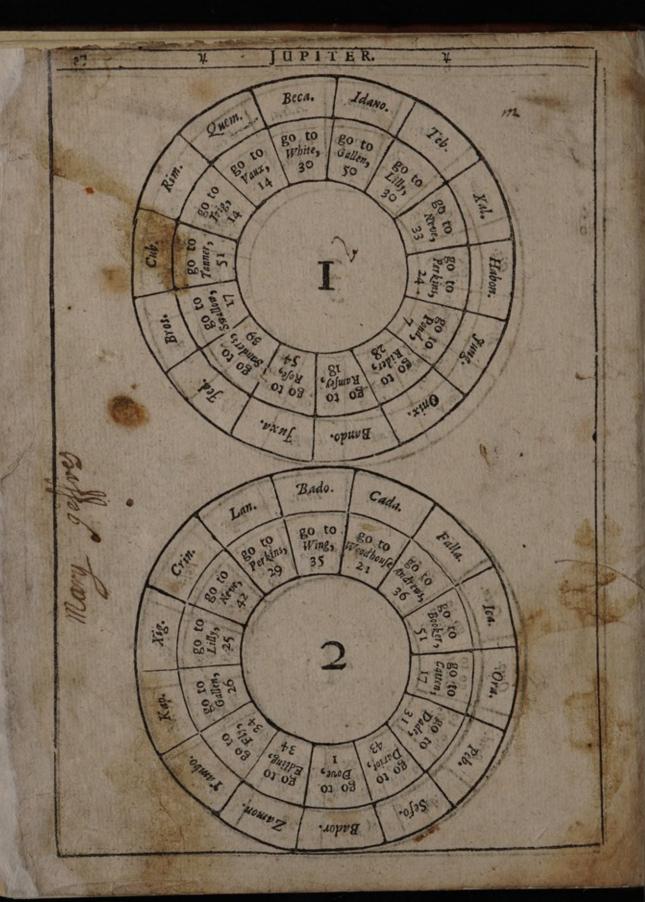

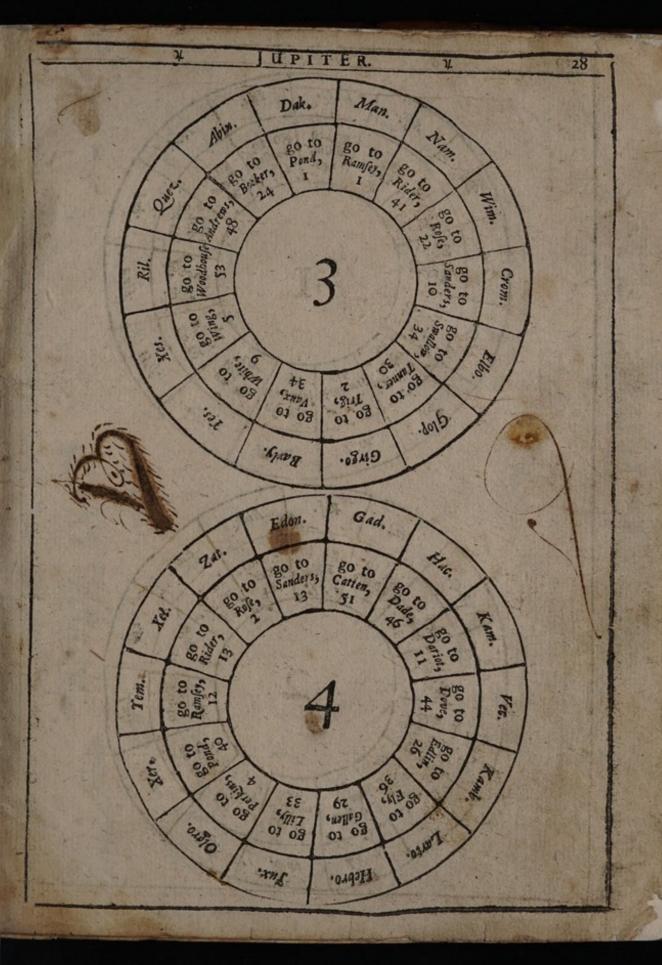

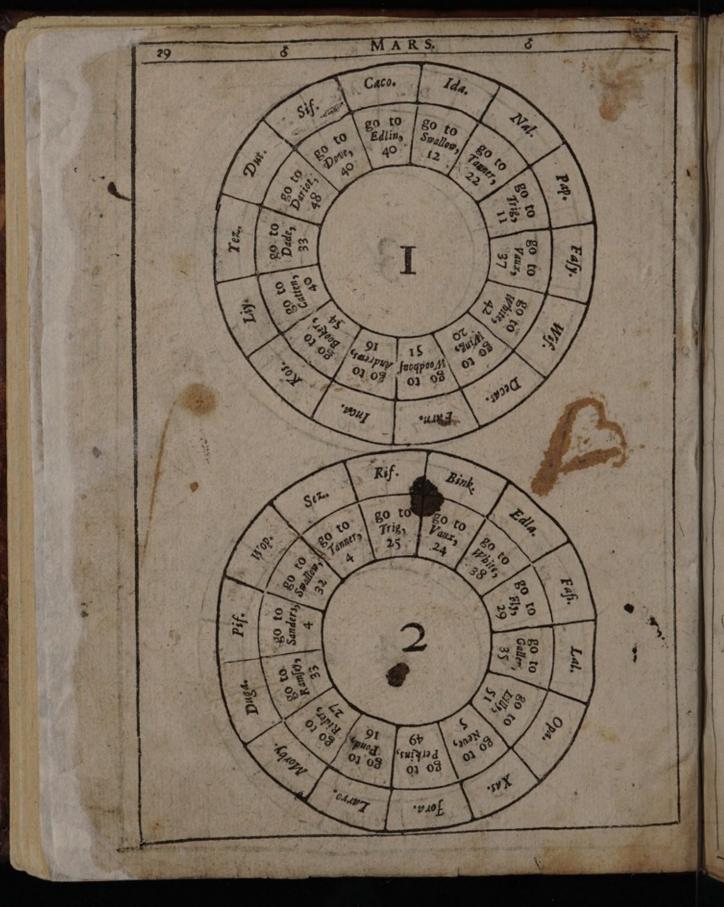

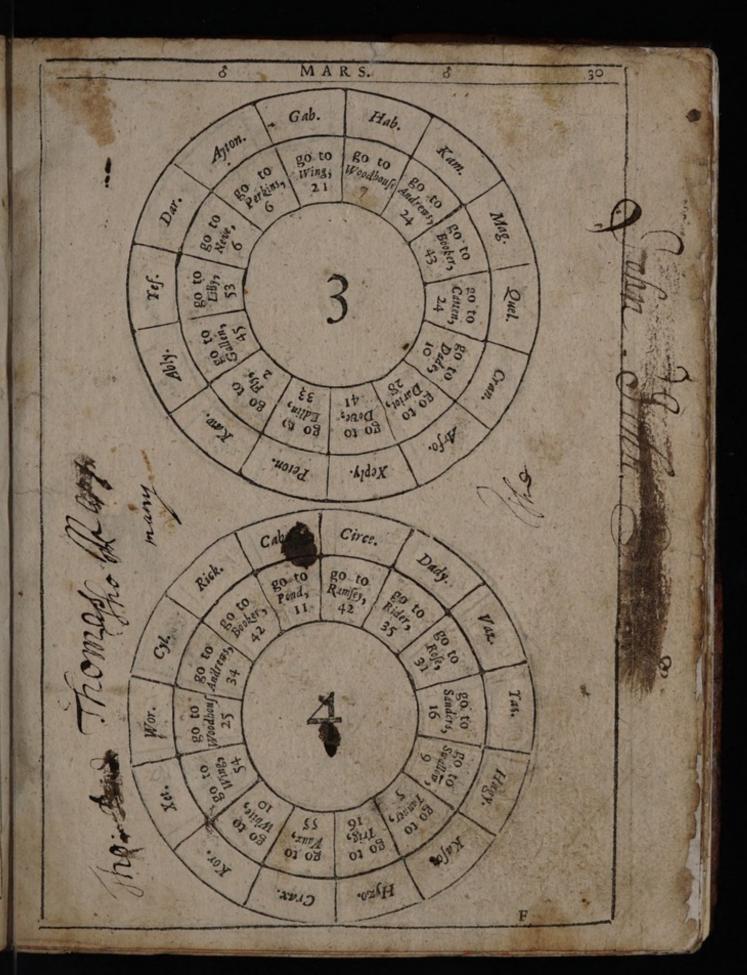

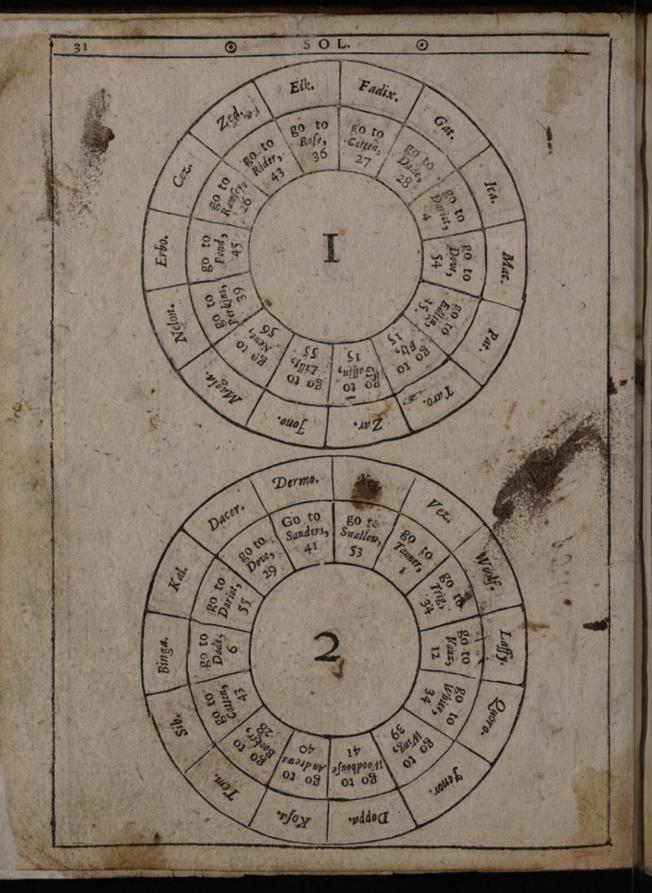

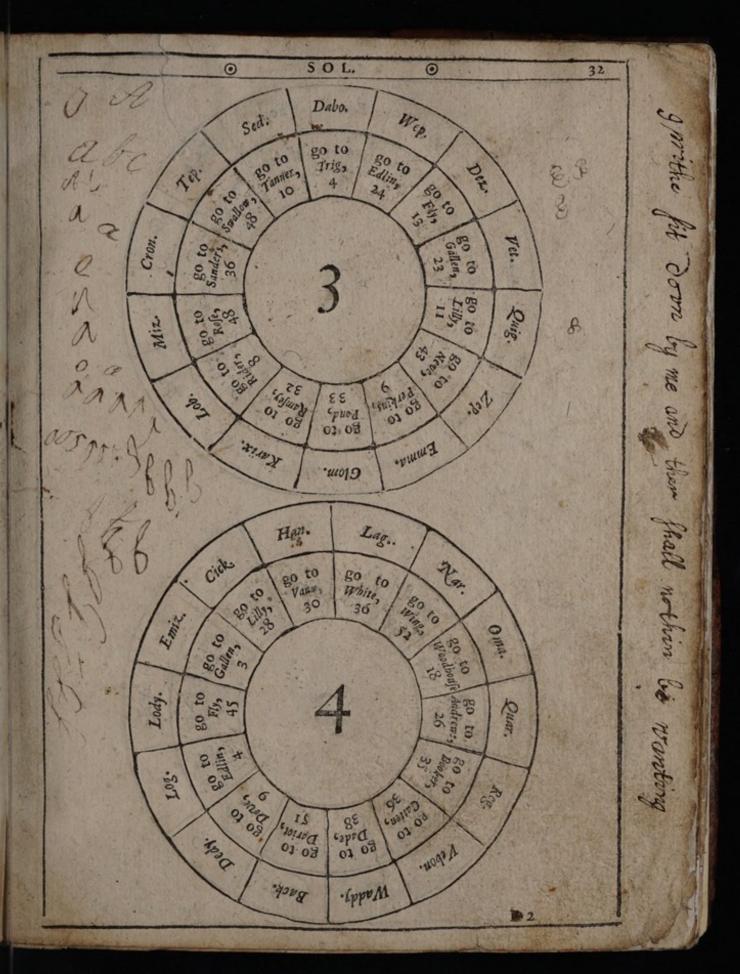

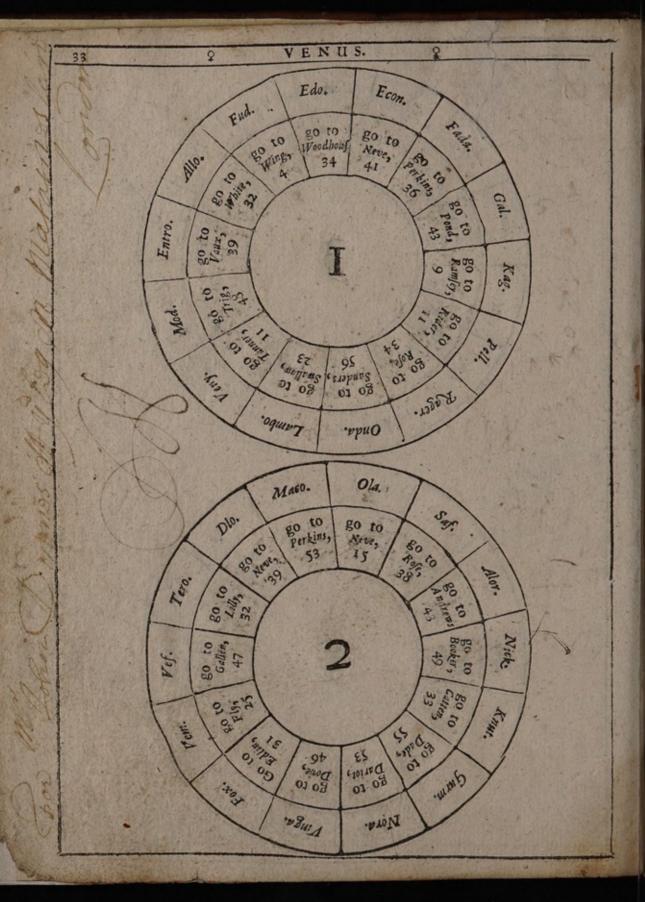

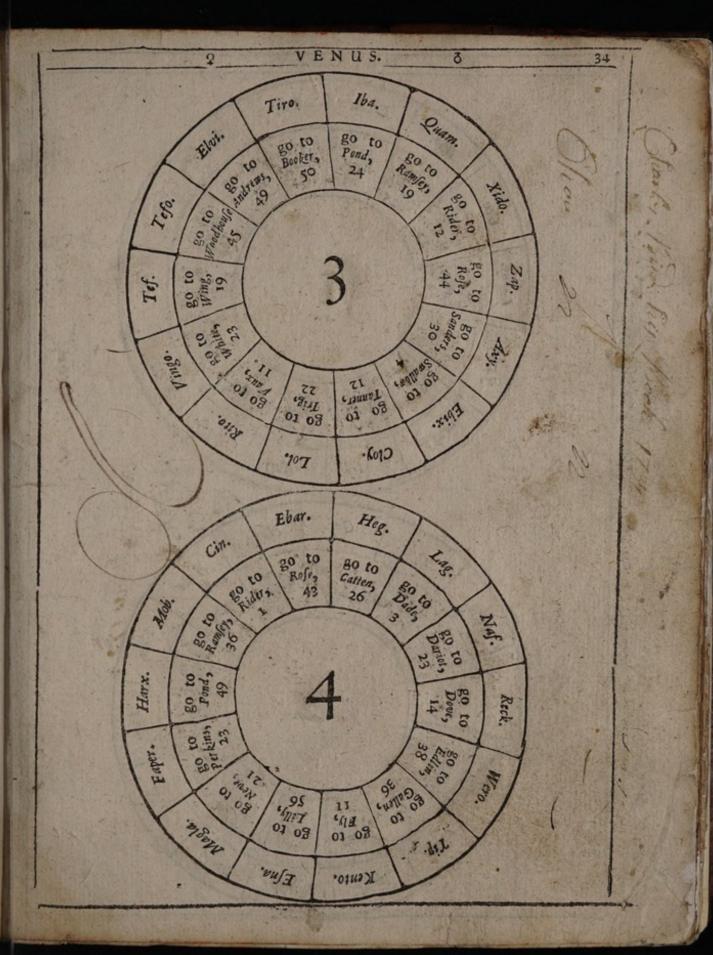

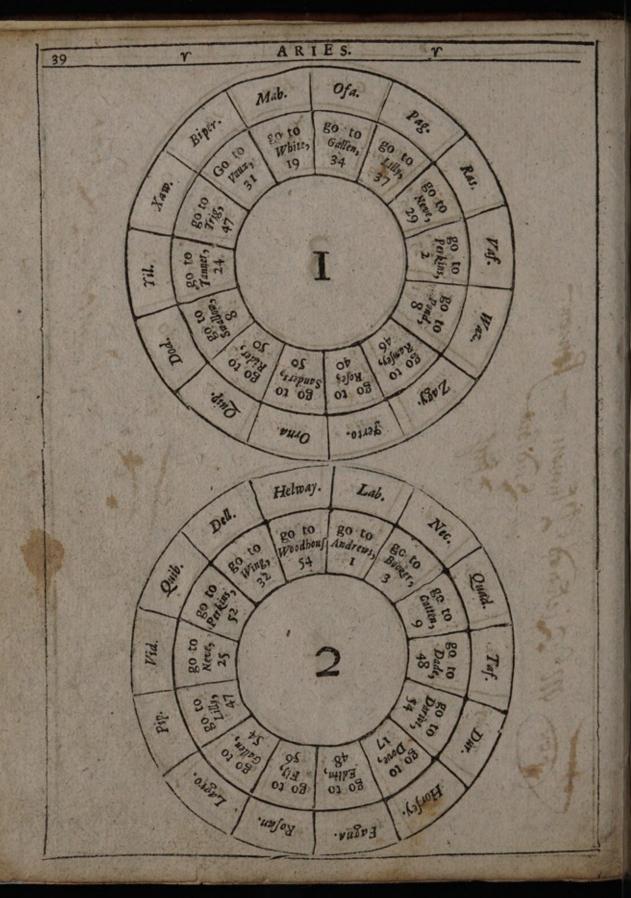

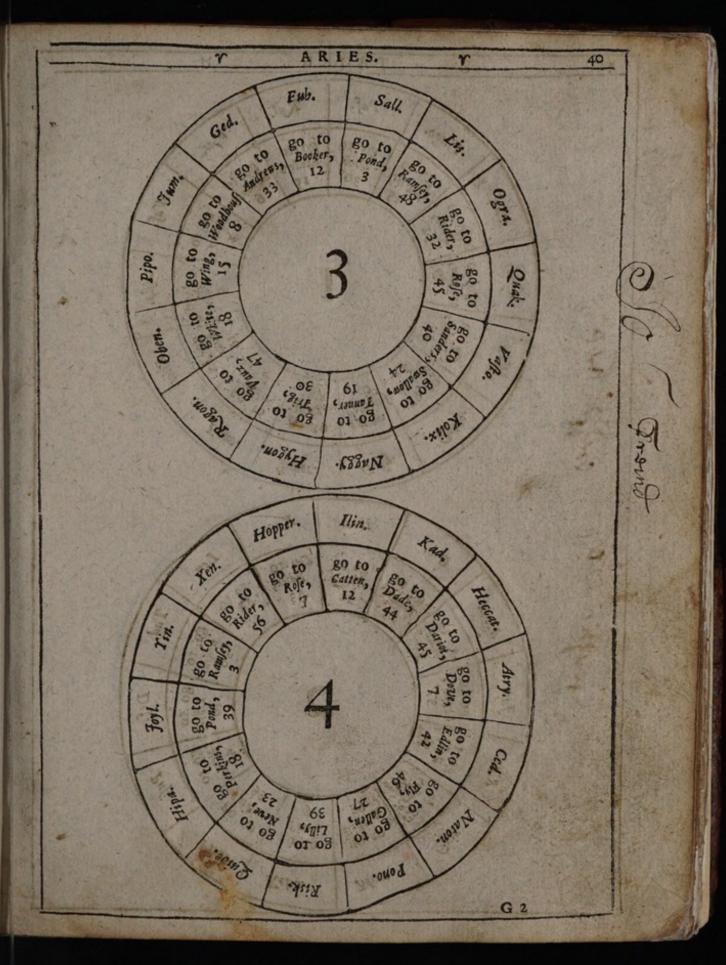

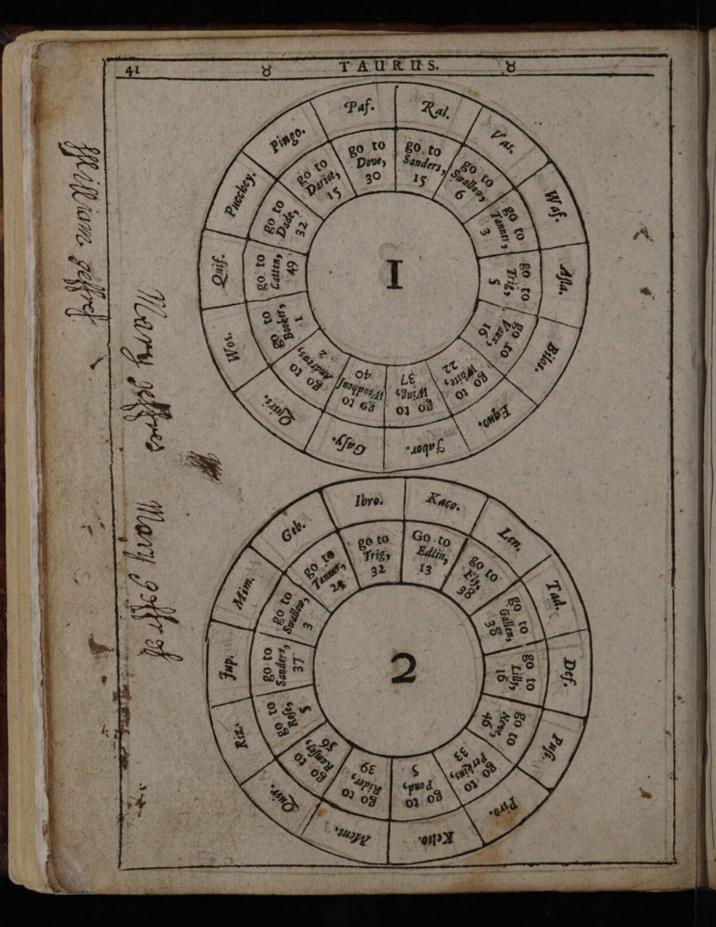

1	35 Ø MERCURY. · Ø
b Ab	Facul. Dil.	1
6
	Nill. go to go to sanders, something to Sanders of Sand	4
A	So Co Dove, Sanders, Son to St. Sanders St. Sanders St. Sanders St. Sanders St. Sanders St. Sanders St. St. Sanders St. Sander
( A.		8
		Bruss
1000		0
	1 3 1 5 1	0
	Se Estate of OI Shirt of St. St.
79	05 05 01 (110,00)
1	507 08 01 08 01 09 Solp	12.
N. C.	Gaf. Has Gaf.
W. W.	Gaf. Has Significant when I want to
1 0	0 100 0 0
1 88	Chr. 6 2 100 30 30 30 50 15
र श
ं श	1 3 2 2 7
43	T S
hon	1 6 1 2 2 1	100
new	10 103, 101, 8/8/	3
1 ) 3	Sold Remain ( Pund ) of the old of the old of the old of the old	150
- Just	00 00 00 00	0
Shomas Muson.	ide Mary.
A CONTRACTOR OF THE PERSON NAMED IN

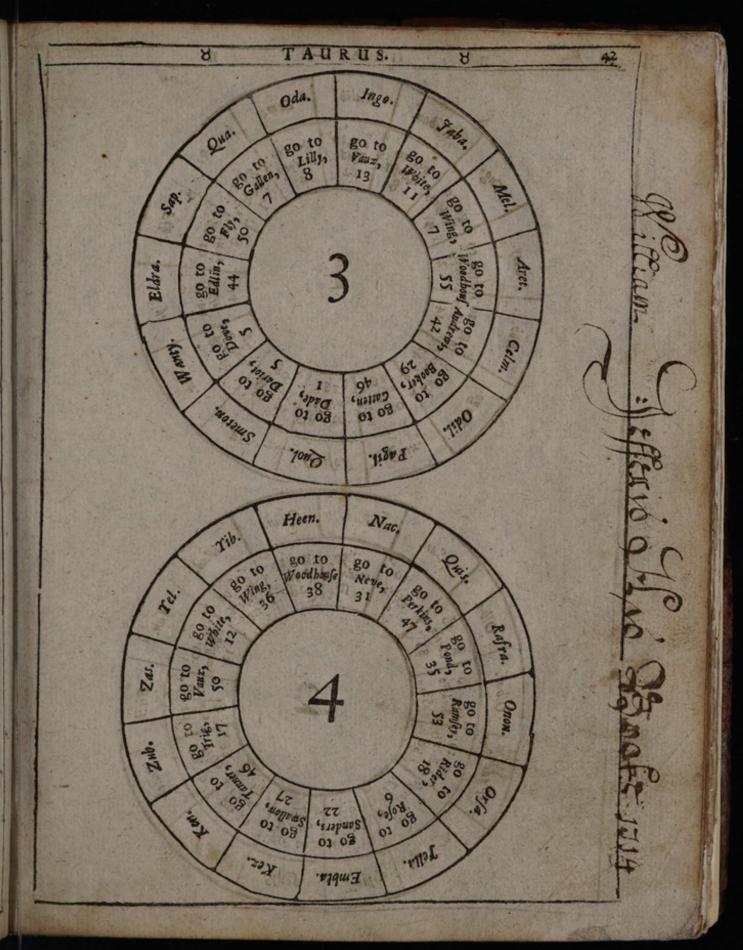

ğ MERCURY. ğ 36 Fabo. Ferdo. Biko. 188. go to Lilly, go to Vaux, 42 80 Gallens SO TO Vist. Laf. 5 45 4 BO LO Thomas mason 1754 go to Edlin, Xar. 52 Wood house 00 to Max. go to and to 33 50 Tar. Nad 03 08 17 00 0g 40 14 go to SATE ०१ ०३ 0/4. Pal. Bimo. 0, Kag. Esy. Rap Ved. go to Neve, go to Wing, 26 go to great part Bo Co 38 Blife Wib. To To To 0 6 80 to Ridar, Oglo. go to Geb. 26 80 to Rose, 32 O STAN Nio. E RIPS L'abang SS OF OR So to 38 E vol. 3. 104 Demon. Eamby.

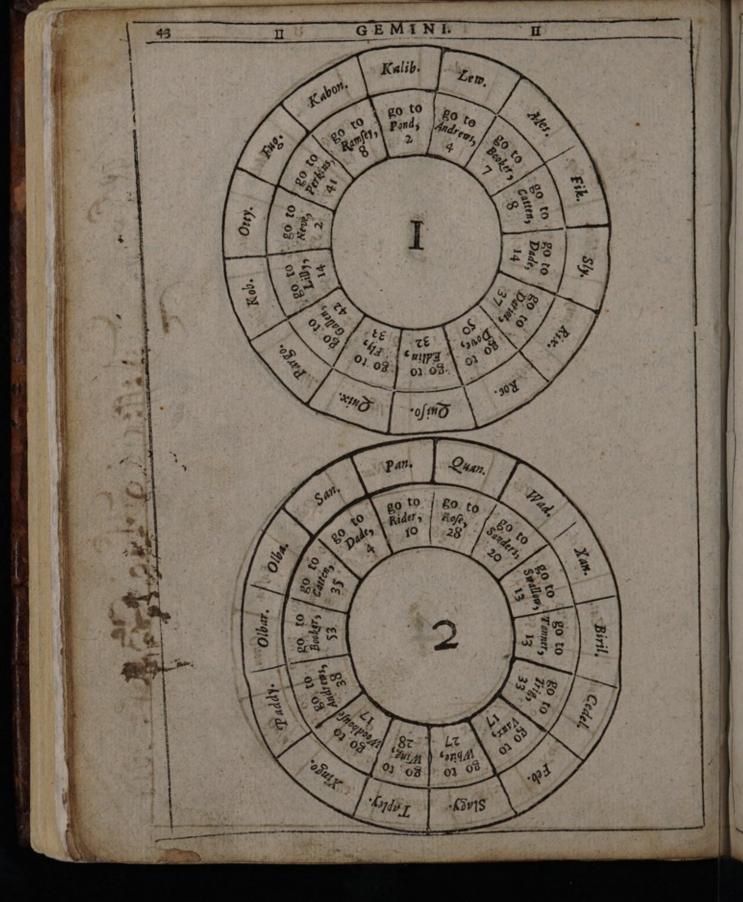

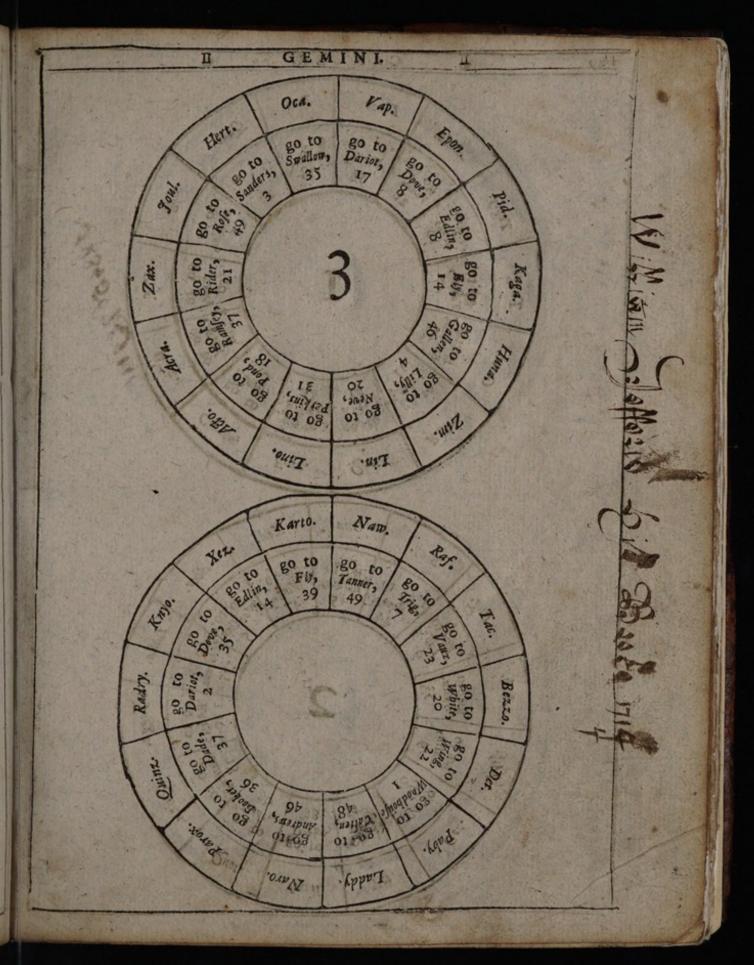

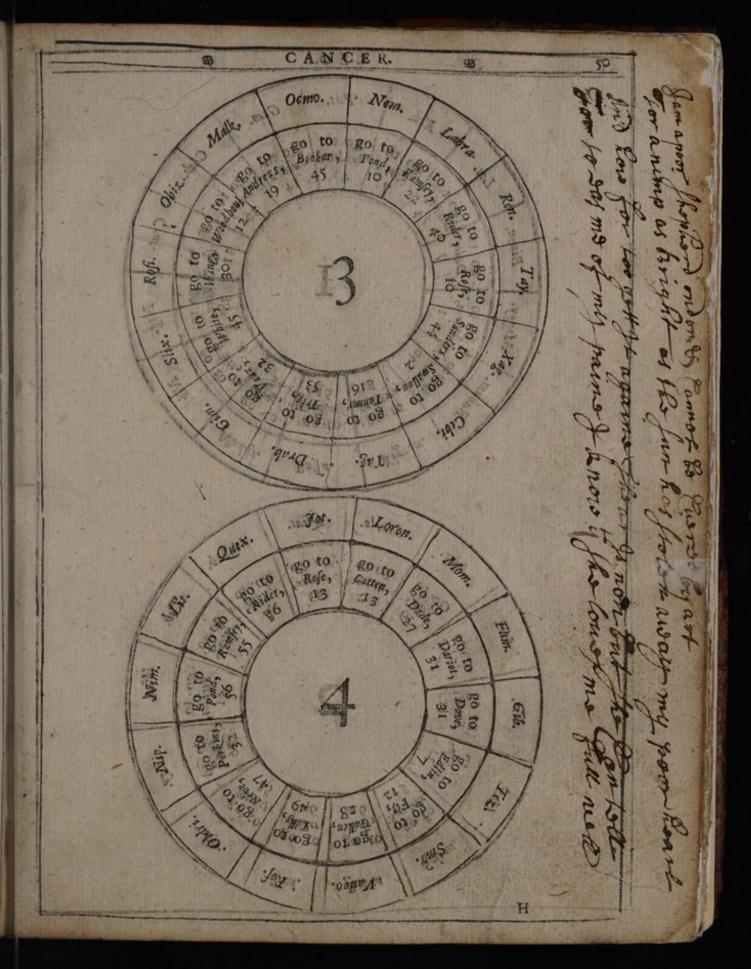

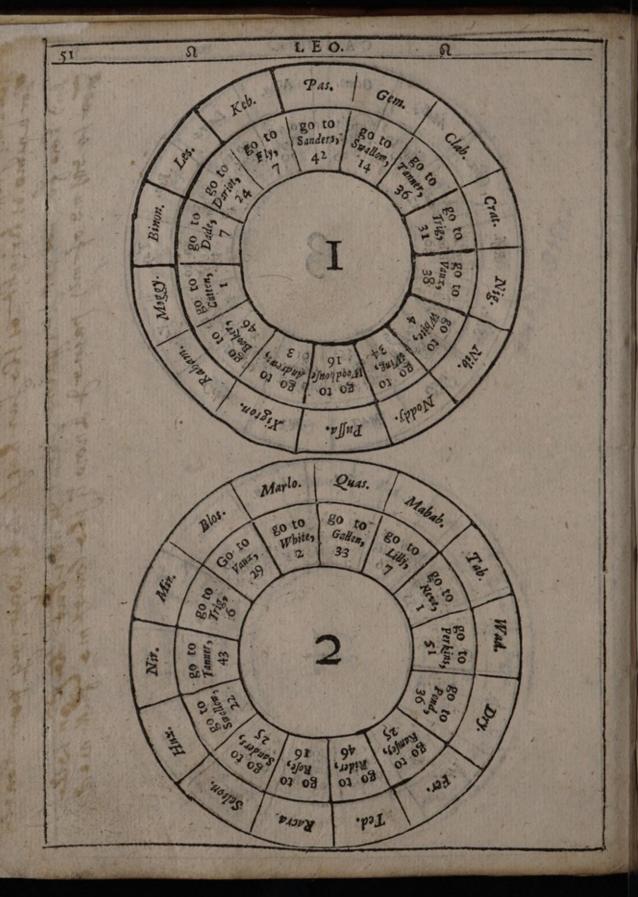

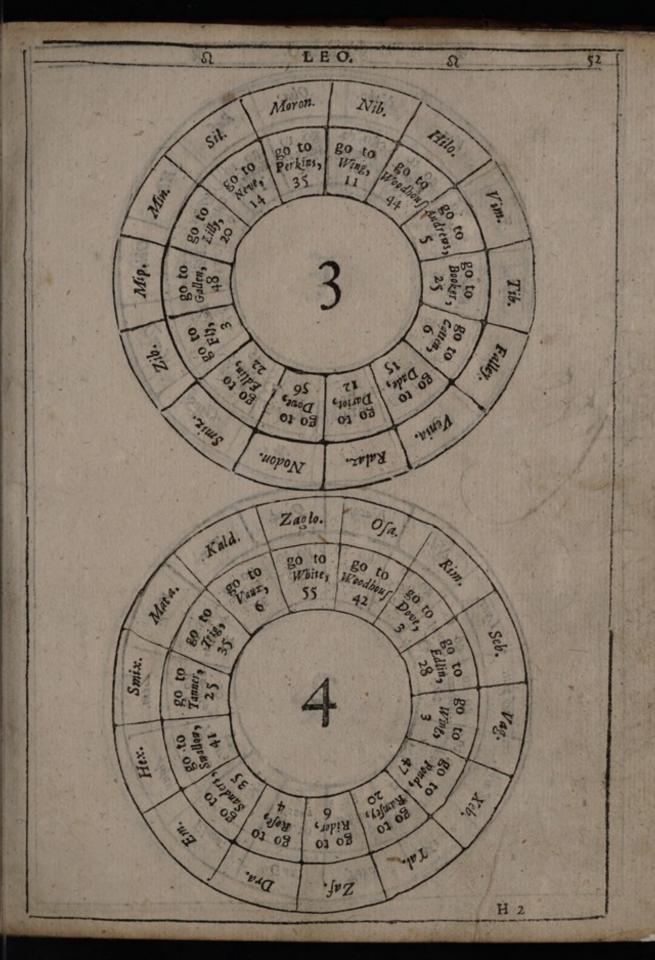

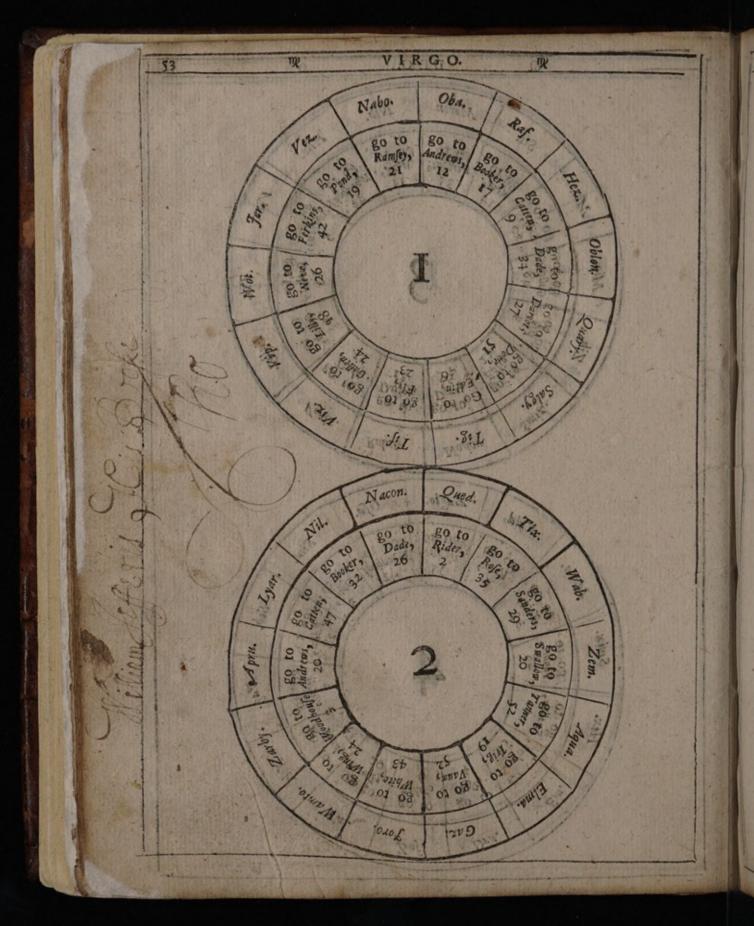

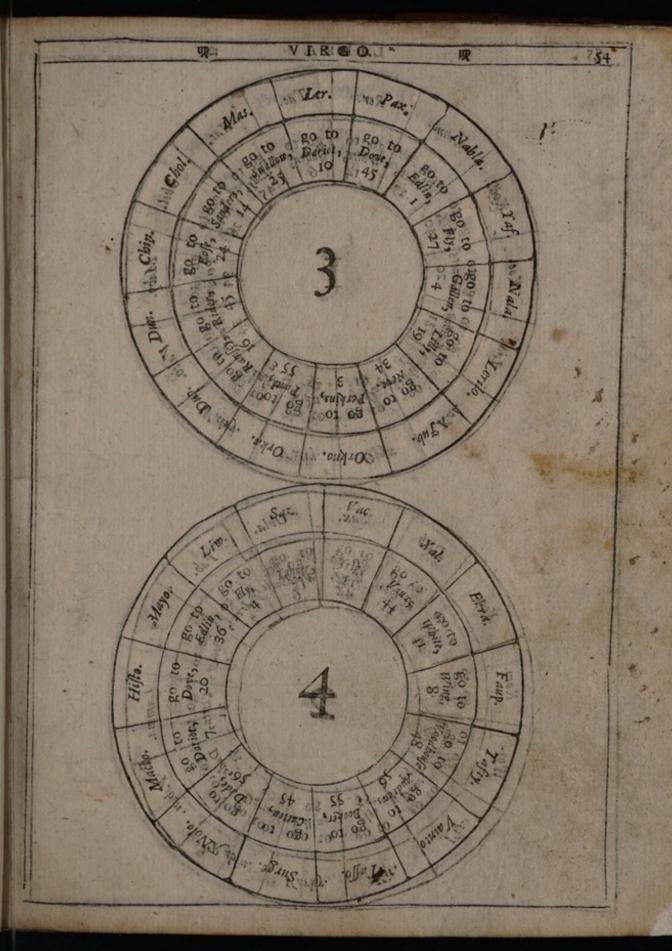

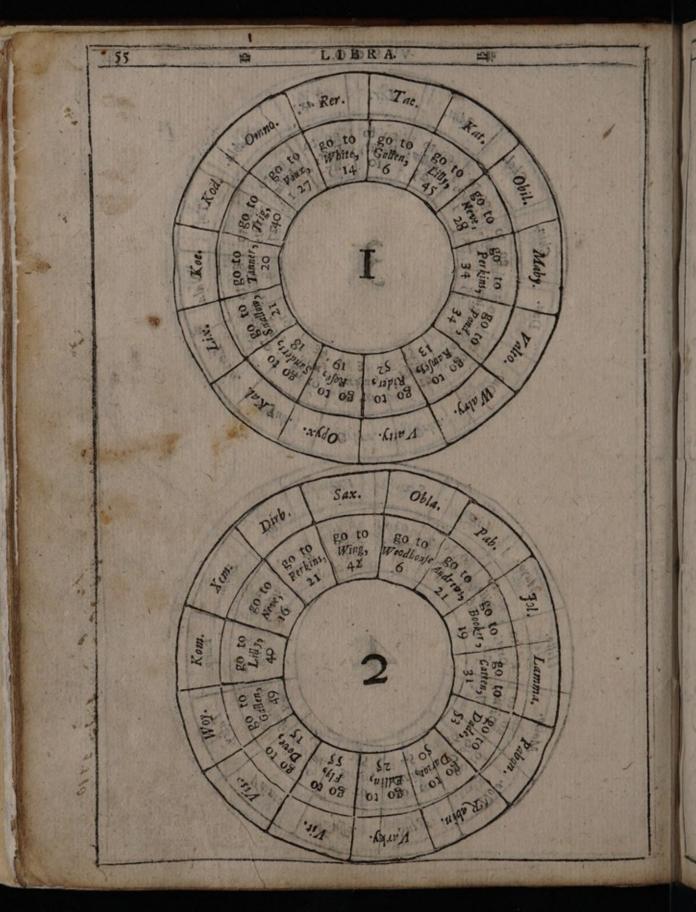

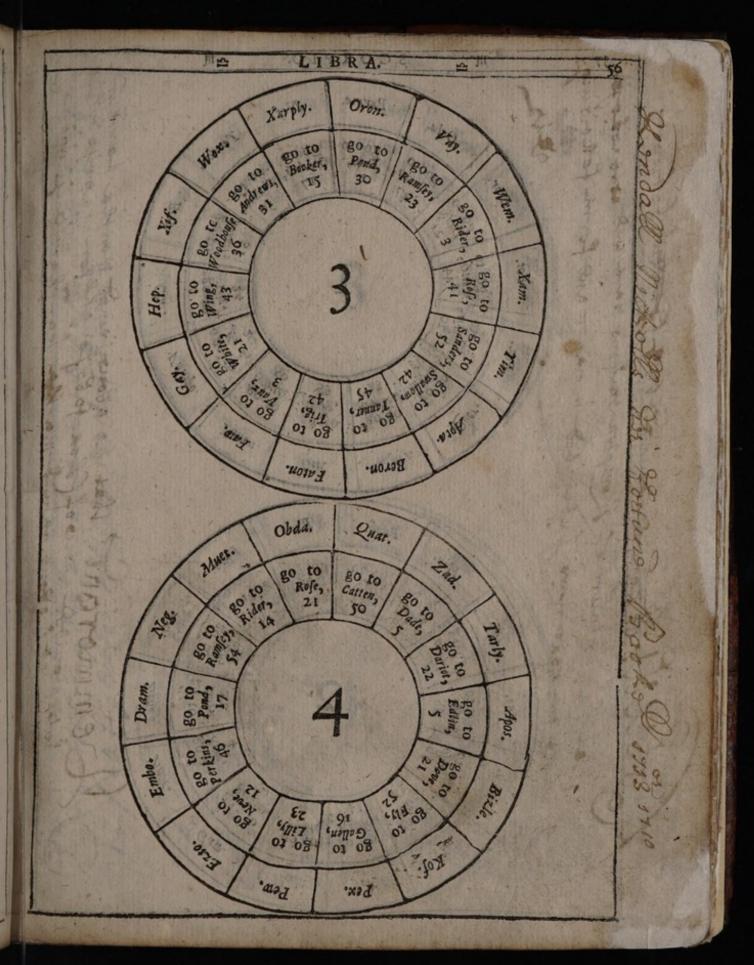

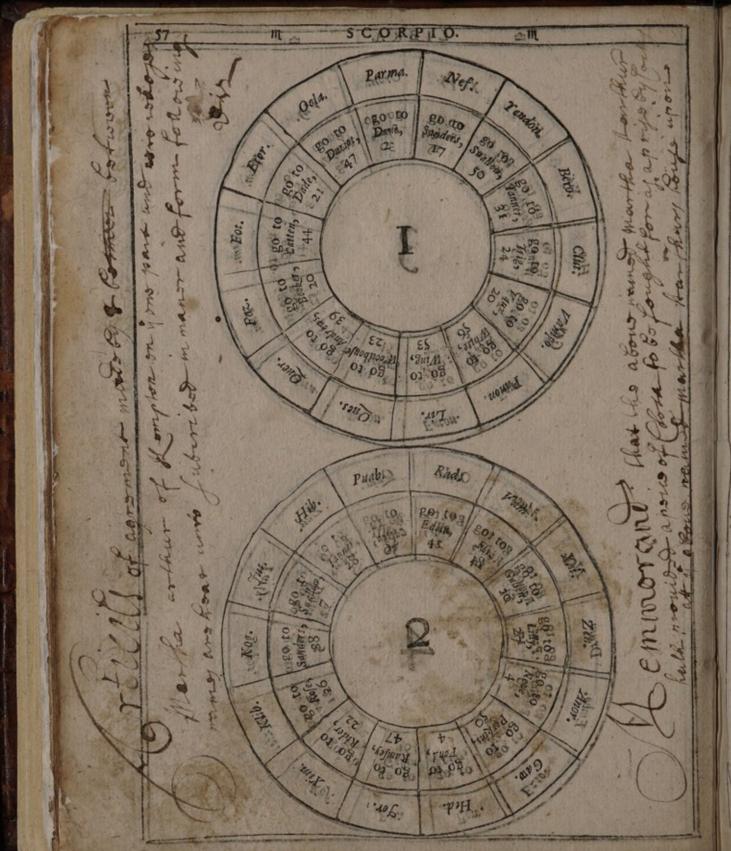

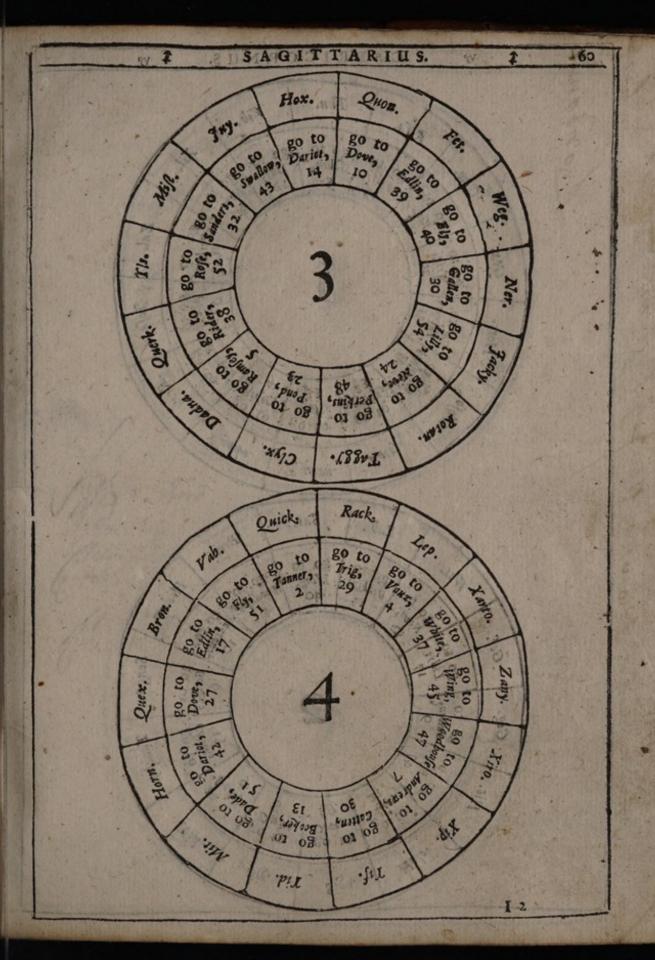

on to change

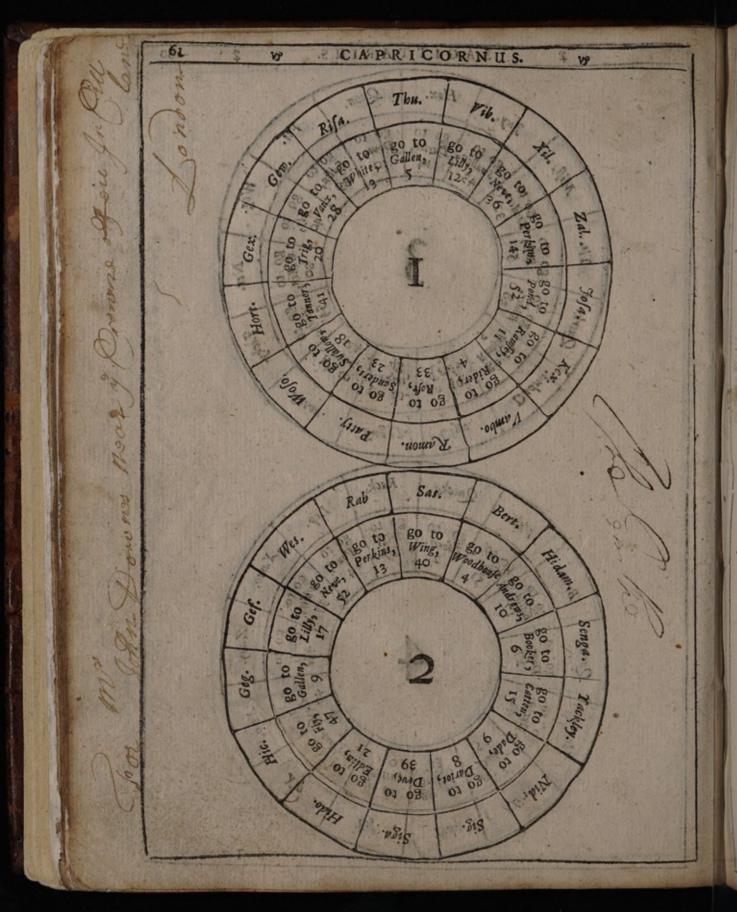

Gira

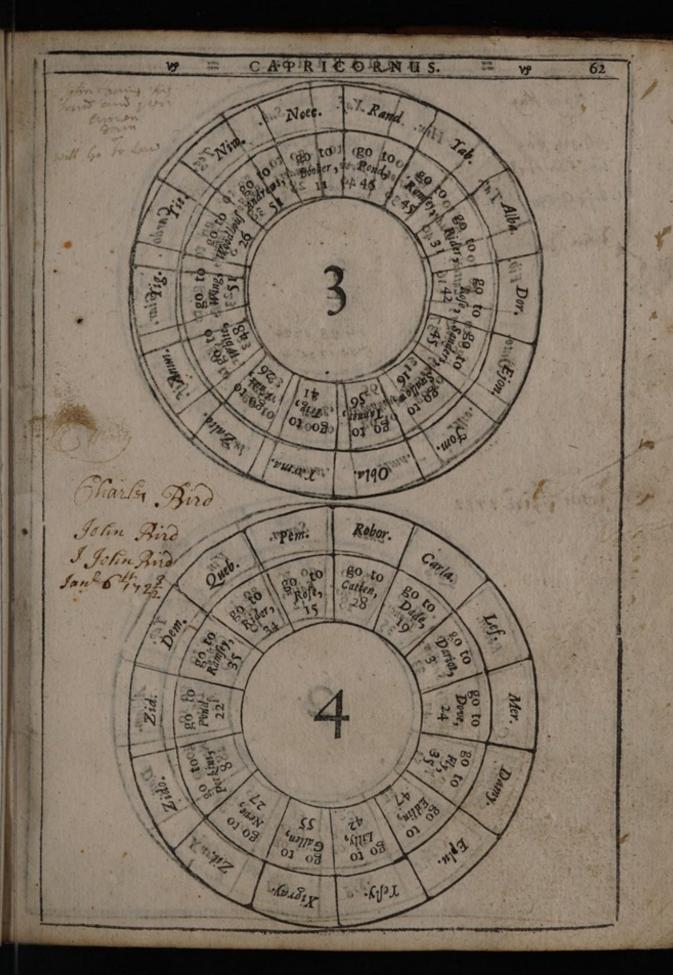

& or to be

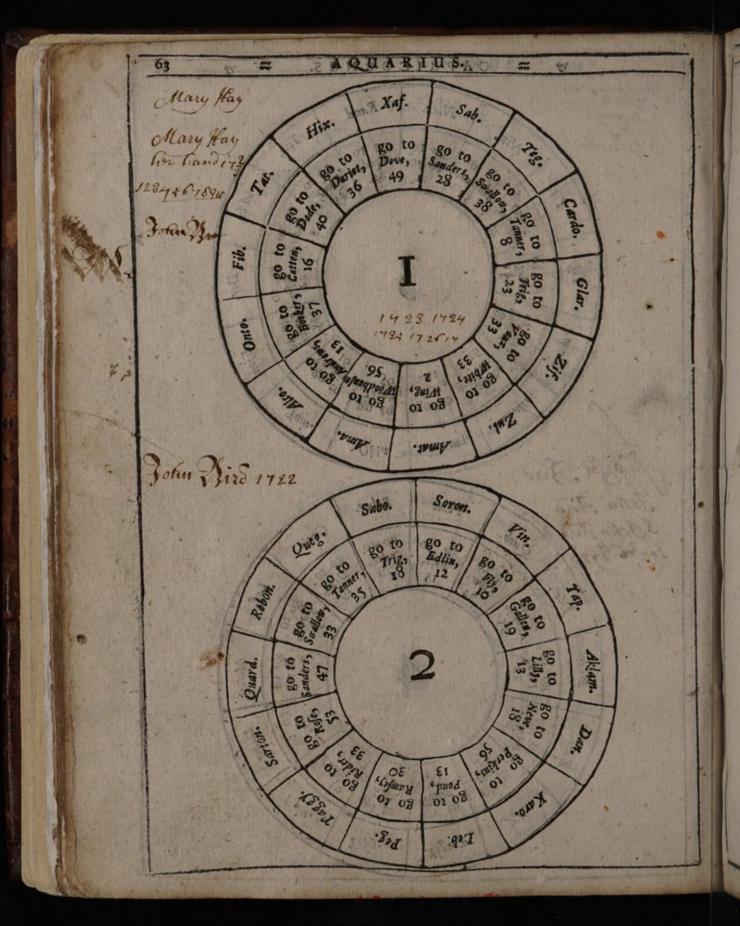

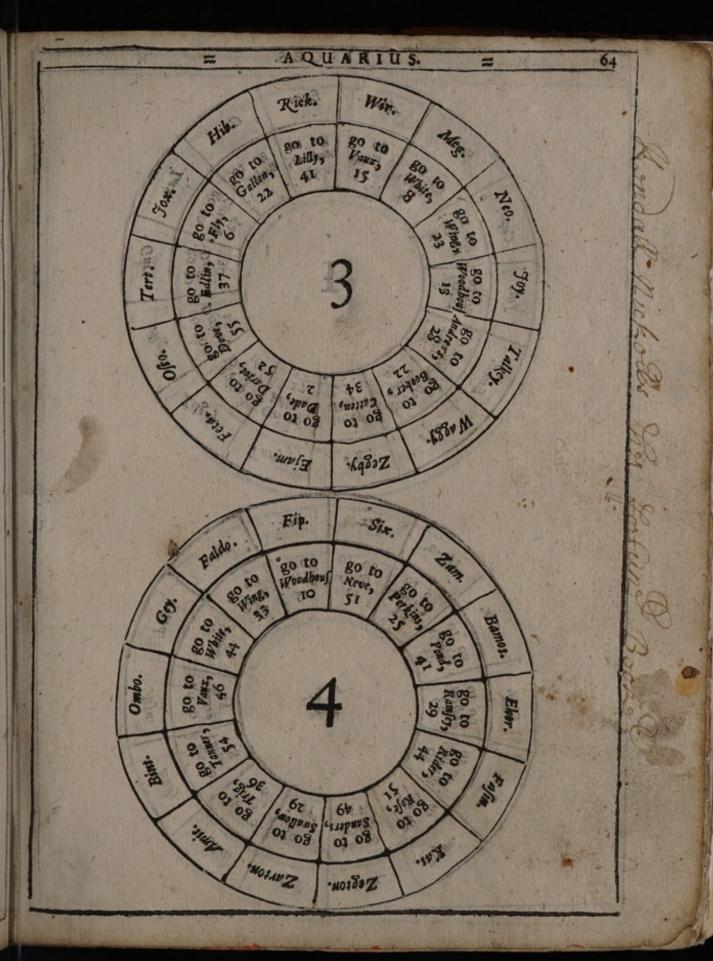

SAGITTARI u s. 59 Quard. Sep. Fap. go to Ramfer, 44 go to CO Pord 80 to Parking 43 Cana, to Dade, Zab. Daries 10 128 White with and Hing another ON OS Hell Amer. 00000 County of Original 61 03 03 to Equipo Co 10 Belte Imoh sy to lack god Ding. Carm. Pep. Obro. tifma. go to Dade, 20 go to Rider, 19 Ross to Bo to State 132 Tesby. San to Sep Busher, Swalling Xinger. Gel. 180 to Wate. Trin. Sampa SAN NOS SE LAMES OF CO 25 go to Outr. Star. S. Opes.

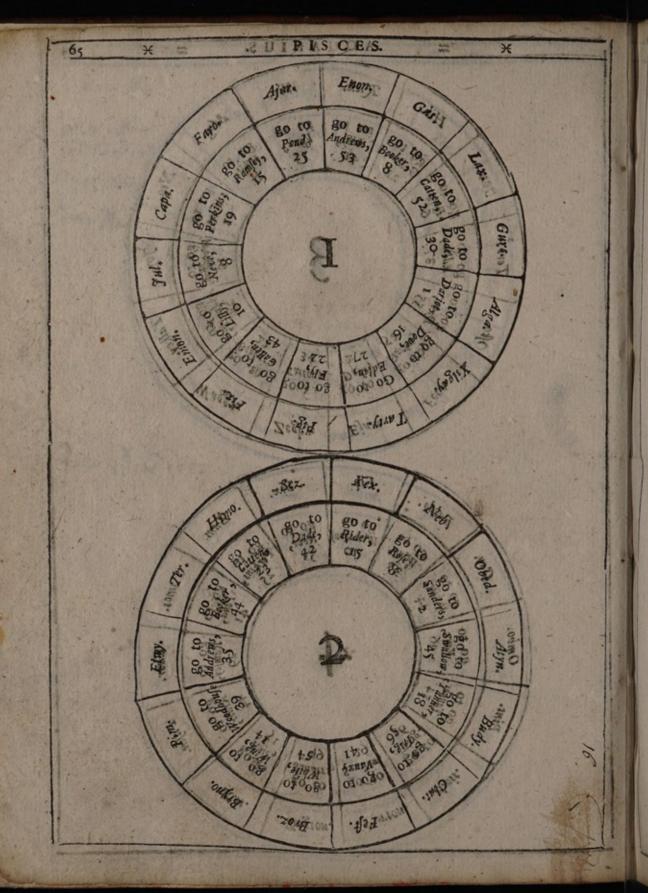

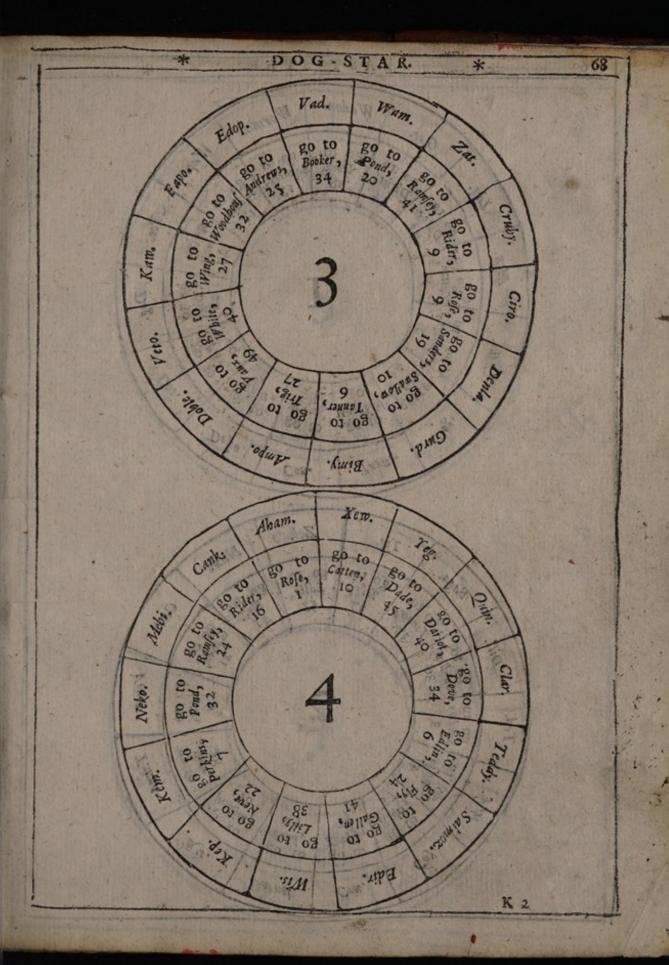

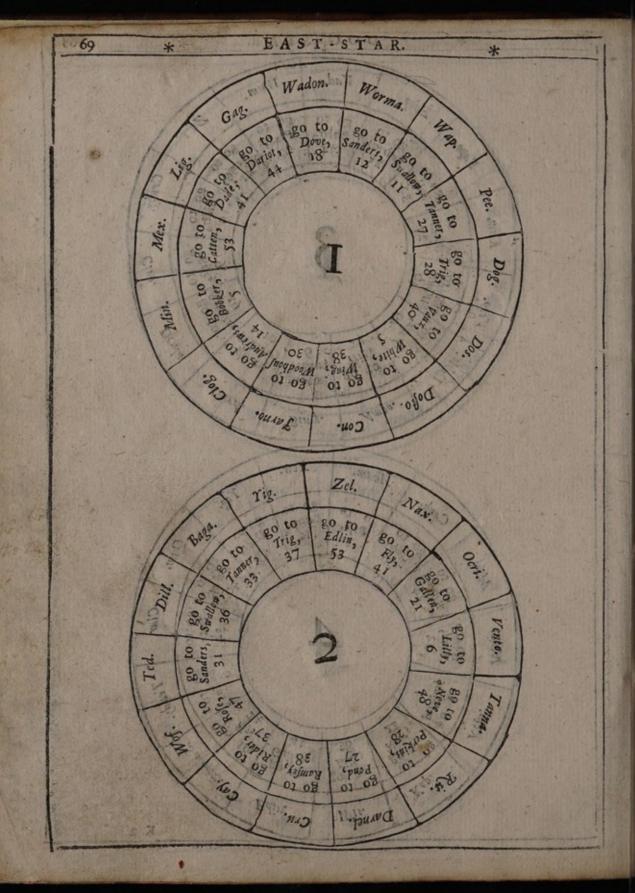

10

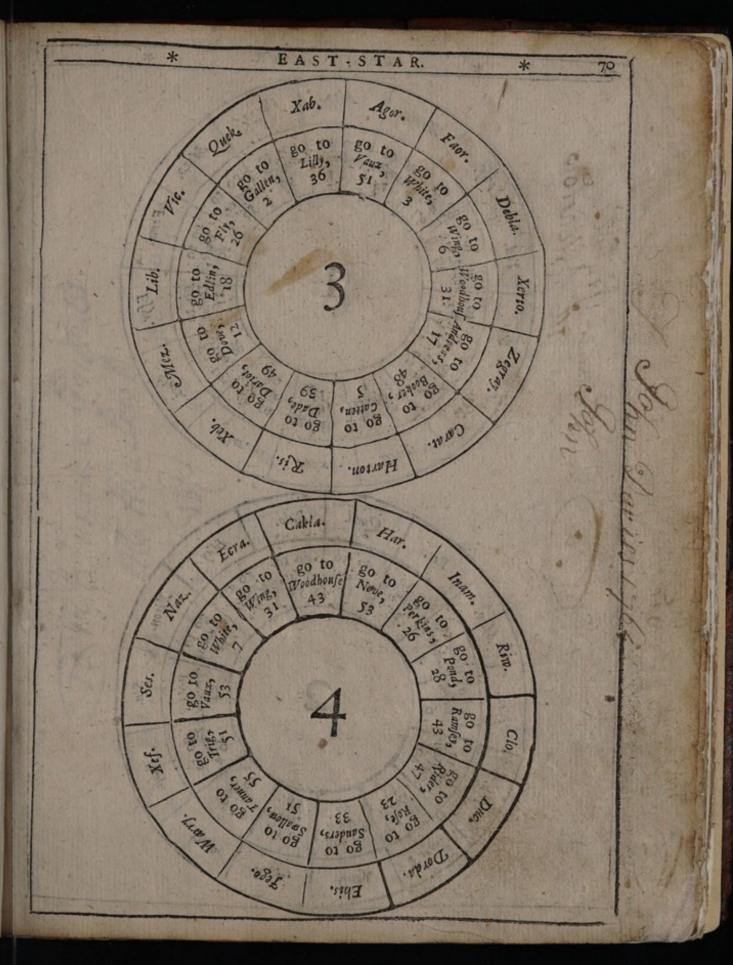

Milliam gabres

John frocken

DOG-S T AR. 67 * * Vigon. 06% Varro. Hord In safe prost Pan. go to Gallen, go to go to. 50% Bo Hene. 3.7 3 50 40 to 50 Perkins, Tat. go to Trig, 39 10 go to Sadlow, Waffor go to 26 Lil CIMMIN OCH THE ST Perton. cheina de Sanders to Timi 03 08 ,9%,8 Barron. Wiz. ·10110 Dag. Bat. Halo. gar. go to Wing, So Hade Andrews go to Perkins, S. Mines Crox. Med. form spikeans 80 to Booker, Crub. go to Gallen, Dob. 25 20 10 01 08 OF 1 Brod El 20. 11000 Selling. 0 80 to 28 01 08 TAXMAN. THIND Valla. Hungo.

WEST-STAR. * * 71 Afto. Vergo. Zem. Moio. go to Booker 39 20 to Ramfey, Nos. to 27 So to 0% S 4 24 7 Femo. Bo to go to. Perkins, 27 Ted. Dariot, No to Efyr. 2000 Sil. 03 08 oz og 1,1015 Souls Souls E(1)2 E(1)2 E(1)2 400. C/101. Bring. Prux. Qued. Balo. Hay. Ret. go to Dades go to Rider, 53 Role to Boune 25 Sonders 1 Alen. Ro to go to SIM. go to 44 Nex. 9 For to - Possorion 6× Emf. Spirits of SS SWAN OUT oz og ST 69 108 0, Duco. Pat En: 11 Cary.

Thou that unto of mine ago timen then Shalt John Soird 199 er 25.170

THOU Son

te Smiles is never to She b at basy in

at Cross

This Corn a attle ma

4 Go the choo we so shouth in may?

to it you will be

o Make four ow oo much out wrong Nine 1

theen the whole the com

took 五百萬

Andrews, Attr

Altrologer.

i. Thou shalt unto a middle Age attain, (Pain: Sometimes thou shalt have Joy, & sometimes The Smiles of Fortune thou shalt often have; But never carry them unto thy Grave.

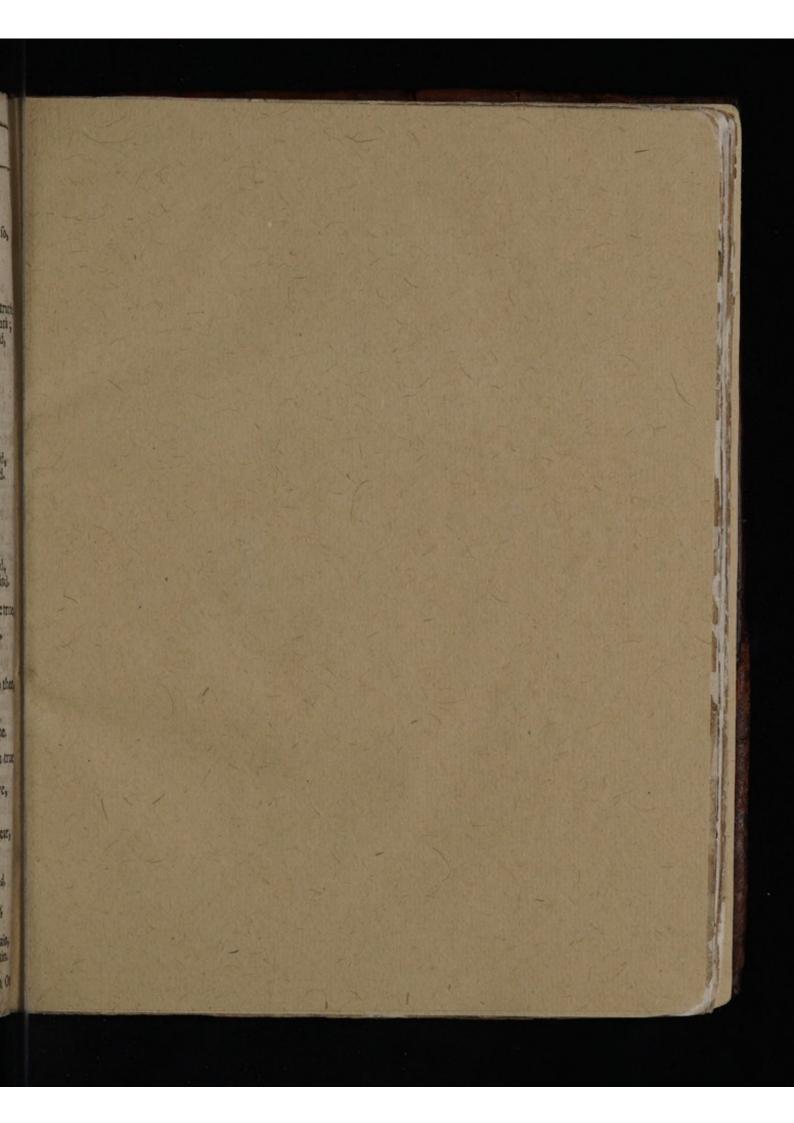

- 2. She barren is, her Body's gross and foul, And has, much to be fear'd, a worser Soul; Beware then how with such a one you wed, Lest Cross on Cross attend your Marriage Bed.
- 3. This Year, 'tis very likely there will be,
  Of Corn and Fruit, too great a Scarcity:
  Cattle may dye, but the next Year, you'll find,
  That Providence to you will be more kind.
- 4. Go thou abroad and prosper, idle Mome, For thou wilt ne er gain any thing at Home; Tis Sloath deliroys thee, rouse from Ease, and then, Thou may st as prosperous be as other Men.
- y. I fay, your Wife, whether she's young or old, Will prove in time a very errant Scold; Set by it you advantage may obtain, She will be thrifty, and produce much-Gain.
- 6. Make no great Noise, for it is one, in brief, of your own Servants, which will prove the Thief: Too much you trust him, and at last you'll find, You wrong your felf by being over-kind.
- 7. Nine Husband I do guess thou art to meet, Between the upper and the under Sheet; With whom, in joy you all your Life will live, And be content with what his Love does give.
- 8. In Wedlock, all the Children born and bred, Are not the Issue of the Husband's Bed:
  A former Lover shares with him the Joy,
  And makes you Mother of a lusty Boy,
- 9. Too long, nor yet to short thy Life will be, And that, the Book of Fate doth so decree; Yet happy for most part it does presage, Thou shalt live well, though dye before old Age.

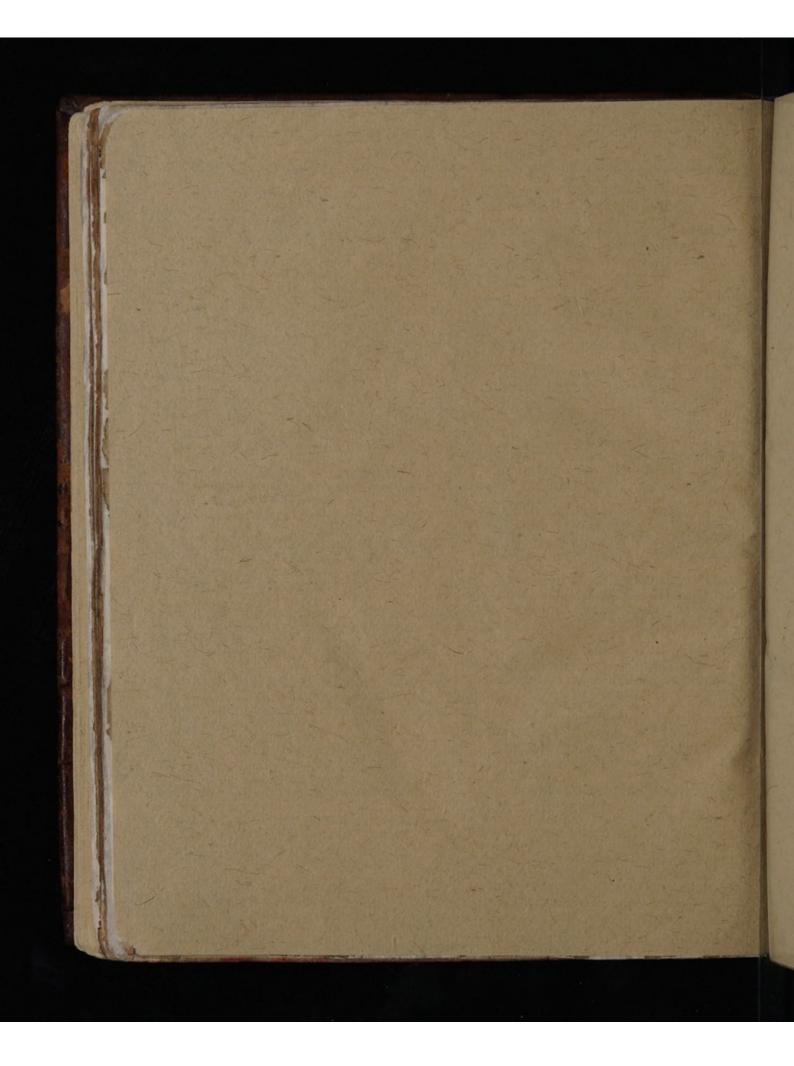

- He'll make a very fober, careful son; G And in thy Age, he shall a Comfort prove, Making returns of thy most tender Love.
- 11. This, by all fignal Tokens, will appear, In many things, to be no fruitful Year; Yet ne'er despair, the next amends will make, And in your Labour you shall Pleasure take.
- Then pray, in changing often, take thy fill;
  But in the end, Inconfancy will prove
  A Crofs, and fad Vexation in thy Love.
- But like a Whore, will gad abroad and rome:
  For to reclaim her, you but firive in vain,
  She will not from bad Company refrain.
- 14. Thy Troubles, they will never have an end, Unless that some Relation stands thy Friend; Which you may hope, for so the Stars decree, One unexpected shall your true Friend be.
- 15. There is no hopes; for of the Planets chief, Is Mercury, a cunning fubtle Thief; He with his Influence turns your Fortune's Scale, And you against your Foe shall not prevail.
- Will live to be as old, as he is rich:
  Some Jars will happen, but you fill shall find,
  Plenty will ease the Troubles of your Mind.
- 17. This Babe, let all the World fay what they will, Will prove to be the Mother's Husband fill; By a Mistake, though strange, she shall him wed, But Grief soon takes her from the Marriage bed.
- 18.To Number Fifty thou may's live of course, If thou use Temperance, which is Nature's Sourse; But by Excess, Diseases soon will come, & And e're those Years expire, provide thy Tomb.

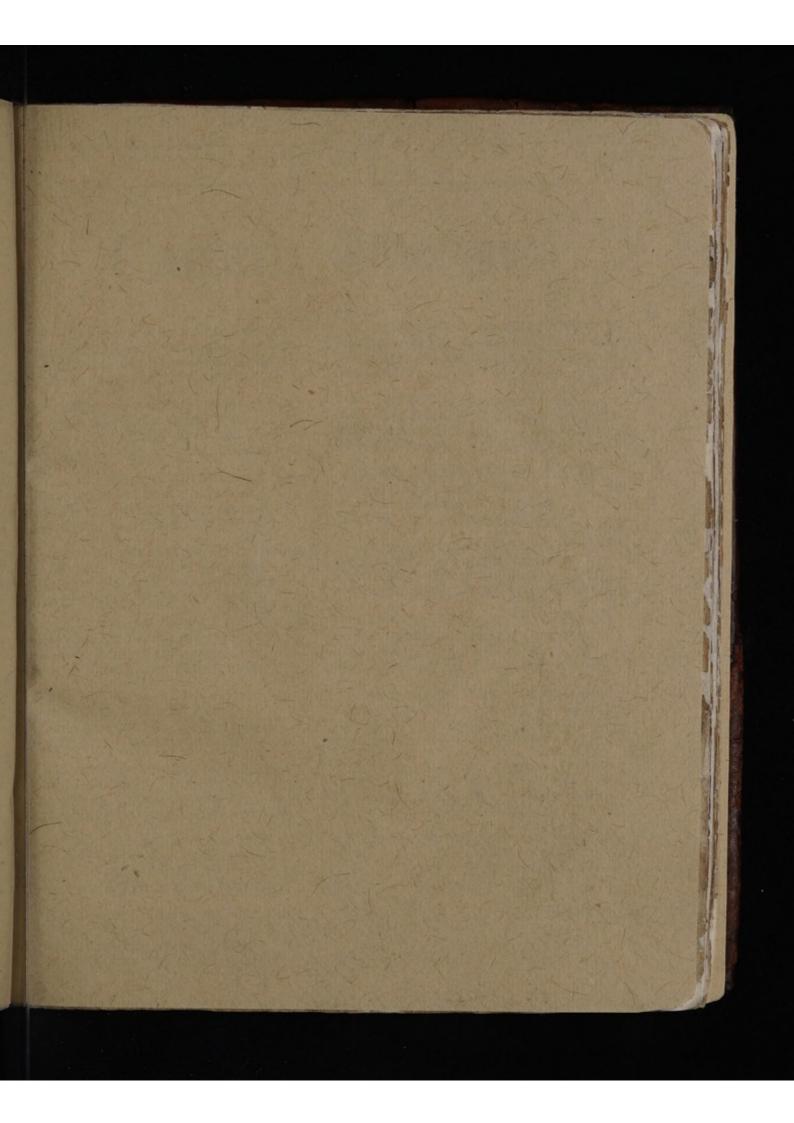

19 Because

- 19. Because I wou'd not bold you in dispence, She'il have a Girl about a fortnight hence; Whose Wit and Beauty V Vonder shall create, And, to your Comfort, prove most fortunate.
- 20. This year will happen very well to all, And then our Harvest can't be very small; Then to the Poor, still of your Store be kind, And you the next Year will more plenty find.
- 21. There is some certain subtil way, by which Thou, by Industry, may'st grow very rich; of Try what you most encline to, and you'll see, Fortune will help your Ingenuity.
- 22. This V Voman's Temper, I do much condole, Who looks as if the had neither Life nor Soul; A Melancholly has her Joys confin'd, G She loves, and yet the dares not speak her Mind.
- 23. Indeed I tell thee, 'tis not past belief,
  Thou at the last shall dye with extream Grief;
  A foolish Sorrow does thy Vitals seize,
  Whilst thou consents to feed the sad Disease.
- 24. Friends thou wilt have, as I do understand, In every Quarter of the Sea and Land; B. Wherefore I do pronounce, thou happy art, If thou at last escape God capid's Dart.
- You will obtain your much defired Love; C And happy live, in Joy, Content and Peace, Your Wealth and Children largely shall encrease.
- 26. Of your proud Enemy don't stand in awe, For you'll o'ercome him in this Suit of Law; & Your Right will be made out, his Fraud o'erthrown, And you at last in Peace posses your own.
- 27. If fear that thou wilt not too aged grow, But taken in good time by Death thy Foe; Yet Vertue fire en balm thy precious Name, And recommend it to the Breath of Fame.
- 28. 'T will be a lufty Boy, and will be mad a In Youth, as ever was his drunken Dad.
  A Toper true, as ever turn'd up Glafs,
  And a Well-wither to each buxome Lafs.
- 29. This year Corn will be feant; and if we ftarve, It is no more than what we do deferve;

- For Luxury too lately did abound, Whereby fo little Plenty now is found.
- 30. If thou art now unmarried, keep thee fo, For in a wedded Life Commotions grow; Something does threaten thee in that Estate, Perhaps to be a Cuckold is thy Fate.
- X 31. Dear Friend, I tell thee nothing but the truth, Thou'lt marry when thou art past heat of Youth; And thy young Bride being not well supply'd, By scalth, will lay another by her side.
- No other but the very Truth to be; Your Maiden-head will in its Prime be loft, Before you wed, and you by that be croft.
- Therefore beware of him, and take good heed.
  A Sippery Blade makes his Address of Love,
  But if he gets his will he'll faithless prove.
- 34. The first of January does appear,
  The most unfortunate Day in all the Year;
  Then shun beginning Business, and you'll find,
  The third and fifth to you will prove more kind.
- 35. Your Dream it will most certainly prove true, And bring good Circumstances unto you; Because it pleasant was, and of such things, As in enjoying true Contentment brings.
- B<sub>36</sub>. When middle Age doesonce appear to thee, Then a full Period to thy Life will be; Which Fate to bring to passfeems to design, By much Excess with Women, and with Wine.
- 37. Daughter, you'll have a Girl, I tell you true, And the in time will prove a very Shrew; Her Tongue not only, but her Tail will move, In Venus's sports she will a Gamester prove.
- 38. The Summer now do's fragrantly appear, And we shall have a very fruitful Year; You too, shall not be wanting in this kind, A Nurse and Midwife therefore quickly find.
- 39: In gaining all, fome scruple may arise, But you'll recover part, let that suffice; Much Fraudisus'd, but Money sways the Main, Then be content with what you're like to gain.

Tenment of the second of the s

Catten,

Astrologer.

I. Fortune to thee hath always been unkind, in fending Crosses to torment thy Mind; But yet bear up, the days will come at last, G. To make thee laugh, forgetting Sorrows past.

2. 'Twill not be understood with certainty whose Brat this is, till the next Jubilee; Yet mark your Pot-Companions, and you'll read In one Man's Face, from whence it did proceed.

Thy Wish has made thee most unfortunate:
Above thy reach Ambition drives thee on,
And thou shalt never end what is begun.

4. My Friend, heware of Law; for thou wilt find More faucy Cost than Worship in the Wind:
For brangling Matters do not you contend,
Lest Poverty and Goals come in the end.

5. This Year the Meadows will with Floods be And ev'ry thing shall rot upon the ground; However, hope the next for an Encrease, Whilst Plenty does succeed expected Peace.

6. He does pretend to love, but I dare fay, His love will but continue for a day:
He feeks to have you with his Paffion close, Unlawfully to crop your Virgin Rose.

7. Thou shalt havefour, and they will all prove And will provide for thee their daily Food: [good, Be it your care, when young, that you provide Them Learning, and what else is fit beside.

8.My Friend thou shalt have but one Wife alone, And that, you'll think, too many is by one; & For her loud Tongue unwelcome Musicks sound, Will make you wish she never had been sound.

9. He has escap'd the Countrey's fore Disease, And now will homewards come, his Friends to please: He brings some Wealth, but more of high Renown, That did his Undertakings bravely Crown. And then thou must prepare for to be gone:
Wasted with Sickness, Death will kindly come,
And lay thee up to rest in thy long home.

11. The time is near upon a drawing on,
When thou shalt fully be releas'd, and gone:
A sad Confinement shall no more constrain
Thee in sad Thoughts, but thou shalt break thy Chain

12. This Alteration doth convenient feem, Yet will at last create thy differeem; When but a Fumbler for a Man you find, Yet be content, he is both rich and kind.

13. Shou'd you live long, you never will (fad Fate)
Enjoy at leaft, a competent Estate:
Then fatisfie your felf with what you have,
And more than you are like to get, ne'er crave.

"14. Whatever he to you fays, or pretends, He does respect you more than other Friends: Regard him then, and you will find at last, When others slip you, he will hold you fast.

And so the married Men he Cuckolds all; Though with sly Carriage he seems so demure, Your handsom Wives then from the Knave secure.

B16. Tuefday a lucky day will prove to be, And much conduce to your Profiperity: Then Bus'ness, on that day, of moment take, And you of it a happy end will make.

17. In this fame Suit at Law the'll worked be, Who hath receiv'd the greate ftinjury: Corruption (ways, it cannot be withflood, Since Saturn's Evil Influence thinks it Good.

18. Good flore of Corn and Grafs will now appear, Such plenty has not been this many a year:
The jolly Harvest makes the Farmer smile,
To reap the Fruit of his Iar orious toil.

M/2

For they on purpose do it, to ensuare:

Ask Doll what Reger did to her profess,

Lut having Nubb'd her, lest her ne'ertheless.

20. Four Hus lands thou shalt have, as good as twang'd, Three shall be Drown'd, the other shall be Hang'd; Yet by them thou shalt get much worldly Pelf, But cautious be, lest thou are hang'd thy felf.

- But of the second thou may'th be secure;
  She will hold out until the heart do's ake,
  If that her Tongue and Tail do it not break.
  - 22. Be humble, and fubmit, and then you'll find, That all things will agree unto your mind: Your haughty Spirit does your Fortune flack, Whilft that continues, your Affairs go back.
  - A most mischievous and unlucky day:
    Then keep at home, rather than walk abroad,
    And fill beware of Violence or Fraud.
  - 24 Do thou go home, and fay the Judge is kind, For thee indeed the Cause he has design'd: Beware hereafter how your life you lead, Lest you the next time not so well succeed.
- And can by no means reach the English shore:
  Sickness and Danger divide him and thee,
  Seek out another, and contented be-
- 26. This is the truth, without all flattery, be Thy Life's but short, therefore prepare to die: Live well, and know in living so, to die, is precious Gain; for Earth, you have the Sky.
- B 27. I think it argue sa diseased Mind, when Folks to Changi ng are so much inclin'd:
  Thy much Inconstancy will breed thy woe,
  And in the end, thy Fortune overthrow.
  - 28. You'll run a rifque; which it may prove to be Pernicious to you, both in y Land and Sea: I pray then fee and alter a hy intent, Left Lofs and Croffes make 2 you late repent.
- 29. Ifay, On fuch a Friet idif thou rely, the furely will betray there by and by:

Now you are warn'd, know what you have to do Pray shake him off, and chuse one that is true.

Three

ait three!

验的

District C

41. He

Indicate a

And he Wa

42.10

Tobingt

Let this no or thou i

B 43. Thy Ti

Thou of sh

Wind Love

Vibratio

44 Th

Most extre Perhaps yo

To be you

45. Don

it is not be

Ber Wello

45. If you

Is be whi

see those b

Riore the

47. We

To you, t

Bargains fo

ipon that

48. This

DE WELL

Win

G<sub>30</sub>. Her Nose is very sharp, and I am told, Your Wise is like to prove an errant Scold: But yet she Proserbrings; therefore endure The Cackling for the Eggs, and rest secure.

None of the Male, but of the Female Race: Because in drunken fits thou'rt mostly kind, But feebly else to Venus sports enclin'd.

22. Pursue your Journey, or your Voyage, straight, Lest to your cost you do repent too late: Time will not stay, the Bus ness will be done, If you delay; then stay not, but be gone.

33. Thy Troubles are not ended; but be fill, And moderately swallow tother Pill: Then you may see it work to your defire, And Peace will come, when Troubles do expire.

34. This Child is very like its Dad, fay I, Yet some there is that will swear home, I lye: 'T has Robbin's Eyes and Mouth, but Harry's Nose; Which part he got, as many do suppose.

35. Wednesday will prove most fortunate, by far, Than any Day within the Kalender: Dick, then will be thy time to court thy Nell; Fear not, she'll yield to have her Belly swell.

36. Fear not at all this thy pursuit in Law, For thou thine Enemy wilt keep in a weep. Yet stand upon thy guard, and watchful prove, Lest he thy Suit from Court to Court should move.

37. This Year thou wilt have all things competent, Whereby thou may'ft live well, to thy content: Then frugal be, remember former want, And have a care again things grow not feant.

Then strive to break it off for good and all;
Or it will vex thee; she's a peevish Lass,
And scorns thy honest Courtship: Let her pass.

39. You must now of your Carriage take some care, Lest that no Husband does fall to your share: Your wanton Gate, and rowling Eyes, restrain; Or most will think you light, loose, fond, and vain.

40. Three

40. Three Wives you'll have, and they will all prove | VVhich Difappointment, when he is grown up, But three more fuch is very hard to find: (kind, With them then be content, and with no more, Lest what comes after, pay off your old fcore.

41. He is not dead, but likely is to live; And dare affirm, That he will furely thrive: Venus and Luna on his Birth did smile, And he was born fair Women to beguile.

TOR.

te

apace;

100,

BRE

petent,

of:

(12)

W.

10 (20) rin; NãO.

42. A short life, and a merry, thou wilt have, To bring thy sprightly Body to the Grave: Let this not interrupt thy mirth and joy, For thou shalt live to have a lufty Boy.

43. Thy Thoughts do not disclose; for in good deed, Thou of this Person must take special heed: With Love fland at defiance, left too late, When thou art mar'd, it turn to mortal hate.

44. This present Journey does portend to you Moft extreme Lucky, and most pleasant too : Perhaps you'll find her whom the Fates ordain To be your Wife, c're you return again.

45. Do not repine ; for thy Condition's fuch, It is not bad enough, tho' ne'er fo much : Your Follies they have brought you very low; But well no worfe ; for what you did, you know.

46. If you would know this Infant's Father right, Tis he which lay with Nell the other night : See those black Locks that dangle with fuch pride, Before the Bridegroom, put in with the Bride.

47. Wednesday's a Day more ill betiding far, To you, than any in your Kalendar; Bargains refrain then, and refuse to wed Upon that Day, least Horns adorn thy Head.

48. This pretty Infant will be one of them, That wants a special Handle to its VVem;

VVill cause another his VVise's VVomb to stop.

49. Be very careful to avoid debate. There's Envy in this Dream, I calculate; Some private Foe is lurking for your harm, To thun it then, let Caution you fore-arm.

bso. When thou arrivest to the lowest Pitch, Change with the Moon, & then thou wilt grow rich; When the Moon changes, take the next employ mat comes to hand, and you will thrive thereby.

51. It will be thy good Fortune for to be Belov'd by one, and that most heartily ; Then flip no time, but haften to thy Blifs, U And from thy Vvedding, date thy Happinels.

6 52. This News is publish'd, only to surprize, And hoodwink Matters by a meer Difguife; Trust not to what you hear, it is decreed, You shall be prosperous, if you do proceed.

53. This Thief is one belonging to the House, Who looks demure, and harmless as a Mouse; Observe his faultering Speech, and blushing Fear, And in them plain the Guilt it will appear.

54. This Party is with Child, the looks fo wan, So fure as VVoman ever was by Man; Twas a mad Frolick brought her to this Case, Her fond Belief will end in her Difgrace.

55. This Party's given much to talk and prattle, And, Goffip-like, the loveth Twittle Twattle; Truft her not then with Secrets, for befure, She will not yours, nor yet her own fecure.

56. 'Tis pity thou should'st want, thou art so free, But that was it procur'd thy Mifery ; Those that have gull'd thee, & did Friends late feem, VVill leave thee now, and give thee no effeem.

Dade, Attrologer.

Heir Friends being unresolv'd, & at a stand, will certainly obstruct the Match in hand; But they will find some way without Consent, To joyn their hands, and give their hearts content.

2. This year abounds with Fruit, and certainly, 'Twill be a year of great Fertility:
Some Laffes too will find it fo, for they,
Pamper'd and over fed, will run aftray.

3. Much V Vealth, old V Vomen fay, brings flore of But fuch are only fo for their own ends; (Friends, Money true Friendship never yet could buy, It may the hands, but hearts it cannot tye.

4. He is not real, if't be he I mean;
Mas reddish Hair, and Visage very lean;
Gray Eyes, yet dim, a Nose that stands awry,
Beware of such, and them in Marriage sty.

5. If thou doft now pursue this VVish, my Friend, Thou furely shalt obtain it in the end; The Maid is willing, if you knew her Mind, Speak her but fair, and she'll be very kind.

6. I'm very certain, at the length, that he VVIII prove a Person of Integrity; Pray doubt not then to trust him with your Heart, For freely you your Secrets may impart.

7. It is decreed, that thou wilt certainly, Be expos'd to Danger, both by Land and Sea; Then pray to God, and for the worst prepare, And then thou shalt have lesser Cause to sear.

81. For this same Thief, make tryal of a Bait, And then you will be sure to catch him strait; Scatter some coin, and he will nibling be, full Discovery.

chaft, and qualify'd beside, oper for a sober Bride; will be fruitful to thy VVish, and you will catch good Fish.

dusband now entirely in his Love, if mon affectionately prove;

Keep up his Humour with a kind Refpect, And you will find he'll you no more neglect.

11. If you do guess that she will prove with Child By her own Husband, you are much beguil'd; Yet prove she will, her former Sweet heart's Love, The Dotard's loath'd Embrace can ne'er remove.

12. If any does pretend for to deny
This fame Report, tell 'em from me they lie;
She whom you lov'd fo dear, alas is wed!
By your delay another joys her Bed.

13. Nothing his Passage hinders, but the VVind, When that proves fair, he will come home you'll find Lift up your Head, your Fears then soon shall end, He brings much V Vealth for him & thee to spend.

14. Your Spoule, to your small Comfort, during life VVill prove a wanton, and dishonest VVife; And sometimes, when abroad, she'll please to roam, refore thy Face, she'll bring her Gallants home.

C15. Never be full of hopes to win the Field, For her proud heart will never stoop to yield; Then take your Lot, and be therewith content, For she to plague you for your sins, was fent.

16. A Snow shall happen in the Month of May, The like has not been seen this many a day; This is a VV onder you will say, but see, It will prove true if VV omen do agree.

17. One Person, who does envy you, will still Endeavour for to cross you in your VVill; Shun then that Converse, and your Fame will last, And you possess the Lot the Fates have cast.

That thou in him may'st most conside and trust; Improve your time, and by his help, you may, O'recome hard Fortune, and sill gain the Day.

I fear much, thou wilt never be at reft;
Time brings you Joy, her stubborn Heart shall yield,
And you, in spight of Frowns, shall win the Field.
20. The

21. Bat And Sisco But fear n That will

RE CHET!

and more Confide (

21. Set And that I Purfac with And with

You are pa You lay w And you 24. Yo In pleasing

25. Thy Let her, I In an Out I Vhilli h

Be mindh

26. For For you'll ares and B But this !

27. Che for at a co nother T nothis, a nothis, a nothis, a nothis, a

inthy Pr

nt this re

Vell-tem

Thomas No. No.

- IE 000

- And none of all thy Secrets will reveal; Confide fecurely, and be not afraid, He ever will thy forward Fortune aid.
- 21. Bad VVeather confiantly will you attend, And discommode you to your Journeys end; But sear not, for you'll find a thrifty Gain, That will at last well recompence your Pain.
- 22. Set thou but up a holy VVand anon, And that way it does fall, the Thief is gone; Purfue with speed, and you shall catch the Knave, And without loss, your Goods again shall have.

Child

d;

s Love,

BOTC.

ic;

o'll find ing line

1000

OEC,

ield,

M;

est,

May,

1100

山山

of Day.

- 23. I know as much as any, and I hear, You are no Maid, I'll whifper't in your Ear: You lay with John the other Night, you know, And you e'er long with Child full big will grow.
- 24. Your Husband will do all that e'er he can, In pleasing you, and prove an honest Man; Be mindful then, in duty do not fail, And yet I fear you have a liquorish Tail.
- 25. Thy Mother had a Kindness for a Man, Let her, I say, deny it if she can; In an Out house at Ticktack she did play, VVhilst he who's thought thy Father was away.
- 26. For you to trade in Corn and VVine is best, For you'll grow rich, and seather well your Nest; Ceres and Bacchus promise you much store, But this I'll warrant you shall ne'er be poor.
- 27. Change, if thou hopeft now to fill thy Purse, For at at this time it never can be worse; Another Trade will prosper in thy hand, But this, alas, will fill be at a stand.
- 28. You will live many years, and fee gooddays, Gainthy Friends Love, and many Peoples Praise; But this requires good Manners, and a Mind VVell-temper'd, that you may acceptance find.
- 29. Friend, all thy Toil and Labour thou may'st save, For thy true Love thou never more wilt have; Her Heart is giv'n away to sparkish Ned, VVho has already got her Maiden-head.
- 30. No kind of Dearth or Scarcity I find, Fill one does go before, and one behind;

- Mysterious it may seem, but it is true, Tis when the VVomen do the Men pursue.
- It will no way at last advantage thee:
  'Till be reverst, and once more brought about,
  Till he who late was in, will be put out.
- 32. This Dream, if it be rightly understood, Prognosticateth nothing but what's good; A VVedding towards is, wherein you'll find Such Pleasures as will recreate your Mind.
- 33. One Wife will not bring you unto your Grave, For three or four before you die you'll have; Some good, fome bad, but Portions all will bring, And when they foold, their Wealth will make you fing.
- 34. This Bearn, I fay, will be a Boy, no doubt, Her VVem, it is fo round, and firutteth out; But where 'twas got, the Mother best doth know, It from a hasty bout did kindly grow.
- You'll have but one, your Destiny is read; Yet that may prove a Comfort to your Age, For twill be late e're you in Love engage.
- 36. VVithin a Prison needs you must abide, By reason you're beset on every side; But time will mollisse those cruel Men, Who put you in, to take you out agen.
- 37. Would you know well the Father of this Child, His Hair is very black, and's Speech is mild; His Eyes do cast, and ruddy is his Nose, And he is a near Neighbour, I suppose,
- 38. This Fortune is allotted unto thee, That a great Spendthrift shall thy Husban Save what thou can'st, yet he will wast thy! And thou in spight of thrist, shall still be p
- And I don't greatly care to tell a Lie:
  Your Blushes tell me that you are not so,
  But your Rose-bud was gather'd long ago.
- 40. The things which you have loft feem: For Destiny hath laid a cunning Net; For those that took them, the Thieves falli Will bring the grand Discovery about.

- 41. Go forward now, and be not in diffres; For in your Journey you'll have good Success; Kind Friends you'll meet, and at the end procure An ease of Pains that now you do endure.
- 42. This Party's true, and unto you doth bear A very honest mind you need not fear; B. Trust him with business, and you need not doubt, But what he undertakes he'll bring about.
- To those which will your Favour seek to wooe; Yet in the end, Repentance will put on, When as your Lovers and your Beauty's gone.
- 44. Do thou change any how, or any where, Indeed, for my part, I shall never care; Then blame not Fate, if by you it is found, He that's born to be hang'd, shall ne'er be drown'd.
- 45. When thou hast past all temporal fading Strife? Thou shalt exchange it for a better Life:
  Thy fickle Fancy will thy Love destroy,
  And by thy Pride, thou murther wilt thy Joy.
- 46. Your Destiny is such, and happy Fate, Cood fore of Friends will make you fortunate; Summs unexpected, shall your Coffers fill, And in most things you wish, you'll have your Will
- 47. I know from those who farthest are of Kin, to thee the greatest Friendship will begin: C. Then mind your Hits, and strive to please them all, in your Kindred, a rich Wife will fall.
  - e thy Wishes they are now delay'd :
    c will come, when Love & Wealth shall smile
    by Sorrows will their Joys beguile.

- Although against thee they do the their Might:
  Time makes it out, and they asham'd shall be,
  Who, by false Dealing, seek to ruine thee.
- 50. Your Dream foretells fome Sickness will ensue, Therefore use Patience, which is best for you: Love's filver Wings will hover o'er your Bed, You to a rich young Widow shall be wed.
- For the will on your Brow fine Antlers fit:
  Yet fear not, but the'll hold you tack in sport,
  Many Affaults will ne'er o'ercome her Fort.
- 52. Fourteen you'll have, which makes a Baker's dozen, Some will be hard enough, th'others you may cozen: But least you tire, by being over-heat, Your Friends will often come and do the Feat.
- While they were busic, doing of the Deed: The Mother squinted when it was begot, And it will prove a Mome, or very Sot.
- And longs to have thy usual company:
  Fly to his Arms then, and Relief afford,
  Or you'll repent your Absence, on my word.
- 55. The Husband-man his Tillage now must mind, For this will prove a fruitful year, I find:
  Cease then to grudge your charitable Deeds,
  For to that end, Plenty a Dearth succeeds.
- C56. Thy troubles shall endure but for a season, And why I say it, to my self's the reason: Howe'er be vigilant, and you shall find, The Stars, to you, hereafter will be kind.

Total State of the State of the

The state of the contract of t

Dade,

6

ME

Fair, your

2. Yea

Thefare

And YOU !!

3. The

Some plea

and cafe

Jin 69

One feithi Embrace i

Since it g

5. I far Lough and Lay up you and pining

6. He

And pru Then joy For he'll!

7.Shene The Occasi

Nature ha Know not

8. Your Where yo You never Though n

9. The 1 For to exp The Lab s hat com h

Dariot, Astrologer.

1. MY Friend, three years, I fay, must come & go, Before thou any Happiness shalt know: Think them not long, for they once past, a Wife, Fair, young and rich, shall happy make thy Life.

n:

Score

Jula:

titte,

man,

200

Bent hill be got; to many will be min.

2. You will be marry'd credibly indeed, G And that will certainly be done with speed: The fair one you admire, will leave to frown, And you with all her Charms and Beauty crown.

3. They are not dead, nor fuddenly will die, Therefore chear up thy Heart accordingly: Some pleasing News your Ears will soon invade, And case your Mind of what you was afraid.

4 In spight of all Opposers, you will find, One faithful Friend, who will to thee prove kind: Embrace it as a Blessing from above, Since it great Happiness to you shall prove.

5. I fay, nine years of Plenty we shall see, Laugh and rejoyce, and sing with merry glee: Lay up your Stores, least some behind prove bad, And pining Hunger make you to look sad.

6. He bears the Character of one that's fage, And prudent is, as any in this Age: B Then joyful be, if him you make your Friend, For he'll both Council give, and Money lend.

7. She ne'er will Children have, & would you know The Occasion? He's too active, she too slow. Nature has done its Part; but they ill joyn'd, Know not the Rules that Nature has assign'd.

8. Your Maiden head was lost close by the Fire, Where you were fatisfied to your Desire:
You never squeek'd nor cry'd out when it went,
Though now for losing it, you do repent.

9. The Thief is fled away, and there's no ground, For to expect that e'er he will be found: The Lass's Belly wambles, that is true, But now he's stole her Heart, he bids adieu.

For you will find the contrary i'th' end:
'Tis for their Gain, they Flatterers will prove,
That what they now pretend, is for Self-love.

11. Your Ears, dear Child, I fay, you must not lend To all that to you Friendship does pretend: Consider where your Interest lies, and so, Your Kindness, where 'tis best deserv'd, bestow.

For thou wilt always be in Toil and Pain: She's fickle, false and pevish, coy and proud, Which is too much in one to be allow'd.

Or else whate'er you do must fall asunder:
Her Tongue will eccho else, as if she's wild,
Storms will arife, and oft your House until

14. Thy dreaming Fancy, I confess, was But quickly into truth, I know 'twill chare'r long you'll find the meaning of it plai And that, I promise you, will be your G

If that you don't prevent it by fore cast:

Keep close at Home, least you some danger meet.

By rambling late at Night about the Street.

16. Fear no Demurs, nor any long Delay, For, in all likelihood, you'll get the day: Your Star's propitious, and does tell us plain, That what you undertake, shall turn to Gain.

Take it from me, my Advice you'll find it good:
For fome there are that interpose, and she Whom you defire, must not a Bride yet be,

Which will vexatious be, and full of Strike:
Howe'er the reft, for it shall make amends,
And tho' you have some Foes, you have more Friends.

N

19. You will have many Friends, but when all's done,
Tis your best way for to make fure of one:
A she Friend that will be, who will provide Pleasures, to which there's store of Profit ty'd.

20. He undergoes great Hardship, and I'm sure, He'll ne'er be able long it to endure: Yet something promises, they may relent Who us'd him so, and ease him e'er Lise's spent.

21. If that thou find's the Party's Love nottrue, Forsake 'em quite, and make thy Choice anew: There's many that thy Friendship will embrace, And yet promote thee to a higher Place.

22. Come, do not grieve, Itell thee as a Friend, V vhen things are at the worft, they always mend: There fomething is in flore for thee, at laft, Thy Fortune is not at its utmost cast.

23. A real Friend thou hast (but such are scant)
And he'll affist thee in the time of want:
Thou may's conside in what I now do say,
He's lay's up for thee 'gainst a rainy day.

This Party will in private work thee ill, il discovery make against thee still; not in thy Secrets pry, for fear for trusting him but too too dear.

som to your Family does belong: that Straw beard Fellow, and you'll fee, sees for fear, leaft he discovered be.

an only falve thy Maiden head to thee:

Take him but in the Mood, he fill will wed,

And fave thy Credit in a Marriage bed.

27.You'll have a Son, about fome 3 weeks hence, And he will prove a Man of Wit and Senfe: Yet VVine and VVomen will at last intice The Spark from Virtue's Road, to follow Vice

28. He always, ever had, and fill doth gain A Reputation, without Spot or Stain. The VVomen love him, and good Men admire, That he to such great Parts should e'er aspire.

79. A fatal year 'twill be, when e'er it comes, will make us ready for to eat our Thumbs.

Maids then will whine for Husbands; but in vain, Few shall be got, so many will be slain.

42.Yes

For when A chundr

Or in you

42.Th0

Orelieit

The Virg

Litear Wi

41. La

And that

Rich Lat

Yet you

By realo

Your let

4 I

But then

Rememb

Beitir yo

45. Y And for Yet form

But thou

And mea

You for

You tru

47. T For the

But be r

When y

His Righ

She every day will more and more prove kind:
So that your natural Jewel may be fet
At last, in her two-lidded Cabinet.

31. The Air is sharp, and very cold, where he Can reap no Pleasure, nor Felicity:
A warmer Land best suits, but some admire,
How Lovers feel the Cold when all afire.

32. VVhatever many fays, or does pretend, You'll always have a very helpful Friend: She'll warm thy Back, and help thy aged years, Support thee fill, and hush thy waking Cares.

33. Dame Fortune hath thee now in such disclain. That some great Trouble with thee will remain: She'll toss thee like a Tennis for her sport, Oft bandying thee about in spightful fort.

34. To alter your Condition, or your State, VVill prove most shameful, and unfortunate: The Stars do threaten, that e'er you are wed A Month, your kind Spouse will be brought to bed.

35. VVhen fifty years of age doth near expire, Then from this prefent VVorld you must retire: Howe'er, till then, Delights shall crown your days, And all your Children shall walk in your VVays.

36. In this same Voyage that thou tak'st by Sea, The VVind and Tide will both prove ill to thee: Yet Fortune shall befriend thee at the last, And thou on the wish'd Shoar shall Anchor cast.

37. Dear Friend, I say no more than what I've known She hath indeed by other Men been mown. But that's no matter, her thing's ne'er the worse, She's gain'd Experience by an open Purse.

[can't fee 38. Thou'lt have as many Husbands, as thou Moles Between thy Navel, and thy handfome Knee: VVhich I suppose are four, pray look with speed, And on your Belly you'll your Fortune read.

39. This little Babe will prove legitimate, A d honefly begot inspight of Fate:
The Father is an Apprentice, and does fear,
Though marry'd, in this Matter to appear.

40, Ynr

40. You shall have one, which will be very choice, For when you stop your Ears, she'll raise her voice: A thundring Peal shall make you mind her Story, Or in your Cuckoldom she else will glory.

Train

It find

Mi:

ele

ES,

o bed.

re:

days,

23%

1 Sea,

icc;

CE.

THOUSE.

(it

niite

41. Those in your Dream concern'd, disclose the Or else it may some trouble on you bring: [thing, The Virgin that you fancy'd you beheld, I fear will prove too coy, and never yield.

42. Lucky you are, and so you'll lucky be, And that will you attend upon the Sea: Rich Lands shall furnish thee with store of Wealth, Yet you in gaining it impair your Health.

By reason Falshood has thee in disdain:
Your secret Enemy you think your Friend,
And that's the Cause your Matters badly end.

44. Thy Wish so much desir'd thou shalt obtain, But then, I fear, thou'lt quickly want again : Remember how you pinch'd, and be advis'd, Bestir your self, and ben't again surpriz'd.

And so prepare for an Eternity:
Yet something will oppose your happy Life,
But thou'lt not mind the Brawlings of thy Wife.

46. This Party is indeed thy real Friend, And means whatever thing he does pretend: BY our feruples then are needless, tho' of late You trusted one that did your harm create.

47. These Women, I dare say, you need not sear, For they at all no Envy to you bear:
But be not over-sond, least you repent
When you have on them too much Money spent.

48. A T, I think, begins his Christian Name, His Right-eye looks asquint, his Lest-leg lame:

Print and Hours skill burthists -1 to motion may disting to so the first

South of the state of the state

High Foreheaded, and has a Roman Nofe, This is the Man you'll marry, I suppose.

She may be thought a Maid, and counted fo:
But yet, alas, her Piokin's long fince crack'd, she by her Fellow-Servant has been mack'd.

One full of Prudence, Love and Chaftity:
But very homely, yet good natur'd Parts,
Shall gain her Love, and conquer many Hearts.

To be a Person very negligent:
Yet cunning is withall, and you will find,
He's very much to Knavery inclin'd.

But a fine Spring is like to promife more:
Then you with Ned a Primrofing will go, [know. Who will your Belly fwell, with what I mean, you

53. Whene'er you meet together, you'll love more Than ever in your Lives you did before:
Mifunderstandings will be understood,
And what is promis'd shall be foon made good.

For he is very well, pray tell his Mother:
'Twas but a Fit of Love his Journey flay d,
And he at last has won the pretty Maid.

x 55. Good flore of special Friends, my little Knave, Amongst the Kitchen-wenches thou shall have: Good Bits shall be thy Hire, for Inand In, Whilst Joan does oft knock down thy middle Fin.

56. Lay thou no more this Grief unto thy Heart, For now thy Troubles from thee shall depart: There comes an unexpected Joy, a Priend Has left thee that, that will thy Credit mend.

Janasa

6 1970 - Igada What Black

Dove, Attrologer.

Thou, in thy choice of Husbands, art beguil'd; I For he is much debauch'd, and very wild: Though he diffembl'd it before thy face, He'll ne'er be pleas'd with digging in one place.

2. You'll live a pleasant, and a happy life, ree from all Care, and from Domestick Strife: ood Husbandry you will be fure to mind, and in the Countrey true Contentment find.

3. Let Fortune on you smile or frown, you will lave faithful Friends, who will affist you still;
But most, a loving Woman you'll engage,
By tender Love, to cherish your old Age.

4. One Woman, and no more, of great defert, lath freely given unto you her Heart: Slight not the Offer, left she take it back, And ever after you a good V Vise lack.

Corn, and Grafs too great a fearcity:
This time will come, and therefore now provide,
Len wanting, you be by your Friends deny'd.

6. This Alteration (by the Book of Fate)
Vill prove to you an honourable flate:
You fearce could have expected fuch a thing,
Yet Fate on Fools, do's often Fortune fling.

7. This News is partly false, and partly true, But I perceive it don't much concern you; Therefore cheer up, and other News you'll hear, That will be very wellcome to your Ear.

And little different from the Frigid Zone; Yet his firong Nature will cold Blafts out face, And overcome the Danger of the place.

9. Your Husband's love to you will prove buffmall; For, to speak truth, he scarce hath none at all: Yet mudit not, you have a Friend stands by, which loves you well, and will his place supply.

Of all the four, most fortunate to thee: Send Ventures then, and their Return will show, That your Encrease that way will not be slow.

11. Go take a Voyage, and be not a Drone, For thou wilt ne'er get any thing at home: The active Ocean will enliven you, And raife your Spirits, Preferment to pursue.

12. This Pilf'ring is now owned and confess'd;
For it was done in waggery and jest;
To try your Patience, and thereby to find,
How much to Passion you could be enclin'd.

13. The 2d, 4th, and 5th of January, If thou begin'st a VVork, it will miscarry: The 8th, and 10th, and 12th, you may proceed, And to your Mind your Business all shall speed.

14. Your Adversary will keep you in awe, And you'll be overthrown by him at Law: Therefore, in time, if you can make it up, It will be best, and further Trouble stop.

15. But one; and if thou venture upon more, I fay, the fault must lye at thy own door, If thou miscarry; as indeed 'twill prove; For whom you next enjoy, will hate, not love.

16.Benot perplex'd at People's too hard dealing; For if they're nortoo rigid, 'twi'll be healing: Thy Prudence may direct theeto avoid Much of their spire, and so be less anoy'd.

Vill firive for to maintain you handfomly: Let not young Gallants draw your Heart afide; And lay by now your much affected Pride.

18. You'll lead a dolefome and unquiet life, Full of Affliction, and Domestick Strife:
Your Children will upon you Trouble bring,
And from your VVife shall much Vexation spring.

for he

Mov'd ire But good Maraid,

29. Ife

Of Friends
Jour overAnd from 1
20, One
E're thou a
Sat the'll n
And leaves

21.This

The Land

Kelly this Without I

22 If th

and youll

Yet Lock I

But thine

23. Thi

Which you 'Tis both

That you

24. Lan

try unkin

Your Bear His Love,

25. 16

Which in

Bat you w Promise y

26, G

And you's

Search in

What elic

27. If 2

Tipon a Fr How here

ng.

- of Friends quite out of favour fuddenly:
  Your over-lavish Tongue will prove your Foe,
  And from your babbling will misfortune grow.
- 20. One Wife, of Disposition kind and sweet, E're thou art Five and thirty, thou shalt meet; But she'll not long be thine, Death claims his due, And leaves no more such luck behind for you.
- 21. This Year the Summer's Plenty shall recruit, The Land with Corn, good store of Grass and Fruit: Nelly, this year, that is her Master's Joy, Without her Mistels's leave, shall have a Boy.
- 22. If that thou art unmarried, wed thee then,
  And you'll be very rich, I know not when;
  Yet Luck may happen in a Bag fometimes,
  But thine will be to fuffer for thy Crimes.
- 23. This News is very good, if all hit right, Which you will furely know by Friday Night; 'Tis both of Love and Bus'ness; for then she That you kis'd last, will well deliver'd be.
- 24. Lament not his departure; neither fear Any unkindness; for his Heart is here: Cyour Beauty and good Parts have chain'd him fast; His Love, as long as doth his Life, will last.
- 25. I fee the Danger does feem very ill, Which in this Journey much torment you will; But you will overcome it; for your Stars Promife you Safety in the mid'ft of Wars.
- 26. Go get a Warrant quickly, and complain, And you will find the Thief and Goods again: Search in your Neighbours Houses, and you'll find What else to be remov'd is soon design'd.
- 27. If any Bus'ness thou do'st undertake Upon a Friday, Observation make, How heretofore you sped upon that Day, And take your measures by it the right way.

for he

- 28. He's fomething moody, and much apt to be Mov'd into Paffion very suddenly; (make But good VVords will appeale his VVrath, and Him mild, and all his Anger soon forsake.
- 29. I fear, th'beginning of thy Life will be Most fatal and unlucky unto thee:

- Then cautious move in what you undertake, And all ill Company with speed forsake.
- 30. Among thy many Friends, of this take cars
  Of one that is enclin'd to reddish Hair:
  His Face is pale, his Nose indented in,
  And underneath his Mouth a Double Chin.
- And what is worse, she'll prove an errant Scold:

  Jealous she'll be, if but a Maid you kis,
  Or of your nightly Duty ought you miss.
- 32. Now, when St. Swithin's-Day does come, you'll Its Product, by the alt'ring of the Wind: (find If South, a Rainy Season is foretold; If North, or West, or East, then comes much Col
- 33. I find that you will now some Paper Which you in Court have openly deny'd But by mis-laying them, they will appear And, if not both, endanger you one Ear.
- But's very rare you'll with 'em all agree. Of one you'll jealous be; with t'other fad And with the third it will be high-go-mad.
- 35. Be rul'd by me, and fet thy Heart at reft; For, I prefume, thy Life is at the best:
  Lay up what thou hast got, and cease to Trade; For why, thy Fortune is already made.
- Than ever thine to him will prove to be:
  What tho' he is not active at the Sport,
  He formerly has from'd in many a Fort.
- 37. To be too fond of Friends, a Ruine helps:
  As Apes, by too much hugging, kill their Whelps:
  Show not too much of kindness where you love,
  Lest they go proud, that else will humble prove.
- This will prove unto thee a lucky Day:
  Propitious Stars shine on thy Fortune now,
  And choicest Favours, as thy Lot, allow.
- yex not, for they will no er be had again:
  The Thief, within a Week, will cross the Seas,
  And no er return; then set your Heart at case.

And may prove most unhappy unto thee.

Refrain it then, if I may thee advise,

And her that puts you to it, now despite.

As e'er was hanged upon Tyburn Tree:
Early he'll practice in the fatal Trade, and late, in Hemp, be an Example made.

42. Be patient, and your felf vex not in vain, He is alive, and you'll fee him again; He'll come with Treasure from a happy shore, Laden with Wealth, but fraught with Love much

43. You'll prosp'rous be, and get into your hands try fair and good Estate, in Lands: e that Fraud attend not this your Gain, with you it will not long remain.

Place not thy Confidence, I fay, in this, is not prove true which spoken is: o found of Truth; then be content, ent wait, to see the last Event.

thou do'st change, thou'lt live a happy life, net a special Fortune with a Wife:
aid in Years is promis'd to thy Bed, G ao has till Forty kept her Maidenhead.

Because his Teeth is longer than his Beard;
He has a Swingel that will thrash thy flore,
Till from thy crevis issue Children flore.

Three thou halt have, and it may be three more;
Two shall be kind, the other will thee gore:
Yet bear up floutly, and don't from 'em flinch;
Of your Prerogative bate not an Inch.

48. This year, altho' the Harvest be but thin, yet 'twill be troublesome to get it in:

The Wars employ the Labourers hands, and there? Infead of Scythes, they use a Sword or Spear.

49. Before thy Day of Death thou'lt find a change, And pining, die for love; which will be ftrange: 'Tishard, you'll fay, to be diffain'd, and love; Yet it will often thy fad Fortune prove.

Then keep thy felf, I fay, without a Wife: A Friend you'll have, that will make better cheer, When in your Fish-Pond you your Cock-Boat seer.

51. Because the Mother warrants it, I love her!
Better by half believe her, than disprove her:
'Twas born in Wedlock; who can then say nay?
Yet there is one the Mother can gain-say.

52. Your Dream, when really it is understood, Is very fatal, and portends no good: Fire threatens Anger; Water, deep Despair; And Sickness, by a thick and troubled Air.

53. When thou obtain's thy Wish, be thankful then, And by that means thou may'st obtain agen:
But Peevishness will never do the thing;
Thy Pride, if not well check'd, will Ruine bring.

54. A real Friend indeed, I think he is, And ever will prove fo, and never mis: But press not on too hard, lest over rid, Thou tirest Good Nature, as of late you did.

But I must tell you, My own Thoughts are free: Her Eye-brows curl, her Fore-head Vein do's rise, These are two Marks she has heav'd up her Thighs.

For the is not, nor ever was with Child:
Yet for this Cushion-Birth they do provide Things in much State, yet all, the Cheat won't hide.

Edlin,

Wis M

1 Both

be's handlo

and can do

the's buxou

oll many a

3. The l

Vill never

A Foreigner

And to his C

4.000 50

ow I coce

out firang

Will make

6. Youd

As well, a

Your Child

But not Loc

7. Year

She'll mana

She by Goo Yet you'll n

ome inbre revent it.

9. 1 ques Perhaps I h Her Bubbis

BY EYES

26440

Edlin,

Altrologer.

THis Match, I'm fure, will doubtless prove to be Both prosperous and fortunate to thee:
She's handsom, young, and rich, and thristy too,
And can do what a Woman has to do.

lore;

o frie

t cheer,

et liter

id.

e free:

And take whateare you can, she'll touch and take: she's buxom, airy, and has done the Trick, Full many a time, with your Companion, Nick.

Y Vill never be found out, nor yet the Thief;
A Foreigner has done the deed, I say,
And to his Country now makes hashe away.

4. One you will have, and when he's dead, I doubt You'll once 'again adventure t'other bout:
Your firange defire to try the force of Man,
Vill make you venture, do Friends what they can.

You may your Lands both Harrow, Plow, & Till, You have fruitful prove, do what you will: The yel is barren, therefore if you love, Your V Velfare from this Farm with speed remove.

As well, and long, as any two alive:
Your Children too, a Bleffing will be found,
But not Long-liv'd; the first dies by a VVound.

7. Your VVife in Prudence is fo excellent, She'll manage all things to your Hearts content: She by Good huswifery will make you rich, Yet you'll ne'er leave off your old rambling itch

8. Your Dream most properly doth signific Some inbred Hate, and deadly Enmity:
Prevent it, O ye Stars, that this Birth sway'd!
She kill him not, whose Honour he betray'd.

9. I query whether she's a Maid or no; Perhaps I have some Grounds for doing so: Her Bubbies swiftly pant, her Hips rise slow, Her Eyes are dull; these do Conception show. 10. By thy prudential Care, this is the fum, Thine Adversary thou shalt overcome; But with much difficulty, therefore see Thou with thy Neighbours do henceforth agree.

A period to thy life may chance to come; But Temperance, and skilful Art, may give Some ten years more, wherein thou well shalt live.

And that will keep thee up from growing poor:
But all Contention thun; for that will be,
If thou purfue it, ruine unto thee.

That they will lucky be, and fortunate:

VVomen do promife to augment thy Treasure;

To give thee Prosit, and to share the Pleasure.

And thou must put thy Horns into thy Poke; Yet she will not for nothing trade, you'll find, Your Cossers, by this means, will be well lim'd.

15. Alas, I'm forry! and Jove help thy head, For all thy VVifhes will be frustrated:
You toyl in vain, another will step in,
VVhom you suspect not, but is near a-kin.

When once he does fet forward on his way: Expect him then, and for him freight provide, Before he goes, he here will have a Bride.

17. Thursday to you will luckily appear The most successful Day in all the Year:
Wooe on this day, and you'll in Love succeed With one that came of a right Cockish Breed.

18. This Journey don't, by prospect, seem to be Prosp'rous and advantagious unto thee; Then put it off until another time, And you will to your wish'd Preserment clime.

19. 15

Be thankful, that thou do'st not want for nothing:
'Tisnot thy Care that brings it thee, I know,
But thy good Friends upon thee it before.

20. Thou'lt have a Wise, rich, young, and innocent,
But I'm afraid her Bargain she'll repent:
Thy lewd Debauches they will vex her fore,
And make her at the last with thee quit score.

- 21. Indeed I am afraid, and much in doubt, That you will never find the Pilferer out, Unless that Guilt shou'd his fad Conscience check, When th' Tyburn Noose is slipt about his Neck.
- 22. One Husband you will have, and then no more,
  You must expect to enter at your door:
  Make choice of him, and you will comfort find And Children have, according to your mind.
  - 23. He is your real Friend indeed, much more Than e'er he did pretend to be before:
    Your grave humility has won his Heart,
    And from your Int'rest he will ne'er depart.
  - For nothing will thereon, I'm fure, enfor:
    "Tis to amule you; but the next you hear,
    Will be more grateful to your longing Ear.

25.So much now from the wandring Stars I gather, This Woman's Husband is but half the Pather; Some other pump's her Well, whose Succordrew More than the sormer did, had power to do.

26. Love, if it he once broken off, alas!
'Tis e enas full as hard to joyn as Glafs:
She'll now firike home; but if it be delay'd,
You'll find that the will live and die a Maid.

27. I'm forry thou art brought into a share, But thou hast time enough to take some care: 'I'is not too late; put off this lasty Match, And, for the suture, sand uponthy watch.

28. Two Friends thou hast, whom thou for Foes But thou with them may's real Priendship make: SomeBack-birers would make thee slight their care, But shun their Counsel, and you happy are.

29. Would'ff thou get an Estate, and Reputation? Work for it, and you'll find it in the Nation:

To labour much, indeed, you are not bred, It must come from the sudy of the Head.

30. Two Wives thou't have, which will much please But yet the third will bring good store of Pelf; Tho' not in love, will like the former be, Nor with her long wilt thou in ought agree.

40. You

From your Repeat the

The Sento

41. You

fi you will b

For in the

And this I

His Prien

He hall

43.Chat

TheMan

You'll ha

Who, like

44 Id

But neith

Thy beft

Because t

Tis one

If you w

46. Fo

He mexp

Andthe

And you Twill Ho

Because y

48. He

And loves

31. Somewhere hard-by, I think the Thiefis gon, And I believe you'll eatch the Rogue anon: Search the next House, part of your Goods are there, And then to find the rest you need not fear.

32. One you shall marry, will be very grave, And that is all which you intend to have:
Please him; and in so doing, seek content;
For if you don't, much strife to you is meant.

33. This Year our Astumn's Store shall be encreas'd, Which will well satisse both Man and Beast; And make the Pot boil in the Winter's Frost; Yet you, for all your Wealth, shall oft be crost.

34. Your Husband has the Reputation got, Of being Envious, Passionate, and Hot: Perswade him then to be more moderate, And you will gain, perhaps, a good Estate.

35. A Wife you'll have, both beautiful and fweet, sober, chafte, courteous, vertuous, and difere and Cheriff her then, and you shall fill have peace. Which with your Labour, will bring you Encrease

36. This Dream of yours, as near as I can guefs, Doth fignific much folitariness:
You'll leave your Family, and voyage o'er, In discontent, unto a distant shore.

37. There's none that can thy Maiden head reffore, And make it full, and whole, as twas before: Physicians Art is vain when that is flown, Then marry him who has no difference known.

38. Meddlethounot at all with Men of Law, For it won't fignific to thee a firaw:
Thy Case they'll open, to thy discontent,
And leave thee, when thy Money is all spent.

39. The Fates has order'd it, and did contrive Your Years should be expir'd at Thirty five: Yet wedded thou shalt be, and have a Wife Will prove a comfort to thy short-spann d. ife.

40. You'll

- 40. You'll be most miserable; and this proceeds | Yet mind him not, you shall o'ercome his frown, From your Impiety, and evil Deeds: Repent then, and perhaps you may retrieve The Sentence that the Fates at prefent give.
- 41. You to good Wishes happily may arrive, If you with diligence purfue and firive; Yet fill be cautious in this grand Affair; For in the Bush you beat, there is a mare.

1500.

bere.

6.

Tek

- 42. He nothing wants, but is us'd very well, And this I do prefume for truth to tell : His Friends have taken care, and will provide He shall be happy in a fair rich Bride.
- 43. Change not too oft, nor for a Wife don't range, The Moon wears Horns, I find, when the doth change: You'll have a ftale one, that has oft been sped, Who, like Diana, will adorn your Head.
- 44. I do prognofficate thou'lt have two Wives, But neither of them shall enjoy long lives: Thou shalt not much lament their Loss ; for know, Thy best Content will from their Fun'rals flow.
- 45. What you have loft, you never can retrieve, Because the Thief is gone, I do believe: 'Tis one whom you did credit over-much; If you would find him, feek among the Dutch.
- 46. Fear not fair Maiden, for all will go well, You shall have one, and not lead Apes in Hell; He unexpected comes to take you hence, And tho' he han't much Coin, he has much Sence.
- 47. If you are Weatherwise, then view the Sky, And you may judge of that as well as I, 'T will flormy prove, your pouting Love will lower, Because you kept not the appointed hour.
- 48. He is an angry, and a peevish Elf. And loves that none should thrive besides himself

- And bear more fway than he within the Town.
- And to thy Will will ever answer, No: It's best you do not cross her in her mood, Give her her way, and she may chance prove good.
- 50. Thy Dream, I find, is of no valuation, Then drive it quite from thy imagination; 'Twas hastily conceiv'd; all Dreams done so, Do mostly from a bad Digestion grow.
- 51. Pray be not angry with this Girl, I fay, Her Maiden-head is loft, or stolnaway: It can't be helpt, it was a flippery trick, He made her drunk, and took her in the nick.
- 7 52. I do perceive that you a while must tarry, The Law, I find, favours your Adversary; Yet time will come when you redress will have, And fairly overcome the crafty Knave.
- 53. When thou to fifty years art fully come, Provide to die, and well cast up thy summ : Yet this I tell thee, Thy Name ftill shall live, And thou'lt to all a good Example give.
- 54. In ev'ry thing you have a lucky hand, And Fortune favours you throughout the Land: Prosperity awaits upon your Train, And you shall heap up to your felf much Gain.
- 55. While now Dame Fortune doth upon thee smile, Go forwards on thy Journey twenty Mile; Stop there, and you shall fee what is your lot, A Wife to your content will foon be got.
- 56. Be not faint-hearted, but of courage flout, For Providence will always help thee out: Tho' things feem difficult, they'll easie prove, And you'll find Profit in advent'rous Love.

400

Fly, Astrologe

Your Husband's much debauch'd, & will prove That he his Elbow thakes fometimes too much By which your Family will be diffrest, But Friends will help you when you are oppress.

2. One Husband thou wilt have, and that's enough, For why? thou'lt find he'll use thee very rough: Thou, i a fat Sorrow shall your Life attend, And that amid'st your Grief will Comfort lend.

3. One Person, whom you well do understand, You will be marry'd to her out of hand:
She will be frugal, though no Portion bring,
And has to please you a most dainty thing.

4. This very pleasant Dream, of you know what, Prognosticateth what you would be at:
She will be kind, you will possess the Store
That you but dreamt you Risled heretofore.

5. Under the Rose, this Truthmay well be said,
She rather outward seems, than is a Maid:
Yet it is long, since open d was her Purse,
Tisnow shut close, and not a pin the worse.

6. The Answer to your Question's this, in brief, It will be long before you find the Thief: He sculks about, as conscious of the Crime, Yet will be catch'd, and you repay'd in time.

7. The Secrets you imparted, concealed are, But for the future, of your Tongue take care: Left often trufting, you at last are nickt, For the most Cunning often are out trickt.

8. By fome well-grounded Passion, she or he Will their Desires accomplish certainly:

Venus does promise some Success, and see

How the Mercurial Star makes them agree.

9. He'll prove a real Friend, and such a one As you securely may rely upon:
Your Business, that is weighty, yet at last,
It will succeed, when some small trouble's past.

10. When Death knocks at thy door, do not look fly, Bor at the Age of forty thou must dye:

Yet to allay that thought, you well shall live, And Death to better Joys shall passage give.

His Mother's Husband did not him beget:
What then, 'twas one the heretofore did love,
And will in time her happy Husband prove.

12. Thy Wife, if thou don't lay her down in hafts
I'm fure her time of Harvest will be past:
Beware she journey not, least in the way
She, unprovided, does her Burthen lay.

13. Upon the Fourth, and feventh day of June, The Work thou dost will never keep in tune: The Eighth and Tenth more prosperous will be, And with your Undertaking well agree.

14.He'll love thee as a Bridegroom should his Bride, But he does not too much in thee confide: His Inability thou wilt upbraid, And, to supply thee, with some others trade.

By Dammages he in his Travels had:
A Fate attended him, as he was led
At Midnight to his kind young Hostes's Bed.

16. This News, I think, dock ther good nor hurt, But it will crumble, at the land to durt:
'I was hafty brought, they it is not for the truth, And therefore in it did much harm the Youth.'

17. Though once or twice perhaps you may be cast, Yet you'll have Justice done you at the last: The Judge will imell a Rat, and find a Plaw, And gainst your Foe you'll have a swinging Claw.

18. You will supported, and affished be, By real Friends in your Adversity: A. Female in this Case will do you right, And your just Cause shall overcome his Might.

19. Unless you take some speedy course & mend, You'll have a shameful and unhappy end:
Some sad Missortune does upon you wait,
Your Stars do lowre, and dismal is your sate.

11.Benot 31 rather The faint 100 those

Will Later 1

Trainvi

11, Who Then then Led many While the

23. Go And yet fo Upon St. V Yad after t

let Pation Em only w 25. This Though at Though at Ontrie in

While of y D 1/26. Tis lad of this ion much or to th

27. If t Some me Tis a rain Therefore

28. No

litel thee, kind nort but be thy 19. Tak

lia fee as mate of lo make t

Pacap

20. Her Maidenhead's gone, but who foe'er doth get Will hardly find fearce one intwenty better: [her, 'Tis almost grown again, and is as good As if she never had on tiptoe stood.

21.Be not too much at this your Dream concern'd, But rather take good heed, and be forewarn'd: The swimming in the VVater, & the Fish [wish. You thought you catch'd, will one day bring your

22. When fix times feven years are gone and past, Then thou shalt wed a hopeful Wife at last G. And many Children shall thy Joy encrease, [Peace. Whilst thou hast Health, long Life, much Wealth &

23. Good Husbands now adays are very feant, And yet for one, I think thou wilt not want: Upon St. Valentine's you will him fee, And after some fost Kisses, soon agree.

inish

ifm,

Bille,

3

orient,

e truth,

be caff,

H, Claw,

此

24. He fo excells in Vertues, no one can Outvie in Judgment, this most folid Man: Yet Passion sways him, and you'll always find Him only weak in loving Woman-kind.

25. This Theft at last will be discovered, Though at the present's closely managed: 'Tis one who does frequent your House & smiles, Whilst of your Substance you she off beguiles.

And of this Confident for to be ware:

Too much to trust will do thee mighty harm,

For to ensure thee he will lay a Charm.

27. If this thy Wish be granted unto thee, Blame me not, if things happen fatally: 'Tis a rash VVish, and will repentance bring, Therefore renounce, and cover not the thing.

28. No matter what he does, or may pretend, I tell thee, he is not thy real Friend:
Blind not thine eyes with his fo fair Pretence,
But be thy felf, and recollect thy Senfe.

29. Take heed of sudden Death, which threatens And see against it thou prepared be: [thee, Peware of Water, that does mainly threat, To make thee pay to Nature her due debt.

30. She has had one before, that has been kind, And e'er belong, she'll let it out behind:

She firives to hide it, but it will be feen, And most will know where she with Dick hath been.

Of very good Events thou need'st not doubt:
It 'tokens Love, and she you dreamt to kis,
Will be your Wise, or else at least your Miss.

32.Love well your Wife, and cherish her therefore, For when she's dead, you'll never marry more: But weep to think, that if you use her ill, That your Unkindness did a good Wife kill.

33. Two you shall have, but mark above theres, That of the two, the last will be the best: In happy Union you your Loves shall find, And both conform'd be to each others Mind.

34. Thy Husband will be diligent and kind.
Then use no Peevithness to cross his Mind:
In pleasing him thy Happiness shall grow,
But great Misfortunes, if you don't do so.

35. This year all People may with cause complain, Of the great scarcity of Corn and Rain: But yet hope still the next shall make amends; Let him that wants then borrow of his Friends.

Go. Of thy first Love, I fay, make thou no store, For now he's gone thou shalt have many more: Thy Youth and Beauty will not let thee want, Though other Lasses find their Sweet-hearts scant.

37. This Journey which you are about to goe, You will escape all dangers of the Foe:
And at the end your Willes will be crown'd,
Though Fortune on you has a long time frown'd.

38. Let Friends advise, or do whate'er they will, Thou wilt espouse thy own dull humour fill:
Berul'd then e'er 'ts too late, least thou repent,
For all they urge is towards thee well meant.

39. Strive ne'er to much, thou never wilt get Unless it be by Knavery and Stealth; [Wealth, And that will bring thee too much Pain and Shame, And thy Posterity will bear the Blame.

40. Your Friends to you will prove your greatest And be too heavy a Burthen for to bear; Yet Heaven will not you at all forfake, But pitty on you for your Kindness take.

Fly, Astrologer.

- 41. Provide some money for thy time of need, For without that, thy Cause will no ways speed; 'Tis want of that that makes thee thus delay'd, Seek it in time, least all thy hopes do fade.
- 42. All News is not right spoken as it is, But I do much suspect the truth of this; For probability does let me see, How much it does with Circumstance agree.
- 43. Chear up thy felf, & be not quite cast down, For suddenly thy Friends will be in town; They will commiserate thy hard Estate, And rescue thee before it be too late.
- 44. On Innocents day no Business undertake, For those poor murther'd harmless Infant's sake; Least thou miscarry, as its often known, Those that have that day tempted it, have done.
- 45. Thy Lady bright will have so quaint a VVit, VVhat tricks she plays, you'll ne'er discover it; Content thou then thy self, for what's ne'er known, Brings no more trouble than it't ne'er was done.
- 46. The Mother may indeed fay what she will, The Child, he is to seek his Father still; He'll ne'er be wise enough to find him out, Unless she mark him with a signal Smout.
- 47. Don't vex, nor discompose your self with Grief, For you will easily find out the Thief.

  Though he the Place at present shuns, at last He will return, and you shall have him fast.
- 48. Do not thy Secrets to this Person trust, For she to thee, I know, will prove unjust; Another bribes her to infinuate Lato thy Councils, and reveal thy State.

- 49. Your VVish will quickly have a happy End, And be accomplish'd by a real Friend; Think on the Person, you will see him soon, And he will buckle you before next Moon.
- your Friend is real to you, and indeed, VVhatever you sustain, his Heart does bleed; He bears a part in all your Grief and VVoe, And what proves yours, will prove his Overthrow.
- 51. Earth's greatest Curse will now upon thee lie, Sickness, Old Age, and silthy Beggery; There is no Comfort, but in Heaven for thee, 'Twill glad thy Heart when Death shall set thee free
- 52. A little one she has, I'll take my swear, And let her now deny it if she dare; 'Twas hasty made, and almost but half got, The Father of it was a bonny Scot.
- 53. Your Dream, if direful Fate mayn't be withstood, Doth unto you, now signific no Good; The Anger that you sear'd on you will tight, And you must undergoe much Hate and Spight.
- 54. One VVise's enough for such a sneaking Fool, VVo has more need for to be whipt at School; Yet Mouth waters after simpering Kate, His Neighbours Spouse, but the will shun his Bate.
- 55. Sifter, you of good Husbands shall have flore, Three at the leaft, and it may be three more. They'll bounce your Belly, make your Buttocks wag Vyhil'st you seem'd pleas'd, and of their Kindness
- As you and some imagine him to be; Your Passion makes him fly abroad and sot, If you'd be milder, he'd forsake the Pot.

Jonas Lucas

Gallen,

Tour Inte

linging of To dream

and he is

Frepare w For now h

Till the c

But then a She hade

4 Your

and you to You both This showi

5. I find Which wi

By firange Porits dela

6. You find the

to try the

Hedoes Inder the

Re'll be co

8. This!
To be as tr
is forceth and bring

o l'ay, o prosper e semit

d you in

Gallen, Att

Altrologer.

1. To understand this Dream's purport, you may Interpret it the quite contrary way; Ringing of Bells a Marriage do foretell, To dream our Friends are dead does speak'em well.

PEN

ed;

throw.

et lie, ice free

ear,

bisod,

ty pt.

Bate.

inore,

Sewer Marian

[beag,

2. He's better now than he hath been before, And he is very near the English Shore; Prepare with open Arms to take him in, For now he'll stay, and never roam again.

3. A Maid she was, untouch'd, I dare engage, Till she could write her self twelve years of age; But then an Itch so strangely seiz'd her Tail, She had Dostor to remove the Ail.

4. Your Husband will a Mistris have, I grant, And you to quit his Scores a brisk Gallant; You both shall have your Fill of Love, but see, This shoving Business brings on Poverty.

5. I find thou by a Wound thy days will end, Which will be given by thy dearest Friend; By strange mischance, then still befure you shun, For its delay, the Muzzle of a Gun.

6. You have three Friends, but yet among these I find there will but one a true Friend be;
To try them, trust them with some weighty thing, And you will find with which your Bow to string.

7. He does pretend you Love, with a defign to cheat? Under the mark of Falshood and Deceit; To undeceive him then, open your heart, He'll be content, and ne'er from you depart.

8. This News at last will certainly appear,
To be as true as God's in Glosestershire;
Tis fomething strange, yet to your good may prove,
And bring you back your so long absent Love.

9. I fay, this Journey is not like to be So prosperous unto you in some degree; Yet shun it n t, the Weather will grow clear, and you in Favour once more shall appear. 10. This unto you, I dare prefume to fay, That Thursday'll prove a very lucky day; Go on then with the thing you do defign, There's nothing but your Hands now left to joyn.

It. Thy Wife's no Scold, nor Whore, but one far A drunken Quean, who will drink dry thy Purse; A Brandy-Sot, who daily will thee vex, And do what's very hard, even shame her Sex.

12. This Dream much threatens your Estate & you, The Divine Powers implore, it prove not true; 'Tis of Contention, Law and brawling Strife, About the unknown Portion of a Wife.

13. Marry not, for, I fear, 'twill prove a Curse, And help to make thy bad Condition worse; Get a good Servant that will mind thy House, And for a Wise, ne'er matter it a Louse.

14. Thy Confident is both upright and plain, No Spark of Falshood in her doth remain; Thy Letters trust then to her faithful Care, And she'll thy way to happiness prepare.

15. He's found in Body, and in perfect Health, Merry in Mind, and does increase in Wealth; But wants an Heir, then help him but to that, And he'll ne'er mind by whom it was begat.

16. Her Maiden-head does much torment her more,
Than any stiffened Gown she ever wore;
It makes her hitch as if she haltstring'd were,
But she'll be rid on't the next V Vake or Fare.

17. Your Husband firites to do what e'er he can,...
To please you like a very honest Man;
Be you content, and no Backbiters mind,
Leave off your Gossipping, if ease you'd find.

18. I find thou art now of thy Entrails found, But thou wilt die of an external VVound; A Fisula does threaten thy Decay, Or Venus's Fire, as other Stars do say.

19. Such

19. Such real Friends you will obtain, as will Own and acknowledge your Affection ftill; In Poverty or Riches they are fure, And 'tis a good Friend that will so endure.

20. His Love is true, and real to his Friends, Without Self-interest or private Ends:
You need not bribe him, he without will do More than another that takes Coin of you.

21. Now you, I think, may lay your Anger by,
-For every word, I'm fure, that's told's a Lye:
You were too hafty in your base Surmise,
But seeing your Mistake, be hence more wise.

[Frame,

22. In Journeying fee thou keep'st all tuings in So may'st thou shun all Danger, Fear or Shame; Let not thy Tongue too lavist oo, forbear Hot words, for they will pull on thee a Snare.

23. Be very careful, and mark what I fay, And have an Eye upon a rainy day; Lay by fomewhat, least when Distress comes on, Thy Swallow-friends be from thy Winter gone.

24. A drunken Wife thou shalt be sure to have, A sottish Quean best fits a sottish Knave; Trim Tram, we say you both shall shame your Kin, And make your Children wish they'd never bin.

25. If that this Dream doth trouble thee again, Confult fome Matron, and he'll ease thy Pain; Thy mounted Priapus the will bring down, As foon as any Jilt that walks the Town.

26. I find thy Fortune cannot be withstood, You'll have five Wives, and none of 'em prove good: The first a Scold, the next a sluttish Pug, The next two cuckold thee, the fifth's a Jug.

27. You by a certain Person will be crost, In this your Love, and all your Labour lost; He seems no Courtier, yet in ambush lies, And when you least suspect, will seize the Prize.

28. By many Circumfances it is clear, That this will prove no very barren year; Nor overplenty with the Earth adorn, [Corn The Up lands forch, and fome Blasts finite the

29. I'm forry your Condition is foill, That when your mit is dead, none have you will;

Your bad Behaviour to the first, will prove A Scare crow, frighting others from your Love.

Q.Wbo

THIN

he Gail

41. Ch

sat weak thy muc by lufable

42. 39

Tood Wi

fertine'

From Wi

43. Ti

Por it po Observe

Rear Hit

4.5

Ne'er mo

That will

45. N

oc many

Green-fic

Better W

The Repo

ind he 9

47. Ti

ti au

be great

OR WHILL

30. Last Month your Friend was carried to thy Grave Though all the Means was us'd his Life to save; Love over power'd his Heart, made Nature weak-Then be more soft, and no more Hearts pray break

Has fool'd her vertuous Maiden-head away; She scarce knew what it was, e'er it was lost, But now she rues, since that her Hopes has cross-

32. He is of Nature affable and fweet, Of Disposition mild, and most discreet; Then happy are you, if he is your Lot, A better in the Town cannot be got.

33.I fear thou'lt break thy Neck, some Stars do say, Then look it be but in a civil way; For then your felf will only bear the Blame, But if you swing, your Friends will have the Shame.

For with good flore of Friends thou wilt be bleft; Labour to pleafe them, and you need not doubt, But what you undertake you'll bring about.

35. Remember this, and always bear't in mind, A faithful Friend is very hard to find; Then if you get one, it you be but wife, You will his Friendinip as a Jewel prize.

36. This idle Party which this Newsdid tell, I find affected Lying very well; "I was told to curry Favour, bur despite The falle Relator, with his Bag of Lics."

37. Go forward with good chear in your Bufiness, And you will be rewarded with Success; Some Difficulty, though you seem to find, You need not fear, the Stars have Luck affiguid.

38. Your Wish can never he obtain'd, I'm sure, Therefore desse, and humble do endure; Grieve not, the you another see preferred, To whom Dame Fortune has a choice Regard.

39. It is the Judges must your Fortune tell, ?
For I can never do it had fife well;
Your Forehead obes a wrange triangle slow,
Which Mark has fatabbeen to most we know.

40. Whom

40. Whom you suspect, charge but the matter home, Twill by degrees come out by some and some; Blushes and abrupt Stammering make it plain, The Guilt the Party firives to hide in vain.

Lone

Grane .

e weak.

y break

it,

00179

obles;

oubt,

d tell,

Defrets,

sirt,

Offi, OFF.

- 41. Children she'll have, the Pledges of her Love, But weakly ones, fuch as will (hort-liv'd prove; Thy much Intemperance causes this Annoy, By Infobriety you them defroy.
- 42. By Peoples Envy, Hatred and Difdain, Thou wilt both fuffer Grief, and inward Pain; Yet time will come that death shall take those hence From whom you have received much Offence.
- 43. This Dream of yours, for once I'll let it pass, For it portends no good, whate'er it was ; Observe the next, and if it prove the like, Fear Heaven's hand with Sickness thee will firike.
- 44. She made a good end, and for Brandy cry'd, Her Face the turn'd, and like a Lamb the dy'd; Ne'er mourn her Loss, there is one yet in store, That will be thine, whom thou haft try'd before.
- 45. Ne'er figh for this thy Lofs of Maidenhead, For many a Virgin has far worfer sped; Green-fickness had destroy'd thee, had it say'd, Better without it, than to die a Maid.
- 46. He will acquire to himself, do what all can, The Reputation of a knowing Man; His Kindred by his Industry shall rife, And he shall many to their good advise.
- 47. This present Journey very good will be, And profitable will prove unto thee; Begin it then, leaft by delay you lofe The great Advantage that you now may chuse.
- 48. Be chearful, and be not at all cast down, You will have Luck, tho Fortune feem to frown;

ty. It is the prudencia, and she falen ways

An unexpected Friend frands in the way, And will from you the coming Danger stay.

+ 49. She whom thou took'ft for better or for worfe Is very handsome, but the'll frain thy Porfe; Yet heavy make thy Head, as that grows Light, Because thou canst not bid good Morn and Night.

50. At forty years thou wilt have five years trouble, But after that, thy Comfort comes on double; Some Land unlook'd-for, will fall to thy part, And wean'd from Grief, thou'lt have a merry heart.

- 51. I'm forry that your With should be so great, That you'll ne'er able be to do the Feat; Think on some lester Business, that may be More suitable, and nearer your Degree.
- 52. You'd better by the half agree in Love, Than chuse the Rigour of the Law to prove 5 What tho' you have beforehand try'd her Cafe, You know 'tis good, beside a handsome Face.
- 33. This fly young Thief, who took the thing away Will on a fudden his own felf betray: He's a young Trader, and wants Confidence, To stand it out, or make the least Defence.
- 54. I know 'twill be a Son, and that you'll fee He will be full of Wrath and Cruelty; Got in an angry Mood, when Mars did reign, It threatens he will be in Quarrel flain.
- 55. Your lowring Looks you now must cast away; For after cloudy Weather, comes fair day; Your Fortune courts you to your happy Tide, A golden Blade expects you for his Bride.
- [newly had. 56. This Night's strange Dream, which you have The Confequence, I fear, will be but bad; The Flame you faw, much trouble does portend, The Shipwracks News of some late drowned Friend-

O of fore of Fiches, the columbing will to that when we take op almodantly, but when you ter them, on your to frety, and the first when you ter them. to forth your front a then will falled And one before will love to Many or black of Lind you that! have wind pender to respect out one whold

Lilly, Attrologer.

I. THE Nineteenth & Twentieth day of August, Are very unlucky, take it upon trust;
But on the Twenty four, and Twenty nine,
The Stars that rule those Days, to good encline.

2. The News which currant until now hath past, will prove undoubtedly too true at last:
He has another took, his Vows forgot,
And you are left again to chuse your lot.

3. He is not dead, but has been very ill, And he has ftay'd thus long against his Will: Cross Winds, and Friends Entreaties too, put in To breed delay, or here long since he'd been.

4. Journeys by Land, or Voyages by Sea, Will prove but crofs and troublefome to thee: Then reft at home, contented with thy Store, And by Industry there, thou shalt get more.

5. That she's a Person chaste, must be allow'd, But she is most abominable proud:
Could she but that affected Sin refrain,
He'd happy be that could her love obtain.

6. Your Husband, in his Carriage, will appear Sober, and well accomplished, never fear: But yet some Crosses threaten your Estate, Whil'st you contend with one that is too great.

7. Of this your state, the Alteration
May prove your Ruine and Destruction:
Then be advis'd, By any means don't change;
It will prove well, tho' you may think it strange.

8. Great store of Friends, the only thing will be, That will your Thoughts take up abundantly; Yet when you see them, on your self rely, For some, your Trust in them will falisse.

9. This Thief is very miserable poor,
And what you've lost, you'll hear of it no more;
Consider it a charitable Deed,
To help him in his most extreemest need.

Therefore you must a serious Counsel call; Yet something I can say, pray look about, Or one that looks for you will find you out.

II. Two Wives thou wilt have now, I tro, And each of them will prove a very Shrow: Yet Patience to thy Life will Comfort give, And thou in fpight of Noife, contented live.

12. Unto a good old Age you will arrive, And in all worldly Riches greatly thrive: Be thankful therefore to the Powers on high, That you live happy, and in Peace shall die.

13. I'm fure, in all Adversity you'll find Strangers, than near Relations, much more kind; For it will be your most unhappy Lot, To have your Kindness by your Friends forgot.

14. The Sixth, Seventh, and Eleventh of December Are very unlucky days, you must remember: The Ninth and Tenth will more propitious be, And prosperous Undertakings you will see.

Yet nothing will come on it, I'm afraid:
They'll shut their Ears to all that you can say,
Or when you urge it, answer you with nay.

16. The Country's very hot, and don't agree With him at all, as you will shortly see: Which, to thy Comfort, hastens his Return, Then banish Grief, and cease for him to mourn.

That you fome time your Journey do delay:
The later you proceed, 'twill better the Before you go, I tell you you must

18. Thy VVife is tall and ha And one before will love thee v Be prudent, and answer her D And you shall have what Rea 19. His Is so perso Then tell I

Let fober and by fo

Though in Then take 22, Yo Which will lf one and Lagual bi 23. If You'll but But haft in

They to fo 44. Your B Require fo Twas of C

25. Now There is h Sie may fin And driven

26. An Which will But let the And when

As not for Let not De Not credit

27. You

When once log areas

indoort.

Nico law

19. His mind is taken up, and all his Care, Is to perform great Actions, that are rare: Then tell him not of Love, he'll never yield To Venus, whilf Mars rages in the Field.

1

20. If on Aft-Wednesday you do walk abroad, Use gentle Exercise upon the Road:
Let sober thoughts employ your steady Mind, And by so doing, you'll advantage find.

11

W:

TC.

ire

high,

ic.

03

re kind;

forget.

Distrib ber:

ous be,

erimate

nfay,

IJ.

igitt

M,

BOUR

er.

- And ne'er will be perswaded for to wed:

  Though in my sense you'd better have a Wife,
  Than take by sealth, what will create much strife.
- 22. You many Friends may have, but very few Which will prove very cordial unto you: If one amongst the rest, you chance to find, Regard him well, and think your Fortune kind.
- 23. If what you've lost, they be not gone too far, You'll have 'em all again just as they are:
  But hast in search, least by your long delay,
  They to some distant Land your Goods convey.
- 24. Your Dream, I think, it does, without all doubt, Require fome Sybil's Skill to find it out:
  'T was of Offence, and did much trouble breed, And your Affairs will very ill succeed.
- 25. Now Widower mark, my prophetick Words, There is but one Wife more thy Fate affords: She may fuffice, for the will prove most kind, and dying, leave thee an Estate behind.
- 26. A very long and lingring Life thou'lt have, Which will bring thee with Sorrow to thy Grave, But let thy Comfort be, Death is thy Friend, And when he strikes, gives all thy Woes an end.
- 27. Your Friend is real, then be you fo just, As not for to abuse him by distrust:
  Let not Detractors lessen your Esteem,
  Nor credit what they fain would make him seem.
- 28. In letting go a fecret, take good heed, And don't confide, but in a Friend indeed: When once the Bird is flown out of your Breaft, You are uncertain where she'll build her Nest.
- 29. On Thursday, if thou dost begin a Deed, Which lawful is, thou shalt be sure to speed:

- Jove rules that day, who with propitious Rays, Does make it happy bove most other Days.
- 30. This News, I guess, is most of it a Lie, And you will find my VVords true, by and by: 'Twas Fram'd on purpose to amuse your Mind, By one you slighted of the Female kind.
- 31. The Party's well, and will return again, And you will fee his Labour's not in vain: Be not fo coy as you were heretof re, Least again gone, you never see him more.
- 32. Thy Journey hast requires, and therefore go Thou shalt escape all Danger by the Foe: Yet at the end, strange Darts prepared be, A Lady's Eyes shall almost murder thee.
- 33. Thy VVife but for her Money thou dost wed, And thou wilt furely quickly wish her dead; But she'll hold fast, old Flesh is tough you'll find, She, for her Life-time, to you is assign'd.
- 34. He's very frequently intent upon
  True Piety, and fublime Devotion:
  He spurns the Earth, and Heaven has in view,
  And will no more of worldly thoughts pursue.
- 35. Daughter take heed, how you a Choice do make; For you have but one Husband for to take: If he prove cross, your Life will soon have end; But if he's kind, much time in Joy you'll spend.
- 36. Bend thou thy mind unto the Irish Coast, For there Dame Fortune will be friend thee most: Something's referv'd that thou did'st think was lost, But 't will not be restor'd without some Cost.
- 37. Be fure whoever doth converse with thee, For ever will oblig'd thy Friend to be:
  Thy Nature's towards to such things as VVin
  The Heart, and draw the kind Affections in-
- 38. At this thy Lofs, I fay, do not complain, For thou shalt have thy stolen Goods again: But presently you must not them expect, Yet in the Search, I pray, make no neglect.
- 39. This Dream, I think, will not thee profit much, But like a Chip in Pottage, it is fuch; But what comes next, mind thou with greater heed, And that will fignific ome thing indeed.

40. Two VVives thoul't very fairly wed, good man; But take some care to rule'em if you can: They'll headstrong be, and vex thee every Vein, And thou their Humours never shall restrain.

41. This private Bufiness you are now about, You may reveal unto some Friend, no doubt: 'Twill help and forward thee in thy Intent, Then strive not to conceal, but give it vent.

42. You need not fret your felf, nor be difinaid, For all your Debts will in good time be paid: Your Creditors will not too rigid be, But take it, as to pay you able be.

43. Do good, when some Apostle's Festival
Doth happen next on Thursday for to fall:
And you shall find that you will your VVish have,
In the next lawful thing you please to crave.

44. This News it were a shame for to deny, VVhat Truth it self doth even justifie: 'Tis so much welcome, it should not be hid, 'Twas what your Father to your Mother did.

News, 45. Your Friend is dead, ben't frighted at the Nor let much Grief your Spirits much abuse: For all must dye; this Death Comfort gives, Since though he sleeps, his worthy Name still lives.

46. Indeed, I boldly dare affirm to thee, That this your Journey it will profperous be: Both Love and Money waits you at the end, The fickle fair One now will condefcend.

47. Tho' she be great, yet do not thou despair, she loves thee well, therefore take thou no care: One does sollicit her on thy Account, and thou full soon shall to thy VVishes mount.

48. One you will have therefore take care to spin, for he'll be drunk, and then come reeling in:

The last two transports of the control of the contr

He is no Scrivener, pray now dont mistake, He lives by's Awl, though he Indentures make.

49. I pray think on no fecond Marriage Bed, You'll have no more when your first Husband's dead: For long he'll hold you, even to old Age, As true a Trojan as e'er trod the Stage.

X 50. Dame Fortune will prove to you very crofs, That in all things you'll come off by the lofs: Bargain not much, least you are often fnapt, Nor trade in Female Flesh, for fear you are clapt.

[Minute, 51. This wish of thine, thou would'st have in a But that the Stars do much oppose thee in it: It may one time or other come to pass, I know thou hast a mind to the brown Lass.

52. Agree, and reckon Expences with the Debr, You'll find he'll give thee more than thou canfiget: Take it, and be content, least you repine, To lose the whole, when you do iffue joyn.

53. No longer then, I fay, your Mind's perplex, For the's a Maid, the Glory of her Sex: Yet may be won, if you lay closer fiege, But you go not the way for to oblige.

Yes She is a teeming VVoman, and will be Deliver'd of a Boy, without all Jeopardy; VVhich will the Father glad, whoe'er he be, But prethee don't mistake, thou art not he.

55. The VVorld may guess, and think, when all is This Boy will prove to be his Father's Son: Yet on his Star another Name is writ, Than his reputed Daddy e'er knew yet.

56. All thy Life-time thou shalt be kept full fast, And thou shalt live and dye in Pain at last: For Saturn and malignant Planets joyn, Thee from Life's common Joys still to confine.

Neve,

LHE'ST

He's fet to

And then

An unfoce

But Sandy

An end of

3. TV

But thou

Croft in t

And med

4 50 E

That of this Thy Forts

Wittin fo

5. This I Sickness

He did not Lad now o

6. Stet

Bat in go Ton, 187111,

Bot Since

ervent ar

They kee

Upon a ver

Nothing of Unless a Pr

for io long

松祖也

Neve, Altrologer.

1. HE's not a real Friend; therefore beware, Left by this means you're drawn into a fnare: He's fet to tempt you to your own difgrace, And then will leave you in a woful cafe.

sideod:

00064 16:

re in a inget:

erpier,

dotte,

2. Friday will prove to you, the truth to fav. An unfuccefsful and unfort nate Day : But Sunday finiles, and on that day you'll hear An end of Trouble you so late did fear.

3. Thy term of Life, I find, will bear long Date, But thou wilt not enjoy a happy flate: Croft in thy Friends, thou wilt be much perplex'd; And much the more, because thou soon art vex'd.

4. So modest now are thy Desires in this, That of this very Wish thou shalt not miss; Thy Fortune figns it, and thou shalt possels, Within few days, thy wished happiness.

5. This Person, who to travel now is gone, if Sickness don't prevent him, hastens home: He did not well confider when he went, And now of tedious Journeys does repent.

6. She has the Reputation of a Maid, But in good truth, she is a very Jade:
Tom, Will, and Dick have nibbled at her Bait, But Simon boldly entred her Trap gate.

7. The mutual Love of this same Pair, will be Fervent and real, more than formerly; They knew not then, fo well, what Joys await Upon a vertuous, loving Marriage-flate.

8. Purfue thy Journey now with merry cheer, Nothing of danger thou hast need to fear; Unless a Frown or two beat the end, For folong flaying from your real Friend.

Should by a Female be interpreted: She'll show you what by th' haking Sheets is meant, And all the rest your Dream did represent.

10. Their Bodies are o'er-heated, so that they Will prove unfruitful, and unfit for play, Till Phyfick is apply'd, which will reftore Their nat'ral vigour, as 'twas heretofore.

11. To Kindred and Acquaintance you will be Most welcome, and live with them happily: They mourn'd your absence, and will be o'er-joy'd To fee you fafe, whom they once thought deftro'yd

12. Of Thieves, I pray, why are you so afraid, Your things they are not loft, but are miffaid: You are forgetful often in this kind, And where you place things, cannot call to mind.

13. He that in thy great mifery and woe Appear'd to be thy Friend, is truly fo: Much more's behind than what he yet has done, For thou shalt be his dear, adopted Son.

14. Of all Days in the Week, you will, or may Indeed prove prosp'rous on a Satarday: Then try your Fortune more on that than any, And your Successes will be very many.

15. I tell thee plainly, He is not thy Friend, But he will fee his Folly in the end, And make account of you as you deferve; You shall command, and not be bound to serve.

16. The Seventh, Fifteenth, and Twentieth of May, Is bad for doing Work, and making Hay: [good But the Fourteenth, Sixteenth, and Nineteenth are For Purging Distempers, and Letting of Blood.

17. To a Confumption thou art much inclin'd, The which will end thy Days, and vex thy mind : Then be not peevin, that encreases it, But fir about, and you more days will get.

9. You Dream, which you have now but newly read, 18. Now when thy present Wish thou hast enjoy'd, With too much of it thou wilt foon be cloy'd, And flight the fair One, which will make her run Into some Other's Arms, to be well done.

- 19. He's very well belov'd where-e'er he goes, And all appear his Friends, but none his Foes: Yet 'twill not last; black Envy will step in, And fet against him his most nearest Kin.
- 20. By her light humour, and frisking about, She loft her Mudenhead, without all doubt: In a mad Frollick it was flung away, And vainly the for it again do's pray.
  - 21. To think this Person's Love for to obtain, Without great Circumspection, is but vain: She's very shye and cautious; for her aim Is at Ambition, more than Love's soft stame.
- 22. This Journey, I perceive, will be by thee Performed without danger, happily:
  You'll meet a Friend in it, you fancy'd dead,
  And fo return without your Maidenhead.
  - 23. If in thy Morphean Dream thy Love is kind, A fure Rule 'tis, All's well, I plainly find: But if cross-grain'd and low'ring he do prove, Regard him not, for he will never love.
  - 24. This Boy doth Fancy, and her Mind enflave, Which makes her long for things she cannot have: The season don't afford what you desire; Fond Woman, Ccase it, or you will expire.
  - 25. I find thou wilt upon one Woman doat, And marry her, though the's notworth a Groat: Love blind in thee will prove; for here, 'tis plain, Thou lov'st for neither Beauty, Wit, nor Gain.
- As in the World was ever known or feen:
  Howe'er, tho' Fortune's hard, it must be born,
  The Women sometimes, ought to wear the Horn.
  - 27. Of Husbands two thou may'st affored be, So that the first will never bury thee: Thou with the next, likewise shall tug full hard, Yet from a third the Fates thee quite have barr'd.
  - 28. You to your comfort now may plainly see, You'll live contented, and most happily: The time is come you long did Wish, and now Dame Fortune smooths the wrinkle on her Brow.
  - 29. In mifery he's one will never leave thee, when all thy other Friends, perhaps, deceive thee:

- Rely upon it, but beware to fall; If you can fland, for help you need not call.
- 30. The Sixth and Seventh of the Month September, Were never lucky, I do well remember: The Ninth and Nineteenth more propitious are, And on those days your labour well shall fare.

40. It Whether

Ma Bir

41.Tho

Keep age

To Old A

Andall yo

The Thic

One that Yetwate

43.0

And their Then fo b

Ordier

44- I

There's

And the ]

45.Thank

And thin

Make me

Thy Gri

You fafe

Til who

Andred

And for

Toon le

You fice

That his

- 31. Thou wilt, by a hot Fever's burning rage, Die in the very middle of thineage; If Temp'rateness prevent not the Decree, Or God, by whom the Fates fill govern'd be.
- 32. By Calculation, I must tell to thee, What shou dost wish for, it will never be: Then moderate thy large Desires, and try More humble ways, and you will gain thereby.
- 33.He now doth keep his Bed, but hopes, e're long, His health for to recover, and grow firong: Then he his Suit again will firait rene v, And till heget thy love, the fame purfue.
- And of a hairy Man the's yet afraid:
  But I dare fay the'll venture t'other bout,
  And that the longs to play at In-and-Out.
- 35. You do but trifle out your time in vain, In feeking love, which you will ne'er obtain: Cast Care away then, and seek out another, She learn'd this peevish proudness of her Mother.
- 36. From your Relations don't expect to find Help or Affiffance, for they'll prove unkind: You disoblige them, and their hate is such, They think, whate'er you have, it is too much.
- 37. This I furmize, that in thy greatest need, In getting of the better, thou shalt speed: Yet trust not all that's told you, but provide What e'er you can, against your Cause is try'd.
- 38. The Story's true enough, for what has past, Yer all, I think, will come to nought at last:
  They won't agree; or if they shou'd do so,
  Their Parents in their way the Cross-Bar throw.
- 39. Discover not too much, to some, your mind, For much in juriousness in it you'll find: Close Tongues wise Heads, the Proverb saith, doth make: Then that Advice, in this, for once, pray take.

40. TP

whether this Child's legitimate, or no:
Its peering Looks fay it was got at home;
Yet a Bird fings, It from the City come.

theries.

sate,

PE HOR

phil,

in:

t, other.

to fod

d:

od.

need,

de

ny'd. has pain h:

throw.

OF ESTA

the ste

EC.

- 41. Thou wilt encrease in Wealth, at latter end, Keep a good House, be merry with thy Friend: To Old Age live, your Children's Children see, And all your life-time be from trouble free.
- 42. To find him out, you must do what you can; The Thies's a stender, proper, blink-ey'd Man: One that did use the House, and knew its ways, Yet watch'd for this Advantage many days.
- 43. One Wife is all that thou art like to marry, And the intends till death with thee to tarry: Then so behave thy self to live in love, Or else your life will much unhappy prove.
- 44. I think this Journey will go well with thee, As thy own Heart could wish it for to be: There's no Star that forbids it, as we find, And she you go for, Venus will make kind.
- 45. Thanks to those, Stars who bless thee all thy life? And thine forth happiness in a vertuous Wife: Make much of her; for if the chance to die, Thy Grief will make thee in thy Grave soonlye.
- 46. Make quick dispatch, bury the first, and then You safely may ask counsel once agen:
  Till when, let this suffice, you shall have two,
  And each will find more work than you can do.
- 47. Many Dreams are but Fables, as 'tis faid; And sometimes in a Dream Truth is bewray'd: Thou loudly talkest in thy sleep, whereby You sleeping, did your waking Thoughts decry.
- 48. He's one of fuch ill Principles, and loofe, That his Religion he has fill to chuse:

- He cries up Piety, but yet has none; 'Tis all Hypocrine which he has shown.
- 49. Two Girls she'll have, to quit all former scores; And when they're ripe, they will be errant Whores: The Father's stamp, and of the Mother's breed, As those that wed them in their Actions read.
- 50. Fair his Pretence of Kindness is, I know, But his Intentions are not truly so:
  Take thou no notice, but give little trust,
  For to your Interest he will ne'er be just.
- And thou thereby wilt reap great happiness:

  Mars rules the day, and to brave Souls give fire,

  That do's the love of Arts and Arms inspire.
- 52. When ever thou dost walk abroad, beware Of Thunder, Lightning, Blass, and poyson'd Air: Thy Planet threatens thee some sudden death, By such-like ruine to expel thy breath.
- 53. Go wish again! What ail'st thou, filly Ass, To wish for that will never come to pass? Thy Aim's too high; she will not stoop to thee; With a more equal Lot contented be.
- 54. He said, Farewell! But thought he should not die; For he did not think Death had been so nigh: More you had heard else of his melting Mind, And his departing breath would have been kind.
- So there is never Fire without fome Smoke: She will not Prove, tho' she has done the Feat, The Fright prevented its being done compleat.
- 56. So firong a Fire of Love, fo long a Blast, Will surely melt the hardest Heart at last:
  Ah! No: She, like the Greenland Frost, do's hold, Deriding the Sun-Beams with conquiring Cold.

Perkins,

Perkins, Attrologer.

I. Y O U may depend on him to your life's end, For he's a faithful and a hearty Friend: Be not unwife then to reject his Care, Leaft flighting that, you fall into a Snare.

2. This Suit if you commence, you'll lofe the day, And then you will have Costs and Charge to pay: Your Witness that you trust to, won't appear, He is brib'd off; then to proceed forbear.

- 3. If the a Maid does now continue fill,
  I'm fure on't that 'tis fore against her Will:
  She'll marry thee, in her thou'lt Comfort find,
  Were more intended, none could be more kind.
- 4. Friend, to be brief, and end all Strife,
  Thou must and shalt have but one Wife:

  [fet,
  Who'll hold thee tack, your Nosetoth' Grind stone
  Till you confes 'Twas good ye'd never met.
- 5. No faithful Friends will flick to thee, but one, And that will prove to be thine only Son: Whom thou unkindly on hard Fortune hurl'd, To fruggle long time with an adverse World.
- 6. All Bufiness is well carried, and you see,
  As yet there has been no Discovery:
  Be close in what you do, and it will thrive.
  You'll have your Wish, and will your Foes survive.
- 7. Journeys by Land, and Voyages by Sea, Will infignificantly prove to thee: Stay then in Town, or in a Country Farm, Take thy Abode, and keep thy felf from Harm.
- 8. Thy Wife's a Scold, therefore live near fome whereon there hangs a frong made Ducking fool:
  The fear of that may chance to charm her Tongue,
  You must ever hear her barth tun'd Song.
- 9. With Child the sof a Daughter, who will be A witty Girl, and pleafant Company:
  See that her Education suit her Mind,
  And you can't with more Comfort than you'll find.

- 10. If within forty Miles an honest VVoman be, Or else in London Town, I'll iwear'tis she: You say 'tis strange to doubt of many there; No, not so strange, an honest VVoman's rare.
- It must be handl'd gentle, and with Care:
  For over hot, or over cold it seems,
  Do ruine it with their too serce Extreams.
- [dispute, 12. All your whole Life you'll spend without Upon a tedious, tiresome Chancery-Suit: Unless you do petition one great Man, V Vhom Friends advis'd you to, when it began.
- 13. To be in Love will hardly prove your Fate, You'll be more happy, and more fortunate:
  Despite the Cares and Fears poor Lovers know, And to Renown by Martial Glory grow.
- 14. In former time, he hath been a better Friend To you, than now, whate'er he does pretend: Something you did that croft him in his VVill, Amend but that, and he'll be cordial fill.
- 15. To a good old Age you'd live, & then must die, To live for evermore eternally: But for your Children, in your Life take care, Or when you are dead, full hard will be their Fare.
- 16.Let not your Mind with fruitless hopes be fed?
  For your Desires will ail be frustrated:
  There's one who has a greater Interest made,
  And you, by those you trusted, are betray'd.
- 17. This News is furely true, and so you'll find;
  But those that spread it are not very kind:
  It yet a while had been far better spar'd,
  Since you by its delay had better far'd.
- 18. Unlucky is the Sixth day of ottober, Therefore take care you keep your felf right fober a For if you then a Bargain make, expect To find in it to your Lofs, some Desect.

19. The

19. I

lwould to if you I will be

21. Y

Thy Jour

Nor tell

22. ]

Thy WY

DECTO

Lozz Cz

TVII DE

Inicisio Acr Man

know t

by Hus

K.Form

rafa to t

lby Ric

26. F

tt l'd a

Writ

and they b

27. To

Will gai

DO, ALLO

28. Th ace thou that d

the we

- 19. The Powers Divine, can never to you fend, One that's more confant, and a truer Friend:
  Make much of fuch kind Fortune, least you see
  This overslipt, the like will never be.
- 20. Except Necessity doth say you must,

  I would not have you any one to trust:

  For if your Secret's in a double Breast,

  'T will be betray'd, and much disturb your Rest.

vaan be,

322

STOR,

r Priend

VIII,

mardie,

er Fare,

sheled

de

Hand;

- 21. VVhen the Sun doth arife at fix, then take Thy Journey, which thou wilt most pleasant make: But speed withal, least in thy way thou art stay'd, Nor tell your setting out, least ye're way-laid.
- 22. If thou doft prove a Husband, good, or ill, Thy VVife, I know, will dote upon thee fill: However, if you mind not the main hit, Your Credit it will fail, and you'll be bit.
- [Name, 23. V Vith Child she's of a Daughter, whose bad VVill much expose her Parentsunto Shame: Unless in time she has her VVish, and then, Her Marriage will excuse her Play with Men.
- 24. Alack aday! poor little harmless Chit,
  I know thy Father got thee every bit:
  But that is nothing, those that thou dost bear,
  Thy Husband shall come in but for his Share.
- 25. For many Friends, I think thou need'st not care, Such precious Jewels not so plenty are:
  Trust to thy own Industry, and thrive,
  Thy Riches shall encrease, for oft thou'lt VVive.
- 26. For thee the Juries Verdict will be found, Yet I'd advise thee, hasten to compound: A VVrit of Errour will full soon be brought, And thy Advantage then will come to naught.
- 27. To gain your Maiden head, he that does trial Will quickly find he's in a gross Mistake: For long ago the Fondling took its Flight, Tho' wrong you lost it, it is gone outright.
- 28. The Pity's great, thou art so prone to Vice, Since thou art so fully bent to marry twice: He that does wed thee, does not know his Doom, Or he would ne'er into thy Quarter come.
- 29. He's very firm, and does your Mind fulfil, Therefore when e'er you fee him, prize him still:

- He'll do the Business that you do expect, Though in the next you will find much Neglect.
- 30. Enquire no more, I say, of this Affair, For to the other VVorld he did repair: Your strange Unkindness sent him to his Grave, And if you'd now be kind, you can't him have:
- 31. Indeed you had as good let it alone,
  As for to firive in vain for what is gone:
  'Twill not recover'd be, then feek no more
  For what is loft, but for another frore.
- 32. I would advise thee for to sleep again, For hitherto thy Dream is all but vain, Some further Light you may procure thereby Vyhich its imperfect Knowledge will supply.
- Therefore chear up, 'twill furely come to pass.'
  One will be good, for t'other I'll not iwear.
  Yet both will rub your Belly where there's Hair-
- 34. A Man he's of a thousand, and by all Held in effect to be most rational:
  But if I may advise, another chuse,
  VVhose lufty Vigour will more Joys infuse.
- gand Cloth,

  35. You'll never want good Meat, good Drink,
  But more you'd have, if you wou'd cast off Sloth:
  A Fortune waits you, and your sluggish Ease
  Vill ne'er her sprightly Humour aptly please,
- 36. This present changing of thy State will be Gainful and advantagious unto thee:
  It long was promis'd, but thy dull delay Remov'd the time, and kept it far away.
- 37. V When that thou hast expir'd thy Life in Love.
  Thou'lt be, by Angels, carry'd to Heaven above;
  Too late the shall repent, who gave thee Death,
  And wish she now could stay thy slying Breath.
- 38. Do thou thy passionate Desires give o're, And let those VVishes trouble thee no more: She will not have thee, her Heart she has pledg'd. To one who sed the Bird before 'twas sledg'd.
- 39. These Lovers, if they find their Hearts are They'll foon comply, and heal the outward wound: "Twas an odd Frollick that they late did do, And helpt him much in his Design to wooe.

- 40. Dear Friend, I fay, such will thy Fortune be, That thy best Friends will all make use of thee: They helps thee once, pray sight them not, least need Once more o'ercomes thee, and thou want indeed.
- 41. She is no Maid; but yet the wonders more, How I thou'd know what the had loft before: I'll not reveal it, you may guess the rest, And he that ne'er more trys her will be blest.
  - 42. Thou shalt have one, but never any more; But she will better be than half a score: She'll mend thy broken Fortune, and restore, What thy rash Folly had run out before.
  - 43. Upon Reports, sometimes strange Doubts ensue, Whether the thing that's spoke be false or true: selieve not suddenly, least ye're deceiv'd, The lame Post still brings Truth, and is believ'd.
  - 44. Take special care upon thy self this day, For some ill News approaches, I dare say: Though you may scruple what I now relate, In it there's sudden Harm design'd by Fate.
  - 45. Trust not this she Friend, tho' you know her, No farther than thou can'st well throw her: Least when you do, her Promises prove vain, And thou too late dost find she did but seign.
  - 46. Your Journey happily shall finish'd be, According to your Mind in each degree: Success is promis'd, then with Joy proceed, The more you haste, the better you will speed.
- 47. Thy Wife, she has an eager Mind to see, Whether thou wilt to her yet constant be: She'll try thee many ways, then cautious be, Or you strange Fire-works in your House will see.
  - 48. I find 'twill be a sprightly Boy, one which will thrive, and be in time extreamly rich:

to one was folding bed colors tweededs.

cop Thefe Lovers, thiney find their Means are

HERE DAY

They'll foon comply, and heal the outward wound Twas an old trolling case our late outlo, And neigh also prochan in Dango to wook

And her think V villes trouble these maner

- He that does own him, knows not well his Father, But by Similitude, you that may gather.
- 49. If this Child's Mother had not honest been, Some Wag or other had stept in between: But in the Dark she did so cautious prove, She would not trust, till she knew 'twas her Love
- 50. None can expect success in such a Cause, When they commit Offence against the Laws: Submission then can only bring you off, For by the Rigour you'll be made a Scoff.
- 51. Of thy Friend's Kindness farther tryal make, Before that all thy Credit lies at Stake: Least when your need requires their present Aid, Their shews of Friendship vanish like a Shade.
- 52. Get thou but an Estate that will maintain her, And then thou shalt be sure for to regain her: She will go brave, or else she will not wed, She has been brought up costly, and high sed.
- 53. There is but one good Friend, you think not on, Will furely help you, e'er your Glass is run: He has advited you often to your Good, Whilst you thought him your Foe, & all withstood.
- 54. There is not one in twenty can be found, A Maid, 10 every way compleat and found: Beauty and Wit adorn her, nay befide, She has liv'd twenty years and ne'er was try'd.
- 55. One you will have, shall be of Temper mild, And you must bury her of the first Child: You single then wont be consent to live, But get a Shrew that will your Heart off grieve.
- 76. If you but fee your Counsel well, I'm sure, All things will run most even, and most pure:
  Neglect will ruine all you undertake,
  And tho' your Cause is good, you'll nothing make.

28. I be Pite' great, thou are to prose to Vice.

Pond, does not know any Doom,

I. CHE

For when

Wheniti

2. Ikt

That you

Tho' you

Then pra

And thou

Let it be

That to t

4. Thi

But that i Then kee If not a F

Of lying

Twill Go

6. Th

Her dear

However See only

T. AC

The uner

Yet it's ca Not only

8. ATT

Be well e

Time will And you

9. The

More than fear made let much o

Pond,

Altrologer,

1. CHange not, for 'tis a very uneafic Life, Either to have a Husband, or a Wife: For where there is averfences to the thing, When it is had, it can no Pleasure bring.

ather,

Line

make,

t Aid,

de,

T:

not on,

history.

end,

y'd.

Tild,

fort,

Same.

40. Inches

2. I know such is your Happiness, and Fate, That you'll enjoy a plentiful Estate: Tho' you have pinch'd, you shall no more have scant, Then pray remember them that are in want.

3. Dear Child, wish thou but any thing in reason, And thou shalt soon obtain it in due season: Let it be lawful, and the Stars decree, That to thy very Wish the thing shall be.

4. That this is true, I think it may be fo, But that is more however, than they know: Then keep it close, if Happiness you seek, If not a Formight, yet at least a Week.

Of lying much upon her nether Side:
'Twill do as well as it had been a Boy,
And is its Father's Cock, and Mother's Joy.

6. The Mother does protest this Child to be, Her dearch Husband's lawful Progeny: However 'twas got in the Dark, and so, She only swears as far as she does know.

7. A curs'd and fruitless Jealousie will prove, The utter Rune of this Person's Love: Yet it's cauteless, for he that's suspected, Not only does neglect, but is neglected.

8. All right thou wilt have done to thee, therefore Be well content, and do not ask no more: Time will bring forth whatever you defire, And you shall to your Wishes soon aspire.

9. They were compell'd for to confess at large, More than e'er could be laid unto their Charge: Fear made them something say they never knew, Yet most of the Confessions does prove true:

10. To change, there may be pleasure in the thing, But it can no Advantage to you bring:
You run a Hazard, therefore, I say, stay
Where now you are, for it is your best way.

On you, that you will have a happy End:
And in the mean while, fee your Children rife,
To that degree, you'll them true Bleffings prize.

12. Diffemble greatly, and you shall acquire, That very thing which you so much desire: Nothing in this case else will do the Trick, Tho' it is base, yet take it in the Nick.

13. Bad News, I know, does fly with nimble But what is good, fome flowly home do bring: This swift News came but for a bad Intent, Yet the next expect fome Good is meant.

14. It is a lufty Boy, as I do think,
Who, when he's old, will tipple down frong Drink;
His Father's Steps he'll gradually purfue,
And, as himfelf, be at the Pitcher true.

15. This Child is not a Bastard, I dare say, For he was got in a just lawful way:
Tho' some suspens the Mother, we do know,
By Rules of Art, that it is nothing so.

16. Love on, I say, at length, in spight of Fate, Kindness it self will come instead of Hate; No one shall hinder what you do Design, Your Hearts shall first, & then your Hands shall joyn.

17. You'll have, & therefore take no farther care, A pleasant Journey, and the V Veather fair ; And meet with many Frolicks in the way, Then fet about, and make you no delay.

18. It was a Woman did committhis Theft, Who had not time to carry what was left: If quick purfu'd, you may recover all, Tracking her by fome things she will let fall.

2

- 19. The fifteenth and the twentieth days of July, No golden Mines does Fortune promife you, Are very unlucky days, I tell thee truly : But Twenty five, and Twenty nine will be More happy and propitions Days to thee.
- 20. I fay, by changing often Ground, thou may it, Dwindle and melt away all that thou haft : Then keep your Ground, and be not apt to roam, 4 cast you at last are left without a Home.
- 21. Thou haft a Friend, on whose Cheek is a Mole, Who with him thou may'ft trust thy very Soul : He'll faithful be, tho' thy Life lye at flake, And for no gain the least Discovery make.
- 22. Your Wife, at meals, will be so tharply set, That our of House and Home, the will you eat: If you, what Dainties the requires, provide, Yet moderate be, tho' the does brawl and chide.
- 23. This present Year, as we by Art divine, Will prove fuccessful both in Corn and Wine : Great Plenty flocks the Field, but few we find That for fuch Bounties bear a thankful Mind.
- 24. Ben't troubled, for thy Life will be but short, And thou mayst thank thy own dark Vices for't: Had you liv'd temperately, more days ye'd got, Before the Definies your Thread had cut.
- 25. Thonart, I must confess, of Nature sweet, Whereby with many Priends thou'rt fore to meet :-Yet credit not all that to this pretend, For one to do you harm will feem a Friend.
- 26. This Petulant, but wanton Female Elf, Hath found a way out to deflour her felf:
  Her Parents, for it, let her flay too long,
  Swee every Mouth, we know, must have a Tongue.
- 27. My Advice is, trouble not thy felf at all, Por nought that's good can from thy Dream befall: The Bad the kinder Pates avert from thee, Then pray to God, and fill all well shall be.
- 28. An errant Scold, your first, I jadge will be, A fecond too, will be as bad as fhe : Thy Sins have brought this Plague on thee, I fear, To scape hereafter, thou are punished here.
- 29. If you intend a married Life to lead, Pains you must take, and work hard for your Bread :

- Nor more than what by Labour does accrue.
- 30. Rife early, and thy Bufiness closely mind, And that's the way to thrive, you foon will find : Sloth moneyles remains, while Diligence Do's fill our Coffers with good flore of Pence.

Whate're

Latere

Be DON D

41.Thy

His Frien

Than the

I lay,

42.10

VVIII bar

VVION

Your Dr

43. Ch

That is

Get Will

Live lap

44. In

And thos

They will

And have

But fregs

VViile

46. Yo

Both Ba

And mak

For what

Yet be no

The mea

48 Th

But yet t

- 31. I know thy Humour, for thy Pride is fuch, That thou wilt have thy With, though it be much : But it may turn to Pain at laft, for know, Mistortune does to haughty Withes grow.
- 32. I pray, why fo inquisitive are you? Only in hopes that you would have it true: But 'tis not fo, then pry no more into it, For certainly your Wish will never do it.
- 33. A Boy fire'll have, and he will lufty prove, But when he comes to age, mall dye for Love: O! keep him from the hot Bazilisk's Eyes, From whence the deadly pointed Ruine flies.
- X 34. This Child must have a Father, I am sure, And he that got it is a Man demure: Precise, and seeming Bathful, but delights Much in the Smock; is firong in Venus's Pights.
- 35. In fomethort time, 'twill be again your turn, More fierce and furious in Love's Flames to burn : If that you fly not her bewitching Charms, Who conquer more than thy victorious Arms.
- 36. In this your Cause, you Money want, or Wit, Elfe, I do think, you'd better manage it : But now it comes into my Head again, Your Babling spoils it, that I tell you plain.
- 7. You are open unto those you think are Friends, Which, to speak truth, no love to you pretends: Or if they do, 'tis but to shadow oe'r, A bad Defign, that it may hurt you more.
- 38. Go now upon your Journey, do not fear, The Air is remperate, and the V Veather clear : Gay Thoughts attend you, and may she be kind, (Nay, that the will) whom you go now to find : For loft.
- 39. These things, now whether they were stole Bid farewel to 'em, to your proper Coft: No hopes remain to fee them any more, You fee what's got by picking up a VV----reum

40. Tuesday 9

40. Tuefday's a day that thou wilt prosper in, Whate're it is, thou dost that day begin: Let Love or Business, or whate'er you do, Be now begun, and it will prost you.

41. Thy Friend, whatever may by thee be deem d, His Friendship ought to be much more esteem'd; Than that low Price at which thou did's it rate, I say, in him, ye're very fortunate.

ich,

mich:

$3, burn:

3

W Willy

nos,

EBOS:

feat,

ezr:

ind: or lot

re fale

12.

101

42. Thy VVife, altho' her foolish Husband rants, VVill have her choice of several brisk Gallants: VVho will give Coin for Pleasure, then pursue Your Drinking, and let her her Business do.

43. Change if thou wilt, and take thy Curse, That is, pass for a Fool, was chang'd at Nurse. Get some more wise to beg thee, and you may Live happier, than thus fool your V Vealthraway.

And thou shalt not be vexed any more: They will relent that are thy greatest Foes, And have Compassion on thy many Woes.

45. Our Mother Earth, this year will barren be, In spight of our old Father, Husbandry:
But frugal Persons have laid up in flore,
V Vhilest he that's idle begs from Door to Door.

46. Your Fortune will be good, pray take my And you'll epjoy what Heaven doth afford:

Both Earth and Heaven conspire to favour you, And make all prosper your hand is put to

47. Thy Fears and Jealoufies, they are in vair, For what thou doft defire thou shalt obtain:
Yet be not too regardless, but well mind
The means by which you this advantage find.

48. This same report is very true, I find, But yet there's better News remains behind:

12 To call the Chile a Balante, is not divi-

Expect it suddenly, and then prepare To leave the Town, and take the Country Air.

× 49. 'Twill be a Boy, her Belly lies fo round, And the libe brought to bed, born fafe and found: But yet, I fear, the 'll no more Children have, she'll grow too fat, fo mightily the 'll feed.

And he will ger more Children if he can; But if he fail, he shall not want for Heirs, For one will get them for his VVice by Pairs.

g1. Indeed I know the Marriage will go on, Before that forty days is come and gone: Tho' they fome Croffes e'er they are wed will find, But yet they'll to each other full be kind.

52. Thy Canfe, I'm fure, the Law will justifie, Although thy Enemy the Truth deny: He will be trapt by Questions unexpected, And all his close Contrivances detected.

53. The Party's false, and is not fit to trust,
They will discover that which is not just:
Then cast him, and to thy self conceal
V Vhat thou to him about wast to reveal.

54. Take heed in this thy Journey, for a Curfe, I foresee, on thy Body and thy Purse:
Thieses lye in ambush for thy Coin, beside,
Not so content, they'll cudgel well thy Hide.

May get your things again, e'er your aware:
"Make not much norfe about it, least you miss,
For they ne'er think you miss them that did this.

56. Be careful now, and mark well what I fay, For you will have no special Luck this day: If that you game, your Money will be loft, If buy and sell, you will in both be croft.

Ramsey,

pri tis in, to speak the truth, and shome the Denil is a what can i, help the open you have, a reconstruction of the can indeed the care pouls.

2 O the categories of the care, and the short water, with house you have core, and the class water, we true to the category the true and the commence.

3 The category the true and the commence.

Ramsey,

1. ALL you can do, you'll find it but in vain;
For your Defires you never will obtain:
Leave off in time, and spend not thus your Treasure,
For that which never will produce you pleasure.

2. He's very ill, but hopes he may recover, When once the heat of this his Fever's over: Twas took from Love; and you'll fay that is much; Nay, more than that, it burnt at the first touch.

3. This Thief has reddish Beard, and slaven Hair, And of Complexion he is somewhat fair; Tall of his stature, with a spark'ling Eye, And now he lurks within some house hard by.

4. This Brat hath many Fathers, yet not known, Among fo many, which is the true one:
They all did help, and he was got by these,
As a whole Parish's Milk makes Chadder Cheese.

s. A very dry and frosty Janivere,
Is like to make a very pleasant Year:
Brik Northern Blasts at this time, doth foretell,
Both Spring and Autumn will prove very well.

6. You by fome Trade will add unto your flore, And fill your Trunks with white and yellow Ore: Beware it be not ill got; for if fo, Expect, by the fame way it came, 'twill go."

7. What you do now defire most earnessly.
The Stars, in kindness, doth to thee deny:
For if you gain it, it will you annoy;
And when 'tis gain'd, will all your peace destroy.

8. This Alteration will your state impair, Therefore it much concerns you to beware: Consider well what you are now about, Less it, to your misfortune, do come out.

9. With difficulty, Friendship you'll obtain; But for their real Love, you'll never gain: Something obstructs the Current of their Love, Or they, e're this, more kind to thee will prove.

Altrologer:

10. To tell you true, I do not like your Caufe, Therefore blame not the Lawyer nor the Laws: A fudden heat put you upon this thing, Which in the end will much dif-profit bring.

Like Flowers gather'd, they do quickly Fade; Yet give no caufe that fuch again may rife, Lea you, in giving it, do feem unwife.

X 12. If thou could'st now but be a Maid agen, Before you're married, you'd not lye with Men: Yet wed a Novice, and he'll not perceive The slip you made; then for it never grieve.

r3. Unless the Bus ness you do soon dispatch, A greater Fortune will break off the Match: Another lays the Siege, who will obtain, For she will base the Man that brings most Gain.

74. Something doth threaten now thy life at last, Therefore be vigilant, till the danger's past: Remain at home, and nothing can thee harm; Or if thou walk'st abroast, thy felf well arm.

15. Before a Fortnight's time doth full expire, You shall accomplish all your whole Desire, If you trust Priends that faithfully will prove; But in Foes hands, naught to thy good will move.

16. You'll shortly find the Thief with care and cost, But you will ne'er recover what is lost;
Tis made away into so many hands,
As in a Minute-Glass you may count Sands.

† 17. To call the Child a Bastard, is not civil;
But tis so, to speak the truth, and shame the Devil:
But what can it help? For ought you know,
Your Mother might take care to make you so.

18. The deadly Murrain, Mildew, Rot, and Blaft, It will both Grafs, and Corn, and Cattle waste; Yet timely Prayer may turn away the hand Of the Destroyer, who do's their command.

You'd be Then res Twill w

Pet you o Leaft who

As thousa You ment And now

22. T Therefore There's

We often Yet for a Dotum to 24 If And with

23. M

Therefore 25. In Much of Yet that And you

16.5wee

No Eun

Bit this I In youth 17:Your The Rain

How made 28, You have the second seco

The time and Made ag. Go Will force

I find

- As thou may'ft now enjoy what thou doft hope: You marr'd the Bufiness, going the wrong way, And now from it you're ever like to flay.
- 20. Kind Providence, it may in time, no doubt, Bring well to pass, the thing you wish about:
  Yet you must careful be to help it on,
  Least when you think it near, 'T will be far gone.
- 21. If Idleness did not possess your Mind, You'd be most fortunate of humane kind: Then rouze at last, and try what you can do, Twill work almost alone, your hand put too.

Capit

WS:

mide,

Men:

ib,

1

施 atla,

wite,

19

wie.

nd coâ,

Denl:

Ì,

Blatt

Si,

In

- 22. This Alteration will prove for the best,
  Therefore conclude to set your Heart at rest:
  Twas well twas done, or in a little space,
  There's many a Man had pity'd your sad Case.

  [breeds,
- 23. Much Friends, like rotten Houses Charges We often must repair 'em in their Needs: Yet for all that, the things done in this kind, Doturn to profit, as we often find.
- 24. If you have Money, you may have good Law, And without that, you may your Nails go knaw: No Forma Pauperis will do the Deed, Therefore, unless ye are Money, don't proceed.
- 25. In this I'm fure you may your felf perfuade, Much of it's very true, which now is faid: Yet that that's false the truth will oversway, And you, against your Right, may loose the Day.
- 26. Sweet-heart, how many Maiden heads hast thou? I say, if e'er a one, 'Tis well enough: But this I doubt, methought I heard the Squeak, In yonder Barn, I think it was last Week.
- 27. Your Paffion's great, which in the end will prove The Ruine and Defiruction of your Love: If you not moderate it, thus to show How much you doat, will make her prouder grow.
- 28. You think on fuch a precious thing, which yet Is much impossible for you to get:
  The time's not come, that you are to posses,
  And Master be of such a Happines.
- 29. Go on and prosper now, for your design Will surely come to pass, as I divine:

- Ben't mealy mouth'd, but boldly press your Suit, And you will gain the Lass without dispute.
- 30. Your Friend is gone, and bid the world adieu, But on his Death-bed, he remembred you, And spoke such tender things as made me weep, And then in Death's cold Arms he fell asleep.
- 31. Come, I'll deal truly with you, and be plain; You'll hardly ever get these things again:
  And sure I am, those that took them away,
  Were seased at your House the other day.
- And if I do guess right, I do not miss:

  Twas a good Cast, that made a pretty Child,
  And in the very Bout the Mother smill'd.
- Their Care will be in vain, and all their Skill:
  Something forbids their Art and Industry,
  Perhaps the Summer Season's over-dry.
- 34. Thy Secrets to this Party thou may it trust, For I am sure he is both true and just: He has much kindness for thee, and will prove, By his much Diligence, his Stock of Love.
- 35. Friday will be to you, I plainly fay, A very happy, and a prosperous Day:

  Venus does rule, and it you'd Courtship make, A more propitious day you cannot take:
- Than this young Maiden thou hast now embrac'd. Had'st thou but wit, thou wou'dst not doubt, for she Even in the very Act, us'd Modesty.
- 37. Take care, in this your Journey, to prevent Dangers which may fall out by accident:
  Look on both fides, in every narrow Road,
  Leaft Thieves may in the Thickets make abode.
- 38. A very pretty Dream indeed it was, And will affuredly now come to pass:
  And as it tickl'd you in a Fancy, for You in reality the like shall know.
- 39. Fate has allotted thee to have three Wives. Which shall with thee lead very happy Lives: The last shall put thee in a decent Grave, And after thee, two Husbands more shall have.

40. Escape thou halt in time, from fear or Pain, And to thy former Wealth return again; But many Hardinips you must undergo, Before Dame Fortune does that Favour show.

41. With much intemperate Drinking, I foretell, Dropfies will cause thy Belly for to swell; And more Distempers rife, if you go on In your Debauch, and fo your Thread's foon fpun.

42. Spare in thy Youth, to lay up when th'art old, To keep thee free from Hunger, and from Cold, Leaft then you do repent how profligate You once have been, hat brought on your hard Fate.

43. Five to your share you'll have, with much And after that, 'tis time, no more should wooe; Yet you will nigling be, at last be bit, By vainly courting one who has much VVit.

44. A retir'd Life with you cannot agree, For you do fancy much Society; Which you to Lewdness will at last intice, And ruine you by profecuting Vice.

45. I fay, defire not Priends of high degree, For they may much neglect, and ruine thee; They'll not regard thy Need, nor lend an Ear, To what thou fay's, as one beneath their Care.

Agree betimes, before it is too fate, So wilt thou gain all Peoples Love, not Hate: For by delay, this Bufine's will grow worfe, Nay, Brain thy Reputation, and thy Purfe.

This News I'll not averr, except I knew By fome good Circumftances, it was true; You may suspect the truth, for it does carry Something of likelihood, that she will marry.

2 48. Your Maiden head did fly away at night, And le you prov'd your felf a Housewife light; 'I was in a laughing Fit you gave it up, Unto the Man last week which lay atop.

49. Thy Lover expects nothing but his due, And when you can love him, then he'll love you; Too fickle hitherto you do appear, I D M. And he conceives in all you fay you jear.

50. He's gone, where all must follow him at last; And answer likewise for their actions past; He lov'd you well, pray God 'tisnot your Guilt, That unexpectedly his Blood was spilt.

51. Leave off your vexing, take no farther care, What things you've loft, you'll get e'er you're aware They'll be brought back, the Thief telents at laft, And grows much forry for Offences past.

52. The Father is an honest Man indeed, And he will help his Wife in time of need; At Board and Bed she'll have her Belly full, Yet's Children will be blockith all, and dull.

53. This year thy Profit will be very small, But the next year, a goodly Crop will fall; Then be content, tho' Blafts and Mildews fall, For he can take, that fill does give us all.

54. The best that from ill Perfons do proceed, In knowing Secrets doth Contention breed; They make it passime to make People jar, And please themselves to see domestick War.

55. Dear Child, be well advis'd by me, I pray, Stir not too much abroad on Aft wednesday; Least you meet one, who will you evily treat, Whilft you, tho' wrong'd, with much difgrace do tine it t

56. Alack, and well aday, it makes me fad, Tothink you'll take a Wife will prove but bad; You'll foon sepent your Bargain, but too late, For the'll not only feeld, but break your Pate.

How much you done, all make her grounding from

Rider,

YOUR

hen cashi

or be ne'

2, Livel

or your in

Branze C Which five

g. His F nd not ro rek out to er your fa

4. Te

re the tri et time w

121 1,000

5. Ab. 1

to many

any of th

tation t

6. Get loo'll gair

n Executiv

7. Journ bey will et you at at in the

8. Thy thousand he'll cont

nen fee f

9. One of and then he or his 111 1

加利印

Rider, Attrologer.

Then cautious be, how you do further truit, -

出战

- 2. Live fober, honefily, and do no wrong, For your short Life will not continue long; A strange Consumption threatens your Decay, Which foon will come, and hurry you away.
- 3. His Friendship is but counterfeit and small, And not to be depended on at all; Seek out another, and give him the drop, Or your fair branching Tree of Hopes he'll lop.
- Are the true lifues of her Husband's Bed; Yet time will come, the'll doat upon a Man, That horns her Husband, do all what he can.
- 5. Ah, woe's the day, for I do plainly see't, With many scurvy Crosses thou shalt meet; Many of thy Debtors soon will break, And thou thy self a Sanchuary take.
- 6. Get first an Order of the Court, and so,
  You'll gain Arrest of Judgment on your Foe;
  In time it must be done, or else, I say,
  An Execution will sweep all away.
  - 7. Journeys by Land, and Voyages by Sea, They will fuccessfully prove unto thee; Yet you at first shall no great Gain acquire, But in the end you shall have your Desire.
  - 8. Thy Wedding day, I fay, is like to breed, A thousand Joys, which will till Death succeed; She'll constant be, and kind, faithfull and true, Then see she wants not, but give her her due.
  - 9. One thou shalt have, and he shall bury thee, And then he will endure much Misery; For his Ill Nature gets him such a Name, That all the Women gainst him do declaim.

- Prove real to you, and most cordial;
  Whereby you in your Undertakings thrive,
  But forked is your Fortune, if you wive.
- 11. You will obtain at length, at least in part,—All the Defires and Withes of your Heart;
  She has been coy, but will be melting kind,
  She knows your Love, and hers you foon will find.
- 12. This News, whatever profit it may bring.
  I'm fure there will be trouble in the thing;
  But make the best on't, for it must be so,
  And from Relations your Afflictions grow.
- 13. She is a Virgin pure, as I am told, And she is very modest, and not bold; Make your Address then, and you will see, There's not much Difficulty to agree.
- 14. Impart not then thy Secrets unto many,
  But unto one, if that thou dost to any;
  Yet that forbear, unless you fee a Cause.
  For Wisdom by its closeness gains appliante.
- And never fear the face of th'Enemy;
  Great Acts by thee are done, and thy good Name,
  Shall long be founded by the Trump of Fame.
- 16. You'll find a real Friend, who never will Defert you, but flick closer to you fill; Keep well such Friendship, 'tis as choice as Gold, Since most is brittle, and will not long hold.
- 17. Nay, if you doubt this Woman's Vertue too, I pray what will the other Gossips do? Take it on trust, for if you this refuse, You'll ne'er be better'd, whomsoe'er you chuse.
- 18. Thou never shalt thy Troubles overcome, But thou will always be consin'd at home; Thou at the Horn's great end jumpt rashly in But can's not at the less get out again,

19. YOU .

19. You may with such a one communicate, For I am fure to you they bear no Hate; To ease your Mind will give you much Content, Then fear not now to give the Secret vent.

20. I do well know the Right is on thy fide, Therefore to thee, Juflice won't be deny'd; Ask boldly, and thy just Cause declare, And you'll far better than by Silence fare.

21. Upon the dangerous Seas, don't trust thy felf, For fear thy Ship do run against a Shelf; Or on a quick Sand bedded break afunder, Or in a Tempest split by riving Thunder.

22. I find thou wilt upon one Woman doat, And have her, though the is not worth a Groat; But, if I miss not, she'll a Portion be, And gain you Riches by her Industry.

23. Sifter, your Deftiny is but to have One Husband, as I very well perceive; But he'll give you enough, you need no more, You'll be worse bang'd, than some with half a score.

24. He has been fick, but now is very well, And that is all I do pretend to tell; The reft from him you'll very quickly know, For in his coming, he will not be flow.

25. Although the Thief at presents fled in hafte, Yet you perhaps may find him out at last; He's Wenward gone, and if that way you go, You foon may meet with him for ought I know.

Talive, 26. One furious Wife will ferve, while you're She'll ferret you, and like the Devil drive; Your canting Preachment will not then avail, For when you Peace admonish, she will rail.

27. This foolish falling out, is but to try Each others Love, and real Confiancy; It will blow over foon, and all be well, For Fate decrees they shall together dwell.

23. A nipping Winter, and a dripping Spring, Prognosticates, 'twill store of Plenty bring; The Planets do direct good Insluence, And promis'd Plenty, 1 do gather thence.

29. They that do know this Secret, I dare fay, Are faithless, and intend you to betray;

Be cautious how you trust, if you wou'd thrive No more let them into your Secrets dive.

30. Thy Life will not be long, I plainly find, For thou with Dulne's flupify's thy Mind ; Which will a Melancholly breed, and fo, You to Death's melancholly Chambers go.

31. Thy Friend is one, who readily will flake, Even all his Life, and Fortune for thy fake; Yet rush not on in too adventurous Deeds, Friendship may be employ d in lesser Needs.

32. An old Whore, the Saying is, is no good Maid, Therefore this Child's a Bastard, I'm afraid; A Perigrine, or Wanderer she came, And so the hopeful Urchin had his Name.

33. Ne'er be concern'd at this your hard Ufage, It will prove for the better, I prefage; But wait a little, and the Cafe will mend, He that's your Foe now foon may be your Friend:

34. It's very good for you, I do suppose, That to fome Friend you do your felf disclose; To vex your felf, and ne'er to have redrefs, Augments your Trouble, but can't make it lefs.

35. This fuddain changing of your prefent State, Will prove infallibly most fortunate; If by your Pride, you do not undergo Their Hate, who have the Power to bring you low-

36. Nothing, this day, that's ill, will you attend, Take Rider's word, he tells you as a Friend; Therefore go boldly on, and do not fear, Your Bufiness the right Course will furely feer.

37. Your Dream, tho' to the contrary, is fed, Must in the best sense be interpretted; The Schreems you heard, to Melody will turn, And Joy proceed from those that feem'd to mourn.

7 38. Your Husband will prove most unkind to you, And what is worse, will stiffly bang you to; He'll ne'er felieve, though you are ne'er fo chaft, But that fome other clasps your flender V Vafte.

Mother, 39. This Child which now is quick within the VVill be a Son, and it can prove no other; It kicks fo firongly, and when it was got, She for a Boy did long, I tell you that.

41. To Thou thou But tisin He loft it

O.TWO!

As Friend

Traison

Fig in yo

Nor feek But traft In doing 43. Tr

Have long Yet Husto Dey Vil 4. La Totyalt

Thearm But witho 45. Yo As you you Then fear

> 46 Go And foch a You'll more Sing O'm

For you'd

47. Hi ght driv They'll C By whole

Haco the 48.1h

40. TWO

o. Two Persons now there is, whom thou dost prize As Friends, which are thy utter Enemies: Trust not too far, what they to you do fay, For in your Need, they it, Swallow like, away,

41. To grant thy Wifh, if Phad but the Power, Thou should's not be without the thing an hour: But 'tis in vain to wish, what can't be given, He lost it, who before for it has striven.

42. Ifay, put not thy trust too much in this, Nor feek for Truth, where fe much Falthood is: But trust to thy own Judgment, and you'll find, In doing to, ye're to your fell most kind.

Maily

ige,

DOM:

es

tale,

200 mend,

CCC.

iel,

13 ourn.

0,000,

chab,

38

e the

43. Two of her Female Bed-fellows, and the, Have long ago loft their Virginity of the Yet Husbands they will ger, to whom they'll fwear They Virgins be, when as they marry'd are.

44. Law Suits much like to Racers are, I find, They always win, who have the longest wind of I Then run well, if you wou'd get your Effate, !!! I But without flore of Money, you'll ne'er ha't.

45. Your Journey now a happy end will have?
As you your felf defire, or will to crave: Then fear not to fet forth, nor spare the Charge, For you'd be recompened for it at large.

46. Good Friend, thy felf a Pot-Companion art, And fuch a Wife you'll have, to take your part: You'll merry live, and spend what you do gain, 10 Sing O be joyful, and despise your Chain.

47. Husbandsindeed, I know you will have nine Eight drives the Plough and Carrythe other Swine? They'll Children on you get, three times four, "W By whose large Cravings you shall still be poor.

17. There's Cornelling in the before how in band, Burthere's no truthin's a sounded: The Manthat does or ou a Which is laft raft, And in his Project bacted is at anh

18. I cannot tell in which the deth, outvies Either in Balbiulnes, or Chafty: But push it home, and you will find 'twill do-Though the at first deny, the'll yield to you. And will be welcome; tho' when he went hence, You with his Absence could so well dispence.

49. Threaten the Thief suspected, & they'll bring Your Goods again, but never own the thing; Then be content, and henceforth take more heed, Or you next time, perhaps far worse may speed.

50. One Wife will hold thee tack, take it from me, And the will prudent prove, in ruling thee Who elfe would waste thy Store in idle sport, And being much affected with the Court

51. Your Love it will return, where it begun, And keep its time, like to the Rising Sun: When it comes back, it may far better speed, For the repents the Lecture the did read.

52. The Tempest of the Weather shall be such. That in this year you will not gather much; Yet never grieve, the next will make amends, And you till then will be supply'd by Friends.

53. Small Pains and Aches shall thy Death attend. Yet thou at lastifialt make a peaceful End: Time will give space, and thou shalt well repent, Of thy Mildeeds, and of a Life ill spent,

54. He loves you fervently, and does befide, Only in you, above all Friends confide: Then let him not mistake his Aim, least you, When you have need, do find a Friend untrue.

55. One night the Mother went to fetch fome Apd Tom the Chandler got between her Legs; It's now too late to mend what has been done, To Chandlers Ware you must bring up your Son.

56. Take care to keep your Secrets from a Punk, And from a Perfon, who is often drunk: 48. I hear this Person will come home attlath, 108 Or you will miss your Aim, I tell you true, When that old Time a little more is past good old. And may your Reputation bid adielo.

And may your Reputation bid adielo.

3. Your riend is well hellow, but his Mind to ment different de, and homewords is inclined:

All Stall and at samot his Palion tame.

[their Roy, B. File are greedy of When are greedy of When and they fee the But is drawn a very a Where not they see the Bair is drawn a way; She is bounded over; "If you less do court, she'll refer then rally, what now's her Spart,

You with his Abtence could to well dispense. As Priends, which are thy never Enemies: Trust not too far, what they to you do fay to For in your Need, transported that the Fower, ap. Threater the Thio functied, & they'll bring Loui Googs to de interestant sing ; Then be seet in the cell the take more in ad Or you bext time, perhaps for works may appeal.

so.One Wile will hold thee treintake it Pomme. 1. ON thy Friend's Favour do not much depend, Bor if you do, it will be to not much depend, He fair does promite, but will not performed box And when you Calms exped, you'll meet a Storm,

And will be welcomes the wheate vientheace,

And never did intend tilem to conceal:
He only with you did infinuate, That he might gain a time to vent his flater se

3. Of this fame Brar, if truly may be led and In He is a Baffard fflue of their Bed. For they confented to the Marriage Tye,
Before they did that Bout together lie. Before they did that Bout together lie.

4. This which is spread abroad by spightful art Will prove uncertain, though distrue in part The first Informer gains by it diffrace. And had been better in another Place of the

* 5. Thy wife, for fome time will fo model be. That the it be matchless for her Chaftity; But there will come a Blade, that will allure Mer to his Will, and her Confent procure

6. All your life time, you'll be in forcew led! That, with the anguin thou with foon be dead if ? 1. Tis but a fooligh thing will breed the woes o However, you must to the Shades below.

7. Trade thou in Oyls, for that Commerce will de Of great advantage, and valugain forthier nov 10 You will have large Returns transfer thereby. Then what you now project, leave off to try.

8: Your Priend is well in Body, but his Mind Is much disturb'd, and homewards is inclin'd: He has feen one, whose sparkling Eyes enflame His Soul, and he cannot his Paffion tame.

Cheir Prey. Braw back your Love, fo Fish are greedy of When once they fee the Bait is drawn away; She'll be more eager, if you less do court, She'll take then really, what now's her Sport.

10. I do prognofficate he is no Friend. That will refuse to you one Groat to lend ; . S. Fruit him not in a greater Summy if fo, 1 1992 roll When You want mod myou pennilefs may go! and

Thou hould'd not be without the thing an hour:

Buc'risin vain to with, what can't be given,

o. I we Perfors now there is, whom then doft prize

11. Nay, if you fwear, I know you'll catch no fish But modelt be, land you'll obtain your with : Rainness confounds what now you enterprize,

12. The multiplicity of Friends will be They libour you up, and make you fwim in Pride, Till unkentilat your Foes will you deride.

13. You hre too kind hearted, to give credit to Some Performs who do feek to ruine you; ?? Portif you credic them, your Portune's lon non I

14. What ails the People now? are you all mad? If Shels the Mother, is not he the Dad? What if the be not, pray be you content, but had For, on his Birth the forked Sign was bentu flux and the sign was bentu flux.

15. Trust not to Women, for they will be kind,

Reyeal whatever does come in their Mind: You may a Phoenix foother find, than one, it Who will keep feeret what herself has done

× 16. Say what you will, it cannot be deny'd,
But that the Mother's is the farefi Side;
She long Hor what the now has got, why then Might the not purchase it of other Men.

17. There's femething in the bufiness now in hand, But there's no truth in't, as Landerstand: The Man that does enquire, is at his last cast, And in his Project passed is at last.

18. I cannot tell in which she doth outvie, Either in Bashfulness, or Chastity; But push it home, and you will find 'twill do. Though the at first deny, she'll yield to you.

19. Thy

19.Th

Andobos

Tyleba

The ibit

Strangers

Yet Lade

Get ago

21. Your

Raising

Will barr

Batitifi

The be

23,G0,1 Tis cafe

Sime rot

Andiny

24 A

Will no l

Stayelich

And equ

Of Refran

The int.

And the

26. Th

That non Unless yo

For in th

27. W

A younge Box with

Thy For

28. Ti

Will pron

Your nati

Butinth

29. Rep The festion

And thou will finite as glorious as the Day:

Twas but for tryal this Diffrace came on, I.O.

The florm is thort, and will be quickly gone, I.V.

20. If thou don'try Relations, thou wilt find, Strangers more friendly to thee, and more kind:
Yet Ladvice, trust neither, but soon wive, and cor a good Match, and you will surely thrive.

2. Your Life indeed will prove take it from me. I Full of Afficient, Trouble, Milery! Yet in Contentment you will pleafure find, I . . ? Raising gainst Crosses Bulworks in your Mind.

1055;

Wile.

Pride, dit to gmal .

1000

littly

. m

22. Your Friend, when many weary fiers browill hardly then come home, brisk as he went:
But it will tame his rambling Pancy fo,
That he like Travels will refuse to know

23. Go, make your Choice a new for men do hold,
'Tis eafier to make Nets, than mend the old:
Some rotten Threads will baulk you of your Game,
And in your Buincis you'll come off with shame.

24. All Voyages or fourney's till the Spring, Will no Delight to thee, nor Profit bring:

Stay then while; and it will Charges spare,

And equal Profit and Advantage space.

25. The eighth, ninth, and seventeenth day of February, unlucky is, I say:
The first, the third, and fifth will be more kind, and then what you design, you'll prosperous find.

26. Thou wilt to long, I find, the Girls deceive, That none at last, I doubt, will thee believe. Unless you to a distant place retreat, For in this Town they know you are a Cheat.

27: Within a few Months, when thy Husband's A younger Stripling after thou shalt wed: But with him no such happy days shalt see, Thy Fondness will thy sad Missortune be.

28. The greatest Friends, I think, that you will will prove to be among the Female kind:
Your natural Talent will engage that fide,
But in them, pray do not too much confide.

29. Reposing in a Friend, this comfort thou may'st The setting much at ease a troubled Mind:

To vent thy woes is almost half the Cure of the But let it be to one whole Friending sture.

No Man befides her Husband with her lay in the Them lef ho Jealoufie possess thy Brain, and Them without reason, put thy Mind to pain.

This News is very true, be then content:
Tis all the Story that you can expect,
Then make the best of it, and don't neglect, smooth

For the is wanton, and may breed fome firife:
She many Lovers has, who will not fail,
(Tho you wed her) to Tenants be in Tail.

33. Take not to heart this Trouble & Vexation.
For thou wilt in some time find Gonfolation:
Time will produce such Wonders, as will prove
A soveraign Balm to cure the Wounds of Love.

34. This year is very likely to produce,
Nothing at all for pleasure or for use:
Except fair Ladies Smiles, which joy will give, are
To such as by Camelion's Diet live.

35. I know thou wift have many Friends in view, Yet thou had'st better have, I think, but few: They with less trouble will your Business end, He's hil'd a true one, who's the latest Friend.

36. This present alteration of your State, Will prove unto you most unfortunate; Refrain it then, and keep you to your Stage, If you will nappy be in your old Age.

37. Your Life, I guels, will long and happy be, Free from vexatious Care, and Milery:
You will be thrifty, if you give not car
To those who fill d your Head with causels fear.

38. Your Cause, I needs must tell you, I mistrust, For all you now appear to be most just: There's something whisper'd, that I will not name, Which, if prov'd true, will brand you with much I shame.

39. Nay, don't you blush, John had a Finger in the Pre, But that he had your Maiden-head's a Lye: That you had pawn'd unto the Country Squire, And what of him you ask'd, had your Desire. 40. Let Wife & Husband now do what they will, It is a filly Girl, in spight of Skill:
Project no more, Nature will have her Course, They'll all be Girls, till one comes with more force.

41. The Friend is upright, real, good and just, Then feek no means to wrong him by Diffrust:
But as a Jewel prize him, and you'll know, From your Deferts his Friendship first did grow.

42. Your wish will never have effect at all, or I loney sometimes will be mixt with Gall: of I on a fair Foundation it was laid, now another will possess the Maid.

Such is your Doom, that you'll affuredly, vercome with Grief and Mifery:

Cause is finall, yet you cannot refrain,
give it scope, and surther your own pain.

fear he will not yet in hafte come home:

However, when he does return, you'll find, brothe ele'll not forget to be to you more kind.

45. Your Loves like a Snake, divide it, & you'll The broken pieces will again be joyn'd:

where you will, you must at last come to,
Therefore at first you may as well it do.

46. This very Journey thou wilt take in vain, will nothing prove unto thy gain: Great Difappointments thou wilt have, and fill, what you most trusted in will cross your Will.

47. That very day which bore our Saviour dear, wall lucky be to thee throughout the year: Chufe upon it such weighty things as you, Would have well speed, and Fortune will be true.

48. You shall have two, whereof you may be glad, wor two more such is no where to be had;

38. Your Coold, I needs mad tell to all militude. For all you now depeat to be rood, ind:
There's femething whe feet at a will not need.

Which, if providence, was brind you with the

and what of him you sak is had you plant.

Make choice of them, as of two Diamonds fet, To fpread their Luftre in a Caskanet.

49. I find it is not good, this Priend to truft, With any Secret, for they'll prove unjust: Keep it thy felf, and lock it in thy Breast, And so both fafely and securely rest.

50. The Child can't help what's done, but this I fay,
The Father's a great Knave to run away a
The Mother was a Fool fo foon to truft,
Had fire but marry'd him, he had been just.

51. This news is much difguis'd (as will appear)
By those who do relate it, and not clear:
But soon the time will come, to make it plain,
And though 'tis dark,' you'll find 'tis not in vain.

52. Thy Wife will handsome be, & full of Riches, I Therefore take heed, she'll feek to wear the Breeches: If you deny her that, away she'll fling, And sit Her felf with a more able thing.

53. Some one you dream not of, will faind your And firive to put your troubles to an end: It unexpected comes, but then beware, That you fall not into the felf fame Snare.

Of Bearns, but by the last as many more:
Yet chargeable they'll be, and in the end,
Make thee to seek, when thou shalt find no Friend.

55. A warm, and very open Janivere,
Befocaks a forward and a fruitful Year a
But something else is threatned in the main,
Though Fruits be plenty, there is feant of Grain.

56. To those whom thou hast done the greatest good. You'll find they'll pay you with Ingratitude:
Be cautious then in whom you do confide,
Least when they've got their Ends, they you deride.

29. Repolingons Frier hibraronion incoming agin

The ferring much at east a fromblen Mitel : o

But with him no fuch happy days thalt fee,

The Bonanciswill the led Mistoreune be.

Sanders, Sanders of the Sanders, Sander

His Income

and few

Then be

FOR TOOM

3. Gitt

Your ciol

And bene

That you

4 Life Berthenh

one Dif

You shall

5. You

The Party

he'stoo

Has carry

6. Km

That you

The Pro

00 A00 Up

He that t

Though I

And you

8.This M

Orelles

he has a

Past non

9. You

He mail b You care

dornop p

Sanders,

much by his next-Undertaking acc.

Astrologer,

Sanders, Militologaran

1. Y Our Friend, on whom you do so much depend, Will prove ungrateful to you in the end:
His Interest is that at which he aims,
And for that only he your Friendship claims.

2. He is unfortunate, where e'er he goes,
And few Friends can he find, but many Foes r
Then be not ever by him overfway'd,
For foon his Portune with himself will fade.

3. Give em friet charge, or else they will reveal Your closest Secrets, which they should conceal: And henceforth be advis d, and keep that in, That you would never have be told agen.

4. I find you'll have at least one Wife, or two, But then how foon, I won't declare to you; some Difficulty will arise before You shall obtain her, whom you most adore.

riend

FUE

riend.

5. You then may take my word, I know it plain, The Party's Love you never will regain: She's too precise, and what you last did say, Has carry'd her small Kindness quite away.

6. It may, without all prejudice, be fed, That your Defires will be accomplished: The Prospect's sair, and time will do the rest, So you shall have the Maid that you love oest.

7. In going to Law, this is the total Sum, He that the best Cause hath, shall overcome: Though Difficulties will therein arise, And you about it often must advise.

8. This Maid the must make haste, & quickly wed, Or else good night bid to her Maiden head: She has an Iten will carry her so rar, That nought will please her but a Man of War.

9. Your Husband's Fortune's fuch, you fall well He must be plac'd with Cuckolds all arow: You cannot help it, he to it was born, Yourob him of his Birth right with the Horn. X 10. The First-born of her Womb, will surely be.
The finest Girl that ever Eyes did see:
But something says her Beauty will prevail,
With some great marry'd Man to tempt her Tail.

And the good Wife the Father can procure:
But let it rest, 'thad better secret be,
Least that discover'd, cause much Enmity.

You endeavour to converse with honest Men:
But as you take your Course, never suppose,
You will get Friends, but multiply your Foes,

And by the course of Nature, can't live long:
Then make thy Will, least suddenly thou die,
And leave thy Friends involv'd in Law thereby.

14. You on your Journey, I may boldly fay, Will meet with Thieves and Robbers by the way:

Delay it then, or very cautious be,

Leaft much Difaster by it fall on thee:

The hardest Measure you'll be sure to find:
However, for the Storm in time provide,
True Friends are never known till they are try'd.

old Aches pain him, and his Legs do fwell: Long he'll not last, yet when he dies, to you He will bequeath what justly is your due.

17. If thou woul'st lead a quiet Life, thou must ?.

To Friend nor Foe, thy Bosome Secrets trust;

For there is something does possess thy Breast;

If once disclos'd, will rob thee of thy Rest.

18. A Wife you'll have, tho' Priends offended are, And the will of thee have a tender care:
What thoughno Portion the does with her bring, she'll please thy Humour with her other thing.

19. In Love you need not one another blame, You both contributed to quench the Flame: It was not lawful, it is true, but Love, In this the frongest Argument did prove.

20. I know thy Wish, but I am much afraid, That thou another year wilt live a Maid: He will not firske at whom you so much aim, He'll let his Faulcon fly at other Game.

- Have many Friends, yet you may lose the day and Some thing is hid that you do not differn, And in the end you'll find you are to learn.
- She has a curious Maiden-head to let:

  But long a Tenant will not wanting be,

  Who will her Tenement employ you'll fee.
  - In answering Questions which are to him sent to But yet of follid Judgment much does want,
    For what he now produces is but scant.
  - 24. This Child, I fay, will be a lovely Boy, And he is born, choice Bleffings to enjoy: His Father's Wit, his Mother's Beauty joyn, To make him with a sparkish Loure shine.
  - And has the Mother relplets left alone:
    Yet the will thift, her Faults forgive,
    And the without him will far better live.
  - 26. I think an aged VViddower god wot, will fail at last to thy unhappy Lot:
    You overstood your Markets in the Prime,
    And though you would, cannot recall the time.
  - 27. That Grief which to much doth policif your Vill thortly Vanifocated quite from you part:
    An unexpected Joy will overcome Doom.
    That Sadness which you thought would prove your
  - 28. You'll certainly be marry'd unto enveloped this time to me and a sankhoye.

    Vyhen you next walk abroad, you him will meet,
    And one another very kindly greet.
  - 29. Believe me now, he is thy real Friend, And how to serve thee, is his only end:

Though he speak florid, he'll ne'er flatter you, But in his meaning will be always true.

po.VVeil

The Fire

Sit of the

41. To

Gire Alms

V Vhich W

With 18

4 De

Thy early

43. Th

For any a And at the

From her stand not know th

46. Th

Vhate'e

Well by

G. 77

To beag

And will be Hell VVo

ice will be

- 30. He is alive, and has received a Loss, And He'll come home, I doubt by weeping cross a Despair not though, for he'll recover it, And much by his next Undertaking get.
- You think are Friends, but are indeed your Foes:
  Be wary henceforth, or you will have loss,
  For fome do feek your Bufiness now to cross.
- 32. Thy Fate is such, that from this very hour, Thou art to live and die a Batchelour. Once was the time you might have made your choice but now against you goes the Female Voice.

Quicker and deeper into each others hearts: Contending makes the Matter finall appear, VVhen as the Bufine's is now very near.

- 34. Friends will defert you at that time when you.
  Stand most in need of their Affishance too?
  What shall I say, by it you'll suffer need,
  But at that rime you'll find a Friend indeed.
- 35. This same report is true enough, I know, For I heard something one a week ago:
  And more you'll hear within a day or two,
  By which consider what you have to do.
- 36. This Thief is in some Cellar under ground, The Drinking of Ale, and cannot yet be found:
  But watch the Streets, and he'll come recling by, And you your Goods about him will espy.
- 37. The fifth & nineteenth day of raw Nevember :
  Are very unlocky days, you must remember:
  But on the tenth and twenty third you'll thrive,
  And on the laster it is best to wive.
- 38. To you, this Oream, great loss & detriment, o Seems to include, in its most dire Portent:
  Yet Fortune gray full turn the Scale; and so,
  Though much I doubt it, may for nothing go.
- 39. I find, according to the Proverb old, Thy harp-nos'd VVife is like to prove a Scold: But yet 'twill in the end prove for your good. And make you fee where your Misiortune flood.

40. VVe

40. VVe shall, I guess, have no intemperate weather, Untill three Sevens and one does meet together: The Twenty second day expect a Storm, But of what kind, I will not now inform.

41. Thou wilt be provident, and very able, Give Alms, and keep a pretty handsome Table: VVhich will thee recommend to a good VVise, VVith whom you shall enjoy a happy Life. h

And all thy Friends will fore lament thy Death.
Thy early Bud by his cold Hands thus cropt,
Shall hinder many of the Fruit they hop d.

43. This thy most pleasant Journey don't delay?
For now good Viveather courts thee all the way?
And at the end of it you Smiles shall find,
From her whom you expected as unkind.

However do not much thy thoughts perplex:

Stand not for Blushes, let him know your Love,

And on my Conscience, he'll obliging prove.

45. VVhat Right foever now thy Canfedoth own, I know thou wilt by Might be overthrown but and Something you mift, that wou'd material be, Your Council too did want a double Fee.

46. This Damofel's a vertuous Virgin's pure, 12 I know, like Gold, the will the Touch endured but V Vhate er is faid, regard it not a Pin, You'll happy be, if you her Payour win. 1900 H.

47. Thy Husband is by all Men look dupon to be a gallant boon Companion:
And will be frolick in his Cups, and more,
He'll V Vomen kils, but yet he will not VVh--re:

48. Let not the Mother now her felf perplex, The will have lufty Twins of either Sex : 190 V

The work was well tim'd under lucky Stars, Yet Venus more fuch Births I find debars.

49. The Father for to name, I wont be bold, But I can tell as much as most unfold: He is a Man of Parts, an able Spark, And some will have him be a Lawyers Clark.

So. You'll have but one, therefore do you take And get a special good one to your share: For if she's bad in matrimonial Joy, She will your Plenty and your Peace destroy.

st. A very fair fmooth tongue, & a falfe heart, Is most the Occasion of thy Grief and Smart: Though ne'er so cunningly you gild it o'er, It is perceived, and adds to Lyings Score.

And will be very confrant in his love:
Strike whilft the Iron's hot, and you frame,
A lucky V Vork, that will encrease your Pame.

53. Next Post you'll hear the sad intelligence, Death lately has remov'd your Friend from hence : Yet, for your Comfort, he has left you Wealth, And dying, wish'd you long Life and good tealth

If of your Reputation you'are nice:

For what you truft will furely be betray'd,

And then the VVorld will know you are no Maid.

Indeed too good for such a one as thee:
But Knaves and Pools best Fortune have we find,
And unto such the VVomen prove most kind.

56. Her Love will fafter fixed you purfue, But like the Sun, go back, the f follow you : She's cunning in the Managing of it, And is much proud to let you fee her VVit.

And be a vision of twite take a nomine of the property of the

Fos:

COS:

thoice

のでは、

Darts

and,

seniory.

g by 100 mil,

DOC.

Swallow,

The work was well tim'd under lucky Star

But fince the Stars decree it, be content,

This Trouble for your former Sins was fent.

Are partly very false, and partly true:
But they concern thee not, then take no care,
Thou in their different Effects shan't share.

3. Mind not the Times and Seafons, for I know, There's none can prove unlucky unto you; V vhatever, Threatens shall averted be, And your whole Life is made a Jubilee.

He whom to marry you did late confent, is very crazy, and much impotent:
He il ne'er perform what you expect from him,
As being found in neither VVind nor Limb.

5. The First born you'll bring forth, to your great will be a comely, and a lufty Boy 2 222 mov to Mind but his Education, and he'll be now last with the boy old Age, a Comfort unto thee, and in dr boy

In ame, to frustrate all thy Hearts Defire:
Prepare then for the worst, and never grieve,
That can't surprizing be that you perceive.

7. This Dream, it fignifies all good to thee, According as you'll have it, it mall be:
It you would wed, purfue, the Fields your own;
Wed, or not wed, you'll welcome be to Joan.

8. I fay, thou shalt, my Friend, twice married be, And be a V Vidower twice, take it from me:
By which your Fortunes will be rais'd, but then It you grow proud you'll be made low agen.

9. This Child a Father hath, and yet another, Besides the Husband, which is own'd by's Mother: 'T was by the Maid's Mistake that he was led, One Night i'th' dark unto the V Voman's Bed.

Astrologer.

This year there will be flore of Corn and Grass:
The Fruit Trees bloffom well, and all things fay,
That we shall now see many a happy day.

timeill times Sevens and one does meet together:

For by it you'll bave Lofs, and Dammage too:
'Twill make you first a Sot, and if Belief
May Credit gain, 'twillmake your Man a Thief.

12. I think by this time it is justly provid, moral That you by many are full well belov'd: Keep up your good Name, for if that be gone, Their Love will fade, and you will be undone.

Is. An Order of the Court, when it does come, It will vexatious be, and trouble ome:
Yet take Advice, and you at last will fee, An end of this, and all the rest will be.

14. The Sickness of the Country be has got, And Death, I'm much afraid, will be his Lot: Yet there is hopes his Health yet he may gain, And you another Sight of him obtain.

And all your Days will end in Happines:
Be thankful then, that your Stars are so kind,
And you have that which sew beside you find.

The Business and Affair which is in hand:
Then be content, least over hatte does mar,
V hat you have now proceeded in so far.

17. April's Fifteenth, and One and twentieth Day, Vill very unlucky prove to thee, I fay: The Twenty Fifth, and Twenty ninth purfue, The Bufiness that you are defigned to do.

18. Your Husband will prove so morosea man, That he will cross you still, do what you can: In vain will your Complacency be found, And little to a quiet Life redound.

19. She'll

19.5%

She Will

Butthen

And West

To time! Bat if po

Todric

The Con

And afre

22.I this

The last o

For he w

A Spark And well

Than en

Your Wi

She is my

You frem

For he's

And the

Elfe ne'e,

And for

Her Piphi Hisofien

Though

A Scare i

As long as

- 19. She'll have hard labour, and when that is done, she will at length miscarry of a Son:
  But the next time will have more ease and speed,
  And what she wishes then, will well succeed.
- 20. Your Wish, I'm sure, will have a good effect, If you use diligence, and not neglect:
  To time it well, will bring a happy end;
  But if you do delay, you'll lose your Friend.
- 21. 'Tis a fad Dream, but use Mirth as you may, To drive all melancholy Thoughts away: The Consequence will not be long behind; And after that, you'll have your Fortune kind.

ris:

5 GF,

1017

000

00:

1000

-

300 tota

and,

Diff.

4

Skill

- 22.I this foresce, That thou wilt have Two Wives, And they will both live with thee merry lives:
  The last will be the best; and when you die, will You decently put in a handsome Grave.

  [bave]
- 23. He that hath got this Child, got many more, For he was exercifing Jone before:

  A Spark that in the Smock takes much delight, And well can hit the Mark in a dark Night.
- 24 Gather thou shalt this very Year, much more Than ever thou wast wont to do before: Your Will, it's true, will it's Reward obtain; And what you thus do do, is not in vain.
- 25. Do not this Party trust, I say; for why?

  She is most false, as I can testifie:

  You spend your time in vain, whilst you do court,

  For she'll have him with whom she oft does sport.
- 26. Propose a good Reward, though to your cost,
  And then you may recover what you've lost:
  Else ne'er expest it; for the Finder's rich,
  And ever had to Gain a greedy itch.
- 27. That she's a Maid, full often hath been said; And so she is; but 'tis a chamber Maid: Her Pipkin's crack't: For why, her Master's Son Has often times the pleasing Bus'ness done.
- 28. You'll step at last into the Marriage Bed, Though for fome time you'll stay, e're you are wed Be cautious when you enter it: For why, A Snare in such a state do's secret lye.
- 29. Thy Troubles thou wilt never overcome, As long as there is any Pope in Rome:

- Then be content, and bear what Fate defigns, For it has cast your Portion in dark Lines.
- 30. Such will your Fortune be; then don trepent.
  For all your days with Strangers will be spent:
  Your Friends will mourn your absence, but in vain,
  For you will ne'er return to them again.
- 31. This News, for which thou art so much concern'd.
  It is most true, as by some I have learn'd:
  Yet grievenot; for there is not so much harm
  As you conceited at the first Allarm.
- 32. Be circumspect indeed, this Day, my Friend, If to your felf you any good intend:
  Keep safe at home, and no rash Bargains make, Lest you do of much Loss in that partake.
- 33. You'll live as comfortless a brawling life, As can be expected between Man and Wife: Yet a fat Sorrow's better than a lean; What you let fall, there's many only glean.
- 34. 'Twill be a thumping Boy, who'll live to be The very Top of all the Family:
  There is One had a Finger in the Deed,
  Who'll take him home.

39. Liv

40. Over thy Enemy thou shalt have thy Will, By those who in the Law have some great skill: Advise with them, left head-firongness defiroy What else you to your comfort might enjoy.

Tthis; 41. Had he been dead, you would have heard e're But all is well, and nothing is amis: His Letters intercepted were, by those Who, above all, his company have chofe.

42. My Advice is, Never fear; for you, e're long, At length shall gain your Wishes by your Tongue: Your powerful Oratory will inspire trial, 43. By this your Dream, when things come once to You'll find, perchance, 'twill meet with some denial:
Her with a love that will crown your defire.

Give it not o'er, but prosecute your end,
And you will find him who denies your Friend.

44. You shall have one, will be of Courage bold; And whensoe'er you whistle, she will scold: The best way to be quiet, is, no doubt, To hold your peace, until her scolding's out.

A CANADA AND A CAN

Father'll come agen, when a

Then give it over; for he'll tell the Fact, When he's condemn'd for other Crimes he'll alt.

+49. Five Shillings to a Nut-Shell, e're you're wed, But that you will have loft your Maiden-head: But yet your fumbling Husband will not know The want of it, but a true kindness show.

50. Yet once again, I fay, you two shall love, And be as close as e'er was Hand and Glove: This brangling bus ness by a Foe was made, But you'll be wifer when you next do trade.

51. The Quarter Day does found ill in your Ears, Because you owe your Landlord Rent some years : Remove then, if you'd fave what you have got, Or on my Word, else twill go to the pot.

52. You'll wretched live, and miserable be, And fuddenly will come to Poverty:
'Tis your hand fate, your Friends were not more kind, Yet I have hopes, there's fomething yet behind.

53. I find, all is not true that now is spoke, But a great Lye some People will not choak : It will clear up; your Fame it will grow bright, As when a Fog's remov'd from the Sun's light.

54. This very Day feems to portend to you, A Day most fortunate and lucky too:
Go on then with that you have now in hand, And nothing shall in Opposition stand.

55. This Person will appear to all to be A Man of Justice, Truth, and Equity:
Tho some black spots by Enemies breath are thrown, They will rub off, and speedily be gone

56. You'll be deliver'd of a Son with speed, Who will be famous both in Act and Deed: In Learning most he will encrease his Fame, And leave fuch Works as will embalm his Name!

28. You'l Hener to Direction Mariage Sect

Toughtersmedial your land of religions.

Recognoss when you care it a por why.

Manage in ficher three do a felicing.

Series Non with cost exercents

E struction of the structure of the stru

Bur Trum

Willbey

Then be

Leftread

And give

3. In ( some of

Settle the Andjour

Your thir They'll b

But for ti

5. You Without

The Mo.

6. Ey

Toe wi Be boun

Whodid

That you

Trulico

Westle

To favor Put on y With you

Firally

Dowbat Leavie

Tanner,

Aftrologer.

I: I Find in this your Dream, to tell you true,
Some in your whole defigus hath thwarted you:
But Trump will be turn'd up; I find the Game
Will be your own, and you your Due shall claim.

T

Ezz

Pears:

2. You will have worldly Wealth, and Riches flore Then be content, and do not crave for more, Lest reaching too too far, your Hold you miss, And give your Treasure for a wanton Kiss.

3. In Court you'll be dismis'd; yet do not fear, some of your Friends they will your Charges bear: Settle then to what was before in hand, And you will find your Fortune sairer stand.

4. Fear not my Friend, but pray be patient yet, Your things are not quite loft, so don't you fret: They'll be brought back as good as c'erthey were, But for the time to come, pray have more care.

5. You never will your once True Love obtain, Without much difficulty, toyl, and pain: The Moment's past in which she wou'd be kind, And you'll in haste, not such another find.

6. Ere long, some Riches shall to tkee befall, The which thou never did'st expect at all: Be bountiful then to those Friends indeed, Who did relieve thee, when thou wast in need.

7. It is agreed on by the Fates above,
That you will ne'r gain Friendship, nor yet Love:
Trust to your felf, that is your only stay;
Who else you trust, your Trust will soon betray.

8. All Sublunary Caufes do's confpire
To favour and promote your great defire:
Put on your mighty Mind, and you will fee,
With your Endeavours, things will well agree.

9. 'Tishigh time now for you to look about,'
For all your Secrefies are coming out:
Do what you do intend then, whil'st 'tis now,
Lest when you wou'd do it, you know not how.

10. Journeying, if you receive a fall, don't grumble, For that a good Horse is, did never sumble: Yet being careful, you may it prevent, Things are remov'd by that which oft are meant.

And one of them indeed will prove a Sot:
But he's good natur'd; then with one fault bear,
And of the Main Chance have thy felf a care.

In all Affairs, he's one of a great reach:
But in the top of all his Knowledge, will
Out-witted be, by one of greaterskill.

13. Whispersthat go so currantly about, Is most notorious falle, you need not doubt; Yet harm the Party for a little time, But then he'll be acquitted of the Crime.

14. Your Dream is good, but this I do fay fill, I wish that in the end it prove not ill:
Yet let not Melancholy grieve your Mind,
For in it I no extreme Matter find.

Then labour hard, and don't the time beguile: Time's Fore-lock flipt, it is found bald behind; This mist, you to your felf will ever be unsind-

16. A Gainer you won't prove in long Law-Suits, Nor any kind of quarrelling Disputes: Egrows, Refrain such things from whence much trouble Lest one strong Puff your Weltzre overthrows.

17. To London-Town the Thief is gone and fied, For there the Rogue, I think, was bern and bred: He fculks so close, you'll hardly find him out, Or e'er recover what you loft, I doubt.

18. Dear Friend, the thing you love, pretend to flight.
And you will find you'll be a Gainer by't:
'Tis the best way to bring about your Ends,
And gain unto your felf a many Friends.

19. I know, in spite of Fate and Destiny, That as thou now do'st live, so shalt thou die: You'll not lamented be, because your Store You hoarded, and did not regard the Poor.

20. Your Dream it did some Pleasure to you bring?
As if it had been then a real thing:
Yet 'tis but Airy, and 'twas never meant,
You should enjoy what it did represent.

- 21. You will Respect, Love, and Affection gain, Without much care or trouble, toil and pain:
  She is a coming Lass, and far from hard;
  She loves the Sport, and long from it was barr'd.
- 22. Use your Endeavour, and you will obtain Your Heart's content, or else 'tis all in vain: To dream of Matters, will not you avail; Up and be doing, and you'll never fail.
- 23. Your Confident keep strict, or else one day She will your Secrets openly display:
  Then your Disgrace will to the World be stown;
  What's done in private, will be publick known.
- 24. In this your Journey you must be content, For you will home return worse than you went: Your Money spent, and Bus ness ne'er the more Compleated by you, than it was before.
- X 25. One Husband thou shalt have, who will exchange His Maiden head for thine, tho' it seems strange: But mark you the first Child; for it will prove An Ideot, sprung from so much Maiden Love.
  - 26. In all Affairs at home, he furely will Demean himself not well, but very ill:
    Your self will chuse him; don't at me repine,
    For well you see it was no Choice of mine.
  - 27. He's very well, and does intend to be At home, when he can fafely crofe the Sea: The Winds oppose his Passage: but you'll find At his return he will be very kind.
  - 28: Your Wife, no matter whether rich or poor, Will, in plain English, prove an errant Whore: Yet blow not out your Horns, but put them up, Lest Folly do's more bitter make your Cup.
- + 29. Miscarrying, I do say, she'll hardly shun; But if she does escape, 'cwill be a Son:

This Bout will make her cautious of the Trade, And wish that she had still remain'd a Maid.

And be a

And Tist

Nor enteres

42 lfth

And with

Therear

Por 25 7

43. 1

Thatthis

Pals it the

To man

44 Y

In Mines ! Yet let n

Left Rich

And that

In time a

For your

46. I

For you

You Mo

May be

And who

This is yo

Yet once

48.Che

Who can

- X 30. The Mother, the alone the truth can tell. Whose Child it is; for no one knows so well: Yet 'tis her wisest way, to let them guess; 'Twould be worth laughing at, should the confess.
- 31. All things in prospect, plainly does appear, That this will prove a very barren Year: Then be not o'er prosuce, but keep your Grain, And you by it shall have a double gain.
- 32. This News, I'll sooner say it is a Lye, Fren go about the same to justifie: It matters not whether it is salse or true, For I find nothing in't that concerns you.
- 33. Those you have formerly oblig'd, will be Your greatest Friends in your Adversity: Then labour still, whil'st well you do succeed, To make a Friend to help you in your need.
- 34. Nay be not vex'd, nor look at all awry, For thy wish thou shalt have it by and by:
  Too hastily to gain, it is not good;
  For more than thou conceiv'st, there's understood.
- 35. To a good Friend, I do prefume to fay, That all thy Secrets thou discover may:
  But try him first, lest you come short of one, By which means you, perhaps, may be undone.
- 36. This Journey'll be perform'd to your defire, Therefore what would's thou any more require? You'll merry go, and merrier come back; In what you wish for, you will nothing lack.
- 37.I'll tell you what, You shall have Husbands five, And neither of 'em all but one shall thrive; Then he will bury you, and have a Wife, With whom he shall live a far better life.
- 38. Daughter, a clownish Drunkard you will have Unto your Husband, and you'll be his Slave: Yet comfort still remains; when he is dead, 'T will be your Lot a better for to wed.
- 39. The Party that to travel's lately gone, when he'll return again, it is unknown: Yet in all likely hood, before next year, Of his returning back you'll chance to hear.

40. Altho

States but qualified a captured and fundamental title of the analysis of the a

40. Altho' thy Wife's a scold, thou'lt doat upon her still, And be a fordid Slave unto her Will:
Content is best, where nothing else will do,
And 'tis the only Refuge lest for you.

41. Be then not troubled at this idle Dream, Nor entertain thy Mind with Thoughts extreme; There's nothing in it that will do thee good; The harm it does portend, by Fate's withhood.

colets,

Prout,

is fire,

1270

42. If thou do'ft well, thou shalt be most regarded, And with thy Labour wilt be full rewarded: There are Eyes over thee; pray have a care, For as you do behave your self, you'll fare.

43. I now speak to you in the vulgar Sence, That this your Dream is of no consequence: Pass it then lightly o'er, 'twill never rise To hurt or pleasure thee in any wise.

44. You will have very special luck in Ground, In Mines where Treasure most is to be found: Yet let not Pride your Reason e'er betray, Lest Riches shou'd take Wing, and sy away.

45. In Law-Suits you'll be overthrown in Court; And that's not all, but highly Fined for't: In time make up the Bus'ness, if you can, Tall For you're too weak to deal with such a Man.

46. I know all Toyl and Labour is but vain, For you will never have your Goods again; Your Money that you in this Point beflow, May be well spar'd; for it is lost, I know.

And when grown up, they always last the longer:
This is your Fortune, though you're not in baste;
Yet once being marry'd, Love till Death will last.

48. Chear up, fear nothing; for there's One above, Who can turn all Men's Hatred into Love:

Now the they frown, there is time they smile, And with their Kindness all your Cares beguile.

49. Death will upon thee seize at Seventeen, Therefore prepare to die when thou art green: 'Tis pity such a Tyrant shou'd be said To snatch thee, e'er thou lost thy Maiden head.

50. You never will enjoy a faithful Friend, Altho' your Life should last to the World's end: Then make the best of those you now do own, Yet better 'tis that thou would'st trust to none.

51. She is a Maiden chaste, and has a Name Spotless, and Reputation without blame: Then prize her as a Jewel; few there are That with her in Chastiey can compare.

52. You are much at a loss, if you expect to gain By Suits at Law; indeed it's but in vain:
Some other Business mind, or Want will come,
And you'll be dispossessed of your home.

73. The things which you have loft, I do foresee;
That you will be informed where they be;
But ask not for the Thief, ke's a near Kin,
For by that Knowledge you'll discredit win.

54. Love you may gain indeed, I know not that,
But ne'r regain that Love you would be at:
Take then another that will be more kind,
She you broke off, will never fix her mind.

55. Thy time is not yet come; I do foresee, That thou from Thraldom shall deliver'd be: Expect a little longer; One will fend, And to thy Troubles put a speedy end.

56. You want to know how your dear Friend doth To speak the truth, he's well, and free from care a Except his longing to return to you, Which in a short time he intends to do.

The fore engine Million Person

Trigg.

Trigg, Astrologer.

I. Y O II, for to spite some Friends, I do soretell, Will single live, and so lead Apes in Hell:
But in it you will have a careful life,
And with your near Relations live at strife.

2. Use all the art and prudence that you can, You fill will prove but an unhappy Man: The Stars have cast your Fortune, Saturn lowers, And Venus a bad Instuence on you showers.

3. Threaten full hard, and fave all other coft, And you'll recover what foe'er you've loft:
Tis the best way; let me to it advive,
Make the first end of it, if you be wife.

4. The Single and the Marry'd Life you'll try,
And find the difference before you die:
The last to you most happy will appear,
Because you'll have a Wise will love you dear.

5. This Scandal which is spread abroad, and blaz'd, Is only upon the account of Others rais'd:
It does not much concern you; take no heed,
Your Fame from it shall by the Truth be freed.

6. Your Dream, pray look upon it as untrue, For nothing will thereon, I'm fure, enfue:
Twas the bad Diet, and the Funes of Wine,
That made your Fancy to fuch things encline.

7. Unhappy is your Fate, that to your end, You never shall enjoy a real Friend:
Though great Pretenders you shall often meet, Who, for their Ends, on you'll be very sweet.

8. You shall have Five, but they'll be very fickly, You'll fend 'em to their earthly Mother quickly; And to your dying day, no more will try, Because they'll think they did not fairly die.

what?

9. She is with Child; but would you know with
It's with a simple, female, puling Brat:
Who like her Mother, will in crossness prove,
To show she is the Issue of Cross Love.

10. This Year, such time of Plenty shall ensue, As our most happy England never knew:
Thank Heaven then, from whose most gracious hand so many Blessings shower upon the Land.

They'll no Advantage get of one another: They'll no Advantage get of one another: The Lawyers, when they've got their Coin, will laugh, And merrily with it full Bumpers quaff.

Will be of great Advantage unto thee:
If any Friend will put thee in the way,
You need not fear their Money to repay.

13. Learn how to mend your Life, or else conclude, The End of what thou do'n, can ne'er be good: For you in Vice's Road so swiftly run, 'Tis Ten to One you cannot Tyburn shun.

14. The Party that did rob, will prove to be A Man responsible, and of high degree:
It was a Frollick, and you'll be repay'd,
But that's the worst, he can't make thee a Maid.

15. You may defire, though there's no reason for t, Some handsome Man shou'd you cares and court; But in your Expectations you will fail, And what you wish, will never you avail.

16. Poor Vertue, in this World, finds no Reward, So thou art fill Dame Fortune's sporting Card; But in the next, you will be better sped; And those that slight you now, will want you when you're dead.

17. This Thief, you never can well learn his Name,
Unless he returns again from whence he came:
I cann't warrant that; then be content;
And what you lost, take it as so much lent.

18. You, to your Friends Vexation, fill will lead A most profuse, voluptuous life indeed:
Nor to them only will it prove a Cross,
Your felf shall find by it the greatest Loss.

19. The

Mindian Is will not For he the Nothing (

Soon real

21. Th

Emblace

Your Las

WE WILL

Teolegi

And tho

19.55

A curios

Both to

The Mon

Prefiges 0

Bat Dully

This has

25.E're

Thy Hon Thou had

But'tril

Will brok

Buc you a

Howevel

27.Mars

and who

Tuisle

Por in W

28. Diff

Jo Am're

But if 70

habo

- 19. The Truth is contrary to the Report;
  Mind it not then, 'cause there's no Reason for't:
  It will not hurt the Party it affects,
  For he the Subject of it quite neglects.
- 20. For all thy am'rous Fancy has such freaks, Nothing of ill, but good, thy Dream bespeaks: What you but faintly thought you had, shall be Soon real, and much welcome unto thee.
- 21. This Person's Friendship, Amity, and Love, Most firm and constant will for ever prove: Embrace him them, as some Good Angel, sent Your Loss and sad Missortune to prevent.

hand.

Khar,

Mi:

ba firty.

March,

when dead.

Name,

licad

19. The

- One Husband, Sifter, you are like to have, who will, to please you, live and die your Slave: Too fend you'll be, when you're by him embrae'd, And tho' he roves abroad, you will live chafte.
- A curious Girl, and a most sprightly Boy:
  Both to maturity will grow, and prove
  The Mother's Blessing, and the Father's Love.
- 24. Candlemass-Day, if you observe it right,
  Presages Good, if Frosty, Clear and Bright:
  But Dull and Cloudy, does Ill News presage;
  This has observed been through every Age.
- 25.E're thou art gone a Mile, or fomewhat more, Thy Horse the Ground will worship on all four: Thou shalt, perhaps, some slight harm get therby, But 'twill soon cure, thou shalt not by it lie.
- 26. The change of this your flate, it is most true, Will prove a disadvantage unto you:
  But you are fore'd to it, it will be so, we'll be weekly your Affairs do after go.
- And when no Money's coming, him you vex:

  Twas better you had never had his Coin,
  For in Vexation you must with him joyn.
- 28. Discreet thy Wise will prove in Bus'ness; but In Am'rousness, a very wanton Slut:
  Supply her Wants, and you may keep her chaste;
  But if you miss, she'll be by more embrac'd.
- 29. What time foe'er the Frenchman hunts the Boar, Then thou wilt Riches get, and not before:

- But that so seldom comes, I am afraid Thy Fortune never, never will be made.
- 30: Faint not, but hold out to the end, be fure, Then for thy Troubles thou wilt find a Cure: But if you lag, it will more flurdy grow, And you'll an endless Sorrow undergo.
- 31. You must have Patience at your Loss, and wait, For all things cannot be effected first; The time will come, you will have better cheer, Then do not thus perplex your self with sear.
- 32. Prosper, I know thou wilt, but have a care, Be not too layish, but thy Riches spare; Len some Side wind does blow away thy Store, And thou be wretched, when thou proven poor-
- So variously they do report the thing, that of it they no certainty can bring;
  Nor ever will make out what they have said,
  Therefore you fill maygo for a good Maid.
- 34.In Dreams, ev'n ftill, thou may'ft thy fancy feed, But there is nothing for thee now decreed:
  One flept between, tho'thou had'ft larger scope, And intercepted has all you could hope.
- * 35. Your Husband is a very game fome Man, He'll jump on all your Maids, do what you can; Which will fome Charges bring, if I guess right, For he must pay at last for his delight.
- 36. E're long, he does intend to make thee know, Whether that he doth love thee, yea or not:
  Prepare thy felf for it, tho' good or bad,
  If you lose him, another may be had.
- 37. Beware of Water, for it threatens thee, And may thy Life bring into jeopardy: Go notto Sea, left there thou should it be drown d; And by thy Friends be never after found.
- 38. Keep thou but Money in thy Purse, and so Thou'lt find a Friend where-ever thou do'st go; 'Tis that will pleasure thee in ev'ry place, And shelter you from Poverty's disgrace.
- 39. This Party's Meaning is upright and true, And will not prejudicial be to you:
  Accept it as it is, and doubt no more,
  He loves you well, and brings you Riches flore.

40. Nothing that's ill can ever you accoft, Your Guardian-Angel will not see you lost: Crosses may threaten, like tempessuous Seas, But after Storms, there comes a Calm of Ease.

And the true Father is a drunken sort.

And the true Father is a drunken sort.

Not able to maintain it, it must tell

A Common Charge, and be maintain'd by all.

42 SomeMoney, I believe, there will to thee accrue, Yet not so much, I think, as is thy one:
Be yet content with that; is Better so,
Than further stirring, without All to go.

43. Thy Friend is very like a Diamond Spark, Which thews its fplendid Luftre in the dark:
Tho' he does make no noise of what he'll do,
Yet you may well confide he will be true.

44. One you will have, who will fo well provide For you, that you'll be fully farisfy'd:
At Bed and Board he'll feast you to content,
So that of Marriage you will ne'er repent.

45. She will miscarry of a Daughter; By Some harm, or accidental injury of a Myl'd, She is so frightful, what the may be Myl'd, A Woman scarely sit to be with Child.

46. This year, I am afraid thou multive scane, Left in the next, thy Daily Bread thou want: Profusencis many does to rushe bring, And their Misfortune's in a Prison ling.

47. I find that thou wilt reach thy Journey's end Much fooner than thou ever did'n intend?

The pleasing News that came unto thee lan, we will spur thee on, and make thee trudge more fast.

33. Keap time he labers in the Busicia Thought had a Tricolywiczy after app to The that wild place to the pite. And finefer you that Fourty both processor age KingParty's Mamine in upp for the And williand riving the led board food.

Account it, and is, and doubt to more, its foods you are the foods.

And as for Vertue, in her there is none a board

Yet thou would'st marry her against consent Of all thy Friends, and must be now content.

49. If thou art folly bent to change thy flate, I fear thou will repent it, when 'tis too late: It may be otherwise; I'll not decree, The Alt'ring Stars may change thy Deftiny.

50 Have patience but a while, and thou shalt see, From all thy Troubles thou'lt deliver'd be; And what comes then, will make a large amends, For thy long fuffering Absence from thy Friends.

51. I pray spare thou thy labour and thy cost, For thou wilt neier recover what thou stoos:
It is already eaten, and no more
Can those that took it, it to thee restore.

Yet in this World thou art not fortunate; There's fomething hinders that is yet unknown; I fear, by those thou trusts, thou art undone.

53. The Party was i'th' right, that told the News, And fo i'm fure 'twill prove, by what enfues: Provide then for the worft, and never fear To face the Storm, the Brunc you well may bear.

54. Take t in the best, or in the worst Extream, I'm sure swill prove an Advantageous Dream:
You seem'd to Fly; that Hasty News does show,
From whence Dissike, or else Content will grow.

And slook'd upon as a mere foppin Afs:
Then pass him by, the other more regard,
And he will give your Love its due Reward.

56. Your flaming Love is nothing but a Blaft; I never thought at first, that it would last: You fickle are; beware you do not miss, And take the Counterfeit for Real Blifs.

vestion you must write him to go.

es. officer the will arrects business bur

to, what cime foe or the Freshmening a ran Boar, when thou will religion dot, and not belone :

warm, and you may keep her cheffes of Astroidice a very wanted Shift

.bandmerion rd differ the Vaux,

Thatin

And wil

Mind the Which I

Letit

If your

Retient Think h

Nor grie

And bot

Be you

Attend y

At total

But who

He will

Not till

Bear the

ongh!

A Rowin

Enquire In being

9. Ar

They find

Vaux,

ex, Altrologer.

Attrologer.

1. TIS my Advice your Journey to delay, And offer not to fir abroad this Day; Something does loure, and feems to relate, That in fo. doing, you're unfortunate.

the feet,

ends,

COCS.

COR

te,

m;

News

bear.

MON,

NOTE.

ittle

40 Thu

2. Your Life it will be short, take it from me, And will be full of care and misery: Mind the next World, and that brings lasting Joy, Which Time nor Envy never can destroy.

3. No matter for the Rumour of this News, foread with a defign you to abuse:

Let it not trouble your repose nor ease;

If you regard it, you your Foes will please.

4. The Party's very well, and shortly will Remember his Engagement to sulfil: Think him not false, tho' he so long has stay'd, Nor grieve that you so long are kept a Maid.

And both shall prove most faithful to thy Bed:
Be you as chaste, and comfort you will have.
Attend you, from your Wedding to your Grave.

6. He's very idle, and is fully ripe,
At toffing of the Pot, and smoaking Pipe;
But when they empty once his Father's Bags,
He will repent in Poverty and Rags.

7. Would'st know when all thy worldly trouble's Not till the Hour-glass of thy Life is run:
Bear then with patience, where there's no redress, If ought is good, that is thy happiness.

8. Stand where thou art, for thou'lt find to thy lofs, A Rowling-Stone will never gather Mofs: Enquire how many have their Fortune's croft, In being from place to place by Fancy toft.

9. A real cordial Friend he is to thee; and that in time thou wilt most plainly fee: 11 11 art not, tho he plain Truths does of relate; They should more Good than Flattery create.

10. Dear Friend, Your Secrets you disclose too much; To them you think are true, but are not such; Be closer mouth d, lest you repent at last, For what you can't recall, when it is past.

And Women they will be no more abus'd; You flatter them, for your own Ends, I find, And this now known, you'll henceforth be declin'd.

To be most constant, and most firm in Love:
Twill be a Match well worthy of thy care,
I'll promise thee, she's rich, as well as fair.

13. Your Losses they are so heavy like to be; That they'll almost undoe and beggar thee: Yet when you're finking, a most trusty Friend, To raise thee up again, his Hand will lend.

And fay it was Old Vaux that told you for There's nothing promifes a good Event, Then to renounce it this time be content.

In Pleasure, Riches, and in Honour's Praise:
A happy Loz, more fair than all the rest;
He who has these, must surely think he's bless'd.

16. I know you always are of fuch a humour, You lend your Ear to every fort of rumour; Which makes much Strife, and that do's Law create, That in the end will ruine your Enate.

17. Pray do not think it long your Friend dothtarry, He'll come fafe home at lait, and not miscarry: Some weighty Matters his Word made him break a But when he comes, for that Amends he'll make.

18. One you will have, but in him no delight!
You'll take, either at Morning, Noon, or Night:
Twill a rath Choice be, your Years to diffrent is,
But Wealth will hinder you, to think this.

- 19. He in Fidelity doth most Men excel,
  And hates Persidiousness as much as Hell:
  If you would chuse a Friend that you will trust,
  Let it be him, and you will find him Just.
- The worst is gone, and the best comes at last:
  Trouble o'er past, Joy in our Minds should form,
  As one that scap'd from Shipwreck in a Storm.
- 21. Come hasten now thy Journey, do not stay, For there is sometimes Danger in Delay: He who has sent for thee, may nor long live; And what he thee design'd, another give.
- 22. Much like unto a well made Ball of Snow, So thou'lt encrease, by rowling too and and fro: Tho' many lose, it seems 'twill be your Gain, And of Removing you will ne'er complain.
- 23. If that to truly love thou dost intend, Ne'er entertain above one loving Friend: That will employ thy Breast; for loving many, It will divide thy Love, to love scarce any.
- 24. You may disclose your Secrets to a Friend, But then I wish they mayn't prove false i'th' end: If there no need is to reveal thy Mind, Then keep it close, and you'll more safety find.
- 25. Thy Fortune's done; then let what happen can, Thou ne'er wilt live to be a marry'd Man: So fickle you have been, and often try'd, That Fortune has debarr'd thee of a Bride.
- 26. Make hafte, and fludy quickly to forget her, For the indeed doth love another better; And keeps thee but to wait upon her Train, To gratifie her Pride, and raife her Gain.
- 27. Childermas Day, observe in ev'ry Year, in doing Bus'ness, take a special care: It never prospers, but does crossly prove Still to fall out, and always awkard move.
- 28. Your Dream, if that it be well understood, Prognosticateth nothing but what's good; Of what we gather from't, Love is the main; Her you love best, you will perhaps obtain.
- 2q. Now from all Jeopardy thou shalt be freed, and the more haste thou mak's, the better speed:

- With Flying Colours you'll at last come off, And shame those that did at you lately scoff.
- 30. Forty and feven Years thou'lt live, and then Thou must depart, like other mortal Men; Yet leave behind those will support your Name, But not continue it with the like Fame.

X 40.T

Tirkfo

Thou be

Tobes Yet Wa

Andfu

Niggard

Tis piry

Yet with

43. To have

And Do

GH. H And for fi

You may

45. T

For they Keep the

Or you

(36.0

And fit of

That is

Y 47. I Perhaps And form

If not a G

Can mair

- 31. It is not always the plain truth that's faid,'
  Therefore believe it not, I you perfuade;
  This is erroneous, forg'd to make debate,
  And vex you in your newly marry'd State.
- 32. Be not perplex'd, nor with thy felf contend, He's well, and does remain thy loving Friend: E're long you'll fee him, to your Heart's content, He's by a Friend now on a Journey fent.
- 33. One Husband thou shalt have, and he will prove So kind, that thou'lt be happy in his Love; But he will bury thee, and wed with One That ne'er will please him as thy self hast done.
- 34. Now thou hast tasted both of fowre and sweet, Thou shalt with Peace and Plenty kindly meet; Embrace it as a Blessing, lest again You launch your Ship into Missortune's Main.
- 35. He's very tirefome, and will ne'er be good, But frequently diffurbs the Neighbourhood:
  Advice is but ill spent, he will not mend,
  But kill himself with Drinking, in the end.
- 36. Many do's wish for that will do 'em harm, and are too hot, when they should be but warm:
  Then cover not no more than is thy Share,
  And what you get, pray lay it up with care.
- 37. Thine Adversary now is very bold, And warm with Money, else the Law is cold: Things are most strangely at a stand, I see, Therefore advise thee, if thou can's, Agree.
- 38. In finding of your things, I you defire, the diligence, and after them enquire: [below, They're Northward gone, then fearch the Street And of them more you're quickly like to know.
- 39. Thou art a pretty, bonny, buxom Maid, And a chafte Virgin long enough hath flay d: He that speakenext, pray don't deny his Suit, You'll ne'er be marry d, if you thus fland mute:

id more Good than Hartery creare.

40. Thy

X 40. Thy Wife, I know, will prove an errant Scold, Ilinatur'd, Ugly, Sickly, Poor and Old;
These sure Plagues: One Comfort yet will be, Thou haft no Horns; for some will Cuckold thee

41. By many Symptoms, this will foon appear To be a barren and a fruitless Year: Yet Women will be true to the old teft; And fruitful prove, if often they be preft.

22 You will, when Rich, grow very Covetous, Niggardly be, and Pufillanimous: Yet what you scrape, will spent be by your Heir.

43. This thy Condition proves to thee a Curfe, And often changing, cannot make it worse: To have bad Wives, will ever be thy fate; And should you love them, you will have their hate.

And fo for many Years is like to hold?

You may rely upon his coming back,

And then for what you long an analysis of the hold? And then for what you long, you shall not lack.

45. This Party can't keep Secrets very well, For they to none but unto Folks do tell: Keep them your felf then, and things will go right. Or you'll, e're long, a bloody Duel fight

26. One Wife, a comly Woman shall she be, And fit to wed a Man of high degree, Shall be thy Lot: Then think thy Fortune kind, That for thee fuch a Bleffing has defign'dy

47. If thou to morrow hold thy Head upright, Perhaps then thou thalt fee thy Love at Night; And some kind Killes, e're you part, will pass, If not a Green-Gown on the gentle Grass.

48. To thee, I know, not all the power of Fate, Can make One Day at least unfortunate; et a toll I

Ty. Once the was a Maid, I dare engage,

But han't neen to ence a teen years of age 3 I for Mother then the Maiden head has fold to og tich Blade, for I wenty Miss in Gold.

And for the lath, as it never care for time; Yer you hall dost on nim, and he despised,

13.You will have two bee Won't with one agree

Unless you do conspire your own annoy, And a proud Female murther all your Joy.

49 Your's is an idle Dream, and therefore don't By any means at all depend upon't: It came from Vapours that did then arife From your Excess, and Night Debaucheries.

50. In this fame Journey, I do you advise, To very careful be, and most precise: A Snare is lay'd, to trap you in the way, For some great Debt that you are like to pay.

51. In Ninety fix, a Palfie then will come, Which all thy crazy Joynts will much benumb: Walk much before-hand, and refrain from Luft, Or it may chance to lay thee in the Duft.

52. They which are Broachers of this very News, Do little think they do themselves abuse: Twill turn upon them in the end, you'll fee, And they by it ridiculous will be.

53. He's dead, and all his Vertues with him gone, And if you feek his Pattern, you'll find none: The World laments the Lofs, but 'tis in vain, No Tearsor Sighs can fetch him back again.

54. Seven kind Husbands, Iforetell you'll wed, And then, T hope, you'll think your felf well sped: Tir'd with oft dancing in the Sheets, at last Death is the Eighth, who'll ever hug you fast

55. Thou wilt, e're long, thy Troubles overthrow, And thou shall sing no more, Fortune sthy Foe Her Frowns clear up, her Smiles on thee are bent, And the will give you now your Heart's content.

56. In all Affairs, at Bed and Board, will he Always difcharge himfels most prudently : A You shall be fatisfy'd in what you crave, And what you most admire, you shall go brave.

S. if nothing binders him upon the Way.
Ex il make we make the case, and will not day:
I've there as dented in the case, a doubtry

in the fore you will be a go wathout.

and Shooting store octored disslad Higher atild by the blant of the fear;

Whil'ff he goes rightly to your 'taid diffusis'd.

ther.

鲜 otent,

STORY.

Mr.

(meet,

11 .

harm,

1

Street M.

Fiex; Aftrologer.

By and the control of the control of

And a proud Femile stander all your

I. I Know thou wilt live to be very old,
And many happy Days thou shalt behold;
Yet some Missortunes meet thee in the way,
And give thy chiefest business some delay.

2. In Merchandizing to and fro by Sea, will not prove advantageous unto thee:

Seek out some Trade by Land, and you will thrive,
And soon grow rich, if you but early Wive.

3. If you use all your art, and tryal make of Friends, Yet you will miss of your designed Ends: Trust to your Fortune then, and you may stand; But fall, if lean upon another's hand.

4. This Maid is weary of her Maiden-head; She'd fain be rid on't, or else fairly dead:
It in her Face appears 'tis kept too long, And those that will, may have it for a Song.

5. Golike a cunning Gypfie, gettheegone, And for a Husband you shall have but One: Yet Gallants you'll ne'er want; you'll have your Of Venus Pleasures, tho' it cost you dear. Ishare

6. If you can now bur Composition make, Whate'er they give, do you be fure to take.
Or it will come to nothing at the last, For now all stands upon the latest Cast.

7. This News cannot be true, twastold in hafte, And when Nine Days is come, the Wonder's past: Twastook ontrust; but something you will hear Within a Month, that will concern you near.

8. If nothing hinders him upon the Way, He'll make what haft he can, and will not flay: But there's a Miffress in the case, I doubt; If so, I'm sure you will him go without.

o. If in Two Days thou nothing then dost hear Of this thy Dream, then fome Misfortune sear: Twas odly fancy'd by the blazing light, And Shooting-Stars betoken'd its sad flight.

Altrologer.

For when you filent are, the will be loud, and make you hear what better was conceald: In Womens Passions arange things are reveald.

That it will better your Condition much:
Then think not of delay, the's fine and near,
And in all things will make a Wife complear.

12. By Land, my Friend, thou may it thy felf affure, That from all Danger thou wilt be fecure:
But if to Sea thou go, thy Star informs
Thou wilt be loft by Pirates, or by Storms.

Which thou upon Shrove-Tuesday dost begin:

Assured working, you'll no Profit get, nor Praise.

The A happy Life to you I do prefage, For thou shalt live unto a good old age; And leave thy Children to enjoy thy Wealth, But by Excess they will destroy their Health.

15. Your Life will prove a Life of Happinels, 1 Free from Affliction, Trouble, and Diffres: Then thank your Stars that they have been to kind To fmile on you, while others trouble find.

16. What though your Fortune is now over cast I find you will obtain your Wishat last:
There is a great Reserve for you in store,
You'll hidden Treasure find, when you're most poor.

17. Once she was a Maid, I dare engage, But han't been so face fifteen years of age; Her Mother then the Maiden-head has sold To a rich Blade, for Twenty Marks in Gold.

18. You will have two, but Won't with one agree:
And for the last, he'll never care for thee;
Yet you shall doat on him, and be despis'd,
Whil'st he goes nightly to your Maid disguis'd.

19. Thy

19.Toy Therefor Orafter

In Laws

In this !

21. To

Regard L Who be

Ge I

But you

And for

In this

A Houf

And for 24.11

She is fo

For Gar

As he'l

Isthe a Tenent

Lice an Which

Ballo

27. TI

And for Your for And wh

You'll Conte 19. Thy Life will prove but short, the Stars foretel, Therefore prepare to settle all things well; Or after you are gone, a sad Debate In Law, will rend and ruine your Estate.

20. Go not to Law, I fay, for in the end, in this Advice, you'll fay I am thy Friend:
For when your Money's fpent, your Woe's encreast,
Tis better End it with a Woodcocks Feast.

And so you'll find it to be all intrue:
Regard it not, least you do pleasure those
Who broach'd it to disturb your calm Repose.

But you must shorten, and not do amis:
And so expecting Joy with him, at last
It will come wing d, when some few days are past.

23. Those very costly things which thou didst see, In this thy Dream, speaks plenty unto thee:

A House well furnished you will shortly have,
And see thy self apparell'd very brave.

fire,

er-ca

aree

24. Thy Wife, I'm fure, will be a crabbed piece,
She is fome wretched Mifer's ill-bred Niece: 116
For Gain thou wed'ft, that was better loft, work
As she'll foon make it prove unto your Cost.

Is the occasion of her Barrenness:
Too eager Lust, consumes what should give Birth,
And from her Children she will ne'er hear Mirth.

26. Thy loving Husband will, beyond degree, Like an uxorious Fondling, doar on thee? Which will make you fo proud, you'll think his care Is all but Duty, and no lefs he dare.

27. Twas long e'er you this pretty Bargain made.
And such a Love will very hardly fade to 1919d.
Now Joys are promised, and they will drive,
And who shall love the best, you both shall strive,

28. Indeed I'm forry for the honest Lad, You'll have one Wife, and she'll prove very bad: Content's the only Comfort that is left, If that be lost, you are of all bereft.

29. I find that thou at last art doom'd to die, With Pain of Gravel, Stone, or Strangury: Too often drinking did those Humours breed, That these sad Pains will to thy Ruine feed.

you will prove very prosperous and thrive:
Be careful who you trust, and then ne er fear,
But you shall lay much Money up each year.

31. Your Hope and Expediation is in vain, For your Defire you never will obtain: 'T was somewhat more than Reason prompts us to, And for your Rathness, you the Loss may rue.

32. She and three more for Maidenheads may call?
For one good lufty Pellow had 'em all:
They could not be content till they were gone,
And he then like a Thrasher laid them on.

33. Three you will have, the first will be the best, Death and the Cobler e'en may take the rest. They'll bring you Debts & Trouble for their Dower and hardly let you rest a quiet hour.

34. This year its proper Scafons has forgot,
The Summer's very cold, and Winter's hot:
Which will Difeases bring, and many die,
But your Life's Date, I think is not yet night

35. From Trouble thou shalt not deliver'd be; During the space of years, the number three 1. But then lift up thy Head, then is the day. That rais o again, you shall look brisis.

36. You must remember this, that 20.
The best of Eriends that ever thou will.
Though crafty Knaves come thence, yet one will has scap'd the rest, who will most honest be.

37. John listhe Fathet, but don't make a firste Between the Husband, and his vertuous Wife: He will provide form, and never grutch, And e'er next Long, have with you tother touch.

38. If my Advice does no ways come to late, I wou'd perfeade you not to change your State; You happy are, if that you did but know, How much you now do to kind Fortune owe.

And nothing of a Planger ever fear:
She is impatient till you do arrive,
And thinks without you, nothing ever we drinking did those taus 40. Thursday is such a day, will to thee bring Extraordinary success in every thing: Plant, Sow, or Phylick, when the Scalon is, Buy, Sell, or Wed, and you'll not do amis.

41. The Judge's Teft, I'm fure thou may'ft abide, For there is Law and Justice on thy side; He has more Money, who is now thy Foe, But yet for thee a righteous Cause will go.

42: When Time, the fitten Judge, the truth shall try, Tis ten to one, this News may prove a lie: And you be clear d, fo when we Chrystal stain, In time the Glofs will purge it off again.

43. Some Token you'll receive most suddenly, That he is ill, and at the Point to die: But may recover, for ought that I know, I . EE Then be centent, and den't impatient grows

44. By all the Stars, 'tis to be understood, 'That unto you, this Dream portends no good: The fearful Sight speaks Enemies at hand, Therefore, with caution, on your Guard fill fland,

45. A foolish practing Goffip thou shalt wed, Then with a Wife thou wilt be fully sped; As one asham'd of such a simple Mate.

> me, chear up Daughter, & do not despair, hall have an only Son and Heir; is yet not come, the Father lives, ie weds you now, all from him gives.

He's very jovial, and do hever think and do hever think; And Rioting with Harlots, Night and Day, By which his large Effate will waite away.

48. Thy Lover's fickle heart will foon be cold, And for a new Love, he will quit the old;

38. If my Advice does now yelcome to large I won'd perfusee you not to charge this had You happy are, if that you did has here.
How much you now do to kind Fortune own.

39. Thy Journey then may he with other Che And nothing of a Banger ever feer ; She is important all word on rivey And thinks with boy you not ing a reHe took at first light, so and it will go, when time to him does other Beauties show.

49. Let me perswade you now to live alone, I And for a Twelve-months time do you take none; Your loving Husband, it fo foon forgot, Will make the next you wed regard you not.

50. If drowning now should put thee in a fright, The Gallow-Tree I'm fare will claim its Right; Unless a speedy Mendment you do make, And for the furnire honest Courses take.

51. Your Life will profperous be, take it from And you mon pleasant days will live to see: There's a rich Kindred, that you scarcely know, Who will encrease your store, and Kindness show.

52. All your Defires will be fulfill'd i'th close, In spight of all Obstructions by your Foes; There is a Woman of a crafty reach, [Breach. Who with your Friends will soon make up the

53. A perfect Maid the is, upon my Life, And fit to make an honest Man a Wile; Strike then, while time does ferve, the will not stay Above two Months c'er she'll be fetch'd away.

34. One Husband you shall have, both tall and He'll prove rich, courteous, very foit, and tender : All these good Qualities, when he is got, will, pretty Rogue, fall tothy happy Lot. of

55. A windy March, wet April, and hot May, Will prove a fruitful year, most wise men say: But yet Diseases spring from different Seeds, I And new Disempers such mixt Weather breeds.

56. In a flort time this Point thou'lt fully gain, Thou wile be free from trouble and from pain :. There is a Promife made, and will be kept, but To bring you case e'er many Nights ye ave slept. And who hall love the beft you both first frive,

28. Indeed I'm forry for the honen Ead, You'll have one Wile, and the'll prove very bad : gni W lon, you are of all bereft.

I-ferd that thou at laftart doom'd to With Pain of Gravel, Stone, or Strangury;

in good o 2. Fo

For fe HisLor Thirtho

One wi You ma He'll W

4. T The Mit But Twi

Te casti Er whi 6.18 What

Andte

You th Howe'e Unhapp And A

And wi 8.60 There's

Be min Though Histor

His wan

That will she bed day be, fince then were well as their well as their well's or and the seed on their well's or and the seed on their seed on the seed of the seed of the seed of the seed on the seed

To fee't, but at the last, you will be fore'd to
Then better days expect, the Stars decree, [part:
In your dividing, you will happy be.

Dones

Bright,

Tes,

DON,

riole

Breach.

中战 or der,

all and under:

495 gain

40 1000

But he that weds thee, beings thee to thy Grave:
His Love will grow fo cold in a fhort space,
That thou shalt pine away, and leave no Race.

One who'll affir thee in the time of need; You may rely upon it, on my word, He'll what you ask, in reason fill afford.

She with her Master lost her Maiden-head;
The Mistrifs knows not, though she is with Child;
But 'twill be known, and all the House until'd.

Friends,

7. This Dream much threatens fome of your best And to your self no good at all portends;

7. This Dream much threatens fome of your best And to your self no good at all portends;

7. This Dream much threatens fome of your best And to your self.

7. This Dream much threatens fome of your best And to your self.

6. Woman, you are with child, but you must know what e'er you think, you have not long been so, You thought to trust your Age, but are deceived, Howe'er, 'twill be your last, then be not griev'd.

7. If that thou doll live to be old, thou'lt fee Unhappy days, and full of mifery; And Age does threaten thee with hoary hairs, And will, no doubt, bring on a world of Cares.

8. Let this same Newsbe true, of what it will, There's nothing in't can do thee any ill; Be mindless then of what the People prate, Though ye're with child,'twasgot in Marriage state.

His Head was giddy, and as light as Peather, His wandring brain has brought him to this cale. But he'll return, and foon refume his Place.

before line of the does on a about, you'll fee, le not of I it, your forcem will be listed to I it, your forcem will be less you may con a good for hope on'to and the will be the celiver dot a I ye ray a

10. I find by fomething which has lately past, Your former Love does altogether waste; Some Up-fiart in your Heart has taken lodge, And with the old one now you feem to dodge.

11. Come try fome other way befide to choose For now I think you have not much to lose; Fear not to venture, it can't be much worse, There's an old Widow has a swinging Purse.

12. Your Happiness confits in this, that you Will have great flore of Friends, and good ones too; Regard it as a Bleffing from above, And be respective for their tender Love.

13. Vain glorious much the is, & one that dares, Speak more by half than comes to ten mens thares; The Match will not be good, if it go on, But rather you may chance to be undone.

14. Daughter, one only Husband thou shalt have, He shall be very prudent, rich and grave; Be not to loose and light (yet that I fear) For with thy Folly he will never bear.

To marry fuch a one, who loves thee not; But you was born a Cuekold for to be, Why of thy Birth-right should it thou cheated be.

16. Daughter two Husbands I for thee defign, The one you'll breakhis heart, th'other he'll break There's the return, and you deserve it well, [thine Who when you have a good one, cannot tell.

17. He's real hearted, and won't you beguile,
He's free from all Deceit and cunning Wile;
Plain honest Truth, and in his word exact,
VVith him, if you'd be happy, soon contract.

You should a Husband ever hope to gain, where this is rumour d; but where ye're unknown, 'I is likely you may get a thumping one.

19. Before nine days does come about, you'll fee, What the Effects of this your Dream will be; Tis not of Love, if that Laues aright.
But you may chance from suckold him for foight.

At last deliver'd of a Tympany:

She thinks indeed she is with Child, ne'er
Whil'st she does live, will she a Bantling bear.

21. Thy life will have an end at Forty one, of then with Death thou must with speed be gone; then good use of it, that short and sweet, may with Life that's endless quickly meet.

Trust not in this Report, I say, for why, greatest part thereof will prove a lye; the rest will signific no mighty Matter, for all it has so long made such a Clutter.

23. He went away in too much Discontent, But for his Rashness sie doth not repent: But Time and Poverty will bring him down, And shortly he'll return again to town.

24. Your Match is off, for though the willing be, Yet fill there are some Friends which disagree: And without their Consent she will not marry, and therefore both of you must longer tarry.

And doth afford to every one their Due:
But there are many Tricks obstruct your Right,
Yet Wrong will vanish when things come to light.

26. Your choicest Secrets do not you disclose To any one, let 'em be Friends'or Foes: Keep in the V Vandrings of your Heart and Speed, For 'tis by Care and Closeness you'll succeed.

27. That day which fiery Satura rules, will be The most unfortenatest Day to siece. Both of Tis Saturday that his Dominion's great, On it then thun all V Vrangling and Debate.

28. This year I do conjecture on good ground, Great flore of Cornand Graff will much abound: And other Plenty, which to the next year, V Vould welf be laid up, tean things then be dear.

29. Thy VVife thou wile no quiet with her have, untill that the as cold, and laddin Graves!

That will the best day be, fince thou wert wed; But 'twill be long e'er Fate has doom'd her dead.

40.Now J

It ma defe

Botthaty

41.You

But if the

Manageth

Better the

Tempor

But Crol

Shall oft

Baryerin

Then ho

Whodid

Too cros

Espectio

Younere

Whoisd

Therefore Make up

Left, Wh

47. 8

They mu

Those you

And then

So many Maiden-heads as thou hast got, So many Husbands will fall to thy Lot: But then I fear thou wilt unmarried be, For thy poor one is gone, as most may see.

And both will Helps unto each other be: The Comfort your felf then for your other Lofs, Vyho if he lives, but fomething will fall crofs.

But with much Trouble, Pain, and watchful Care; 'T'ad alm if twice been gone, had not her Nurse, Been watchful, for which the had many a Curse.

33. Those Places in thy Dream, which thou didn't Full length of days they promise unto thee: Something of pleasure too will crown thy time, But not grow rich untill thou'rt past thy Prime.

34 She'll bring a Girl, who will be like her Mam, And the may prove a vertuous comely Dame.

If Education reason but her Youth,
And the refrain from telling the untruth.

35: You'll thrive and prosper mightily by those Good Deeds which you perform to Friends & Foes; A good Name will arise, and by your Trade Your Fortune in a short time will be made.

36. If you defign by Land, or else by Sea, A Journey or Voyage, each will pleasant be; Yet on a Monday fill begin the first, Or on the day you pur was to be nurst.

37. Your Husband does, like a dishonest Man, A Mistris somewhere keep, do what you can: I But you at last his Haunts will find, and break, Those undue Measures he did lately take.

And may in time be of his Trade, a Cook;
And handle Flesh, for he will have a Piece,
Plump, Juicy, Eat, perhaps his Mother's Niece.

39 d'Some vertuous Men can't profese in A fiairs, Because their Conscience fills them sull of Cares; But that is intie minded now adays printed to Tis powerful VV calch that over Conscience sways.

40. Now

40. Now you may change; and fet your heart at reft, [ This Alteration will prove for the beat: It was defign'd for you long time ago, But that your Friends delay'd to let you know.

41. You'll never have Four Friends, I do thee tell, But if thou hast but Two or Three, 'tis well : Manage them well, and they may thee avail, Better than Twenty that in need wou'd fail.

ather

200

Care; intie, intie, intie, intie, ine,

y those i: Foes ;

de

ti,

25

M20,

20:

Nicce

Gits;

42. When aged Time with Snow shall crown thy Head, Then peaceably thou shalt die in thy Bed : But Croffes in the long Race of thy Life, Shall oft perplex thee; mostly, from a Wife.

- 43. Somewhat of this is true, which now is faid, But yet into it I'll no farther wade: It matters not, the rest you well do know, Then home in lafety without danger go.
- 44. Now you may drop a Tear upon his Grave, Who did your Vaffal live, and dy'd your Slave : Too cruel you have been, and ne'er again Expect fo true a Lover to obtain.
- 45. I pray, why in your love do you rejoyce? You never will indeed enjoy your Choice: 'Tis vainly that you spend your time for he Who is delign'd for One of High Degree.
- 46. You will no benefit reap by the Law, Therefore be wife, and do your Bill withdraw: Make up the Matter, e're your Money's ipent, Left, when too late, you are brought to repent.
- 47. Secrets, 'tisfaid of old, they are Edge-Tools, They must be kept from Children, and from Fools: Those you have now, let them ne'er stray abroad, Left fome fay to your Daughter, You're a Bawd.
- 48. Be thou but fair and honest in thy ways, And then thou need'at not have respect to Days :

Confider well, before you undertake, And a good Ending you will always make.

- 49. This Year, I pity Husbandmen: Alas! They'll have but little flore of Corn and Grafs: But last Year, the more Wise lay'd up their Store; The Negligent will only then be poor.
- 50. Thy Wife is feeming Holy and Demure; And for to humour ber you must be fure; Or elfe expect for to have no Content, So much the is to her Opinion bent.
- 51. Don't think of changing your Condition; you Shall have but One, I needs must tell you true; And that will be a tefty one indeed; Belides, a Slut, for the's of Scottish Breed.
- 52. Your Friend is very fober and difcreer, And do's remove fome Obstacles you meet, To make your way more easie to your Wisk, And what you aim at, is done in a Diff.
- 53. What if the shad a Little One or two. So long as the has One to lay 'em to? The Charge will not be great; befides, a Friend You'll have of him that broach'd her nether End.
- 54. In this vain Dream of thine there is no Charm. But like a Chip in Porridge, do's no good nor harm: Lay Bay-Leaves underneath your Head, if you Would dream of things, and after find them true.
- 55. Of her Good Fortune, all that can be fed, Of a brave Girl the will be Brought-to-bed: Twas got in Heat of Love, 'twill prove a Striker, And cry, Comeon, Brave Gallants, if you like her.
- 56. This filly Thief you fubt'ly must beguile, And fo let him alone a little while, And you will make him heedless, till you map Him in the Fact, e'er he's aware of Trap.

1- 12 1 Producting the love of the Bethow but fair 200 for the hall of the first on the Shanner wood and the state of t

Muncy Aftrologica.

Woodhouse,

Altrologer:

For her House

Letita

Batyet

2LThou

This

The Fou

Heratid

X 23.1

Youwi

of Kens

24.F0

Willp

Willlo

Smc ill

Bot it w

Perhaps,

26 Eq.

Bet new

Should b

And it to

And Cr

Since in

Buch!

Wester

And the

29. TI

Dr by for

Trill

We have

10 KS, 1

Yet one of them will prove a Wag, Infear;
And, like his Father, love Forbidden Ware.

The Thief, (for which indeed he's much to blame,)
Is kept back from restoring it, with shame;
But in a little space it will be laid
Where it was taken, by the pillring Blade.

3. This Year Ground will be fit for pleasant use,
Good force of Pulse and Grain it will produces
And other things, for Humane Life's support,
Whil'sto all Markets there is great refort.

4. All things, at this time, feemingly conspire
To cross you much, even in your Heart's defire:
Wave then your Enterprize, and it will speed
Next Week, but This is otherwise decreed:

y. A Voyage or Journey, either of the two, o' Will be of dang'rous confequence to you: Stay thou at home, left Thieves in one annoy; Or Picates in the other you defiroy.

6. Look well before you leap; for Married State Will prove to you very unfortunate:
Live as you do, and you will ne er repent,
But with a Wife you will have no content.

7. Thou art, as by the end it will be prov'd, By many most entirely well belov'd:
Yet one black Girl, with sparkling Eyes, is yours, And for your take some trouble now endures.

But it is not her fault if it is not for an and of mail. She did her part, but bashfull was her Mate, so that his Key could not unlock the Gate.

9. Fifteenth, Seventeenth, and the Nineteenth Day Of January, do no work, but play!
Upon the rest your work will better thrive,
And thorow-pac'd, you may good Bargains drive.

And does prognoficate to you no good:

Pray then that fudden Death be kept away, Or that you die not on your Wedding-day.

Else you may evermore lead Apes in Hell:
Take Time then by the Fore lock; when he offers,
Do not you slight his kind and loving Proffers.

12. She's now with Child, to her content and joy,
Of a most sprightly, brave, and lusty Boy:
Twas what she long'd for, and it Money cost
Abroad: At home she had her longing lon.

13. You are to blame the thing thus to neglect,
And not totax the Party you suspect:
Twill be too late, if you a Week delay,
For then the things will all be done away.

14. I fee by youder Bird which builds on high,
That the next Sammer will be hot and dry:
Physicians will be of the Season glady
V Vhilst Sickness makes the drooping Patient sad.

15. This very Child will prove a chopping Bry, And heaftall be his Mother's only Joy; But with her fondhefs the will spoil the Lad, And he'll in time prove worfer than his Dad.

A pretty Lass will from her Works does come about,
Wilo coming to her Marriage years, will be Bestow'd on One that's of a high degree.

17. When Six, Seven, Eight, it doth at once appear, Then Plenty comes in order that fame Year; And Maids will Husbands get to their content, For then to Females, much good Luck is meant.

18. Tis to no purpole for to profecute
Your present Wish, therefore desist your Suit:
You lose your time, and nothing will avail,
She has already set her self to fail.

19. Make not much hafte, for I do tell thee plain,
That this thy Journey it will prove but vin;
'Twill be all one, if that you flay at home,
As if at this time you abroad did roam.

20. The.

- 20. The waggish Person has the Font defil'd, Por he that Christ'ned it, did Get the Child: However, when he kis'd it, he was kind, For then he had the Mother in his mind.
- 21. This Alteration of your present state, Will prove of Consequence unfortunate:
  Let it alone then, if I may advise;
  But yet I find you never will be wise.
- 22. Thou never not above Three Friends shalt make, That will be Friends indeed for Friendship's sake; The Fourth, who does pretend, of him beware, He rather comes to lay for you a Snare.
- You will go near to lose your Maiden-head; It hangs so loose, that in the very dance, It feems towards its departure to advance.

dipy,

tô,

4

Biy,

Mary.

- 24 Fifteenth, Sixteenth of March, and Twenty one, Will prove unlucky unto ev'ry one: The Nineteen, Twenty first, and Twenty nine, Will lucky prove to any good design.
- 25. This Dream, for to speak plainly, does relate Some illined your Personal Estate;
  But it will soon blow over: Some great Floods,
  Perhaps, may over floor your Lands, or spoil your Goods.
- 26-For Husbands, 'tis defign'd you shall have Three, But never a one prove good, I promise thee: 'Tis a hard Lot, that such a pretty Lass Should be by Fortune brought to this sad pass.
- 27. Come, let the Father up a Sixpence tofs, And if he is not wrong'd, it will be Crofs:
  And Crofs indeed, will mostly be his Lot,
  Since in a Wife he fuch a Crofs has got.
- 28. It is a Girl which the doth go withall, But the'il, I fear, miscarry by a fall. Wear not high Pattens, nor tread craggy Ground, And then perhaps you'll be deliver'd found.
- 29. This very thing, I know, which you have lost, It will be fent you by the Penny Post, Or by fome other means; then do not grieve, 'Twill not be long e're you will it receive.
- 30. This Year we may cry out, Woe'and Alas! We have but little Corn, and little Grafs:
  But to repine against God's Providence,
  Implies, that those who do, have little sense.
- And will in time learn all her Mother's Tricks

- Among gay Sparks she'll take up her aboad, And be as true as ever track'd the Road.
- 32. I find thou wishest for a goodly thing, But pray what Stars will such a Blessing bring? I doubt thy Fortune thou hast over-stood, And little now is promised that is good.
- 33. This Day I would not have thee fiir abroad; For I perceive there's Danger on the Road: Perhaps One whom you lately have betray'd, Swell'd with Revenge, a 1'rap for thee has lay d.
- 34. It is decreed by all the Powers above, You will a Gainer in all Dealings prove; Except in Am'rous Bargains, there you'll fail, And ipend much Money, that will nought avail.
- 35. If that thy Adversary will comply, Be sure thou art not stubborn to deny: For there's a time will come that you will find You are betray'd by those you thought most kinds
- 36. Thy Wife will prove a Woman of Good Name, Spotlers and Innocent, without all blame:
  Love then and cherish her; for if se dies,
  Then will come crowding on your Miseries.
- 37. This News is rais'd, on purpose to delude, By those who do not wish thee any good:
  Mind you your Bus'ness, and regard it not,
  Such foolish things are fill the best forgot.
- 38. In opening of thy Secrets, take some care; And whom thou do'th confide in, do beware: Try many times, before you fully trust; It wants much Proof to know One's truly Just.
- 39. You will have Two, and they shall each agree, To gain upon you much the Mastery; But with them both you pretty well will deal, And from them, what they else might know, conceal,
- Yet does not know at what he would be at: Sometimes he Nanny fancies; then 'tis Nell; Then Melt, or Sue; but which he cannot tell.
- 41. No Person in this World is free from care, Then do not thou repine, nor yet despair; Time, that all labour brings to pass, may do The work at last, that will advantage you.
- 42. Dear Friend, If thou do'n love an empty Purse, Thou now may it quickly change from sad to perse about if thou Money dont intend to keep, *
  'Tis best, that you yet in your old House sleep.

43. The love of Friends you'll gain; but then beware That you destroy it not with want of care:
Be circumspect in what you undertake, [make. And you'll not lose them, but more Friends will

44. She's still a civil Maid, but I'll be sworn, Sne was a great deal better Virgin born: Twas Tom the Taylor ript her Stitch before With such a rent, 'twill ne'er be mended more.

45. Disperse your forrow now; for I dare say,
That you will have much merriment this day:
And as you prove your self an able Man,
It will encrease, let Foes do what they can.

46. Your Dream it was a merry, sporting thing, That will to thee some mirth and pleasure bring: Your former Frollicks brought it in your head, But you'll not try the sport till-you are wed.

47. You'll have but One, now either laugh or cry,
Bor one I'm fure you'll do before you die:
For Sorrow mixt with Joy will be your.Let,
And you'll be brought to do you fcarce know what

X 48. The Father of this Child, I well nigh guefs, 'Tis Nick the Shepherd, not the Great, but Lefs: His Pipe and Song beguire the filly Maid, Till they at last tell to the Dancing trade.

49. Throw not, I fay, good Money after bad, What you have loft, it never can be had: Keep what you have; of that you are fecure. For that once spent, you neither can secure.

50. Sharp Northern Winds, and Showers that are cold, Shall very hurtful prove, and manifold; But kinder Weather after makes amends, Be not displeas'd then at what Heaven fends.

51. She will bring forth a Boy in her due time, And Death will feize upon him in his prime; The Mother shall lament the Loss so fore, That she, for grief, will shortly be no more.

52. You wish for Happiness; which you'll obtain Unto your felf, and will great Honour gain:
A Courtier is your Friend, in whose command There much of your Advancement now do's stand.

73. Use Prudence in your Journey, to prevent The harms that may fall out by accident: Talk not too much before, which Road you wend, Nor what your Busness is, than at the end.

54. The Planetary Stars foretell, and I do find, That you will profper, when the Devil's blind: Your crofs-grain'd humour spoils the active sport Your Wise shou'd gain by, when her Callants court.

55. The Law is not the only way to get What is thy due, but rather lose thy Debt: Then run Vexations in so large a Ring, As wearying thee, will yet no Profit bring.

56. Thy Wife will prove a very honest Dame, And if you do not love her, you're to blame: You to rambling are with black Brow'd Best, And still will slight what's your true Happiness.

The CONCLUSION.

Thus we have shewn you this most curious Art,
And from Dame Fortune do such things impart,
As she had in her secret Treasure lay'd,
And never thought thus publick to have made;
But much Entreaty has made her so kind,
Nor doubts but these things will Acceptance find.

FINIS.

I. O. N. D. O. N. Printed for P. Brooksby, at the Golden Ball in Pye Corner; J. Dedon, at the Angel in Gilt four-freet, without Rengate; J. Blare, at the Looking glass on London Bridge, near St. Magnes Church; and J. Back, at the Black, Bay on London Bridge near the Draw Bridge: Where all English and Irish Chapmen, and Ochers, may be furnished with all forts of Books, in Divinity, History, Astrology, Navegation, &C. at Reasonable Rates.

01 tine 西原 面 rent, find, d: port court, 069

