The oracles of the Disserters : containing forty five relations of pretended judgments, prodigies, and apparitions, in behalf of the Non-Conformists; in opposition to the Establish'd Church. Part I. / Publish'd in order to make the Church of England as odious in the eyes of the vulgar, as popery. And re-printed with seasonable remarks. By an impartial hand [i.e. John Brydall].

Contributors

Brydall, John, 1635?-Church of England.

Publication/Creation

London : B. Bragg, 1707.

Persistent URL

https://wellcomecollection.org/works/e9jypv7n

License and attribution

This work has been identified as being free of known restrictions under copyright law, including all related and neighbouring rights and is being made available under the Creative Commons, Public Domain Mark.

You can copy, modify, distribute and perform the work, even for commercial purposes, without asking permission.

Wellcome Collection 183 Euston Road London NW1 2BE UK T +44 (0)20 7611 8722 E library@wellcomecollection.org https://wellcomecollection.org

Diffenters:

THE

ORACLES

CONTAINING Forty Five RELATIONS

Of Pretended Jugdments, Prodigies, and Apparitions, In Behalf of the

Ron-Conformilts:

In Opposition to the Establish'd Church.

Publish'd in order to make the Church of Endgland as Odious In the Eyes of the Vulgar, as POPERT.

And Re-printed with Seafonable REMARKS.

By an Impartial Hand. (John Lydal)

Ja and to mirabilis annus Securdies

London Printed, and Sold by B. Bragg at the Raven in Pater. Noffer Row. MDCCVII.

THE PREFACE.

HE following Treatife, containing a Collection of many Prodigies, Signs, Apparitions, Accidents and Judgments (either pretended or real) being publish'd by a Club of Diffenters (as is apparent both from their Preface and Relations) in the Year 1661, under the Title of Mirabilis Annus Secundus, at a Jun-Clure when the Tottering Caufe of the Non-Conformist Party, after the Reftauration, flood in need of all their Strength and Policy, to keep it from finking quite under Ground; the faid Collection was thought fit to be made Publick once more, but with fuch Ufeful Remarks, as were judged fufficient to Convince the Unbyafs'd Reader, both of the Weaknefs of their Defign and Arguments : Had their Dissenting Po-sterity taken no better and more Effectual Methods than these, to maintain their Cause, they would fcarce have feen themselves in fo Flourishing a State as they do at this time.

And upon this Occasion, I can't but observe that our Occasional Conformists are so far from being beholden to the Compilers of these Relations, that on the Contrary, they are put in the fame Rank with many others, who have defervedly (as they will have it) incurr'd God Almighty's Indignation and immediate Punishment ; as is evident from several of their Accounts, related under the Head of Judgments; fo that if fome of them are alive now, they must either defert their Brethren, or elfe knock under the Table, or at least confess that fome of the Modern Non-Conformists have out-done them in their Politicks, and that now they have a Difpensation for fo doing, which they had not 40 or 50 Years ago.

As this Treatife was thought fit to be confin'd to a few Sheets only, fo it was judged Expedient to choose the Best and most Authentick of their Relations, to leave room for the following Remarks, without which the Whole would have appear'd to many as nothing but Rude and Indigefted Piece. In these Remarks, as I have taken all imaginaimaginable Care to treat of the Matter in Hand, without the leaft Partiality, fo I have endeavour'd to Convince the World, either of the Nullity and Weaknefs of their Relations, and the Inferences and Confequences, drawn by them from thence, rather by Strength of Argument, and Undeniable Matter of Fact, than by Specious Infinuating, or Reviling Expressions, whereof the Compilers have been fo frequently guilty, both in their Relations and their Prefaces. In the first, tis true, they contain themfelves within fome Bounds of Moderation, when they fay, and call God to witnefs, that their Scope is to alarm both the Saints and Sinners to a Seafonable Repentance, to awaken both the wife and the foolish Virgins, that none may be surprized, &c. But they feem to have left that Scope in the fecond Preface, where they not only affume to themfelves alone the Name and Prerogatives of God's Chofen People, by applying to their Caufe the old Bohemian Froverb; If a man be weary of his Life, let him but attempt fomething against the Piccardines (or Hussites) and he shall not outlive the Years, &c. with feveral Paffages out of the holy Scripture apply'd to the fame Purpofe; but, alfo frequently break out in too Bitter Invectives and Reviling Expreffions against the Church of England and its Ministers.

The PREFACE.

What can be made elfe of thefe Words, when fpeaking of those Ministers (and that without the least Referve or Distinction) who after the Reflauration of K. Charles II. had Conform'd to the faid Church : they fay : But among ft all the Defections and Prevarications of this Day, none like those, who are found among the Runnegadoes, who in the face of the Sun, against all Principles of Light, Confcience, and Ingenuity, bave receiv'd the Mark of the Beaft, at least in their right Hand, if not in their Foreheads also; They have most shamefully deferted their Colours. Others for the Love of this present World, have relinquished the Spiritual Ministers. and are turn'd to be little less than Idolatrous Priests. Soon after they stile the Ceremonies of the Church of England, no lefs than most Ridiculous. Exploded, and Obfolete Superstitious Fopperies; call the Conforming Minifters to the Church of England, Drunken Deers, and a Generation paft all Shame; and tell us in Express Terms: That the Lord bath made upon that Account, Several of them Publick and Eminent Examples of hisfore Difpleafure, and fet them up as fo many Sea-Marks, that the rest of their Brethren, with all others, might fee and fear, and avoid the Rock upon which these Men were split, and have made Shipwrack of Faith and of good Confcience. These words are fo plain, that they need not any great Explanations, viz. That their true Aim was no other than to Expose the New-Conforming Ministers, fit Objects of God's Judgments; and the Ceremonies of the Church of England, as Ridiculous and Superstitions, under the Relations of these Prodigies, Judgments,

&c.

The PREFACE.

&c. How far they have over-fhot the Mark, will appear from the Remarks made upon them, which fufficiently differer the Weaknefs of the Arguments, which they have made the Foundation-Pillars of their whole Defign; tho' we should take the Matter of Fact, as related, for undoubted Truths, unlefs made evident by Witneffes of unqueftionable Judgment and Integrity, and who have been either Eye or Ear-witneffes of the Matter; This having been neglected in most of their Relations, How can they blame the Readers, if they will not give an Implicite Credit to the Relations of Perfons, who did not think fit to prefix their Names before their Treatifes? For fuppoling fome may be charitable enough not to fulpect their Sincerity in these Accounts; yet fince they were Compiled by feveral Hands, How can one vouch for the other in fo nice a Point? And fince according to their own Confession (in the first Preface) there were no lefs than feven Falthoods either in most Material Circumstances, or in the Matter of Fact it felf, discover'd in fuch another Treatife of Prodigies and Judgments as this, publish'd in 1661; All thefe having been found out in lefs than a years time, Who knows how many may have been difcover'd fince ? And fince the Compilers thereof were not exempted from this Frailty or Neglect (to make the beft of it) I fee no reafon, why ours fhould challenge any Prerogative before the reft of their Brethren in the fame Caufe and in the fame Defign.

It was partly upon this Score, that we thought fit to ufher it into . the World under the Title of the Oracles of the Differters. 'Tis well known the antient Oracles deliver'd their Sentences in ambiguous Expreflions, the Crafty Priefts having pitch'd upon this as the Beft, if not the only Expedient to maintain their Credit (after a contrary Event) by putting a double Interpretation upon the Words of the Oracle, as is apparent from that deliver'd to Crafus : Crafus Halyn penetrans Magnam pervertit Opum vim;] which fignify's as much, That if Crasus passes the Halys, he shall make Great Havock and Destruction : which Crajus interpreting of his Enemies, the Misfortune fell upon his own Head: But the Priests knew how to fave their Bacon, by the Application of the Ambiguous Words of their own making to the Event. The Oracles of the Pagans alfo challeng'd an unquestionable Infallibility, and fo entire a Submiffion from its Profelytes, that no lefs than prefent Death, or fome Signal Misfortune; or, (as they stil'd it) Judgments of the Irritated God, could attend those who durft either to Oppose or Despise its Dictates! I will not much enlarge my felf upon this Head, by entring into an Odious Comparison; but thus much, I judge I may fay, without transgreffing the Rules of Modefty or Truth : That fince our Compilers have not only made fo bold bold with God's Judgments in their own Behalf, and challenge an Entire and Implicit Credit of their Relations, tho' reprefented under very Ambiguous Expressions and Circumstances, they will have no reason to be angry with us, for having given the Title of The Oracles of the Differences to the Treatife.

Baker in his Chronicles, among many other most Excellent Observations, concerning the different Inclinations of various Nations, gives the English the Character of being foon furpriz'd and led away by Prod gies, Apparitions, and fuch like Strange Accidents. I know not whether the Compilers of this Freatife, had fo much Veneration for this Great Man, as to rely abfolutely upon his Authority and Judgment. Or, whether, being convinced by their own Experience (efpecially among their Ignorant Brethren) of the Truth of this Affertion, they thought fit to improve their Weakness to their Advantage, at a Junchure, when they flood in need of all their Policy and Strength, to keep them fteady and Refolute in the Defence of The Good Old Caufe. They had muftred up whole Troops of pretended Judgments, faln, (as they would have it) upon those who durft fo much as attempt to act contrary to the Interest of the Non-Conformists, in general, or any of their Noted Men or Teachers in particular; nay they had frain'd the Points of Judgments to fuch a pitch, as to bring those who had either Conform'd to the Church, or taken the Oath to the Government Eftablifhed by Parliament, after the Restauration, under the fame Class with the reft; tho' it be Notorious, that fome of those who about that time embrac'd the Ceremonies of, and were entirely Reconcil'd to the Church of England, have prov'd in their Time, the main Champions of that Church, against the Diffenters, and continued fo for many Years, even to their Lives End; as the Example of fuch Eminent Men, could not fail to have a great Influence, not only upon the Clergy, but also upon the most fensible Part of their Laity, who follow'd their footsteps apace; fo to ftop this Current, which must end in the Total Ruine of Non-Conformity in these Kingdoms, they were forced to muster up all their Forces in order to terrify the more Weak and Ignorant into anOpinion of God's Judgment against those who should either Annoy or Defert their Party. They had, as I told you, as is apparent from the enfuing Treatife, dwelt fo long upon those pretended Judgmonts, that believing they had either quite tir'd out the Reader, or at leaft not given fufficient Satisfaction in most of them, to the Main Point in question, they faw themfelves oblig'd, to have recourfe to New Inventions, to ferve as an Additional Strength to the reft. Thus they judged they might most conveniently encompass, by the Relations of their Pretended Prodigies, Surprizing Apparitions, and Strange Accidents; which, if you

The PREFACE.

you will take the Pains to Confider duly in all their Circumstances, you will find them adapted (just as the Judgments were) to the fame Defign of Deterring People from Conforming both to the Church and State. A certain Noted and Learned Author of the University of Oxford, who had been formerly of their Perswasion, makes this Obfervation concerning their Aversion (after the Restauration) to the Church of England; that to diffinguish, and as it were, set a Peculiar Mark upon themselves, quite different from the Church, they Introduc'd the Word of Holding forth, instead of Preaching. If their Abhorrence was fuch in those Days to the Church, as not to concur with them, even in a Word fo generally receiv'd in the Christian World, tho' of different Perswasions, , and which in our times is frequently made use of by most of the Non-Conformists, in the fame Sense with the Church of England; What wonder is it, if they fet all their Engines at work for its Deftruction ? And knowing there was fuch a Strict Tye betwixt that Church and State, that the Ruine of one (efpecially at that Conjuncture) could not be as much as attempted without iminent Danger to the other ; they thought fit to level their Prodigies and Strange Apparitions against the Government, as they had their Judgments against the Church. Among a great Number of that kind, I thought fit to pick out only a few (the reft being frivolous and fcarce worth taking Notice of) to Convince the World of the Nullity of thefe Inferences they pretend to draw from thence. The Account of that Storm which happen'd in 1661; as I believe it to be true in most of its Circumstances, so the Compilers of this Treatife, did not fail to apply it to their own Advantage, and to fix it as a peculiar Mark of God's Displeasure against those who had been Instrumental in bringing about and Maintaining the Reflauration. He that queftions the Truth of it, let him but compare the feveral Applications made by them in divers Relations, with what has been alledg'd out of their Prefaces. To obviate this, I judg'd I could do no better, than by inferting fom Stupendious Events in our late Tempeft, which, as they by far over-ballance all what could be alledg'd by them upon that Head ; fo the latter having been attended with fuch Extraordinary Succeffes of Her Majefty's Arms, as can fcarce be Paralell'd in any Age, I hope it may ferve as a Convincing Inftance to the unbyafs'd Reader, that the Judgments of God are past our Scrutiny; and that fuch as are too forward in Intermedling into those Abstrule Recesses of Providence, will meet with no better Success than these Compilers have done in their Undertaking.

OF THE

TREAM STREET STREET

is which a turn

1)

THE

ACI

DISSENTERS, &c.

I.

A Roiling Prelate, Smitten by the Lord with a (ad Tormenting Difeale.

Bout the Month of January, 1661, a reverend gaudy Prelate, did put forth a Book in Print, Intituled, A Pillar of Gratitude, humbly dedicated to the Glory of God, the Honour of his Majesty, Gre. in which Book, pag. 62. (having before in many Rhetorical strains, bitterly Scolded against his Quondam fellow Covenanteers) he hath this angry and uncharitable Paffage ; That the Projects of the Presbyterians have Froth in their Head, and Blood in their Bottom; as the Water of those Men who labour with the Stone and Stranguery, and have their Wounds from within. It pleafed God within a few days after the publishing of this Book, to fmite the Bishop with that tormenting Distemper, which he there makes use of, to set off his falfe and fcandalous Impeachment of fo confiderable a part of the most conficiencious and peaceable People in the Land. He lay in very great extremity of Torture, and by reason of the Stopping of his Water, his Life was in great Hazard, and fo was forc'd to fend for a Chirurgion, who by making use of his Probe, did help him to make Water, which was Froth at the top, and Blood at bottom : And that the Lord might make him yet more fenfible of it, he repeated the ftroak a fecond time after the fame manner, as we have been credibly inform'd from very eminent and confiderable Perfons. We could heartily with that there was now alive another Mr. Rogers of Wethersfield, who would deal effectually with the Confcience of this proud frothy frothy Prelate, that he might be blefs'd with a more fanctified use of the hand of the Lord, in his Visitation of the Stranguery, than of his broken Leg, in the former times.

REMARKS.

The Circumstances of the Matter of Fact in this Relation, tho' represented under the worst Colours, yet don't come up in the least, to what seems to be intimated in the Title of it. Here a certain Bishop is charged with using bitter Expressions, and Inveighing against the Non-conformists, and a passage is cited for that purpole; I must confess, I can't find any thing in those words, which can induce me to believe, that the immediate hand of God shou'd be lifted up against this Prelate in favour of his Adversaries. TIS true, the Expression is smart, and the Comparison sufficiently biting; but as he speaks in this place not so much in relation to the Doctrine or Persons of the Presbyterians, but of their Projects; and that the Episcopal Clergy had felt the bitter Lash of the Non-conformists, for several Years past, to their coft, and that even the Smart remain'd, and the Stripes were not worn out in 1661 (when this happen'd) so it is no great Wonder, if a Person so nearly Concern'd in the Matter, did Exclaim against certain Projects of his Adversaries, levell'd perhaps against his own Person, or the Church, or perhaps against Both, whereof many Instances might be given in those times ; it being almost Natural for People to speak with too much Zeal or Heat in Cafes relating to themfelves; and the Expressions of Railing Prelate, of Gaudy Prelate, with feveral others mentioned in this Relation, sufficiently fhew that the Compilers thereof were not free from Pallion and Heat. But let us see how he was (mitten by the Lord, as the Title intimates. Becaule the Bishop had faid, That the Projects of the Presbyterians had Blood in the Bottom, as the Water of those Men who labour with the Stone ; therefore fays they, God was pleased to smite the Bishop with the same Distemper; and this they Alfert with as much Assurance as if they had been of God Almighty's Cabinet Council, and as if the Great and Merciful Creator and Prefervator of the Universe, had left the Management of his Impenetrable Judgments to their Disposal. If we duly weigh the Matter, it will be no difficult Task to difcover, that there is not the least Appearance of God's hand, or Judgment in this Cafe (in that Senfe as they would have it) the Diftemper under which the Bilbop labour'd at that time, was in all Human Probability the Stone in the Bladder, which being fix'd in the Neck of the Bladder, ftopt the Paffage of the Water. Had thele Men had any Inlight in Phylick, they would not have ventur'd upon fo Rafh and unaccountable an Application as this; fince the Torturing Pain and Stoppage of the Urine, being infallible Signs that the Stone fixt in the Neck of the bladder, was of a confiderable Bulk, and it being fufficiently known that fuch a Stone is progenerated, and encreases gradually; it is so far from what these Men would infer, that this Tormenting Diftemper in the Bishop ow'd its fecret Cause to his having exprefs'd himfelf in the beforementioned Words, that it is more than probable, that this Prelate having felt the difinal Effects of this Diftemper at feveral times before, could and did confequently make the beforefaid Comparison betwixt the Projects of the Presbyterians, and the Water of those afflicted with the Stone, in those lively terms express'd in the Relation; The Froth at the top of the Water (after the Surgeon had remov'd the Stone by his Probe) as it was no more than the Natural Effect of the Stoppage and long continuance of the Urine in the bladder, fo the blood at the bottom proceeded from the Veins, being wounded by the pointed Protuberancies frequently obferv'd in the Stone, and confequently imply nothing of any Supernatural Caule.

25

П.

An Apostate Minister, Struck with Sudden Death, by the immediate hand of the Lord.

About the end of December, or beginning of January, 1661. one Mr. Edwards, Minister of Bettus in the County of Salop, who formerly was very zealous for Reformation in the Presbyterian way, and of late became a great Conformist; upon a Monday Morning (after he had Preached and Conformed the day before) going very well out of his Houle to lead a Colt to the Water (his Servant at that time being otherwife imployed) was fudderly imitten by an Hand from Heaven, and returning prefently into his Houfe. and looking with a very pale and dejected Countenance, his Wife asked him how it was with him? To whom he replyed, Oh ! the hand of the Lord is upon me, or Words to that effect; he immediately took his Bed, and within a very fhort time died. The Jury that fate upon him, could find nothing about his Body that might occasion his fo fudden Death; only there appeared a small print of a Blow or Wound between his two Shoulders : But that which is further observable in this Story, is, That every night in the weak before the Death of this Minister, the Parish-Church Door was flung open, though lockt very fait all the day before. One evening efpecially, two very fufficient Men of the Town, finding the Door open, lockt it very fast, and tryed with all their strength to break it open, but could not; then they departed, and within an hour after returned and found the Door wide open. Alfo three Nights in the same week, viz. Monday, Wednesday, and Saturday, the Bell of the fame Church (there being but one) was heard to Ring several times, of its own accord. The truth of this whole Relation is attefted by the Inhabitants of the Town beforementioned.

REMARKS.

This Relation tells us a Story of an Apostate Minister, as they stile him. I am forry I can't forego to charge the Compilers thereof with Prefumption and Uncharitableness; with the first, because they intrude themfelves with fo much Boldness into the hidden and impenetrable Secrets of Providence; with the last, because they make a Man fall by the immediate hand of God, for no other Reason but his Conforming to the Church of England, after having been a great Zealot for the Presbyterian Perswasion ; It is beyond our prefent purpole to enter upon the Merit of the Caufe betwixt the Church of England and the Diffenters, and the Reafons alledg'd for their Separation from the Eftablish'd Church ; but fince it is confess'd on all fides, That the main Reason of the Diffenting Presbyterians is founded only upon External and Ceremonial Matters, I appeal to those Gentlemen, whether in Point of Charity, they can condemn a Man to the peculiar Judgment of God upon that Sc. e? And with what Face they can Inveigh with fo much Bitternels against the Church of Rome, for making it one of the Fundamental Tenets of their Dostrine, That there is no Salvation but in their Church? For confidering, that they differ from the Protestants in Matterial Points of Doctrine. Doctrine, they feem to have more Appearance of Truth on their fide, than those Compilers can challenge on this Head; when they make a Man feiz'd wi h an Apoplexy, and dying foon after (as it frequently happens in this Distemper) the Object of God's immediate Vengeance, for returning to the fame Church, in which (in all probability) he had been Educated before, and which differed not in any Essential Point, with that he had profess'd of late. To add the greater Weight and Lustre to this Relation, they tell us of the Church-doors being flung open, tho' lock'd very fast, and of the Ringing of the Church-Bell of its own accord; but fince they have not thought fit to infert the Names of these fusicient Men of the Town, who were Witnesses of the Matter of Fact, they will, I hope, easily excuse us, if we suffered our Belief, it being not improbable that some such the thing might be imposed upon them at a distance.

III.

A New Conformist killed by a Fall from his Horse.

Allo one Mr. Thomas, a Minister that lived near Bridgeworth in Shrepskire, (a perfon of the fame Character with Mr. Edwards, Minister of Bettus, before mentioned (only for his endowments and abilities far more eminent and famous in the Country) having been at a great Feast, making merry with divers Gentlemen, his Neighbours, as he was riding towards his home in the Evening, fell from his Horse, and the next Morning was found dead in the Highway. This is a thing publickly known, and great observation made of it in all those parts of the Country.

REMARKS.

The preceding Relation of another Conforming Minister is much of the fame Stamp with the former, fince they attribute his fudden Death to his having relinquish'd their Perswassion, whereas if we look narrowly into the Matter, the whole seems to be rather an Effect of his hard Drinking: There are too many Instances of this Nature, to admit of a Contradiction, and what they fay of his having been making Merry at a Great Feast, is a strong Argument for our Opinion; Had these Gentlemen been pleas'd to give us a more Circumstantial Account of the Manner of his Death, whether he was found much bruised, or wounded either by the Horse or Fall, a more exact Judgment might have been given in this Point. If they reply that God Almighty often exercises his Judgments upon Sinners by Natural ways and Causes; I answer, that this being an undoubted Truth, we ought not to frame Miracles, to serve our Turn, nor to be too busy in diving into the hidden Judgments of God.

IV.

A violent Perfecutor of good Men, his Horfe sunk under him in a Pond of Water (according to an Imprecation he had used a little before) he narrowly escaped Drowning, but presently fell sick of a Feaver, and died.

One William Covel of Horniger, Horning sheath, in the County of Suffolk, two miles from Bury, a violent Adversary to the Gospel, and the Faithful Preachers and Profettors thereof, did several times instigate the Constable of the faid Town, to present certain Conscientious and Peaceable men for not coming to the Parish-Church to hear Service; but the Constable did not at all hearken to him therein, being unwilling to have his hand in Persecuting and Molefting any of his Godly Neighbours : Upon which the faid Covel was fo enraged, that he wish'd his Horfe might fink under him, if he did not indict the Constable at the next Sessions, because he neglected (as he affirmed) his Duty, in not Prefenting those honeft Men, who refuled to hear the Common-Prayer : But it pleafed the Lord to Rebuke the rage and madnels of this Min; for about the latter end of the Month of November, 1661. before the time of the Sellions, upon a Market day, coming from Bury, and riding into a Pond, not far from his own House, to wath his Horse, as hew as wont to do, his Horle (which never used to do fo before) did fink under him into the Water, where he was in danger of being immediatelyDrowned, being fometimes under the Water, and sometimes above Water, as himself confessed afterwards ; but it pleafed the Lord, that one coming by and feeing him in this Condition, did presently call forth some of his own Family, who came feafonably to his help, and got him out of the Pond before he was Drowned. But though he elcaped then, yet the hand of the Lord did still follow him, for he soon after fell into a violent Feaver, whereof in a fhort time he died. And this is yet further to be noted, that he was the man, who a little before his Death did put the Parish to about 80 l. Charge, by reason of his extraordinary buffing to get the Bells new Rung, and new Hanged: And it pleas'dGod that he was the first in the Parish for whom the Death-Bell did Ring, after the new hanging of the Bells. The certain truth of this whole Relation is attefted by very many honest Persons, Inhabitants of the faid Town.

REMARKS.

Here is a long Story of a certain Perfecutor and Enemy of the Non-conformists; As I was always of opinion that no man ought to be perfecuted barely for Confcience fake, to I can't look with a good Eye upon those who practife it; being without doubt perfons void of that most Eminent Vertue, which makes up a great Part of a Chriftian ; I mean Charity. However, to come to the pretent State of the Cafe ; it remains doubtful according to the Account given here, whether Self-Interest, or perhaps Retaliation of Injuries receiv'd from the Diffenting Party (whilft in Power) might not have some share in the Matter; But be it as 'twill, whether by a mistaken Zeal, or otherwise, the Application, as made in the Relation, seems to be very hard, and without any Coherency. A man who has been violent against the Dissenters, rides with his Horfe into a deep Pond, the Jade takes a Freak and lies down in the Water, the Man is in iminent Danger of being drown'd, but is preferv'd by the Assistance of his Friends ! Where is the Immediate hand of God in this, unlefs in faving the Perfon from being Drowned, which is directly contrary from what they would Infer ! But fays they, he died soon after of a Violent Feaver; and so do some Thousands in a Year, this being the most General Distemper that puts a Period to our Lives. To strengthen their Assertion, they give us a Corroborating Argument, viz. That not long before his Death, he made the Parish bestow 80 pounds upon the Church-Bells, and alledge, as a deferved Punishment, that he was the first for whom the Death-Bell of that Parish did ring, after the new Hanging of the Bells. Strange Prodigies ! If this is not Triffing with the most Sacred and Abstruse Recesses of Providence, I know not what is; and it is a very bold Attempt for any man, that has taken an Averfion against Bells, to expose his Fellow Christian, after his Death, as an Object ofi of God's Vengeance, for being Zealous in the Ceremonial part of that Religion, in which he has been Educated, and which is Established in the Land!

(6)

A great Persecutor of some godly Ministers, killed by the Fall of a Riding-house, which was blown down by the Wind.

Unto these two last mentioned particulars, we shall add one more, because it concerns the same honest Minister, Mr. Field, though otherwise it comes in out of order, in respect it bears date after many particulars, which ought according to our method, to have been inserted before it.

One Mr. Luke Blith, an Attorney, living at Stamford in the County of Lincoln, an Officer in the late Kings Army, and in the prefent Militia, was a most violent Persecuter of Mr. Field, and did about the beginning of Hillary Term, 1661, express a great deal of rage and bitterness against him, and two other Godly Ministers in the Country, viz. Mr. Brown, and Mr. Richardson, and did openly fwear, that if they did not fpeedily Conform, he would not leave them an Horfe to ride upon, nor a morfell of Bread to eat; and accordingly came up to London, in order to the effecting of what he had in his Malice defigned against them. And particularly on the 18th. of February, 1661. before he went out of his Lodging in the Morning, he railed moft bitterly against the Ministers of the Gospel in general, but especially against Mr. Field, laying, He would do his Work for him that day. But the Lord prevented him in his purpose, for that very morning (as we have related before) he was flain by the fall of a Riding-houfe, near Pickadilly, which was blown down by that most tempestuous wind, which a great part of England hath fad cause to remember happened upon that day; and whereof we have given fo large account hereafter. The Truth of these three last Relations is confirmed by ample and fufficient Teltimony.

VI.

A Judgment of God that happen'd upon a Man and his Wife, who Swore falfly against a godly Minister.

Alfo one John Brown a Taylor, and an Inhabitant of Offington, beforementioned, was a known malicious Enemy to the faid Mr. Field the Minister, and one that by the infligation of the drunken swearing Priest hereafter spoken of, did take an Oath against him most fally and desperately. The next day after he had thus sworn, his Wife being very big with Child, fell down from a Ladder, and falling presently into Travel, was with great hazard delivered at last of a dead Child, which, as the spectators have affirmed, was all over as black as Ink. Brown also himself not long after fell down, and by the fall was fadly bruised, infomuch, that for many days after he was not able to move himself without help. How God hath fince dealt with him or his Wife, we have not heard.

VII.

An Episcopal Priest, who by Violence and unjust means, did posses himself of the Living of a godly and able Minister; had his Leg broken in a drunken Quarrel.

One Mr. Piers, an Epifcopal Prieft, a man of a most vicious and debauched Conversation, did very unjuitly and maliciously disturb one Mr. Field, a godly Minister, in his Rectory at Offington, in the County of Lincoln, and endeavoured by virtue of an illegal Prefentation from a private Patron, to poffefs himfelf of Mr. Field's Living; but Mr. Field overthrowing him at Law, he Suborned Witneffes against him, who swore him into a Prison, and then in a surreptitious way he gets possession of the Place, and the fame day intrudes himfelf into Company, with whom he drank like the Head of his Tribe, and swore no less than the biggeft Lifeguard-Oaths his Master could suggest to him, and than falls to quarrelling with some of the Company, who in delpight of the Charm of his Surfingle, did make bold with his Coat, and beat him sufficiently; and in the fray his Leg was broken, whereof he lay in most fad torture for many days; and whether he is fince recovered or not, we have received no certain information.

REMARKS.

These three Relations run still upon the same Strain with the former, viz. To shew the Judgment of God upon several Persons, for injuring the Non-conformilts, whereas the Misfortune of the Actorney's being kill'd by a Houle in a Violent Storm, must be numbred among those Accidents, unto which feveral other perfons were exposed, and felt the direful Effects thereof, during that Dreadful Tempest; What they tell us of the Taylor's Wife being Big with Child, falling from a Ladder, and prefently after bringing forth a Child, as black as Ink, is no more than what must be the Natural conlequence of a Fall from a Ladder under those Circumstances ; what is related concerning their falfly Swearing against Mr. Field, must be taken upon their Word ; tho' it is undeniable, that no perfon's Name ought to be exposed in Print, as being Guilty of Perjury, till he be Convicted thereof by a due Courfe of Law, which I believe these persons were not, because no mention thereof is made in the Relation ; What they tell us concerning Mr. Pierfe the Epilcopal Prieft, is, (if it may be rely'd upon in all its Circumstances) an Instance of a Drunken Quarrelfome Minister, who forgetting himfelf, his Education, Duty and Profession, by his Swearing, Curfing, Drinking and Quarrelling, prov'd a Scandal of the Church he belong'd to, and had his Reward accordingly, viz. a Broken Leg with its usual Symptoms, Torturing Pains; But as his ill Course of Life can't imprint the least Blemish to the Church of England, so his Broken Leg has but a flender Relation to the Diffenters.

VIII.

A great Persecutor of an eminent godly Minister, kill'd by one in his own Defence, be being in drink, assaulted upon the High way.

At Dunhead in the County of Wilts, lived one Captain Bennet, a violent Perfecutor of Mr. Inch, the faithful and able Minister of that place; he was often urged by the faid Mr. Bennet to read the Common-prayer book; but one time above all the rest, he brought the Book to Church with him, and in the face of the Congregation did present it to Mr. Inch, and with great violence and many menaces, did urge him to read it; but upon Mr. Inch's modest result, he grew outragious, and was even drunk and mad with Passion, threatning Mr.Inch, that he should not long continue to Preach there; wherein he was as good as his word, for by the violence and fury of this Man especially, he was soon after forced to relinquish his place, and to his great prejudice, to depart the Town also. Thus the Captain did demean himself, manifesting little less than the very venom and rage of Satan himself, Mr. Inch did by by a kind of Prophetick Spirit, declare to fome in the Congregation, that he believed that this man would not die the common Death of other Men ; which did accordingly come to pals; for not long after, the faid Capt. being much in drink, and affronting and allaulting one Mr. Dimon, a Citizen of Lond. in the Road near Salisbury, was killed by Mr. Dimon in his own defence; of which Fact, he was by Law acquitted at the Affizes following, and that by a Jury of Gentlemen, who were well known to be fufficiently prejudiced against the Parliament-Party, of which Mr. Dimon was judged to be one: But the matter of the Fact was fo clear and apparent, that in Honour and Confcience, they could not condemn him. This Relation is fo publickly known in the Country, that nothing need be faid to induce any to believe it. R E M A R K S.

Here we have a Narration of a certain Gentleman come to an Untimely Death, because, as they say, he persecuted a Godly Minister ; whereas, if you take a right View of the Matrer, it is evident that his Death was occafioned by his Drunkennefs, and his Affaulting another in a Violent manner on the High-way. They tell us he urg'd a Non conforming Minister to read the Common Prayer-Book, and prefented it to him in the Face of the whole Congregation; I can't for my Life difcover any thing that is Criminal in this Cale. Can a Man who was questionless Educated in the Church of England, be supposed to have incurr'd the Penalty of God's peculiar Judgment upon him, for preferring the Liturgy of that Church before the Ceremonies and Prayers of another Congregation, foreign and diffonant to his Opinion, and the Established Church ? They tell us, as a further Argument of their Affertion, That the Minister was by his Fury, forced to leave his Place and the Town. They would have done very well to express themfelves somewhat more Circumstantially upon that Head, whether the same was occafioned by any violent and illegal means, for, if not, the whole could at the worst amount to no more than too forward a Zeal for the Religon he profess'd, and perhaps a fingular Aversion to its Adversaries, which, if it deferves a peculiar l'unifhment at the hands of God Almighty, I am afiaid many among the Non conforming Party of those times, must needs have a Great Share in it ; and if fuch like Matters may be judged by the Event they have had fo, witnefs those who fuffered for having had a hand in the Murther of King Charles the First, and many more must needs have most Defervedly undergone very severe Penalties for their inistaken Zeal (to make the best of it) had not the King and Parliament thought fit in their Wildom, to fhew Mercy to a milguided Party.

IX.

One that very much rejoyced at the false Report of a godly Ministers Death, was suddenly strucken with Sickness, and died : The Minister, blessed be God, being yet alive, and well.

In the Month of September, 1661. it was frequently reported, that Mr. Venning, an Eminent Minister in this City (who lay long exceeding weak of a violent Feaver) was dead; which coming to the ears of a Person of some Quality, near Fanchurch street, seemed to be very welcom news to him, and he expressed much joy at it; he could not contain himself, but in a most unchrittian, yea, inhumane way, when he came home, immediately imparted it to his Wife and another Woman who was with her, who he knew very well.

well, did highly efteem and honour Mr. Venning, and his Ministry, saying in a triumphing and infulting manner, What will the Women now do? for their God Venning is dead. It pleased the Lord within a short space after, to strike this man with Sickness, whereof he presently died. But blessed be the Lord, Mr. Venning is yet alive, and restored by the mighty Power and goodness of God to his perfect Health again.

One suddenly dies, as he was accusing and complaining against some godly Nonconformists, to the Bishop of Chefter.

By Letters from very honeft and fober perfons in Chefhire, it is affirmed as a most certain Truth, that before the first Bishop of Chefter died, an Intormer comes to him at Chefter, and acquaints him with some refractory People at Wiggon in Lancashire, who would not conform to the Laws and Canons of the Church. He makes bitter Complaints against them, but before he could finish his Story, the Lord finish d his days; for while the Accusation was yet in his Mouth, he fell down before the Bishop, and died immediately. We doubt not but upon enquiry, others besides Fanaticks will fatisfie the Reader of the Truth of this Relation.

REMARKS.

The two preceding Stories are fo infignificant in themfelves as fcarce to require any Remarks; However, a Perfon of fome Quality falls fick and dies ; but they fay, the Lord struck bim ; and why ? Because he understanding that a Non-conformist Minister was dead, he Rejoyced at it; and told a Woman, that was a great Admirer of the faid Minister, What would the Woman now do? &c. These Gentlemen make strangely bold with God's Judgments; I leave it to the Judgment of any fenfible or unbyafs'd Perfon, of what Opinion foever, whether the Jeafting with a Woman concerning her Overfondness, and perhaps Immoderate Zeal for the Minister's Person (a defect frequently incident to the Female Sex) can be without a great deal of Uncharitableneis, accounted a Crime punishable, no lefs than with Death, and that by God's immediate hand ? Thefe Gentlemen making themfelves both Parties and Judges in their own Cafe, and sheltring themselves under the Coverture of Divine Providence, prove very Severe, and I am afraid not impartial Judges; for elfe, among lo great Number of Relations concerning the pretended Judgments of God against those who opposed their Ministers, they would not have neglected to infert also some Cales relating to those of the Episcopal Clergy, who in those days bore a sufficient Share in the Perfecutions raifed against them, unless they have Prefumption enough to give the Name of godly Ministers only to those of the Non- conforming Party, which in point of Charity I believe they have not, it being Notorious that the Church of England has, and does produce to this day, as Great and as Good Men in their Ministry, as any Church in the World: As to the other Story; tho' they tell us that the Reader may be fatisfy'd of the Truth of it, upon enquiry, I think they would have done much better, to have made that Enquiry themselves, and to have imparted it in all its Circumftances, without which, I can't fee how it can make the leaft Impression upon the Mind of the Judicious Reader; For, Suppose the faid Informer to have been upon the fame Errand with the Bishop feveral times (as in all probability he might, nothing being alledged to the contrary in the Relation it felf) fuch an Accident may very well be Numbred among the Common and most Natural Accidents of Humane Life.

C

An

An uncharitable Abuser and Reviler of Mr. Hugh Peters, killed by a fall from bis Horse when he was drunk.

X.

(10)

We have been certainly informed from very good hands, that one Colonel Carnaby, who lived in or about the City of Durbam, did frequently affirm with great uncharitablenets, to divers lober perfons in Durham, that Mr. Peters was drunk when he was hanged; not long after this, on a Lords Day, the faid Colonel Carnaby was invited, with fome other Company, to one Colonel Stewarts house to dinner, where they horribly prophaned the Lord's Day, and fell to excellive drinking; and the faid Colonel Carnaby was fo drunk, that upon his return home that night from Colonel Stewarts, who lived not above two miles from Darham, he first lost his Company, and afterwards, within half a mile of the Towns end, loft his Way, and took to the Road leading to Newcastle, where the next Morning he was found dead in a Pool of Water and Dirt, with his Face downwards, yet there was not fo much Water in the Pool as would cover him. This is notorioully known at Durham, and it is observed by the People there, that he who fallely and malitiouly accused another for dying in his drunkennels, was himself really ovetaken with that fin, and by the righteous hand of the Lord, cut off in it.

REMARKS.

This Relation is strain'd to the highest pitch of Prefumption and Folly above any we have met with yet in this Treatife. In one of the preceding Accounts, a Man dies for Rejoycing at the fuppofed Death of an Eminent Non conforming Minister ; but here another is cut off by the righteous hand of the Lord, for Reviling, as they fay, one of the worft of Criminals, after his Death, i. e. for faying that be was drunk when he was Hanged. Since the Compilers thereof, at the Conclusion of their Preface, call the All-knowing God and Searcher of hearts to witness, that their Design was not to stir up Sedition ; I can't but in point of Charity acquit them in some measure of that Charge, which has been laid at their doors by many, and that not altogether without great appearance of Reafon; For, to ftand up fo far, as they do here in behalf of a Perfon made a most just Example of Publick Justice by the Laws of the Kingdom, for having been instrumental from the very beginning of the King's being feiz'd at Holmby, in Contriving with Cromwell, Ireton and Harrison, the faid K. Charles the First's Murther, in several private Meetings, at the Star in Coleman-street, and the Nag's Head over-against Basingball-street ; and Aiding and Affisting therein upon several Occanons, as it is apparent from the feveral Paffages and Proofs in his Tryal; I fay, to espouse in such a manner as they do the Cause of such a Criminal. feems to intimate no lefs, than their justifying in some respect his Actions, and that were it not for the great Aversion they have to the Red Letters in. the Almanack, they would enter him in the Lift of Martyrs and Saints, who thew their Miraculous Effects of their Anger (after their Death) to those that dare provoke them to Revenge. However, as I am willing out of Charity, to interpret the whole rather for a miltaken Zeal, than the Effect of a premeditated Malice against either Church or State, so on the other hand, we can't without Injuffice pass by in filence certain Paffages relating to the Life and Execution of Hugh Peters, which may justifie the Conduct of Coll. Carnaby, and confequently render him not near to guilty in the Eyes of the World, as these Compilers would perswade us : 'Tis notorious that when K. Charles was brought from Windfor to London ; Hugh Peters rid before him ; That he compar'd the Tryal of the faid King to the Day of Judgment, and the Tryal of the Whole World, which should be performed by the Saints, and Preaching before Oliver Crommell the next day after the Sitting of the faid Court, he chose the three last Verses of the 149 Pfalm, To bind their Kings in Chains, and their Nobles in Fetters of Iron; This bonour have all the Saints, &c. which Words he apply'd in an abufed Sense to the present State of the Kingdom. The next Sunday after the Murther of K. Charles I. was committed, he preach'd another Sermon in Justification of the Fact, choosing his Text out of Ifaiah. v. 14, 18, 19, 20, 21. All the Kings of the Nations, even all of them lie in glory, every one in his own House; But thou art cast out of thy Grave, like an abominable Branch, and as the Rayment of those that are flain. thrust thro' with the Sword, that go down to the Stones of the Pit, as a Carcass trodden under foot; Those shalt not be joyn'd in Burial with them, &c. This Sermon had for its Title on the top ; The Tyrant's Fall : Whereas at the Death of the Ulurper Gromwell, Preaching next day in the Chappel at White-ball, he took his Text in Deuteronomy; My Servant Mofes is dead. The Application is foon to be guefs'd at. I will not here infift upon feveral other bloody Transactions and Defigns laid to his Charge, during those Intestine Troubles of England, fuch as the putting to the Sword 4500 Men, most English and Protestants (and that after Quarter promised) at Tredaugh in Ireland, which as it was attributed to the Advice of Hugh Peters, fo it answered their End, in frightning all the reft of that Kingdom into a Submiffion to the Parliament in 12 or 13 Months time. I will, I fay, not infift upon this and many fuch like other Matters laid to his Charge, but the beforementioned Pallages being Notorious, and transacted in the Face of all the World, What wonder is it, if fuch a Man as Coll. Carnaby, highly devoted to the Interest of his King, and the Welfare of the Church of England, should cast some Reflections upon a man, whom he knew to have been the Deftruction (as far as in him lay) of both. 'Tis true, we ought always to express our Charity to the Dead; yet must not from thence be inferr'd, that the evil Actions, and fuch especially as have been transacted upon the Publick Theatre of the World, fhould escape the Censures of Men; But to come still somewhat nearer to the Point : As it is agreed on all hands, That the faid Hugh Peters was from his Youth a perfon of a very unequal and unftable Temper, and his Genius always inclining more to Violence and Rafhnefs, than a firm Refolution and Conftancy, fo the fame appear'd very confpicuous at the time of his Condemnation and Execution: For, whereas that Notorious Criminal Cook, who was Executed at the fame time with Peters at Charing-Cross, shew d both during his Imprifonment, and at the Place of Execution, an uncommon Composure of Mind in all his Words and outward Actions. 'Twas quite contrary with Hugh Peters, who conftantly betray'd himfelf by the many violent and contrary Agitations of his Soul, being queftionless the Effects of his former Guilt, which at this last time of Tryal, appearing at certain Intervals before his Eyes (tho' he would not own it at his Execution) made him confess, That he was not sufficiently prepared for Death; and as he was going from Newgate to Charing cross (the Place of Execution) he appear'd fometimes very stupid, fometimes enclining to Frenzy, in Knawing the Fingers of his Gloves, and at his Execution, burfling out into fudden and violent Weepings, holding hs Hands before his Eyes, and entreating the Executioner to dispatch him by Checking the Rope, and accelerating his Death. To put the Truth of this beyond all Exception, we need but make the least Reflection upon the Words of Mr. Cooke, who, as we told you before, was executed with Hugh Peters, who among other things in his Dying Speech, expresses himself thus to the Sheriff : He thank'd God he could welcom Death ; but as for Mr. Peters, he could have wish'd that he might have been repriev'd for some time, for that he was neither prepared nor fit to die. After this Testimony coming from the mouth of a Dying Man, who suffer'd for the same Caule with Hagh Peters, to his last Gasp, I can't see with what prospect of Success, or with what hopes of meeting with an Approbation from the unbyals'd and judicious Reader, they could pretend to put to grofly upon the World, as to make us believe that the Deach of a Man, occasion d by his falling from his. Horfe in a Pond or miry Place, after having loft both his Company, and his Way in the Night time, must be attributed to a Peculiar Judgment of God, by way of Punishment, for having Reviled and Abused, as they call it, Mr. Hugh Peters. If we Poor Mortals are permitted to make a fearch into the hidden Causes of Divine Judgment, they would, in my Opinion, have come much nearer to the true Mark, if they had look'd for the true Caufe of this Gentleman's Misfortune in his Excels of Drunkenness and Profanation of the Lord's Day, than in his Error of miltaking the Frenzical Behaviour of a Criminal for the Effects of hot and intoxicating Liquors.

of

C 2

and

XI.

One who threatned to Indict an honest Non conforming Minister, was suddenly taken by Death, and so prevented in his Design.

We have receiv'd certain Information from very credible Ferfons, that about the time laft mentioned, the Mayor of Bridgenorth in Shropfhire, did very fharply threaten the Minister of that Town, who is a godly Non-conformist, that if he did not presently Conform, he would have him Indicted the next Sessions; but God prevented him, for he going to walk in the Fields, was fuddenly taken very ill, and within a day or two after at the most, died, and so could not put his threatning in execution at the Sessions, which followed not long after his Death.

XII.

A great Reviler and Persecutor of Good Men, taken away suddenly by Death.

Much about the fame time, one Capt. Rand, a Sea Captain, (who hath been publickly taken notice of as a Man of a most debauched and vicious Conversation, but especially he was observed to be a notorious Reviler and Persecutor of Non conforming Ministers and People) as he was upon a Lord's Day in the Chappel at Shadmell in Stepney Parish, was suddenly and strangely simitten with the hand of the Lord, which made him cry out and roar in a strange and unusual manner, in the Congregation, out of which he was immediately carried, and within a very short time after died.

XIII.

A sad Judgment befalling a violent Railer against a godly Non-conforming Minister.

Not long after the time last mention'd, Mr. Ince the Faithful able Minister before spoken of, was by Violence and Oppression driven out of his Living, and the Malice of some of the Inhabitants being so great against him, meer-

ly

ly for Righteousness lake, it was not judged safe for him to abide in the Town anylonger, whereupon ke relolved fuddenly to remove to fome other place; and in order thereunto, Wagons were provided to carry away his Goods, which one Mr. Moullins (an Inhabitant of the faid Town of Dunhead, and a great Enemy to Mr. Ince) feeing, the night before Mr. Ince's departure, express'd a great deal of Joy at it, and did openly speak words to this effect; To morrow when this Ince goes away, I will keep the Merrieft day that ever I kept at Dunhead : But when the morrow came, the Lord by a fad hand of Providence quite changed the Scene, and made him keep one of the most forrowful days he ever kept in his whole Life before ; for that day going forth in the morning with his Cart, his Foot flipt, and falling down, he was not able suddenly to recover himfelf, and the Wheel of the Cart went over his Leg, and bruifed it very forely, fo that he lay all that day in extream pain and dolor; at last it Gangren'd, and after two or three days extremity of Torment, he miferably ended his Life. This alfo is publickly known to be a certain Truth, and no doubt made of it by any that liv'd thereabouts.

REMARKS.

Here are three other Stories much of the fame Stamp, as relating altogether to the Punishment of perions accused of Reviling and Perfecuting Nonconformist Ministers. The first tells us of a Man dying suddenly, only for Threatning a Minister with the Law, if he did not Conform; And in the fecond, another perfon happening to fall very ill, and being feiz'd with Torturing pains (perhaps the Collick) and dying toon after, his Death must be attributed to his having been a Reviler and Perfecutor of Non conforming Ministers and People. Strange and vain Suppositions! For a Sett of People to make themselves thus, as it were, the most intimate and familiar Favourites of God Almighty, as to engage him upon the least Occasion in their Quarrel, which, as it feems, can't be reveng'd with lefs than the Death of the pretended Offenders. If you are not fully fatisfy'd with the Truth of it, they give you another Instance of it in the Third, Numb. 13. Here a certain Person Rejoycing only at the Departure of faithful Minister (his Enemy) and telling his Friends, that he would be merry that Day when he left the Place, had the Misfortune the fame day to have his Leg broken by a Cart-Wheel running over it; I can't for my Life fee what Coherency there is betwixt an Accident of this Nature, and the being an Enemy of a Nonconformist Minister, and confequently being glad at his Departure; unless they will infift upon the Circumstances of the Time, it happening the fame day : But fince by the Natural Course of things, our perfons are at all times exposed to a thousand Casualties, why might not such an Accident befall a Perfon as well on that, as on another day, without having reourfe to the sad hand of Providence; which, as it is most certainly hid from Humane Eyes, fo I can't but once more admire at the Forwardness of the Compiler's of these Relations, for having recourse to it upon all Occasions, to serve their own Turn, without the least Regard to those of another Perswasion. The Death of the last mentioned Person, as it proceeded from the Gangrening of the affected Part, fo it may perhaps be attributed to the Neglect or Unskilfulnels of his Country Surgeon; And tho' I won't deny but that God inflicts frequently his Temporal Punishments upon the Wicked by Natural Means; yet I can't agree with them in the Application, as if every one was at Liberty to Judge

Judge of the Effects of such Casualties, depending on Natural Causes, as immediate Effects of Cod's Anger, according as it suits best with his Opinion or Interest.

XIV.

A sad Judgment of God upon two false Witnesses against a Godly Non conforming Minister.

Much about the fame time, one Mr. Ince a godly faithful Minister at Dunbead in the County of Wilts, was by the falle Oaths of two malicious Perfons in the Parish (instigated by another, whom we shall have a fad occafion to mention hereafter) bound over to appear at the Affizes; but before the time came, one of these Witnesses was strucken with a fore Sickness, at which time he was very much troubled in his Spirit for his wicked purposes, and defign to testifie fally against that good Man, he expressed hearty Repentance for it, and immediately dies.

The other whofe name was Thornes, being defperately harden'd in Sin, notwithftanding the Signal Judgment of God upon his fellow Perfecutor, appears at the Affizes; and fwears most falsly and maliciously against Mr. Ince, upon which he was cast, and according to our best Information, was Fined about forty or fifty Pounds; immediately after which, as this miserable forfworn Wretch was returning home from the Affizes, there arose a Pimple in his Cheek, which foon after turn'd into a Cancer, and by degrees did eat further and further into his Cheek, till at last, after he had endured many very fharp and tormenting Pains, it killed him. This is a thing publickly known, and the truth of it not at all questioned by any in those parts.

REMARKS.

This Account would questionless bear the greatest Weight of any I have feen as yet in this Treatife, were the Matter of Fast prov'd duly in all its Circumstances; Perjury, which defrauds a Man of his Reputation, Livelihood, Estate, and sometimes of his Life, is a Crime so Abominable, both in the Eyes of God and Men, that it is no Wonder if God fixes peculiar Marks of his Wrath on those that are guilty of it, as the Law of Men makes them the publick Scandal and Reproach of Mankind and Civil Society, without any regard to the Qualifications of the Perfons unto whom the Injury is done : But fince in molt of their Relations, they endeavour to engage God Almighty and his Judgments in behalf of Non-conforming Ministers and their Party, they ought to have been more Clear and Perspicuous in the Particulars of these Accounts, it being an undoubted Rule in Law, that no body can be both a Party and Judge; and all the Proofs a Man can alledge in his own behalf, depends barely from the Probability of the Circumstances, attested by others. Had the Compilers of this Treatife made due Reflections upon that Maxim, they would not fo frequently have laid Perjury, Subornation of Perjury, and fuch like other Enormous Crimes, at the Door of their Neighbours, without giving some Convincing Proofs thereof to the Reader, belides their own Affertions. For, supposing some may be so charitable as to believe their Intentions as real and fincere as they express them in their Preface, there will be not wanting fuch as will look upon many of these Narratives as Invectives against the Church Party, and inferted on purpose to inveigle the People inco. a Belief, that God having taken the Non-conforming Clergy in a peculiar manner under his Protection, those who opposed them, were fure to meet with his his Judgments; These are the Thoughts, I say, which will be harbour'd by many upon this Point, and not altogether without fome probability, confidering that these Relations were publish'd in 1662, at a Juncture when the Episcopal Clergy, after the Restauration of K. Charles II. began to Repossels themselves, of what had been taken from them during the Civil Wars and Troubles, by Sequestrations or other Illegal Means. To avoid the danger of those Shelves, the Compilers ought to have put all Objections relating to the Truth of the Matter in all its Circumstances, beyond Contradiction, by inferting the Names, Qualifications, and Places of Abode of fuch Perfons, as being Unbyass'd, and of a Sound Judgment, had been Eye and Ear-witnesses of the Matter of Fast. For instance, in the present Case, two Persons are charged with Perjury, and a third with Subornation. To clear this Point in the Eyes of the Judicious World; As to the first person, it was absolutely requifite, that his Name and Character should have been mentioned, as likewife the whole Cafe with all its Circumstances, fairly stated, and Attested by Credible Perfons, wherein he was supposed to have given his false Evidence; fince the Binding over of the Non-conforming Minister to appear at the Affizes, was, questionless, grounded upon the Depositions of Both. The next Branch relating to this pretended Falfe Witnefs, is his being troubled in Spirit, ... and expressing his Repentance upon his Death-bed: To put this also beyond all Contradiction, they ought to have related the Method or Means used, or what other Circumstances happen'd, which occasion'd or produced this Change in his Mind; and as the Expressions of his hearty Repentance of fuch a Villany (if Sincere and without Compulsion) either were or might have been made in the Presence of certain Judicious Persons, so their Attestation in the Matter would have been of the greatest Moment, to convince the World of the Truth thereof. The Name of the fecond falle Evidence is Inferted, 'tis true, with a very bad Character annex d to it; which, however he deferves, and a great deal worfe, had they in this as well as in the preceding Perfon, prov'd the Charge against them, under the before-alledg'd Cautions and Circumstances ; But the Non-conformist Minister being Cast and Fined at the Affizes upon his Oath, the Presumption will be for the Evidence, of his* having Sworn the Truth, till he be Convicted of Perjary by the Law, or at least till the Crime laid to his Charge, be prov'd otherwise by Undeniable Witneffes, and other Circumstances. What is alledg'd here concerning a Pimple arifing in his Face at his very Return from the Affizes (which turn'd to a Cancer) ought to have been made evident, in reference to this peculiar Circumstance, which in all probability might have been most conveniently done by a Certificate from the Person that had him under his Cure; For, the Cancer being a very unaccountable Difeafe, which often efcapes the Infight of very Judicious Practitioners, should it have happen'd in this Cafe (as it frequently does) that the Cancer lying conceal'd, or at least undiscovered before, did now break out in his Cheek, the whole Miracle would fall to the Ground, . and there would be no more in the whole Story, than that a certain Perfon, fuspected by some of having taken a false Oath, died not long after under the Tormenting pains of a Cancer. They feem for their Justification to appeal to the general Vogue of those living thereabouts; but this is too weak a Foundation Pillar whereupon to raife our Judgment of the most abstrufe Abyls of Divine Providence; and which by the daily Experience of its Fallity

Falsity, is long ago exploded by the Knowing World: Taking it for granted that the Intentions of the Compilers of this Treatife be as fincere as they would make them; yet I hope they won't exempt themselves from being subject to those Frailties, common to all Mankind, which is, To be easily blinded in Matters relating to our felves, either out of Self-Love, Interest, or some other Passion, which I am afraid they are not altogether exempt ed from, fince in this as well as several others of their Relations, they have frequently recourse to the Publick and General Knowledge, without mentioning any Persons proper to attest the Matter in question, under its due Circumstances, and consequently the Narrative feldom comes up to what the Title intimates, which is commonly Sad and Dreadful Judgments of God, against the Persecutors of Non-conformists Ministers. I have perhaps dwelt too long upon this Account, but the Subject Matter being common to most of the Narratives, the Argument will ferve, in certain respects, in Answer to the Rest.

XV.

An Episcopal Parson who was active in Indicting a godly Non conforming Minister, was murdered by a Distracted Man of his own Family.

At the Summer Affizes last holden at Bury in Suffolk, on the 29th of July, 1661, one Mr. Albern Minister of Norton, not far from Bury, did Indict, or cause to be Indicted, Mr. Taylor, a godly able Minister in Bury, upon the Statute of the 15 of Q. Elizabeth, against Conventicles, for meeting with iome honest People to pray and Worship God. The Indictment was found by the Grand-Jury, and the fame day or the next day after, while the Affizes yet continued at Bury, the forementioned Mr. Alborn, was going home from a Gentlemans House where he dined that day, through a Meadow, not far from his own House, where met him one Mr. Ward (who had been Distracted, and was sent to the faid Mr. Ashborn for Cure (who it feems was famous in the Country upon that account) and was now become very fober, and carried himfelf very civilly and orderly, and was fuffered to go without any keeper) the faid Ward fell upon Mr. Alborn in the Meadow, and with his own Fork which he then had in his hand, he thruft him through the Neck, and got him down upon the Ground, and then with Mr. Alborn'sown Knife, which he pulled out of his Pocket, he Wounded him in feveral places and left him dead; Mr. Ward was immediatey apprehended and Committed to Bury Goal, and no question before this time, hath anwered the Law for the Murder he committed.

REMARKS.

Here you meet with a higher Strain; In the preceding Relation, two fuppoled falle Evidences against a godly faithful Minister, undergo the sad Judgment of God; but in this an Episcopal Parson is kill'd by a Madman, for having Indicted only a godly and able Non conforming Minister, for keeping a Conventicle. Bleffed People ! who have thus far Infinuated themselves (in their own Opinion) into the Favour of God Almighty, as that the least thing done against them, must be punished by his Peculiar Judgments. I don't speak this in the least to defend or encourage Perfecuting Frinciples in Religion, and it were to be wish'd that some Church-Men as well as Dissenters, had shewn more Moderation in this Point, in their several Turns, when it was in their Power to hurt one another; To rehearse the Particulars whereof, whereof, as it is beyond our scope, and would serve only to widen, and not to flop the Breach, fo I am willing to pass by in filence. However I can't on the other hand but observe, that it will seem very hard to the greatest part of Mankind, that a Man overfway'd by a too forward Zeal only for the Religion he professe, and taking a due Course of Law (as then Establish'd) against those, whom, questionless, he judged its Enemies; should I say, for the fake of fuch a mistaken Opinion, be exposed to the immediate Vengeance of God ! I am afraid these Gentlemen out of Partiality, intrude themselves too far into the Hidden Secrets of Divine Providence. What makes me shrewdly suspect the Matter, is, that as they always give to their Non conforming Ministers the Epithets of godly, able, faithful, and such like, the Episcopal Clergy is generally Dignified by them with quite contrary Names; But what I admire most of all, is, that among the many Relations inferted of Gods Judgments (which happen'd in a little time) to fall upon the Perfecutors of the Non conforming Ministers, there should not be one, which has the least Relation to the Sufferings of the Episcopal Clergy, during all the Time of the Civil Wars in these Kingdoms, and the Punishments inflicted by God's hands upon their Persecutors. To fay they were not perfecuted, is to deny things transacted in the Face of all the World; To say that they were all Ungodly Men, and deferv'd not God Almighty's peculiar Care (as their Minifters did) is an Affertion fo full of Prelumption, Vanity, and Uncharitableness, and so contrary to Truth, as not to deferve any farther Reflection.

XVI.

A Person killed, and others hurt by Lightning, when they were engaged in a Drunken Meeting.

At Wanford in Suffolk, on the 30th of July 1661, one Mr. Abfolom, an Inhabitant there, provided a Barrel of extraordinary Strong-Beer for his Landlord, Sir. John Roufe a Parliament-man, and some other Company, viz. Captain Lemon, Mr. Dougate, Mr. Terril, and others; they all met at the faid Mr. Abfoloms House, about two of the clock in the afternoon, the day beforementioned, they drunk very freely, being met together for that very purpole; and when they were in their Cups, they began to revile and rail against fome honest Christians, who lived not far from the place, and did indeed in that humour, very feverely threaten all the Phanaticks; and as one of the Company hath confeiled, they begun a very ftrange and unheard of Health, it was fo horrid that the Gentleman would not name what it was, but cryed out very bitterly against ir, and Sir John Rouse, who began it. And as they were thus Blaspheming God, railing against his People, and abufing themselves and the good Creatures of God, the Lord sent a great Storm from the South east, and with it a very dreadful clap of Thunder, which was a Warning piece to them; and within a quarter of an hour after another, and with that a terrible Flash of Lightning, which came down with fo great force upon the North fide of the House, that brake thorow the Tyles and came into a Chamber which was over the Room, where the Perfons beforementioned were Drinking and Revelling, it fnook in pieces the Bedftead there, and then came down into the lower Room where the Gentlemen were; it threw one of them upon the Table, and wounded and bruiled another of them extreamly, that he was forced to keep his Bed a D great great while after ; it ftruck a third of them dead, who was burnt as black as a Coal ; and as the Jury affirmed, was the faddeft Corps that ever was beheld ; all the reft fo afrighted and amazed, that they were for the prefent as dead Men : After this it went out at the South-fide of the Houfe, and made as great a breach there as it did upon its entrance, on the other fide of it. This is a Story fo publickly known to be true, that none in the Country hath the Impudence to queftion it : Only we do earneftly beg of the Lord that one Evidence more of the Truth of this Relation may be added to the reft, that the Gentlemen who are the Survivors of this Eminent ftroak from Heaven, may underftand and be fenfible of the meaning of it, and fpeedily repent and reform, left God referves them to be more fignal Examples hereafter of his Wrath and Vengeance.

REMARKS.

I think this is the first Relation, which in a peculiar manner, feems to have respect to that of Disposing of People to Judgment, to Repentance, which in the Preface is afferted to be the Design of Publishing this Treatife, tho' you may observe by the by, that for fear of receding too far from their former Method, they thought fit by a fide Wind, to bring the Fanaticks into the Game. Supposing the Matter of Fact to be true in all its Circumstances, especially in reference of what is alledged concerning the Blaspheming of God (whereof the Compilers make themselves the only Judges, without inferting the least Particulars, the whole may ferve as a Warning to others, that God fometimes makes use of Natural Means, to terrify and punish Sinners, in order to reduce them to a due Confideration of their Duty.

XVII.

Several Perfons who were active against the coming of a godly eminent Minister at Leeds, died suddenly.

By Letters bearing date July 22, 61, from very credible Perfons Inhabitants of Leeds in Tork flire, we are affuredly informed that at the Seffions of the Peace, holden there, a little before the date of the faid Letter, many honeft fober men, who would have brought in Mr. Edward Bowles of Tork to be Minister there, were indicted. Four Men did swear a Riot against them, and within lefs than four days immediately following, three of them, being young, lufty, and healthful men, were supected also that he would die presently; but whether he hath fince recovered or no, we have not heard.

REMARKS.

Here is another Touch upon the old Harp and of the fame Tune; We have had Inftances of feveral Sorts of Punishments fall'n upon those, who have born false Witness against, who have Indicted, nay who have but spoke irreverently of godly Non-conforming Ministers; but in this Account, no less than four Persons, all Young, Lusty and Healthful Men, are suddenly cut off by Death, for Opposing the coming in of one godly Minister. They tell us they swore a Riot against some Sober Men, who would have brought in this Non-conforming Minister, without mentioning whether fally or not; but in all probability upon very good Grounds: For, had it been otherwise, they would not have been sparing in mentioning it. If then they swore to the Truth of Matter of Fact, what room pray is there for a Supposition of an Extraordinary Punishment. These Gentlemen would have done very well to have have inferted the Names of those Inhabitants, that writ the Letters, that so other People as well as they might have been Judges of the Truth of the Story.

XVIII.

A Young Man drowned when he was fwimming on the Lord's Day.

On the 21th of July 1661, being the Lord's Day, a young Man an Apprentice in Holbourn, neglecting the Work which the Lord hath enjoyned us on that Day, went upon his Pleafure down to Redriff, and at two of the Clock in the Afternoon, when the People were going to the publick Affembly, he went to Swim in the River of Thames, where as it is conceived, the Cramp took him, and before he could get any help, he was drowned.

XIX.

An Episcopal Parson killed by a fall from his Horse when he was drunk. About the Month of June, or July 1661, an Episcopal Parson living about Brentwood in Essex, being in that Town on a Fair or Market-day, did there drink to a great Excess, infomuch, that as he came home at night, he fell from his Horse, and by that Fall was killed and taken away in his Sin. This is a thing notorious in these Parts, and no dispute amongst any of the Inhababitants there concerning the Truth of it.

REMARKS.

These two Relations having nothing Extraordinary, we will make only this short Observation upon them; That, as the first is an Accident, which too frequently happens on Sundays, when Apprentices and others that have constant Employments during the Week, spend their Time in the Water during the hot Season; so the second, being the Effect of Drunkenness in a Person, who in his Station ought to have given a much better Example to others, ought to serve as a Warning to the rest of the same Function, to deter them from such like Excesses. I can't however but take notice by the by, that the better to clear themselves of being reputed Partial, they might have inserted also some Instance or other of the Trespasses of Differences; fince I imagine they would scarce shew so much either of Vanity or Partiality, as to aftert, that they have no Instances of that Nature among them.

XX.

A young Man who was active in abusing the Solemn League and Covenant, was smitten immediately by the hand of the Lord.

According to our beft Information on the 23d of April, or the 29th of May 1661, when the People of Grantham in the County of Lincoln, were affembled at the Bonfires, which were made in that Town, a young man was very forward in abufing the Solemn League and Covenant, and did hang it up upon a Sign Poft, or Gibbet provided for that purpofe. It pleafed the Lord immediately to strike him with a Sense of what he had done, and as he is worn away to nothing but Skin and Bones : and whether he is now living or no, we can give no certain account.

REMARKS.

To rail, or to revile, to perfecute (as the Compilers are pleas'd to term it) a Non-conformift godly Minister, to Indict him, to be a Witnefs against him, nay even to take possession of what belong'd to a Man before, are (as they will have it) fuch detestable Crimes, as must infallibly be attended with God's immediate Judgment upon those that attempt any thing (tho never never so justifiable in it self) against God's pretended Favourite Servants. Hence it is, that you fee their Enemies, some to break their Necks, some to be Drowned, some to be struck by Thunder and Lightning, and some to be taken off by other Fatal Accidents. These are the Miracles wrought (and that in a little time) by the Saints upon Earth, or rather by the Earthly Saints; A rare Stratagem indeed, to deter Mankind from touching their Copy-Hold, at a luncture when the Face of Affairs being changed, the Episcopal Clergy began to make use of the Jus Tailonis, and Reputundarium, i. e. To retaliate upon the Non-conformists their former Injuries, and to retake Posieffion of what had been taken from them before. However hitherto these Gentlemen thought fit to keep themfelves within the Compais of the Perfons Benefices, and the exercise of the Religious Functions of the Non-conforming Ministers, but in this Relation they mount higher; The holy and pious Solemn League and Covenant, which was the Foundation-Pillar on which they built all those Monstrous Projects, which caused all the Miseries and Devastations, during the Civil Troubles in these Kingdoms, can't be affronted by a young Lad, without feeling the heavy and immediate Effects of Divine Vengeance ! I can't forbear upon this Occafion, to be (very Frank with these Gentlemen, and to tell them, that, if they expected a Relation of this Nature to pass for Current (notwithstanding their Protestations) in all its Circumstances with the sensible Part of Mankind, they must have alledg'd more Convincing Proofs, than what proceeds from their best Informations; and, fince in this, as well as in some other Accounts inferted in this Treatife, they have outdone most of the Popisk Legends, they will for Good Manners fake, not ex-claim with so much Bitterness and Violence (as they used to do) against their pretended Miracles.

XXI.

Two Witnesses against a godly Non-conforming Minister, the one killed the other.

About the middle of April 1661, one Mr. Revel Minister of Uval in Cornmal, being much maligned by some malicious Neighbours for his Aversness to the Service Book, was by them Indicted at the Sellions for fome Seditions words, pretended to be spoken by him. Two persons especially were depended upon to make Oath against him, and to prove the Indictment. But before the time of the Selfions was come, there happen'd to be a Meeting of feveral People to make Merry (as they call it) at or near the Town beforementioned ; Several of them continued together drinking and rioting all the night; amongst them were the two intended Witnesses, against the faid godly Minister; and in discourse together about their Manhood, they began ro quarrel, and the one challenged the other to wreftle with him, which was accepted, and the Challenger was thrown by the other, which did fo provoke him, that arifing from the ground, he laid hold on a Rapier which was in the hand of one of the by-standers, and therewith immediately killed his fellow-witnefs, and forthwith fled for his Life, and according to our best Information, hath not fince been heard of. By which Providence the further profecution of Mr. Revel fell to the ground, and fo an innocent perfon was preferved by this eminent hand of the Lord against his malicious Profecutors. Of the Truth hereof we have receiv'd clear and sufficient Teftimony from perfons of Prudence, and unblemish'd Reputation in those

REMARKS.

Here is a repeated Instance of the Misfortunes fall'n upon two perfons, who intended to profecute a Non-conforming Minister, for his Aversedness to the Service-Book. These two perfons are not accused of any Delign of Perjury against a perfon, who stood Indicted for Seditions Words spoken by him, so I can't lee how this Cale can be apply'd to what they infer thence at the latter end of this Relation, viz. That by Providence and by the eminent hand of the Lord, an innocent Perfon was preferved : For, had he been actually as innocent as they would make us believe, the Witneffes intending to make Oath against him, multhave been forfworn Wretches, which, if they could have been prov'd to be, no queltion these Compilers would in this place as well (as they have done in feveral others) stretch't the point to the utmost, to clear the Innocence of a Non conforming Minister, either by undeniable Matter of Fact, or at least by fome probable Circumstances, attefted by credible and unbyafs'd Perfons. Buc this being not done, I hope they will pardon us, if we can't be fo fully per-Iwaded of his Innocency, as to imagine, that God's Providence had in a peculiar manner, a hand in his Deliverance; but that the ill Chance, and perhaps. also God s Punishment, that befell these two intended Witnesses before the Tryal of the faid Teacher, muit be confidered as an Effect or Confequence, of their Rioting and Hard Drinking all night, which made them first enter upon that foolifh Difpute about their Manhood, and afterwards raifed in one of them a Spirit of Revenge, to fuch a pitch, as not to be latisfied without the Marthering of the other. In the whole, I fee nothing like a Miracle here, fuch like Difafters, occasioned by the irregular Living, and excessive Pallions of Men, are so frequent, that they can't in the leaft be reckon'd among Miraculous Accidents; no more than the Deliverance of the Non-conformist Minister from his Prolecution, fince we often see the worst of Miscreants escape condign Punishment, by some Accident or other, befaln those, that were to be Witneffes against them.

XXII.

A Canonical and Conformable Parfon who had uttered a falfe and lying Divination, was smitten with a Cancerous Distemper in his Mouth and Throat, whereby his Tongue Rotted in his Head, by which means he soon after died.

At Stradgwell, or Stradishal, in the County of Suffolk, one Mr. William Proctor, a Canonical Conformable Priest, who was formerly Ejected thence upon Articles of Scandal, as Drunkenness, Suborning to Perjury, Oc. fince the late Revolution, was reftored to the faid Place and Living of Stradifhall again, where in his room, one Mr. William Folkes a very able godly Minister, had been long settled by Sequestration; whose abode and stay there was much defired by the Inhabitants, who, that they might enjoy the Gospel by his Ministry, profer'd a considerable Maintenance to the said Mr. Proctor, upon condition he would keep to his other Living (whereof he was then possels'd) and not displace the faid godly Minister whom they so defired. - But he totally rejected this fair Propofal, and did force himself upon the People without their Confent, pretending that he had a Revelation for it, and that it was Revealed unto him that he should come into his. Living of Stradishal again, and should enjoy it fo long as he had been eected out of it, which was about 16 Years. But in a thort time after, about the Month of March or April 1661, it pleased the Lord to smite him with with a Cancerous Diffemper in his Mouth and Throat, fo that his Tongue (which had uttered this Lying Divination) Rotted in his Head, whereof he died before half a Year was expired. The truth of this is attefted by most of the Inhabitants of the faid Parish, who were both Eye and Ear-witneffes of several Passages in this Relation.

REMARKS.

We are now come to a downright Quarrel betwixt a Canonical and Con. formable Parson, and a very able and godly Non-conforming Minister. And which of these two do you think, is likely to prove the best Man? I could have told you without looking far into the Relation, that it was the Last; For, the Gentlemen who were the Compilers of this Treatife have carefully avoided to give us as much as one Instance to the contrary. You will perhaps wonder, how the Canonical Minister came to have the worst on't, fince it seems, he only challenged what had been his 16 Years before, and was accordingly reftored to his Living. Hold, fays the Non conformilt Party, he was Ejected for Scandal, Drunkenness, and Suborning to Perjury; but this ought to be proved by unquestionable Evidences, fince his Reitoration feems to intimate the Contrary, it being more than probable, that the Non-conforming Minister and his Party, would not fail at that Juncture, to alledge these things in Opposition to his Restoration. But, reply they, he got the Better of us (by a pretended Revelation) before the World, tho' not before God. For the Lord did smite him with a Cancerous Distemper, whereof he died in half a Year. It is a Riddle to me, how a Man of such a Character, as he is represented by them, in the beginning of this Relation, fhould have such an Influence upon the People, as to make his pretended Prophecy pals current among them; certainly they had a much better Opinion of him, and confequently their Acculation refts upon as flippery Foundation, as the Confequence they draw thence, of his being fmitten by the hand of God; what convinces me the more in this Point, is, that the Cancer being (for the most part) a lingring Diftemper, and appearing Protens-like, under various Shapes before it is truly difcover'd (unless by a very Judicious Physician or Chirur geon) it is very probable, they might be milled into an Error, that the Cancer broke out about the time mentioned in the Relation, whereas it had lain undifcovered for a confiderable time before, and confequently there i nothing that refembles a Miracle in the Cafe.

XXIII.

Some New Conformists taken away saddenly by Death.

Several Ministers, to the number of fix or seven, who lived not far from Chichester, in the County of Sussex, renouncing their former Ordination and entring into Episcopal Orders; and in other particulars also, shewing their fudden Zeal for Conformity, were in a very short time after taken a way by Death, to the association of the Inhabitants there, who too great notice of the hand of the Lord in that passage of his Providence.

XXIV.

Five New-Conforming young Ministers, who lived near together, were all ful denly taken away by Death.

Also in Dorsetshire, and not far from Dorchester, five young men, ve eager and hot Conformists, who were newly settled in Livings near each ther, were suddenly, and almost altogether, taken away by death : whi is very much observed and spoken of by the People in those parts, where it is easie for any one to receive Satisfaction about the truth of the Relation.

(23)

XXV.

A Minister heretofore forward for Reformation, and suddenly turn d Conformist, was struck with Frenzy and Madness, and remains still in the same Condition.

One Mr. Allen a Minifter, who had a Living near a Town call'd Godliman in Surry, where he was very well accepted amongft the People, and feemed to be very zealous for Reformation againft Superfittious Epifcopal Conformity: but being overcome by fome Temptations, began to Conform; and had no fooner done it, but his Confcience began to fly in his face, and he lay under very great trouble and anguifh of Soul, and grew exceeding melancholly, which ended in perfect Diftraction, and according to our beit Information, he continues raving mad to this day, and is become a burden to himfelf, and a fad Spectacle to all his Friends and Acquaintance; but we hope an Example to all, to engage them to take heed of the leaft Violation of Confcience, tho' it be to preferve either Life or Livelihood in this World.

XXVI.

While a Canonical Parson was upon his Knees eating the Consecrated Bread, the Ground sunk under him, and he fell in up to his Middle.

By Letters bearing date the 3 of February 1661, we are certified by very good hands, that not far from Dorchefter, a Conformable Parson, was, according to the Canon, Celebrating the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, and while he himself was down upon his knees eating the Confecrated Bread, the Ground sunk under him, and he into the same down to his middle, to the Astonishment of those three or four Communicants who joyn'd with him at that time. This is much talk'd of, and smil'd at by many, because it was his Wives Grave, which he kneeled somewhat too heavy upon.

XXVII.

A New Conformists Wife drowned her self in a Pool.

Much about the fame time, Mrs. Oake the Minister's Wife of Clifton, in the County of Dorfet, who is a New Conformist, leaped into a Pool, and drowned her felf: The truth whereof is confirmed by Letters from Personsof unquestionable Reputation, who are of the Neighbourhood.

REMARKS.

These feveral preceding Narratives or Stories, relating to divers Ministers who Conform'd to the Church of England, being a Continuation of the former Collection of Matters of the same Nature, appear to be undeniable Inflances of what I had occasion to hint at before in divers passages of our Remarks, viz. That unless they shew'd more Impartiality in reference to the Church of England, in their Relation, they would (notwithstanding all their Solemn Protestations) not escape the Just Censure of the unbyals'd Reader. They are so far from pursuing this Method in these as well as in most of the ensuing Accounts concerning the Judgments of God, &c. that on the contrary, they now make the Returning of a Man to the same Church, in which he was happily Educated, and from which he had been perhaps missed by Weakness or the Instantions of a Beguiling Generation; or the Conforming of a Person upon better Information or Considerations, a Crime, not to be expiated, with any thing less, than the Paculiar, Visible, and Immediate Effects of God's Vengeances geance. They had hitherto kept within certain bounds of Modefty, by couching their Farious Zeal against the Church of England, under various Crimes, fuch as Perjary, Subornations, are laid to the Charge of its Ministers and Professes; but now finding the poysoned Bait greedily swallow'd by the Giddy and Ignorant Multitude, they judged it feasonable, to take off the Mask, and bare-faced to Affert, that the Conforming to the National Established Church, is to be plac'd in the same Rank with the worst of Crimes.

To put this beyond all Contradiction, we need but to look back into the words of the Preface (prefix'd to these last Relations) wherein they are for far from Difguifing their Defign under the Vail of bringing others to Repentance, and making this the main Aim (under most Solemn Imprecations) of publishing these Relations, that they launch out into most bitter Expresfions, and unaccountable Invectives against such as after the Restauration, did Conform to the Church of England. They file them Renegadoes, who against all Principles of Light, Confcience, and Ingenuity, have received the Mark of the Beast, at least in their right Hands, if not in their Foreheads also, and have most (hamefully deserted their Colours. They file the Rites and Ceremonies receiv'd and used in the Church of England, the most Ridiculous, Exploded, and Obfolete, Superflitions Fopperies, they compare those that Conform to it (after the Restauration) to Judas and Julian the Apostate; and allert boldly and pofitively. That the Lord bath made (everal of them (upon that account) very pubblick and eminent Examples of his fore Displeasure, and hath set them up as so many Sea-Marks, that the rest of their Brethren, with all others, might see and fear, and avoid the Rock upon which these Men were split, and so have made shipwrack of Faithand of a good Confcience. It is almost surprizing, how a Sett of People that pretend fo much to Charity and Peaceable Dispositions, should have the Face. to act fo far contrary to it, as to give most Reviling Names to the National . Eftablished Church, under the fame Government whereof, they enjoy the Protection both in their Perfons and Estates ; and that for no other realon, but because they differ in some External and Ceremonial Parts, fince it is agreed among them, that their Difference is not in any Effential Points of Religion. I would ask these Gentlemen, whether this favours not incre of a Furious Zeal, and perhaps also of Self-Interest, than of a Real and Sincere Intention of Converting others? And whether it is pollible, that to charge the Conforming Clergy with baving made Shipwrack of Faith and Conscience in Matters indifferent in themselves, is the way to reduce them to the Non- conformists Party? If they will Reflect without Prejudice upon the Matter, they will be Convinc'd, they have taken a wrong Courfe, fince it is not Railing and Invective Expressions, but Strength of Argument, accompany'd with a mild and well-temper'd Difpolition; that is likely to convince Mens Opinions, in their Erroneous Practices; How far, or whether at all, the Conforming Ministers after the Restauration, were guilty of any Error as to that Point, is not my Bufinels to determine (that Part being to be left to every man's own Confcience) but this I think I may boldly fay, that supposing the Non-conformists to be in the right, the Method taken by the Compilers of 'these Relations, appear to all unbyass'd Judges, adapted rather to Impose upon the Ignorant Multitude, who being influenced rather by Fear than the true Dictates of Reason, might confequently by such Dreadful Examples of God's Judgment (as they represent them) be deterr d from 2 301 GC deferting the state of the sea deserting the Non-conformist Party, at a Conjuncture, when they lay under no imall Temptations of returning into the Bosom of the Church, from which they had either been Inveigled or Snatch'd away before. This being the best, and, as I may fay, the most Charitable Construction the Case will admit of, we must look upon these Relations like the Legends of the Roman Catholicks, and that they thought fit to follow their Footsteps, in making use of what they call Pios Frandes, or Religious Cheats, to keep the People in Awe, and that confequently the Government could not without Injustice be blam'd (as they feem to do both at the Beginning and Conclusion of this Treatile) for keeping a watchful Eye over the Press, to prevent its being usher'd into the World. This will appear more evident, if we cast but an Eye upon the Relations themselves. In the first they tell you of 6 or 7 Ministers near Chichester, who renounced their former Ordination, and entred into Episcopal Orders, and were in a very short time snatch'd away by Death. In the second, they tell you the same Story of 5 young hot Conformists, not far from Dorchester, suddenly, and almost altogether taken away by Death. No question but they inferted these Accounts, with an Intent to back their Affertion in the Preface, concerning the Froverb among the Bohemians Hussites; That if a man were weary of his Life, he need but attempt fomething against the Piccardines (for so they call'd them) and he should not out live a Year: How far the Cafe of the Huffites might be compar'd or apply'd to theirs, I will not examine at prefent, but this I may affirm without Prefumption, that in cafe they would have the Judicious Reader to draw any folid Consequence from thence in their behalf, they ought to have been much more Circumstantial in their Relations, and prov'd the whole by better Evidences than their own Affertion ; In the third of these Narrations, they have, I must own, been more careful in this Point, by inferting the Name and Place of Abode of a certain Minister, who after having been very Zealous against Superstitious Episcopal Conformity, begins to Conform, turns Melancholly, and at last qu te Distracted. I wish they had given us some certain Circumstances (attested by the Friends of the faid Minister) shewing in what manner the Trouble and Anguish of his Soul, as the Effects of his disturbed Conscience, did manifest themselves, and by what steps or degrees it was raised, first to a Melancholly, and at last, to a distracted Condition. These things fairly represented, would have put the whole into a clear light ; whereas without them, we can have only a confused Notion of a thing, which instead of God's Peculiar Judgment, as they would have it, may upon due Examination prove no more than the Natural Confequence of a Melancholly Disposition, which being heightned, and the Humour put into a Ferment by the Infinuations of others, that represented his pretended Desertion in the worst Shape, might occasion a Total Distraction in his Spirits. The 4th and 5th, as they are almost Ridiculous in themselves, fo they must only serve as Instances, how ready they are to Embrace any thing that may ferve their Turn; which is to Expose the Ceremonies of the Church of England. For I would fain know what Miracle there is in a Man's falling (whilft upon his Knees) up to the Middle into a Grave not very well cover'd; or in a Man's Wife drowning her felf in a Pond, but that the leaft, nay even the most common Accidents, befalling a Canonical or a New conformist Minister, must be set up as a Sea- Mark of God's Revenge against them !

XXVIII.

(26)

XXVIII.

A Minister, heretofore forward for Reformation, while he was Administring the Sacrament according to the Canon, was struck Dumb, and a Gentleman who was chiefly Instrumental to perswade him to it, struck with Madness. About the beginning of March 1661, one Mr. Johnson a Minister, who came out of Ireland, and was placed at a Town called Lanckes, or Lancras, near Biddiford in the County of Devon, was much importuned by the Parifhioners, and more efpecially by one Mr. Hutchins (who did urge him with greater Violence than all the reft) to Administer the Sacrament in a promifcuous way, and according to the Canon. He for a while refifted their Importunity, and being a man very much for Reformation, and unwilling to to gratify them in their demands, especially upon the terms which the Parishioners with fo much violence infilted on. But at length he was perfwaded to do it, and told them, that if they would buy Bread and Wine, he would administer it to them ; which accordingly was perform'd on their part. And when the day came, he proceeded to the Celebration of the Ordinance; and while he was engaged in the work, or immediately after, he was smitten Dumb in the place, and so continues to this day: He only makes a noife with his Tongue, and feems to be defirous to ipeak, but cannot. The other Person, viz. Mr. Hutchins, who was so zealous in the businefs, was allo' at the fame time bereft of his Senfes, and went forth Curfing and Swearing, and remains outragiously Mad to this day. Such as were Eye-witneffes of this fad Dispensation, have given us affurance of the truth of it.

XXIX.

A New-conforming Minister strangely tempted to ride over a poor Woman in the Road, and so to wound her, that within a few days after she died.

In the beginning of March 1661, one Mr. Polewheele, Minilter of Tavestock, in the County of Devon, a very zealous Non-conformist, was charg'd by fome violent and malicious Perfon, for speaking fome Treasonable or Seditious words: To appeale the Clamour that was hereby made against him, and to pacifie his Accusers, the next Lord's Day after, he read the Common-Prayer-Book, which, according to his expectation, prov'd an effectual Expedient to attain the end which he proposed to himself in doing of it. But the following Week, this man, upon occasion, Riding from home, over-took a poor Woman travelling on foot upon the Road; when he came up with her, he told her, he must ride over her: Ride over me Sir, faid the Woman) What needs that? The Way is broad enough for us both. That is all one (faid he) I will ride over thee : and then fets spurs to his Horse and bare her down, and rode. over her indeed ; and not only fo, but gave her feveral Blows with his Staff, whereby she was so hurt and wounded, that within two days after the poor Woman died. Whether the Law hath proceeded against him the last Affizes, we have not as yet received any certain account.

REMARKS.

Here you have two Stories much of the fame Stamp with the former, wiz. to fhew that nothing but immediate Punishment of God, and that in a most peculiar manner, can attend those, who from being Non Conformists, dare venture to be reconciled to the Ceremonies of the Establish'd Church; supposing we should agree with them in certain Respects, in what they afferr sert in their Preface; That as Christ is Piorum Rupes, i. e. A rock of Refuge to his People, to he is Reorum Scopulus, A rock of Revenge to Perfecutors to fplic them in Pieces. I hope they will not have fo much Prefumption, as to make the Application for themselves, but leave the Determination of the fame to unbyafs'd Judges, unleis they could prove beyond all Contradiction, that they were the only true People of God, and the Conformists the direful Objects of God's immediate Vengeance. To prove this, they will find a very difficult Task, and I am fure the Method they have taken in these Treatifes, will evince nothing like it; For, if they will needs infift upon the various Diffasters and Accidents of Humane Life, befaln those of the Church Party, and Interpret them (tho' with what Authority I can't fee) as peculiar Judgments of God; if, I fay, they will reprefent those infallible Marks of God's Displeasure against certain People or Faction, I must ask them, Whether they can have Vanity enough to imagine that the Non-conformist Party has been exempted from fuch like Fatalities? Had they not then but of late Years fufficiently felt the heavy hand of God's Judgments, when after an Arbitrary Smay and Osurpation of several Years, they at laft, chiefly by their own Intestine Jars, Divisions and Animosities, brought about the Restauration of K. Charles II. and the Church of England? As this Grand Revolution was attended with the Overthow of their pretended Ecclefiaftical and Civil Power (which thereby became precarious to their Enemies) and the Ring-Leaders of their Faction paid for it with their Lives (after a most Ignominious manner) fo I can't imagine with what face they could obtrude upon the World, these Relations of God's pretended Judgments upon the Conformists, without making the least mention of such as related to their own Party. Since then according to their own Rules prefcribed here, they can't be the Lord's People (because they have not been exempted from the Judgments no more than others) they will I hope excuse us, if we don't joyn with them in their Applications. What they tell us of a Minister who Conformed to the Church of England, being struck Dumb, will bear but little Weight, after what has been faid, unlefs they had by undeniable Evidences proved the Matter of Fact, in that Circumstance especially, which relates to his being Smitten Dumb in the Place while he was Celebrating the Ordinance; for fince by the feveral indirect Ways and Methods made use of in many of the preceding Accounts, and fufficiently difcover'd in our Remarks, they have forfeited all their Reputation of being Impartial, How can they blame the unbyasid Reader, if he gives but little Credit to fuch like Relations, except they find the fame to be attefted by Wirneffes of unquestionable Credit? The same ought to be apply'd to Mr. Hutchin's Cafe; Had thefe Compilers confider'd how many Stories of this nature are printed and publish'd, which upon enquiry prove either forged, or at least falle in many Circumstances, they would scarce have presum'd to impose thus far upon the Credulity of the Judicious Readers, as to make them take their Word for ir, unless they had been pleased to have inferted the Names, Places of Abode, and true Characters of their pretended Eye-witnesses. This will appear more evident from the following Account (Nov. 30.) which under the Circumstances it is related, is so ridiculous and inconfistent with Reason, that they ought to have produced a whole Troop of Witneffes, and those also of unqueftionable Reputation, to make it go down with the more Understanding Sort

E 2

Sort of People. How can it be conceiv'd, that a Man, who is reprefented even in the Relation it felf, neither as Mad nor Drunk, fhould without the leaft Provocation given him, ride over a poor Woman on Foot in the Highway, and after that wound her with his Staff to fuch degree, as that fhe died in two days after. But what is more Surprizing than all the reft, is, that after fo Barbarous and Notorious a Fact, the Law fhould not proceed againft the Malefactor; they themfelves owning that they had not as yet received any Account of that Point; But I think they ought to have fulfpended at leaft the Publication of this Relation, till they could have received fuch an Account, which would have put the whole Matter in its true light in all its Circumftances: which they having not thought fit to do, this Account mult be put among the reft of those feveral others, wherein they manifeltly berray their too forward Zeal and Defign to brand the Church of England and its Minifters, with Infamy, to deter their own Profelytes, from joyning with them in Communion.

XXX.

A New-conformist upon discontent from what he had done against his Light and Conscience, hanged himself with his Sursingle.

At a Town call'd Kainton, in the County of Dorfet, not far from Sherbourn, one Mr. Palmer was Minister, who through the Importunity of some of his Acquaintance and Relations, was prevailed with to read the Common-Prayer-Book; but afterward was filled with much horror of Confcience for it, and lpoke to a Friend to go to fome godly People, and intreat them to Pray for him; and withal, fignified to him the Caufe of his Trouble: But his terrors and temptations encreasing on him, and falling into the very depth of despondency and despair, did either speak or fend to his Friend to desift, and to fay nothing of what he had told him; and within a very short time after, viz. on the 7th of March 1661, did hang himself in his Chamber with his Confecrated Girdle, vulgarly call'd a Surfingle. This fad Story is publick ty known throughout the Country, and hath afrighted and aftonished many of our late New-conformists in those parts. But some, to palliate the bulinefs, have given out that his Troubles did not arife from any fense he had of the Evil of Conforming, but because he had lately laid out a great deal of Money upon a Purchafe, which proved to have a very crack'd Title, and. fo was cheated of all his Money. Whether this be true de facto, yea or no, is not worthy of a dispute, but that it should be assigned as a cause of his discontent, and of what followed upon it, we can by no means allow, in regard of the fure and undoubted Evidence we have of the truth of the. whole Relation abovementioned. However, it is agreed on all hands that he was a New-Conformist, and upon discontent, soon after he had practiled his Conformity, did hang himfelf with his Surfingle; which certainly is fufficient to startle any one whose Conscience is not seared with an hot Iron, that hath offered violence to his Principles, and for filthy Lucre fake hath received the Mark of the Beast on his Forehead, or in his right hand. And we hope that this and fo many other pregnant Initances of the like nature, will be efpecially observed by all the Brethren in the Ministry, who have hitherto kept a good Confcience in that particular, as fo many gracious and feafonable Warnings from the Lord; yea, as to many certain Sea-marks to direct their course, that they may (notwithstanding all their Temptation) be preferved from.

from iplitting not only their credit and reputation, but the peace and comfort of a good conficience upon that fatal Rock of Conformity.

XXXI.

A zealous Non-Conformist, engaging to Administer the Sacrament against his Light, and his former Practice; was taken away by Death before he could perform his Promise.

In the fame Month of March 1661, one Mr. Knight, a Minister in Suffex. a zealous and stiff Non-Conformist, was by importunity, and for fear of loofing his Place, prevailed with to make a promife that he would in a promilcuous way, contrary to his former practice, give the Sacrament to the whole Parish at Easter following. When the day drew near, he was much perplexed in his mind, and expressed a great deal of trouble, that he should so far wrong his Conscience, as for fear of a little outward loss, to do a thing fo valtly difagreeing to his present Light and former Practice, he languished and declined very much under the ienfe of his guilt herein, and it pleased the Lord to remove him by a seasonable death, before he actually discharged his engagement, the thoughts whereof were so bitter and dread ful to him, to the last Moment of his Life.

XXXII.

A Prelatical Parson threatning to trouble some honest men in his Parish for not coming to Common-Prayer, was taken away by Death before he could effect it.

Much about the fame time, one Mr. Wilcocks (a Conforming Episcopal Parfon in Suffex) hearing that one in his Parish (whose Name on purpose we omit) had faid, he would not eat any of Wilcocks his Porridge; his meaning was, he would not hear any of his Common Prayers, did fharply reprove him for using such rude and defaming words, of so holy and perfect a Platform as that was; and withal told him in a menacing way, that before he was a month older, he would make him, and all the reft of the Phannatick Non-Conformists in the Parish, come to Divine Service, or suffer the severest Penalties which the Law in that case had provided. But it pleased the Lord that before the time which he affigned for the execution of his threats was expired, he was feis'ed by a desperate Sickness, which in a fhort time brought him to his Grave.

XXXIII.

A debauched Prelatical Parson struck Dumb, while he was Preaching, and one fide of him smitten with a dead Palsie, and suddenly after died.

One Mr. John Buckles, Parlon of Chester, about five Miles from Durham, a man notorious in the Country for Swearing, Drunkenness, with many such other Prelatical endowments, did upon the 13th of April 1662, Preach in the Cathedral of Durham, in the course of one of the Prebends there. His Text was, Prov. 24. 16. For a just man falletb seven times, and riseth again; but the wicked shall fall into mischief. From which Scripture he took occasion to come within the compass of the Prophets Wo, in calling Evil good, and Good evil; accordingly it came upon him : For, before he had fully hnished his Sermon, the use of his tongue, and one fide of his body was taken away by a dead Palsie (as was conceived) he continued so till the Tuesday following, and then died. This is so notoriously known at Durham, that none in the City, nor yet in the Bishops Palace, have the face to deny or question it.

RE-

REMARKS.

These 4 preceding Relations are undeniable Instances of what we faid at the very Conclusion of our last Remarks ; And in the first, it appears so barefac'd (by their own words) that it is past all Contradiction. A New Conformist Minister hangs himself, as they say, being struck with a Remorse of Conscience, at having read the Common Prayer-Book against his Light and Conscience; but according to the Relation of others, for having Purchased a very crack'd Title, and being Cheated of a great deal of Money. Notwithstanding this Signal difference, which alters the whole State of the Cafe, they don't think fit to enter into a Dispute, whether this be true or not, de facto, but it will strain the Point to such a pitch, as to make his Discontent and his Hanging himself the immediate Effects of his being a New. Conformist, because, forfooth, he hang'd himfelf in his Surfingle. But if we inspect more narrowly the Matter, we shall find that this Stretch was made on purpose, to take thence a fresh Occasion of Reviling the Church of England and its Ceremonies, and to deter all the Brethren in the Ministry (as they express themselves) from receiving the Mark of the Beast, &c. and to look upon many other Instances of this like nature as workings from the Lord, and as so many Sea-Marks to be preferved from splitting the Peace and Comfort of a good Conscience upon that fatal Rock of Conformity! I could not forbear to repeat these words in our Remarks, they being, as I told you before, fo many Instances of the true Defign of the Compilers of these Relations, which being before couch'd under various other Pretences, they now thought fit to difclose ; but upon a very unseasonable Account, fince, according to their own Confession, it remains dubious, whether his Conformity or his Coveteousness, was the true Caule of this fatal Diffaster. The next fucceeding Relation seems to be inferted for no other End, than to ferve as a Confirmation of what they had faid in the Conclusion of the last; the Circumstances under which it is represented, being, if not altogether Contradictory, at least to Incongruous, as not to admit of any due Coherency. They charge a certain Quondam Non conformist Teacher with a Defign of turning Conformist in the Month of March (without mentioning the date) But betwixt that time and Easter-day (when he was to Administer the Sacrament according to the Rites used in the Church of England) he dies, or is removed by the Lord by a seasonable death (as they are pleas'd to express themselves) occasioned by a Languishing and Declining of his Health ; How far a Languishing and Declining state of Health is confistent with the small Interval of time betwixt March and Easter-day, I will leave to the Judgment of the Phyficians, who, if they were confulted, would questionless, give it against the Compilers of these Relations, it being much more probable, that this Languishment of his Body, having its beginning some confiderable time before March, was brought to its last Period by Easter ; for if otherwise, and that the Minister here mentioned, had such bitter and dreadful Thoughts of his Engagement or Defign, Why did he not recall it, and repent of what he judged against his Confcience? In the account of Numb. 33. they proceed still further; for whereas in the former a Man dies because he engaged to Conform to the Church of England; here a Conforming Epifcopal Parfon undergoes the fame Fate, and pray for what ? for Reproving one of his Non-conforming Parishioners, and Menacing others ; But pray tell us here what induc'd him to it? One (whofe Name they will not mention, and they are much in the right of it) He would eat none of the Minister's Porridge; I am confident no unbyass'd Person will deny, but that the Minister had all the reason in the world to Reprove his Parishioner for fo undecent an Expression, which according to their own Confession, was meant of the Common-Prayer ! If the Minister was somewhat too violent in his Menaces, What can they alledge for themfelves, when in a Scoffing Manner, they stile the Form of Common Prayer, wholly and perfect Platform? The last of the 4 next proceeding Relations, brings upon the Stage a Notorious drunken and swearing Prelatical Parson; Well, and what then? This Parson, as he was Preaching, was seis'd with a Hemiplenia or Dead-Palsie on one fide, as they call it, before he could quite finish it; and having lost the Use of his Tongue, dies not long after. Where is the Miracle of all this? A man given to Drunkenness (taking the Relation for true) to be feis'd with fuch a Diftemper as is here mentioned, nothing being more frequent than Accidents of this nature to debauch'd Perfons, especially those of a far advanc'd Age; But how will these Compilers elcape the Censure of being Uncharitable and Defigning Perfons, when they stile Drunkennefs and Swearing, with other fuch like Vices, Prelatical Endowments? When it is Notorious to all the World, That the Church of England has, and does still produce vast Numbers of Men, Great and Eminent as well for their Lives, as for their Learning; and who confequently ought no more than the Church herself, to be made Partakers of the Vicious Practices of some of their Members and Brethren; But the least Pretence serves these Miscreants, to render the Church and its Ministers odious, in order to Bug-bear their Non-conforming Auditors into an ill Opinion of Both.

not

XXXIV.

Two debauch'd Persons rejoyced in the Death of Coll. Barkstead, and having gotten a Piece of his Liver out of the Fire, carried it to an Alebouse; and when they were almost drunk; would needs eat a piece of it, which they had broil'd on the Coals; and thereupon both fell desperately sick, and one of them died presently.

Upon the 19th day of April 1662, the day on which Col. Bark stead, Col. Okey, and Mr. Corbet fuffered at Tyburn; amongst the many Thousands who went to fee that Execution, there were two men, Inhabitants in Horfy-Down, who in an elpecial manner are to be taken notice of. When they beheld Col. Barkstead (whom it feems they had a particular hatred against) in the Cart, they express'd in a very Rude manner their Rejoycing, that now they should fee him die. They got very near the fire wherein the Bowels were to be burnt, and having a convenient opportunity, did cut off a piece of Col. Barkstead's Liver, and put it up in a Cloth; and when the Execution was finished, they carried this piece of Liver home with them; and in the afternoon, themselves, with some other of their rude Companions, went toan Alehouse to make merry, because, as they faid, The Rogue Barkstead was. hanged; and the piece of Liver which they brought home with them was produced, to heighten their mirth the more. At length, these two fellows drinking themfelves almost drunk, began to be very extravagant, and refolved they would eat up this piece of Col. Barkfread's Liver; and acordingly prepared it for the Coals, then laid it on and broyled it, and then did eat up a good? part, if not all of it: upon which, they both immediately fell desperately fick, and within a few hours one of them died : and the other not like to » continues continue long in the world. This Relation is sufficiently attested by the Neighbourhood, who will give fatisfaction to any that will enquire after it. XXXV.

A debauched Person rejoycing in the death of Sir Henry Vane, vomitted up blood till he died.

A rude debauched Person, who lived at the Goat Tavern in Olaves Southwark, did much rejoyce at the death of Sir Henry Vane, who was executed on Tower-Hill, June the 14th 1662, on which morning he was heard to fay with much joy, That he would go see the bleffed stroak given. It pleased the Lord, that not many days after, this man died vomiting up nothing but blood. This is sufficiently attested by Persons of good Reputation, who were of his Neighbourhood.

REMARKS.

They now proceed from the Clergy to the Laity; and whereas in the former it was a Capital Crime to act against a Non-conformist Minister, or to acquit their Party and Conform to the Church of England, they now frain the Point higher, and involve even those, who abuse the Non-conforming Laity (tho' Traytors) only by words, and that even after their Death, in the fame Fate with the reft; If that is not Imitating Popery, in Canonizing Traytors after their Death, I know not what is; Of this they give us two pretended Instances in Num. 35. and 37. I must confess that to Insult over a Dying Man, who is to fuffer the Law for his Crimes, favours but little of Charity or Generofity; but that fuch like Trespasses should for that Reason be consider'd no lels than Capital Crimes, deferving God's immediate Judgment, is what I can't conceive, fuch like Brutish Actions being commonly the Effect of Drunkenness in the Common People, who being overcome by the Strength of Liquors, let lofe the Reins of their Beaftly Inclinations, and oftentimes meet with their due Reward, before they are able to recover their true Senses, as it happen'd in this Cale; But that relating to Sir Henry Vane Num. 36. appears far different from this : For supposing a Person to fay, He would see the bleffed Stroak given to a Man who dies by the hands of Juffice, can't be arraign'd of any Crime, but by fuch who would make all those of their Party, who suffer'd for their Cause (tho' never so juftly) pass for Martyrs and Saints that work Miracles after their Death. Suppoling this Vomiting of Blood, should be no more than good Claret, whereof, Men of that Trade are apt to take to a great Excess: But supposing it to have been really Blood, where is the Miracle ? Since by the Acid Particles of the Wine (when taken Immoderately and without Intermifion) the Veins of the Stomach being corroded, occasions an Effusion of Blood into that part, which being conjeal'd, is discharged by Vomiting, and frequently proves the immediate Cause of a sudden Death.

XXXVI.

The Mayor of Cambridge (heretofore an eminent active man for the Parliament) did against his Conscience, take the new Oaths enjoyned by the late Act for Regulating of Corporation; and within few days after died.

About the latter end of July 1662, Commissioners appointed for Regulating of Corporations, did, in pursuance of the late Act for that purpose, come to the Town of Cambridge, and calling the Magistrates together, did pro-pound the taking of the Oaths enjoyned by that Act; in the first place to Alderman French, who was the prefent Mayor, and heretofore one of the most active men in the Parliaments Cause in that part of England. After a few Arguments used by the Commissioners to perfwade him to give a good example to the rest of his Brethern, by his ready compliance; he was prevailed with against his Principles and Conscience to fatissie their importunity, and took the Oaths enjoyned by that Act; expecting that now he should be continued in his place, and ferve out his time as Mayor. But he had no sooner fworn, but presently for some reason of State, the Commissioners turned him out, and made him uncapable of being Mayor or Alderman any longer in that Corporation. The fense of what he had done, and the unexpected usage he met with from the Commissioners, so wrought upon him, and did bring him into so deep a Melancholly and discontent, that within a few days after he mission of some solution.

pound

XXXVII.

The Archbishop of Ireland thrown by his Horse, as he was attending the Lord Lieutenant to Church.

By Letters from very confiderable Perfons in Ireland, we are certified, that on the first Lord's day the Lord Lieutenant went to Church after his arrival at Dublin (which was about the 3d of August 1662.) his Lordship was attended in very great state by the Lords Spiritual and Temporal on horfe-back, and amongst them appeared as Magnificent as any; the Right Reverend Arch-Bishop of Armath, Dr. Brommell: but his Lordp's Horse, it seems being better fed then taught, in absolute Contempt of the holy Function, with a very fcornful eye looked upon his Rider; and gave his Lordship a most dangerous fall in the Prefence of his Grace the Duke of Ormond, and his noble Attendants. The Arch-Bishop (a known Lover of clean Linnen) was forced to return back and get his Lawn fleeves washed before he could pay his attendance to the Lord Lieutenant; by which means the Solemnity of that days Procession was most unhappily interrupted. Strange Observations were made of this Fall of the Bishop in his Pontificalibus, by some foolish Phannatick People, who look upon this as a more clear and emphatical Prognostick of the downfall of the Hierarchy, than the fall of Arch-Bishop Land's Picture in the former times.

REMARKS.

Here you have two bold Stroaks, one of a Mayor of Cambridge, who contrary to his Conficience, as they fay, took the Oath enjoyn'd by Act of Parliament; This is a certain Sign that these Compilers were not then so much refin'd in their Politicks, as their Brethren A la mode are now adays, who have found a way of Occasional Conformity to save their Places, and also to get into new ones; it is well they did not live in those days, for it so one of the main Steps to Preferments. The other touch, as it is the most Ridiculous in it felf; so the Application is the most malicious and frivolous that can be invented. Pray what coherency is there betwixt a Clergyman in an Eminent Station, and at a great Solemnity, being thrown by his Horse, and the downfall of the Hierachy in a whole Kingdom ? All what can be faid, is, that People turn Phrenzical out of Envy, Malice and Spleen.

Thus much for Judgments, we now come to the Prodigies.

F

The

XXXVIII.

The form of the Tower and City of London all on Fire, seen in the Air; together with the forms of Lions over the City, and a Field of Blood in the West part of it.

Upon the 17th of April, 1661, being the Wednesday in Easter week, a credible perfon living in Bowling-Alley near Westminster-Abbey, coming with his daughter, aged about seventeen years from Kentish town towards London, in the evening, near the Pinders of Wakefield, met with two other perfons returning from London, who defired him to look behind him, which when he had done, he faw in the Air the appearance of the Tower of London, and prefently after the whole City it felf; and while he beheld it with great aftonishment about the space of a quarter of an hour, there appeared very dreadful Flames of Fire between the houses in the Street, and fuddenly the City feem to be all of a light fire ; and on the Top of one of the Gates they conceived they faw the appearance of a Dead man's Head upon a Pole. Over the City were the shapes of several Lions, and about the West part of it appeared a Field of Blood. After they had beheld this about half an hour, the forefaid Person and his daughter, being much amazed and terrified at these strange and dreadful Representations, went forwards towards London, and at their going away the Fire feemed to break forth brighter and brighter. This Relation was received immediately from the perfons own mouth, by one who is a Contributer to this Collection.

REMARKS.

Among the Prodigies inferted in this Treatife, leads the Van an Apparition of the Tower and City of London, all on Fire in the Air ; which upon due Confideration will prove no more than what frequently happen's in the Evenings after Sun-fet, when by the Intermixture of Clouds of different Colours in a Serene Sky, there appear fuch various Figures, as may be difposed and represented according to the different Phanfies of the Beholders : And thus I believe it to have happen'd in this Cafe, where two Perfons coming from London, meeting two others going towards that City, might eafily give them the fame Impression and Notion of certain Figures they had conceived in the Clouds themselves before : Had it been otherwise, what reason can be alledg'd, why not the fame Apparition fhould have happen'd to other perfons about the fame time ? Since the circumjacent Fields of London, are scarce ever destitute of Pallengers in the Evening? But fince not a few among the fame Faction with the Compilers of these Relations, have some Years after the publishing of them interpreted it, as a fure fore-runner or fore-warning of the Dreadful Fire of London, which happen'd in 1666. I can't but infert here upon this occasion, certain particulars relating to a Conspiracy set on foot, for the Firing the faid City, and difcovered not long before that general and fatal Fire broke forth in Sept. 1666, which, that it may be done with all imaginable Impartiality on our fide, and with as much Authority as a Case of this nature will admit of, we will insert here the very words of the London Gazette, Num. 48. from Thursday April 26. to Monday April 30. containing a brief Account of this Conspiracy, from the Tryals of divers perfons concern'd therein: These are the very words of the Gazette.

" At the Selfions in the Old Baily, John Rathbone, an old Army Coll. Willi-" um Saunders, Henry Tucker, Thomas Flint, Thomas Evans, John Myles, William e Weltcot. " Westcot, and John Cole, formerly Officers or Soldiers in the late Rebellion, ' were indicted for Confpiring the Death of his Majesty, and the Overthrow " of the Government, having laid their Plot and Contrivance for the Surprizal 'of the Tower, the Killing of his Grace the Lord General, Sir John Robinfon, 'Lieut. of his Majesty's Tower of London, and Sir Richard Brown, and then ' to have declared for an equal Division of Lands, Oc. the better to effect ' this hellish Defign, the City was to have been Fir'd, and the Portcullis to ' have been let down, to keep out all Allistance; the Horse guards to have . ' been furpriz'd in the Ions where they were quarter'd ; feveral Hoftlers hav-'ing been gain'd for that purpose: The Tower was accordingly view'd, and 'its Surprize ordered by Boats over the Moat, and from thence to scale the Wall. One Alexander, who is not yet taken, had likewise distributed Sums of Money to these Conspirators. And for the carrying on of the De-fign more effectually, they were told of a Council of Great Ones, that fat ' frequently in London, from whom iffued all Orders ; which Council received their Directions from another in Holland, who fat with the States, and " that the third of September was pitch'd on for the Attempt, as being found by Lilly's Almanack, and a Scheme erected for that purpole, to be a lucky Day, a Planet then Ruling, which Prognosticated the Downfall of Monar-" cby; The Evidences against the Persons, was very full and clear, and they * accordingly found guilty of High Treason.

Befides those before nam'd Persons, who were executed, divers others fled into Holland, viz. John Desborrough, Thomas Kelfey, John White, John Grove, William Burton, William Scott, Sir Robert Honywood, Jun. Thomas Cole of Southampton, ---- Spurway, Edward Ruddon, Dr. Edward Richardson, John Philips, and John Nichols of Merioneth Shire ; all which being by a Proclamation, dated the 21th of April 1666, recall'd on pain of Treason by the 22th of July following, did not think fit to appear; I am credibly inform'd that it was look'd upon as an undoubted Truthin those times, that not only several if not all of them, that were fled into Holland, were aboard the Dutch Fleet, Piloted and Affilted them in Burning our Ships at Chatham in 1667; and that some of the other Criminals should declare before their Execution, that the City would be Infallibly Burnt. If this be true, I don't wonder their Faction should pretend to a Prophetick Spirit, under the Veil of Prodigies, Judgments, and Apparitions, fince it was no difficult Task for them, to unravel their own Secrets.

XXXIX.

The form of three Pulpits, and Men in them with black Caps on their Heads; and Armed-men forcing them out, &c. Seen in the Air.

In the fore-mentioned month of September, Iome perfon, of known difcretion and credit in the East part of Suffex, faw an Apparition of Clouds in the Air of various colours, some black, some white, &c. Which were carried in the Air with a swift motion by a great wind. After the passing away of the Clouds towards the East, there appeared the likenets of three Pulpits, each Pulpit having a Canopy or founding board with Pinacles over it; and in every of them, he faw the form of a Man with a black Cap on his head : prefently after there appeared a great company of Armed men close by them, and the Pulpit doors flew open, and the Armed men forced them out of the Fulpits, and one of them fell down as on the Earth ; they were by these Armed men dragged from the Pulpits, and so all vanished. A while after there appeared two Carts, having wheels, and an Horse in each Cart, and at the end of each of them was tied a Rope, made fast to two Men, girded about the middle; and to the Spectators apprehensions they were drawn with their feet and toes, as if upon the ground, along the edge of a Cloud; and about that time it thundered and lightned, which made them with fear to depart immediately, and so they faw no more.

F 2

XLX.

A Ball of Fire coming down a Chimney, did much Prejudice to the House, and to a Body that lay dead in it:

About the 22d of April 1661, at a Town call'd Street, near Lewes in Suffex, there died one Mr. Dubble, a man while he lived, of a most debauched conversation, and a noted Enemy to Religion and all the zealous Professors of it. Not long after he was dead, as his Widow and Children were fitting together in a low Parlour, there came down the Chimney (in a great and dreadful storm of Thunder and Lightning) a Ball of Fire, to their great terrour and affrightment : It burned the Wainfcot very much, and at last made its way through the Ceiling into an upper Room, where the Corps was laid. out, and did some injury to it; and going through feveral Rooms, and doing much prejudice to the House, it went out at the top of the House. The Gentlewoman and the whole Family were very much terrified at it, and upon this occasion the Funeral was fuddenly folemnized, fome days fooner than otherwife was intended : And some of the Neighbourhood do confidently report, that the Coffin which was carried to be buried was very light, and there was a great jealousie that the Corps was carried away in that dreadful ftorm beforementioned : But whether that be true or no, is very uncertain ; and therefore it is left to the Reader to make further enquiry after it. The foregoing Relation is testified by some of Mr. Dubbles Family and near Relations and is a thing notorioufly known amongst the Neighbourhood in all those parts of the Country.

REMARKS.

They begin now to play the fecond Part of the fame Tune; and for fear the pretended Judgments of God should not be prevailing enough to deter their Non-conforming Brethren, from going to Church, they call Prodigious Apparitions to their Aid ; and what are these ; Here you have three Perfons (to be fure, Episcopal ones by their Garb) and thrown or dragg'd out of as many Pulpits with Pinacles on them (to diftinguish them from the rest) by Armed Men; Credat Judaus Apella; who can be Fool enough to believe fuch Ridiculous Stories ? And who can have the face to publish them in print, upon the Credit of Persons of Discretion? Perhaps they meant a Sett of Cunning Fellows, who by fuch like Stories and pretended Visions, which were the meer Product of their own Phantastical Brains, or of their own Invention, to Impose upon the Vulgar an Apparition fore-boding the Downfall of the Church of England. To back one Ridiculous Story with another, they bring in a Storm of Thunder and Lightning, raifed on purpose (if you will believe them) to revenge the Quarrel of the Non-conformists upon one of their Enemies, tho' after his Death. A Cause must needs be in a very tottering Condition, that wants to be propt up by fuch weak Arguments; What Prodigy is there in the Lightning to strike into a House, into a Chimney, and from thence from one Room into another; But the Cream of the Jeft lies here, that the Corps was carry'd away in the Storm, tho' the Coffin, as it feems, remain'd untouch'd! Had they been fo much vers'd in Natural Philofophy, as to have faid, that the Corps was burnt to Afhes by the Lightning, without the leaft Alteration made in the Coffin, they might in all probability have gain'd fome Credit from the Judicious Reader; there being undeniable Inftances of that nature; but fince that would have been the Effect of a Natural Caufe, they will rather play the Game of Acheronta Movebo, they will rather raife the Devil than loole a Prodigy to ferve a Turn !

XLXI.

A Mag-pye disturbing an Episcopal Parson while he was Preaching, and the Bishop also while he was Dismissing his Congregation with the Blessing.

About the month of September 1661, when the late Bishop of Chefter, Dr. Walton, had conveened the Clergy of his Diocefs at Chefter, to express their affections to the King upon the Act of Benevolence, one Ranfom, Parfon of Tatnal, was appointed to preach; a perfon noted for his zeal to Superfitition and Will-worship; and almost half his Sermon-time a Mag-pye fate upon the founding-board over his head, and did often difturb the Person, and cause much laughter in the Congregation by her chattering tone, which she frequently repeated during that time: And when the Sermon was finished, the Bishop being present (according to the mode) addressed himself to difmiss the Congregation with the Blessing: which the Mag-pye perceiving, removed presently from the Pulpit, and fate directly over the Bishops Canopy, and, as before, did interrupt the Bishop himself while he was officiating in the close of their devotion: This is a thing notorious known and attested by feveral discreet persons, and no Phanaticks, Eye-witness.

XLXII.

An Owl disturbing the Cathedral Musick at Chefter.

About the eighth of December 1661, in the Cathedral at Chefter, there appeared an Owl, and a little before the Organs began to Play, fhe fet up her Note, and likewife all the while they play d, fhe held a Part with them, and fo continued for fome time after the Musick had done. This is a thing fo publickly known in that City, there being fo many prefent who were witneffes to it, that we suppose the Vergers themselves will not have the face to deny it.

REMARKS.

Hitherto they have dealt in nothing but Fiery Apparitions, Armed-Men, and Thunder, and Lightning, to Terrify the Giddy Multitude; but to difcover their Spleen against the National Establish'd Church, they condescend to bring the Mag-pyes and Owls into their Affistance! Can any thing be more Ridiculous or favouring of Malice? Than to introduce a Mag-pye and an Owl, as if they had taken a fingular Pett against the Cathedral of Chester; an undeniable Instance that they are ready to lay hold of even the most frivolous and infignificant Things and Accidents, to Ridicule the Establish'd Church and its Ceremonies, as is apparent from feveral Scurvy Expressions used in these Relations.

XLXIII.

A Spectrum in the likeness of old Mr. Blagrave, seen near Reading. It is credibly reported by many honest and descreet persons, Inhabitants of Reading

Reading in the County of Berks, That about January last, there appeared feveral times a Spectrum in the likeness of old Mr. Blagrave, who while he lived dwelt in an Houfe of his own near Reading, and when he dyed gave it to Mr. Daniel Blagrave, one of the Long Parliament, and also one that fate upon the Tryal of the late King, by reason whereof this House is forfeited to the King, who hath bestowed it upon one who now lives in it. The Spectrum, as it is reported, hath sometimes met with some of this Gentleman's servants, either in or about the House, and hath warned them upon a great penalty to leave the House, that the Proprietor may enjoy it. That which makes this to be the more taken notice amongst the people there, is, That after old Mr. Blagrave dyed, and Mr. Daniel Blagrave's elder Brother had by fome unjust practices obtain'd possession of the faid House, the same Spectrum then appeared, and did warn out the prefent Inhabitants, faying to them feveral times, that the Houfe belong'd not to them, but to the faid Daniel; upon which the difference betwixt the two Brothers was fuddenly composed, and Daniel had quiet possession of the House according to that Settlement which old Mr. Blagrave had made, until the time of the late Wars, and that Reading was a Garrison for the King ; at which time the King bestow'd it upon one that begg'd it : But he and his Servants were often difquieted by the . fame Spectrum, and were warned speedily to depart, and relign up the poffeffion again to Daniel Blagrave, who had a just and legal right to it. And not long after the Garrison of Reading being reduced by the Parhament's Forces under the Command of the Earl of Effex, Daniel Blagrave was repufiels'd of his House, and so enjoy'd it till it became now forfeited to his Majesty, becaufe of his Attainder by the late Act of Parliament. All these feveral paffages are attested by many honest and credible perfons, and we prefume, that upon enquiry the whole Narrative will be found to be certainly true.

XLXIV.

A Batt disturbing an Episcopal Prebend in the time of his Freaching.

Upon the fecond of Febrmary 1661, Dr. Belk, one of the Prebends of Canterbury, did in the morning preach in the Cathedral there; and when he was in the midit of his Sermon, a Flinder moufe or Bat did come forth and flew feveral times from one end of the place to the other, and when he was earnest in speaking the Bat struck at him, which the People took great notice of, because of the unusual Appearance of that Creature at that time of the day, and in the cold Winter Seaton, as also because of the great Affront offer'd by her to the Dr. while he was officiating there.

REMARKS.

Here you have a notable Account, fhewing what Intereft the Non-conformist Party have, even with the Spirits, which, as it feems, are as well as ' the Air, Fire, and other Elements, at their Devotion, whenever they fland in need of their Affistance. In the first of thele two Relations, a certain Gentleman who had fate upon the Tryal of King Charles I. (a Meritorious Perion indeed, who having deferved well of the Devil, What wonder is it if he had his Black Guard at Command !) Having upon that account very defervedly forfeited his Estate by an Attainder by Act of Parliament, had, as you may easily guess very little Hopes, of being reposses'd of the fame by the ordinary Course of Justice; What had the Non-conformist Party to do in this difficult Case to shew their Gratitude to so Noble a Benefactor to their Cause 3 Cause? They produce one of the Devil's Imps or Messengers, to warn out the Gentleman who was in Possession of it, under a severe Penalty; but as it feems without Success; for fince the Spectrum had not Impudence enough to address himself to the Master of the House, but only to his Servants, he thought himfelf not oblig'd to take the Warning, and so the Devil loft his Labour, as the Compilers have done in inferting fo ridiculous an Account, as well as in the next following (p. 45.) wherein they are not ashamed to stoop so low as to a Flidder-Monse, or Batt, one of the most despicable Birds upon Earth, to fhew their Malice against the Ministry of the Church of England; but they have acted to bare-fac'd in some of their late Relations, hat it is evident to all, that let the Occasion be never so mean, never so frivolous, they are glad to embrace it, to Expose (to the best of their Power) the Established Worship.

XLXV.

A dreadful Storm of Wind, accompanied with Thunder, Lightning, Hail and Rain; together with the sad Effects of it in many parts of the Nation.

Upon the 18th of February 1661, being Tuesday very early in the Morning, there began a very dreadful Storm of Wind (accompanied with Thunder, Lightning, and Rain, which in many places was Salt as Brine) which continued with a strange and unufual violence till almost night : the fad Effects whereof throughout the Nation are fo many, that a very great Volume is not fufficient to contain the Narrative of them. And indeed fome of 'em are so flupendious and amazing, that the report of them, tho' from never so authentick Hands, will scarce gain Credit amongst any but those that have an affectionate sense of the unlimited Power of the Almighty, knowing and believing that there is nothing too hard for Him to do.

Some few of which wonderful Effects we shall give a brief Account of, as we have received them from perfons of most unquestionable Credit in feveral Parts of the Nation.

In the City of London, and in Covent-garden, and other parts about London and Westminster, five or fix persons were killed outright by the fall of Houses and Chimneys.

From other parts likewife we have received certain Information, that divers perfons were killed by the Effects of this Great Wind.

At Chiltenham in Gloncestershire, a Maid was kill'd by the Fall of a Tree, in or near the Church-yard.

An honest Yeoman likewise of Scaldwell in Northamptonshire, being upon a Ladder to fave his Hovel, was blown off, and fell upon a Plough, died outright, and never spake a word more.

Also at Tewksbury in Gloucestershire, a Man was blown from an House and broken to pieces.

At Elsby likewise in the same County, a Woman was killed by the fall of Tiles or Bricks from an Houle.

And not far from the same place, a Girl was kill'd by the fall of a Tree. Near Northampton, a Man was kill'd by the fall of a great Barn.

Near Colchester, a young Man was kill'd by the fall of a Wind-mill.

Not far from Ipfwich in Suffolk, a Man was kill'd by the fall of a Barn. And about two Miles from the faid Town of Ipfwich, a Man was kill'd by the fall of a Tree,

At Langton, or near to it, in the Gounty of Leicester, one Mr. Roberts had a Wind-mill blown down, in which were three Men, and by the fall of it, one of them was kill'd outright, a second had his Back broken, and the other had his Arm or Leg struck off, and both of 'em (according to our best Information) are fince dead.

There are also many Effects of this Storm which are of another nature, whereof we shall give this following brief account.

Also at Red-Marly and Newin, not far from Tewksbury, their Churches are extreamly broken and shatter'd, if not a considerable part of 'em blown down. The like was done to most, if not all the Publick-Meeting places at Gloucester City: And it is reported that some hundreds of pounds will not suffice to repair the damage done to the Cathedral at Worcester, especially in that part that is over the Quire.

The like fate happen'd to many more of them, as Hereford, Leighton Beaudefart in Bedford/bire, and Eaton. Soken in the fame County, where they had newly crected a very fair Crofs of Stone, which the Wind blew down; and, as some of the Inhabitants did observe, that was the first damage which that Town inftained by the Storm, tho' afterwards in other respects also they were in the fame. Condition with their Neighbours. The Steeples also and other parts of the Churches of Shenley, Whaddon, and Woolfton in the County of Bucks, have been very much rent and torn by the Wind. The Spire of Finchinfield Steeple in the County of Effex, was blown down, and it brake through the Body of the Church and spoil'd many of the Pews; some hundreds of Pounds will not repair that Lofs. But that which is most remarkable of this kind, is, the fall of that famous Spire, or Pinacle of the Tower-Church in Ipfwich; It was blown down upon the Body of the Church, and fell revers'd, the fharp end of the Shaft striking through the Leads on the South-fide of the Church, carried much of the Timber-work down before it into the Ally just behind the Pulpit, and took off the edge of one fide of the Sounding-board over the Pulpit. It fharter'd many Pews. The Weathercock, and the Iron upon which it ftood, broke off as it fell, but the narroweft part of the Wood-work, upon which the Fane flood, fell into the Ally, broke guite through a Grave-stone, and ran shoring under two Costins that had been plac'd there one over another. That part of the Spire which was pluck'd up was about three yards deep in the Earth, and it is believ'd fome part of it is yet behind in the ground : fome hundreds of pounds will not make good the detriment done to the Church by the fall of this Pinacle.

Very great prejudice hath been done also to private Houses, many of 'em blown down, and others extreamly shatter'd and torn. It is thought that five thousand pounds will not make good the Repairs at Audly end House which belongs to the Earl of Suffolk. A good part also of the Crown Office in the Temple is blown down. The instances of this kind are so many and so obvious, that it would needless take up too much time to give the Reader an Account of the collection of them, only, there hath been such a wonderful destruction of Barns, that (looking so much like a Judgment from the Lord, who the last year took away our Corn, and this year our Barns) we can't but give a short account of some part of that Intelligence which hath come to our hands of that nature. From Tewksbury it is certified, that an incredible number of Barns have been blown down in the fmail Towns and Villages thereabouts. At Twining, at leaft eleven Barns are blown down. In Afhchurch Parish seven or eight. At Lee, five. At Norton, a very great number, three whereof belonged to one man. The great Abby-Barn also at Tewksbury is blown down.

It is credibly reported, that within a very few miles circumference in Worcestershire, about an hundred and forty Barns are blown down. And at Yelding Parsonage in the County of Bedford (out of which was thrust by oppression and violence the late Incumbent) all the Barns belonging to it are down. The instances also of this kind are innumerable, which we shall therefore forbear to make further mention of.

We have alfo a large Account of the blowing down of a very great and confiderable number of Fruit-trees, and other Trees in leveral parts; we fhall only pick out two or three paffages which are the most remarkable. In the Counties of Gloucester, Hereford, and Worcester, leveral perfons have lost whole Orchards of Fruit-trees; and to in other parts of England, proportionably the like damage hath been fustained in this respect. And as for other Trees, there hath been a great deftruction made of them in many places by this Storm. Several were blown down at Hampton-Court. And three thousand brave Oaks at least, but in one principal part of the Forrest of Dean, belonging to his Majefty. In a little Grove at Ipfwich, belonging to the Lord of Hereford (which together with the Spire of the Steeple beforementioned, were the most confiderable Ornaments of that Town) are blown down at least two hundred goodly Trees, one of which was an Afh, which had ten loads of Wood upon it : there are now few Trees left there.

In Brampton Bryan Park in the County of Hereford, belonging to Sir Edward Harly, one of the late Knights of the Bath, above thirteen hundred Trees are blown down; and above fix hundred in Hopton Park not far from it : and thus it is proportionably in most places where this Storm was felt. And the truth is, the damage which the People of this Nation have fultained upon all accounts by this Storm is not easily to be valued : some fober and different People, who have endeavoured to compute the Loss of the leveral Counties one with another, by the destruction of Houses and Barns, the blowing away of Hovels and Reeks of Corn, the falling of Trees, &c. do believe it can come to little less than two Millions of Money.

There are yet behind many particulars of a diftinct nature from those which have been spoken of; some whereof are very wonderful, and call for a very ferious observation of them.

In the City of Hereford, several persons were by the violence of the Wind born up from the ground, one man (as it is credibly reported) at least fix yards.

In the City of London and Westminster, especially on the Bridge and near Wallingford house, several perfons were blown down one on the top of another.

In Herifordshire a man was taken up, carried a pole in length, and blown over a very high hedge; and the like in other places.

The Water in the River of Thames, and other places, was in a very strange manner blown up into the Air: Yea, in the new Pond in James's Park the Fish, to the number of at least two hundred, were blown out, and lay by the Bank-fide, whereof many were eye-witness.

At

At Epping in the County of Estex, a very great Oak was blown down, which of it felf was railed again, and doth grow firmly at this day.

At Taunton, a great Tree was blown down, the upper part whereof refted upon a brick or Stone-wall, and after a little time, by the force of the Wind, the lower part of the Tree was blown quite over the Wall.

The great Fane at White-Hall was blown down; and one of the four which were upon the White-Tower.

The feveral Triumphant Arches in the City of London were much shatter'd and torn; that in Leaden ball freet lost the Kings Arms, and many other rare pieces that were affixed to it. That in Cheapside, which represented the Church, suffer'd very much also by the fury of the Storm. And a great part of that in Fleet-street (which represented Plenty) was blown down; but, bleffed be God, none that we hear of were either kill'd or hurt by the fall of it.

It is also credibly reported, that all, or some of the Heads which were fet upon Westminster-hall, were that day blown down.

There was a very dreadful Lightning which did at first accompany the Storm, and by it, fome of his Majesty's Houshold conceive that the Fire which happen'd at White-hall that morning, was kindled; as also that at Greenwich, by which (as we are inform'd) seven or eight houses were burnt down.

But before we close up our Discourse upon this particular great Work of God, we shall briefly give an account of a few signal and eminent Preservations which the Lord did that day vouchsafed to some who were in very great danger.

One John Hall, an Inhabitant of Rance in the County of Northampton, being in his Chamber with three little Children, was fuddenly furpris'd with fear that the Room would be blown down, and would therefore needs immediately carry down all the three Children in his Arms at once : He was no fooner down ftairs with them, but prefently (as he fear'd) the Room fell, and if any one of his Children had been left behind, it had undoubtedly perifhed:

The Lord also wrought a wonderful deliverance for divers of the City Ministers who were that day at the Morning Lecture at John Zecheries Church near Goldsmith-hall. It is usual with the Ministers after the Sermon is ended to go into the Vestry, and spend a little time in Discourse together, while the Congregation is departing the place, which they did that Morning also: but there being a Fire in the Vestry, and the Wind sextream high, it blew the Smoak down into the Room, which was so offensive to them, that they did presently quit the Vestry, and went to the Minister's House, which they had no sooner recovered, but a Stack of Chimneys belonging to Sir James Drex his House, adjoyning to the Vestry, fell down upon it, and broke through it; and had not the Minister's, upon the fore-mentioned account, by a fecret inflinct of Providence, been withdrawn, all or most of them had been destroyed, or at least very much hurt and maim'd by that Accident.

Mr. Blith the Attorney's Man (of whom we have given fome account hereafter) was also that day wonderfully preferved from perifhing with his Master: for by reason of his stay, either to make water, or upon some other occasion, while his Master did run by a Riding-house near Pickadilley (which fell upon him and kill'd him) he escaped that danger, and was by a strange Providence preferv'd while his Master perished. The Countefs of Rivers alfo having an Houfe or Lodgings(as we are informed) about Covent-garden, being that Morning in Bed, was much importuned by one of the Servants (who was exceedingly afraid of the falling of a Stack of Chimneys, which was over the Room where her Ladifhip lay) to rife immediately, left fhe might be kill'd in her Bed ; which accordingly fhe did, and her Ladifhip was no fooner up and departed the Room, but the Chimneys fell, and brake down into the Chamber, and at the leaft two Tuns of Bricks and Rubbifh were upon and about the Bed where the Countefs lay, by which fhe had been certainly Smother'd, had not her Servant prevail d with her to remove fo feafonably, which was of the Lord, that fhe might not perifh.

Allo a Citizen of London, living at Bednal-Green, was by an eminent hand of the Lord delivered that morning; for, according to his wonted courfe, he went into his Wafh-house adjoyning to his Kitchen to wash his hands and face, which he had no sooner done, and departed the place, but immediately the Wash-house fell flat to the ground; and if the Lord had not at that very moment ordered by his Providence that he should go forth, he had certainly been destroyed.

An honeft man's fon and fervant in Northamtonshire, were that morning together in the Barn when it fell; and the fervant was slain, but the fon had only his hat beaten off his head, and received no other hurt.

An eminent Citizen of London going that morning into Thomes-Street to fpeak with a Friend upon fome urgent occafions, as he returned, and in the very fight of his Friend, who waited on him to the door, a ftack of Chimneys fell down, and to the apprehension of his Friend, and all that were near, he was covered with them : for, the Bricks and Rubbish in great abundance, fell round about him, and a dust, that for some space of time they could not see him, and did verily believe he had been buried in the heap: But it pleased the Lord to protect him, that not so much as one Brick did touch him, to the great astonishment of himself and all Spectators.

We have also very credible Information, that near Wooburn in the County of Bedford, two men were the fame morning threfhing together in a Barn, which by the violence of the Wind was in a wonderful manner blown over them, fo that by the fall of it neither of them fultained the leaft hurt.

One thing more the Reader is defired to take notice of, That there was none of this Storm in Torkfhire, and all the Northern parts of England; and fo likewife in Scotland: The Wind did indeed blow a little more than ordinary, but it was not fo high that they could call it a Storm; and fo they fuffered not those Prejudices by it, which the people in other parts of the Nation did undergo. What the Lord's meaning in it is, further than to ftir them up to thankfulnefs, Providence may in due time difcover.

REMARKS.

Since among other Prodigies inferted in this Treatife, the Compilers thereof have thought fit to give us an Account of a most Dreadful Storm of Wind; We thought we could not do better, than to match or rather overmatch them, in giving them a most particular and authentick Account of the Stupendious Accidents that happen'd in the late u oft Terrible Storm a few years ago, each of them being fo very Surprizing in the Event, as well to deferve the Name of a frodigy. This Great Storm which began 1703, G = 2 on on Friday night, Nov. 26. O. S. being preceded by very Tempestuous Weather for 14 days before, but especially on the 24th and 25th, first exerted its Fury about 10 at Night ; and fo encreasing by degrees, first till 12, and afterwards till betwixt one and two a Clock, gave fuch dreadful Apprehenfions to the Generality of the People, that they durst not lie in Bed, tho' at the same time there was no ftirring out the Doors, for fear of meeting with a worfe Fate in the Streets, than that they dreaded from the Falling of their Houses. From 2 of the Clock the Violence of the Storm was still encreased, till 5 in the Morning, to such a degree as is almost inexpressible, notwithstanding which, from 5 a Clock till half an hour after 6, it blew harder than ever before, and it was about that time the Greatest Damage was done, especially in the Shipping, the Spring-tides being then up about 4 a Clock. The darkness of the Night, joyn'd to the Noise of Thunder, and the Dread of unufual Flashes of Lightning (which, tho' scarce perceived in London, yet were very apparent in the Country) was a difmal Addition to the Horror occafioned by the Violence of Wind, which had produced fuch difmal Effects, that then by 8 a Clock the next Morning, after its Great Fury was somewhat abated, when the People began to peep or to stir out of their Houses, they found the Streets almost unpassable, by reason of the Bricks, Tyles, and other Rubbish of the demolish'd Houses. It was an Opinion received among divers difcerning People, that this Storm was attended by an Earthquake; but fince, if any fuch thing had been, it must have been fo General, as to have been observed by every body; this must be only an Effect of that Terror wherewith many People were feis'd by the shaking of their Houses, and the falling of the Chimney Stocks. It is further observable, that as this Great Storm was preceded by very Tempestuous Weather, fo it was follow'd by divers other Tempests, by Intervals, from Saturday, Sept. 27th, till Wednesday Dec. 2. about 4 of the Clock in the Afternoon. The Wind was on Friday night, from the 26 to the 27th betwixt S. S. W. S. W. and N. W. The Wind having flood near those points for a confiderable time before; this had fill'd all the Harbours in England with a prodigious Number of Shipping, those that were bound up the Channel being drove back by the Violence of the Winds, and those come up from the South and West hurried into the next Port they could make ; this occasioned confequently the greater Lofs among our Shipping, the chief particulars whereof, as well as of the other most Remarkable Accidents of this Unparalell'd Storm, is to be the Subject of the following Pages.

To begin with the City of London, it afforded a most miserable Spectacle, the Streets being cover'd in Heaps with Bricks, Tiles, and Slates in such vast Quantities, that the Tiles rise from 21 s. p. 1000 to 6 l. and all the Tiles for 40 Miles round, not being sufficient to repair the tenth part of what was lost, the People were forc'd to make use of Boards to cover their Houses. About 2000 Stacks of Chimneys were blown down by a modest Computation, 21 Perfons killed, and above 20 forely wounded or maim'd. A Woman was kill'd near the Palace of St. James's by the Fall of a Stack of Chimneys; a Distiller in Duke-street and his Servant underwent the fame Fate, but the Wise was taken out alive! Mr. Dyer a Plaisterer in Fetter-lane, was kull'd by the Stack of a Chimney falling in upon the House, and his Wise wounded; Woman Woman in Jewen-Street: kill'd in the Street, and two more by the Fall of a House. One Mr. Simpson a Scrivener in Threedneedle-street, being in Bed, contrary to the Advice of his Servants, was kill'd by the Fall of the Chimneys; and a Carpenter in White Crofs freet, refufing to hearken to his Wife, who defir'd him to rife, was kill'd in the Bed; Many hundreds of Rods of Brick-Walls were laid level with the Ground in the adjacent Parts of London. and among the publick Edifices, Her Majefty's Palace of St. James's, and feveral Churches; but especially St. Mary Aldermary Church, that of St. Alban's Woodstreet, that of St. Mary Overies, and of St. Michael Crooked lane, fuffered most ; and some hundreds of the largest Trees in James's Park, Moorfields, and divers other Places near London, were torn out of the Ground, and some of them, tho' of an extraordinary Size, broken off in the middle. As it was the greatest Comfort in the world to the City, during the Violence of the Wind there happen'd no Fire; fo after its Fury was over, it was a peculiar Providence of God no Rain fell for a confiderable time, and confequently gave opportunity to the Inhabitants to preferve their Furniture, Moveables and Merchandizes, by covering 'em with Deal-boards, and other Matterials; without which the Damages that might have been fuffer'd by the. Rains, would perhaps have furpass'd all the other Loffes.

The effects of thismost Dreadful Storm 'prov'd no less Remarkable in the Country than in London. At Stow-market in Suffolk, the finest Spire in that Country, being 100 Foot high from the Steeple, with a Gallery at the heightof 40 Foot, all open, was blown down, and made feveral large Breaches in the Roof of the Church : At a place call'd Beffe-Sleight in Bark-shire, 4 Miles S. W. of Oxon, one Mr. Joseph Ralton, an Inhabitant there, faw on Friday the 26th of Novem. in the Afternoon a Pillar or Spout moving directly with the Wind, in the shape of the Trunk of an Elephant, but extending to a great Length, and leaving a Mark behind, as it fwept the Ground. It fnapt asunder the Trunk of a lufty Oak, tumbled down a Barn, and knock'd down a Man of the fame Parish in the Field. The Great Storm happening. that night, they found the next morning a very tall Elm ftanding, and only a little loofen'd at the Root, but the body of the Tree quite twifted round. In Gloucestershire and Somersetshire the Flood, was by the force of the Wind, blowing directly into the Channel call'd the Seven Sea, raifed 8 foot higher, than ever was known in the Memory of Man, whereby at Huntspill feveral Vessels were driven so far upon the Land, that they will never be gotten off. At Bewly in Gloucestershire, broke through the Sea Wall or Dike, made of vast Stones, and large pieces of Timber, 26 Sheets of Lead weighing each 350, were blown off the Church, hanging altogether at 10 yards diltance into the Church-yard; and in a Village nam'd Kingscote 600 Trees, of about 80 foot high each, were torn up by the Roots within the compais of 5 Acres. It is fufficiently known how the Bifhop of Bath and Wells and his Lady were kill'd in the City of Wells, by the Fall of 2 Chimney Stacks. At Slimbridge near Severn, a fine Elm, fuppoled to have been the largest in the whole Country, was torn up by the Roots; its circumference whilft ftanding with the Boughs, having been measur'd to above 200 Yards.

At Fairford in Gloucestershire, the Church which is very Famous for its Beauty, was exceedingly damnify'd, especially in its Curious most antient Painted Glass, the Loss whereof is judged irrepairable. At Vincanton, one Edgebill Edgehill hearing his Houfe crack, was no fooner got out of the doors with his Family, but the Roof of the House fell in. At Dinderhill, not far from Shipton, one John Allen and his Son being out of doors in the midst of the Tempest, saw two bodies of Fire flying on the side of the faid Hill. At Broadway (also in Somersetshire) a Child of Hugh Betty was kill'd by the fall of a House, and his Wife forely wounded; At Illminster in the same County Henry Dunfter, his Wife and 2 Children, being in the Houfe when it was blown down, escaped without any confiderable Damage. At Lemington Husting near Dunchurch in Warwick Shire, 6 Sheets of Lead hanging together of 50 hundred weight, were carried from the Church thro' the Air at 50 yards distance, where the End of one Sheet was twifted round the body of the Tree ; and at Murson in the fame County, a great Rack of Wheat was blown off from its Studdles, and fet down without one Sheaf remov'd at 20 yards distance from the Place. At Kingston upon Thames in the County of Surry, a Stack of Chimneys fell upon the Bed of Mrs. Copper a Widow, on which the lay, but had just quitted it a Moment before; The like fortunate Accident befell a Son and Daughter of Mr. Robert Banford of the fame place. At Whits-Table, a small Village at the mouth of the East-Swale of the River Medway, a Boat belonging to a Hoy was taken up from the Water into the Air, and after continual turnings in its Motion.

At Breuchley in the Western parts of Kent, a stately Steeple of 12 Rods high, was blown down, to the great Damage of the Church; and the Steeple of Great Peckham, not far diftant from the former, had the fame Fate : A credible Perfon who travell'd about a Month after this Storin through Kent, computed 1107 Dwelling-houses, Out-houses and Barns blown down, and of Trees a numberless Quantity: At Hallingford, one Robert Dowell and his Wife, being both in Bed, the Chimney falling and breaking into the Houfe; the Man had his Thigh broke by the Beam, but fhe escaped without any remarkable Hurt. The Miller of Charlewood near Rigate, getting out of his Bed in the night, to turn the Mill to the Wind and fet it to work (as the only means to preferve it) happen'd by a lucky Miftake to forget his Key ; fo that being oblig'd to go back to his Dwelling-house to fetch it, he found upon his return thence the Mill blown down, and thus preferv'd his Life. In the Parish of Darking, one Charles Mann being in bed, with his Wife and 2 Children, he and one Child was kill'd by the fall of the House, and the other and the Wife miraculoufly preferv'd. At Wormfley in Hereford hire, a Man and his Son were also kill'd by the fall of his House.

In Helford a finall Haven, not far from St. Keaverne in Cornwall, a Tinnfhip with only one Man and 2 Boys aboard her, being forced from her Anchors, was driven out of the faid Harbour about 12 a Clock at night; and tho' without Anchor, Cable or Boat, by 8 a Clock the next morning run in betwixt 2 Rocks in the lfle of Wight, having made 80 Leagues in lefs than 8 Hours. The Men and Goods were preferv'd, but the Ship loft. In Milford Haven, a Ketch being droven on the Rocks without a Boat, the Men that were in her, expected every Moment to be drowned; but a Boat broken lofe from another Ship without any body in her, happening to be drove by 'em, 2 Men leap'd into her and fav'd their Lives, but the Boy was drowned. One Nelms of Gloucefterfhire near Harlingham, was carried away with his Wife, 4 Children and Horfe and all, and were all drowned except one Girl, who was preferv'd by taking hold of a Bough. At Briftol, the overflowing of the Severn, caused above 100000 l. viz. Damage in Merchandizes, without mentioning the Great Lofs of Corn, Cattle, &c. in the adjacent Country. In the New Forest alone, about 4000 Trees were blown down. A confiderable Number of poor diffressed Seamen were got upon the Goodmin Sands (when the Tide was out) near Deal, but fuch was the Barbarity of the Inhabitants, that instead of endeavouring the Relief of these miserable Wretches, they employ'd their Boat in looking after Plunder. At last Mr. Thomas Powell, a Slopfeller by Trade, and then Mayor of that Town, commiferating the diffreffed Condition of these poor Creatures, defired the Cuftome-house Officers to send their Boats, and Men for their Relief, and upon their Refusal, seizes upon their Boats, and some others belonging to the Town. This done, he offers to fome of the common People 5 s. per Head for every man, whole Lives fhould be faved ; by this Encouragement, leveral Boars being well Man'd, they had the good Fortune to bring afhoar above 200 Men, whole Lives must have been certainly lost upon the Return of the Tide; as it happen'd to all the reft, that could not be carried off with these Boats. Application was made to the Agent for Sick and Wounded for Relief of those that were brought ashoar; but he excusing the Matter, the Mayor at his own Charge furnish'd them with Meat, Drink, and Lodging, and buried feveral that died the next day; after which he gave the reft Money and Paffes to Gravefend.

Was

The Damages suffered in the River Thames is almost past Computation ; For the Tide being up at that time, when the Storm blew with the greatest Violence from the S. W. and W. there were but 4 Ships left between the upper part of Wapping and Ratcliff Crofs, the reft to the Number of no lefs than 700 being forc'd into the Bite or Bay, from Ratcliff- Cross to Lymebouse Hole ; fo closely squeezed together, and in so various a Position forc'd within and upon one another, as is rather to be imagin'd than defcribed, fo that fcarce one of these Vessels escaping without some considerable Damage received, I leave it to the Judgment of the Reader, what Losses have been fustain'd only upon this account; tho' by a peculiar Providence of God, and the goodness of the River Thames, only 2 Ships among all the reft, viz. The Ruffel Gally richly laden with Bale-goods for the Streights, and the Sarah Gally boundfor Legborn, were funck, the first near Lyme-boufe, the second near Black-Wall, and all the Ships droven upon the Ouzy Shoar, below Tilbury-Fort near Gravesend, got off safe the following High-tides. Of the Small Craft, as the Sailors stile it, above 500 Wherries, and about 300 Ship Boats were loft, most of them dash'd to pieces against one another, or on the Shoars and betwixt the Great Ships; and about 100 Lighters and Barges had the fame Fate; The greatest good Fortune was, that not above 22 Persons lost their Lives in the River, upon this fad Occasion, and that the hight of the Tide did not near fo much Damage, here in the Levels, Marshy-Grounds, Cellars, and Ware houses, as the River Severne did; the Damage sustain'd at Briftol, only in Sugar and Tobacco, being computed at above 100000 % and near 100 Perfons drowned in the adjacent Marshes or the River.

the more Crists Stories is an out the

In the Harbour of Yarmonth, was a very great Fleet at that time of Loaden Colliers, Ruffia Ships and others, notwithstanding which, it happen'd that they did not fustain the same Damage in Proportion, like what happen'd in other Places; because the Storm proving neither altogether so Violent, nor fo long more Northward ; those Ships who could not ride it out in Yarmouth Road, went out to Sea to the Northward, where they found the Tempett not altogether fo Violent; and befides this, had the opportunity of Sheltring under the High-Lands, they having the Benefit of the Weather Shoar. At Grimsby, not one Veffel was left in the Harbour, but were all blown out to Sea, and a Great Number loft. Plimouth Harbour felt the Difinal Effects of this Storm with a Vengeance; but the greatest Loss there prov'd that of the Light-house, call'd the Eddy-stone at Plimouth ; all the Upper part whereof from the Gallery was blown down, and all the People in it perifh'd, and among the reft, Mr. Winstanly, the Contriver thereof, whole Lois was extreamly lamented ; There was a Model of this Noble Structure in Mr. Winstanly's House at Littlebury in Eslex, which happen'd to be blown down and broken to pieces in the same Tempestuous Night. The first Effects of the Lois of the Light-House at Plimonth, fell upon a Homeward bound Virginia Ship foon after, which being ignorant of its being deftroy'd by the Storm, was split upon the same Rock, where this Building stood, and had most of her Men drowned. It would require a Treatife alone to describe the Damages and Devaltations occasioned during this Storm in the Harbour and Town of Portsmouth, where there was then a great Fleet of Men of War, Transport-fhips, and other Vessels ready to Sail to the Westward : Many of these ships being forc'd out to Sea, and never heard of more. At Cowes happen'd the fame with the Merchant-Men at Anchor there; Many Ships from the Downs were driven over to the Coast of Holland. At Falmouth II Ships were Stranded on the Shoar ; and to be fhort, Portsmouth, Plimouth, Weymonth, and most of the other Sea-Port Towns on those Coasts, look'd as if they had undergone the Fate of a most furious Bombardment.

'Twould be endless to enter upon a further Account of the Losses fustain'd both by Sea and Land, fcarce any place being exempted from feeling the Effects of this General Calamity ; it will fuffice to fay upon this Head, that this Storm prov'd the Total Destruction of 150 Sail of Ships, among which were of her Majesty's Navy, 4 third Rates, three of them lost on the Goodwin Sands, viz. The Northumberland and Restauration, in both which were near 650 Men. The Sterling Castle, only 70 Men saved out of 349. The Resolution cast away near Pemsey, but all the Men saved ; 4 fourth Rates, viz. The Referve loft in Tarmouth Roads, had 237 Men drowned ; The Mary, on board which was Rear Admiral Beaumont, lost on the Goodwin Sands, 270 Men drowned, one Man laved by Swimming, belides the Captain and Purfer who were ashoar. The Vigo lost in Holland, but all her Company faved, except 4. The Newcastle drove from Spithead, and lost on the Coaft of Suffex, only 24 Men faved out of 243 Men. The Mortar and Portsmonth Bomb Vellels were loft, the first on the Coast of Portland, the fecond in the Bnoy of the Nore; The Eagle and Advice Boat and the Canterbury Storeships: besides which one of her Majesty's Ships call'd the Tork was lost off of Harwich, 3 days before the Great Storm; as for the Lois

Loss of hir'd Ships, fuch as Tenders, Transports, and others hired into the Service, is scarce to be computed, divers of them being forced to Sea, and never heard of more.

In the midit of all these fatal Calamities and most dreadful Disfasters, God Almighty was pleas'd to give many Peculiar Marks of his Great Mercy and Singular Providence; Among these the Deliverance which happen'd to Sir Stafford Fairborn, Vice-Admiral of the Red aboard Her Majesty's Ship the Refolution, a Second Rate of 96 Guns, well deferves the first place in these our Observations. This Ship being first then returned from the Mediterranean, lay at Anchor that night off of the Long Sand Head in the River Thames ; and being droven about three of the Clock in the Morning, on the 27th of November, from her Anchor, upon the most dangerous Sand, call'd the Galloper, took in there fuch a vaft Quantity of Water, that every body thought the must have funk; 2 of the lower Gun-Deck Ports, being forc'd open by the Water; however after fome time, being got off of this Shoal, and Day appearing, they were drove over to the Bank of Flanders, and thence along the Coaft of Holland and Friefland, to the Mouth of the River Elbe. Here they continued till the 4th of December following, when a Violent Storm arifing from the N. W. which drove them from their Anchors, they must have infallibly been lost (the Wind standing directly upon the Shoar) had not about 10 a Clock at Night, the Wind turn'd to the S. W. which giving them an opportunity to put to Sea, they were droven over the Coast of Norway, having neither Cables, nor Anchors, no Wood, nor Candles; no Beer, and fcarce any other Provisions : Add to this, that the Men fatigu'd, first by the tedious Streights Voyage, and the Intolerable Fatigues of lo long and Dreadful Tempefts, fell fick every day, fo that they were fcarce able to Manage the Ship : In this distressed Condition, they at last got into the Harbour of Gottenberg. December 11th; but being in great Danger of being Frozen up there (which would have confumed most of the Men), they got with all possible Diligence thence, and from Copenbagen, what they wanted either of Provisions nor Naval Stores; and fo fetting Sail again January 3, prov'd very Instrumental in preferving 12 Ships loaden with Naval Stores for Her Majesty's Navy, from falling into the Hands of fome French Privateers, that waited for their coming home. January 12th at night, they came once more to an Anchor off of the Long-Sand Head, where after having continued for some days, and rid out another most Violent Storm, they at last arriv'd fafely to the Buoy of the Nore, having by the Hardships of the Tempest. loft 28 Men of the Ships Crew.

A Merchant Man riding in the Downs, after having lost all her Anchors, Cables, and Sails, and cut down her Masts, was droven thence to Sea, and carry'd by the Wind without any other guide to the Coaft of Normay, where by the Affiftance of a Pilot of that Country, they were Conducted and faved in a fmall Creek.

Another Veffel having in that fatal Tempest at 3 a Clock in the Morning, lost all her Anchors near Chatham, her Rother about 6, and befides sprung a great Leak. In this distressed Condition they drove 48 Hours, expecting nothing but prefent Death every Minute. About midnight the Ship Ship struck upon the Sands, where the Sea broke in upon them with so much Fury, that they were immediately in Danger of being swallowed up by the raging Waves in the very Ship; but within two Hours after, the Ship, without any other Help but God's Providence, got over the Sands, and was carry'd into a narrow Creek on the Coast of Holland, not far from Hellevoet Sluice, without any other Confiderable Damage, either to the Ship or Men. The Water on the Sands over which they past, in the midit of a very dark Night, was so shallow, that a Ship that was not of half her Bulk, durft never venture to pass it in the Day-time.

At Swyre in Dorfetsbire, Mr. Jacob Cole the Minister of the Parish, was twice in Iminent Danger of being kill'd by two Great Stones, weighing 150 Pound weight each, one falling just behind him as he was going out of his House door, and the other brushing against his Elbow, as he was sitting by the Fire-fide. At the same time a Widow Woman and a Smith's Wife with a little Child in her Arms, were scarce got out the Doors, naked without Shoes or Stockins, when the House fell in.

A Stack of Chimneys belonging to the Dwelling-houfe of Dr. Gideon Harvey in St. Martin's Lane, happening to be struck down upon the back part of the next House, wherein lived Mr. Robert Richards an Apothecary, and Capt. Theodore Collier with his Family died in the fame: The Chimney piercing thro' at the Roofs and Floors, carried them quite to the Ground : A Foot Man who about a quarter of an Hour before, had removed himfelf out of the Back Garret into the Fore-garret, happily elcaped all Danger; Capt. Collier's Child, the Nurfe and her Child, and a Servant Maid which lay in a Room 2 Pair of Stairs, were found safe in the Kitchin, except the Capt's Child, which two Hours after was found unhurt in fome Pieces of the Bed and Curtains, which being faln thro' two Floors, hung on some broken Rafters. Another Maid-Servant which lay up one Pair of Stairs in the fame Room with the Captain and his Wife, being alto carry'd into the Kitchin without any hurt, and crying for Help for her Master and Mistress, the last was in half an Hours time taken out of the Rubbish, without any other Hurt than a small Bruise. Mr. Richards and his Wife with 3 Neighbours, being in the Parlour, run out of Doors upon the first Noife; Mrs. Richards staying fomething longer than the reft, to pull her Child of about a Year old, out of the Cradle, the Houfe fell, yet the escaped without any further Hurt than a small Bruife on her Foot, and the Child was foon after taken out of the Rubbish, without having received the least Harm.

In the Parish of St. Mary Cray in Kent, a Man, his Wife and Child, were just got out of the Bed, when then the House fell in upon it; And the Minister of Somth-Ash escaped so narrowly, that his Feet were hurt as he was getting out of his Bed.

Two Boys in the Poultry, lodging in the Garret, were by the Fall of a Chimney, which broke thro' the Floors, carried into the Cellar, without receiving the leaft Hurt.

A Water-man being alleep in the Cabbin of a Barge on the River Thames, was driven thro' London-Bridge, and the Barge carried without any Guide into the Tower-Dock, where the remain'd fafe, the Man-not being waken'd till Day-light. Many Many more Stupendious Relations might have been inferted of this kind, which for Brevity's lake, we thought fit to pass by in filence; these beforementioned being more than fufficient to convince the Reader, that, as this last most Dreadful, and I may say Unparalell'd Tempest, far surpass'd that mentioned by our Authors, in all its Circumstances, and in the vast variety of its Surprizing Events; so it remains doubtful, whether, every thing duly Consider'd, God Almighty did upon this Great Occasion, give us more Signal Proofs of his Justice or of his Mercy, during this Great and Universal Storm !

I will conclude with one most Remarkable Consequence of this Storm; This was an Earthquake, plainly perceiv'd by a good Number of Persons of unquestionable Credit and Judgment; especially in the County of Lincoln and the East-riding of York shire, whereof several Authentick and Unquestionable Accounts are (among others) given by Mr. Banks Minister of Hull, and by the Minister of Boston.

FINIS.

and the state of the Post-script.

We thought it not improper to add unto this Treatife (as a Postfoript) Mr. Lilly [the Diffenters ORACLE] his Freditions for the Tear 1665. Which is as followeth.

A ND it may be conjectured, that Men pretending Sanctity of Life, or feveral Citizens or Burgefles, or Perfons inhabiting in Great Towns, vulgarly called Sectaries, viz. that fome, or many of those, and Perfons alfo of other Qualities or Callings, shall be busie in Consultation, to disturb the Publick Peace of those Parts or Countries where they habit: nay, their private Animosities shall be fo foolissly great against their own Prince and Country, that they will as much as in them lies, rather affist, than offend the Nations Enemies; In plain terms, these are made manifest publickly, viz. viz. some of every quality beforesaid, to be Traytors unto their own natural Prince, and for Bribes to betray those Trusts he may unhappily repose in their Custodies; or to do what Mischief they can by private Intelligence with the Enemy, purpofely that they may Domineer in their own conceited Judgments. It follows, Exercitium mendacii in latitudine hominum cum affenfione mali velinjuriarum : Men, viz. lome men pretending unto Conscience or Religion, shall give themselves great latitude in Lying, or exercise Lying wholly in all Actions, with Aflent or Confent, or well-liking those Evils they perpetrate thereby; fo that we fee many perfons of Quality in feveral parts of the World, shall assume unto themselves a liberty of Lying, or allow themfelves a Latitude of Jugling in their Speeches, Treaties, Articles, or the like, with Intention to commit Evil thereby, or to revenge pretended Injuries, by urging falfly, the like Injuries have been done unto him or them, their Prince, their Country, &c. If it be asked, Quibus in terris. where ? or in what Part, or what Kingdom, Countries, &c. shall these things be Acted? Unto which we fay ; Every perfon who hath any particular Concernment either in the Angle of the figure of the Eclipfe 1664. either Opposite, or in Quadrat unto the place Eclipled, or in this, or these of 1665. or in the places or degrees Eclipfed, is one of those intended in the former Difcourfe; and alfo those Grandees, whether of Court or Courts, Cities or Towns, or otherwife in Command, Ge. If they fteer, or have the principal Management of the prefent Affairs of those Kingdoms, Countries Places by us nominated, are herein also concerned, and ought to be wary in their Actings, left he or they be found Guilty, and in Conclusion, Cry Milerere, &c.

(52)

ADVERTISEMENTS.

THE Historical Catechism: Or An explanation Of The Old and New Testament: by way of Questions and Answers. After a more Easy and Familiar Manner, than any hitherto Extant. Very Edifying and Profitable for Children to Learn before they begin to Read the BIBLE. By a Reverend Divine of the Church of England.

F Amosus Defamator. The Infamous Libeller (That Slanderous, Privy Back-Biter) Araign'd and Condemned, by the Divine, Canon, Civil, and Common Laws, Profecuted. By Ottavius Triminalis, in a Letter to Marcus Amilius, a Friend in the CITY. Both Sold by B. Bragg at the Raven in Pater-Noster Rom. 1707.

e courting eine they will as muchas in them lies, rather allift, that ellend the Nations Friendics In plain theirs their as made manifelt publickly.