THE LESSON

Let dogs delight to bark and bite"
Old Doctor Watts once said,
But doggies three, attend to me
And what I say instead

Good dogs should never, never bite,
And only bark for joy,
And never go rampaging round
Their mistress to annoy.

And, Fido, you must learn to stand
Upon your hinder legs;
That's right! Now watch, you other dogs,
How gracefully he begs.

Now, doggies, do as Fido does
And follow what I teach;
A cake or sweet, or piece of meat
Shall be the prize for each.

Reggie loved to worry and tease,
(Observe the two dogs at his knees).

He had three cakes of goodly size
(Observe the poor dog's hungry eyes).

See how he starts cake number one
Alas, poor dogs it soon is done.

And as each cake they see diminish
They hope for some before the finish.

Reggie has finished cake number two;
He starts the third! What will he do?

At length he gives them each a taste
He wants to teach them not to waste

Then seeing that they're still distressed,
He smiles and gives them all the rest.

MY DOGGIE'S GREETING.

Every morning when I wake
I see beside my bed,
My little doggie waiting
And I pat him on the head.

He wags his tail and barks with joy
With his little bark so gruff,
And kisses me "Good morning" till
I tell him ; "That's enough !"

"NUBOLIC" SOAP CLEANS AND DISINFECTS AT ONE OPERATION

Place the tracing paper opposite, over the outline picture and then go over all the lines very carefully with a sharp black pencil.

THE OLD UMBRELLA

Beneath the green umbrella
I'm sheltered from the rain
I can sit and watch it falling
Till the sky is bright again

My umbrella is old and shabby
And some of its ribs are bent.
But it keeps me dry and cosy -
That's all for which it's meant.

And doggie sits beside me
Watching the clouds roll by
A run down the lane and back again
Will very soon make him dry

MEASURING HEIGHTS

I'm as tall as you Rover,
Or very nearly as tall;
And because I'm only four years old
You mustn't think I'm small.

Stand quite still, old Rover,
And measure heights with me.
When I stand behind your back
I can look right over, you see.

I'd like to climb upon you
And have a nice, long ride;
But your back is as high as my shoulder
And I cannot get astride.

Papa once placed me on it
And I seemed up ever so high,
Won't you lie down old Rover,
And let me have a try?
