An essay towards illustrating the ancient history of the Britannic Isles containing an explanation of the names Belgæ, Scythæ, Celtæ, Brittanni, Albanich, Erinnich, Caledonii, Siluri, &c.;, &c.; : Intended as a preface to a work entitled, A vindication of the ancient history of Ireland / By C.V. [ie. Charles Vallancey].

Contributors

Vallancey, Charles, 1721-1812.

Publication/Creation

London : J. Nichols, 1786.

Persistent URL

https://wellcomecollection.org/works/yzcukax9

License and attribution

This work has been identified as being free of known restrictions under copyright law, including all related and neighbouring rights and is being made available under the Creative Commons, Public Domain Mark.

You can copy, modify, distribute and perform the work, even for commercial purposes, without asking permission.

Wellcome Collection 183 Euston Road London NW1 2BE UK T +44 (0)20 7611 8722 E library@wellcomecollection.org https://wellcomecollection.org

E S S A Y TOWARDS ILLUSTRATING

By Colond Vallancy

52481/1

86646

THE ANCIENT HISTORY

OFTHE

BRITANNIC ISLES;

CONTAINING

AN EXPLANATION OF THE NAMES BELGÆ, SCYTHÆ, CELTÆ, BRITTANNI, ALBANICH, EIRINNICH, CALEDONII, SILURI, &C. &C.

INTENDED AS

A PREFACE TO A WORK ENTITLED, A VINDICATION OF THE ANCIENT HISTORY OF IRELAND.

By C. V.

VALLANCE

הלקח כל-קדמנים יחפש החכם SAFIENTIAM OMNIUM ANTIQUORUM EXQUIRET SAPIENS. Ecclefiaft. ch. xxxix. v. 1.

LONDON,

PRINTED BY JOHN NICHOLS:

AND SOLD BY T. PAYNE AND SON; B. WHITE AND SON; T.CADELL; P. ELMSLY; AND W. OTIRIDGE.

M DCC LXXXVI.

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2018 with funding from Wellcome Library

https://archive.org/details/b30376075

E S S A Y

AN

TOWARDS ILLUSTRATING

THE ANCIENT HISTORY

OF THE

BRITANNIC ISLES.

THE Irish Manuscripts contain a more perfect account of the emigrations of the Armenian-Scythians, Persians, &c. from the banks of the Caspian and Euxine Seas, to the Islands of the Mediterrannean, to Africa, to Spain, and to the Britannic Isles, than any history hitherto known.

The detail of these emigrations perfectly correfpond with the Punic Annals, translated out of the Books of King Hiemfal's Library for Sallust; they agree with the traditions of the Breberi, alias Showab, alias Amazing's, of the Mountains of Barbary, even in the name of their leader; they agree with the most ancient Armenian History, written by Moses Choronensis, in names and facts; and, lastly, they correfpond with the most authentick Spanish Historians.

Confequently, these MfI. cannot be the forgeries of Irish Monks of the 9th and 10th centuries, as has been afferted by some modern writers too hastily.

Many of these Mff. were collected into one volume, written in the Irish language, by Father Jeoff Keating. A translation of this work into English appeared many years ago, under the title of Keating's History of Ireland.

The Translator, entirely ignorant of ancient Geography, has given this hiftory an English dress, fo ridiculous, as to become the laughing-stock of every reader.

The Euxine Sea, of the original, becomes the Baltic in the tranflation; the Ifland of Sicily, Gothland; Gadiz is France; and Frange, or Farangah, (as the Arabs write it) that is, Turquestan, alias Touran, is translated into Gaul.

These blunders gave room to a modern Author * to observe, that the Irish historians jumped from the Baltic to the Nile, and from the Nile to the Baltic, as easy as a man steps over a gutter. He should have learned the language of the original before he had ventured to criticife.

Thus has the Irifh Hiftory been looked upon as the most fabulous of all histories, and on that account unworthy of attention.

If fable in ancient hiftory is made the criterion of its validity, we must explode that of all other Nations, except the Jews. The Arab writers have met with a good reception in the learned world, yet their works are full of fabulous narrations, wonders and incredibilities : they not only deal in fictions, but difcover a most remarkable ignorance in Chronology. Yet these faults have not so far prejudiced the learned against them, as to think them in no particular deferving of credit. The Authors of the English Univerfal Hiftory declare the ignorance of the Arabian writers, in chronology, even when they treat of Events that happened not many centuries before the Hejra! And Niebubr who lately travelled in Arabia, with advantages that fall to the fhare of few of our modern travellers (being both a fcholar and a Philosopher), informs us, that the Arabs were utterly ignorant of the ancient history of their own country.

* The Writer of the Southern Tour in Ireland.

The Greeks, to whom we are much indebted, are ftill more fabulous : they knew little of the Geography of the Globe; and the Romans lefs. To use the expression of a learned Orientalist *, they were like a fine luftre in a large hall : they might diffuse their rays a great way around : but they could not illuminate all the extremities : they could not throw light into every dark recess. The judicious Quintilian thought he paffed not too fevere a cenfure when he wrote, Græcis bistoricis plerumque poeticæ similem effe licentiam. And Strabo is yet more fevere. " Though the Greek historians have pretended to " give a hiftory of Cyrus, and his particular Wars " with those who were called Meffageta: yet no-" thing precife and fatisfactory could ever be ob-" tained : not even in respect to the war. There is " the fame uncertainty with regard to the ancient " hiftory of the Perfians, as well as that of the Medes * Richardfon's Differtation on Eastern Lang. p. 191.

A 3

[ 5 ]

" and

" and Syrians : we can meet with little that can be " deemed authentic, on account of the weaknefs of " those who wrote, and their uniform love of fable. " For finding that writers, who profeffedly deal in " fiction without any pretentions to truth, were re-" garded : they thought that they fhould make their " writings equally acceptable, if in the fyftem of " their hiftory they were to introduce circumftances " which they had neither feen, nor heard, nor re-" ceived upon the authority of another perfon : pro-" ceeding merely upon this principle, that they " fhould be most likely to please people's fancy, by " having recourse to what was marvellous and new. " On this account we may more fafely truft to He-" fied and Homer, when they prefent us with a " lift of demigods and heroes, and even to the " tragic Poets, than to Ctefias, Herodotus, Hella-" nicus, and writers of that Clafs. Even the ge-" rality of historians who write about Alexander are not fafely to be trufted : for they fpeak with " great confidence, relying upon the glory of the " monarch whom they celebrate, and the remotenefs " of the countries in which he was engaged; even " at the extremities of Afia, at a great diftance " from us, and our concerns. This renders them " very fecure; for what is referred to a diftance is " difficult to be confuted "."

In another place Strabo goes on in the fame firain. "The writers, who muft neceffarily be appealed to, "were in continual opposition, and contradicted one another. And how could it be otherwise? for if they "erred fo fhamefully when they had occular proof, * Strabo, Lib. ii. p. 774.

. f how

" how could they fpeak with certainty, where they " were lead by hearfay *?"

The Grecians, fays Mr. Bryant, were grofily ignorant in refpect to foreign events, they were a bigotted people, highly prejudiced in their own favour; and fo devoted to idle tradition, that no arguments could wean them of their folly +.

After fuch a weight of Evidence, fays Mr. Richardfon, is there great prefumption in fuppofing, amidst fo much error, fome amendment poffible? Can there be any impropriety in the enquiry, how far the records, and the historians of a people, might, in refpect to their own annals, correct the mistakes and the fictions of strangers? Or, can there be much harm, in directing, if poffible, the attention of ingenious and learned travellers to the difcovery of fuch ancient materials, as might tend either to authenticate, or to confute the historians of more modern times 1? How flender, indeed, were the best pretenfions of the Greeks to any real knowledge of the hiftory, language, or manners of ancient Perfia! Xenophon and Ctefias were amongst the few who could have even an opportunity of confulting authentic records; yet, by a fingular fatality, there are not two productions of antiquity more queftioned than the Cyropædia of Xenophon, and the Annals of Ctefius.

Notwithstanding the fentiments of Plato and Cicero, the Cyropædia has been followed, as an authentic history, by Africanus, Josephus, Usher, Prideaux. And the authors of the Universal History confider its authority as far preferable to that of Herodotus. Scaliger, Erasmus, and many others, look upon it, on the contrary, as a mere collection of fig-ments.

* Lib. XV. p. 1006.

+ Mythology, vol. I. p. 100. and 143.

* Differt. p. 396.

ments. Dr. Jackfon, declaring it to be more feigned than real, fays, "it has mifled every writer who has "attempted to follow it." The Doctor, at the fame time, ftyles Herodotus the most accurate and faithful historian, and confiders Ctefias in a very different light from the learned in general. To Ctefias, on the other hand, Sir I. Newton pays small regard; but to Herodotus, notwithstanding the Anathema of Strabo, he looks up with high respect. He calls him, after Cicero, the father of History, and endeavours to reconcile with him every point of early chronology. When such men differ, who can decide \*?—Ubi tanta eft contentio, ibi vel nullam vel incertam effe veritatem  $\frac{1}{7}$ .

Yet, as St. Paul faid in another cafe, I think we may fay in this, That God hath not left us without a witnefs, but hath given us certain notes and marks, if we were fo diligent as to mark them, whereby we may eafily point out the original habitations of the first colonies of mankind. Among the various expedients by which learned men have tried to clear up the mift that hangs over the early accounts of all nations, none has been fo generally approved in theory, or fo fuccefsfully applied, as that which makes identity or remarkable fimilarity of language, manners, and religious observances, its principal foundation. Both ancient and modern criticks, proceeding on this plan, have made fuch deductions from very fcanty premifes, as almost challenge the certainty of ftrict demonstration.

The fubject, however, is by no means exhausted : in the extensive field of etymology especially, there is ample room for every proficient in every tongue to exercife his induftry as well as ingenuity. Whoever will be at the trouble of comparing the common Irifh, fpoken vernacularly at this day, in the weftern fkirts of Europe, with the languages of the Eaft now in ufe, and with thofe which for ages paft have been preferved only in books, will not eafily be perfuaded that chance ever produced the plain analogies that every where prefent themfelves to an obfervant eye. Chance may, and often does, produce refemblances; but whole tribes and fpecies of relatives and correlatives muft have their foundation in nature, whofe works are varioufly uniform.

* Differt, p. 300. + Voffius,

19

It is unreafonable to fuppofe, that the proper names of men, places, rivers, &c. were originally impofed in an arbitrary manner, without regard to properties, circumftances, or particular occurrences : we fhould rather think, that in the earlieft periods, and efpecially where the ufe of letters was unknown, a name ufually conveyed a brief hiftory of the thing fignified, and thus recorded, as it were, by a method of artificial memory; manifeft and numerous inftances of this are the Patriarchal names recorded by Mofes.

The Poets were also the only historians of the Heroick Ages; and they, imitating the former ufage, are full of epithets expressive of remarkable qualities, properties, or local exploits. The first profe writers studied more to please after the manner of the Poets, than to inform their readers; and therefore are their works filled with improbable stories, faid to be preferved by tradition, and with extravagant fictions, chiefly calculated for amusement. Even the most approved ancients must be read with extreme caution, compared with others, and with themselves, fifted by the rules of just criticism, and sometimes subjected subjected to the fevere torture of etymological difquifition.

122

After this conceffion, the most fanguine advocates for the authenticity of the ancient Irish monuments, still remaining, cannot take it amiss that we apply the fame touchstone to domestick as to foreign vouchers. By fuch analysis perhaps fome rays may be admitted, whereby to discover "who were the ancient "inhabitants of not only the British Isles, but of a confiderable part of Western Europe."

And this is not the only advantage we fhall reap by fuch an investigation : many passages, in the writings of the infpired penman, become elucidated thereby; religious cuftoms and ceremonies, borrowed by the Jews from the idolatrous nations in the Eaft, are often expressed by a fingle word, the true fignification of which is not to be found in the Hebrew, Chaldean, or Arabic languages : the fame words are frequently to be met in the Irifh MSS. denoting the fame ceremony, and this fo defcribed, as to leave no room for conjecture; for example, Samac, Smac, or Smag, in Irifh, is the palm of the hand: at the coronation of a King, or the ordination of a Prieft, the Chief Prieft paffed the palms of both hands down the temples of the Prince or Prieft, and he was then faid to be fmac'd; hence fmacd or fmact, fignify authority; one fet over the people : crioch-fmacd a Government, from crioch a Territory; and, as a verb, fmacdam is to govern. The fame word is used by Mofes, when he put Joshua in authority, with the fame ceremony. " And Jofhua the Son of Nun was " full of the fpirit of wildom; for Moles 100 fa-" mach'd him, laying his hands upon him : and the " Children of Ifrael hearkened unto him, and did as " the Lord commanded Mofes." (Deutr. 34. v. 9.) A fecond example is in the Irifh word amarcall, i. e. Signum 4

Signum X, that is, the fign with which the Emir, or Noble, was anointed on the forehead between the eyes: it is the ancient Hebrew, Samaritan, and Irifh X Thau; and hence arofe the Office of the Jewifh Priefts called Immorcalim, or Immarcalin. These, and many other examples, will be fully detailed in the courfe of this work *.

The Annals of Ireland teftify, that the ancient Irifh were the defcendants of Magog, confequently they were Scythians. As fuch they have been effeemed an illiterate and favage people. The Authors of the Universal History, to support a system, and too closely adhering to Greek authorities, deny the ufe of letters to the Scythians; yet when they come to treat of the Tartars (the descendants of these Scythians), they confers, it is more than probable, that the Tartars had the use of letters, from the earliest times; and a modern author infifts, that the Irifh had not letters, before the coming of Patrick into the Ifland : the reader will find fuch undeniable proofs of the ancient Irifh having had the ufe of letters, and of having been skilled in all the sciences of the times, as will leave great room to regret. the deftruction of records, monuments, &c. by our zealous Chriftian miffionaries on their arrival in that Ifland.

As Scythians, the inhabitants of the Britannic Ifles, prior to the final fettlement of the Cymmerig, or Walfh, from Gaul, were to be deemed a barbarous people. The modern historian making no diftinction between the Nomade or Northern Scythian, and the civilized or Southern Scythian of Armenia, has treated them as the Great Montelquieu has the

* The Coptic finaroud, benedictus, is also the Irish finaorrod, anointed. Smeared in English.

Tartars,

Tartars, and drawn conclusions which are by no means supported by their manners or their government.

Few circumftances, fays Mr. Richardson, have been lefs attended to, by some of our greatest writers, than a proper distinction between the ruder and the more polished people who fill the immense extent of Tartary. Men totally diffimilar are grouped together under one indiscriminate character, merely because they are known in Europe by one general name *.

With the Greeks, all were barbarous but themfelves. The Hebrews, whofe ancient Schools and Academies fhone in all the learning of the Ages in which they flourisched, were yet barbarous in the eyes of the Greeks. Judæos barbarorum effe ineptisfimos: ideoque folos illos, nullum inventum vitæ utile, peperiffe. (Apollonius, ap. Joseph. cohtra Apion).

The Spaniards, whom Strabo allows to have been a lettered people from an early period, were still denominated Barbarians, by the pedantic Greeks.

Grecia llamava Barbara a la gente que fus Ciencias, i Ritos, no bevia, de que fingiò en Parnafo tener fuente.

Roma, quando ufurpò la Monarquia, i junto con las ciencias, a fu Erario el Teforo del Mundo concurria.

* Differt. p. 146. It feems probable from Herodotus, that neither the Scythians nor the Thracians were unacquainted with the Affyrian letters. (Un. Hift.vol. XX.). A confiderable part of the Scythians had a body of laws, to regulate their conduct by, is attefted by Ephorus. (Item, Hiftory of Turks, Tartars, &c.). The Scythians have been highly extolled by Ephorus and Strabo, for their wifdom, juffice, integrity, and most fublime friendship—it should feem therefore, that this people had not only an excellent fystem of civil and religious institutions, but likewife a most powerful motive to an observance of them. (Idem.)

Al

Al inculto Español su tributario tambien le llamò Barbaro, i agora es nombre de ignorantes ordinario.

(Lupercio Leonardo. p. 74).

In the following pages, it will appear, that the body of Magogian Scythians, of whom we treat, were a polifhed people before they left Afia; the first astronomers, navigators, and traders, after the flood, and courted by the Arabs, the Canaanites, the Jews, and Egyptians, to fettle amongst them. That, from their first fettlement in Armenia, they foon passed down the Euphrates to the Persian Gulph, round the Indian Ocean, to the Red Sea, up the coast of the Mediterranean almost to Tyre. The Greeks knew them by the names of the Phœnicians of the Red Sea, by Isthyophagi and Troglodytæ: in Scripture they are called Am Siim or Ship people, and Naphuth Dori or Maritime folks.

These son mixed with the Dadanites and Canaanites, allied with them, and were absorbed under the general name of Phœnicians; yet still among themfelves were distinguished as the Sons of Japhet Gadul. These affertions the author of this Vindication thinks can be well supported by facred and profane history, and with great deference submits them to the learned reader.

The Greeks (and the Latins their Copyifts) have made ftrange havock of the names Gothi and Scythi: from a fondnefs for the letter S, they frequently prefixed it to the proper names indifcriminately with other words, and thus confounded two nations as different in their origin as any two people can be; this has been juftly obferved by the learned Ibre. Lex. Suio Goth. in voce Goter. viz. " id tantum monebo, "Græcos qui vocibus fæpe S præpofuere, Gothorum " nomen " nomen in Scytharum commutaffe, quippe qui docent, ipfofmet indigenas nomine Scytharum femet non appellaffe."

To a common reader, it must appear the reveries of an etymologist to compare the language and deities of the Brahmans with those of the ancient Irish; but to the philosopher, who has perused the works of that learned astronomer, Monssieur Bailly, there will appear solid reason for so doing : the Brahmans and Guebres were originally a mixture of Dedanites and Persians, or Scythians. Fohi, the civiliser of the Chinese, was a Scythian. The Japonese were Scythians.

Anacharfis, a Scythian, was admired by Solon, for his learning. Abaris, an Hyperborean Scythian, and Prieft of Apollo, was revered by all Greece for his profound wifdom and learning. Suidas teffifies that he wrote a Treatife on Theogony, and feveral other works. Hune Abirim, tefte Suida, præter alia multa, fcripfiffe Theogoniam; ideoque Mundi origines: nam ea conjuncta erant apud veteres. (Burnel. Archæo. Phil.)

Deucalion, who carried the worfhip of Adonis into Syria, was a Scythian. Zoroafter, if not a Scythian, at leaft fludied Aftronomy in Scythia; Aftronomy took its rife in the Lat. of 49° or 50°; here the Arts had their birth, and from thence spread towards the South.

It will not be furprizing to find a people, at length fixed in a fequeftered corner of the Globe, whofe hiftory by their frequent migrations muft confequently depend much on tradition, work up the events of their anceftors in Armenia, Perfia, Affyria, Spain, &c. into one hiftory of the country they at prefent poffefs: nay even to borrow events of their other Colonies, Colonies, which never were transacted by themfelves: it is a foible common to all other nations.

I must beg leave to repeat, that, whenever I mention the lri/b, I mean also the Erse, or Highlanders of Scotland. From a long attention to their ancient history, manners, religion, antiquities, and language, we pronounce them to have been one people; the possible of the Brittannic Isles, before the arrival of the Cymmeri, and by them thruss to the North of Scotland, to Ireland, and to Man: in vain, therefore, do these nations dispute for feniority.

Many plaufible arguments have of late been ufed, by the writers of Scotland, to prove the antiquity of the Er/e over the Iri/b. The moft ingenious are those of Dr. Macpherson, whose errors 1 beg leave to rectify*. "He fays, that the indigenal name of "the Caledonians is the only one hitherto known "among their genuine descendants, the Highlanders "of Scotland. They call themselves Albanicb to this "day. All the illiterate Highlanders are as perfect ftrangers to the national name of Scot, as they are "to that of Parthian or Arabian. If a common "Highlander is asked of what country he is, he im-"mediately answers, that he is an Albanicb or Gael."

"It is unneceffary to produce authorities to fhew that the ifland, which now goes under the name of Britain, was in early ages called Albion. To fearch for a Hebrew or Phœnician etymon of Albion has been the folly of fome learned writers. In vain have fome attempted to derive it from the White Cliffs near Dover, or from a Greek word, which fignifies a certain fpecies of grain, or from a gigantic fon of Neptune.

* Critical Differtations on the origin, antiquities, &c. of the Caledonians, by John Macpherfon, D. D. minister of Slate, in the Isle of Sky. "In the Celtic language, of which fo many different dialects were diffused over all the European nations of the West and North, and, let me add, the Scythians of Afia, the vocable Alp, or Alba, fignifies higb. Of the Alpes Grajæ, Alpes Pæninæ, and the Alpes Bastarnicæ, every man of letters has read. In the ancient language of Scotland, Alpes fignifies, invariably, an eminence. The Albani near the Caspian Sea, the Albani of Macedon, the Albani of Italy, and the Albanick of Britain, had all the fame right to a name founded on the fame characteristical reason, the heighth or roughness of their respective countries. The fame may be faid of the Gaulish Albici near Masselia.

"It was natural enough for man, who had been once fettled in the low plains of Belgium, to give the name of Alba, or Albin, to Britain, on comparing the face or appearance of it to that of their former country. And it is to be obferved, that almost all the local names of the Celtic tongue are energetical, and defcriptive of the peculiar properties or appearance of places.

"That all the territories once poffeffed by the old "Caledonians were formerly called Alba in Galic, and Albania in the Latin of the latter ages, is certain beyond contradiction. But had the Scots of Britain come originally from Ireland, their Latin name would have been very probably Hiberni, and their Gallic one undoubtedly remain Eirinich.

"To ftrengthen the observation I am to make, it is almost needless to mention the Ionians of Afia, the Phocæans of Gaul, the Boii of Germany, &c. all these, and other innumerable colonies, who left their native countries, and planted themselves in foreign regions, made a point of retaining the pro-" per ** per names of those nations from which they we'e ** originally fprung.

"Had the Scots of Britain been a colony from " Ireland, in fpite of all the hard things faid by " Strabo, Mela, Solinus, and others, to the pre-" judice of the old Hibernians; nay, if the univerfal " confent of mankind, instead of three or four an-" cient writers, had agreed in calling the Irifh Sa-" vages, Cannibals, &c. the Scots, notwithftanding, " would have admired their anceftors fuperflitioufly, " and retained their name, rather than degrade them-" felves into Albanich. But no British Scot has ever " yet called himfelf an Hibernian in a learned lan-"guage, nor Eirinich in his own mother tongue. " Every Scot who understands the Galic calls him-" felf, as I observed before, either Gael, that is, one " of the Celtæ, or Albanich; in other words, a ge-" nuine Briton."

The Doctor first produces good authority, that the name of Albania was common to the whole island, and not locally confined to the Mountainous parts of Scotland. The general features of England are not mountainous, particularly that part opposite the Continent would not appear fo to a Belgian. Confequently, Albania was not derived from Alb or Alp, high. We must, therefore, feek the Etymon in fome other language. The learned Doctor has forbidden any refearches for the word in the Oriental tongues : this is prefumptive; he must not exclude that of the Pæno-Hiberni, the inhabitants of the Island before the Britons arrived; those inhabitants who gave names to all the great features of the country, which Llhwyd observes, are not derived in the Welsh Dialect.

In the Erfe or Irifh we find 'ban, the corruption of Laban, to fignify light; the word is Phœnician and Chaldee, from אלבן, laban, inflammare, whence B Alban, Lux matutina, Oriens, Aurora. (Bochart*). In like manner from the Hebrew 17 lahab, Tomaffin derives that, whence Lux, lumen; Saxon Leoht, Angl. Light.

The division of the Country between the Euxine and Caspian Seas was into Iberia and Albania, i. e. Ebr. and Ker Alban, or West and East; hence Iberia a name of Spain and Ibernae, or Hibernia, the Ultima habitatio, or habitatio Occidentalis +.

The local pofitions of the two Britannic Ifles confequently gave the names of Iernia and Albania; that is Antropy Alban-ai, the Weft Ifland, and Alban-ai the Eaftern Ifland—from the firft comes "Aopv@, the Lake, near Tarteflus ‡; and hence Lough Abern, now called Erne, in Ireland, which difcharges into the Weftern Ocean. The Chaldees wrote this word Antropy Aoria [], whence the Irifh Iar, the Weft §; from Alban we have the Albus pagus, a Myofhorno diftat duobus, aut tribus curfibus, verfus ad Ortum **.

Hence alfo, I think, is derived Error Pe-harun, i. e. the Ripa Occidentalis, now the Pyrenæi, be-* In like manner TN, or, Lux, lumen, fplendor, illuminatio Lux matutina, mane, diluculum. Ignis accenfus et lucens, flamma; focus. As a verb, TN, and TN, or and ar, luxit, illuxit TN, illuminavit lucem emifit, illuftravit, lucidam, fecit: inflammavit.

+ Bochart, G. S. C. 654.

* Bochart, Geo. Sacr. C. 605.

וריא Occidens in afa Perfico, per antiphrafin. Plantavit

§ Fuin or Fuineach was another name of Ireland, fynonymous to Jerna from the Syrian Fenia or Phenia, occafus folis. In a former work, I have obferved that the Irifh might have named the Erfe Eilebonnach, or the good tribes, to diffinguifh them from the Britons whom they named Gui-ban, or the white foreigners, i.e. ברילבו

** Ptolemy.

caufe

Alban, or Alpes, do to the Eastern of Gaul *.

<sup>10</sup> I acknowledge that Alp, or Ailp, in the Irifh and Erfe, do fignify high; but I deny the words were ever applied to Topographical descriptions, because they do not betoken a great eminence or altitude; Alp in that cafe became Alt, as Alt-Oifin, i. e. Offian's Mountain in the County of Donegal, which the Scots would remove to their own Country if poffible; the root of which is by Ol, or Hol +, i.e. excelfus; or fuch an Eminence was expressed by Mul, as the Mul of Cantire in Scotland; the Mountains of Bela-Mulach, in County of Waterford in Ireland, &c. &c. from dy Mol, Exaltatio, Eminentia. Alp implies a fmall altitude, a hill, an afcent, and is expressed by the Letter A; fee the Irifh Dictionaries: hence it fignifies a Cart, a Waggon, a Chariot, because it elevates the rider. It is the Oriental Alp or Alep, the first letter of the Alphabet, which fignifies in Chaldee the Trunk of a Tree, out of which all the reft of the Alphabet did grow; it is therefore exprefied in Syriac and Arabic by a fingle ftroke 1, 1; in Samaritan it refembles the trunk and branches . As it fignifies the trunk of a tree in Chaldee, fo it expresses a ship, not only because the first Vessels or Canoes were made of the trunks of trees, but becaufe it refembles Navis ingens, a large Ship with its trees or mafts, with an additional Alep, as NON; whence, in Syriac, Alphra a Sailor, and probably the name Alphred, Alphric, &c. hence A in Irifh a Imall eminence, and N in Hebrew, fuper.

These names were evidently given by an Oriental people,

* The Spanish name of the Pyrenzans, is Montes de Aspa, from DON aphas terminus finis. Vesper. Heb. Aphle-Erets finis terræ, &c. The Spanish name corresponds with Ps-barun.

+ Gebelin, Dict. Etym. Latin.

people, who colonized the Weftern part of the World, who called that division of the Globe yorb, whence Eorp or Europa, and the Heberides on the Weft of Scotland.

Who, on difcovery of the Brittannic Isles, named the Eastern Albania,, and the Western Ierna, or Iberna.

Who finding the North of Scotland (that is, the Northern part of the Eastern Island), cold and barren, named it Choledinah, i. e. The Chol. terra frigida, ficca & fterilis ren denah, Orientalis; Who still finding a country more eastward, named it Dinahmarchk, i. e. ren denah, Eastern, pmerhk. more distant.

Who finding the Scylly Iflands to be barren rocks, called them whitrew Sulah-rafh, i. e. the barrenhead land, whence Silures; and who finding Britain to abound in minerals, named it very aprutinai, i. e. * Terra mineralis, whence the Irifh name of it Brutan-aoi; and who finding an Ifland centrical between Britain and Ireland, named it rip Mendz, whence Manx, or the Ifle of Man; yet the poets derive the name from Mananann, or the God of the Sea, as hereafter 4.

Who gave the name Caftiraoi to the Silures, becaufe they abounded in tin, a name brought with them from Caucafus; for Cau or Co fignifies a mountain, and Cas oar, iron oar, Caftir, tin, lead, i. c. Royal Oar, concealed in the earth, whence the Chaldaic and Arabic מסמירא Caftira ‡.

* Plantavit at TN.

+ Irifh Meahon. Perf. Miyanè. the center. Et opes habitantes (mendz) in medio umbilico terræ. Ezek. xxxviii. 12. Chaldee.

‡ Sclavonire Koffiter, frannum. Suio-Gothice Kafter plumburn. Gr. xagairego: (Vide Tommaflin. Glofi. Hebr. Ihre. Lex. Suio-Goth.) N. B. Cas or Ceas is Oar in general. Iron from often lies above ground, but lead and tin are caftir, concealed in the earth; hence the learned Tomaffin derives the Chald. Caftira, quafi 702, celare. Who, for diffinction fake, named another Ifland on the Weft coaft of Scotland Class Bua, i. e. Occafus Solis, whence A Ai, regio, infula & Bua, formed the name Euboea, both on that coaft and in the Mediterrannean, their fituation being all to the weftward; hence Bua Sacce, the Weftern Navigators, or Bafques, or Bafcanians of Spain, a name given them by the Tyrians, from their being the first navigators to the Weft, a name they gloried in and still preferve.

In vain, therefore, do the Scots and Irifh endeavour to boaft of their antiquity over each other; both were in poffession of the Britannic Isles at the fame time; both were driven to their prefent abodes in the fame inftant. One, inhabiting the Eaftern Island, called himfelf Albanich; the other, inhabiting the Western Island, properly named himself Iarnach, or Eirineach; but both preferved the general name of Gaedbl, or 573 Gadul, i. e. the descendants of Japhet, by Magog, to diffinguish themselves from the Sons of Gomer, &c. with whom they mixed in their migrations. In vain do the Scots make a diffinction betwixt Gaodhal and Gaël; their anceftors wrote it Gaedal and Gaodhal, as the Irifh, but by a vicious pronunciation, not long introduced, the d was afpirated and loft its found *.

"Iar-ghael (properly Iar-gaedhil), fays Dr. Mac-"pherfon, is that division of the Western Highlands which is partly comprehended within the County of Argyle. It plainly fignifies the Western Gael, or Caledonians, in contradistinction to the Picts and Chaledonians, who possible the East coast of Scot-Iand." Can there be a stronger proof of our derivation of the name Caledonia?

* By Gal or Gall, the Erfe and Irifh mean a foreigner; hence, in all their writings, Gall an Englifhman or low country Scotchman; Galldachd, the low country of Scotland. (See Shawe's Dict. of the Erfe and Irifh.) Guuidhyl, Scotia et Hibernia. Lexicon Geogr. Ferrarii.

" They

" They never called themfelves Scots," the Doctor fays; yet he informs us, " that the procurators, fent " by the flates of Scotland, to plead their caufe " against King Edward, before the Court of Rome, " contended ftrenuoufly, that the Scots were de-" fcended from Scota, the daughter of Pharaoh King " of Egypt. That this Scota came into Scotland," " together with her fon Erc, whom fhe had by Ga-" thelus, or Gadelus. That Argadia, or rather lar-" ghael, derived its name from the progeny of that " fon and father. In fine, that the old name of " Albania was changed into that of Scotia, as foon as " the Scots were fettled in that Ifland; and the Scots " did, ever fince that period, retain their name and " independance, while the Britons of the Southern " division changed their name and masters fre-" quently *."

This is the Hiftory of the Irifh, and of all the Gaedhal. In the following pages we fhall fhew the allegorical meaning of Scota, Pharaoh's daughter, and the true derivation of the name of Scythians.

If this was not the general ancient hiftory of all the Southern Scythians, how comes it that the Caledonian hiftory fhould correspond in all particulars, fabulous and real, with that of the Irish? If the Caledonians had really lost all records of their origin, can it be thought that fo wife a people would, in the 13th Century, have borrowed of the Irish a hiftory, that in all appearance is fo full of Romance.

The fact is, it was the tradition of the bards and feanachies of both nations, who were one people from their departure from the Cafpian Sea (many ages before the birth of Chrift), till the 16th Cenrury of the prefent Æra, when it was thought proper to make a diffinition through national prejudice.

* Differtation, p. 14.

introduct to allow the 2003

Very little is to be found in hiftory, facred or profane, of the Sons of Magog, expressly by name; all agree that he was the father of the Scythians, and originally planted in Armenia with Mefbech and Tubal.

Berofus, a Chaldæan by birth and a very ancient hiftorian, affirms, that Scytha was the first King of Armenia; and that his hiftory was collected from the books of the Scythians and Chaldaans. From hence they extended into Mesopotamia, Bactria, and Eastward to Hindostan, Thibet, Tartary, and to China and Japan. Sacz, nam & Bactrianam occupaverunt, & optimam Armeniæ tellurem, quam a fe Saccafenam denominaverunt *. The Empire of the Scythians over Afia was 1500 years anterior to that of the Affyrians +. The Scythians having at different times very remote, poffeffed different parts of Afia, their Colonies frequently changing their name, eafily loft the remembrance of their origin 1. The Scythians conquered India and Afia before the time of Abraham, the father of the people of God. He is modern comparatively fpeaking with the Sacæ : with them we must feek for the most remote antiquities, and their history is the most ancient of all histories §. The Monguls, descended from the Saca, live at prefent in the fame Country poffeffed by their Anceftors. The Kalkas, a tribe of the Monguls, inhabit the ancient Serica, watered by the Kerlon and Salinga. These Kalkas extend to the Indias, to * Strabo, L. XI. p. 511.

Frecherche fur l'origine des Arts de la Grèce. The Arabian writers are of the fame opinion, as we shall shew hereafter.
1 Idem.

§ Idem.

Thibet,

Thibet, and to the frontiers of China *. The Japonese, defeendants of the Scythians, still preferve the name of Saca, in Sakai one of their principal Cities. Nangan-Sakai, Amanga-Sakai mark the Nang and Amang of the Scythians, from whom many of the Mountains, Rivers and tracts of Country of Japan, have taken their denomination *.

Armenia was originally of great extent; the Irifh hiftory extends it from the Caspian and Euxine Seas to the junction of the Tigris and Eupbrates, and from the Tigris West to the Mediterranean Sea. De Herbelot says, that the Eastern people often gave the name of Armeniab to those nations, the Greeks and Romans called Parthians, or Persians, for both derive from the same Origin; the letter th is pronounced as S by the Turks and Persians; and in another place he says, the Country of Armenia was the ancient Parthia.

Arminah the Arabic name of Armenia. This diftrict, according to Eaftern Geographers, is much more extensive than the Country to called by Europeans, being in general confidered as nearly the fame with ancient Parthia. Richardfon's Arab. Dictionary. See alfo Mofes Choronenfis.

Hieronymus & plerique Hebræorum, omnes Aramæos Syros effe credunt, ab Aram filio Semi genus & nomen fortitos. Quod quia bis per omnia cum antiquorum pugnat fententiam, quam Plinius è monumentis vetuftis in lucem revocavit, viz. " ultra * Idem. This author is fupported in this fettlement of the Scythians in Japan by feveral Arabian writers, and by Dr. J. G. Scheuchzer in his Hiftory of Japan. The Doctor had refided in China and in Japan, and having fhewn that they differed from the Chinete in language, religion, manners, and cuttoms, draws their origin from the Northern banks of the Cafpian fea. See our collation of the Japonese and Irish languages. Collectanea, N° X. <sup>15</sup> funt Scytharum populi, Perfæ illos Sacas in uni-<sup>47</sup> verfum appellavere a proxima gente, Antiqui Ara-<sup>47</sup> mæos."—Quò tamen utrique parti fit fatisfactum, concedamus Aramæos alios effe ab Armenis, & eos quidem quos Græci Syras vocant, Hebræorum lingua Armæos, ab Armo dici: illos autem, quos Scythas nominamus, antiquitùs dictos, & illos quidem Aramæos effe; verùm non Hebraica, fed fua, id eft, Scythica lingua—confitendum erit a Judæis totam Scythicam, Armeniam vocari. (Goropius Becanus Indo-Scythica L. 5.

Our Magogian Scythians thus feated on the Cafpian, Euxine, and Mediterranean Seas, and on the great Rivers, Euphrates and Tigris, and on the Perfian Gulph, were by neceffity, the first navigators. The first boats were fimple, made of a tree, hollowed to contain one man; these ferved for inland navigation: hence  $\gamma y$  Es, a tree and  $\gamma s$  Si, a ship, is written Es or Es in Irish, which fignifies a ship.

So Xdex Alpha in Chaldee is the trunk of a tree, and a fhip; hence the Y Es-ais, i. e. the fhipman, or tree man of Sanchoniatho, the Ufous of Philo, having taken a tree and broke off its boughs, firft ventured upon it in the Sea. Crann-fnamb, i. e. a floating tree, is a common name for a boat in old Irifh.

The twifting of the fmall branches into a kind of Watling, and covering them with the hide of a Cow or a Buffalo, was the next and most useful contrivance for inland navigation. With these they croffed the Euxine and Caspian Seas, and even ventured on the Ocean, as the Irish of the Western Coast still do, in the same kind of boat. Hence Scoth, Sgoth, or Scuth, fignifying small branches, or Wattles, that is, small branches interwoven (Arabice Sachut Virgas) might also fignify a Skiff or Ship, the name being applied, from their use. But

But the true derivation of the name Sacæ and Scuthi, i. e. Ship-men, Navigators, or Swimmers, I think, is from the Oriental war Sachu, or sachuth, Natatio, from שחה Sachah, or Sachah natavit; Syriaic Ora Sacha*, natavit, remigavit aguis: it alfo fignifies profunditas; and fhields being made of watles covered with hides, we have with Shacha, Monte Shaeta, Gabata, Scutella, whence the Irish Sciaia, Sciutba, a shield, a twig basket, or any thing Concave like the ancient Target. The word is uted, in the Oriental tongues, to fignify whatever acts in, or upon, water; it fignifies also to wash, No Sacha, lavit, ablutus fuit, quia natator non natat, nifi lavet (Schindler.) איזטדים Mi Sachua, navigable rivers, deep waters, which cannot be paffed without a boat, or by fwimming.-Quas fub pede tranfire non poterat, fed natando trajiciebant. xonna Micutha, balneum-and hence the Scythian or Irifh Scuth, Scudh, a thip, and the Turkish Saica, Navigii genus, vulgò Saique, (Du Cange). Scytho Scandice, * Hence the Showa of Barbary; a colony of Scythi frem the Calpian and Euxine feas, who peopled Africa, under Nemed, a Scythian. See Salluft Bell. Jug. c. xxi. These people call themfelves Amazer, a corruption of the Old Arabic and Perfian AI mazun, Naucleri. (See Golius in V. Oman.) We shall treat fully of this people hereafter. They were navigators and merchants, hence their Hebrew name Mabar corrupte Maur, from Mahar, pretium, merx. mercator. et הנה Tana mercede conducere, whence Mauritani. Hence their metropolis was named TIN Tagger, negociator, Grace Tuyyie, now Tangier. The celebrated emporium of Africa; and by transposition of Letters we have the English Truck, i. c. traffick, and probably it is the origin of the name Turk. Irifn Togra and Tore, traffick, forum. Suio Gothice Torg, forum ; cæteræ dialecti Gothicæ omnes voce hae carent, quod facit, ut tanto obscurior fit illius origo. (Ihre) Apud Polonas Targ, apud Ruffas Torg, mercem, nec non mercatorem et item forum denotat. (Bohorizii Litt. Carniol. in Præfat.) Hence Hoft fays the Showa are composed of Gastulians Numidians and Turks. Q. Does Ther the Northern Mercury derive from this word.

JUL

2

Skeid,

[ 27 ]

Skana, Skuta, rodarferior (Verelius. Lex.). In monumentis Anglo-Saxonicis Navigii genus nominatur Sceith, appellatum, fed quod hoc pertinere, non autumavero (Ihre). Sceith a σχώτος, Corium ut navigia corio inducta (Junius).

In like manner, the words fignifying a hide, do alfo fignify a boat, as σκυθωι, Coriarii; σκυθοπολις, Coriarii Urbs, Scythopolis. In Irifh, Bolgh, Bolo, a hide from ybb bolgh tegere, whence pbb Bolun, a hide; and this word gave name to the Belgi or Scythians, on the Cafpian Sea, and to the river Bolga or Volga, becaufe inhabited by thefe Scythians, who paffed weftward; whence Pblugh in the Armenian, Fluk Arabicè; and Filuka, in Italian, a fhip. Gr. B. βάλκη, Navis, Scapha *.

Coth,

* The Celts or Gomerites, and the Scythians or Magogians, were both named Bolgi or Belgæ, from the invention and ufe of the boat or fhip covered with Hides. Why may not the Keltoi or Celts have derived their name from another invention in boat-building, that is, from the Phœnician or Hebrew Kala Ets? The Kala, tignifies, affare, torrefacere, and The Ets a tree. Kali et King Kalia, toftum, whence the Latin Culina, and non a colendo igne, ut ait Varro. (Tomaffin. Gloff. Hebr). From the Oriental Kala, this learned Etymologift derives Kaλor, Lignum. Xaλed, Chalybes, ferrum, fcilicet ignitum; et Xeλadior, Chalandium, Navicula ad incendenda omnes alias, hine Chalannus, Calarnus, Media Lat. dictus, Gallice Challan, bateau challan. A The Kala eft Saxon, Caele Angl. Keel, Gall. Quille, Hifp. Quilla. Forfan et hine Chaloupe, Navis minor (Tomaffin).

[ 28 ]

and a boat ; hence the Magogians, or original Scythi, and Inventors of this kind of Boat, called themfelves, or were called, Aiteach-Cothi, i. e. the Old Navigators or Ship-men, a name corrupted by the Latins into Attacotti; hence the Oriental Cutha Navis; as Croich derives alfo from my Ghor. or Khor pellis.

Hence the general name of these people was Scuthi and Go-im; that is, Shipmen and Seamen; and hence Goim and Cuthai are used by the Hebrew writers to express foreigners, or people that came from another country by water. In like manner the ancient Perfians were called Agem, that is, Japhetans, from Aigh, the Armenian or Scythian name of Japhet: the Arabs converted this word into an opprobrius meaning, and fignified thereby Barbarians, but it really means no more, than those nations which are not Arabians by birth or origin, and in particular the Perfians, and all comprized under the Perfian Empire. The Perfians called their ancint Kings Molouck Agem, King of the Japhetans; they would not flile their Kings Barbarians.

The pofterity of our Magogians navigated the Euphrates in these Skin wattled Boats, in the time of Herodotus, who, in his Clio, gives a very particular Suio-Gothica, Ek, an Oak, forms Eka, and Ekstock, a Ship, a boat. Scapha. inde dicta quod ab excavato robore confecta fuerit, quod genus navigiorum fine dubio omnium antiquiffimum fuit, et quo præcipue ulos fulffe veteres Gothos, et Germanos, apud auctores relatum legimus. Arrhianus de Expedit. Alex. M. p. 9. Edit. Gronov. nominat eorum πλοια μοιοξυλα, quorum apud Getas πολλήν ευπορίαν fuiffe dicit. Plin. L. XV . c. 40. Hift. Nat. perhibet Germaniæ prædones fingulis arboribus cavatis navigafie, eorumque quaidam triginta hominum tulifie. Nec dubito, quin veterum caudicæ ejuidem formæ fuerint, de quibus A. Gellius. Senecca de brevitate vitæ, &c. ibi notas. (Ihre. Gloff. Suio-Goth.)

0136

account

account of them. "The Veffels, fays he, that de-"fcend the river to Babylon, are round, and in great "meafure composed of fkins.

" For when they have cut the ribs out of willows, " growing in the hills of Armenia, they cover them " with hides extended on the outfide to ferve for a " bottom, making no diffinction of ftem or ftern. " In these veffels, lined with reeds, and freighted " with merchandize, and efpecially with cafks of " Palm Wine, they venture on the river. Two men " ftanding upright with a pole in the hand of each, " one pulling-to and the other putting off, direct " the courfe of these boats; some of which are very " large, and others lefs: but the most capacious " carry the weight of 5000 Talents (about 160 tons). " Every Veffel has an Afs on board, and the greatest " more. After they arrive at Babylon, and have dif-" pofed of their goods, they fell the ribs of the boat " with the reeds; and loading the hides on the Affes, " return by land to Armenia, the River not being " navigable upwards by reafon of the rapidity of the " ftream *." Herodotus does not mention how thefe Hides were put on; they were fewed together with ftrong woollen yarn, as practifed at this day in the Weft of Ireland; and the Omanites of Arabia, the defcendants of our Magogians, continue at this day to few the planks of their Veffels together, as we fhall hereafter have occasion to mention.

In fine, these Sons of Japhet, being by fituation and by neceffity (on the banks of the Caspian and Euxine Seas) navigators and fishermen, had the honour of giving names to ships and boats of all manner of construction, being originally of their invention; and the names of navigating vessels in all languages are to be traced in their dialect, even at this ( day,

* Littebury's tranflation, p. 122.

day, namely, in the Scythic, and all its variations. The Hebrew, Chaldaic, Arabic, and all the European dialects retain these names, and the inventors are still known by the name of Scuthi, in honour and in memory of their invention.

Can there be a more honourable name than that of a Scor? Has any nation contributed fo much to the ufe, or to the luxury of mankind, or to general knowledge, by bringing the learning of the world to one concentrical point? What nation on earth have fo great a right to give maritime laws to all the world as the Subjects of the King of Great Britain, the defcendants of thefe Skuthi, or Shipbuilders, and Navigators—Mafters of the Seas thefe three thoufand years?

The Magogian-Scythian language originally varied very little from the Hebrew and Chaldee. Even the North-Western Scythi, who took on them so many Names in their emigrations from the Caspian Sea by land to Europe, yet boast of the name of Scuthi, and retain most of the words relating to this Art, somewhat corrupted, though they have entirely lost many others.

For example, The Scytho-Scandians retain the following names for a Ship, as we learn from Verelius. Karfi, Afkur, Skuta, Sneckia, Byrdingur, Skeid, Okga * (the Uig of the Irifh, and the Ogyges or Noah of the Greeks) Bufa, Knor, Kugg, Kuggur. The Iflanders have Skeid, Jackt, a corruption of Sacha, Sachut, Scuth.

The Suio Goths have Skuta, Julle (foftened from Gaul) Naler. Flaccus L. 1. Argon. fays, the Phrygians called Julas those thips the Greeks named yaulos, gaulas; hence the Jolly boat of the English * Okga, Uig, Kugg all derive from MIT choug rotundus. See Tommaffin, p. 324. Hence Cock-boat.

Navy.

Navy. Feftus fays, the Latin Agyale was a fifting veffel; the modern Latins wrote it Ciula. The Author of the Life of Alfred informs us, that King built fhips called Ciulæ or Galejæ.

Bonde is another Suio-Gothic name for a Ship. Junius fays, it was the fame as the Karfi, or Carbh of the Irifh, and the Caravell of the English, and the Ifidore thus defcribes it. Carabus of the Latins. Carabus eft parva scapha ex vimine facta, quæ contecta nudo corio, genus navigii præftat-it was then our Skut, the Arabic and Indian Grabb. Tacitus fays, the Scythians called them Camera, i. e. houfes; fo in the Syriac Noufa, Navis, templum: he defcribes them to be built artis lateribus, lata alvo, fine vinculo æris aut ferri connexas. Hence the Suio-Goths diftinguish them by Jag-bændu, from tag, funis, with which they were fewed; and by Sinbundin, nervis confricta scapha; and by Skus-bondh, that is hide fewed, or with thongs cut out of hides. These they diffinguish from Eck, Ekior, Ekstockar, or War Ships made of trees or planks, whence Xeb-eque. The Northern Lexiconifts derive bonde from binda. to bind; it is evidently from the Hiberno-Scythic bunadh, to build, to construct, whence Curach-bunadh. to build or confiruct a Ship of hides; this formed, the name Corribantes, part of the Diofcuri, who were fuppofed by the Greeks to have been the first Ship-Arabic Currach, Navis longa; hence builders. Coirce, the City of Corke in Ireland, from a Settlement of the Scuthi, famed for this naval architect; the City still retains a Ship for its arms or infignia. So in like manner Bonde is an honourable family name among the Suio-Goths, carrying the fame Armorial, viz. a Ship ; Chaldaice vir Khor-bana, to build with hides; hence Bowywas, oixias, domus, from the last comes the Gothic Ek, a Ship; fo Long in Irifh Irifh is a Ship and a Houfe; it is the fame in the Chinefe, who borrowed it from the Japanefe, originally Scythians from the Cafpian Sea, by their own historical accounts.

Of these consuted, or sewed Vessels, Homer is to be understood as Pliny explains the passage, L. 24-9.—Thus again Antiphilus in Anthol. Græc. 57.

Γόμφος δ' έκ ετικαλός ενόλκασιν έδε σίδηρος, 'Αλλα λίνω τοίχων άρμονίη δετεται.

Non clavus æreus nec ferreus eft in navibus, Sed laterum compages lino vincitur.

The Finns carried the art with them; they built veffels of this kind to hold twelve rowers on each fide, as we learn from Sturlon. T. 2. p. 324. "Bina "navigia per Finnones prope lacuum finum fibi con-"ftrui curavit Sigurdus, quorum afferes animalium "nervis jungebantur, nullis compactæ clavibus fer-"reis: interiora navis cum falce faligna ligebantur: "duodecim utrinque ad latera confidentibus viris "remigatoribus."

The Tyrians, neighbours to our Scythi, feated at Dor and at Bethfean, or Scythopolis, foon learnt this art from them; using the word of Sap, for vy khur, a hide, for they are fynonymous; they formed in fapan, texit, obtexit, Scpina, Navis, propriè magna & tecta. Hence, finding our Scuthi feated at Arthrach or Gadiz, and that it was fo named from the Irifh word fignifying Shipmen. (whence the Greeks called it Erythrea); they, ambitious of the honour of being thought the only Seamen, named it Sapan, or Span, whence Spain, Hifpania. In the fame manner they translated the Hiberno-Scythian Tartefs, and Tarfbeis, i. e. ultima habitatio, ultima Colonia,

That these kind of Ships were in use over the Globe, from the Western Ocean to the Nile, is elegantly handed down to us by Lucan, L. 4. v. 130.

Utque habuit ripas Sicoris, campoíque reliquit Primum cana falix madefacto vimine parvam Texitur in puppim, cæfoque inducta juvenco Vectoris patiens tumidum fuperenatat amnem. Sic Venetis stagnante Pado, fusoque Britannis Navigat Oceano : sic, cum tenet omnia Nilus Conferitur bibula Memphtis cymba papyro.

Our Magogian Scuthi, or Ship-men, being feated in Armenia, recorded the refting of the Ark, giving the name of Leaban, Leabarn, Baris, Grad  $\uparrow$  or Garrad, Corrac, &c. &c. (all fignifying in Irifh an Ark

* N. B. Eorp-aoi in Irifh fignifies the Western Country, i. e.

t Labean from , Corium, Coriarius Græc. βνεσας. burfia, Coriarius. Arabice, barj. Nauta pirata, barjat Navis magna bellica. (Gigg. Caft.) Talmud : ΧεΓιά Corium, pannum. Perficè, Berza pannum. βύρσα.

Neptune was named Scyphus and Scythius,

Arab. Sheza, a kind of a fhip, name of a tree.

Pefil idem quod DYD Patfal or Pafal, decorticare, hinc qalmhos, Lat. Phazelus, Navis modica, cujufmodi olim fiebant ex uno arboris trunco dolata et fculpto, vel etiam ex cortice, nam pafal. dolare, fculpere, (Thommaffin) and by change of letters DD Sepel, Vas magnum.

Coptice, Efot. Mercator. navigator. Irifh Efs. Copt. goi. egeou. Naves. Irifh Uige.

The Egyptians fay, the art of using the wind by means of fails was exceeding ancient. They give the honour of this discovery to ls-is: and fays Gouget, over and above the little credit which is due to the greater part of the history of this Princes, we shall prove that

Ark, Boat, or Ship), to fuch mountains on which it was recorded the Ark of Noah refted; and at the fame time adopting his name Naoi, to fignify a Ship or a Mariner\*. Hence the corrupted names Carduchi, Cardæi, Cordyæi, Cordueni, Gordi, Curdi, and more correctly by Al. Polyhifter, Corcyræi  $\uparrow$ , i. e. the mountains of Arrarat. From Nicol Damafcenus we find this mountain was alfo called Baris. "An a Græcis apud quos Bapas, barbari navigii "genus eft, aut ab Armeniis qui Deam coluerunt "hujus nominis," fays Bochart, from this paffage of Strabo, "Abus mons eft prope viam qua itur Ecbathat this difcovery cannot be afcribed to the Egyptians. It is evident, that having learnt the art from the Seythians, and adopted the word Efs, a fhip, they afcribed the honour of the invention to their goddefs Ifis. See alfo, Ann. Reg. 1769.

* "IN Navis.

+ Quia Arabice Corcur est navis prælonga; navis magna. Bochart. Carica navigii species, Navis oneraria, (Du Cange,) used in Richard II's time; Caricum, onus, id. whence cargo.

In the hiftory of Armenia by Moles Choronenfis, we find the Bolgi or Bolo, under the name of Acrad: this in Arabic is the plural of Card, or the Curdi of Curdiftan, and in the Perfian hiftory they are faid to have defeended the Euphrates and Tigris, and fettled in Cutha or Nabath of Babylon: that is, fays De Herbelot, about the Nabathean fens; and here they were diffinguifhed by the name of Zobak. Some have thought that they were originally Chaldmans, and that they were named Keldan or Chaldmans, the Cafhdanim of the Hebrews and Arabs.

(D'Herbelot.)

We must here observe that the Nabathean Fens are faid to have been called Cutba, and that an ancient King of Babylon there cut many canals from the Euphrates into the Paludes, and from thence into the Tigris. Cuitb or Cutb in Irish is a Canal; a fors, a ditch; on this last branch stood Apamia, and at the forks of the Euphrates and Tigris stood Corke, or Corche, in Irish Cuirche, the city of Corke. Nimrod Gigas is effet qui effodit aliquot fluvios in Al Irae, quas deduxit ex Euphrate, et dicitur ejus fluvios in Al Irae, quas deduxit ex Euphrate, et dicitur in the fame of the flumen Cutba in via Capba. (Ahmed). In Perfic, Irak, or Erak, or Ark, is also a Canal, the fame as Cutb in Irish, changed by the Arabs into Kusb.

se tana,

" tana, præter Baridis deæ templum." We fhall hereafter shew that Barr-eas was Luna, and that the Egyptian Is's received her honours as a Navigator from the Irish word Es or Is, a ship. Bochart thinks Baris may be a corruption of the Hebrew perith, i. e. fædus, Quia in illo ipso monte Deus fædus contraxit, non tam cum Noa, quam cum hominum genere universo, inde data in signum fæderis. This leads me to the true derivation of the name of Armenia. The Magogians or Armenians always recorded this Covenant of God with mankind, and annually celebrated the Mion, Armion, or Breith; and hence Ar-mion-ia, literally implies the country of the Mountain of the Covenant *.

The Prophet Jeremiah records the Mountain of the Ark and of the Covenant, in chap. 51. ver. 27. " Set ye up the flandard in the land, blow the trumpet among the Goim : prepare the Goim against her ; call together against her the Kingdoms of Arrarat, Minni and Aschenaz :" for the Hebrew Mini the Chaldee has har-Mini, the Mount of the Covenant. And here I must observe, that Arrarat is a Scythian name for the mountain of the Ship, for Art, or Aorth, or Arth, is a Ship, and Ar a mountain : in the Egyptian language erbot, as gin-erbot, navigatio, in Irish Arthgim navigare; for gin in Egyptick, and gim in Irish, is the verb facere. I am led to this derivation, feeing the Hebrew Etymologists have gone fo much out of the way for an explanation of Arrarat, viz. Maledictio tremoris; aut ex Hebræo et Syro maledistio, five lux currentis : and we learn from Haitho, the Armenian, that the name of the mountain in their language is Aurth, which perfectly

* Perficè Armun, a pledge, an earneft, furety, stipulation, any thing by which a promife is confirmed (Richardson). Armen name of a mountain near Bursa in Bythinia. (Do.)

cor-

corresponds with the Irish Aorth, or Arthrac a Ship. So Ao hor and Eathar from Eatharac a Ship, from Nora pellis & ac water : hence the Phœnician Hercules was named Melic-artus, or Melecnician Hercules was named Melic-artus, or Melec-Aorth, the King of the Ship, or the Sailor of the Ship *: it is therefore probable that was originally was originally was orifor R + .

The Magogians ‡ honoured Noah by the name of Oig uige, Sathar-naoi, Ceistur or Keisturus, Fear-taomhan, that is, the Giant or Hero of the Ship; the Ship Voyager, the man of the Ocean, whence the Greek Ogyges, Saturnus § the Chaldee Xisuthrus and the Etruscan Vertumnus, i. e. Neptune.

Keift, or Ceift, in Irish is an Ark or Ship, in old Persian Keshti, hence Runjbur Kishte, a trading Veffel; Keshti Noab, Noahs Ark. Abydenus, who records the name of Xisutkrus, is supposed to have * Hence Melicerta fon of Athamas King of Thebes, was transformed into a Sea God : worfhip was paid to him by the Greeks, and games inflituted to his honour.

Aruat eft legendum, ut Arca dicatur in montibus Tauri confediffe, vel fi a flumina tota Armenia major Arrarat vocari concedatur. Goropius Becanus. Indo-Scyth. l. 5. This author has miftaken the fenfe of Arth, deriving it from TYN arith, rivus, ftagnum, in Irifh arrith : the miftake of the Hebrew copyifts (if any) lies in the first R, which fhould be V ; viz. DTN aurt.

‡ Midacritus. Plumbum ex Caffiterides infula primus apportavit Midacritus. Plinius, L. VII. c. 36. Bochart thinks this name is corrupted from Melicartus the Phœnician name of Hercules ; but Midacritus is evidently the Ægyptian name of the fame perfon : in that language med is a prepolite, as med-neb dominatio, from nebei dominus, med-ouro regnum, from  $eve_0$  rex, whence  $\varphi_{ovp_0}$  Pharaoh : med fabe fapientia from fabe façiens, in like manner med-erhot, a failor, i. e. Midarchot, whence Midacritus, by the transposition of a letter.

§ Sathar or Seathar, Lord, it is also a name of God. In Phœnician コンコロル Soter-Noah, Dominus Noah. In Irish Seathar-naoi, either Dominus Noah, vel Dominus Navis.

taken

taken his abstract from the Archives of the Medes and Babylonians, but we find no fuch word for a Ship, in the Chaldean Language. Carb is another name for a Ship in Irifh (in Arabic Grab). עריבא ghariba Ch. Navicula. Carabus. קרבים Karbit. pellis & Cia-Cairb or Cia-Crab was a name of Noab, i. e. the the man of the Ships : this was the Cecrops or Noah of the Eaft, Naoi and Naoib (Arab. Nahbua), is a Ship and a Sailor : in Egyptian, nebi (natatio), neph, Nauta: tonn is the Ocean, the Sea, hence Neptunus: and from Cia-naiob, the man of the Ship, I conjecture came the Greek Kavabe. Niobe was the fame perfon, though by the Greeks mentioned as a woman. See Xenophon de æquivocis, & Dickensoni Delphi Phœniciz. p. 163. Cabal is another Irifh word for a Ship. Cablach a fleet. Cablacan, a mariner. Cablachda naval: in the Chaldee חבל Chebal, & חובלא Chobla Nauta; from Naoi is derived the Chaldee ani, & אניה ania, a Ship *.

Various

* From D'D Kis. Lignum, or D'D'A Keft. Salix. NDD'D Kisma fruftrum ligni, D'D Kis. Cochleare lignum. Ceas or Kas in Irifh is a skiff, and Uairkeas a cock-boat; fays Keating, p. 148. Kib a small boat on the Thames-Scytho-Scandice Kaus pelles. Kis in Arabic is a rock or impediment under water, dangerous to mariners, whence the kib a dangerous fand bank in the harbour of Dublin. The Cissi and the Cuthæ or Chutæi were the same people. Chutæi enim iidem qui Cissi, nempe Sussame incolæ ad ortum Babyloniæ. Bochart, Vol. I. 1. iii. c. 5. ad ortum Babyloniæ, that is in Oman, where we place the Cuthæ. Cissi is from Ceas a ship, or skiff; Uairceas, a long boat, a cock-boat; hence one of the Irish princes was named Uairceas, from his constructing a number of small vessels. See Keating, as above.

The Arabs would call thefe mariers or shipmen, Grab; they would call themselves Carbae, and Carbanae, and under this name we find them in Agatharcides. His autem (i. e. Cassanitis) contigui habitant Carbi Kapbos in continente, quam portus excipit profundus in quo plurimi fuerunt fontes: deinceps autem adhæret gens Sabæorum. And Diodorus, Post has funt Kagbos

C 3

Garbi

Various are the opinions of the learned concerning the name Scytha. As to the derivation fome give of it from fhooting, it is eafily determined whether it be well grounded or not. If it could be fhewn that the Scythians used a word like this to fignify a bow, an arrow, or to fhoot, yet this would be of very little weight, as the people themfelves teftify that they did not call themfelves Scythians on that account. Among the Greeks, this word fignified neither to fhoot, nor a fhooter, not even in a figurative fenfe; Σκυθεζειν rather fignified to caroufe; and the Medes and Perfians were no lefs famous for fhooting than the Scythians; what reason then should move them to give their neighbours the name of Shooters? as if bows and arrows had been unknown to them (they called themfelves Bolgi, and the fynonymous Greek word is σκύθαι, Coriarii). When Cyaxeres committed fome youths to the Scythians for inftruction, it was not on account of their being good markfmen, but becaufe they were famous for hunting, to which fhooting was not an indifpenfable qualification; and in the chace the Northern Scythians were known to excell, as much as the Southern Scythians did in navigation and commerce *. But they were all more famous for Carbi dicti, quos fequuntur Sabæi. Pliny calls them Cerbani. This mixture of people on the coaft of Oman, particularly at Tebama, is noted by the Arabian Geographer. Here, fays he, are wanderers from every race. Bochart derives the Carbi from J Kerab bellum, and thinks they were a warlike people; we read of them in the hiftory of the merchandize of the Red Sea, but I don't recollect the inhabitants of the coaft were ever remarkable for military exploits. Scytho-Scandicè Karfi : Anglo-Sax. Caravall. Navis.

* Mor an muirriuch im trath tonn : i. e. they trafficked much by fea. (Liber Lecanus, a very ancient Irifh MS. p. 18.)

This line of Japhet derive all their names from the fea or fea fhores in profane hiftory. Cumberland, by arguments not eafily answered, proves Nereus of Sanchoniatho to be Japhet. (in Irish Naoire a failor). The bishop also proves that Pontus was for the Sword than the Bow; for Herodotus, in his account of the actions between Cyrus and the Maffagetæ, fays expressly, that both armies were equal whilft they used only their arrows, but that the Scythians turned the fcale when they came to handle the fabres; hence the Irifh never named any of their princes or generals by any words implying bow or arrow; but many were called Swordimen, as Colpa-Cliamh, &c. &c.: or they named their Princes by fome word betokening art, fcience, knowledge; as Scal and Scalaith, which is the Phœnician aud Chaldæan doc intelligere, intueri, afpicere, confiderare, attendere, animadvertere; hence Scal fignifies a Prince or Governor, and Scal-iath, a Lord of a certain diftrict. Omnibus autem (Scythis) nomen effe Scolotis Regis cognomen. Sed Scythas Græci appellavere, was the fon of Nereus. Pontus had two children, a fon Pofeidon or Neptune, (in Irifh Fofa-town a dweller on the fea), and a daughter Sidon, who, being a charming finger, was the first who composed Odes (in Irish fidhnim, to fing). Nereus, Pontus and Poseidon or Neptune, every body knows to relate to the fea and its fea shores.

The like confirmation we have from the Greek hiftories, that the line of Pofeidon or Neptune is confiftent with Sanchoniatho's genealogy here, making him the grandfon of Nereus or Japhet. They own that Pofeidon had feized on Attica by a stroke of his trident before Athena came there. In Apollodorus we find, that from Oceanus is derived Inachus, and in his line the eldest Pelafgus is placed very near the beginning. See Cumberland, Sanchon. p. 259, 268.

The bifhop, with good authority, has proved the Pelafgi or Pelagi were Japhetans. All writers agree that they were Phœnicians; confequently the Phœnicians were Japhetans, and not of Ham, as has been generally imagined, from the Greeks confounding them with the Canaanites, with whom they mixed. I judge, fays Cumberland, that the prime families of Japhet and Ham were feated at no great diffance from each other, and fometimes had fair correspondence, and fometimes fell into wars of friendly comport between them : Sanchoniatho affords an inffance in his own town Berytus, which he tells us Cronus gave to Pofidon and the Cabiri.

Enter a

fays

fays Herodotus *. This, fays Mr. Baumgarten, is no other than the word Sultan, which, among European and other adjacent Tartars, fignifies no more than a Lord of the Country: The Scolati of Herodotus were, by his own account, of Royal extraction, and all of them were diffinguished by a Royal appellation.

As to the name Sacæ, Mr. Baumgarten thinks it is derived from Su, Soo, Scho, Sata, or Schat. which, in the Perfian, Turkish, and many Tartarian dialects, even fo far as Hindoftan, fignify an hundred; and as it is well known, that a multitude is often denoted by a determinate number, fo Saca or Saga literally fignifies an hundred hords, but is underftood to imply a people confifting of innumerable hords, which, fays he, is certainly the proper denomination of the entire body of the Scythians +. This, I own, corresponds with Pliny's description; Ultra funt Scytharum populi. Perfæ illos Sacas in univerfum appellavere à proxima gente, antiqui Aramæos : multitudo populorum innumera;; and with the Irifh Sgoth, a multitude, Chaldee סנות . סגיאות . סגיאות i. e. Copia, multitudo abundantia, from the root yuo, augeri, abundare. We have given a derivation well adapted to historical facts.

Ptolemy properly places the Sacæ in Bactriana; and as Chomar was their Metropolis, the Authors of the Univ. Hiftory fay, thefe muft be Gomerians.---We fhall hereafter fhew that the Gomerians took a very different route, and that Chomar in Irifh fignifies a plain, or valley between hills, whence we have a Baile-Chomara in Ireland, a Village fo called from its fituation; and this is the true Origin of the name Cimmerii, a people living in Valleys.

- * Lib. XIV. p. 226-50.
- + Obferv. on the Univ. Hift. Vol. II.
- I Lib. VI. ch. xvii.

This confusion of general names made Strabo fay, "that the ancient Greeks called all the Northern Nations Scythi and Celto-Scythi, without diffinction;

" but they knew little or nothing of these People, or of the Persians, Medes, or Syrians; and all they had written of them was mere fable *."

The Author of the Recherches fur l'origine & les progrès des Acts de la Grèce, observes, " that the name of " Scolati is anterior to that of Scythi, and that of Sacæ " muft have preceded that of Scolati fince the prince " that bore it was born of the Saca. The name of this " people, fo ancient, has never been changed, or at leaft " has received fo little variation, as to be difcovered, " not only in China and Japan, but also in every country " they originally inhabited. The Ufbeck Tartars, a " division of the Monguls, call themselves Zagais; " and their Country, of which Samarcande is the Ca-" pital, is called Zagathaia, or Zagaia, which is the " fame as Sacaia." We fhall only add on this fubject, that the learned Professor Bayer observes, that the word Scythæ was unknown to the most ancient Greek writers, and that it is not of Grecian origin: and he adds, it was not the name the Scythians called themfelves. Bayer is fo far right, that they called themfelves originally Bolgi, that is, Hydemen, because their veffels were made of Hydes, and the Greeks confequently call them oniban, Skuthai, i. e. Hydemen, Coriarii +, where these Bolgi had mixed with the Dadanites, and had traded to Babylon, where they fold the Scoth of their Bolgi; they then took

· Strabo L. XI.

+ The Greek word corresponding to Bolgi, is σπυθαι, i. e. Coriarii, whence Stephanus justly derives the name Scythæ, and σπυθοπολις. Coriarii Urbs, i. e. Scythopolis. Steph. de Urb, p. 246. In like manner the Irish Escip, Scip. Skiph, a ship is the TO'T'S Sichiphe of the Orientalists, i. e. Sicca-pellis, or Navis-pellis. See p. 18.

took on them the name of Scothi or Scuthi, the Chaldean name for a ship, and by this name they were known on the Red Sea, where they failed the Ægyptian fhips; hence the Allegory, that their King was married to Scota, a daughter of the Ægyptian monarch; as Erythrus, or Hercules, was faid to be married to Erytha, i. e. a Ship. They called themfolves Mil-efs or Lord of the Ship, Sailors, whence the name Milefs or Milefius *, fynonymous to Milecaurt or Melicartus, and probably Hercules is also derived from their Arg-iul, a failing by the Compass. The Compass is faid to have been known to the Chinefe 1115 years before Chrift (Playfair); why not to the Tartars and Scythians? Arg is a ship, and iul is to turn round, it fignifies also an index. Earc is the Heavens, and Earc-iul defcribes the inftrument turning to a certain point of the Heavens r.

The Magogian Scythians, mafters of Armenia and Mefapotamia, diftinguished that part of it between the Euphrates and the Ægæan and Mediterranean Seas, by the name of Jar, Jaran, Eire, or Eirin, fig-

* This is the meaning of the names in Irifh, we are affured by the fragment of a very ancient poem, written, it is faid, by Amergin, who was a Milefian, and arrived in the first expedition; this fragment is preferved in the Liber Lecanus or Leabar Lecan, p. 13. and concludes thus:

> Tuatha mac Mileadh Mileadh Loinge libearn.

Lords were Milefius fons Milefius of the Libearn fhip.

Libearn is the Chaldee Creft's Libernia Naves caudicariæ et bellicæ ex tabulis craffionibus factæ unde Aferron. (Plantavit. Lex.)

+ When the Greeks came to understand that Cuil in the Scythian language was a club and Err, a hero, they thought Hercules derived from Errcuil or the Club-Hero, and thus they reprefented him; and the fymbol of Hercules being the trunk of an olive tree confirmed them in the mittake.

nifying

i. e.

nifying by these words, the West; they are the fame as the Phœnician אחור Ahur, אחרון Aharon, i. e. postremus, occidentalis *. Hence we find in Rivola, that Abiran is the name of Armenia, and Abirnac an Armenian, in the Armenian language. The Country Eaftward of the Euphrates, the Scythians named Oire, and Oirche, denoting the Eaft, from ne or Lux, item Aurora .--Prof. Bayer thinks this name was peculiar to Ofrhoes, and that it was written Urhoi (terminatione Aramaea), i. e. Sol, Lux, Ignis 1 .--The level plains of this Country the Scythians named Uire, or Ur, words which express a moift place, a valley; hence the City of Ur, near Nifibus, on the River Migdonius; Ur alfo fignifies Fire, Light, the Sun; hence the Ur of the Chaldees on the South banks of the Euphrates : the fimilarity of names has occafioned much confusion in the Geography of the Ancients. This part of the Country containing Sbinaar, or Singara, Naarda, Migdon, and feveral places recorded in the Irifh Hiftory, we fhall annex a Map of ancient Mefopotamia, from Bochart, Dufrefnoy, &c. §

Ebir Scuit verte vert in defcent from Magog, paffed over the Cafpian Sea, and peopled that Country, named Scythia intra and extra Imaum, or the Northern Scythians, or Hyperboreans. Thefe people did not fettle in towns, but led a wandering life, whence they were named, by the Southern Scythians, Tuath-rianuigh, or Tuaraniugh, the wandering people. The Perfians fay that the Tourani, or * Bochart. Phal.

+ Idem.

+ Hiltoriæ Ofrhoenæ, p. 4.

§ Sacæ, nam et Bactrianam occupaverunt, et optimam Armeniæ tellurem, quam a fe Sacafenam denominaverunt. Strabo, L. X. p. 511. Thus we fee in the time of Strabo, the Sacæ-Seana, the Old Sacæ, were ftill exifting in Armenia.

Northern

Northern Scythians, were fo called from Tour, Son of Feridoun, a King of Perfia of the first Dynasty, named Pish-dadiens: that Tour had an elder brother named Irag, who had Perfia for his inheritance; and Tour was obliged to pass the Gibon, or Oxus, and to reign in the Transoxane Provinces. Mirkhound writes, that the City of Mauaralnachar on the East of Babr Khozan, i. e. Caspian Sea, was built by Tour, from whom all beyond the Oxus was named Touran. Almed Ben Arabshah fays, that Turquestan was named from this Tour; but the learned D'Herbelot clearly proves, that neither was Turquestan named from Tour, or Iran from Irag', as the Persians fabulously relate.

The Arabs, Perfians, and Turks have always diftinguifhed the Northern from the Southern Scythians: by the name Jagiuge and Magiuge, or Gog and Magog, fays D'Herbelot, they underftand the fame as they do by Gin and Magin, or Tchin and Matchin; that is, the Northern Chinefe and the Southern Chinefe. (See D'Herbelot at Magiuge). Hence we find the City of Magog in Syria, &c. Our Colony of the Magogians never went North of the Cafpian Sea, but extended from thence Southward and Eaftward. And under the word Turk, D'Herbelot obferves, that the Arabian and Perfian Authors agree, that the Share of the Land that fell to Japhet and his Children, was from the Gordian Mif. to the Eaftern Sea, and all to the North of it.

My reader being now prepared for the ancient hiftory of Ireland, we muft obferve, that the ancient Armenians and Magogian Scythians, from whom the Irifh defcended, having been one and the fame people, both named Eirineach, or Abiranach; it will not be furprizing to find, that the transactions of their Ancestors in Armenia, being either handed down by tradition tradition or records, have been miftaken for the transactions of these people in Eirin or Ireland; and the same of the Expeditions of the Scythians into Iran or Persia.

For example : when we find in Mofes Choronenfis the fabulous ftory of Noah's Niece, voyaging across the Euxine Sea, and fettling in Aburan or Eirinn, i.e. the Weft, we are not to be furprized to find the Irifh Bards bring her to Eirinn or Ireland; or when we find in the Annals of Armenia a people named Gein-Thonni, that is, Sea-faring men, from whom came Cadmus; we are not to follow Mofes Choronenfis, and fay, thefe were Canaanites (from a popular notion, that Cadmus was a Canaanite); they were indeed Phanicians, the offspring of Magog, among whom we shall find Cadmus in the sequel of this Hiftory, and the caufe of his being thought to have been an Egyptian. If the Armenians have their Gelam, a hero and leader, the Irish have their Golamb. which was a Cognomen of Milefius, the conqueror of Spain and of Ireland. Golamb dies, and leaves his Kingdom to Heremon; -- the Armenian Gelem dies, and leaves his Kingdom to Herman : " Gelamius Har-" man genuit, et post aliquot inde annos mortuus est, " cum id mandati filio fuo Harman dediffet. Mofis " Chorenenfis," p. 34. " Hæ autem narrationes, feu " veræ funt, five falfæ, nihil laboramus." Idem. p. 19. If the Armenians fay they are defcended of Japhetus, Haigh or Oig, that is, Japhet the Giant, we shall find, the Magogian Scythians, or Irifh, to draw their defcent from the Anceftor of Magog, or Japhet Gadul, whence they have to this day diffinguished themselves by the name of Gaduli or Gaodbal; and this was the most proper name, because the facred penman gives him the epithet of Gadul גדול, by which he means a man a man of extraordinary flature. And Sem, the brother of Japhet, Gadul. Genefis, chap. x. ver. 1. the Seventy translate it Japhet, the elder; yet Mofes mentions him laft; but if eldest or youngest, the word gadul implies great, magnum effe vel fieri. Goadal Glas oraidbtor Gaodbal, from the גדלינלו Gadul Glaz, illustris Gadul, the Irish derive their name of Gadelians. (Keating, p. 68. from an ancient poem). And the Posterity of this Gadul-glas were called Scuthæ. (Polichronicon. ch. 37. L. I. agus Luchdna Scuitia faor o cumbact gach cine; and the Scythian people were never conquered. Scythæ ipfi perpetuo ab alieno imperio aut inacti, aut invicti manserunt. Darium regem Persarum turpi ab Scythia fummoverunt fuga. Cyrum cum omni exerctu trucidarunt. Alexandri magni ducem Zopyrona pari ratione cum copiis univerfis deleverunt : Romanorum audivere fed non fenfere Arma. (Juftinius, Herodotus, &c. &c.)

FINIS.

school de lie epithet of O del Srib Le velisie aut

in an arbitration training years while a line of

A RELEVANTA

Speedily will be published,

COLLECTANEA DE REBUS HIBERNICIS,

No. XIV. Vol. IV.

Containing a Vindication of the ANCIENT HISTORY OF IRELAND; proving from Scripture and from ancient Greek Authors, that the Irifh Hiftory is FOUNDED ON FACTS. From original Irifh MSS. with Remarks on each Chapter, wherein is fhewn,

THE original fettlement of the Magogian Scythians, in Armenia; the ancient histories of Armenia and of Ireland, collated; proved to be the The migration of the Armenian Sevthians, fame. down the Euphrates; their fettlements on the Perfian Gulph, in Oman and round the borders of the Indian Ocean, and of the Red Sea: That they were the Am Süm of the Scriptures, and the Ichthyophagi of the ancient Greeks: Their mixing with the Dadanites of Chaldea, and the migration of fome of these mixed Colonies to Tibet, and to Japon; their navigations acrofs the Indian Ocean, and from the Red Sea to Tartefs in Spain: Their fettlement in Canaan, at Dor, and Bethfean, alias Scythopolis, in the lot of the half tribe of Manasseh: their mixing with the Tyrians: their migrations to Sicily, Africa, Spain, and the Britannic Isles: Their flight from Tyre to Spain, with Ith, Governor of Tyre, when belieged by Nebuchadnezzar; his pursuit of Ith to Spain, and of their final departure from Spain to Ireland, under Ith, commonly called the Milefian expedition : Of their expulsion expulsion from England, by the Cymmerig, or Welch Britons, and of their confinement to the North of Scotland, Manxs, and Ireland.

Of their arts and fciences, and of their skill in aftronomy and navigation; proved to be the lost ancient people of Monsieur Bailly; proofs of their having the use of letters before the arrival of the Christian Missionaries; that the unknown characters of Persepolis are the Ogham letters of the Irish. Fragments of ancient Irish astronomy; proof that the science of astronomy begun in Armenia.

Of idolatry in general; that one general fystem was formed before the difperfion; that the Druidical Religion was part of the general fystem, and not peculiar to Gaul and Britain.

Of the Pagan Religion of the ancient Irifh, collated with the Egyptian, Chaldæan, Perfian, and Tibetan.

Of the Temples, Altars, Antra, &c. &c. Illustrated with Maps and feveral Engravings.

By C. VALLANCEY, LL. D. &c.

of Ocents, and poor also tinde The Line of the state of the second the their mit that to block A truck South and the little find acquirture from Spain to head i the and to the own of Manager Type while

Channel in the too hand